HEAT!

BY USING ONE OF OUR

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

Russia Must Fight or Withdraw Whole Army

ENVELOPED BY JAPANESE

St Petersburg Admits That a Few Days More Will Tell Story of Victory or Defeat--Severe Fighting at Outer Positions of Port Arthur

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—Although public attention has been distracted from the events of the war during the past week, first because of the fear of international complications and, second, because of the assassination of Minister of the Interior Von Plehve, the situation at the front is regarded as critical.

The enveloping movement of the three Japanese armies of Generals Kuroki, Nodzu and Oku around General Kuropatkin's position appears to be almost complete and the extended line of the Japanese seems to be the only drawback to concerted action. It is realized here that the Russian general must now either fight or withdraw the whole army northward. He is being closely pressed at Haicheng. At that place Kuroki's northern column makes it extremely dangerous to remain there, because, while holding the position to give battle against the Japanese, whose advance is notoriously always slow and careful, Kuroki might push through and cut his railway communications to Liao Yang.

While nothing definitely is known, there are indications that matters are rapidly maturing for either a battle or a retreat. For instance, the refusal to accept further press telegrams at Haicheng is shown by the fact that one of the press correspondents had to ride through to Mukden to file an account of the Tatchekiao fight. This might be construed either that preparations are making for a retirement or that the [illegible] concentration at Haicheng or Liao Yang. A few days are expected to determine which course Kuropatkin has elected to pursue.

There is no inclination here to doubt that there may have been pretty severe fighting at the outer positions of Port Arthur, possibly accompanied by a bombardment from the sea, but it is not believed that the Japanese are yet ready to storm the fortress. Rear Admiral Withoft, in command of the naval forces at Port Arthur, is relied on to put to sea if the condition of the fortress becomes desperate. While no definite information is obtainable, the report that the fortress is experiencing a shortness of ammunition is considered by the public as the most disquieting feature of the situation there.

The indications are that the Baltic squadron is on the eve of an important movement. Nothing regarding this can be ascertained officially, but many of the officers already have bade farewell to friends and families and are holding themselves ready for instant service.

Heavy Losses on Both Sides

Chefoo, Aug. 1.—A Japanese merchant has received word from a Chinese whom he trusts to the effect that the Japanese have occupied every position surrounding the besieged fortress of Port Arthur, with the exception of Golden hill. The Chinese stated that both sides suffered tremendous losses in the operations necessary to bring about this state of affairs. The members of the Russian intelligence bureau here are inclined to believe the reports true to the extent that the Japanees have made great progress in their operations about the besieged fortress.

Port Arthur Garrison Misled

Tokio, Aug. 1.—The reply of the Port Arthur garrison to the Japanese summons to surrender shows that the garrison is under the impression that Field Marshal Oyama and all his staff were sunk with the transports Hitachi and Sado and that the Russians wholly disbelieve that Kuropatkin has ever been defeated.

Baltic Sea Fleet on Way East

Copenhagen, Aug. 1.—Two Russian cruisers and two torpedo boats have traversed the Great Belt, going northward. This is believed to be the advance section of the Baltic fleet on its way to the far east.

The Great Belt is a wide channel connecting the Baltic and the North seas. It separates Funen, the second largest of the Danish islands, from Zealand, the largest of the Danish islands.

Was Subject to Confiscation

Vladivostok, Aug. 1.—No details have been received here of the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander by the Vladivostok squadron except the statement to the effect that a portion of the crew and passengers and the ship's papers are held for production as evidence in court to justify the claim that the ship was a legal prize and therefore subject to confiscation.

TWO YACHT RACES.

Marvel and Miji Win at Quincy—The Sheila at Wollaston.

There was a good list of boats in the handicap club race of the Quincy Yacht club Saturday afternoon.

In class A the Marvel was an easy winner, leading the Hustler by nearly two minutes. In class B it was a matter of seconds between the Miji and Thelma for the first place and the Miji won.

In the 21-foot class the Usona beat the Omeme by nearly four minutes. In the one design class Bettie B was an easy winner.

The Aleppo and Marjorie were the only boats in the motor class and the Aleppo won.

Hardy Cup Race.

The second Hardy cup race of the Wollaston Yacht club was sailed Saturday in a light breeze. Five boats entered and they went over the line well bunched. After turning the first buoy the Sheila got first position and held it throughout the race. The Pocohontas which was a good second withdrew when near the finish line on account of low water. This gives the Sheila two legs in the cup.

Run to Marblehead.

GRANITE MEN BACK.

Enthusiastic Over the Reception Given Them at Barre.

Speeches of Welcome and Replies by the Visitors.

Visits to the Sheds and Quarries---Grand Barbecue and Many Other Attractions.

The long-looked-forward-to trip of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association to Barre, Vt., is over, but the memory of it will not soon be forgotten. The Barre men used their visitors "white" from start to finish. Everything that it was possible for one body of men to do for another was done.

From first to last the trip was a strenuous one, replete with incidents. Events came thick and fast, and it would require a book to recount all that transpired, and then it would only be half told.

Of the trip up Thursday a part has already been told to readers of the Ledger. One incident, however, was omitted. That was the working of the 33d degree of the S. T. order upon a few of the party. Chief Engineer Williams was the first to receive the degree, and his word can be taken when he says it was all right.

It was a tired body of men that were about Barre on Friday, yet they kept moving.

Shortly after breakfast at Montpelier the party started for Barre, and they spent an interesting day travelling about the cutting plants.

Quincy men as a rule were surprised at the extensiveness of these plants. There were few if any small sheds as in Quincy. On the contrary they are much larger. Barclay Bros. and Jones Bros. were the largest plants visited. They were certainly immense.

At Barclay Bros.' plant considerable interest was manifested in the new tool sharpening machine that had recently been installed.

In the afternoon some of the party continued their visits among the cutting plants, while others took carriage drives through the country.

Chief Williams was the special guest of Mayor Barclay and assisted him in selecting a location for a new fire station which is to be the counterpart of the Wollaston station.

In the evening the Mayor of Montpelier ordered out the military band in honor of the visitors, and a fine concert was rendered opposite the Pavilion hotel.

While listening to the concert a newsboy approached with the morning papers. He approached a Quincy manufacturer who was dozing in a chair. "Papers," shouted the boy. Our friend opened his eyes and raming his hand deep into his pocket for change said, "Yes, give me a Ledger." "Have not got it," said the boy, as the laugh went around.

Those who remained in Barre were entertained at the rooms of the Barre Association. A light lunch was served and there was more or less shop talk.

President Alexander started the ball rolling. He said in part:

A year ago tonight we met and talked over matters of interest to both of us at Quincy. We are glad to see you here this year and we will try to make it pleasant for you. We used to have a New England Association where we met once a year, but Barre is the only Association left in it. If we could revive that it would help us. We had with us last year a man who was only a private manufacturer, but this year he is mayor of Barre. But he believes in Barre granite—not only for monuments and for buildings, but also for streets and everything else.

Mayor Barclay said he had always looked upon Quincy as the pioneer in the granite industry in America, and as a mother to the Barre industry, and as every obedient son should, we mean to do well by you. He told how he landed in Quincy in 1880, but that place was too slow for him. The late George Mackie and James Simpson had come to Barre and he soon followed. He found Barre suited to him, but Scotchmen were curiosities here then.

He told how a native young woman expressed the opinion that she thought Scotchmen were awful homely but that was before he arrived. Barre business had been confined mostly to monumental work, but the mayor declared we were going into the building work. He further declared that more work had come into Barre in the last six weeks than we can do this summer, unless more workmen come.

As chief executive of the city, Mayor Barclay extended the visitors a hearty welcome.

President H. S. Nicoll of the Quincy Association declared in reply that as far as we have gone, Barre has been a surprise. We are more than surprised at the energy and enterprise shown in your plants. He believed the interchange of meetings a good thing. He believed in getting together socially, and in working together. The trouble with granite manufacturers is that they don't realize what good business is, they haven't the backbone to make a price with a fair margin of profit and to stick to it. Quincy is not in competition with Barre at all.

John L. Miller speaking of the visit said: The first thing he saw when he arrived in Montpelier was Mayor Barclay. He thought he knew a good thing and he stuck to him all day. He asked: Are you Barre manufacturers making a proper profit on your investment? We are told you are making a living, but are you in business only to make a living? The man who works eight hours a day for $3 is a good deal better off than many of us—we work long days and worry how to meet payday and over other business matters and only get a living. It does seem there should be some way to better our condition.

The trouble has been we were too jealous of each other when we should have worked hand in hand. Barre and Quincy produce seventy-five per cent. of the monumental work of the country. Why give it away? He believed a small committee from each association could accomplish something for good for both associations.

Other speeches along the same line were made by Fred B. Mudgett, H. J. M. Jones, E. H. Debebough, Thomas Mannex, John McDonald, W. T. Spargo, T. W. Eagan, Joseph Walker and others.

A motion by Mr. Miller, that a committee of three be appointed by each association to see what can be done to better the present condition in the granite business, was passed.

It was a thoroughly tired crowd of men that retired to bed that night, and a majority of them got their first sleep since Wednesday.

SATURDAY.

They were up bright and early on Saturday, however, ready to put in another day of enjoyment.

In the morning a special train of five cars left Montpelier at 8 o'clock for Barre, and a trip over the Mountain road to the quarries was in order.

At Barre the train was divided into two sections, and pushed up to the mountain quarries. Quarry after quarry was visited, the 28 miles of track reaching every quarry on the mountain. The quarries are finely situated. The granite is in layers and there is an inexhaustable supply. Every quarry is a gold mine.

Along toward noon they were escorted into a grove where teams soon appeared with a lunch. The visit to the quarries was then continued.

Shortly after 1 o'clock the trains went down the hill and landed the party at Caledonia Park, a beautiful grove half way between Barre and Montpelier.

It was there that the grand barbecue was served in a big tent, and 420 sat down to the dinner. Everybody had their fill of the good things provided. The variety served can be seen by a glance at the following menu :

New Orleans Chicken Gumbo
Sliced Cucumbers
Roast Beef a la Granite
Creamed Potatoes
Roast Young Pig a la Vermont
Green Corn.
Barbecued chicken a la Bowers
Spring Lamb a la Quincy
Watermelon a la Mint.

During the dinner the well trained voices of the Quincy men accompanied the orchestra whenever one of the popular airs was rendered.

After dinner some wandered about through the grove, and there was a series of impromptu sports. These included a wheelbarrow race around the dance hall. Chief Williams was the first to make the course, and it was a surprise to many to see him sprinting. Sheriff Field was next in line and he was followed by P. T. Fitzgerald and William Marshall. The time as indicated by someone's stop watch was: Field, 22 seconds; Marshall, 23 seconds; Williams, 24 seconds; Fitzgerald, 26 seconds. Of course no one would vouch for the accuracy of the stop watch.

Then there was 100-yard dash between Mayor Barclay of Barre and Councilman Spargo of Quincy. Spargo won by the one-hundredth part of a second.

The next thing of interest was a cake walk, which was finely executed by Chief Williams and Dick Prout.

Special trains left the park for Barre and Montpelier. Saturday night was spent as individual taste inclined.

SUNDAY.

Sunday morning many of the party took carriage drives through the two cities. The special train left Barre for home at a few minutes past 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The train carried a load of tired granite men. They had enjoyed themselves to the uttermost, and were high in their praises of the most hospitable way in which they had been treated.

The trip home was not without interest. At Franklin two hot boxes on the tender of the engine held the train for some minutes, and then again just before reaching Concord the train was stopped while trainmen drove a cow from the track.

Boston was reached at 8.45 P. M., and the party took the 9.28 train for Quincy, where they arrived safe and sound about 10 o'clock.

The committee of the Quincy Association, to whom thanks are due, were: John L. Miller, Harry S. Nicol, W. T. Spargo, Thomas J. Dunphy, Alex. Falconer, James H. Elcock and T. F. Mannex.

The South Quincy foot ball team went to Barre with the granite manufacturers and Saturday morning played a match game with the Rangers of Barre. Neither side scored in the first half and the second half the Rangers scored one point and won the game.

Lost Her Toes.

A South Boston woman had the toes of one of her feet taken off by an electric car on Independence avenue late Sunday evening. It is said that a party of four, including one woman, all hailing from South Boston, went to visit friends at Braintree. When the party started for home they arrived at the street ahead of time, and sat down in the bushes beside the track to wait for the car. It is supposed that they must have fallen asleep and that one foot of the woman rested on the car rail. While in this position a car for Braintree came along, and as the party in the bushes could not be seen, the car wheel passed over the woman's foot cutting [illegible] She was taken about the car to [illegible] sent to the [illegible] farm where her injuries were dressed. The [illegible] were placed under arrest for drunkenness.

Solemn High Mass

The funeral of James Fore[illegible] of Hancock street, who died sudd[illegible] day, was held this morning [illegible] John's church. Solemn high [illegible] was celebrated by Rev. John J. [illegible], assisted by Rev. Julian E. Johnston and Rev. John J. Casey. The Gregorian mass was sung by the choir. After the mass Miss Julia Rostelli sang "O! Paradise." The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery. Mr. Forest was connected with the old horse railway of Quincy, which had a car barn near his residence.

Raid at Houghs Neck.

Inspectors McKay and Bradley visited Houghs Neck Saturday afternoon and seized a lot of liquor at the steamboat wharf under the Faxon law. The liquors consisted of bottles of beer in two sugar barrels, three kegs of beer, and a gallon of whiskey. The goods were consigned to parties at Houghs Neck and were seized because not properly marked.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

IMPRESSIVE RITES

Remains of Von Plehve Interred In Monastery

IDENTITY OF HIS ASSASSIN

Police Not Yet Certain Concerning It, but Have Knowledge of Widespread Plot of International Anarchists In Europe

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—M. Von Plehve, the minister of the interior who was assassinated Thursday last, was buried yesterday and throughout this empire church bells were tolled and masses and prayers said for the repose of the soul of the murdered minister. The services here were according to the rites of the orthodox church. High mass was said in the chapel adjoining the ministry of the interior. The czar and czarina stood with the widow and children of the minister at the foot of a great mound of flowers on which rested the casket. To the right, on gold-embroidered cushions, before a mass of wreaths banked to the ceiling were ranged the decorations which had been won by the statesman. To the left were the metropolitan of St. Petersburg and the officiating bishops and priests. A screen of flowers concealed the imperial boys' choir.

The entire assemblage was in full uniform, and on the arm of each one present was a badge of mourning. All held lighted tapers throughout the service. At the most solemn moment, when all knelt and many were affected by tears, the widow was overcome and fainted. The czar came to her assistance and she was carried out.

The czar was visibly moved and upon the conclusion of the mass he followed the casket to the street. There the funeral procession was formed. Behind the hearse walked the members of the minister's family and then came a long and distinguished body of mourners, it being the Russian custom to follow the dead to the grave on foot.

The czar walked a short distance, but as the Novodevichy monastery, where the burial took place, was over five miles, and also because of the condition of the czarina, the czar soon entered his carriage and returned to the Peterhof palace.

The monastery stands on a plain beyond the Narva gates, and at these gates fully 50,000 persons were gathered. After a burial service in the church the body was interred in the adjoining cemetery at a point within a stone's throw of the grave of M. Sipiaguine, who was M. Von Plehve's predecessor and who also fell by the hand of an assassin less than two years ago.

The murderer of Von Plehve has been removed from the hospital to the Wyborgsky prison. The police know the alias under which he travelled, but say they are not yet satisfied regarding his identity and decline to reveal the alias on the ground that it might defeat the ends of justice.

There is no longer any doubt that the police for some time have had knowledge of the existence of a plot by a band of international anarchists in Paris and Vienna. The leading conspirator, it is said, was a man whom the Russian government tried to extradite from Paris last fall. Some of these conspirators arrived here a week ago and the police thought that all of them had been taken into custody.

The far-reaching character of the machinery of the ministry of the interior and the urgent necessity for dealing with many pending matters render it imperative that the czar select a successor to Von Plehve immediately and it is considered certain that he will do so this week. Influences hostile to Witte, president of the council of ministers, in spite of his acknowledged ability and the general belief that he is the man for the position, seem to render his appointment increasingly improbable.

Banished From Finland

Helsingfors, Aug. 1.—The father of Eugen Schumann, the assassin of General Bobrikoff, governor general of Finland, has been sent to St. Petersburg under an escort of gendarmes. Professor Gummerus of the University of Finland has been exiled to Russia, being the fourth professor from this institution to be exiled since the murder of Bobrikoff.

Searchers Found Page's Body

Malden, Mass., Aug. 1.—The body of Clarence A. Paige, who disappeared from his home in this city last Wednesday, was found in a thickly wooded part of Middlesex Fells. A gaping wound in the throat and a shoe knife on the ground beside the body indicated that the man had taken his own life. It is believed that Paige was temporarily insane.

Greer Retains His Honors

St. Louis, Aug. 1.—Frank B. Greer of the East Boston A. A. B. C., who defeated Constance S. Titus in the championship single sculls last year, successfully defended his title of national champion against Titus and the best single scullers of the United States at Creve Coeur lake.

Robert Pattison Laid Up

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—Robert E. Pattison, former governor of Pennsylvania, is critically ill with pneumonia at his home at Overbrook, a suburb of this city. His illness has been complicated by a weak heart and his condition in consequence is considered grave.

A PECULIAR BURGLARY

Successful Operation of Robbers Under Great Disadvantage

Boston, Aug. 1.—Some time between 12:15 and 2:15 o'clock in the morning the confectionary store of Julius Snyder, at the corner of Ninth street and Dorchester avenue, South Boston, was entered and a 500 pound safe, containing more than $300 in cash, was carried away. The safe was found on the South Boston flats, its door broken off and the contents missing.

It is believed that three men participated in the break. In order to enter the store they were obliged to break into Snyder's residence on the floor above, climb over a crib in which two children were sleeping, then go down stairs to the store and, after moving the safe to a window, lower it to a wagon 12 feet below. The wagon had been stolen from a neighboring stable and as no horse was obtainable the burglars had to pull the vehicle through the streets to the flats, some distance away.

Woodchoppers In Fatal Quarrel

Providence, Aug. 1.—As the result of a quarrel between Thomas Sweeney, 33, and Edmund Bourgeois, 63, both wood choppers, in West Gloucester, Bourgeois sustained injuries from which he died almost instantly and Sweeney is under arrest on a charge of manslaughter. Bourgeois accused Sweeney of paying attention to his wife and the two men came to blows. The younger man got the better of his antagonist and left Bourgeois lying by the roadside. The man was dead when found by a neighbor.

Legislative Agent Not Needed

Boston, Aug. 1.—The city of Boston will have no legislative agent at the state house during the next session of the legislature, because Mayor Collins does not think one necessary. Boston has 50 members in the house and nine in the senate, and Collins thinks that these ought to be able to represent the city without having any special counsel or legislative agent at the state house. He will abolish the office of legislative agent so long continued under previous administrations.

Old Home Week In Massachusetts

Boston, Aug. 1.—Special religious services marked the commencement of the third annual old home week in Massachusetts. About 50 towns are this year observing the festival, which three or four years ago was recommended by the legislature, the celebration to begin annually on the last Sunday in July. A number of the towns are having their third consecutive observance, and the indications point to the increasing popularity of the old home week idea.

Police Descended on Chinamen

[illegible] features attended the raid on the alleged Chinese gambling joint at 158 Oxford street last last night, in which 11 Chinamen were arrested and gambling paraphernalia, an opium set and furniture, all valued at $1200, were confiscated. In the melee Officer Quirk and Chief Burckes were injured about the head and as a result several of the Chinamen are nursing very sore heads.

City of Rockland Beached

Rockland, Me., Aug. 1.—In the teeth of a southwest gale, which would undoubtedly have caused her destruction before night, the steamer City of Rockland was successfully floated from Grindstone ledge yesterday and brought to Rockland. With the exception of a heavy list to starboard, the boat shows but little exterior evidence of her experience. Late in the afternoon the steamer was beached.

Carriage Collapse Caused a Death

Huntington, Mass., Aug. 1.—John G. Avery, aged 60, a farmer and horse raiser, was killed while driving his son and two summer boarders to the railroad station. One of the rear wheels of the carriage collapsed and Avery was thrown out. He clung to the reins and was dragged some distance, striking his head against a tree, causing his death.

Express Train Struck Freight

New Haven, Aug. 1.—The White Mountain express from New York, bound north, ran into a freight train at Cedar Hill station. Engineer McIntosh of the express was killed, his fireman very badly hurt and the baggagemaster on the train was slightly injured. No passengers were injured.

Officer Shot by Accident

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 1.—Sergeant Gordon of division 2 accidentally shot himself in the left knee last evening, in the guardroom of police headquarters, when about to respond to the evening rollcall. The revolver dropped from Gordon's holster, and, exploding, sent a 32-calibre bullet into his leg.

Expect to Have 37,000 In Line

Boston, Aug. 1.—The local committee in charge of the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in this city estimates that more than 37,000 veterans of the Civil war will be in line when the great parade moves through the streets on Aug. 16.

Hanging Followed Quarrel

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 1.—After locking out of doors her husband, with whom she had quarreled, Mrs. Minnie Douglas last night ended her life by hanging. When the husband succeeded in forcing an entrance into the house he found the woman dead.

An Engineer's Sudden Death

Boston, Aug. 1.—Franklin Dunham, single, 40 years old, employed as an engineer in the Hotel Langham, dropped dead as he was about to begin his tour of duty at that hostelry last evening.

OLD BAVARIAN TOWNS.

Many of the Smaller Ones Are Merely Walled Farm Villages.

In old Bavarian districts many of the smaller towns are merely walled farm villages. These settlements of agriculturists reproduce the ancient lager for all. Each is built in the form of a parallelogram, the shorter sides having each a gateway, with double gates, over which rise central square watchtowers capped with conical red roofs. A narrow road or street runs from gate to gate, with old half timber houses set back close to the inclosing wall. The ground floor of these houses affords stabling for cattle, and from these stables the cows are driven out through the town gates in the morning and brought in at night. Townships like this are merely clusters of houses intimately connected with the farm lands that lie beyond their gates. The peasantry, whether peasant proprietors or allotment leaseholders, go in and out to their work.

In eastern Bavaria, toward the Danube, where the better class farms are to be seen, one finds farmhouses of wood, a great shingled roof covering—as in Holland—not only the large living apartment, with many bedrooms, but also the stables for the horses and cattle. On such farms much of the farm work is done by girls, who usually wear short petticoats, tight bodices and kerchiefs on their heads. Most of the men are either in the army or working at trades.

SMOKING A CIGAR.

Some Things That Every User of Tobacco Does Not Know.

"It's really remarkable, considering the 12,000,000,000 cigars smoked in the United States every year, how few men really know how to smoke," said a prominent tobacco dealer. "There is one mistake in particular that even experienced smokers sometimes make—that is in not keeping the tobacco burning properly.

"About 90 per cent, I should say, of all the cigars sold are better on the outside than the inside. This isn't wholly to deceive the prospective buyer. It requires a good quality of leaf to shape the outside of a cigar, while the filler may be more readily composed of inferior tobacco. The smoker who permits his cigar to burn inside the wrapper loses the best part of it. Practically any cigar is rank when smoked through the center. The aroma is lost and the smoke is bitter and acrid.

"Puffing on a cigar that is not burning properly only increases the difficulty. The smoker gets more of the smoke of the inside leaves, and the whole cigar becomes hot from the effects of the increased combustion in the center of it. The proper thing—the only thing—to do under the circumstances is to light the cigar again, taking care that lighting. If this plan were followed a good many smokers wouldn't change their brand of cigars so often."

MEN FLOCKING IN

Packers Have More Unskilled Help Than They Need

STATEMENT OF STRIKERS

Public Asked to Be Patient With Them During Struggle For Supremacy--Riot Between Police and Union Sympathizers

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Both the packers and the strikers spent Sunday in strengthening any weak spots that could be found in their defenses preparatory to their week of effort to bring their opponents to terms. Notwithstanding that it was Sunday all the plants were operated during the forenoon in order to get rid of the live-stock that had been left over from last week. The remainder of the day was spent by the employers in installing new men in the strikers' places and arranging many of the small details which had been overlooked last week during the heat of the conflict.

Over 1000 new men were added yesterday to the number already at work in the different plants. Among the arrivals were many skilled laborers, something the packers have been sadly in need of ever since the strike started. The employers have experienced little difficulty in procuring all the unskilled men necessary to operate the plants to their full capacity, but there has been a decided scarcity of skilled workmen and for this reason the by-products of all animals killed have been let go to waste. Commencing today, three of the firms announce that they will be able to operate these divisions; enough skilled men having been procured in the past 48 hours to justify the belief that all the by-products plants will be in full operation by the end of the week.

The strike leaders spent the greater part of Sunday in preparing a statement to the public. In this statement the unionists explain their side of the controversy, declaring that it is the packers and not the men who are responsible for the present state of affairs in the packing industry. The public is asked to be patient with the men during the struggle for supremacy, it being declared by the union leaders that it would be impossible for the men to return to work under the conditions which existed before the strike was called. According to this statement the men will stay on strike until their employers surrender.

The police and a mob of strike sympathizers clashed last night in the vicinity of the stockyards. The disturbance was caused by two non-union men who entered a saloon and asked for a drink where a crowd of the strikers' friends had congregated. When the bartender went to serve the strike breakers the other men in the place protested and a fight followed. Several policemen ran to the saloon and succeeded in ejecting the attacking party. The doors of the place were barricaded, but the rioters, being reinforced by several hundred of their friends, returned to renew the attack.

A riot call was sent in, but before the patrol wagon with a squad of policemen had arrived the saloon had been partly wrecked. It was necessary for the police to fire a volley from their revolvers over the heads of the rioters before they desisted in their attack on the place. With the exception of bruises and scratches received during the disturbance no one was seriously injured.

In a fight at the Nelson Morris plant between Andrew Simms and John Davis, both non-union workmen from New Albany, Ind., the former was stabbed and killed.

Donnelly's Order Not Obeyed

New York, Aug. 1.—More than the usual number of cattle were slaughtered here Sunday in the plants of the Schwartzschild & Sulzberger company and the United Dressed Beef company, in spite of orders from President Donnelly that all of the men in both plants should come out unless both companies entered into separate agreements with their employes. A meeting of the Cattle Butchers' union was held last evening, but no vote was taken on the question and the meeting was adjourned until this evening.

Employers Threaten a Lockout

New York, Aug. 1.—It is said that if the members of the unions who are held responsible for the strike in the subway do not adjust matters promptly a general lockout may be ordered by the Building Trades Employers' association, to be followed by an attempt to establish an open shop. If a general lockout is ordered between 25,000 and 30,000 men in greater New York will be affected.

No Change at Fall River

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 1.—There is little of interest in connection with the cotton mill strike in this city. At the churches yesterday nearly all the ministers referred to the labor situation, but none of them made any extended remarks on the subject.

Hammer Throwing Record Falls

New York, Aug. 1.—In the presence of 7000 spectators who attended the Gaelic athletic tournament for the benefit of the Christian Training college at Clontarf, Dublin, John K. Flanagan of the Greater New York Irish Athletic association increased his world's 16-pound hammer-throwing record from 171 feet 9 inches to 173 feet.

CASTRO IS DELINQUENT

Germany Acts Because of Non-Observance of Protocols

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Aug. 1.—It is reported that Herr Pelldram, the German minister at Caracas, has delivered an ultimatum demanding the immediate payment by the Venezuelan government of the interest on the amount of the award to be paid to Germany as stipulated in the protocols signed by Herbert W. Bowen, representing Venezuela in February, 1903. If this demand is not complied with, the report says, the minister will leave Caracas Aug. 4.

Surprise at Washington

Washington, Aug. 1.—Not a little surprise is evidenced here over the news from Willemstad, as the general impression has been that President Castro was meeting the demands of the protocols signed by Mr. Bowen. Germany, Italy and Great Britain, according to the decision of The Hague tribunal, were to have preferential treatment in the payment of their claims against Venezuela, after which the non-blockading powers were to be paid. All the payments were to be made out of 30 percent of the customs receipts of the ports of La Guira and Porto Cabello, which were to be set aside for that purpose.

There has been a feeling of dissatisfaction among some of the members of the diplomatic corps at Caracas over various acts of President Castro and some reports which have reached here have intimated that a full 30 percent of the receipts at the two ports named were not being set aside for the payments of the claims as provided in the protocol. This may have a bearing on the action which is said to have been taken by the German minister.

Protest From Great Britain

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Aug. 1.—The British minister at Caracas has strongly protested in the name of the English bondholders against the seizure by the Venezuelan government of the asphalt lake at Guanaco, the property of the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company, maintaining that the interests of the bondholders will be menaced unless the lake be immediately restored to the company.

Bad Smashup of Trolleys

New York, Aug. 1.—Fifty passengers were injured, 11 of them seriously and one possibly fatally, in a head-on collision between a runaway trolley car and another trolley at Woodlawn late last night. Both were open cars filled with holiday crowds. Motorman Crawfield was bringing his car into the city. He started down a hill and the car got beyond his control. The other car should have stopped at a switch, but failed to do so, and the [illegible]

Not Plain Sailing For Reyes

Washington, Aug. 1.—Just a remote inkling of the possobility of an upheaval which rumor says has occurred in Bogota reached here through official channels some time ago. This was to the effect that the anti-Reyes element in the lower house of the Colombian congress was dissatisfied with the way in which things were going on and gave evidence of strong opposition to him for the presidency.

Engineer's Legs Cut Off

Providence, Aug. 1.—While attempting to board a moving car at the Hautereve club, James Cooper, a locomotive engineer, missed his footing and fell under the wheels of the car. The rear truck passed over both legs, inflicting injuries which necessitated the amputation of the limbs at the knees. The patient's chances of recovery are slight.

Will Risk Trip to Japan

Astoria, Ore., Aug. 1.—The Hamburg-American steamer Aragonia, which had been held here for two days awaiting orders, has departed for Yokohama and Hong Kong. The Aragonia's cargo is similar in nature to that carried by her sister ship, the Arabia, which was captured July 28 by the Russian fleet.

Convicts Embrace the Church

New York, Aug. 1.—Auxiliary Bishop Cusack, assisted by several priests and seminarians, confirmed a class of convicts as members of the Roman Catholic church at the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island. There were 35 male convicts and two female convicts in the class and all wore their prison garb.

Passengers and Cars Robbed

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 1.—A passenger train was held up near Tucumcari, N. M., and robbed. The passengers were lined up and their valuables taken from them, after which the express and mail cars were uncoupled from the train and run about two miles up the track and there dynamited and robbed.

Diaz Coming to United States

Mexico City, Aug. 1.—President Diaz says that he may visit the United States during the coming summer. This is taken to mean that Diaz intends to take a relief from executive duties soon after the installation of Coral as vice president.

Police Suspect Suicide

New York, Aug. 1.—A man who registered as Thomas Hayes, Boston, was found dead from the effects of gas in a hotel here. It is believed by the police that he turned on the gas with suicidal intent, and that Hayes was not his name.

Certain That Burns Was Murdered

Boston, Aug. 1.—State Detective Murray, who has been constantly at Athol on the search for the body of Frank Burns, who disappeared near there on Dec. 17, says he has found unmistakable evidence that Burns was murdered. The evidence has been but recently discovered and is closely guarded. Detective Murray has notified Chief Shaw in Boston. It is now expected that Shaw will go to Athol to personally direct the search for the body of Burns.

Handicapped by Porpoises

Nantucket, Mass., Aug. 1.—The bluefish and weakfish fishing, which has been unusually good during the past month, was brought to a sudden end by the appearance of an immense school of porpoises, which surrounded the island, driving the bluefish away and slaughtering the weakfish. Fishing steamers ran off 10 miles south of the island, but found the porpoises almost as thick as nearer shore.

Would-Be Suicide Reveals Identity

New York, Aug. 1.—Having been told that he would almost certainly die within a very short time, but still believing that he will get well, Samuel L. Dana, the young bank clerk found in Central park last Friday with a bullet wound close to his heart, admits that the wound was self-inflicted. Dana's father is on his way here from Fairfield, Ia.

Murderers Cornered In Swamp

Portage, Pa., Aug. 1.—Pursued by 800 determined citizens, the three men who murdered Charles Hays, driver, and perhaps fatally wounded Patrick F. Campbell, paymaster for the Puritan Coal company, are hiding in Cedar swamp, about seven miles from Portage. One of the fugitives is injured, but not enough to affect his flight.

Standard Showed Great Speed

New York, Aug. 1.—Captain Nat Herreshoff's new speed boat, Swiftsure, which he entered in the Atlantic Yacht club's power boat race, was defeated by C. C. Riotte's Standard by 2m. 46s. over a 20-mile course. The Standard's average speed was 21.126 knots; that of the Swiftsure 20.135 knots.

Trolleys In Rear End Crash

Cleveland, Aug. 1.—Twenty-three persons were hurt as the result of a rear end collision between two large trolley cars near Nottingham. Except Mrs. John Heinrich,, who is said to be badly hurt, the other passengers sustained only minor bruises.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Pacific Mail Steamship company has notified shippers that the company cannot receive freight for Yokohama at present.

Of seven persons who were thrown into the waters of Casco bay, off Brunswick, Me., through the capsizing of a catboat, all were saved except Bernard Stone, 10 years old, of Waltham, Mass. He was caught in the rigging of the boat and drowned.

Herbert Hanson, 32, was drowned from a yawl off a wharf at Biddeford, Me.

Samuel Robitaille of Lewiston, Me., was drowned at Lake Auburn by the upsetting of a boat. Miss Celia Provencher, who was with him, was saved.

—Official statistics show that there are 17,000,000 children in Russia between the ages of 6 and 14 receiving absolutely no education.

Eczema

How it reddens the skin, itches, oozes, dries and scales!

Some people call it tetter, milk crust or salt rheum.

The suffering from it is sometimes intense; local applications are resorted to—they mitigate, but cannot cure.

It proceeds from humors inherited or acquired and persists until these have been removed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

positively removes them, has radically and permanently cured the worst cases, and is without an equal for all cutaneous eruptions.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best cathartic. Price 25 cents.

THE MINOR PARTIES.

NOMINEES OF THE PROHIBITIONISTS, POPULISTS AND SOCIALISTS.

"The Fighting Parson" of Pennsylvania Who Leads the Prohibitionists—An Incident In the Career of Thomas E. Watson.

Besides the presidential tickets of the Republican and Democratic parties there are now in the field those of the Prohibition, Socialist and People's parties. Each of these minor parties has named to head its ticket a man conspicuously identified with its policy.

The nominee of the Prohibition party for president, Rev. Dr. Silas Comfort Swallow of Pennsylvania, is a Methodist clergyman prominent in his denomination. He was born at Wilkesbarre, Pa., in 1839, is the editor of the Pennsylvania Methodist and won attention as a reformer through attacking in his paper alleged abuses in the state government. In 1897 he was nominated for state treasurer of Pennsylvania and in 1898 for governor, receiving 132,000 votes for that office.

Dr. Swallow has been known for some years as "the fighting parson." Even when he was a very young man he showed that he had not only ideas of his own, but the courage of his convictions. He was an ardent abolitionist, and during the first years of the civil war there was a certain place on his route as a Methodist circuit rider where he found the people so incensed at President Lincoln's course in respect to slavery that he was advised not to pray for the chief magistrate.

Swallow resolved to disregard the advice, with the result that on his return to the church a few Sundays later he found the doors locked. Mounting a stump near by he began to sing. He had a congregation of two for prayer. Curiosity brought his enemies from the woods where they were watching him, and by sermon time he had the largest audience to which he had ever preached in that vicinity. He made no reference to the locking of the church, but gave his hearers a strong sermon on support of the government, and his manly course won the day.

Thomas Edward Watson, nominee of the People's party for president, was born in Columbia county, Ga., Sept. 5, 1856. He contended with poverty in obtaining an education, was admitted to the bar and made a small fortune in practice of law. He was sent to the Georgia legislature for several terms and afterward to congress.

This was in 1890, and he was elected as a Democrat, but joined the Farmers' alliance movement, a course that brought him into conflict with his colleagues of Democratic faith in the house of representatives. It was in this connection that he immortalized the now historic phrase, "Where was I at?" In a campaign book issued for circulation by the People's party he charged Congressman Cobb of Alabama with making use of this language when addressing the speaker of the house while in a maudlin condition. The controversy over the question of Representative Cobb's sobriety on this occasion is now famous. Watson made unsuccessful contests for reelection to congress as a Populist in 1892 and 1894. He was nominated for vice president by the People's party in 1896, the ticket being headed by William J. Bryan. For the past few years he has devoted himself to literature and has written a historical work entitled "The Story of France," which is most original and unconventional in style. Ancient history is told with verve and dash in modern vernacular.

EUGENE V. DEBS.

T. E. WATSON.

Eugene Victor Debs, nominee of the Socialist party for president, is known as a labor organizer and lecturer. He was born at Terre Haute, Ind., in 1855. He worked when a young man as locomotive fireman and as a clerk. For several years he was city clerk of Terre Haute and in 1885 was a member of the Indiana legislature. He has been prominent in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and in the American Railway union, and it was while he was president of the latter organization that it won the big strike on the Great Northern railway in 1893.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

There was a disgraceful scene at a place on Temple street on Sunday.

July 11 was the lucky day for those who traded with George W. Jones last month.

Mrs. C. Seaberg of Newport, R. I., is in town to spend a few weeks with friends.

E. J. Sandberg sailed from Sweden for home on Friday last, and is expected about Aug. 12.

Mrs. Mary E. Powers of Washington street is the guest of relatives at Stoneham for a week.

Miss Margaret Davidson of Hancock street is spending two weeks with friends in Montreal.

Mrs. Adeline C. B. P. Badger of Lyndon, Vt., is visiting relatives in this city for a few weeks.

Mrs. Sarah C. Williams of Cross street is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Joy of Bennington street, for a week.

Mr. Sturgis, the obliging meat cutter at L. M. Pratt & Son's, leaves today, for a week's vacation at New York.

Mrs. Daniel W. Lane of Granite street is entertaining her sister and three children of Hawkesbury, N. S.

James J. McGourty died on Saturday at the residence of his sister, Mrs. James Martin of 54 Hancock street, Atlantic.

Fredrick Waite of Safford street has gone to Old Orchard beach with Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm and family for two weeks.

Miss Lois Davidson of Hancock street goes today on boat Calvin Anston for St. Johns, N. B., to spend two weeks with friends.

The alarm from Box. 37 at 10.30 Saturday night was for a slight fire on the roof of the blacksmith shop at the Mitchell Granite works.

Mrs. Joseph Harris and Mrs. George Sanborn of Coddington street are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Dunham of Canton for a few days.

John H. Gillis of Trafford street has returned from a visit to his former home at Prince Edwards Island, where he enjoyed two weeks of Old Home celebrations.

Miss Charlotte Kingman severed her connections with the Master Builders Association on Saturday and has accepted a position with E. S. Beckford as bookkeeper.

Miss Eva Marden, who was taken suddenly ill while visiting her aunt at Hull on Monday, has been removed to her home on Coddington street and is slowly improving.

J. F. Allen of this city was elected a vice president of the State branch of the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association at the quarterly convention at Hyde Park on Sunday. The association will meet in Quincy in October.

Mrs. A. B. Packard, Mrs. Frank Packard, Mrs. M. Josephine Whittemore, Mrs. Mary Sleeper, and Mrs. Henry Fenno and son, have returned from a week's trip to the Catskills mountains and down the Hudson river.

Capt. "Dan" McQueen of Quincy Neck has purchased a new 30-foot steam launch and took out a party of forty or fifty friends from Boston, Cambridge, Charlestown and Chelsea on Sunday. Refreshments were served on board, and as it was an exceedingly warm day, they all expressed themselves as having had a very enjoyable trip.

MERRYMOUNTS

Win from the Atlantic Team at Park.

So. Quincys Win from St. Marys.

The Quincys and Wollaston Parks Also Victorious.

The Merrymounts won from the Atlantics at Merrymount Park Saturday in an interesting game. Both pitchers were effective, Hankins holding the Merrymounts down to four hits. Kolson kept the Atlantics hits scattered and was well backed up by his team.

A base on balls, a hit and a wild throw gave the Merrymounts a run in the first inning, and they did not score again till the sixth when Baker's three-bagger, Eaton's single and Chadbourne's rap to Jason gave them two more.

The Atlantics scored in the sixth and in the seventh.

Features of the game were the catching of Burchstead and stops by Atkins and Kolson of the Merrymounts, and the fielding of O'Connell and batting of Donaher of the Atlantics.

A Close Game.

The South Quincys won from the St. Marys at the Ward Three playgrounds on Saturday by the score of 6 to 4. Five of the runs by the winning team were made before the St. Marys woke up. The South Quincys excelled at the bat, making 10 safe hits while the St. Marys made but 4. The three-base hit of Forbes of the visitors was the feature of the day, but Drake of South Quincy had a couple of doubles and Duffy one. Patterson struck out 12.

Wollaston Parks Win.

The Wollaston Parks defeated the Victor A. A. of Roxbury Saturday afternoon at Merrymount Park by a score of 10 to 5.

Up to the fifth inning the visitors failed to score, but a timely hit by Haley scored their first run; in the sixth, eighth and ninth they also scored. Hoxie and Hazelton pitched excellent ball for the Park team striking out 17 men, and allowed only three passes to first base. Kapplar, Welsh and Bean also played fine ball. Bean of the Park team made a home run for the Victors. Russell led at the bat, while Fisher led in the fielding.

Quincys Win.

Quincys defeated the strong Savin Hill team at Ward Two playground Saturday before a large crowd, by a score of 7 to 3.

The visitors got two runs in the first and one in the second. After that McGovern settled down and retired the batsmen in one, two, three order, he receiving excellent support, especially from the infield.

The features were the pitching of McGovern who allowed only four hits; the catching of Smith, the fielding of Duffy, Mullane and Powers, a running catch by Rooney, the base running of Mullane, Flynn, Eldridge and Smith and the batting of Mullane and Flynn for the home team; while Barry, A. Fultz, Voye and Mannning excelled for the visitors.

WAS A FRAUD.

Woman Arrested in City Square Sunday Evening for Larceny.

A young woman whose name is given as Annie Gavin of Neponset was arrested in City Square Sunday evening by Officer Crooker for begging.

The story told by the woman was that she was collecting money to aid a Brockton widow who had eleven children.

She exhibited a note signed by Rev. [illegible] her as one worthy of charity. The story she told the officer was that the note had been given her by her cousin in Brookline, whom she saw at St. John's church that morning.

The police were unable to locate any clergyman by the name of Christopher McDonald.

She obtained small sums of money from several persons about City Square. This morning she admitted to Inspector McKay that the note was a forgery. She told him that her home was in Nova Scotia and that she had work out in Quincy, Weymouth and other places. She was arraigned in court for larceny.

Lobster Tournament.

There were eight entries in the "lobster" tournament of the Quincy Tennis club on Saturday and the prize was won by H. H. Albee who defeated L. H. Gilson in the finals. The summary:

H. H. Albee beat Chas A. Price, 6-4, 6-4.

John O. Hall, Jr., beat W. A. McConnell, 6-0, 6-1.

L. H. Gilson beat J. M. Nowland, 6-2, 1-2 (default).

SEMI-FINALS.

H. H. Albee beat Thorp Babcock, 7-5, 6-0.

L. H. Gilson beat John O. Hall, Jr., 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

FINALS.

H. H. Albee beat L. H. Gilson, 7-5, 6-1, 6-1.

TODAY'S COURT.

Harvey A. Brodevowz and Peter Thompson were fined $5 each for speeding automobiles at Milton, and Harlow W. W. Waite $15 for speeding an automobile on the Blue Hills Reservation.

Charles Johnson of Milton and Arthur Quincy were fined $3 each for drunkenness.

Raymond A. McDonsld and Fred Powers were arraigned for breaking and entering and larceny from the house of Nathan J. Horton at Milton. They were held in $500 each for the grand jury.

Andrew McIntosh and David Friberg were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. The former case was continued until Aug. 29, and the latter until Aug. 8.

William French was arraigned for drunkenness at Braintree. Case placed on file.

Annie Garvin was sent to Sherburn for larceny from Ida Raymond at Quincy.

—Private G. W. Mauss of Co. K, of Hingham, was critically injured by a blank cartridge at a dramatic entertainment at Hingham last week.

—Rev. F. M. Brooks of Hingham has accepted a call from the Church of the Good Shepherd at Watertown.

ENTERPRISE FIRST.

Won the $100 Prize at the Saturday Play Out.

The Catholic parishes of Weymouth and Braintree held a picnic at New Downer Landing on Saturday, which was largely attended. A playout of hand engines was the great event, and ten well-known tubs competed. The Enterprise of Brockton with 206 feet 6 inches to her credit won the $100 prizes. The other prizes of $50, $30 and $20 went to the Star, the Cochato, and the Active. The summary follows:

	Ft	In
Enterprise, Brockton,	206	6
Star, Jamaica Plain,	184	5 3-4
Cochato, Braintree,	183	9 1-2
Active, Weymouth,	182	2 1-4

ONE PASSENGER KILLED

Many Hurt In Smashup Due to Misunderstanding of Orders

Westboro, Mass., Aug. 2.—A head-on collision between electric cars occurred three miles east of this town, resulting in serious injuries to 14 persons, one of whom has since died, while the death of a second is momentarily expected. Mrs. Caroline Stewart was injured internally and died at the hospital in Framingham a few hours after the accident. Edward Doe, one of the motormen, was frightfully injured and it is said he cannot recover.

The accident occurred on a curve at a steep incline and was due to a misunderstanding of orders relating to the crossing of two cars on a single track. The officials of the company claim that Conductor Balcom and Motorman Dunn, in charge of the car bound from Worcester to Boston, should have waited at a turnout, near the scene of the accident, until a car in charge of Motorman Doe and Conductor Metcalf, running to Worcester, had passed. Usually the men are furnished with written orders, but as nearly as can be ascertained the orders were telephoned to Balcom and Dunn, but were misunderstood. The car bound for Worcester was running down a grade and had just turned the curve when it struck a car heading in the opposite direction.

Both cars were badly damaged by the impact. The west-bound car carried 31 passengers and the other 35, all of whom were thrown forward violently and some crushed by the bent framework. The passengers on the front seats of both cars received the worst injuries and in addition to broken bones sustained severe cuts from flying glass.

Train Wreck In Connecticut

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 2.—A train coming toward this city, consisting of a combination baggage and smoker and two coaches, was wrecked two miles above this city last evening and several persons were injured, although probably no fatalities will result. Had it not been for a telegraph pole, a part or all of the train would have rolled down the embankment of 15 feet into the Yantic river, which runs parallel with the track. Just how the accident happened is not known, but Engineer Alger is of the opinion that something broke on the engine, causing it to leave the rails.

Abdomen Was Punctured

Boston, Aug. 2.—Andy Anderson, 19 years old, was held for the grand jury on a charge of killing David Lewis, an expressman. Lewis was stabbed with an ice pick during a dispute with the defendant. Medical Examiner Draper testified that death was due to a punctured wound of the abdomen with hemorrhages, and said it was an extraordinary thing for one to die of a wound of the nature of Lewis'.

Double Tragedy at Providence

Providence, Aug. 2.—Inflamed by groundless jealousy, John V. Duarte, aged 27, shot his wife Louisa, aged 26, and then fired two more bullets into his own body, inflicting a probably mortal wound, at their home here. The couple have one child, a girl of 10 months. They have been married about four years and bore a good reputation.

A New Wireless Station

Siasconset, Mass., Aug. 2.—William W. Bradfield, chief expert of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, has arrived here to conduct a series of experiments which the company intends making at its wireless station in this village for the purpose of increasing the power of the plant in long distance communication.

Suicide of a Doctor

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 2.—Dr. John M. Steele shot himself at his home here last night and died three hours later. The bullet passed through the right temple, penetrating the brain. Steele had been a sufferer from melancholia, brought on by overwork.

Bad Storm at Springfield

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 2.—During an electrical storm here lightning struck in at least a dozen places and set a number of fires, the worst of which was in Agawam, where an $18,000 schoolhouse was burned to the ground.

A Little Below Requirement

Santa Barbara, Cal., Aug. 2.—The battleship Ohio was given her speed trial in Santa Barbara channel. It is not yet known whether she made the government speed required of 18 knots, but the actual record of the trip shows she fell a very small fraction of a knot below the figure fixed by the government. She will have another trial.

Inspector Ties Up Steamer

New York, Aug. 2.—Steamer Grand Republic, sister ship to the General Slocum, which was burned several weeks ago with a loss of nearly 1000 lives, has been ordered tied up until she can be reinspected. The order followed a visit to the Grand Republic by Supervising Inspector Rodie.

—While American books are coming into increased demand in England, it appears that the prejudice against them has not disappeared. A London publisher lately wrote to the London Chronicle that when he brought out an American book he took pains to remove all traces of its trans-Atlantic origin. Otherwise its circulation would be diminished by half. American spelling is the point at which even the broadest minded Englishmen seem to balk.

Cloudburst This Morning.

It looked for a time Monday evening as though there was to be a heavy tempest. For a time the wind blew almost a gale. The sky was black, the thunder rolled and there were sharp flashes of lightning. But little rain fell, however, as the shower apparently went out to sea. Although the rain skipped Quincy at that time, neighboring places got it heavy. The shower returned from its sea trip in the vicinity of 5.30 this morning. At that time the rain came down in torrents. There was but little wind, however, and the rain came down straight.

Profit Sharing.

The eleventh was the July day selected by George W. Jones as his profit-sharing day, and $60.46 will be distributed among those who purchased goods at his store that day. In his show window today are the envelopes showing the amount purchased and on the envelopes are the amounts in bright new bills and silver. These show that the purchases ranged from seven cents to $4.25. There are several $3.75, $2.75, $2.50 and $1.50 packages, and some for fractional parts of a dollar. A larger part of the amounts however are for over one dollar.

Milton Vacancy.

Milton will lose her popular High school principal, as the Free Academy at Utica, N. Y., has elected Emery L. Mead as its principal from a list of nearly 100 applicants. Mr. Mead has been at Milton seven years, coming from Natick. He is a graduate of the Wesleyan University.

Seawanhaka Cup.

The yacht White Bear, belonging to the White Bear Club of St. Paul, known as the Sigma in the trial races, has been selected as the challenger for the Seawanhaka cup. The Noorna will defend the cup.

Mortgagee's Sale.

PURSUANT to the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage deed, given by Mary Fahey to Bertram D. Corliss, dated April 18th, 1904, and recorded in Norfolk Registry, Lib. 971, Fol. 359, for breach of the condition of said mortgage deed, and for the purpose of forclosing the same, will be sold at public auction in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, on the premises described in said mortgage, on THURSDAY, the twenty-fifth day of August, 1904, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed and therein described as follows, to wit:

A certain piece or parcel of land situated on the southwesterly side of Claremont Avenue, in that part of said Quincy, known as Quincy Point, being lot No. 25, on plan made by H. T. Whitman, Surveyor, dated August 16, 1902, recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, containing 3937 square feet of land, bounded and described as follows, viz: Beginning at a point on the southwesterly line of Claremont Avenue, at line of lot No. 24, on said plan, thence running in a southwesterly direction ninety-five (95) feet, to line of lot No. 29, on said plan; thence turning and running in a southeasterly direction along line of lots No. 29 and 28, on said plan, forty-seven and forty-four one-hundredths (47.44) feet to lot No. 26, on said plan; thence turning and running in a northeasterly direction along the line of said lot No. 26, eighty (80) feet, to the southwesterly line of Claremont Avenue; thence turning and running in a northwesterly direction along the southwesterly line of Claremont Avenue, forty-five (45) feet, to said lot No. 24, being the point of beginning. Being the same premises conveyed to me by Bertram D. Corliss, by deed of even date herewith.

Said premises will be sold subject to a mortgage for seventeen hundred dollars held by the Abington Co-operative Bank and also subject to all unpaid taxes, outstanding tax titles or assessments, if any.

The Tax Rates.

Previous to 1865 the tax rate of Quincy was never in excess of $10.00 per $1,000, and usually much less. Since 1865 the rate has been as follows, the high water mark being $19.20, but in excess of $18.00 only three years:

In 1865,	$13 00	1885,	$13 60
1866,	13 00	1886,	15 40
1867,	17 00	1887,	15 80

EXPENSES MORE.

Why the Tax Rate of 1904 is Larger than in 1903.

Those who predicted that there would be a reduction in the tax rate were away off. For the first year since 1899 there is an increase in the tax rate of Quincy. It is an even $18, against $17.30 last year and $17.49 in 1902.

It is a high rate as Quincy tax rates go, but $1.20 below high water mark. It is also above the average of Massachusetts cities, although some have not reported for 1904.

The increase in valuation was $853,565.00; being practically the same as last year, when the increase was $859,338.00. The increase has been larger in seven years of the city government, and smaller in eight years.

The increase on real estate was $477,925.00, and on personal property $375,640.00. The Assessors say the increase was largely in Ward Two.

The total tax levy for 1904 is $446,600.01, against $414,780.02 last year; an increase of $31,819.99.

With the exception of the maturing debt (city and park), all the items which make up the levy are larger this year than last year.

The current city expenses are $10,008.22 larger, the item for interest $2,667.24 larger, the sewer tax $10,391.21 larger, the Metropolitan water tax $3,846.82 larger, the Metropolitan park tax a little larger, the State and County taxes larger, and so on.

The estimated receipts are $30,790.28 less than last year, but this year the water receipts pay the maturing debt of $35,000.00, which makes the actual receipts about $4,000.00 more than last year.

BURGLAR ESCAPES.

Was Being Escorted to Dedham Jail by Court Officer.

Court Officer William M. Marden had quite an experience on Monday with a prisoner whom he was taking to Dedham jail to await action of the Grand jury.

Officer Marden started from Quincy with Raymond A. McDonald and Fred Powers both of whom had been held by the district court for breaking and entering at Milton.

The two were shackled together and all went well until Dedham was reached. The two went into the toilet room when McDonald slipped his bracelet and the instant the two returned to the waiting room he gave a jump, ran out of the door and down the platform.

Officer Marden turned Powers over to a railroad man and started after McDonald, who, jumping a stone wall, started down High street toward Hyde Park.

Officer Marden called upon him to stop, but as he did not slacken his speed three bullets were sent after him.

This only served to hasten the fleeing prisoner, who disappeared through Brookdale cemetery.

Chief Drugan of Dedham took charge of Powers, while Officers Brown and Delaney of Dedham with Marden started in a team and searched the vicinity, going as far as West Roxbury, where a description was given to the Boston police.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased his total foreign commerce from $1,161,000,000 to $2,445,000,000, an increase of $884,000,000.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

John Evans has forwarded to the Daily Ledger copies of the London Echo and London Standard. They have the foreign ear marks, and are of interest, advertisements as well as reading matter.

logical candidate for Congressman from Norfolk County. He has just completed four years of legislative service in our General Court. He likes legislative work, has time to attend to it, and has made a most enviable record. He lives in Norfolk County.

Eight or more strong Quincy teams played base ball on Saturday. It is very evident that we are a base ball city. There were also two yacht races, a tennis tournament, a firemen's muster, golf and other attractions. Wonder if any city of 30,000 population had more athletic sports on Saturday. What is more, the Quincy ball teams were victorious.

We wish every one was as particular about the looks of their place as a family on Washington street, near Temple. They have only a small bit of land. They planted grass seed in the spring and watered it carefully and now have a nice green lawn where once was gravel and stones. Every little helps in making a town or city attractive and it is certainly commendable to see tenants doing the work of neglectful landlords.

As usual, Mr. John L. Miller had a proposition to suggest to the granite manufacturers at their joint meeting last week in Vermont, to better present conditions. It resulted, too, in the appointment of a committee to see what could be done. It is very evident that the Quincy granite manufacturers are not making what they should out of their business, especially if their men who receive $3 per day are a good deal better off, as he asserts. If the push of Mr. Miller was more universal the granite business of Quincy would be better.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ After a long fight in the courts, Admiral Dewey and the officers and men who fought under him in the battle of Manila Bay, get $830,000 as their share of prize money for the value of the Spanish ships which they sunk. The officers, of course, get the most, in accordance with ranks, and the share of the individual sailors tapers down to a not stupendous sum. These are the last prize money awards, it is supposed, that will ever come to the navy of the United States—the system now having been formally abolished. It was high time, too, for the practice was a relic of piracy, as is the performance of the Russian war vessels in sinking merchant ships. The officers and men were paid to sink the Spanish vessels, and that was enough.—New Bedford Standard.

A RUSSIAN WEDGE

Japs Hammering at Point and Operating Against Sides

ST PETERSBURG AMAZED

Military Attaches Realize That Main Army Is In Position From Which It Can Extricate Itself Only With Greatest Difficulty --General Retreat Continues

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—A report from an apparently reliable source is to the effect that General Kuropatkin's main force has been rapidly moving north for several days.

According to this report, no troops proceeding to the front from Russia had gone past Harbin in the past three days. They will be de-trained there and every available piece of rolling stock will be rushed south empty for the removing of troops at Liao Yang and other points to the northward, leaving a skeleton force to contest the Japanese advance on vital positions.

The greatest anxiety prevails here. The keenest military attaches in St. Petersburg say that for several days the main body of the Russian army has been moving north towards Mukden and that when the present line to the southeast is forced the Japanese will find that they have crushed only the shell. Should this prove to be so, Kuropatkin will doubtless be obliged to destroy the immense quantity of stores accumulated at Liao Yang.

Shrewd military critics, however, do not believe that Kuropatkin can escape a general engagement. His army forms a wedge, with General Oku hammering away at the point and Generals Nodzu and Kuroki operating with driving movements of great force against the sides. If one of the latter should break through the southern force would be doomed.

The general staff seems amazed at the immense strength of these cooperating armies. The Japanese evidently have succeeded in concealing the real number of their men and guns, which the general staff now believes must be in excess of 300,000 men, with between 300 and 400 guns.

While Oku is holding the Russian army at Heicheng in check, Nodzu is evidently trying to work around the vital position at Simoucheng. At the same time the army corps, which was commanded by the late General Keller, at Yanzalin, on the main Feng Wang Cheng road, and is also pushing a strong column through direct toward Liao Yang on the Saimtszo road. There is a road leading north from Simoucheng which strikes the Feng Wang Cheng-Liao Yang road west of Manzalin. If Simoucheng should be forced a rapid advance along this road would pocket the first Siberian army corps.

The report from Tokio that Simoucheng has actually been forced has not become generally known. The general staff remained in session until almost 2 o'clock this morning and on adjournment it was stated that nothing beyond the day's official dispatches had been received. It is thus impossible to confirm or deny the Tokio report, but if it is true, as pointed out in the foregoing, it leaves the Russian forces in an exceedingly serious position.

General Kuropatkin's reports only carry the fighting up to Sunday night, when the Russians had been driven in from the left flank of the Simoucheng position. The Russians had repelled attacks and one bayonet charge, in which there was desperate hand-to-hand fighting at Kangwa Heights. Elsewhere the Russians are reported to be holding their own. General Kuropatkin's reports give no figures of the two days' fighting. The main portion of the attack seems to have been by the artillery, the favorite arm of the Japanese.

The only real news of yesterday's results was contained in a brief press dispatch from Haicheng, filed there at 5:45 o'clock in the afternoon, saying that an artillery duel had raged all day along the entire front, but that the Russians at nightfall continued to hold their positions.

No news was received from Port Arthur.

Lieutenant General Count Keller was killed July 29, while repelling the preliminary attack of Kuroki's army on the Yanze pass, 30 miles east of Liao Yang. The general was standing near a battery which was subjected to a terrific fire when a shell burst close to him and he fell mortally wounded, dying 20 minutes later.

General Keller was the first high Russian commander to lose his life in this war. He resigned the post of governor of Ekaterinoslaff to go to the front and exchanged with General Zasselitch, who may now resume the command of the first Siberian army corps. The loss of General Keller is deeply felt in court circles. He was a personal favorite of the czar.

Stakelberg Cut Off

London, Aug. 2.—A dispatch to a news agency from Tokio says there is reason to believe that after two days' fighting the Japanese occupied Simoucheng, thus cutting off General Stakelberg from General Kuropatkin.

Work For Black Sea Fleet

London, Aug. 2.—The Sebastopol correspondent of the Times asserts positively that the entire Russian volunteer fleet, now in the Black sea, with other large steamers that have been taken by the government, are under orders for government service outside the Black sea at an early date.

Russian Warships In Red Sea

Washington, Aug. 2.—The state department has official information that two Russian warships passed Copenhagen en route to the Red sea to replace the volunteer cruisers to be withdrawn from there.

Port Arthur's Fall Imminent

London, Aug. 2.—The British correspondents with General Kuroki in the field, in brief dispatches dated July 31, concur in the statement that the Japanese have carried positions, leaving only one defensible position between them and Liao Yang.

There is still no reliable news from Port Arthur, but The Daily Mail's Tokio correspondent asserts that the fall of that fortress is imminent. Similar reports emanate from Shanghai and elsewhere.

Bezobrazoff at Port Arthur

Paris, Aug. 2.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Echo De Paris says that Vice Admiral Bezobrazoff entered Port Arthur two weeks ago on the torpedo boat destroyer Lieutenant Burukoff, which has since been sunk with all on board except three persons. Bezobrazoff is now commanding the Russian Port Arthur squadron.

Russia Releases Malacca

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—The government officially announces the release of the steamer Malacca, which was seized in the Red sea by the Russian volunteer fleet cruisers. It states that the liberation of the vessel was due to the declaration by the British government that the cargo was the property of the state, but says it must not be deduced from this fact that the imperial government abandons its intention to search for contraband of war intended for Japan.

Navy Controls Wireless Stations

Washington, Aug. 2.—Control of the coastwise wireless telegraph stations now in operation by the government has been awarded to the navy by the action of the president in approving the recommendation of the board appointed by him some time ago. The report of this board recommended that in view of the fact that the wireless telegraph coastwise stations are a part of the country's defense and because they are more important to the navy than to the army, that the navy should be given control of these stations.

Excursion Train Held Up

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Robbers last night held up a passenger train between Flossmore and Matteson, about 25 miles from Chicago. Several of the passengers were robbed and it is said that [illegible] wounded by the robbers. The bandits, of whom there were five, had revolvers and all were masked. The man who was wounded was struck on the head with an axe. The train was a special bound for St. Louis with excursionists.

Father and Son Robbed Bank

Grinnell, Ia., Aug. 2.—Irregularities in the management of the First National bank of Grinnell, whose cashier, H. C. Spencer, met death with his son in a mysterious double drowning two weeks ago, include not only the embezzlement of funds, but also extensive forgeries. The bank receiver is not yet ready to make a statement, the affairs of the institution being badly involved.

Turks and Armenians at It

Constantinople, Aug. 2.—A band of Armenian revolutionists ambushed a party of soldiers in the neighborhood of Mush. On the arrival of reinforcements the Armenians fled, setting fire to three villages on their way. Sixty Armenians attacked the village of Mossum, but were repulsed by the garrison, all but four of the Armenians being captured.

Identified as Hotel Keeper

New York, Aug. 2.—A man who refused to give his name viewed the body of the man who is said by the police to have committed suicide at the Grand Union hotel by inhaling illuminating gas and who registered as "Thomas Hayes, Boston." The man identified the dead man, but would only say he was a hotelkeeper at Stamford, Conn.

Stole Funds of Swiss City

New York, Aug. 2.—Albert Tobler, until a few weeks ago city clerk of Zurich, Switzerland, is under arrest here, charged with embezzlement of the city's funds. According to the Swiss consulate officials Tobler has admitted the charge and has waived extradition.

Capture of Counterfeiters

New York, Aug. 2.—Secret service men last night arrested Alfred Santorelli and Pasquale Savorani, charged with passing spurious coin. The officers later raided the room occupied by the men, where they say they found a complete counterfeiting outfit.

Increase In Public Debt

Washington, Aug. 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business July 31, 1904, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $980,781,413, which is an increase for the month of $13,549,639.

Russia Wanted Bourtseff

Paris, Aug. 2.—It is said that the name of the leader of a band of international anarchists active in Paris and Vienna, whom the Russian government tried to extradite from Paris last fall, is Bourtseff.

THE TRICKY GROUSE.

He Has Hundreds of Devices For Eluding the Hunter.

The grouse has a hundred tricks of defense. It will lie still until the hunter is within a yard of it, then soar straight upward in his front, towering like a woodcock; again, it will rise forty yards away, and the sound of its wings is his only notice of its presence. It will cower upon a branch under which he passes, and his cap will be not more than a foot below it as he goes, and, though it has seen him approaching, it will remain quiescent in fear until his back is turned. It will rush then, and when he has slewed himself hurriedly around he will catch only a glimpse of a brown broad wing far away.

Wounded and falling in the open, it will be found—if it is found at all—with the telltale speckles of its breast against the trunk of some brown tree, against which its feathers are indistinguishable, and the black ruff about the neck of the male will be laid against the darkest spot of the bark. Often it will double like a fox; often as a man draws near it will spring noiselessly into some spruce and hide until he passes, dropping then to the ground and continuing its feeding; often, too, it will decline to take wing, though unhurt, and will run fast for half a mile—so fast that the most expert woodsman will be unable to keep pace with it. This it will only do on leafy ground and never when snow would betray its tracks.—Outing.

FEAT OF A MACGREGOR.

Wonderful Physical Strength That Was Used to Good Purpose.

Sir William MacGregor was the hero of such an adventure as one expects ordinarily to read about only in fiction of a certain hue.

The steamship Syria, with a lot of Indian coolies on board, struck on a rock about twelve hours from Suva, the capital of Fiji.

Dr. MacGregor, then acting colonial secretary, organized a relief expedition, clambered over a broken mast that was the only path to the emigrants and again and again returned with a man or woman on his back and sometimes a child, held by its clothes between his teeth.

A man of vast physical strength, MacGregor wanted it all for his final feat. Down below on the reef was a woman who had fallen overboard, had got at the spirits and was mad with drink. The captain of the ship and a police officer who had gone after her were being swept out to sea. MacGregor slid down a rope, caught the knot of the woman's hair in his teeth and with his hands seized the two men and dragged them both into safety. He [illegible] and a good deal of his skin on the coral reef.

Modest, like many heroes, MacGregor left himself out of his own report, and it was from the governor that the queen first heard the whole story.

Woes of an Editor.

When a newspaper tells the simple truth about a bad man who is trying to get into a public place where he can steal, the truth is called "attack." If when the same man runs for office the facts of his past career are printed to show the people what they may expect, the editor who prints these facts is abused, and the rascal poses as a martyr. When a man turns out wrong, as the editor said he would, if the editor says his prophecies came true, the people accuse him of persecuting a man and "kicking him when he is down." Yet if the paper says nothing about bad men who are trying to rob the people they say that the editor is bought off and that he has taken hush money.—Emporia Gazette.

Imitation Perfumes.

"It may seem peculiar," said a perfumery manufacturer, "but perfumes are adulterated and imitated just as baking powder and other things are. For instance, we make a high grade carnation pink perfume from the flowers themselves. This, of course, is costly, but the perfume retains its odor, and a handkerchief that has been scented with it will retain the perfume even after it is washed. A hot iron will bring out the odor again. Now, a perfume that is just as good to all first appearances and that for ten minutes will have the same effect can be made out of the oil of cloves mixed with alcohol. At the end of ten minutes the odor will be gone."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The First Gingerbread.

The homely luxury, gingerbread, has been popular ever since the fourteenth century. It was then made and sold in Paris. In those days it was prepared with rye meal made into a dough, and ginger and other spices, with sugar or honey, were kneaded into it. It was introduced into England by the court of Henry IV. for their festivals and was soon brought into general use, treacle being after a time employed in the manufacture instead of honey.

Still In Doubt.

Bookie—So, y'see, if the 'orse starts at fifteen to one you get fifteen quid, ten to one you get ten quid, five to one five. D'y'see? The Innocent—Oh, yes. I see perfectly. But what do I get if the horse starts at 1 o'clock exactly?—London Illustrated Bits.

Reconciled.

Widow Wixen—Yes, Henry died quite reconciled. I was at his bedside until the last moment. Dumley (meaning to be complimentary)—Ah, that accounts for it.—Boston Transcript.

Most men postpone happiness until the future, and the future never comes.—Epicurus.

CITY BREVITIES.

Charles B. Tilton returned today from a visit to Winthrop, Me.

A. A. Linscott, who is confined to his home with the measles, is convalescent.

Miss Flossie M. Flowers of Quincy street has gone to Concord, N. H., to spend her vacation.

City Auditor George A. Sidelinger returned Monday night from a three weeks' vacation trip.

Mrs Henry O. Fairbanks and Miss Mollie Fairbanks are guests at Mayor Bryant's camp on Whitman's pond, South Weymouth.

Our markets are full of most every kind of fruit, berry and vegetable that grows and look tempting in the morning when the housekeeper makes her daily call.

The grocers and friends will be off early tomorrow morning for Fall River and Rocky Point. The markets and grocery stores generally will be closed for the day.

The Central house on Washington street now has a new sign and will henceforth be known as the New Adams House. The grounds about the house have been levelled, the edges sodded and in the fall will be sowed down to grass, greatly improving the looks of the locality.

An East Prussia Custom.

Midsummer day, or St. John the Baptist's day, is a festival of much importance among the Masur peasant girls in east Prussia. On this day they each make a wreath, and each in turn tries to throw her wreath so as to lodge it on a fruit tree. A girl must keep on throwing until her wreath stays in the branches, and the number of attempts is supposed to indicate the number of years she will have to wait to get married. When the girls are thus engaged the young men of the village stand around chaffing them when they miss. The girl who lands her wreath at the first attempt is vehemently applauded. The Masurs are Poles who live in that part of Prussia which was once part of Poland.

Donkeys In Egypt.

In Egypt the women still follow the ancient custom of riding on donkeys. The animals are small and well trained and carry their burdens about without remonstrance. The riding under these conditions demands no especial skill of horsemanship. The women make a great convenience of these little [illegible] to market or to their shopping as well as on considerable journeys.

Natural Cause.

"I have been told," remarked the visitor in Salt Lake City, "that your lake is drying up. What seems to be the cause?"

"I guess, mister," said the native, "if you had as much salt in you as that there lake's got you'd be gittin' purty dry too."—Chicago Tribune.

The Difference.

The Impecunious—It is just as easy to love a girl with money as to love one without it. The Heiress—But it isn't so easy to get her.—London Tit-Bits.

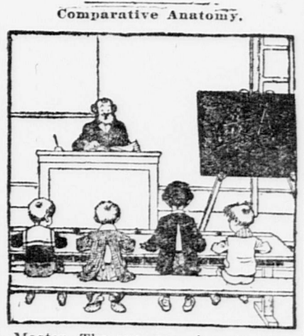

Look on the bright side. If there is a baby in the house, there are also enough safety pins for the grown folks to help themselves.—Atchison Globe.

A Kick Coming.

"Yep; we lost de game all right, 176 to 2; but dey had de empire wid 'em!"—Chicago American.

Comparative Anatomy.

Master—The eyes are given to us so that we may see. What is the nose given for, Jenkins?

Jenkins—To keep eyeglasses on, sir.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

THE FILIPINO PLANK

That In the Democratic Platform Is Ratified at Boston

REPUBLICANS SCORED

Imperialism, Trusts and Alleged Usurpation of the Senate's Power Touched Upon by Speakers of National Fame

Boston, Aug. 2.—The anti-imperialistic plank in the Democratic national platform was ratified and indorsed by the New England Anti-Imperialistic league in Faneuil hall last night before a large audience, which heard George S. Boutwell, former governor of Massachusetts, W. Bourke Cockran, Charles Francis Adams and Governor Garvin of Rhode Island denounce the Republican party in vigorous terms.

Ex-Governor Boutwell declared that imperialism and Republicanism are now synonymous and coeval extermination is essential. Twin evils are they, he thinks, and he expressed the belief that the American people will arise and crush them.

Governor Garvin went into the commercial aspect of the Philippine situation, and declared that the whole policy was miserable.

Charles Francis Adams suggested a restriction of the senate's power and an estoppal of its usurpation as of the most vital importance. He thought imperialism was second to an imperious senate. At the conclusion of the speech which he had prepared, Mr. Adams delivered some impromptu remarks, declaring that the "meat trust, oil trust, ship trust and other trusts that are held up as a source of danger" are not to be feared, as they can be restrained. The most dangerous trust, he said, was that one known as "the courtesy of the United States senate," which, he explained, was a conspiracy against the people, inasmuch as it disposes of all federal patronage, amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars each year. The courtesy of the United States senate, he declared, was distributed by President Roosevelt, Senator Lodge, Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island and Senator Knox.

Mr. Cockran said the Republican party was dragging the country to ruin; that Roosevelt, whom he compared to Napoleon, invited decay and disaster, and concluded a detailed resume of what he termed all round corruption of Republicanism with a eulogistic explanation of the Democratic platform.

The meeting passed this resolution:

"Resolved, that we heartily commend the Philippine plank of the Democratic national platform, and we believe that the principles and policy therein declared will be indorsed by the American people; that we ought to do for the Filipinos what we have done already for the Cubans, and it is our duty to make that promise now, and that it is our duty to 'set the Filipino people upon their feet, free and independent to work out their own destiny.'"

Will Talk About "Dead Democrats"

New York, Aug. 2.—Former Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota has been reported as refusing to support the Democratic national ticket. He arrived in New York last evening and said: "The Democrats of my state have nominated a good ticket and adopted a good platform, declaring for government ownership of railroads and other public utilities. I shall make speeches in the campaign supporting that ticket and platform and will talk about dead Democrats, such as Jefferson and Jackson."

Severe Storm at New York

New York, Aug. 2.—Considerable damage was done in widely separated parts of the city during an electrical storm. Several flagpoles in various parts of the city were shattered by lightning and many dwelling houses were struck. During the 45 minutes the storm continued nearly two inches of water fell, flooding cellars and streets on Manhattan island.

Railroad Telegraphers on Strike

Dallas, Aug. 2.—The Missouri, Kansas and Texas Order of Railroad Telegraphers have quit work upon the order for a strike of all the telegraphers employed on the system. The wage schedule is said to be one subject of disagreement, and pay for overtime and shorter hours are other matters which require adjustment.

Neither Side Wants a Strike

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 2.—The executive board of the United Mine Workers, district No. 1, is in session here. It seems assured that there will be no strike. Neither the mine workers nor operators desire one at present, and it seems rather a question for the mine workers to devise some means whereby the differences can be overcome.

Woman Responsible For Tragedy

Easton, Pa., Aug. 2.—Edward Ritter, a waiter in a restaurant here, shot and mortally wounded his wife and then killed himself while on a train at Leighton. The couple had separated, the woman having eloped with another man, taking all of Ritter's money and disposing of their furniture.

Proposed Compliment Turned Down

Washington, Aug. 2.—Postmaster General Payne says that an application to give the name Vardaman to a postoffice in Mississippi in honor of the governor of that state has been received and that the application has been refused.

HINTS AT MASSACRE

Haytien President's Utterances Alarms Foreigners

Port Au Prince, Hayti, Aug. 2.—At a public reception President Nord made an address which has alarmed the foreign residents. He accused the foreign population of plotting against his government, with the object of overthrowing which they had put up the rate of exchange and also the prices of all goods. The president said he had decided to defend himself and intimated that he would take strong measures, making a threatening reference to "what happened in Hayti in 1804." The rate of exchange is 600 percent.

In January, 1804, after the power of the French ceased in the island of Hayti, the independence of the island was proclaimed and Jean Dessalines was named governor general for life, with full legislative and military powers and the right of appointing his successor.

In March of that year he proclaimed the massacre of all the whites, calling upon his people to "render war for war, crime for crime, and outrage for outrage, to the European cannibals who have for so long preyed upon our race."

As a result of this proclamation there was a general massacre of nearly the whole of the whites, including aged men and women and children, numbering at the lowest estimate 2500. The negroes then declared Dessalines emperor and in the following October he was crowned at Port Au Prince with the title of Jean Jacques I.

In October, 1806, Dessalines was assassinated, after which the island was divided into the republic of Hayti and the republic of Santo Domingo.

British Cabinet Sustained

London, Aug. 2.—In the house of commons the Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, moved the vote of censure which he had announced as a result of the prominent part taken by the leading members of the cabinet in the proceedings of the Liberal-Unionist council, during which a resolution was passed approving the fiscal policy of Joseph Chamberlain. The motion was rejected by a vote of 288 to 210.

STRIKE IS ORDERED

New York Building Trades Alliance Anticipated Lockout

BITTER FIGHT PROBABLE

Employers Charge Violation of Arbitration Agreement -- Increase of Packing House Output at Chicago--Police Station Stormed by Angry Mob

New York, Aug. 2.—The Building Trades alliance, made up of 17 unions, has declared a strike against the George A. Fuller Construction company and work was tied up on these buildings: The Times building, Sturtevant building, Trinity building, New York hippodrome and Broadway and Taber building.

The reason given for calling out the men was because of a claim that the Fuller company has been using stone from non-union quarries and trimming yards. It is thought that the actual reason was because of the fear of a lockout on the part of the Building Trades Employers' association. At a meeting of this association the board of governors formulated a letter which was sent to each of the unions in the Building Trades alliance. While it was admitted the action taken was of very decided importance, the employers absolutely refused to reveal the contents of the letter. President Eidlitz of the association said that the stand taken was "firm," but he would not admit that anything like an ultimatum was sent.

The strike and the movement of the employers grow out of a series of disputes that promise to involve the employers and the union men in the building trades in another gigantic struggle. The feeling is extremely bitter between the two sides and both have been preparing for the fight that appears to be beginning. The employers assert that if they are driven to it they will declare war to the finish on the unions and employ non-union men under an open shop understanding.

The employers claim that ever since the arbitration agreement was entered into a year ago after the peaceful settlement of the long fight in the building trades, there has been a disposition on the part of some of the unions to violate it.

The Building Trades alliance has practically taken the place of the organization headed by the late Sam Parks, who recently died in Sing Sing prison.

PACKERS MAKE GAINS

Attack on Chicago Police Station by Strikers and Friends

Chicago, Aug. 2.—With increased forces of skilled workers and their operating departments more thoroughly equipped than at any time since the beginning of the strike, the packers have taken a firm grip on the machinery of their affairs and as a result the stockyards have taken on the hum of activity to a great extent.

More than 78,000 head of livestock was received yesterday. The big packers bought 8000 cattle, 13,000 hogs and 10,000 sheep during the day. Before nightfall 80 percent of these purchases had been slaughtered. Further proof of the assertions of the packers that the difficulties of the strike are being overcome was furnished by the shipment of 500 carloads of fresh meats from the stockyards. Of this number 400 cars were loaded and shipped by the firms affected by the strike. These shipments were consigned to all parts of the world, 80 carloads being billed to Boston for export.

As near as can be estimated 359 union men of the various trades on strike returned to work during the day. Of this number who abandoned the fight many were skilled workers.

Rioters stoned the Deering street police station late last night and for a quarter of an hour the police battled with the crowd of 2000 men and women, as it charged the station repeatedly with sticks and stones, shouting vengeance against the police. The trouble started when the police went to the assistance of Frank Castellano, a strike breaker employed in the stockyards, who had been dragged from a street car and severely beaten. Before the police could reach Castellano he had fired four shots from a revolver at his assailants. One of the bullets took effect in John Sheehan's arm and a riot immediately begun.

The Fall River Strike

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 2.—Five secretaries of the Textile union met last night and formulated a system for the distribution of food and funds. The plan will be submitted for approval to the Textile council. The strike situation remains quiet and without a change in any respect.

Injunction Against Strikers

Kansas City, Aug. 2.—A temporary injunction restraining the striking packing house men at St. Joseph from picketing the plants and from interfering in any way with employes was granted here by Judge Phillips.

Meat Cutters Quit Work

St. Louis, Aug. 2.—Nearly 200 meat cutters in the St. Louis Union market have struck in sympathy with the employes of packing houses.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Pilgrimages Almost Daily to the City of Presidents.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN ADAMS.

Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic socities admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Closed for repairs, but soon to be opened to the public by the Society of Colonial Dames, the new owners.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company where warships are being built for the government.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. S. A. Miller and children of Biglow street have returned.

J. L. Heaney has resumed his duties once more after a brief vacation.

A flock of about 25 doe birds flew over Post island about 5 P. M. Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Osborne formerly of Bigelow street were in town on Monday.

John Cunniff, letter carrier on the Point route, is taking his annual vacation.

The yacht Idalia has arrived at the Baker Basin Co. where she will undergo some repairs.

On Saturday the Quincys and South Quincys will meet at Ward Three and a warm contest is looked for.

Mrs. Hudson Austin of Coventry, Conn., is visiting her son, Rev. Leon H. Austin, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Cherrington of Atlantic have joined the Quincy colony at North Bridgton, Maine.

Only three more races by the Quincy Yacht club this season, all handicap regattas, to be sailed Aug. 6, Aug. 20 and Sept. 5.

The extremes of noon temperature in July were 94 and 63; against 97 and 61 last year. There were only three days of 90 degree weather.

A Boston paper says Quincy's sixteen delegates to the Norfolk Republican convention are solid for Sumner Foster of Brookline for county commissioner.

Miss Nan Carter leaves today for the Berkshires, where she will visit her sister, Mrs F. W. Heath of Interlaken. Miss Carter will probably extend her visit into the late fall.

Notwithstanding the heat and the absence from the city of a great many people, the dry goods stores report unusually good business. There is a great demand for summer goods, hosiery, ribbons, lace, shirtwaists, etc.

☞From all the shore resorts reports continue to come that mosquitoes are more plentiful than ever and just as hungry as in the old days. Mosquitoes are a pest which make outdoor life in the districts they infest almost unbearable, reguardless of what the scenic attractions may be.—Brockton Enterprise.

—Cholera is raging in Baghdad, one hundred deaths being reported daily.

THE METROPOLIS.

Mr. John Evans Finds London a Big Place and Is on the Go.

London, July 22, 1904.

Dear Editor:

I have been here now several days, and it didn't take me long to find out that there is but one metropolis in the world, namely London. Everything here is on a large scale—all but their conveyances. They still cling to the old style busses and horse cars. The County Council will not allow any electrics in the city. You pay a penny, (2 cents), and you can ride for miles on these jerking busses. They have a kind of a subway running under the city and the river Thames. They call it "Two penny tube," for you can ride the whole length, or to the next station for 2 pence, or 4 cents. It is a large tube or you call it boiler made of iron and lined with brick. The cars are made to fit. I rode in this until I was tired for 4 cents.

The first evening I was thunder struck. I was tapped on the shoulder, and when I turned around who did I see but Mr. Deacon from Quincy. We went and got our supper and had a glorious time together. There is no use for me to try to describe what I saw here, even in one day, for I am on the go from early morning until bed time.

In fact I am up before any of the Londoners think of opening their eyes. They are the laziest people in the morning you ever saw. No stores open until 9 A. M. The only place I can go in the early morning is the markets. This morning at 5 I visited the Covent Garden market. I cannot begin to describe it. Nor could I see a hundredth part of it in a whole day. The flower market alone covers acres of ground and so does the vegetable, the meat, and the fish. Fruit in abundance; I never thought there was so much in the whole kingdom; the finest in the world. Strawberries are ripe here now and they are beauties. Gooseberries big as plums; you ought to have some of them. Well there is no use to try to describe these good things.

I have been through London bridge. Have seen Westminister Abby, The Tower, Houses of Parliment, St. Paul's Cathedral, hundreds of statutes, &c. None had the same impression on me as the statue of William Tyndale, the first translator of the New Testament into English from the Greek. Born, A. D., 1494; died a martyr in Belgium, A. D., 1536. His last words were: Lord open the King of England's eyes. Within a year afterwards a Bible was placed in every parish church by the King's command. If I find time I will tell you about many other things and places of interest I have seen in this town of over 6,500,000 inhabitants. Good bye, now, as I must be on the go. I came to see.

John Evans.

Jerusalem at the World's Fair.

Removed somewhat from the Pike proper, but one of the popular concessions on the World's Fair grounds at St. Louis, is Jerusalem, a reproduction of the Holy City of Palestine.

It occupies a tract of thirteen acres enclosed within walls, near the West restaurant pavilion in the Terrace of States and south of Machinery Hall. Within those walls 500 natives of Jerusalem—Jews, Moslems, Christians—are conducting the trades they were accustomed to carry on in Palestine.

Entering this reproduced Jerusalem from the Jaffa gate—the gate opening on the road that leads down from the palace of Fine Arts—you are first confronted with a Jerusalem court scene; natives in Oriental dress, representing a dozen nationalities; pretty flower girls; attendants minding long rows of camels or donkeys, or conducting screaming parties of visitors perched aloof on the camels through the narrow streets of the city.

To the right, as you enter the court, you will see surrounded by a moat the remains of what was the citadel of Jerusalem. One of the towers comprising the citadel is the historical tower of David, where, it is said, David wrote his psalms. You are met here by the guides, natives of Jerusalem, who will conduct you through the city, showing you the buildings and places of sacred interest and relating in remarkably good English scores of traditions and legends that are told in Jerusalem concerning each historic spot.

You will in turn go through David and Christian streets to the Holy Sepulchre, thence to the mosque of Omar, and then visit the "Wailing Wall."

Leaving the Jew's wall you will visit in succession a diorama of the Mount of Olives, showing the garden of Gethsemane, valley of the Kedron, the Dead sea and the Mohammedan minaret located on the spot of the ascension; the Via Dolorosa or way of sorrow along which Christ bore the cross; the barracks where Christ was tried; the house of Simon the Cyranese, who assisted in bearing the cross; the house of the rich man; the traditional house of the poor man Lazarus and St. Stephens gate where the stoning and martyrdom of St. Stephen took place.

These leading features can all be seen without extra charge when the admission into the gates is paid. Commodious toilet rooms will be found throughout the grounds and all are free of charge.

Among the interesting sub-concessions in Jerusalem is a beautiful cyclorama of the crucifixion giving a realistic representation of the tragedy of Golgotha and the Holy City and its environs as it appeared in the time of Christ. One cloth alone in this effect weighs 4000 pounds. Other sub-concessions are a reproduction of Solomon Temple and the encampment of Israelites around Mt. Sinai, showing the tabernacle; the Biblical-Historical Opera Company giving regular performances in the Jerusalem theatre; the Bethlehem manger and the Jerusalem marriage altar.

☞ Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

JULY COURT CASES.

About the Same Number as July Last Year.

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear reports the total number of criminal cases in the district court for July to have been 185, against 181 for July a year ago.

Of the cases,—60 were for drunkenness; 26 for assault; 14 disturbing the peace; 11 each for violation of the Park rules, and violation of the milk law; 7 for violation of autmobile laws; 9 for building bonfires; 6 each for tramp and search for liquor; 5 for search milk cans; 3 each for larceny, non-support, malicious mischief; 2 each for cruelty to animals, disturbance on public conveyance; violation of by-laws, search for stolen goods; sale of liquor; one each for adultery; assault with dangerous weapon, assault on an officer, bastardy, breaking and entering, disturbing religious meeting, embezzlement, stubborn child, threat, keeping and exposing liquor, and liquor nusiance.

Of the warrants issued 19 were not served, 3 appealed, 19 were continued to pay fines, 2 were defaulted; 13 continued for further hearing and 10 for disposition.

Children's Interests.

A unique feature of the exposition at Mechanics, building, Boston, during the month of October, by the United Commercial Travelers of America, will be a children's department arranged by Mrs. Estelle M. H. Merrill, editor of American Motherhood magazine. It will include a large, model Day Nursery and playroom, where children may be left and checked like an umbrella or overcoat. This will make it possible for many mothers of young children to visit the fair who would be unable to do so but for this convenience. By its aid the parents are left free to examine the many attractions of the fair, unencumbered by the children who must otherwise be led or carried about to the intense weariness of all concerned.

The baby will receive expert care from skilled attendants; while for the older children the playroom will prove a veritable "Land of Heart's Desire," to which they will beg to be taken again and again. Here will be the sand-box, the clay modelling table, the parlor-swing, the children's library, the mechanical toys of every sort, the wonderful dolls and their belongings, the candy booth, the books, pictures, puzzles and games, which they may freely handle and play with, everything, in fact, which will contribute to the delight of the child.

There will be also a model home nursery, bedroom and bath for little folks, which will show parents the modern appliances, inventions and conveniences of every sort for the use of children.

The educational exhibits of kitchen garden, kindergarten, grade schools and manual training work will be most interesting and instructive.

There are many things that cannot be shown in a material exhibit and these will be covered by series of talks, lectures and demonstrations by expert and recognized authorities. These will be given daily and will form a connected and systematic, though necessarily brief course of instruction as to the mental, moral and spiritual training of children, which no mother can afford to miss.

Many organizations for child study, like the Mothers' and Fathers' club of Boston and the International Union Maternal association, are also interested in this department and will hold their October or special meetings in connection with it, and there will be a mass meeting of Mothers' clubs, with special days devoted to the work of individual organizations.

Never before has there been in any commercial fair of this sort a department catering exclusively to the interests of children, which is surprising when one considers how many manufacturers and dealers are concerned with these alone. The newspapers and magazines of today are filled with their ads, the list including all the baby foods, perfumes and powders, layettes and other clothing from hats to shoes, cribs, special bedding, go-carts and perambulators, toys, games, books, magazines, children's furniture and so on indefinitely.

Gypsy and Brown-Tail Moths.

The State Board of Agriculture has received many calls for information as to the best means of combating the gypsy moth, and having no literature bearing directly on that point, has arranged to include an article in its Crop Report for July on "The Gypsy and Brown-Tail Moths," by A. H. Kirkland, M. S., of Boston. Mr. Kirkland was formerly the entomologist in the employ of the Board and during the last year of its work against the gypsy moth was acting field director. He has kept in close touch with the situation since that time and has recently assisted Dr. Marlatt, the United States government expert, in his inspection of the territory. This report will be sent on application to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Secretary State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those wishing it may have their names placed on the mailing list for future issues.

In opening the article Mr. Kirkland comments upon the numerous cases of the importation of foreign insect pests on plants and trees from other countries, including the introduction of the elm-leaf beetle at Baltimore on an importation of foreign elms, and of the gypsy and brown-tail moths into Massachusetts, the latter accidentally with a lot of Dutch roses. He further points out how the balance of nature being disturbed and the controlling factors of their native habitate being removed these insects become more destructive in their new home than in their old.

Taking up the gypsy moth he tells of their introduction into Medford by Prof. Trouvelot, a French astronomer and naturalist, in connection with his experiments on various silk worms, and of their escape from his care. He then briefly gives the life history of the gypsy moth from the egg to the perfect insect.

On the subject of distribution Mr. Kirkland points out the various means by which the gypsy moth may be distributed into new territory, by teams, electric cars and railroad trains. He states that an observant naturalist reports that he has seen female moths in considerable numbers laying their eggs on the trucks and sides of freight cars at the Oak Grove station in Malden.

Under the head of remedies Mr. Kirkland says: "The remedies most useful against the gypsy moth are governed largely by the season at which the moth colony is found and the size and extent of the same. Certain wholesale methods are very effective but can only be applied by municipalities or property owners of large means." Among these he includes cutting and burning and burning with oil, which processes are described in detail. For owners of small means he places most emphasis upon egg destruction by soaking the egg masses with creosote mixture. Burlapping and spraying are also described, with cost of spraying outfits and best insecticides to use.

On the brown-tail moth Mr. Kirkland gives an account of its introduction, life history and spread, speaks of the nettling from the hairs of the caterpillars that makes this pest such a nuisance, and gives the remedies by which it may be controlled, chief among which, and indeed if thoroughly attended to, the only one needed, is the removing from the trees and burning of the winter web of the caterpillars. Spraying is also very effective against these caterpillars, they being much less resistant to the action of poison than the gypsy moth or elm-leaf beetle.

In closing Mr. Kirkland says: "Both the gypsy and brown-tail moths can be cheaply controlled by a thorough campaign over the infested municipalities. The work of the former gypsy moth committee has shown that the spread and injury by these pests can be practically eliminated by the application of thorough remedial measures over the entire infested districts."

TRIAL OF THE OHIO.

Probably Did Not Make the Required Speed.

The battleship Ohio was given her speed trial in Santa Barbara channel Monday, says the Globe. Until tidal allowances are made and the proper deductions on this account are figured out it will not be known whether she made the government speed required of 18 knots, but the actual record of the trip shows she fell a very small fraction of a knot below the figure fixed by the government.

The Ohio left Santa Barbara at 6.25 A. M. and made the start at a stakeboat off Santa Barbara lighthouse. The course was up the coast 36 miles, to a stakeboat opposite Point Conception.

On this run the Ohio more than made the required speed and as she swung around the stakeboat at full speed, was half a minute ahead of the time required to make 18 knots. On the run down the coast the tide and wind were against her, however, and she lost a minute and a half in the 36 miles.

Rear Admiral Whiting, who acted as the government's representative aboard the Ohio, and Capt. Forsythe, representing the builders, gave as their opinion that the Ohio would show a speed of 18 knots and possibly a little more when the tidal allowances shall have been deducted.

At any rate, said Capt. Forsythe, the Ohio will have another trial run whether she exceeded 18 knots or not.

This second trial will occur possibly within a week or ten days.

Insured for $2,000,000
L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in
The Prudential Insurance Co.
for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.
Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.
Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.
Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."
Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.
These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

OUR MONEY SYSTEM

Leading Topic In Fairbanks' Speech of Acceptance

INTEGRITY THREATENED

Refers to Bryan's Statement In Regard to It Being Merely In Abeyance -- Modification of Tariff Can Be Safely Left to Republican Party

Indianapolis, Aug. 3.—Notification of Mr. Fairbanks' nomination for the vice presidency of the United States took place today on the veranda of his home in North Meridian street. Eighty uniformed members of the Marion club, accompanied by a band, escorted the notification committee to the Fairbanks home. Former Secretary of War Root delivered the notification speech and after Senator Fairbanks responded luncheon was served on the lawn. Senator Fairbanks said:

I accept the commission which you bring with a profound sense of the dignity and responsibilities of the exalted position for which I have been nominated. My utmost endeavor will be to discharge in full measure the trust, if the action of the convention shall meet the approval of the American people.

The platform adopted by the convention is an explicit and emphatic declaration of the principles in entire harmony with those policies of our party which have brought great honor and prosperity to our common country, and which, if continued, will bring us like blessings in the future.

The monetary and economic policies which have been so forcibly reannounced lie at the very foundation of our industrial life, and are essential to the fullest development of our national strength. They give vitality to our manufactures and commerce, and if impaired or overthrown, there would inevitably ensue a period of industrial depression, to the serious injury of the vast interests of both labor and capital.

The Republican party, since it preserved the integrity of the republic and gave freedom to the oppressed, never rendered a more important service to the country than when it established the gold standard. Under it we have increased our currency supply sufficiently to meet the normal requirements of business. It is gratifying that the convention make frank and explicit declaration of the inflexible purpose of the party to maintain the gold standard.

The enemies of sound money were powerful enough to suppress mention of the gold standard in the platform lately adopted by the Democratic national convention. The leader of Democracy in two great national campaigns has declared since the adjournment of the convention that, as soon as the election is over, he will undertake to organize the forces within the Democratic party for the next national contest, for the purpose of advancing the radical policies for which his element of the party stands. He frankly says that the money question is for the present in abeyance. In view of these palpable facts, it is not the part of wisdom to abandon our vigilance in safeguarding the integrity of our money system. We must have not only a president who is unalterably committed to the gold standard, but both houses of congress in entire accord with him upon the subject.

The wisdom of our protective policy finds complete justification in the industrial development of the country. This policy has become a most vital part of our industrial system, and must be maintained unimpaired. When altered conditions make changes in schedules desirable, their modification can be safely entrusted to the Republican party. If they are to be changed by the enemies of the system along free trade lines, uncertainty would take the place of certainty and a reaction would surely follow to the injury of the wage earners and all who are profitably employed.

The convention was wise not only in its enunciation of party policies, but in its nomination of a candidate for the presidency. During the last three years President Roosevelt has been confronted with large and serious questions. These he has met and solved with high wisdom and courage. The charges made against him in the Democratic platform finds an irrefutable answer in his splendid administration, never surpassed in all the history of the republic and never equalled by the party who seeks to discredit it.

The election of the president is imperatively demanded by those whose success depends upon the continuance of a safe, conservative and efficient administration of public affairs. We have an ample record of deeds done, of beneficent things accomplished in the public interest. We have peace and great prosperity at home and are upon terms of good neighborhood to the entire world. The conditions constitute the strongest possible assurance for the future.

Permit me again to thank you and to express the belief that we may confidently submit our cause to the candid and patriotic judgment of our countrymen.

Later I shall avail myself of a favorable opportunity to submit to my fellow citizens a fuller expression of my views concerning the questions now in issue.

Large Party on the Grocers' Excursion.

SENATOR CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS

ABOUT 150

Left Quincy for Rocky Point.

Other Towns to Join En Route.

Three Hours' Sail, Clambake and Other Attractions.

Business in the grocery and provision dealers' line is suspended in Quincy today. The reason is that it is the annual grocers' day; the day when the proprietors shut up shop and take an outing. Today's outing includes a trip to Fall River by train, thence by steamer to Rocky Point, where dinner is served. After dinner a sail in the harbor. It is the same trip that they took last year. Everybody had such a good time then that it was repeated this year.

A special train conveyed the party. The train of twelve cars arrived in Quincy at 8 o'clock, and will make a stop at Braintree. There they were to be joined by grocers from Hingham, Braintree, Weymouth and elsewhere.

The Quincy party was much larger today than usual, about one hundred and fifty taking the train at the Quincy station. In this party were a number of salesmen, and on the train were cases of eatables and drinkables provided by the committee and wholesale firms. Cuffs orchestra was also on the train, and there was to be a band on the boat, thus ensuring plenty of music.

The greater part of the Quincy contingent were men, although there were perhaps a dozen ladies.

The business section of Quincy looks deserted. The drug stores, dry goods, gents furnishings, banks and jewelry stores are open, but every grocery and provision store is shut tight. The doors are locked and the curtains drawn. Those who failed to lay in a supply of articles in the eatable line will get left.

That some will get left was well illustrated this morning, when a resident of Presidents Hill came down town on an errand for his wife. Company had arrived unexpectedly, he said, and his wife had dispatched him down town early for something for dinner. He forgot all about the stores being closed and as the special train pulled out of the depot he was seen climbing the hill empty handed.

The business section is not quite as deserted today as it formerly was on grocers' day. When that day was first celebrated, every line of business took a holiday, but gradually the different lines of business have been drawing apart, so that now it is confined to the grocers and those who supply the household with things to eat.

The grocers most always have a shower to depart in. This year, however, the sun was bright and it looked this morning as though it would not only be pleasant but it would be good and hot as well. Clouds have gathered since.

There will be but little opportunity for sports of any kind, although there may be a few after dinner.

The party will return to Quincy some time this evening. Here's hoping that they have a grand time, as they undoubtedly will.

High School Enlargement.

Malden may obtain its High school enlargement before Quincy. Tuesday evening, on the recommendation of Mayor Dean an order was passed providing for the appointment of a joint committee of nine, to consist of two members of the school board, three aldermen and four councilmen, for the purpose of procuring plans and specifications for an addition to the high school building, and $500 was appropriated to secure plans. Nothing is heard in Malden about a second High school, although the Malden High school has a larger attendance than Quincy.

Quincy vs. Chelsea.

The assessors of the city of Chelsea report today a smaller increase in valuation than Quincy and a higher tax rate. Chelsea was nearly a half larger in population in 1900, but in wealth has only a very small lead.

	Quincy.	Chelsea.
Population, 1900,	23,899	34,072
Voters, 1903,	4,986	6,440
Tax Rate, 1904,	$18.00	$18.60
Valuation,	$23,890,445	$24,413,629
Increase Valuation,	$853,565	$314,565

—Revere reached high water mark in taxes this year. This week the assessors announced a rate of $20.

—Mercury is evening star throughout August, and is visible in the evening twilight for most of the month.

Once a Privateer.

The schooner Polly once a Yankee privateer, but now in the coasting trade, is to be a feature of old home week at Amesbury, says the Lynn Item. The Polly was launched at Amesbury in 1805, and was a privateer in the war of 1812, capturing some valuable prizes during the second war with Great Britian. The Polly does not look as though she was in her 100th year, and still earns money for her owners. The old craft will be lighted up in conjunction with a boat club illumination during the week, and there will be a reception on board by the ladies of the Daughters of the Revolution. Amesbury is justly proud of its marine production of nearly a century ago.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased his customs revevue from $160,000,000, costing 4.52 per cent. to collect, to $284,000,000, costing only 2.98 per cent. to collect.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Doubtless many are unable to understand why the tax rate is larger than last year. There was a reduction in 1900, in 1901, in 1902 and 1903, and they have come to look for a reduction each year, regardless of the large sums which the City Council may appropriate.

When improvement orders are provided for by loan they reason that the tax rate of that year will not be increased. That has been done in the past, and this year the tax payers are paying over $195,000 for maturing debt and interest, while the item for current municipal expense is placed at $275,316.83.

The maturing debt and interest account is made up as follows:

City debt,	$69,078.00
Park debt,	2,000.00
Water debt,	35,500.00
Sewer debt,	14,800.00
Interest, city debt,	16,483.24
Interest, water debt,	27,725.00
Interest, park debt,	1,600.00
Interest, sewer debt,	17,179.25
Interest, temporary loans,	10,000.00
	$195,365.49

Some will say that the water receipts pay the maturing water debt and interest. So they do, but if the water receipts could be used to help pay current city expenses, the tax rate would be lower.

The sewer assessments are now paying the maturing sewer debt, maintenance and sewer interest, but there are no yearly sewer rentals, and soon the taxpayers who as property holders have paid half the sewer cost in assessments, must begin to pay practically the whole cost in taxes. Investigate this for yourself and see.

The Assessors and others will tell you it is the increasing Metropolitan charges that are increasing the tax rate, and this in part is true, but the item of current municipal expense is increasing each year, and keeps up to the $12 limit.

This year the charges for Metropolitan water, sewers and parks, and State highways, amount to $67,924.54, and about $3 of the tax rate goes to pay for these charges. But Quincy, as well as other cities has pushed its claims for these improvements, and it has been difficult for the State to curtail them.

To keep down the tax rate, Quincy must make as few loans as possible, and discourage large appropriations by the Legislature for the Metropolitan district. The actual current expenses of the city are not large. They really are too small, but there will be no relief while the city is called upon to pay such large sums for maturing debt and interest and for Metropolitan assessments.

SLOCUM DISASTER

Evidently No Lesson to Owners of Ill-Fated Vessel

SISTER SHIP IS INSPECTED

Officials Found Worthless Life Preservers and Lifeboats Unfit For Use--Neither Captain Nor Crew Knew About Fire Drill

New York, Aug. 3.—An inspector who made a partial examination of the excursion steamer Grand Republic has told the federal commission which is investigating the General Slocum disaster that the life saving and fire apparatus on the Grand Republic is practically worthless.

This steamer is a sister ship to the General Slocum, which was burned in East river several weeks ago with a loss of nearly a thousand lives. She is owned by the Knickerbocker Steamship company, which also owned the Slocum. Several of the company's officers are now under indictment by the federal grand jury on a charge of manslaughter and criminal negligence as a result of alleged failure to provide adequate fire-fighting and life saving apparatus for the burned steamer.

The inspector who examined the Grand Republic told the commission that neither the captain nor crew knew what to do when a fire drill was ordered; that some of the fire hose burst when subjected to water pressure; that a large percentage of the life preservers were worthless.

This story was told by Inspector Todd, who, with Supervising Inspector Rodie and Chairman Murray of the federal commission, boarded the Grand Republic as she was about to start on one of her regular trips to Coney Island with passengers. The company had been notified several times to name a time and place for reinspection of the steamer, but had not complied.

"The master informed us that the boat would not lay up for inspection and accordingly we went to work on the life preservers," said the witness. "The preservers on the main deck were in bad condition. You could break off the corners as you would a biscuit. Out of 1082 we condemned 372. The mark was so old that we could not see it. The manufacturer's mark was 1877.

"We found 134 new preservers and tested 15 of them at 24 pounds weight and they sank. After being in the water five minutes they weighed nine pounds. They should have weighed only 2½ pounds. One of the lifeboats had three broken oars and another two, one of the boats was very much rotted and another had a broken rudder. One of the liferafts had no rowlocks; they had been broken off. On some of the liferafts," the inspector continued, "apparent rivets on inspection were shown to be only false heads, the parts being soldered."

"For ornament?" inquired Chairman Murray.

"No sir," emphatically answered the inspector, "for fraud."

The witness testified that he heard the order for the fire drill given by the supervising inspector and he also heard the master say that he did not know what orders to give for the drill. "He finally blew a general alarm on the whistle and rang four or five times on the ship's bell, before the crew answered," testified the witness.

Yesterday's testimony completed the federal commission's work into the cause of the Slocum disaster in this city and the commission adjourned to meet in Washington next Monday. The mass of testimony and the exhibits of hose and life preservers will be sent to Washington.

Fight Over Dolbeer Fortune

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—A contest for the fortune, estimated to be worth $2,000,000, of the late Bertha Dolbeer, who committed suicide at New York, has been begun by Adolph Schandler, an uncle of Miss Dolbeer, who alleges the decedent was of unsound mind when she bequeathed most of her wealth to her friend, Ella M. Alleged Gambler Fails to Recover From Terrible Beating

New Britain, Conn., Aug. 3.—Charles Bosworth, who was found battered and unconscious in his room in Ward's block, died last evening without uttering a word upon which the police may work in their effort to clear up the mystery of the death of the alleged gambler. His skull was crushed and he was badly beaten in other parts of the body.

Bosworth was not a strong man, was lame, and carried at all times a heavy cane. This cane was missing when his almost lifeless body was found yesterday afternoon and it is possible that he was the victim of blows from his own stick. He is said to have almost always carried large sums of money with him, sometimes as much as $2000. Nothing of any value was found on him.

Bosworth was well known in Connecticut and Springfield, Mass. He came here three weeks ago and started an alleged gambling room. A middle-aged man was seen with him early in the afternoon, but the police have but a meagre description of him.

Harvard and Tech Won't Unite

Boston, Aug. 3.—The plan whereby Harvard university and Massachusetts Institute of Technology were to become closely affiliated, as suggested by President Pritchett of the latter institution, has been abandoned, at least temporarily. Secretary Fay of the Association of Class Secretaries of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who has just returned from an extended tour through the middle western states, says that the alumni societies are unanimously opposed to any union with Harvard.

Disease Puzzles Doctors

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 3.—Another death occurred in the Courtney family when James, 3 years old, succumbed to the disease which has baffled local physicians. George, an older child, died Monday, and the father and his daughter Molly, 20 years old, are seriously ill, although they are now out of danger. The doctors are unable to discover the cause of the illness in the family, though it has every symptom of ptomaine poisoning.

Charged With Manslaughter

New Haven, Aug. 3.—John B. Foley and Thomas McNally, conductor and flagman respectively of the freight train with which an express collided near Cedar Hill Saturday night, were taken before the court in Hamden, charged with manslaughter. They waived examination and were held for the superior court. Bonds were fixed at $1000 in each case. The coroner found that they were negligent in failing to set a signal.

Alleged Crook In Church

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 3.—George Travers, the alleged "gentleman burglar," captured in the Second Congregational church while fast asleep alongside the strong box of the church society, was arraigned before Judge Burns, charged with burglary at the residence of Charles P. Geddes and with wrongfully entering the Second Congregational church. Travers was held in bond of $2000 for the superior court.

Probably Killed by a Horse

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 3.—The dead body of Elmer M. Bosworth, 22 years old, was found last night at the feet of a horse in a stall of the barn belonging to James E. Larkin, for whom Bosworth worked. It is believed that Bosworth fainted while in the stall and that he fell, the horse either kicking or stepping on his head, upon which a deep gash was found.

Wen Seeks to Overthrow Empire

Boston, Aug. 3.—The Chinese consul general at New York has sent to nearly every Chinaman in this city a circular warning him against Dr. Lun Wen, who is engaged in a propaganda for the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty, and the transformation of the Chinese empire into a republic. Dr. Wen is now in New York, and will probably visit Boston within a short time.

Two Men Fell With Elevator

Hartford, Aug. 3.—Through the breaking of a cable holding the big elevator in Armour & Co.'s building last night, Adolph Fehalowski and Fred Turcotfe were dropped from the second story to the basement and received serious injuries. On the elevator with the two men were three barrels of beef weighing 1000 pounds. Both men will recover.

Bank Clerk Under Arrest

Boston, Aug. 3.—Curtis P. Guilford, 28 years old, a check clerk of the First National bank of this city, is charged with the larceny of $400 from the institution. Guilford was formerly employed at the National Bank of Redemption, which was recently absorbed by the First National bank. Guilford was unable to obtain bail and was locked up.

Doctors Suspect Foul Play

Manchester, Conn., Aug. 3.—The body of Timothy O'Connell, who was found dead in a hotel at New York, has arrived here from that city. An examination of the body showed that his skull had been fractured and there were other marks on him which lead the physicians to believe that O'Connell met with foul play while in New York.

Davis Draws Old Timers

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 3.—The preliminary work for the Democratic state convention shows that Henry G. Davis is in absolute control. The Davis interest has brought to the convention many older Democrats who have not been in attendance in recent years.

The Magazines

The outdoor features of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition is the theme of a series of handsomely illustrated articles in the August number of "Field and Stream." Hon. David R. Francis, president of the exposition, and Dr. Tarleton H. Bean, commissioner of fish and game, are contributors, and they both affirm that the Fair is especially attractive to lovers of the out-of-doors.

Graphic character sketches of the two candidates for the Vice-Presidency-Senator Charles W. Fairbanks and the Hon. Henry G. Davis, appear in the August Review of Reviews, well illustrated with portraits and views of the homes of these gentlemen. The article on Mr. Davis is by Charles S. Albert, and the one on Senator Fairbanks by Thomas R. Shipp.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

The Summer Girl.

I look into her dreamy eyes
And think I see her soul's depths through them.
She seems indeed a perfect prize,
As girls do mostly when you woo them.

She lets me glimpse a tender glance;
Then with her flirting fan she screens it.
She says my love's her life's romance.
I wonder if she really means it.

Rheumatism

What is the use of telling the rheumatic that he feels as if his joints were being dislocated?

He knows that his sufferings are very much like the tortures of the rack.

What he wants to know is what will permanently cure his disease.

That, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, is

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It promptly neutralizes the acid in the blood on which the disease depends, completely eliminates it, and strengthens the system against its return. Try Hood's.

You can dye any kind of catsup red. Most catsup makers do. Columbia, "The Uncolored Catsup," blushes with the honest red of the perfectly ripe tomato. Nothing else to blush for!

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in
The Prudential Insurance Co.
for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

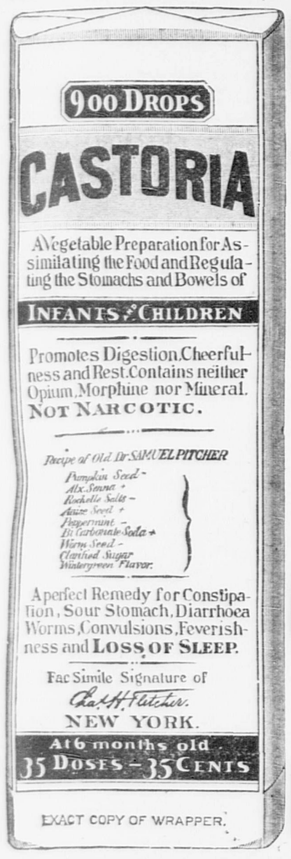

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

Better apply TODAY for information regarding Prudential policies to

STILL IN RETREAT

Russians Continue to Be Pushed Back by the Japanese

SEVERE FIGHTING IS ON

Retrograde Movement Must Continue as Kuroki Pushes on Toward Liao Yang--Details of the Overwhelming Defeat of Russian East Flank's Defense

London, Aug. 3.—Allowing for the inevitable conflict in names, the Japanese and Russian reports seem to agree on the main points of the military developments up to Aug. 1, but both stop short at the interesting point, namely, regarding what happened on Aug. 2, when it is possible that a decisive struggle was going on east and south of Liao Yang.

The Russians have abandoned Simoucheng and fallen back on Hai-Cheng, fifteen miles northwest. The place clearly was untenable with the Japanese army under Oku marching up the railroad from the south. On the centre also the enveloping movement of the army under Kuroki evidently has resulted in the Russians retiring to their next fortified place—Llandiansan, 15 or 20 miles east of Liao Yang. If Kuroki could push home the wedge which he is driving along the main Fung Wang Chang-Liao Yang road and do it quickly he would have General Mistchenko's force and perhaps that of Stakelberg cut and could destroy them at his leisure.

If Kuroki's pressure on Liao Yang continues Kuropatkin soon must order a retreat from Haicheng, which also is threatened by the new Japanese force which has landed at Yin Kow, port of Newchwang, to the southwest. Indeed, if the Japanese forces are as and strong in artillery as stated, there seems to be no doubt that they can push the Russian's right wing up the railroad.

After the Russians reach Moukden, however, they are in a much better position strategically, as, instead of the 100-mile front along their line of retreat, their front will be astride of it and the Japanese line of communication will be greatly lengthened.

General Kuropatkin's official report admits that there were heavy losses along the Saimatsze-Liao Yang road July 31. It indicates that although the Russians withdrew from their advance posts, Kuropatkin hopes to be able to hold his main positions and that he evidently expected heavy fighting along this line, probably about Anping. This battle possibly was proceeding Aug. 2.

In the meantime a serious enveloping movement of three Japanese divisions is maturing around the Russian left at Haicheng, where there already was heavy fighting on July 31.

No news has been received from Port Arthur.

A Tokio dispatch shows that General Kuroki administered a severe defeat to the Russian forces which defended the Russian east flank at Liao Yang, winning separate actions at Yushulikzu and Yangze pass. These two places are 26 miles apart, but the two actions were fought at the same time.

The Russians held strong positions. The thermometer registered over 110 degrees fahrenheit and the soldiers suffered cruelly from heat exhaustion.

At Yashulikzu the Russians had two divisions of infantry and some artillery, and they resisted the Japanese assaults vigorously.

Both attacks were begun at dawn Sunday, July 31. At Yashulikzu the Japanese carried the Russian right and left wings, but on account of the strength of the main Russian position they were unable to press the attack. The two armies rested Sunday night, facing each other.

At dawn on Monday the Japanese resumed the attack and by noon they had dislodged the enemy and driven him four miles to Lioholing.

At Yangze pass also the Japanese were successful. Their artillery opened on the enemy and their infantry moved forward from Makumeza. The attack on this place was made at 1 o'clock on Sunday and by nightfall the Japanese were in possession of a majority of the Russian positions, although the enemy had resisted with determination.

The Japanese force passed the night in battle formation and another assault was made on Monday at dawn. By 8 o'clock Monday morning Yangze pass and the surrounding heights had been captured.

General Kuroki explains the slowness of these actions by saying that the difficult topography of the battlefields made it impossible to secure good artillery positions, and that the great heat fatigued his troops.

Russians Sink German Steamer

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—It is officially announced that the German steamer sunk by the Vladivostok squadron in the recent raid was the Thea, a vessel of about 1000 tons. The reason for the sinking of the ship was that she was too short of coal to be brought to Vladivostok.

It is presumed that the Thea, although flying the German flag, was chartered by an American firm. In view of the fact that she sailed with a cargo of canned fish it is considered not unlikely that, like the Arabia, she sailed from Portland, Ore. The canned fish is believed to have been intended as a delicacy for the officers and the wounded, as the Japanese are very fond of fish.

PENS OVERSTOCKED

But Chicago Packers Claim to Be Doing a Large Business

Chicago, Aug. 3.—The meat packers claim to be in a better position than at any time since the struggle began. An official of Armour & Co. said that the packing firms were doing nearly 80 percent of their usual business. Police reports of the number of new employes arriving at the yards bear out in a large measure the packers' statements.

Despite declarations of the packers' representatives, the pens at the stockyards are filled with cattle and hogs that buyers make no bid for in the market. According to commission men and officials of the Union Stockyards and Transit company, out of the livestock received Monday and yesterday over 19,000 sheep and 10,000 hogs were reshipped, and unsold stock is rapidly accumulating in the pens. Twelve thousand hogs now remain unsold and the prospect of large receipts today is causing the livestock handlers to fear a swamping of their facilities.

Investigating Strike Conditions

Washington, Aug. 3.—A description of conditions in the stockyards at Chicago during the strike now in progress there is expected to form an interesting feature of the report on the beef industry which will be made by the president to congress. Several inspectors, under the direction of the department of commerce and labor, are collecting information required by the terms of a resolution passed at the last session of congress. Their labors have taken them over a great portion of the country.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Inspector Carroll, a representative of the department of commerce and labor, who obtained the evidence for the government on which an injunction was issued about two years ago enjoining the larger packing companies from combining in making the prices either as buyers of livestock or sellers of meat, is in the stockyards here, investigating conditions.

Many Strikers Returning

Kansas City, Aug. 3.—Many packing house strikers have applied for their old positions and most of them were re-employed. The packers appear to be daily growing stronger. The managers of the Armour and Fowler plants say that they have about the same number of men at work as when the strike was declared.

The Telegraphers' Strike

St. Louis, Aug. 3.—At the headquarters of the Order of Railway Telegraphers it is stated that all but six operators and station agents on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad system are out. Passenger trains are late and freight train schedules are demoralized.

Will Aid Fall River Strikers

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 3.—At a meeting of the Textile council last night it was voted to extend financial aid to the Fall River strikers. Other plans for assistance for them will be made at a meeting of the council Sunday.

Strike of Meat Teamsters

St. Louis, Aug. 3.—Members of the Meat Drivers' union of East St. Louis have stopped work in sympathy with the butchers and meat cutters who are out.

Admits Killing Jail Turnkey

Bedford, Pa., Aug. 3.—An Italian, who was arrested for riding on a freight train, has confessed that he is Dominic Constance, one of the five men who broke jail in Bellefonte and by one of whom Turnkey Condo was so badly injured that he died. Constance says he is the man who struck Condo, using an iron bar for the purpose. After making their escape the men separated.

Sentenced to Death For Assault

Charlestown, Va., Aug. 3.—George W. Williams, the negro who was arrested for assaulting Miss Laura Knode, a white schoolteacher, near Harper's Ferry, was tried here and found guilty. He was sentenced to be hanged Sept. 9. The trial had to be held with soldiers surrounding the courthouse. They were kept in active service suppressing the incensed people.

Navy Has Close Eye on Hayti

Washington, Aug. 3.—Minister Powell's recent reports have fully prepared the officials of the state department for the present condition of disquiet and rioting at Port Au Prince. Admiral Sigsbee has managed to keep at least one warship of his Caribbean squadron at all time within a day or two's sail of the Haytien capital.

Bostonian Shot In Nebraska

Norfolk, Neb., Aug. 3.—Policeman Pilger fatally shot Lewis Aultman of Boston while Aultman was attempting to avoid arrest. Aultman was wanted at Bonesteel in connection with the lawlessness which occurred during the Rosebud registration period.

Train Robbers Sentenced

Mexico City, Aug. 3.—The Americans who robbed an express car on a passenger train near Bermejillo two years ago of over $50,000 at last have received their sentence, being 20 years' imprisonment in jail at Durango.

Nihilists Concocting Plots

Geneva, Aug. 3.—The newspapers here report that a conference of 50 to 60 Russian Nihilists and terrorists was held from July 25 to July 29 at the residence of a Russian, near the French frontier.

Trolley Victims Doing Well

South Framingham, Mass., Aug. 2.—The condition of the 13 persons being treated at the hospital here for injuries sustained in the accident on the Boston and Worcester street railway is practically unchanged. There have been no deaths other than that of Mrs. Caroline Stewart. Motorman Doe is on the dangerous list. It is expected that Miss Maud Maguire, whose right leg was amputated, will recover.

Where Now Found Out Where

Thousand Islands Park, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Steam launch Where Now, with 30 passengers on board, while running at full speed went high and dry upon the rocks above the park, which were slightly submerged. It swayed for a moment, then toppled to one side, throwing the occupants into the water. The passengers were all rescued, a score of rowboats going to the scene immediately.

Suits of Nearly $26,000,000

Butte, Mont., Aug. 3.—Another complaint has been filed by the Amalgamated interests in the district court against the Heinze interests asking for damages in the sum of $8,800,000 for ore alleged to have been extracted from the Johnstown lode, making the total damages in the suits now pending against F. A. Heinze et. al. nearly $26,000,000.

Von Plehve's Assassin a Student

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—Minister of Justice Muravieff has presented to the czar a report of the investigation into the murder of Minister of the Interior Von Plehve. The minister's assassin is now known to have been a student at Kharkoff university, where the bombs were supposed to have been manufactured.

Capitalists In Auto Smashup

Omaha, Aug. 3.—While C. E. Perkins and J. D. Robinson, both capitalists of New York, and their wives, were automobiling near Miller Park, their machine collided with a street car. Mrs. Perkins was dangerously injured and Mrs. Robinson seriously hurt, but both will probably recover. The men received minor injuries.

Carried by Narrow Margin

London, Aug. 3.—After an all-night session of the house of commons and considerable opposition to the resolution authorizing the government to raise $13,000,000 to be employed in the building of new Cunard line steamships, the resolution was adopted under closure by a majority of 79.

Saint's Day and Carving Festival

New York, Aug. 3.—Three Italians are dying from stab wounds and the police are searching for two other men who were severely cut about the face and body, as the result of a street fight which took place in the Italian colony in Brooklyn last night during a saint's day festival.

For Georgia Negroes' Education

Atlanta, Aug. 3.—A bill introduced by Representative Rogers of McIntosh, the only negro in the Georgia legislature, appropriating $5000 for the state industrial college for negro youths at Savannah, was passed by the house of representatives by a unanimous vote.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Pilgrimages Almost Daily to the City of Presidents.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN ADAMS.

Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic socities admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Closed for repairs, but soon to be opened to the public by the Society of Colonial Dames, the new owners.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company where warships are being built for the government.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

A clearer air today.

How do you like the tax rate?

Almost a holiday with the markets and some of the other stores closed.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jelinek of Botolph street are away on vacation trips.

Harold Woodman of Rawson road is spending his vacation at Pelham, N. H.

Miss Lillian Seller of Woburn is visiting her brother H. B. Seller of Pray street.

Annual cruise of the Quincy Yacht club tomorrow. Several yachts will participate.

Miss Mary E. Reinhalter of West Quincy is visiting with her uncle at Winchester.

Ernest Woodman of Rawson road is enjoying a two weeks' cruise along the coast of Maine.

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear is taking a week's vacation. George A. McKay is acting probation officer.

Mrs. John Robbie and her sons, William and Everett have gone to Old Orchard, Maine, for a two weeks' vacation.

The morning papers report that Charles Alden of Quincy was fined $10 in the Hingham court Tuesday for speeding an automobile.

Richard D. Chase who has been rusticating on a farm at Milford, N. H., for a few weeks, returned on Tuesday to his labors at the Quincy Co-operative Bank.

A telephone pole fell across Sagamore street Monday evening and delayed travel for some time. A man was on the pole at the time, but escaped any serious injury.

The many friends of Mr. Louis Weston of Newport avenue will be glad to know that he has so far recovered from his long illness as to be able to join his family at their summer home at Island Creek.

Mrs. F. P. Loud of Washington street and her daughter, Mrs. William A. Brandau of New York city are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Lond at their summer cottage, West Southport, Maine, for two weeks.

—What is believed to be the largest tree on earth was recently discovered in a secluded gulch in Tulare county, California. It is of the species, Sesquoia Gigantea, or red wood, and 36 feet in diameter and 109 feet around the base and is estimated to be 400 feet in height.

NAVAL DISPLAY.

Ten Warships at Boston G. A. R. Week.

Includes the Battleship Massachusetts.

And the Protected Cruiser Des Moines Built at Quincy.

The Washington correspondent of the Globe says the people of Boston will see a fine naval display two weeks hence. Secretary of the Navy Morton has promised to send to Boston ten warships, including the training ship Hartford, the commerce destroyer Columbia, the battleship Massachusetts, the protected cruiser Des Moines built at Quincy, and the torpedo boat destroyers Truxton, Whipple, Worden, Hull and Hopkins.

In this composite squadron visitors to the G. A. R. encampment will be given an opportunity to see nearly every type of war vessel, and the past and the present will be linked. The Hartford represents the day of the sail, before steam revolutionized modern naval requirements, when the skill with which Yankee sailors handled their sails made the American navy the wonder of the world.

From the Hartford to the Massachusetts is a long cry, the Massachusetts being a battleship of the latest construction and the type of vessel on which naval architects place their reliance for heavy fighting when nations are at war. The battleship is made to give and take, to stand up for punishment before an enemy because of its heavy armor, to smash an enemy with its great guns.

The Columbia is a commerce destroyer, built for great speed and to harry the enemy's commerce and drive it off the seas. These vessels are not expected to engage in battle with battleships or cruisers, but must rely on their speed to escape from superior force. Their mission is to lie in wait for defenceless, unarmed merchantmen and to make prizes of them.

Remembering the damage done by the Vladivostok squadron on its last raid, it will be seen that the commerce destroyer plays no unimportant role in modern warfare, and can strike almost as vital a blow at an enemy as the heavier ships destined solely for military purposes. If the commerce destroyers can successfully intercept vessels conveying contraband of war, irreparable injuries can be done to the foe.

The Des Moines built at Quincy is a protected cruiser. Protected cruisers are made to fight as well as run, as they are usually fairly fast. They are useful vessels, and serve their purpose when it is not necessary to employ battleships.

The Truxton, Whipple, Worden, Hull and Hopkins are torpedo boat destoyers, the same type of vessels that Admiral Togo has used with such destructive effect against the Russians of Port Arthur. They have a greater speed that the bigger vessels, which is given them so they can run away after they have discharged their death-dealing torpedoes.

A first-class battleship costs over $5,000,000, and a torpedo boat destroyer can be built for less than $400,000, but a single torpedo boat may send the battleship and her crew of 700 men to the bottom. The odds are heavily in favor of the torpedo boat, which is one reason why naval men regard it with so much favor.

The naval academy cadets will be on the Hartford, Massachusetts and Des Moines, but as the cadets are on their regular summer cruise they will not be permitted to land while the squadron remains in Boston.

—Fifty or more hand engines are expected at the muster at Taunton Aug. 24. William E. Maybury of East Braintree will be one of the judges.

HEAT!

BY USING ONE OF OUR

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

—The girls have revived the fad of cutting their initials out of court plaster, pasting them on their arms and then tanning the arms in the sun, leaving the initials white when the court plaster is removed. This is as interesting as tattooing and not near as painful. Neither is it as lasting, but it gives a chance to show how much one tans and that is the real reason for the fad.

Street Railway Men Vote to Wait.

The Return of President Sullivan.

Bone of Contention over Recognition of Union.

Special meetings of the street railway employes were held Tuesday night and this morning. The meetings were held to hear the letter read that was received from Gen. Manager Goff in reply to a request for an immediate conference.

A conference was held a week ago to arrange terms of agreement for the coming year. The result of that conference was not entirely satisfactory, and the committee of the Quincy and Brockton unions was instructed to ask for another conference immediately.

The day men met Tuesday night at Grand Army hall, and the night men this morning at Wilson's ball.

The reply from General Manager Goff was, that President Sullivan had gone away and would not return until August 25, and that he would prefer that the president should be present at the conference, and advised the committee to wait until his return.

After some discussion it was voted to wait until President Sullivan returns before the conference is held.

It is understood that the Brockton men have passed a similar vote.

The principal bone of contention is understood to be over the clause which relates to the recognition of the union.

Registry Furnishings.

The Legislature authorized the Norfolk County Commissioners to make loans aggregating $75,000 for furnishings for the new Registry building at Dedham, but it is probable that all this sum will not be necessary as the bids are considerable under as will be seen:

J. B. and J. M. Cornell & Co., New York,	$42,963 00
General Fire Proofing Co., New York,	44,546.00
Berger Manf. Co., Canton, O,	41,690.00
Art Metal Cons. Co., Jamestown, N. Y.,	46,419.76

The bids were taken under advisement, and Chairman Blanchard will personally inspect the plants of competing firms. Most of the furnishings are of metal.

The contract for the building calls for its completion in November, and the firms bidding on the furnishings require four or five months.

TODAY'S COURT.

William O'Brien, Benjamin Farrell, Harry A. Sewell were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. O'Brien's case was continued until Aug. 8 and the others to Aug. 13.

Joseph Reese was fined $3 for drunkenness at Milton.

Charles W. Blood was fined $15 for speeding an automobile at Milton.

Frederick Evans was arraigned for the sale of liquor to Richard F. Decelle at Quincy. Case continued until Aug. 24.

Lewis Wright was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until Sept. 7.

Frank Reynolds and John H. Reynolds were arraigned upon six complaints each for taking and using registered milk jars without permission. The case of Frank Reynolds was placed on file, and a fine of $16.50 was imposed on John H. Reynolds.

Monument Dedicated.

A feature of the Old Home week festivities at West Medway today was the dedication of a monument to Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Ide, under the auspices of the Medway Historical Society. There were addresses by Rufus G. Fairbanks, Hon. T. E. Grover and Rev. George K. Harlow.

—The safe in the office of Daniel O'Connor, granite manufacturer, on River street, Fitchburg, was found open, and the contents strewed on the floor, Monday. Ten dollars were taken, and some valuable coins and papers.

—Malden will have two portable school houses.

☞Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

PATTISON AT SCHOOL.

Lesson From Defeat For Pennsylvania's Ex-Governor.

One of the schools that the late Robert E. Pattison, former governor of Pennsylvania, attended was in the basement of the Twelfth Street Methodist church in Philadelphia, to which his father was assigned. Here his teacher was Miss Harriet Schnider, who became Dr. Harriet S. French, the venerable president of the Women's Christian Temperance union of Philadelphia, says Darwin G. Fenno in the Pittsburg Dispatch. Dr. French liked to talk of the sturdy, handsome, dark eyed boy, the minister's son. She said:

"I remember well the first day Robert Pattison came to school. I was the principal. The family had moved from Kensington, and one of the teachers in that section had said to me: 'You will have trouble with Robert Pattison. He is headstrong and hard to manage. He has only just recovered from his last escapade—running out in the street, jumping on a cart and falling off and breaking his arm. If you suspend him he will be right back again, probably the next day, because his father is a minister.' Robert had been in our school only a day or two when he refused to recite his lesson. I called him up and said to him: 'Robert, there is only one head to this school, and it isn't Robert Pattison. I am the chief here. You and I will stay after school until you recite your lesson.' He gave me a defiant look out of his big black eyes and went back to his seat. School was dismissed and all the pupils went home except Robert. To one of the teachers who remained I said: 'You had better go home. I may stay here all night.'

"I took a book and began to read, apparently paying no attention to Robert, but watching him out of the corner of my eye. He sat there defiant, determined, occasionally shaking his head and slapping his book, but never opening it. This went on for more than an hour. Then he put his hand to his head and was apparently deep in thought for two or three minutes. Then he shook himself, his face cleared up, he opened his book and began to study. In about three minutes he came and stood by my side and said, 'Miss Schnider, will you hear me now?' I said, 'Do you know your lesson?' He said, 'Yes,' and he did perfectly. I said to him: 'Robert, what have you gained by this? Nothing but humiliation and defeat.' The tears welled up in his eyes and rolled down his cheeks, but he was not crying. Suddenly he kissed me and said, 'Miss Schnider, if you will forgive me I will never do such a thing again.'"

PARKER AS A TEACHER.

Old Pupil Says Democratic Presidential Candidate Ruled Firmly.

Hilton Ryan, a tall, broad shouldered farmer of Cortland, N. Y., threw back his fine head with a laugh and spoke thus of Judge Alton B. Parker, the Democratic candidate for president, says the New York American: "Know Alton Parker? Well, I guess so!

"I went to school to him the very first term he ever taught, way back in the sixites. Let me see, '68 or '69 it must have been, for he wa'n't but seventeen years old, and lots of us boys were older and larger than he.

"I can just see that little old schoolhouse now, with its seats ranged around the wall on three sides of the room and the big, battered desks in front of them guiltless of any vestige of paint, and cut and hacked by our ever ready jackknives.

"A good teacher? Well, I should smile! The very best we ever had.

"You see, ours was a pretty tough school, even for a district school, way back on the Virgil hills. We had been in the habit of turning our teacher out every winter and locking the door on him, and when we heard that young Parker had hired out to teach our school that winter we thought we had an easy job of it, sure enough.

"But we didn't do it—no, sir! After that school had 'kept' about a week we lost all desire to turn him out, and, let me tell you, it would have gone pretty rough with the fellow that had proposed it.

"You see, we all loved him—that was all there was to it. He'd play ball with us out of school hours, and there wa'n't one of us could begin to play as well as he could.

"Yet he never lost our respect for him, and when we entered the schoolroom we somehow felt that he was master there, too, and the best thing we could do would be to buckle in and learn something. And we did learn, you bet! It seemed as if a new era in our school dated from that winter term, and more than one of us boys felt then for the first time the beginning of a desire to be somebody. That has stayed with us all our lives, though none of us are looking forward to being president just yet."

A New One In Rural Slang.

"It is part of my business to keep apace with the current slang," said Oscar Hammerstein, the well known theatrical manager, "and I don't think much that is new gets by me. The other day I was in a rural part of Connecticut looking after some property. The farmer's daughter said her mother was in the parlor talking to Mrs. Barnes.

"'Whatever you have to say to ma,' explained the girl, 'you might as well tell before her. They're never apart all day long, them two.'

"'What,' I exclaimed, 'are they so thick as all that?'

"'Thick!' repeated the girl. 'Why, they're so thick they both eat out of one egg.'"—New York Times.

PERHAPS CUT OFF

Kuropatkin's Army Is Now In Most Desperate Straits

HAICHENG IS EVACUATED

Russians Retire to Positions Forming an Arc Around Liao Yang, Which Is Not Proof Against Enveloping Movement of Large Japanese Forces

London, Aug. 4.—Dispatches from the east convince the military experts that General Kuropatkin is fighting for his life at Liao Yang. His army is fighting desperately to hold three strong positions arranged in a half circle around Liao Yang, and if these are captured an utter defeat confronts the Russian army. The only other alternative is an attempt to escape north to Mukden, and with a big Japanese force pressing in from the east it is considered doubtful if Kuropatkin could now withdraw without having his forces cut up and practically annihilated.

Late reports tell of appalling losses in the fighting which has raged almost continuously for four days. Unofficial advices place the losses in the great enveloping movement of the past few days at a total of fully 12,000 men. Of this number the Russian loss will probably reach between 7000 and 8000.

Haicheng on the south has been evacuated by the Russians, who have fallen back on Anshanshan. On the east the Russians have retired on Anping and Liandiansan. These positions form an arc around Liao Yang at a radius of about 20 miles.

The abandonment of the old positions was inevitable. Just so long as the Japanese continue to bring such superiority both in men and artillery to bear on the Russian forces, just so long must Kuropatkin retire. Liao Yang itself is not proof against this enveloping movement.

St. Petersburg reports a disastrous repulse of Japanese at Port Arthur, in which the enemy's losses are placed at 20,000. These figures should be taken with reserve, as the information reached the Russian government through Chefoo. It is quite likely, however, that the Japanese have been repulsed while trying to capture the outer works of the besieged fortress. It is splendidly defended by the finest efforts, and has a garrison of stubborn fighters numbering more than 30,000 men, including the sailors of the fleet.

A report comes by way of Rome that the fine Japanese armored cruiser Kasuga has been sunk. If true this is a serious loss to Japan.

Grave Anxiety In Russia

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—There is a complete and ominous silence regarding events at the front since the receipt in St. Petersburg of General Kuropatkin's brief dispatch of Aug. 2. Even this meagre official information was anticipated by earlier advices.

There are neither official nor press dispatches to indicate the progress of fighting around Liao Yang, where it is felt that a most serious situation must exist. It is thought possible that there may be a temporary lull. The terrible heat alone would be enough to demoralize the armies, and it would not be surprising if, coupled with the several days' severe fighting, it forced both sides to halt and recuperate.

There is the gravest anxiety in St. Petersburg to learn whether Kuropatkin is seriously giving battle or is determinedly screening the withdrawal of his main force.

"Retired In Perfect Order"

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—In a dispatch dated Aug. 2, General Kuropatkin says: "Our troops have retired from Haicheng along the road toward Anshanshan. The movement was accomplished in perfect order and the enemy did not disturb us. The terrible heat has caused many sunstrokes, and measures have been taken to diminish the equipment the troops have hitherto been obliged to carry by transportin it in supply carts. There is no serious news from the eastern front."

Deserted and Blew Up Gunboat

London, Aug. 4.—The Daily Mail has the following from New Chwang: The Russian gunboat Sivoutch (which has been in the Liao river since the beginning of the war) has been deserted and blown up near Sancha and the crew with the vessel's guns have started for Liao Yang.

No Delay In Settlement

Liverpool, Aug. 4.—The owners of the British collier Foxton Hall, which was detained at Port Arthur and suffered damage during her detention, have received compensation from the Russian government. The speedy settlement of the claim by Russia has greatly gratified ship owners here.

Ambassador McCormick Kept Busy

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—American Ambassador McCormick is busily engaged in picking up the threads of the diplomatic situation. Yesterday morning he saw several foreign ambassadors and in the afternoon he had a conference with Foreign Minister Lamsdorff regarding the attitude of the United States. Lamsdorff is anxious to avoid any diplomatic incident with the United States government.

Clear Day for the Grocers' Excursion.

Grand Sail on Narragansett Bay.

Dinner and Other Attractions at Rocky Point.

The twelfth annual picnic of the Old Colony Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Union, Wednesday, was enjoyed by 848 people from Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Rockland, Randolph, Abington and Bridgewater.

Engine 662, in charge of Engineer A. H. Goss and Fireman A. Rottman pulled the thirteen special cars to Fall River on schedule time.

At Fall River the party boarded the new staunch steamer Warwick and were soon steaming down Narragansett bay, under a clear sky. Cuff's orchestra of Braintree and the Rockland band were on board, and rendered popular selections. The steamer rounded Bristol point and in passing Bristol the party had a good view of the Herreshoff ship yard, where many fine yachts have been built.

At a point in the Providence river off Crescent Park the steamer turned back and headed for Rocky Point, arriving at 12.30.

After dinner the amusements of the resort were enjoyed until 3.30. All of the party, except three or four tardy ones, then sailed to Newport harbor.

In Newport harbor there were about a dozen torpedo boats, among them being the Macdonough built at Braintree, also many costly steam yachts and sailing vessels. Considerable interest centered in the old Spanish warship, Marie Teresa, which was beached near the Naval academy.

The steamer arrived at Fall River at 6.45 P. M., and the special train arrived in Quincy at 9.10.

The committee of arrangements were: A. T. Faunce, chairman, North Abington; C. A. Hobart, H. W. Mansfield and O. A. Bridgham, South Braintree; J. A. Ratcliff, Rockland.

About 1,000 packages of fancy biscuits were distributed among the party with the compliments of the National Biscuit Co.

Among the excursionists from Quincy were:

John W. Nash, Fred J. Leonard, A. F. Hayward, E. Larch, I. Smith, T. P. Damon, W. W. Hayward, Miss Mary MacLean, Mrs. Sandberg, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Flint, Martha P. Nash, Walter E. Elcock, Louis D. Garrity, E. G. Foy, Charles Prout, C. Johnson, Walter G. Young, J. A. Deady, Alfred P. J. Pinel, Frank E. Burrell.

Q. Y. C. CRUISE.

Ten or More Yachts Left Today for Marblehead and Gloucester.

The Quincy Yacht club left today on its annual cruise to Marblehead and Gloucester. The fleet got away at 2 o'clock at the sound of a gun, and passed in review of Commodore Sheppard in his new yacht Utoka, and headed toward Marblehead.

Tonight the fleet will come to anchor at Marblehead and there will be visiting among the fleet. Commodore Sheppard will also hold an informal reception on the Utoka, which is taking her maiden trip.

The fleet will witness the races at Marblehead and then sail to Gloucester. From Gloucester the fleet will return to Marblehead and leave for home on Sunday.

The fleet participating in the cruise is as follows:

Utoka, Commodore E. W. Sheppard.
Dorothy II, Vice Commodore F. F. Crane.
Argestes, Fleet Captain George H. Wilkins.
Hustler, Secretary Herbert W. Robbins.
Hattie, Capt. George W. Jones.
Marvel, Capt. Ira M. Whittemore.
Carita, Capt. Edwin E. Davis.
Usona, Capt. A. L. Lincoln.
Moondyne, Capt. W. A. Shaw.
Aleppo, Capt. W. A. Tilley.

MOTHER JONES

Did Not Put in an Appearance to Lecture.

Mother Jones, known far and wide as the miners' friend, did not appear in Quincy Wednesday night as advertised, and the audience of about 160 who assembled at Hancock hall to hear her went home disappointed.

The lecture was to have been held under the auspices of the Central Labor Union and Mother Jones was to speak on the outrage perpetrated on the striking miners of Colorado.

Those present remained at the hall until 10 o'clock when Levi H. Turner apologized for the non-appearance of the speaker, and the meeting dispersed.

While waiting the audiance was entertained with a graphaphone concert.

Mother Jones was in Brockton during the day, and a telephone message sent to that city brought the information that she had started for Quincy. She evidently missed connections somewhere.

GOVERNOR WANTED.

At Laying of the Y. M. C. A. Corner Stone.

Representative Freeman at State House.

Gov. Bates Going to Manassas, Va., and to World's Fair.

State House, Aug. 3. Representative Freeman was at the State House this noon charged by vote of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy to deliver to Gov. Bates an invitation to him to be present at the laying of the corner stone of the new building of the association sometime next month. The date was left open in order that the association might accommodate itself to the demands upon the Governor's time, and so be sure and have him present.

Representative Freeman waited a long time for opportunity to speak with the Governor. But the Council was in session and of course the Governor has to preside at that and could not come out. It is not to be supposed that he was even informed that Mr. Freeman was waiting to see him. Then, too, many other persons were waiting. Finally Private Secretary Hurtubis told Mr. Freeman that, instead of waiting longer, it would be better for him to return home and to send the invitation in writing, thus saving his own time and accomplishing his purpose just as well. Accordingly that will be the course taken.

Since Representative Freeman was here it has been learned at the executive department that Gov. Bates will be away most of the month of September and it will not be possible for him to visit Quincy before the latter part of the month. On September 5 the Governor and party will leave for Manassas, Va., where the militia from the different states will be in camp, and where our own second brigade will be sent. This is a very unusual occurrence and the presence of the Governor is desired.

Thence the Governor and party will go to St. Louis in order to be present at the official celebration of "Massachusetts day." The regular, official delegation, aside from the Governor and those with him, will leave Boston September 12 and will not return for some ten days. The official reception will occur Saturday, September 17, at which a speech will be made by the Governor and another by President Harris of Amherst college, the chairman of the Exposition Commissioners on the part of Massachusetts.

As the Governor will not be at liberty till after his return, the Quincy people can see what chance they have of getting him to speak in September, remembering that he is always in brisk demand.

Holidays for G. A. R. Men.

All veterans of the Civil War, who are in the employ of the city will have a two days' holiday without loss of pay during G. A. R. encampment week in Boston, Mayor Bryant having given orders to this effect.

Shipyard to be Sold.

Judge Bradford signed on Wednesday the decree of foreclosure and order of sale at auction to the Wilmington, Del., plant of the United States Shipbuilding Company—the Harlan & Hollingsworth Company.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam put so much energy into the development of his "Monte Cristo like" mineral resources that the values of his yearly product increased from $622,000,000 to $1,260,000,000, an increase of $638,000,000, or $16,000,000—equal to two-thirds of the yearly interest on his public debt—more than double the 1896 production.

Drift of Opinion.

☞If Gaston really believes that Massachusetts will give her electoral vote to Parker, why does he decline to be again a candidate for Governor. The impression is general that the Colonel would like to sit in the seat once occupied by his father, and for him to refuse such a sure thing as he would have us believe this state is for the Democracy, is a strange thing. Colonel Gaston cannot really believe what he has been saying about the fall election, for if he did he would demand another nomination for Governor. —Lynn Item.

☞The "Bostonians" stranded! Was ever a bit of news about a theatrical organization more surprising? Of all the opera companies, this would probably be regarded by theatre-goers as the last to fall upon the troubled ways of bad business and unpaid salaries and a vacant treasurer's box. But there it is, at a seashore resort, without funds and in distress, and the mind rolls back to its wonderful past and reviews its successes and the great pleasure it has given to thousands upon thousands of music lovers. The "Bostonians" for years represented a high standard of comic opera talent. It was a leader among scores of such companies.—Washington Star.

☞In sultry August there is one fitting toast, and it is to the Success of Laziness. We are not lazy enough. Under the current American doctrine of high pressure, we are succeding very comfortably in damaging the American character and the American physique; but we have been educated sufficiently long in these neurotic, feverish and overstrained ways. We have had an abundant crop of professional advisers on "success;" abundant living examples of this sort of success." The modern idea seems to be to ruin a man before he is forty—and then get another man. It seems to place money above everything else. It lays down a prescribed code in business, morals, personal life and personal efforts, insisting ever that success may be attained only by uninterrupted and strenuous effort, with no pause whatever for anything but work. Success in life does not come merely from this modern neurotic, high-keyed, hysteric effort. The man who works in a room full of the best assorted mottoes may succeed, but not so much by reason of those mottoes as by reason of his own good digestion and level-headed common sense. The slow and lazy man is often the most powerful man, and may sometimes be on the trail long after his feverish companions have fallen out of the march. The time has come to preach the heresy of so-called failure—that heresy which, perhaps, after all, may mean more of a national success.—"Field and Stream" for August.

Inspectors' Orders Concerning Grand Republic Unheeded

DEFENSE OF MANAGER

Says Fire Drill Was Delayed Until Boat Was Made Fast to Pier--"Only 350" Life Preservers Had Been Condemned

New York, Aug. 4.—With the exception of Secretary Atkinson of the Knickerbocker Steamship company, all of those indicted by the Federal grand jury in connection with the steamer Slocum disaster appeared before Commissioner Shields and furnished bail. Secretary Atkinson sent word that he was ill, but would appear before the commissioner as soon as possible.

The steamboat Grand Republic made her regular trips yesterday, notwithstanding the federal steamboat inspectors testified Tuesday before the federal commission that her equipment was so inadequate that in the event of fire her passengers might be as helpless as were the hundreds who died on the General Slocum. Captain George Beebe, manager of the steamboat, in a lengthy interview answered many of the charges made by the federal inspector Tuesday against the equipment of the vessel. He said that on Monday during the big storm an inspector made a trip on the Grand Republic, continuing:

"A fire drill was held for his benefit. The signal was rung when the Republic was off the pier at Coney Island. The storm was howling about us and there was difficulty in even navigating her and preventing her from colliding with the pier. The men first attended to the landing and then undertook the drill. This accounts for the lost time between the giving of the signal and the work of the drill. As it was, there was but one minute and 55 seconds from the time of the giving of the signal to the time the first boat struck the water."

Captain Beebe said that out of 3300 odd life preservers on the Republic, only 350 had failed to come up to a most rigid inspection and most of these were thrown out on account of small rips in seams which several women were employed to and did mend. Those which were no good were destroyed.

"We have put 2000 new life preservers on the Grand Republic" said the captain, and are willing to do all that the authorities require for the safety of the boat and her passengers."

When inspector Rodle learned that the Grand Republic continued running in spite of orders not to do so until she had been made right, he appealed to the collector of the port, Nevada N. Stranahan, who passed the matter over to the head of the law department of the custom house, Mr. Hamilton.

Mr. Hamilton immediately dispatched two inspectors down to the Grand Republic, with orders to keep count of the trips she made. Technically, a boat is liable to a fine of $500 for each trip made until the orders of the inspectors are satisfied. If the fine is not paid at once, an appeal will be made to United States District Attorney Burnett to place a libel on her for the amount of the fine.

The Specter of Socialism

Detroit, Aug. 4.—"Socialism not only inculcates individual and domestic anarchy, but it professedly aims at the ruin of all existing governments," declared Rev. T. J. Campbell of New York at the public meeting last night of the convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies. "Socialism," continued the speaker, "looms over modern civilization with a menace of ruin and is absolutely destructive of all human liberty."

Torpedo Explosion Worked Havoc

Pittsburg, Aug. 4.—With a report that could be heard over a mile distant, several thousand railroad torpedoes, packed for shipment in the yards of the Versailles Railroad Signal company's plant at Versailles, exploded. Three buildings were completely demolished, three employes were seriously injured and every window in the vicinity was broken. The cause of the explosion is not yet known.

Ohio's Machinery In Good Trim

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—The battleship Ohio will not be given another trial. Engineer Forsythe, who had charge of the machinery of the Ohio, states that the failure to make the required speed was due solely to the tidal conditions. The horse power developed was over 2000 more than the contract called for.

Campbell Identifies Robber

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 4.—Superintendent Campbell of the Puritan Coal company has identified Cuido Motzi, an Italian, as one of the men who ambushed and robbed him of nearly $3000 last Saturday at Portage. The prisoner and three other Italians had been arrested as suspicious characters.

Revolutionary Outbreak Feared

Warsaw, Aug. 4.—The trial of revolutionists charged with killing four policemen during a raid here in April has been concluded. Sentence was deferred, owing to the apprehension of the officials of a violent revolutionary outbreak.

Little Story of Big Find

London, Aug. 4.—It is rumored on the Stock Exchange that the Japanese discovered $25,000,000 in an abandoned Russian camp.

"LILY WHITE" PARTY

Evident Sentiment of the Democrats of West Virginia

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 4.—The Democratic state convention was in session two hours yesterday afternoon and almost three hours last night without reaching the regular order of business. Awaiting the report and the platform the time was devoted to oratory, much of which was in favor of a distinctly "white man's party."

The spirit of the convention was shown during the speech of Temporary Chairman McGraw. When he first made mention of Henry G. Davis as "the young, grand old man of West Virginia," the convention became wild. Flags were unfurled, hats and handkerchiefs waved and the yelling was not hushed until the band struck up "Dixie." Every subsequent reference to Davis met with responsive cheering. Former Senator Davis was not present during these demonstrations, however, but he addressed the convention briefly in the evening, when he was greeted by a remarkable demonstration. He declared he must refuse to discuss any public questions in advance of the formal notification of Judge Parker or himself.

It is stated that while Davis favors the so-called "lily white" policy he does not consider it expedient to insert such a plank in the platform at this time. It is currently reported that he and others have received telegrams from members of the national committee and other leaders, especially in New York, that such a plank in the platform of Davis' state would have a bad effect in doubtful states at this time.

Stearns' Ambition Not Gratified

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 4.—After it had been generally conceded that Justus S. Stearns would be nominated for governor by the Democratic state convention, following Stearns' statement early yesterday that he had bolted the Republican party and would support the Democratic ticket, both national and state, the convention last evening nominated for governor, on the first ballot, Woodbridge N. Ferris. Stearns was three times a prominent candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. The vote was: Ferris, 412; Stearns, 329.

Democrats "Without a Home"

New York, Aug. 4.—Populists from a number of states met here last night and conferred with Democrats who are opposed to Judge Parker. President Van Vleck of the Radical Democracy explained the presence of himself and friends in the following statement: "We, as Democrats, felt without a home since the Wall street contingent nominated Parker, and we came to the meeting to meet some fellow-Democrats who look upon his nomination somewhat as we do. We have not as yet decided what we will do in this campaign."

Taggart Names His Committee

Indianapolis, Aug. 4.—Chairman Taggart of the Democratic national committee announces the following officers of the Democratic national committee: Delancy Nicoll, vice chairman, New York; George F. Peabody, treasurer, New York. Executive committee: W. F. Sheehan, chairman, New York; August Belmont, New York; John R. McLean, Ohio; Thomas S. Martin, Virginia; J. M. Guffey, Pennsylvania; James Smith, Jr., New Jersey; Timothy E. Ryan, Wisconsin.

Indiana Democrats Name Kern

Indianapolis, Aug. 4.—The Democratic state convention unanimously nominated John W. Kern for governor. The platform was adopted unanimously. It heartily endorses the St. Louis platform and the nominees of the national Democratic convention, and gives a pledge that the Democrats of no other state shall surpass Indiana in their loyalty and hearty support of the national ticket. The remainder of the platform was devoted to state issues.

Assured of Bryan's Support

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Edward C. Wall and wife of Wisconsin were the guests of Judge Parker, stopping here en route to Europe. Mr. Wall brought a message direct from W. J. Bryan, assuring Parker that he is heartily with the ticket and will place himself at the disposal of the Democratic national committee to do everything in his power to ensure party success this fall.

Present Officials Suit Texans

Houston, Tex., Aug. 4.—The state Democratic convention nominated S. W. T. Lanham for governor and a full state ticket. All but two are present incumbents. The St. Louis platfrom was heartily endorsed and Parker commended. The administration of Governor Lanham also received flattering mention.

Missouri Congressional Deadlock

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 4.—Over 750 ballots have been taken by the Fourth congressional district Democratic convention. The fact that all delegates were released by Congressman Cochran, Roberer and Wilson, the candidates, made no difference in the result.

King Rejects Doctors' Advice

Copenhagen, Aug. 4.—The royal physicians are urging King Christian not to travel to Ribe, where the ancient cathedral has been restored and where great festivities will be held next week. The king doggedly refuses to abandon his journey. He is very feeble and he has been ordered to seek quiet and rest, but the doctors' efforts have met with small success.

CHEAP FILIPINO DIET.

Low Record In Living Established at St. Louis.

WEEK'S FOOD FOR FORTY COST $4.44

Members of Samal Moro Tribe at the World's Fair Live on About 11 Cents a Week—Dog Favorite Dish of Igorrotes—Negritos Live on Roots and Herbs.

The Filipinos at the St. Louis world's fair have made a new record in cheap living, according to the official reports of Captain M. C. Butler, the army officer in charge of the commissary supplies of the little brown men, says the New York World. They have beaten Edward Atkinson's scheme of living on 10 cents a day all hollow. Some of them have actually been living on a fraction over a cent and a half a day. This is the official figure. Captain Butler reports that for one week the food supply of the entire forty Samal Moros in the Moro village cost only $4.44.

These Samal Moros are the blue ribbon tribe for cheap living. The others are not far behind, however, and the reports of Captain Butler show that for one week the cost of living of these little chaps was only a little more than seven cents a day.

There are about 600 Filipinos at the fair, and, though they eat everything from dog to salted ciscoes and smoke Pittsburg stogies, they cost the government but little more than $1.50 a week.

The Filipinos are divided into villages, and their style of living in the various villages differs as widely as the habits of two different nationalities. With the exception of the constabulary and the inhabitants of the Visayan village, the Filipinos here are all of the lower and semisavage type. The Negritos, for example, are the aborigines of the islands and the lowest type in intelligence and physique. They live in the mountains, without houses, and eat roots and herbs and such game as they can kill. They are about the most expensive of the Filipinos here. There are thirty-eight of them, and Captain Butler's report for one week shows that they cost $30.88, another week only $27.66, and still another week only $21.33.

The constabulary, who are made up of the most civilized of the Filipinos, cost but little more. There are 280 of them.

The Igorrotes are the dog eaters. Twenty dogs a week are bought for them, and this is their greatest delicacy. The women among them do not eat dog, however, the custom being confined to the men, who have a tradition that eating dog makes them fierce and warlike. The better fighter the dog is the better food he makes, in their estimation.

The Samal Moros, who are the cheapest livers, do not eat any meat. They live chiefly on rice, which they cook themselves. Being Mohammedans they will eat nothing that is cooked by Americans. Hard bread, rice and chewing tobacco are the chief items on their bill of fare.

One of Captain Butler's weekly detailed reports will give an idea of how different villages of Filipinos live and how much it costs Uncle Sam. The following is for the week ended June 11:

	Persons.	Total cost.	Daily per person.
Negrito village	38	$21.33	$0.08018
Constabulary	280	138.52	.07067
Visayan village	82	35.40	.06167
Igorrote village	114	111.46	.13967
Lanao Moro village	38	19.58	.0736
Samal Moro village	40	4.44	.01585
Constabulary officers' mess	—	18.88	—
Miscellaneous	—	5.15	—

The total amount of issues was $354.76. The average cost per day per person was $0.0736. The total amount of purchases was $370.07.

Penetrating Sound of the Horn.

A correspondent of the London Mail says: "I sincerely trust that motorists will not give up the use of the horn. It is the best of all warning sounds for the deaf. I am stone deaf with the left ear and nearly so with the right, and have had several narrow escapes from being run over when motorists have neglected to sound or have done so too feebly."

An Idyl of the Meat Strike.

Miss Maud Myrtilla Green was wooed
By two impassioned beaus;
Each earnestly her favor sued
And often would propose.
James Henry Brown, to win her smile,
Took her across the lake;
Adolphus Perkins, full of guile,
Sent her a sirloin steak.

James Henry writhed in helpless ire,
And inwardly he boiled
When she told how she fixed the fire
And had that sirloin broiled.
James Henry sent her pounds of fudge
And caramels and drops;
Adolphus did not cash begrudge,
He sent her mutton chops!

James Henry sought to knock his foe
And talked of saving coin;
Adolphus was a crafty beau—
He brought a tenderloin.
James Henry sighed, "You can't believe
How much in love I am."
Adolphus wrote, "Please to receive,
By bearer, one large ham."

Miss Maud Mrytilla Green remarked,
"'Tis sweet how Henry feels,
But, oh, how splendid to be sparked
Each day with three square meals!"
But still she could not quite decide
Which one she liked the most—
James Henry spoke of suicide;
Adolphus sent a roast.

At last James Henry came to call
And brought a solitaire;
He said, "Your finger is so small—
But may I put this there?"
She filled James Henry with distress;
She said: "That old style thing!
Adolphus got me to say 'Yes'—
He brought a beef bone ring."

A GENERAL EXODUS

Fall River Strikers Will Try to Better Conditions Elsewhere

MANUFACTURERS FIRM

Say Mills Will Remain Closed Until Operatives Make an Effort to Work--Federation of Labor Suggests Arbitration

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 4.—The largest number of people who have left this city in a body since the strike began sailed last night on the Fall River line for New York, where they will take a steamer for the Azores. There were about 400 in the party, mostly Portuguese. A steamer will leave New Bedford next week for Lisbon, via the Azores, and it is expected that another large number of strikers will leave at that time. Most of those who left last night were employed in the carding rooms at the mills.

There is no hint of a break in the manufacturers' ranks. Chairman Borden declares that the manufacturers are now more united and determined they have been at any time since the they had been at any time since the strike began. Market conditions make them so, and if that were not a sufficient cause, the fact that there is no change in the ranks of the strikers is another one. While the operatives remain away from the mills they cannot be run, he says, and until they show some disposition to improve the situation by trying to work, he does not expect any change.

The Laurel Lake mills have declared a quarterly dividend of 1½ percent, although it is stated that the mills have made little money during the past quarter. Stockholders in other mills which have large surplus accounts are still talking of the passing of the dividends.

The work at the union headquarters has settled down to a systematic collection and distribution of aid. It is coming in freely, the strength of public sentiment undergoing no appreciable change, and being almost wholly against manufacturers at this time.

A serious phase of the strike is the amount of croaking over the city's future, which is heard on every side. The number of people who wish to leave the city for good is increasing. They are being encouraged by glowing reports of better conditions in England and in some parts of New England. It is not realized that there is no scarcity of cotton mill help anywhere, but the desire to move is strong just the same.

The carders' union will pay its first week's strike allowance on Friday. It is estimated that about $3000 will be distributed among the union carders.

A letter has been received at the headquarters of the strike of 26,000 cotton mill operatives here from Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, requesting Secretary Hibbetts to put the strike situation before the National Civic Federation with a view to arbitration. The matter is under consideration.

A BOYCOTT ON ICE

Chicago Strikers Hope to Cripple Certain Retail Meat Dealers

Chicago, Aug. 4.—The threatened spread of the stockyards strike to outside industries came last night when an order was issued by the Teamsters' union prohibiting drivers of ice wagons from making any deliveries to retail merchants who, since the packing house teamsters went on strike, have been hauling meat from the yards in their own wagons. If the order cutting off the supply of ice can be enforced it means that the majority of people in Chicago will be compelled to go on short rations as far as meat is concerned. The officials of the Teamsters' union have appointed pickets to watch the meat markets all over the city and these men have been instructed to see that the boycott is carried out to the limit.

In a riot which broke out at the yards last night two policemen were injured and 28 rioters were arrested after having been beaten into subjugation. The trouble started when five strike breakers were leaving the yards and tried to board a street car to go to their homes. The motormen on 12 cars refused to stop and a crowd standing nearby commenced hurling stones at the non-union men.

Decision Favors Union Label

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 4.—Judge Wheeler of the superior court has granted an injunction restraining C. H. Merritt & Son of Danbury from using a label which is alleged to be an infringement upon the label of the United Hatters of North America. One of the salient features of the decision is the statement that strikes and their concomitants are not as injurious as some of the court decisions, the latter being permanent in their effect, while the strike and disorder are ephemeral.

Stockade With Ample Defense

Zeigler, Ills., Aug. 4.—An engine hauling one baggage car and two coaches, carrying 40 miners to take the places of strikers, arrived here, escorted by 20 armed guards. The train was backed into Joseph Leiter's stockade and unloaded without interference. Rapid-fire guns were in position and guards centered in the inclosure, all outposts being watched by deputy sheriffs.

Shot and Killed on Street

New York, Aug. 4.—Felice Aurienna, an Italian waiter, 28 years old, whose home was in Boston, met another Italian on a street here and after a few angry words the latter drew a revolver and fired twice. Aurienna fell with two wounds in the head and died almost instantly. Aurienna was recently arrested in this city, charged with biting the lip of Pasquale Corvallo. Corvallo refused to prosecute him, saying that he would "get even." The police are looking for Corvallo because of this threat.

No Trace of Bosworth's Slayer

New Britain, Conn., Aug. 4.—Although the police have followed every possible clue that might throw a ray of light on the mysterious murder of Eugene Bosworth, the gambler, who was beaten to death Tuesday afternoon, they are as much in the dark as they were five minutes after the finding of the battered body of the policy player.

Laid Out by Detective

Newark, N. J., Aug. 4.—Herbert Earle attempted to escape last night from Detective Farrell, who had just arrested him on a charge of passing a forged check, and was shot dead by the officer. Farrell declares that his revolver was discharged accidentally as he started to run after his prisoner.

Keeping From Public Gaze

Rouen, France, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Florence Maybrick continues to remain in the strictest seclusion in her mother's home here. As far as is known they have received no visitors. At the house information regarding the movements of Mrs. Maybrick is steadfastly withheld.

Alleged Horse Thief Extradited

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Carrie Foster has been surrendered to authorities of Rutland, Vt., on an extradition granted by Governor Odell. She is under indictment for horse-stealing and was captured here after selling two horses.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Mgr. Falconio, apostolic delegate to the United States, was a passenger on the steamer Sardegna, which arrived at New York from Genoa and Naples.

Despite official denials the Spanish newspapers insist that a marriage has been arranged between the Infanta Maria Teresa, sister of King Alfonso, and Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria.

Robert C. Minor, prominent in America and Europe as a lanscape painter and artist, died at his summer home at Waterford, Conn., after a brief illness, aged 65. He was born in New York.

THE BURNS MYSTERY

Police Still Searching For Body of the Jewelry Salesman

Athol, Mass., Aug. 4.—The state police have continued their search for the body of Frank J. Burns. The party visited the Bennett Hill schoolhouse and with a big telescope looked into a number of wells in the vicinity of the Fullerite building. They also searched near Lake Ellis, but their efforts were not rewarded with success.

The police have learned that about 40 feet of rope was stolen from the home of Henry Rathborn on the night of Dec. 17, the night Burns disappeared. This is believed to be an important clue, as is also the statement of Aaron Oliver, who says he heard two revolver shots on the same night.

This case is considered one of the most baffling known in this state for many years. Though no one seems to have any doubt that the jewelry drummer was murdered, no one has been able to find any clue to the whereabouts of the body, and it is to this task that the officers are now devoting themselves.

Still confined in his cell in the Worcester jail and undisturbed at the efforts the state police are making to contradict any of the dozen stories he has already told, Walter E. Smith, whose name is connected with the disappearance of Burns, is calmly awaiting the result of the police investigation.

Careless Handling of Money

Brunswick, Me., Aug. 4.—Joseph Durgin, a laborer, was a passenger on a Lewiston, Brunswick and Bath street railway car bound for Bath. A railroad official in this city handed to the conductor of the car a pasteboard box containing about $1000, the semi-weekly wages for employes in Bath, but did not tell the conductor of the contents of the box. The latter put the box on the rear seat, where Durgin was sitting, and later missed both passenger and box. Durgin was later captured and the box and contents were recovered.

Lost Sight by Bathing

Wakefield, Mass., Aug. 4.—Louis Adelman, a young man of this town, was swimming in Lake Quannapowitt several days ago and immediately afterwards his eyesight began to fail him. Now, he is totally blind. Specialists who have been treating him state that his loss of sight is due to paralysis of the optic nerve, caused by his overheated condition at the time he entered the water.

Double Drowning and Its Sequel

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 4.—Through the overturning of a rowboat in Parlor Rock lake Mrs. Rose Keynsky and her brother, Bernard Weiner, lost their lives, and the husband of Mrs. Keynsky, who was hurrying to the scene of the drowning, was thrown head-foremost from his carriage against a rock and will probably die.

Excursion Steamer Grounded

Salem, Mass., Aug. 4.—During a fog the excursion steamer Monchansett went ashore on Misery Island. There were 50 passengers on board at the time of the accident and all were taken off in safety. The Monchansett is not leaking and she will probably float at high tide.

Boston, Aug. 4.—Curtis P. Guilford, clerk in the First National bank of this city, was taken before Commissioner Fiske on the charge of the larceny of $400 from the bank. The case was continued and in default of $1000 bail Guilford was taken to jail.

Accident to Torpedo Boat

Newport, R. I., Aug. 4.—The torpedo boat O'Brien, while making a speed trial trip, broke her blower. She was taken to the torpedo station for temporary repairs and will be towed to Brooklyn navy yard, where permanent repairs will be made.

Followed Example of Officers

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Charged with taking beer into the barracks at Fort Sheridan, a practice which they admit, but hold justifiable in view of the example set by the commissioned officers, all the members of company D, Twenty-seventh infantry, numbering 35 privates and six non-commissioned officers, were arrested by order of Commandant Whitehall. The prisoners will be court martialed for disobedience.

Loomis' Body Brought Home

New York, Aug. 4.—The body of F. K. Loomis, who is supposed to have lost his life from the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm III, off the English coast on June 19 last, was brought here on the steamer St. Paul. Francis B. Loomis arrived here last night from Washington and took charge of the body of his brother, which he shipped to Parkersburg, W. Va.

Killed Sweetheart and Self

Washington, Aug. 4.—George M. Long, aged 33, until recently employed as a laborer in the navy yard here, last night cut the throat of his sweetheart, Nora Adams, aged 23, with a razor. He then cut his own wrist and throat. Both died in a very few minutes. Causeless jealousy appears to have been the motive.

Pugilist Perhaps Fatally Shot

New York, Aug. 4.—James Leonard, a pugilist, who is employed as a waiter in a bowery hotel, was shot in the back while walking in the Bowery last night and may die. Diego Caccicolo, a vender, was arrested after an exciting chase and is charged with the shooting.

Something New In Shower Line

Bialystok, Russia, Aug. 4.—During a downpour of rain here there was a regular shower of small fish.

SHARKEY TO THE RESCUE.

Pugilist Carried Sick Actress to Street at Request of Priest.

Dr. Nagle of Bellevue hospital responded to an ambulance call to an apartment house in New York the other night. On the third floor he found Mrs. Elizabeth Drew, thirty-eight years old, a vaudeville actress, suffering from aneurism of the neck, says the New York Times. The Rev. Father William O'Reilly of St. Ann's church, in East Twelfth street, near Fourth avenue, was attending the woman when Dr. Nagle arrived. The surgeon advised her removal to the hospital. Mrs. Drew was practically helpless and Dr. Nagle began to wonder how he would get her down to the ambulance. She weighs 160 pounds, and Dr. Nagle is a small man.

"Wait a minute," volunteered Father O'Reilly, "and I'll see if I can find you a strong man."

As he reached the street he met Tom Sharkey, the sailor pugilist, and Mrs. Sharkey. Father O'Reilly knows the fighter well.

"Hello, Tom," called out the priest. "You're just the man I want. Will you help carry a sick woman to the ambulance?"

"Sure, father," said Sharkey. "I'm right on the job."

Sharkey mounted the stairs behind the priest, and when he reached the sickroom he looked at Dr. Nagle.

"Father O'Reilly tells me you want a lift, doc," said the pugilist, his chest swelling out.

Nagle looked at Sharkey and sized him up.

"Guess you might as well do the whole job," he said.

Sharkey stepped over, picked up Mrs. Drew as if she were a baby and slowly walked down the stairs.

"Don't be afraid. I'll go just as slow as you like. I could carry you a thousand miles," Sharkey kept repeating as he descended.

Reaching the sidewalk Sharkey found his way to the ambulance blocked by a crowd of men. Two policemen stood near, but they made little impression on the crowd.

"Gents, will yer please get a move on?" said Sharkey in an ordinary voice. The way was quickly cleared and the pugilist placed Mrs. Drew tenderly in the 'bus.

"Thanks, Tom," said Father O'Reilly.

"Don't mention it, father," replied Sharkey as he again offered his arm to Mrs. Sharkey.

MAN'S ASHES FOR A BEAUTY

Grim Method of Demonstrating Undying Affection.

Miss Christine Prince, an actress, was the unsuspecting victim of a dead man's grim remembrance, says a Los Angeles (Cal.) dispatch. She received by express a silver case of oblong shape containing human ashes, those of Robert Conklin, who in life had been desperately in love with her, and they were sent by his attorney.

Conklin came into Miss Prince's career when she was a young girl, having joined her father as a prospector in Colorado more than ten years ago.

He fell in love, proposed marriage, was rejected and drifted away into the foothills of the Rockies. He came back later to be again rejected. He then went to live near Denver, but kept up a correspondence until a few months ago, when he was taken ill. In June Miss Prince heard of his death.

She heard no more about him until she received the box. Conklin left $35,000 to his mother in Massachusetts.

WHITE HOUSE INNOVATION.

Plates Tell Under Whose Administration Furniture Was Bought.

Hereafter those who desire souvenirs from the White House will need to exercise a little care before carrying away furniture from the home of the president, says a Washington special dispatch to the New York World. Every piece of furniture has been marked with a brass plate bearing the name of the president who was in the White House when the article was bought. The scheme is the product of the brain of Colonel Bromwell, the young officer of engineers who has recently become superintendent of public buildings and grounds.

The most recent purchases of furniture for the home of the president consisted of 150 gold framed chairs. All these have been tagged. They are to be used when musicales or other entertainments are given at the White House. This brings the number of gold framed chairs up to 250.

Automobiles With Beds.

American millionaires who strive to outdo their neighbors have ignored the new European device of automobiles with beds, says the New York Press. Several Parisians own these flying hotels, which cannot be excelled for purposes of continental touring. It is not absolutely necessary to use the beds for a continuous night's rest, but for a nap they fill the bill. So far none of these machines has been imported to America, although many Americans go abroad to pick out the newest departure in motor cars. The Baron Leopold de Rothschild, who owns about ten large automobiles, has ordered one of these comfortable autos. The beds are built in the tonneau and there are spaces on either side for packing clothing and carrying provisions. These motors with beds, however, are too heavy for anything except hard touring. They are the last triumph of luxury, and it is only a question of time before they will be used generally.

Japanese Steaks.

The Japs have captured Yungkow. They must have been playing for high stakes, says the Omaha World-Herald. Almost any old cow is a good catch at the present price of beef.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Pilgrimages Almost Daily to the City of Presidents.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN ADAMS.

Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic socities admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Closed for repairs, but soon to be opened to the public by the Society of Colonial Dames, the new owners.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company where warships are being built for the government.

Insured for $2,000,000
L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in
The Prudential Insurance Co.
for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.
Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.
Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.
Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."
Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.
These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.
Better apply TODAY for information regarding Prudential policies to

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. Clara Penley of the Sewer department office at City Hall has returned from her vacation trip.

Four Mormon elders officiated this afternoon at the funeral of Mrs. Jane, wife of Elisha Rigby, who died at Montclair on Tuesday.

The Water department is sending out notices to water takers that water will be shut off from all premises Aug. 10, when the July 1 bill remains unpaid.

A handsome new sign is being placed over the rooms of the Quincy Savings bank. A similar sign will also be placed over the rooms of the National Granite bank.

Crowded His Pigs and Calves.

John Stetson of Randolph was arrested in Brookline on Wednesday, says the Globe, on his way to the Brighton abattoir with a wagon load of calves and another of pigs. Stetson had 27 calves in his wagon, and some of them were standing on the rest. Judge Perkins continued Stetson's case to Aug. 10, and he was released on bail. Chief of Police Corey made Stetson unload his calves in the street, send his pigs on to Brighton and then distribute the calves in the two wagons.

Harbor Excursion.

Wednesday afternoon a party of young people chaperoned by Mrs. G. W. Pinkham took a pleasant trip around Boston harbor on the excursion steamer New Brunswick. The party included,—Miss Annie Pinkham, Miss Marjorie Fay, Miss Ethel Moore of Roxbury, Miss Elenor Nelson and George Pinkham, Chester Tenney, Kenneth Albee, and Lawrence Loring.

Street Railway Sold.

Frederick S. Gore of Dorchester purchased the Norfolk & Western street railway at auction on Wednesday for $18,100. It is subject however to a mortgage of $100,000 and other indebtedness and loans. The route is between Dedham and Medfield.

TODAY'S COURT.

Helen Edwards was fined $50 for violation of the liquor law at Weymouth.

The case of John A. Mandeville for threatening assault and for drunkenness at Milton was called, and he was discharged on payment of costs amounting to $1.50.

DIED.

HECTOR—In Everett, Aug 3. Roderick D., infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Detlof Hector aged 10 months and 26 days.
Funeral services will be held at the residence of Mrs. William Parsons, No 8 Pleasant street, Friday, Aug. 5, at 2 P. M. Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

and his daughter has been summoned home. He is 79 years of age. The attack was sudden.

Caledonian Picnic.

The interesting sporting events of the Caledonian club at Caledonian grove, West Roxbury, on Wednesday were enjoyed by several from Quincy. There were events for members, and other, open to the world, including races, pole vault, putting the shot, sword dances jumping, etc. Prizes were also given for the Highland Fling in costume, both to adults and juveniles; also to the best dressed Highlander, and for bagpipe competition. About 3000 were present.

—The French Admiralty has decided to establish a torpedo and submarine station at Marseilles.

—Josiah Lowell Nash aged 83, an old ship builder at East Machias, Maine, died Tuesday night.

—The Boston & Worcester trolley line will have its double track in service this week, preventing a repetition of Monday's accident.

VEGETARIANISM.

A Theory That Has Been Maintained From the Earliest Days.

From the earliest days vegetarians have maintained that fruit and vegetables are the proper food for mankind, and in ancient times such leaders of thought as Plato, Pythagoras, Empedocles and Plutarch can be counted among the advocates of this doctrine.

It is in this connection that we find Virgil singing the praises of a natural diet apart from the use of flesh:

Soft chestnuts we possess
And apples ripe, with store of curdled cream.

Still more to the point are his words in the Second Georgic at the close of a vivid description of the joys of a golden age:

Before the reign
Of the Dictcean king, before the days
When on slain bullocks fed an impious race.

This further rendering from Latin poetry proclaims the same primeval teaching:

Forbear, O mortals, to taint your bodies with forbidden food.
Earth is lavish of her riches and teems with kindly stores,
Providing without slaughter or bloodshed all delicacies.

DUCKS AND THUNDER.

The Possible Origin of an Ancient English Expression.

The phrase, "like a dying duck in a thunderstorm," probably originated in the peculiar susceptibility exhibited by these birds to electrical disturbances. They hang their heads at such times and turn up their eyes in the most comically pathetic fashion, giving a faint die away quack now and again, as though they had quite made up their minds that their last hour had come, but were resigned. They are thus precisely typical of people whose submission, more or less forced, is made mainly with an eye to effect.

This susceptibility seems to be inherent in ducks, for their eggs in course of hatching are spoiled by a thunderstorm when hens' eggs escape.

It is worth noting in this connection that Shakespeare in "Timon of Athens" says, "We, poor mates, stand on this dying deck." It is just possible that this may be the real origin of the phrase, as it refers to the sinking of a ship during a thunderstorm, and deck may have been carelessly recast as duck.—London Answers.

MARINE TURBINES.

They Date Back to the Time of Hero of Alexandria.

In turbine steamers there is a marked absence of vibration, while the position low in the hull of the machinery gives great stability and in men-of-war makes better protection possible and affords facilities in maneuvering.

The practical advantages of turbines are many. They reduce the oil bill considerably and while they occupy less floor and cubic space are simple in construction and operation.

In a turbine there is nothing to wear out. The only parts subjected to friction are the bearings at the extremities of the spindle, but these run in oil and after years of constant service show no wear. Parsons' turbine plants of 400 horsepower and 1,800 horsepower, which have been driving electric generators for years, have not yet cost a penny for repairs.

The steam turbine dates back to 120 B. C., when Hero of Alexandria described it in his book on pneumatics.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Print of the Springs.

A politician upon his arrival at a certain small town where he was to make a speech the following day found that the two so called hotels were crowded to the doors. Not having telegraphed for accommodations, the politician discovered that he would have to make shift as best he could. He was compelled for that night to sleep on a wire cot which had only some blankets and a sheet on it. As the statesman is a fat man, he found his improvised bed anything but comfortable.

"Well," asked a friend, when the politician appeared in the dining room in the morning, "how did you sleep?"

"Oh, fairly well," replied the statesman nonchalantly, "but I looked like a waffle when I got up."—Youth's Companion.

A Bottomless Lake In Sweden.

In Thomas Nashe's "Terrors of the Night," published in 1594, he says that Lake Wetter, Sweden, is bottomless. He also tells other peculiar things respecting it. "Over it no fowle flies but is frozen to death nor anie mann pass but is mummed like a statue of marble. Awle ye inhabitants around about it are deafened with ye hideous roar of hits waters when out of its midst as out of Mont Gibell a sulphurous stinking smoak issues that well nii poysons ye whole countrie about."

Act In the Present.

Be not anxious about tomorrow. Do today's only. Fight today's temptation, and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see and could not understand if you saw them. Enough for you that God is just and merciful and will reward every man according to his work. —Charles Kingsley.

Human Nature.

It is constantly said that human nature is heartless. Do not believe it. Human nature is kind and generous, but it is narrow and blind and can only with difficulty conceive anything but what it immediately sees and feels.

When trouble goes hunting him a man may dodge it, but when a man goes hunting trouble it hasn't one chance in a thousand of escaping him. —Cincinnati Times-Star.

HER CHOICE A SURPRISE.

Miss Pauline Astor's Engagement to an Untitled Englishman.

Miss Pauline Astor's coming marriage to Henry Herbert Spender-Clay, a former captain in the crack British regiment called the Life Guards, is the latest social sensation in England. The public has been waiting for an announcement that Miss Astor was affianced to a duke or an earl or perhaps oven to a prince, for it was known that it was William Waldorf Astor's ambition that his daughter should marry a title of high degree and ally the family perhaps with some royal house. But the announcement which appeared a few days ago in Mr. Astor's Pall Mall Gazette was of quite a different character from that which this multimillionaire might have liked to see. It is inferred that Miss Astor has made her own choice and that sentimental reasons rather than social ambitions have influenced her selection of a husband, for Mr. Spender-Clay's position in society is not regarded as equal to her own. He has no title. His father, a rich brewer, left him a fortune which gives him an income of $150,000 a year, but there is of course no necessity for an Astor to marry for money.

Spender-Clay first acquired notoriety from a peculiar scandal with which he was connected some years ago. He was duped by a close friend, Lord William Nevill, into signing notes to the amount of over $50,000. When the notes came due, the money lender who had advanced the funds threatened suit against Spender-Clay. The latter refused to pay, claiming his signature was obtained by fraud. The incident led to the conviction of Lord Nevill of forgery and his imprisonment. A short time after this Spender-Clay came before the public again in connection with the "ragging," or hazing, scandals in the Life guards. He was one of the officers who were charged with maltreatment of subordinates, and had to resign his commission.

Miss Astor is now twenty-four, is a brunette, with a sweet face and pleasant manner. She is famous for her jewels and at a drawing room given by the late Queen Victoria wore a necklace said to have cost $90,000. As William Waldorf Astor's only daughter she is heir to a part of his great fortune of $100,000,000.

VOGUE OF FOULARD.

New and Softer Designs Popular—An Attractive Gown.

At the beginning of the spring season it was predicted that the vogue of the foulard gown was at an end. Manufacturers decided that this should not be the case. They set about producing a new and even softer foulard in exceptionally dainty designs.

These new silks have been fashioned into some of the smartest gowns of the summer.

A particularly attractive model is the gray green foulard frock illustrated. The full skirt is gathered with several rows about the waist and laid in Paquin tucks above a deep hem.

The corsage is shirred and bloused back and front over a high girdle of the silk. A tiny empiecement and collar of tucked lawn complete this simple bodice. The sleeves are shirred from the elbow above a deep cuff,

TYING KNOTS IN JAPAN.

It Is a Serious Art, as a Mistake May Mean an Insult.

Like the arranging of flowers, the tying of knots has been carried to the point of a complex art by the Japanese. There is one way—one right way, that is—to knot the cord that confines a birthday or New Year's present. There is one way to tie the brocade bag of the tea jar when the latter is empty and another when it is full. Not only general ignorance of social customs but deadly insults may be communicated by the way a knot is tied, foreigners often making dreadful mistakes either through not knowing or from ignoring the niceties of knot etiquette.

Hooks and eyes, buttons and buckles are unknown so far as Japanese dress is concerned. They do not have much to fasten, but what they do have they fasten with cord. That is why they have carried the tying of cord so far. The Japanese have hundreds of ornamental knots, some of them so old that they antedate written history.

Japanese children are taught to make knots just as they are taught to write and draw. All sorts of flower and animal forms are copied. There is the chrysanthemum knot, the iris knot, plum blossom, pine tree and cherry blossom knots. There is a stork knot, a turtle knot, a knot named for the sacred mountain Fujiyama. An easy knot is called the "old man's knot." There is also an "old woman's knot."

THE PARISIAN LUNCH.

A Substantial Meal Served In the Middle of the Day.

Noon or 12:30 is the universal hour for the strictly Parisian lunch, which commences with "hors d'oeuvres," appetizers eaten with butter—the only time butter is ever served on a French table.

The endless variety of "hors d'oeuvres" would fill a volume—sardines, shrimps, olives, radishes. Tiny salads of every description are included among them.

An egg or fish course follows, and the various ways in which both are cooked would also fill a volume. Next the meat is served—beef, mutton, lamb or veal—accompanied by one vegetable or a salad. If a vegetable, the salad follows as a separate course with fowl, game or cold meat of some kind. If a salad is the accessory for the meat then some vegetable comes after it as a single course preceding the cheese—never omitted—and which with fruit of some kind forms the dessert. Between the salad and cheese course a sweet dish, an "entremet," consisting of a custard, cream, tart or the like, is often served, but cheese and fruit are usually allowed the honors of the ordinary average luncheon dessert topped off with a good cup of coffee and a tiny glass of some liqueur.—What to Eat.

How Sea Birds Get a Drink.

"When I was a cabin boy," said an elderly sailor, "I often used to wonder, seein' birds thousands of miles out to sea, what they done for fresh water when they got thirsty.

"One day a squall answered that question for me. It was a hot and glitterin' day in the tropics, and in the clear sky overhead a black rain cloud appeared all of a sudden. Then out of the empty space over a hundred sea birds came dartin' from every direction. They got under the rain cloud and they waited there for about ten minutes, circlin' round and round, and when the rain began to fall they drank their fill.

"In the tropics, where the great sea birds sail thousands of miles away from shore, they get their drinkin' water in that way. They smell out a storm a long way off; they travel a hundred miles, maybe, to get under it, and they swallow enough raindrops to keep them goin'."—Portland Oregonian.

Oxford Training.

The average citizen, if asked what was taught at Oxford, would probably reply, "Useless learning." And in many ways it is a true answer, for its aim is not to turn out doctors, lawyers and merchants, ready made, but men with carefully trained minds, fitted not for this or that profession, but for the whole conduct of life. It is contended that such a man will insensibly take a wider view of his subject than the specialist, for he approaches it from a different standpoint.—London Outlook.

Good Living In China.

An English surgeon at Hongkong writes that "all Chinamen eat fish and pork at morning and evening meals. Fowls and ducks are always on the table of all but the most humble of the cooly class, and they do not have them because they cannot afford them. I hope this will be a sufficient answer to those who maintain that Chinamen live on rice. It is not nearly so true as that the Scotch live on porridge."

A Simple Question.

"May a man marry his widow's sister?" was a question I heard put to a prominent lawyer.

"Certainly he may," was the reply without a moment's hesitation. Then the lawyer had another think coming.—Albany Journal.

Seer.

"Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are," said the seer.

The man told him what he ate.

"You're a blanked fool!" said the seer.

"Wonderful! Wonderful!" exclaimed the man.—Puck.

At First Sight.

"Did he fall in love at first sight?"

"Yes. First sight of her bank account."—Princeton Tiger.

YACHT GROUNDED

Pleasure Seekers Took to Tender, Which Overturned

SEVEN WERE DROWNED

Haste to Get Ashore Was the Primary Cause of Fatalities--Spectators Unable to Render Aid In Time to Save Lives

Halifax, Aug. 5.—Seven persons, the majority of them Americans, were drowned late yesterday afternoon at Bear Island Bar, near Digby, by the capsizing of a small boat.

The dead are George Leach, 46 years of age, manager of a woolen mill, Nasonville, R. I.; Captain Charles Hersey, Digby; Mrs. Vedito, 30, of Digby; Mrs. O'Reilly, 40 years old, her 13-year-old son and a daughter, supposed to be from New York. The seventh victim of the accident is as yet unidentified. The eighth member of the party, named Vedito, was rescued

The party was camping at Pinkney's point and planned a fishing trip for yesterday. The yacht Ouida left here in the morning and picked up the eight campers at Pinkney's point, at the mouth of Bear river. The party had spent a pleasant day cruising about and fishing in the Annapolis basin. At 5 o'clock the yacht started on the return trip to land her passengers at Smith's cove. The yacht suddenly grounded on the Bear Island Bar.

There were no witnesses close by the scene of the accident, but a number of persons on shore saw the yacht when she grounded. It is believed that in their haste to leave the craft in the 10-foot tender, which was carried along, the small boat was overturned, precipitating the entire party into the water. This accident was witnessed from Smith's cove and the alarm was quickly given, and a number of cottagers set out in small boats to the rescue. Despite their efforts they reached the scene in time to save only one member of the party, Mr. Vedito, whose wife was among the drowned.

The bodies of the dead were quickly recovered and rowed to land, where efforts were made to revive them, but without success. Vedito, although exhausted, was brought to consciousness.

Captain Charles Hersey was in command of the yacht and had it not been for the haste of his passengers to get ashore there undoubtedly would have been no loss of life.

The moment it was seen from shore that the tender had overturned Driver Purdy, who was waiting at the dock with a buckboard to convey the party to their camp grounds, gave the alarm. The nearest boat was 200 yards out in the water, but Herbert Hatfield swam for it. He then returned to shore and got the rescuing party on board. All hands then pulled for the scene of the accident, but with one exception their arrival was too late.

Crazed by Frightful Experience

New York, Aug. 5.—A search of two days and two nights for Antonio Beraccio, a workman employed in a quarry at North Bergen, N. J., ended in his being found alive at the bottom of a 100-foot crevice in the rocks of the Palisades. His body was so jammed between the converging sides of the crevice that he could move only his arms. For two days and two nights he had shouted for help. The second morning he became insane from exhaustion, starvation and terror. Strangely enough, he was uninjured in his fall, and it is believed he will recover his reason.

Auto Mixed Up With Train

Toledo, Aug. 5.—A 70-horse power machine owned by R. R. Scott of Baltimore, which is touring with the American Automobile association, ran into a fast express train at Perrysburg. There were four men in the car. Gus Behrens, who was driving, is severely injured. The machine was completely demolished. The party was one day late on the trip.

"Bishop's Tavern" Flourishing

New York, Aug. 5.—In spite of the protests of temperance advocates and clergymen, the Subway tavern, at the opening of which Bishop Potter took part, is doing a brisk business. The liquor department does well, but the section over which hangs the sign, "This way to the water wagon," does better still financially.

Employers Decide Upon Lockout

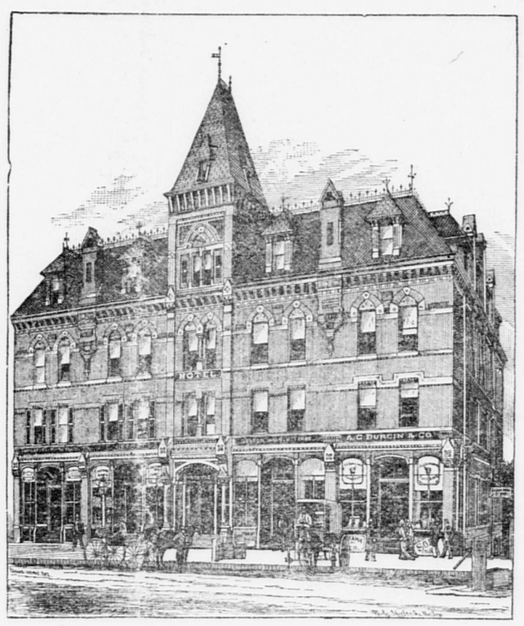

New York, Aug. 5.—The board of governors of the Building Trades Employers' association have decided unanimously to lock out on Monday next the members of those unions whose men are not at work today. It was also decided not to deal any longer with the Building Trades Alliance.

—On the occasion of his visit to Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht at Christchurch on Sunday, July 17, the King conferred the silver medal of the Victorian Order on Captain Matthews, the commander.

—William M. Marr will be the new principal of the Holbrook High school. He comes from Upton.

REMARKABLE CHANGE

Little About the Greenleaf Hotel Block as Twenty-Five Years Ago.

The very extensive remodelling of the store at the corner of Granite street in the Greenleaf block reminds Quincy people that there have been great changes in this building since it was erected.

It was built in 1876 by the late Joseph W. Robertson and for many years was known as the Robertson block and Robertson House. Previously there stood on the site a business block on the corner, and a dwelling known as the Central House, which were destroyed by fire Aug. 26, 1875. This was one of the hottest fires in the history of the town.

The accompanying cut shows the first merchants to occupy the building, and also the old store fronts which were similiar to that of the National Granite bank just removed.

A. G. Durgin & Co., the druggist, had the corner store where the changes are now being made, and Quincy thought then that it was a pretty fine drug store.

The Boston Branch grocery of which John F. Merrill was manager and afterwards owner came next, and was also up to date. The third store was occupied by G. T. Defrees, who had a large dry goods store. Joseph W. Lombard had the last store, and was a dealer in clothing. The first landlord of the Robertson House was William P. F. Meserve. The barber shop has also been remodelled, and has a new artist.

On the southerly end, third floor, was Robertson hall, at the time the largest and best public hall in Quincy, but even that has been converted into hotel rooms.

On the northerly end, fourth floor was Masonic hall, and Rural lodge was the longest tenant in the building, but they recently moved to the new Court House block.

Thus it will be seen the change has been complete in name, appearance, landlords, stores, tenants, etc.

HOUGHS NECK.

The season at Houghs Neck is now at its best. Nearly everything in the cottage line has been taken and there are but very few cottages to be had at any price.

Frank Fallon and family of Cambridge are in the Littleton cottage on Weymouth street.

The Improvement Society has reorganized with James E. Cavanagh as president; Joseph R. McInnes as secretary and Thomas Wilcox as treasurer.

Mark Gordon of Quincy occupies the Edith Cottage on Bird street and is entertaining a party of friends from Springfield.

Michael J. Golden of Roxbury has moved into his new cottage on the corner of Babcock and Winthrop streets.

An inspector of the Board of Health closed two of the barber shops here on Thursday for not complying with the law in regard to sanitary arrangements.

Ernest Gumpwright and family of Roxbury are in the Celestine cottage on Sea street.

Percy C. Moore and family of Malden are in the Jones cottage on Turner street.

George W. Eldridge and family of Brockton occupy the Dew Drop Inn on Darrow street.

E. Herman Gumpwright and family of Roxbury enjoy the sea breezes at the Pleasant View cottage on Centre road.

H. P. Casey and family of Dorchester find the Foxey cottage on Winthrop street a delightful place.

W. T. Dunn and family of Hyde Park are in the Centerville cottage on Sea street.

Benjamin Austin and family of Brockton occupy the Aftercabin cottage on Centre road.

C. M. McCarthy and family of Roxbury are the occupants of the Doris cottage on Centre road.

W. S. Davenport and family of Dorchester are in the Tryphena cottage on Centre road.

R. G. Rogers and family of Boston, occupy the Flushing cottage on Taber street.

D. J. Mahoney and family of Boston, enjoy life at the Peterson cottage on Turner street.

James Foley and family of Randolph, are sojourning in the Sunlight cottage on Bird street.

James Gray and family of Cambridge are in the Rich cottage on Sea street.

QUICK RUN

Of the Quincy Yachts to Marblehead.

Good Showing by the Hutoka.

Elapsed and Corrected Time—Boats and Guests.

Quite a party of ladies gathered at the Quincy Yacht club house Thursday afternoon to see the fleet start on the annual cruise to Marblehead. It was a busy scene on the float, for tenders were constantly departing with supplies for the yachts that were to take part. The start was to have been at 2 o'clock, but the Hutoka, Commodore Sheppard's new yacht, was a little late in arriving from up the river, owing to lack of wind and it was just 2 o'clock when the preparatory gun was fired. Fifteen minutes later another gun gave the signal to start and the fleet got under way and passed in review of the Commodore's yacht and headed for Marblehead.

As the Hutoka squared away a parting signal was fired from the yacht, and was answered by a like signal from the gun on the float.

The complete list of yachts to participate with the guests on board were as follows:

Hutoka,—Commodore E. W. Sheppard, Joel F. Sheppard, Joel F. Sheppard, 2d, Dexter E. Wadsworth, Willard P. Sheppard, John Taylor.

Dorothy III,—Vice Commander F. F. Crane, Frank Freeman, Ralph G. Crane Herbert R. Holmes.

Argestes,—Fleet Captain George H. Wilkins, E. E. Clark, C. K. Chisholm.

Hustler,— Secretary Herbert W. Robbins, Mrs. Robbins, Mr. Burnell.

Marvel,—Capt. Ira M. Whittemore, Thomas Nash, George Gould, Miss Gould.

Hattie,—Capt. George W. Jones, Edwin W. Newcomb, James B. Walker Amos B. Chase, Joseph W. Johnson, Walter Dunbar, Walter P. Ela.

Arbutus,— Capt. Charles W. Hall, Amos Merritt.

Carita,—Capt. E. E. Davis, Mrs. Davis, Miss Marguerite Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Leon M. Abbott, Moreton T. Swallow.

Moondyne,—Capt. W. H. Shaw, A. J. Shaw, Leslie Gordon, George Kelley, Ferdon Shaw, Jack Shaw, A. J. Shaw, Jr.

Usona,—Capt. A. L. Lincoln, George Lincoln, Mr. Scudder.

Aleppo,—Capt. W. H. Tilley, W. J. West.

Jennie,—Capt. J. E. Kneeland Thomas H. Kneeland, Joseph Shaw.

Saltair,—Capt. C. C. Collins with friends.

The Hutoka was the last yacht to start, and it was a stern chace to Hull to overtake the fleet. At Hull she passed the Hattie, and then one by one left the fleet in the rear. She was the first to come to anchor in Marblehead bay but corrected time places her in fifth position. On elapsed time she beat the fleet 6 minutes and 8 seconds.

The order of finish in the run to Marblehead was as follows:

	Elapsed time.	Corrected time.
Usona	2-41-30	1-51-20
Marvel	2-50-55	1-56-42
Hustler	2-53-04	1-57-23
Argestes	2-49-49	1-58-48
Hutoka	2-35-22	1-58-50
Moondyne	2-52-55	2-01-09
Dorothy III	2-54-35	2-03-42
Saltair	3-02-42	2-06-21
Hattie	2-57-22	not measured.

After coming to anchor and trimming ship there was visiting among the yachts, and the captains were entertained by Commodore Sheppard on the Hutoka.

Today the fleet is witnessing the races after which they will sail to Gloucester.

SERIOUS FALL.

Employe at Shipyard Falls from the Battleship Vermont.

John Sekech, who is also known as John Miller, was seriously if not fatally injured Thursday afternoon at the Fore River shipyard. He was at work on the battleship Vermont when he lost his balance and fell thirty feet to the ground, striking on his head, causing a fracture of the skull. He was removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital in Hall's ambulance. Sekech is about 50 years of age and has a wife and family in Austria. He boarded at 286 Washington street.

Sekech is reported to have died at the hospital at 5 o'clock this morning.

—The new barn of George Leary at Sharon, built to replace one burned last September, was destroyed by fire Thursday morning, with fifteen tons of hay; loss $3,000.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

NORFOLK ss. Quincy, July 5, 1904.

SEIZED on execution and will be sold at public auction on MONDAY, the twenty-second day of August, 1904, at 9 o'clock A. M., at my residence, No. 163 Franklin street, Quincy, said County, all the right, title and interest which Andrew A. Meyer of Quincy had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the eighth day of March, 1904, at two o'clock and thirty minutes P. M., (being the time the same was attached on mesne process), also had on the fifth day of July, A. D. 1904, at two o'clock and forty-five minutes P. M., (being the time the same was seized on execution) in and to the following described real estate, to wit:

A certain parcel of land in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, with the buildings and improvements thereon, being in part the premises conveyed to Peter P. Veale by Napoleon B. Furnald, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 798, page 304, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a stone bound on Sea Street, at the northeast corner of land now or formerly of Charles P. Brown; thence running in a westerly direction one hundred (100) feet more or less to a post at the northwest corner of said land of Brown; thence turning and running in a southerly direction twenty-three (23) feet more or less to the northeast corner of land now or late of Shaw; thence turning and running in a northwesterly direction along the edge of the upland, six hundred and ninety (690) feet more or less to an old post; thence in a northeasterly direction across the flats, four hundred and twenty (420) feet more or less to a post on to land of James Mears; thence in an easterly direction along the land of said Mears, three hundred and twenty-three (323) feet more or less to a post; thence in a southerly direction along the land of said Mears, three hundred and ninety (390) feet more or less to a stone bound at end of wall on the flats; thence in the same direction along the land of said Mears, two hundred and fourteen (214) feet more or less to a passageway running to land above described, ten (10) feet wide; thence along land now or late of Boyd, eighty-nine (89) feet more or less to a post; and thence turning and running in an easterly direction six (6) feet more or less to the point of beginning on said Sea Street.

And also a certain parcel of land with the buildings and improvements thereon, being the premises conveyed to Peter P. Veale by William Boyd, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 798, page 306, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a stake on Sea Street, at the northeast corner of land formerly owned by William Croncher, and southeast corner of land hereby conveyed; thence running northeasterly on line of Sea Street, to a stake, there measuring about ninety-five (95) feet. Said stake is on line of Sea Street, on the southerly side of a drift way, ten feet wide; thence turning and running in a westerly direction on said drift way, to a stake about seventy-nine (79) feet; said stake is on the easterly line of land formerly owned by William Croncher; thence turning and running in a southerly direction about eighty (80) feet to a stake in line of fence; thence turning and running easterly about four and a half feet to the point of beginning in said Sea Street.

Also another parcel of land conveyed by James Mears to said William Boyd, dated November 11, 1889, bounded and described as follows: Northerly on land formerly owned by James Mears, thence measuring about eighty-one (81) feet; westerly on land formerly owned by William Croncher, there measuring about eighty-eight (88) feet; southerly on a drift way ten (10) feet wide, there measuring about eighty-eight (88) feet and about twenty-six feet on Sea Street; and easterly on land formerly owned by Martin French, or Arthur H. Dunham, about eighty-eight (88) feet.

Said real estate heretofore described constitutes all the premises shown on plan of H. T. Whitman, dated December, 1897, and recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, Plan Book 20, Plan 934, and is the same conveyed to Andrew Meyer by the Collector of Taxes for the City of Quincy, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 919, page 195, 196 and said tax title is still standing in name of Andrew Meyer.

Also certain real estate being the same of which Estelle M. Meyer died seized, see case No. 37,426 in the Norfolk Probate Court, conveyed to Charles M. Moore, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 953, page 562, consisting of a cottage house and 7730 square feet of land on Sea Avenue, Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, being lot thirty-one (31) on the plan of the Mears estate, recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, plan book 9, plan 375, said real estate being bounded and described as follows: Northerly by lot thirty on said plan, one hundred six and fifty one-hundredths (106.50) feet; westerly on Sea Avenue, seventy-five (75) feet; southerly on lot 32 on said plan, one hundred (100) feet; easterly on land of heirs of James Mears, seventy-five and six tenths (75.6) feet; containing 7730 square feet.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam, in spite of his heavily increasing public business, only increased the salaries and expenses of his senate and house of representatives from $3,943,000 to $4,631,000 yearly, an increase of only $688,000.

UNDER PROTECTION.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Boston is said to be overrun with theives, some of them on from New York for the sake of trying to pluck the gullible among the spectators of the G. A. R. meeting there. Some of these light-fingered fellows can be depended upon to take occasional excursions into other territory not far from Boston, to keep in practice and see what there is for idle hands to do. Keep the locks carefully attended to and the bolts in place. It is good advice for all the time in these days when both day and night thieves are so numerous.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞John Rogers was a real educator of the people. There was much truth represented in his work, and in doing it he always did his best. Academician as he was, rather than a master, his art work proved of high service as a public educator. He put a good deal of character and meaning into his conceptions and although they were no greater than the man they all taught lessons of virtue and patriotism. The lesson of the life of John Rogers is for us all. If it is our lot to do small things we can do them well. Whatever we accomplish should have in it a representation of what is best, and highest, and truest in life. Though we may not be called upon to do great things we can do honest things, without sham and without deceit.—Bangor Commercial.

☞How far a municipality ought to go in the way of trading is an open question in this country, (Great Britain) and no one can say when any lines of demarcation are likely to be drawn. But three Sicilian towns which entered into the bread-baking business would plead that they were compelled by circumstances, and not tempted by Socialistic theories. The case of Palermo, the capital, is the latest illustration. Common bread had risen there to 2 1-2 d. per pound, a monstrous price from the English standpoint. The City Council drew up standard rates for the different qualities, but this was not enough, as the flour did not come down correspondingly and the baker could not work at a loss. Then the Council went further afield by proclaiming standard prices for flour. In order to enforce them, however, it was necessary to set up a flour mill and a bakery, and to order grain from every part of the island. All this was done, with the inevitable result that the private competitors had to drop to the same level. Just about one-sixth of the bread consumed daily in Palermo now comes out of the municipal ovens, but the proportion is sufficient to prevent the price being again raised unnecessarily. The venture did not escape severe criticism. Traders in other commodities than bread disliked the principal involved, and dreaded the consequences. Even the Socialists are not unanimous. But the experiment has been successful, and that satisfies the Council.—Liverpool Mercury of July 20.

WARNING IS HEEDED

President of Hayti Gets Sharp Prod From Minister Powell

DISORDERS WILL CEASE

Our Representative's Energetic Action No Doubt Saved Lives and Property of Foreigners--Is Protecting Turkish Subjects

Port au Prince, Hayti, Aug. 5.—After serious disorders yesterday Mr. Powell, the American minister, demanded of President Nord that the government take immediate action to stop the disorders and to protect all foreigners and their property, demanding especially that American interests be protected.

The president ordered the minister of the interior and the military governor to take immediate steps to stop the disorders and for this purpose to send troops and police to the disturbed districts. President Nord assured Powell that the lives and property of foreigners would be protected, and said he would see that their business did not suffer damage.

After the interview at the palace, Minister Powell, Alexander Battiste, the American deputy consul, and General Carrie, the military governor, visited the disturbed districts and personally saw that protection was given to the houses of foreigners. The energetic and prompt action of Powell has no doubt saved not only the property, but the lives of foreigners, and prevented greater disturbances.

During yesterday forenoon bands of soldiers, throwing stones, prevented the Syrians from reopening their stores. American citizens hoisted the Stars and Stripes over their residences, and some of them sought refuge in the American legation, driving there in carriages flying the American flag, and pursued by the populace, throwing stones.

Prepared For Emergencies

Washington, Aug. 5.—It is a curious fact that while Minister Leishman at Constantinople is seeking to secure from the Turkish government certain rights for American citizens resident there, Mr. Powell should be engaged in protecting Turkish subjects in Port au Prince and in the rest of the Haytien republic. It is learned that this is done at the request of the Turkish government. Many of the Syrians and Armenians now in the West Indies are American citizens by naturalization, but the majority have not renounced their Turkish nationality. Mr. Powell is caring for all alike. So far, though the state department has closely watched the press dispatches reporting a turbulent state of affairs in Port au Prince, it has not felt it desirable to call upon the navy department for naval vessels to act, but Admiral Sigsbee is ready to respond at a day's notice of any such call.

Minister Powell has been submitting very frequent reports of late describing the unrest of the people and the growing feeling against the foreign element, especially the Syrians. He has advised the state department at intervals that he fears a general uprising and it is understood that this government has been prepared for some time to meet any emergencies that might arise.

It is understood that the feeling of the Haytiens is directed particularly against the Syrians, for the reason that they, by superior business methods and sagacity, have gradually driven many of the natives out of business. Many of the natives, it is said, think that they are called upon to rise up in righteous anger and self-defense.

Packers Claim to Be Satisfied

Chicago, Aug. 5.—In a statement given out by the packers, the report that negotiations are in progress to bring about another conference between the packers and the labor leaders is declared to be entirely unfounded. The packers assert that there is not the slightest possibility of further conferences with the strike leaders and that the progress being made at the plants is satisfactory to all the packers.

Terrible Explosion of Dynamite

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 5.—By an explosion in the Oliver Dynamite company's plant at Laurel Run James Douglass was killed and two girls were injured by flying glass. There were 1600 pounds of dynamite in the one building which was demolished, the force of the concussion being felt 12 miles away. Not a vestige of the body of Douglass can be found.

Failure of Relief Expedition

Copenhagen, Aug. 5.—The Zeigler relief expedition has arrived at Vardo, Norway, on board the Frithjof, on its return from the north. Owing to ice and fog, the Frithjof did not succeed in reaching the America, having on board the Zeigler-Fiala Artic expedition. The Frithjof will sail north again as soon as possible with coal for the America.

Unhurt by Five-Story Fall

New York, Aug. 5.—Several clotheslines stretched across the areaway at the rear of an East Side tenement saved the life of 7-year-old Joseph Pike. The lad fell five stories. Clotheslines, stretched from every floor, broke the little fellow's fall and he arose from the stone-paved yard with hardly a bruise.

HOAR HAS LUMBAGO

Venerable Senator Not Likely to Participate In the Campaign

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 5.—Senator Hoar is ill of an attack of the lumbago, complicated by what is called Washington malaria. He was troubled by lumbago for the last four weeks of the last session of congress and kept his bed nearly the whole of that time. At the end of the session he was pronounced cured by his physician, but ordered to abstain from any public speaking or any considerable mental labor for some months to come. On his return to Massachusetts he violated the physician's injunction so far as to deliver three addresses. The attack has been quite severe and has kept him in bed for several weeks. His physicians say he is steadily improving, out that the process of the cure will be rather slow. It is not likely that Mr. Hoar will be able to be of much service in the early part of the campaign unless possibly by writing one or two letters.

Health Board Will Enforce Order

Boston, Aug. 5.—The state board of health has notified Attorney General Parker to serve notices against all manufacturers along the banks of the Neponset river that unless they immediately cease dumping refuse and waste matter into the waters of the river injunctions will be issued restraining them from doing business until arrangements for the escape of the refuse through other channels are perfected. This order will affect a large number of manufacturing firms, the total value of the plants to which the order applies being in excess of $15,000,000. They were notified by the board of health more than six months ago to cease throwing waste and refuse into the river.

"Trust Company" Under Arrest

Boston, Aug. 5.—United States officials, armed with warrants, entered the office of the North American Trust and placed the officers under arrest. Warrants were sworn out for the arrest of John M. Barry, Francis C. Webster and Charles A. Record, but Record has not been arrested yet. They are charged with conspiracy to defraud the public, and with conducting a business which in its operation violates the federal law against lotteries. The concern has branch offices in several New England cities. Immediately upon their arrest they were arraigned before Commissioner Fiske, who held them in $2000 each for their reappearance on Aug. 12. Bail was furnished.

Railway Employes Arrested

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 5.—Edgar J. Balcom, conductor on a car in the head-on collision of trolley cars Monday, was arrested last evening on the charge of manslaughter. When officers called at the home of William Dunn, motorman of Malcolm's car in the collision, he was not there, but assurance was given that he would present himself in court. The death of Motorman Doe makes the second fatality resulting from the accident, Mrs. Caroline Stewart dying from her injuries Monday.

Steamer and Schooner Collided

Boston, Aug. 5.—Two men were injured by flying splinters in a harbor collision last evening between the fishing schooner M. S. Ayer and the excursion fishing steamer King Philip. The accounts of the accident as told by the commanders of the two vessels conflict. The steamer was the most seriously damaged. The schooner was towed back to the city, while the King Phillip came up under her own steam. The injured men were sent to a hospital.

Boy's Protector Brutally Treated

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 5.—Because he tried to prevent a circus hand from hurting a small boy last night, Andrew Frazer, 52 years old, was set upon by four employes of a circus showing here and beaten into insensibility. His skull was fractured and he received internal injuries which may cause his death. Dennis Cunningham and Michael Welsh were arrested and identified by witnesses as the men responsible for Frazer's condition.

Body Remained on River Bed

Hartford, Aug. 5.—Frank M. Amorizzo, a workman employed on a bridge construction over the Connecticut river, was knocked from a scow by a swinging sand digger. Fellow-workmen waited for him to rise to the surface, but he failed to do so, and four hours later divers found his body on the river's bed, directly under the scow.

Monohansett a Total Loss

Salem, Mass., Aug. 5.—Excursion steamer Monohansett, which went ashore on Great Misery island during a fog, will be a total loss. Her back is broken, the hull is full of water to the hurricane deck, and her machinery is knocked out of place.

No Light on Bosworth Tragedy

New Britain, Conn., Aug. 5.—The police have continued their investigation into the death of Charles Bosworth, but announce that there are absolutely no new developments. The body of the dead gambler will be taken to Hartford for burial.

Cruiser Dupleix at Boston

Boston, Aug. 5.—The French cruiser Dupleix has arrived from Newport. The Dupleix will stay about a week. She is named after Admiral Dupleix, an old French governor, who served in India during 1697-1764.

New and Rich Strike of Oil

Zanesville, O., Aug. 5.—There is considerable excitement in Morgan county over what experts declare to be a new and rich old field. An average of 90,000 barrels of oil a day is flowing. Two thousand oil speculators are camping out in the new field.

A Boston paper reports that Albert W. Parker, real estate broker, Quincy, is a petitioner in bankruptcy. Liabilities are $15,079,73, of which $12,344.53 is secured. Assets are $11,500, all of which is represented in encumbered real estate.

The generosity of one of our storekeepers was again manifested Wednesday afternoon, when a large basket of sweet apples was placed outside the store door with a sign over it which read: "Take one." A large portion of the Fore River men were obliged to pass this store on their way to the car and it is hardly necessary to state that the basket was not long in being emptied.

Mothers' Meeting.

The Mothers' Meetings, arranged in connection with the kindergarten classes of the Home Science association, are proving to be a very interesting part of the summer work and will long be pleasantly remembered by those attending.

At the Adams school on Friday of last week, the exercises included a demonstration of Kindergarten work by the class of little folk, a lecture on bread and cake making by Mrs. Wade, piano selections by Mrs. Samuel Curtis and songs in German, French and Italian by Mrs. E. H. Dewson and Miss Dewson.

During the last half hour lemonade and fancy crackers were served.

The committee in charge of the afternoon were Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Mrs. Alice D. Sanborn and Mrs. Henry Tirrell.

Lawn Party.

At the lawn party on Wednesday held by the Misses Jennie Ellis and Laura Morrissette, the prizes were won by the following: Doll by Beatrice Morrissette; box of writing paper, Louise Norris; ball, Joseph Hannon. Part of the proceeds was spent for fruit for the Day Nursery.

HEAT!

BY USING ONE OF OUR

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

Government Will Seek Facts Regarding Steamer Arabia

CONTENTION OF AMERICA

Foodstuffs on Neutral Ships Not Intended For Fighting Forces of Belligerents Cannot Be Seized Even In War Zone

Washington, Aug. 5.—The officials of the state department do not care to pass any opinion upon the legality, from an international standpoint, of the action of the Russian prize court at Vladivostok in the case of the steamer Arabia, until some obscure points in the decision are cleared up. Although the department has finally decided that it will not promulgate any set of rules which it regards as proper to govern the conduct of neutral commerce and shipping in belligerent waters or on the high seas, it undoubtedly will, in the course of treatment of the separate cases of seizure of American goods during the progress of the war, sufficiently define the view of the American government on this subject.

The Arabia case is likely to develop strongly one important contention on the part of this government, that foodstuffs on a neutral ship are not subject to seizure even in the war zone, provided they are not intended for the use of the army or navy of a belligerent. It has been supposed that the Russian government itself subscribed fully to this rule, and that is why Washington is waiting to learn what unknown and qualifying conditions were developed before the Vladivostok prize court to justify the confiscation of American flour consigned to Japanese individuals and not to the government nor intended for its use. It is felt here that the Russian government fully understands the distnction which is here drawn between individual and national property.

Among the rules adopted by the Russian government at the outbreak of the war, rule 10 (defining contraband) reads:

"In general, everything intended for warfare on land or sea; also rice, foodstuffs, horses, beasts of burden and other animals which may be used in time of war, when they are transported for account of or in destination of the enemy."

The "enemy" above referred to is here regarded as the Japanese government and not some merchant doing business in Yokohama and supplying American flour to the working people of that city and not receiving it in consignment on account of the Japanese army or navy. This view was clearly developed during the Boer war.

Counsel for the Portland Milling company were before the department and insisted that the entire cargo of the Arabia was individually consigned and consequently that there was not one pound of contraband goods liable to seizure aboard the ship.

There is no disposition here to pursue this matter in any heat, but it is pointed out that our own experience, as late as the Spanish war, was that these prize cases were beset with infinite difficulty of adjustment, no two being precisely alike.

Therefore the state department will proceed deliberately with the preparation of its case, trying to avoid raising any unnecessary side issues, and animated by the single purpose of securing just that amount of protection for American trade with the far east to which it is entitled under the principles of modern international law.

To Confiscate Part of Cargo

Vladivostok, Aug. 5.—The prize court has decided to confiscate such portion of the cargo of the Portland and Asiatic line steamer Arabia (captured by the Vladivostok squadron) as was consigned to Japanese ports, namely 59,000 pounds of flour and the railroad equipment, this portion constituting less than half the bulk and weight of her cargo, the remainder consisting of 142,500 pounds of flour, being consigned to Hong Kong. The confiscated portion of the cargo is now being unloaded. As soon as this is completed the steamer will be released.

JAPS PROBABLY HALTING

Over a Thousand Russian Casualties In Two Engagements

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—A dispatch from Lieutenant General Zassalitch to the czar says that General Sakharoff reports that 29 officers and over 1000 men were killed or wounded in the engagements of July 30 and July 31 and that six guns were abandoned.

The fact that there is no further news from the front beyond Zassalitch's account of the fighting at Simoucheng on July 31 bears out the explanation that the Japanese are halting to bring up supplies, especially ammunition, of which a modern engagement entails an extravagent expenditure and without which it would be impossible even for a victorious army to follow up its success.

The official estimate of the loss of over 1000 agrees with the figures in a belated dispatch from Liao Yang referring to the same fighting, and which also says that the Russians were fully prepared to hold their positions when commanded to retire, which was carried out in perfect order.

The receipt of Zassalitch's dispatch gave rise to extravagant rumors of further rioting around Haicheng, and several press dispatches were sent off describing a fresh battle between the forces of General Zassalitch and General Oku.

There is no apparent justification for such reports. The best informed military authorities declare that there has been no fighting since the Russians fell back to Laindiansian, Anping and Anshanshan.

Two Generals Not Heard From

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—The fact that General Kuropatkin's recent dispatches have not mentioned General Stakelberg or General Zaroubaleff leads to the supposition here that their forces to the southward may have had their communications cut by General Nodzu's army.

London Hears No News

London, Aug. 5.—The war news in the London newspapers is again restricted to official dispatches. A few very brief dispatches from General Kuroki's headquarters in the field are printed, but they give no additional information to that which is already known.

Further Seizures Likely

Brussels, Aug. 5.—It is stated here that five vessels of the Russian volunteer fleet will leave the Black sea next week for a cruise in the Red sea.

RATIFIED BY TAMMANY

Parker and Davis Ticket Is Promised Hearty Support

New York, Aug. 5.—Tammany Hall ratified the nomination of Parker and Davis last night. The first mention of Parker's name brought forth boisterous cheers from an audience which about half filled the hall. The name of Davis was also applauded. The resolutions adopted endorse the national platform; pledge support to the national ticket; declare that present depression is due to the president's absolute disregard of constitutional limitations; call the president the "man on horseback"; denounce protection; oppose monopoly; declare for the independence of the Filipinos, and denounce sectionalism.

Former State Senator O'Sullivan, who made the principal speech of the evening, made an answer to criticisms of Tammany and said that Tammany should meet such criticisms by an overwhelming majority for the Democratic nominee. He declared that Elihu Root did not dare accept the nomination for governor of New York because he was sagacious enough to see defeat for his party.

"White Supremacy" Cut Out

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 5.—The Democratic state convention nominated State Senator John Cornwell for governor and endorsed John T. McGraw for United States senator, to succeed Nathan B. Scott. The proceedings throughout appeared to be in accordance with the wishes of Henry G. Davis, candidate for vice president. There is no question about the convention being almost unanimously in favor of the "white supremacy" proposition, and yet, at the request of Davis, it was kept out of the platform, receiving only 87 votes out of 974.

Southern Men Visit Parker

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Almost all of Judge Parker's visitors yesterday were from south of Mason and Dixon's line. Senator Bailey of Texas, Governor Montague of Virginia and Messrs. H. D. Clayton, E. L. Russell and H. Hatcher of Alabama constituted the southern delegation. Senator Bailey expressed cordial admiration for Parker and hopefulness as to the outcome of the campaign.

Considered Wisconsin Tangle

New York, Aug. 5.—Senator Spooner, Postmaster General Payne and Representative Babcock, all of Wisconsin, met in this city last night and discussed the political situation in their state, where the La Folette faction is fighting the so-called Spooner faction. It is expected that the courts will soon take up the matter of the legality of the two factions.

Cortelyou Feels Satisfied

Washington, Aug. 5.—Chairman Cortelyou has arrived here from the west, where he has been for a week. He declined to be interviewed for publication regarding the campaign or any of his recent observations, but it was evident that, in a general way, he is satisfied with the situation as he found it.

Convicted Briber Seeks Election

Minneapolis, Aug. 5.—Dr. A. A. Ames, former mayor of Minneapolis, and convicted in the district court here of accepting a bribe, the case having been sent back for a new trial on appeal, has filed notice of his intention to run for congress on the Republican ticket.

Will Be Left to Diplomacy

Panama, Aug. 5.—Mr. Barrett, the American minister, has submitted a memorandum to the Panama government regarding a modus vivendi pending the final settlement by diplomatic means of the disputed jurisdiction over Arcon, which has been created a port by the authorities of the canal zone.

Stray Fishermen Picked Up

Halifax, Aug. 5.—Joseph Sylvia and Henry Sylvia of the Provincetown (Mass.) fishing schooner Frank Foster, strayed from their vessel on Aug. 1 and were picked up 25 miles off Cape Cod by the schooner North America and landed at Lockport last evening.

To Fix Up Our Warships

Washington, Aug. 5.—Chief Constructor Cappe has approved a survey on the U. S. S. Albany at the navy yard at Bremerton, calling for repairs to cost $180,000. He also has approved a survey of $80,000 work on the Nashville at Boston, $10,000 work on the Sterling at Norfolk and $6000 work on the Osla de Luzon at Pensacola.

Governor Will Name Sponsor

Washington, Aug. 5.—Although the president and the secretary of the navy are entitled to the privilege of selecting the young woman who shall christen ships built in government navy yards, the governor of Connecticut will be invited to make this selection for the battleship Connecticut, which will be launched on Sept. 29.

Annexation Bad For Hawaii

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 5.—In an interview here Governor Carter of Hawaii said that the annexation of the islands to the United States has not been a commercial success, as far as the islands are concerned. One reason for this is because the laws by which they are governed are not suited to the country.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Secretary Morton has issued a special order to the navy commendatory of the services to the country of the late Rear Admiral Henry C. Taylor.

John T. Clarke, 70, died at his home at Northampton, Mass. He had been superintendent of schools in Braintree, Southbridge and Walpole, Mass. He was a native of Pittsfield, N. H.

The Maine Socialist state central committee has selected H. G. Hatgood as their candidate for governor to fill the place made vacant by the recent death of William P. Rogers.

Albert Beck, 19, was drowned at Leominster, Mass., while bathing with three companions. Unable to swim, he got into deep water and his friends were too frightened to help him.

A brakeman was killed, the conductor probably fatally injured and several passengers badly hurt by the derailing of a passenger coach at Royersville, O.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Pilgrimages Almost Daily to the City of Presidents.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN ADAMS.

Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic socities admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Closed for repairs, but soon to be opened to the public by the Society of Colonial Dames, the new owners.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company where warships are being built for the government.

Humors

They take possession of the body, and are Lords of Misrule.

They are attended by pimples, boils, the itching tetter, salt rheum, and other cutaneous eruptions; by feelings of weakness, languor, general debility and what not.

They cause more suffering than anything else.

Health, Strength, Peace and Pleasure require their expulsion, and this is positively effected, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Which radically and permanently drives them out and builds up the whole system.

PAUL REVERE POST

Will Parade in Boston with Grand Army Veterans.

Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., has not received orders from State headquarters as yet, regarding the Grand Army encampment, so that definite plans cannot be made.

Plans however were outlined at the meeting of the Post Thursday evening. The Post will take part in the parade in Boston on Tuesday, the 16th, and will be accompanied by the Braintree Fife and Drum Corps of 19 pieces.

They will leave Quincy on the 8.42 train that morning.

Arrangements will be made if possible to secure seats on the grand stand for the comrades who are unable to march.

AT SQUANTUM.

Business Men of Waltham Listen to Some Hot Talk.

The Waltham Business Men's Association held its second annual outing at Squantum on Thursday and enjoyed a shore dinner. About 250 were present.

The speakers included Eugene N. Foss who advocated reciprocity and scored Senator Lodge; Mayor Baxter of Medford and Hon. George H. Doty, both of whom had words of praise for the senator; ex-Congressman J. F. Fitzgerald, Mayor Boynton of Everett, L. O. Dennison, the president of the association, and others.

Mayor Harvey of Waltham was among the guests, and Clarence French was toastmaster.

MANY GOT CAUGHT.

In the North American Trust Co. Now Under Cloud.

It is said that quite a number of Quincy people had money in the North American Trust Co. of Boston, whose business was wound up Thursday by the Federal officers. Two of its officers were placed under arrest for violation of the postal laws.

The offices of the company were at 144 Tremont street and it had branch offices in several cities in New England. The company has only been in operation since last April but is reported to have taken in hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The method of the company was to send out alluring circulars in which it was stated parties could purchase anything desired.

If a $1000 home was desired $5 was deposited, and then came weekly payments of $1.25 each. $1 of this is alleged to have gone toward the home and the remainder for the company's expenses. After a certain amount was paid in the home was to be given.

A little figuring shows that twenty years of payments would be necessary before persons owned the home and in that time he would have paid in $1255 for his $1000 home.

THE WORD BOGUS.

There Are Several Plausible Theories as to Its Origin.

The word "bogus" is said by Dr. Ogilvie to be derived from Boghese, the name of a notorious American swindler who about the year 1835 flooded the western and southwestern states with counterfeit bills, sham mortgages and such like. Others connect the word with "bogie," a scarecrow or goblin, and so applied to anything fictitious or chimerical.

Lowell in the "Biglow Papers" says, "I more than suspect the word to be a corruption of the French bagasse." This bagasse was the sugar cane as delivered in its dry, crushed state from the mill, called also cane trash, and fit only for burning, being thus synonymous with useless rubbish.

Again, according to Brewer, there is in French argot, or thieves' slang, a word, bogue, which signifies the rind of a green chestnut or the case of a watch, and this also brings us to the idea of an outward seeming without any solid and reputable foundation.—Pearson's Weekly.

CITY VS. TOWNS.

Towns Make a Better Showing on Tax Rates.

Commenting editorially on tax rates, the Boston Advertiser says: "While the reports from the cities all over the state are showing big advances, running all the way from $.50 to $2.50, the towns which have so far reported make a far better showing. The towns have not been so much affected by the eight hour law, as regards the cost of public work. Values of property in the towns are not so much affected by temporary depression in the stock and money markets, as city property is. Then, too, the towns are not so much subject to continuous demands for water and sewer extensions, street widenings, etc. So, while there are plenty of towns around the state which will show a higher tax rate, this year, as compared with the general run of cities, it looks as if the majority would report either a decrease or a stationary rate. Taken altogether, so far as they are ready to report, the towns will show up much better than the cities do.

"One thing that helps the towns to get a lower tax rate this year is the change by which the state now pays the poor rates, without a corresponding increase in the state tax. This year the state is to pay out about $1,600,000 in taking care of the pauper insane. Always previously the towns have had to pay that cost themselves, so that if all the cities and towns were to show the same tax rate this year as last, they would still have had that $1,600,000 to spend on other purposes than the poor farm. The cities have evidently used up this extra money and still have raised their tax rates. The towns have taken the money previously appropriated for the insane poor and used it for public improvements on roads, etc., and have thus been able to cut down their tax rate by just about the amount the state spends for them.

It might be inferred that cities also would save the money, as the towns have done, to get a lower tax rate. But there are always ways for a city to spend money. If it does not go to the pauper insane, it goes for street improvements, for city payrolls or whatever may be the next strongest demand. There never yet was a large city in this section that had more money than it could profitably use. Certainly the city tax rates of this year show no signs of falling off because of the state's assumption of the cost of the pauper insane."

The city of Quincy was able this year to reduce its poor appropriation from $14,000 to $8,000, because the State took over the cost of the insane, but it did not reduce its current expenses that much. Quincy went to the very limit this year as last year in its appropriation under the $12 limit for municipal expenses. The increase of $10,008 22 in this item, added to the $6000 now paid by the State would make $16,008.22. The increase of 70 cents per $1,000 in the tax rate raised $16,723.31.

Eighty-One Years Old Today.

Mrs. Emeline, widow of Mr. William Parker, is passing her 81st birthday today at the residence of her son Warren S. Parker on Hancock court, with whom she makes her home. Mrs. Parker is having no formal celebration of the event but during the day received many calls from her friends who extended congratulations.

Mrs. Parker was born in Quincy, and has always made this city her home. She is a daughter of William and Louisa Wilson. May 28, 1840, she married William Parker, the ceremony being performed by Rev. John Gregory. Mr. Parker was well known builder, and during his active business life erected many houses in Quincy.

Two children were born to them, Warren S., with whom she resides, and Alice who died. Her husband died in 1890. Few people 81 years old are as smart as Mrs. Parker.

Mrs. Parker enjoys exceptionally good health and is almost daily seen upon the street. Not only does she make calls among her friends in Quincy, but frequently makes trips unaccompanied to places outside of Quincy.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

HOSPITAL REPORT.

Brockton Institution Has Received $8,025.50 from 416 Patients.

The annual report of the Brockton hospital has just been issued for the year 1903, and it will be of interest to compare the finances with the Quincy institution. The Brockton hospital treated 416 patients during the year, of which 281 were surgical cases. The average number of patients per day was 23, and the average time in hospital for a patient was 20 days. The largest number in one day was 31, and the smallest 15. The number of accident cases was 58.

The financial report was as follows:

CASH RECEIVED DURING YEAR.

Board of patients,	8,022.70
H. W. Nickerson, mostly factory collections,	3,037.51
Churches,	562.43
Interest,	563.69

INVESTED FUNDS.

In savings banks,	$17,700.00
In mortgages,	4,750.00
	$22,450.00

It will be observed that the Brockton hospital receives a smaller sum from the city treasury than the Quincy hospital and that the income from patients is very much larger.

Monument Suggested.

Rev. D. M. Wilson, formerly of Quincy, was the orator of the day at the Northfield Old-Home week celebration on Thursday. The Globe says, Mr. Wilson spoke with fine effect of the early days of Northfield, a thrice settled town which met the full force of Indian attack in the Indian and the French and Indian wars, causing its abandonment by white men. He recalled the later loyalty of the town to the patriots' cause in the revolution and its contribution to the union forces in the civil war, and urged that the services of the brave men should receive a permanent memorial.

TODAY'S COURT.

Frank Mullen was arraigned for assault on Vincent Royaskey at Quincy. Case continued until Aug. 9.

J. Henry Donahue was sent to the house of correction for three months for drunkenness at Weymouth.

David Gustafson and James J. Egan were fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Presumption Probably Correct

Richmond, Aug. 5.—Andrew Dudley, a negro, 14 years old, who attempted assault upon two little white girls near Greenfield, was taken from an officer while en route for jail on a train by a mob near Afton and carried to the woods, where it is presumed he was lynched.

Duchess Had a Bad Fall

London, Aug. 5.—A bulletin was issued at Blenheim castle last night saying that the duchess is not so well. The Duchess of Marlborough (formerly Miss Vanderbilt) was thrown from her horse Monday evening last and was considerably bruised and shaken.

—The Abington tax rate is $22.50, which is, however, a reduction of $1.10 from last year.

SALT AND ICE.

The Process That Begins When the Two Are Mixed.

It is not correct to say that salt dissolves ice, since real solution only takes place when a solid, liquid or gas is dissolved in a liquid.

The true explanation of the fact that ice melts when common salt is added to it depends upon the simple physical principle that when a salt is dissolved in water heat is absorbed, and its temperature is lowered. When salt and ice are mixed together some of the salt dissolves in the small amount of water which is always present, the temperature is thereby lowered, and a new freezing point is established.

The remainder of the ice—being at a temperature higher than this new freezing point—slowly melts, and more salt is dissolved until the solution is saturated. The temperature can in this way be lowered to 22 degrees C., which is the freezing point of a definite compound of salt and water.

The salts dissolved in sea waters serve a very important purpose, as it requires a greater degree of cold to cause the formation of ice on them than on fresh water.

ANCIENT CURRENCY.

The Chinese Once Used Small Bronze Knives For Money.

Knife money, a species of ancient Chinese currency, was associated with the state of Ts'i, one of the most powerful of the early subdivisions of the Celestial Empire, which came into power B. C. 1122 and was subdued by the rival state of Ts'in, B. C. 224. This quaint form of money consisted of small curved bronze knives, some seven inches in length, with inscribed blades and handles terminating in rings.

This knife money dropped out of use with the reduction of Ts'i, but was revived by the usurper Wang Mang, who was murdered A. D. 23. The issues of this potentate were half as long again as the earlier currency. They were also much thicker, and the ring at the end of the handle was replaced by a rim and central square hole resembling the hole in the modern "cash." Other Chinese currencies of great antiquity and of similar sort were adze money, or small hatchets, with such varieties of tool currency as chisels, spades and planes, all of which passed from hand to hand in the ordinary way as a circulating medium.

THE WORD "HANDICAP."

It Comes From the Ancient Custom of Hand In the Cap.

In former days a "handicap" was conducted thus: A, wishing for something which belonged to B, say a horse, would offer his watch for it. If A agreed, C was chosen to fix the sum that should be given by one or the other to make the exchange fair.

The three then put down a stake, and A and B, each holding a piece of money, put their hands into a cap or hat, or into their pockets, while C, enlarging on the respective merits of the horse and watch, made his award in as rapid and complex a manner as possible, ending it with the words, "Draw, gentlemen!"

A and B instantly drew out and opened their hands. If money appeared in both the exchange was made; if in one only, or in neither, the award was off, and in every case C took the stakes.

The modern use of handicap has arisen from the employment of experts to make fair conditions for a race in which the competitors are of unequal age or power.

Intelligence In Monkeys.

A correspondent in the Field contributes an extraordinary instance of intelligence in the Royal park, Melbourne, Australia. He was watching some monkeys in a large cage when one of them came to the front and tried to reach a nut which had been thrown and was lying on the gravel path. Putting its arms through the bars and stretching as far as possible it found that the nut was just beyond its reach. There was straw on the floor of the cage and going to the back, where it evidently expected to find the straw less damaged, it tested straw after straw, discarding them one by one, not thinking them strong enough for the purpose. At last it found a satisfactory one, returned with it to the front of the cage and very quickly with this aid hooked the nut close enough to be picked up.

Her Sympathy.

Little Flora was complaining that her stomach felt bad, according to the Columbia Herald. "Perhaps it's because it's empty," said her mother. "It might feel better if you had something in it." Not long afterward the minister called. In reply to a question as to his health he said that he was well, but that his head felt rather bad that day. "Perhaps it's because it's empty," spoke up Flora. "It might feel better if you had something in it."

Genius.

Men give me some credit for genius. All the genius I have lies in this: When I have a subject in hand I study it profoundly. Day and night it is before me. I explore it in all its bearings. My mind becomes pervaded with it. Then the effort which I make the people are pleased to call the fruit of genius. It is the fruit of labor and thought. —Alexander Hamilton.

What He Put Up.

"Has your friend Bifkins, the architect, put up anything lately?"

"Yes; I tried to collect a bill from him yesterday, and he put up a good bluff."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Social Realm.

The poetry of earth is never dead;
When all the birds are faint with the hot sun
And hide in cooling trees, a voice will run
From hedge to hedge about the new-mown mead.
That is the grasshopper's,—he takes the lead
In summer luxury,—he has never done
With his delights; for, when tired out with fun,
He rests at ease beneath some pleasant weed.
—John Keats.

G. A. R. PARADE.

The Route in Boston, August 16, and Other Orders.

The G. A. R. parade in Boston, Tuesday, Aug. 16, will move at 10 A. M. over the following route: Commonwealth avenue (north side); thence via. Arlington street to Beacon street, School street, Washington street, Milk street, Devonshire street, Summer street, Washington street, Temple place, Tremont street, Boylston street and dismiss at Park square.

Orders to this effect were issued yesterday by Col. Cranmore N. Wallace of Braintree, assistant adjutant general on the staff of Commander-in-chief Black, and also chairman of the Parade committee.

The headquarters of the Commander-in-chief will be at Hotel Vendome after Aug. 13, where the commanding officer of each department will report on arrival.

Gov. Bates will review the column at the State House, Mayor Collins at City Hall, and the Commander-in-chief on Boylston street.

It is expected that there will be 45 departments in line.

A parade of the naval veterans will take place Monday, Aug. 15, and the excursion of G. A. R. veterans in automobiles will take place Thursday, Aug. 18.

The annual national camp fire will be held in Tremont Temple, Monday evening, Aug. 15. The Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Speaker of the House and the Mayor intend to be present. Gen. Black; S. W. Pennypacker, Governor of Pennsylvania; T. J. Stewart, past national commander, G. A. R.; A. T. Bliss, Governor of Michigan; Col. Rose and Chaplain McCabe, the tunnel engineer and singer of Libby prison, will speak.

It is suggest that all bands and drum corps taking part in the grand parade of Aug. 16 stop playing as they turn from Washington street into Temple place, in order that the marching comrades may not only be able to see, but to hear the singing by the "children of the living flag," located on the grand stand on Tremont street, facing Temple place.

BIG BICYCLE MEET.

Wheelmen Began to Arrive at Atlantic Early This Morning.

All the wheelmen about Boston are peddling toward Atlantic today to attend the old time wheelmen's meet which is being held on the shores of Quincy bay. The meet was to have been held July 23 but was postponed on account of the storm.

This morning it did not look encouraging for the meet, but it soon cleared off, and long before noon the wheelmen began to arrive at the rendezvous, and by noon several hundred were present. Wheelmen were constantly arriving from all parts of the state and it is estimated that over a thousand will be in attendance.

Among the clubs that have called runs for the meet are Massachusetts Shoe City, Clover club of Lynn, Fields corner club, Metropolitan, Roxbury, and Waltham. Wheelmen are expected from Springfield, Worcester, Providence and Portland, Me.

This afternoon there was a series of sports beginning at 3.30 with a base ball game. There were also potato and tub races, swimming matches, etc.

The Round Up.

The League is a mount for a merry meet,
The Quincy shore is a cool retreat,
And the Glover slope is a place complete.

The day (the sixth) in the afternoon,
The L. A. W. announce it soon,
To gathering wheelmen a jolly boon.

By Rue d'Atlantic to make the run,
O'er a fine plateau which is noted some,
The clustering cyclist gaily roam.

The ideal stretch of pasture plain,
And lovely view of the island chain,
When visited once, invites again.

The Squantum headland looms to view,
A panorama across the blue,
O, the bathing at hand refreshes too.

Atlantic suburb to Quincy clings,
For its noted history and lots of things,
So the fine approaches to comfort bring.

G. O. WING.

Proved Fatal.

John Sekech, the man injured at the Fore River Works on Thursday, by falling from the battleship Vermont, died at the Massachusetts General Hospital yesterday. The body was brought to Quincy and services were held at St. John's church. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

—The German Crown Prince will embark on a voyage round the world in the autumn on board the training ship Charlotte, which is now being prepared for sea.

INVESTORS WANT MONEY

Many Pay a Vain Visit to Offices of North American Trust

Boston, Aug. 6.—Thousands of investors in the North American Trust received a tremendous shock on hearing of the arrest of the officers of the concern, and a stream of people visited the luxuriously furnished offices to demand the money they had paid in on the alluring promises of the trust.

There was little comfort for them, however, for behind the counters and windows everything looked deserted. A search is now to be made for the funds of the concern, of which only a trifle has yet been located.

The other offices of the trust in Portland, Me., Leominster and New Bedford where customers were few; Haverhill, where the instalment houses removed the office furniture, were closed.

In addition to John M. Barry, the head of the enterprise, and his treasurer, Webster, arrested on Thursday, Charles A. Record, once a member, and for whom a warrant was issued, gave himself up to the federal authorities and was held in $1000 personal recognizance.

Meanwhile the postal authorities are taking care of the great mass of letters that have been accumulating. On top of it all arises the possibility of action by the state authorities.

Defeated Telephone Company

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 6.—Miss Emelie Brewer, sister of Justice Brewer of the United States supreme court, worsted the New England Telephone company in its attempt to plant a telephone pole in front of the Brewer homestead. She camped out all night on the spot where the pole was to be located, with two servants, and was prepared to remain all summer, but the selectmen of Stockbridge granted a new pole location and Miss Brewer retired.

Stabbed Two Youths and Escaped

Boston, Aug. 6.—For no apparent reason whatever, an unknown Italian rushed around the corner of Fay street, into Harrison avenue, last night, and stabbed Edward Curley, 18, and Michael McNamara, 19, with a long dirk. McNamara was cut in the side and is in a serious condition. Curley was stabbed in the right leg. A dozen men who were in the vicinity rushed to the scene of the crime and gave chase, but the Italian escaped.

Rejected Suitor Killed Himself

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 6.—Because Miss Hattie Curtis, who lived in the same block, would not marry him, James H. Irving, aged 58, shot and killed himself last night. He used a 32-calibre revovler, the bullet entering behind the right ear. Irving had importuned Miss Curtis to marry him, and she gave her final and emphatic answer a few minutes before the shooting. Irving leaves two sons and a daughter in Fall River.

Retires From Business at 87

Boston, Aug. 6.—Former Governor George S. Boutwell has given up his law office in this city and has retired to his home in Groton. Mr. Boutwell, who is now in his 87th year, has visited his Boston office daily ever since he left public life, many years ago. During this time he has had charge of many important cases, including over 700 for the United States government.

A PRIVATE CITIZEN

Judge Parker Severs Connection With the Court

MET IN SPECIAL SESSION

Head of Bench Meets Colleagues and They Dispose of All Cases Requiring His Attention--Resignation Is Then Filed

Albany, Aug. 6.—Alton B. Parker ceased to be chief judge of the court of appeals of this state at 3:20 p. m. yesterday, and became the untrammelled candidate of the Democratic party for the presidency of the United States, lacking only the formal notification of his nomination, which will take place at Rosemount next Wednesday.

Without any advance announcement or intimation of his purpose, he came to Albany, took part with five of the other judges in clearing up practically all of the cases which had been argued before the court, and then sent a messenger to file his formal resignation in the office of the secretary of state, as the constitution and public officer's law required.

He left Esopus at 10:26 a. m., accompanied only by the newspaper men who have been on duty at Rosemount ever since his nomination. Arriving in Albany he went to the Capitol and joined in consultation with his colleagues over the cases pending before the court. The consultation lasted a little over an hour and at 3:05 the judges filed into the courtroom and handed down to the clerk 66 decisions, which practically cleared up the business before the court. The only cases remaining are two or three in the hands of Judges Gray and Bartlett, who are in Europe. All of the cases in which Judge Parker was assisting were disposed of.

His business as chief judge being thus completed, Judge Parker then took up the other matter upon which he had come to Albany, the filing of his resignation.

In the absence of Secretary of State O'Brien and of First Deputy Mengin, the document was presented to Second Deputy Tennant. It read:

"Hon. John P. O'Brien, Secretary of State:

"Sir: I hereby respectfully resign my office as chief judge of the court of appeals of the state of New York, such resignaton to take effect immediately.

"Alton B. Parker.

"Rosemont, Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 5, 1904."

Judge Parker spent the remainder of the afternoon in conversation with his late colleagues in the court. He refused to make any statement or comment in connection with his resignation, beyond saying: "It speaks for itself."

His fellow-judges were not so reticent, however, and each one of them expressed profound regret at the personal loss felt by the resignation of Judge Parker and the loss sustained by the state in being deprived of the service of an eminently able and successful presiding judge.

Nearly three weeks ago Judge Parker wrote to his associates, asking their consent to hold this extraordinary session, and in accordance with his wish they came to Albany. The secret of the session was well kept and the judges came together without any intimation of their purpose becoming public.

It may be said with confidence that in his action Judge Parker carried out the intention which has been in his mind from the first, that is, to complete the business of the court with which he was concerned and then to resign in time to permit his successor to be elected by the people. It s no secret that great pressure has been brought to bear upon him from many sources, by people interested respectively in inducing him not to resign at all, or to resign so late that the vacancy resulting would have to be filled by appointment by the governor.

Populist-Democratic Fusion

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Judge Parker reached his home just after 8 o'clock last night. He retired early, being wearied by the strain of the day's events. For the first time in nearly 30 years he is only a private citizen of Ulster county.

Sure of Parker's Election

New York, Aug. 6.—Chairman Taggart returned to this city last night from his home in Indianapolis. He expressed the belief that Indiana's electoral vote will be cast for Parker. Mr. Taggart was asked how long he expected to remain in New York this time and replied that he should remain until Parker was elected President of the United States.

Back to Rosemount

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 6.—Thomas H. Tibbles of this city, Populist candidate for vice president, has been strongly opposed to fusion with the Democrats, but now says he will agree to fusion with any party that will oppose monopolies and will consent to a division of the ticket in Nebraska. This practically makes fusion certain.

Court to Act on Factional Row

Milwaukee, Aug. 6.—The state supreme court will receive judicial notice of the factional troubles of the Republican party in Wisconsin on next Tuesday, when preliminaries will be inaugurated to determine the legal status of the two tickets now in the field and the position they are entitled to upon the official ballot.

SHORT GRASS COUNTRY

Region Where Real Land Hunger May Be Seen.

IDEAS REGARDING ITS TRUE SOURCE

Cattlemen Are Eager to Acquire Government Lands For Grazing Territory—Success of Settlers In the Extreme Western Plains Region—Irrigation Advance Not So Marked.

One cannot travel far in the "short grass country" without getting some new ideas regarding the real source of the much discussed "land hunger," says the special correspondent of the New York Post, writing from Norton, Kan. The thousands of registrations in the Nebraska and South Dakota "rushes" have been less the result of an eagerness of actual settlers for homes than of cattlemen for grazing land. Then there is the spirit of speculation—the hope of getting a ten thousand dollar claim for nothing—which animates a large portion of the land seekers.

To understand the real land hunger one should travel overland in the open country that lies east of the mountains in Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota. Back thirty miles from the railway, on the high divides where the raising of crops is out of the question, one may see scores of little piles of earth or broken bits of sod wall. Then there are scattered bunches of trees, worn down by winds and harassed by prairie fires. Here and there is a great square cut out of the buffalo grass sod, where Russian thistles and sunflowers hold sway. Vagrant grass, called by the natives "goback," because it has gone back from the breaking up process that was given by the settlers years ago, is seen. All of these tell of efforts to make farms. Settlers have taken the land, tried to make homes, failed and quit. In their places have come the cattlemen, who occupy the sites of the old homes of settlers. The ranchmen go at the business with far more intelligence than did the farmers and settlers.

One ranch of northwest Kansas has 300,000 acres, of which probably not more than one-third is owned in clear title. All of the remainder is owned by the government or by eastern investors. Included in the land are about 400 quarter sections of 160 acres each held by tax titles, lands that have been neglected by the people who loaned money on real estate mortgages. The whole body of land, some of it fenced and some of it open plain, is used by the ranchman's herds and flocks as if it were his own. No one else wants it or cares what becomes of it. In Nebraska are other ranches managed in the same way, and the rush for the disposition of 640 acre tracts under the order for the recent opening in that state was largely of cowboys employed by ranchmen eager to obtain land for range. Hundreds of such entries are made, the cattlemen paying all the expenses and putting the cowboys on the places in sod houses to hold them for title. But it seldom wins, for the cowboy who will stay in one place five years in order to obtain a claim will take one for himself and not for an employer.

Settlers are doing well in the extreme western plains region, as they have learned how to produce the right kind of crops and how to secure a steady income. They refuse to be frozen out by the cattlemen, for they have cattle of their own and insist on their rights as citizens. They compel the cattlemen to take down fences from government lands and pasture their own herds where they please. This season they have had more rain than in years before, and they will produce good crops of barley, alfalfa, Kaffir corn and hay, with here and there wheat and corn. But their chief reliance is in stock, and the herds of sleek white faces that grow fat on the open range tell of their intelligent effort in this direction. Some of these settlers are taking land in the midst of great ranches and calling on the government to protect them, which it is doing generously. Others are buying out partially improved places. Then there are scattered through the west families that have lived there for fifteen years, the few who remained when the boom of the eighties collapsed.

What of the future? Is there an opportunity for the eastern investor who has a mortgage on some of this far western land to recoup himself or must he suffer permanent loss? It is certain that he need not in most cases lose everything. He will usually find, after a little investigation, that he is either in a position to appeal to settlers or to cattlemen. The latter are especially in the market for good lands and are willing to pay a reasonable price to add new range to their own under good title. Only recently a large section of range west of here was purchased by a local cattleman. He had been trying for months to get it. A few weeks ago a quiet old man went out into the midst of a big cattle ranch and found seven quarter sections lying along a creek. The ranchman had intended to buy them, but neglected it. The quiet old man was offered the land for $9,000 and paid it in cash—over $8 an acre. He is renting the land at a good income and will one of these days compel the ranchman to pay him a big profit on his investment. And this was within twenty-five miles of the Colorado line.

The whole short grass country will be divided into smaller ranches and larger farms. The combination of cattle raising and crop production demands it. The cattle industry is making strides that will compel a readjustment along these lines, and the owners of scattered quarter sections will reap the benefit. Those who own such properties should be sure that they are located beyond hope of profitable sale before sacrificing them.

Irrigation advancement is not so marked as many believe. The recent rains and floods have lessened the demand for artificial watering. Thousands of windmills are in operation and are increasing in number. These can do little more than water a garden. Here and there a creek may be dammed and its waters utilized, but this opportunity is infrequent. On the whole, the western plains region is settling down to stock raising and its attendant features, and it is what it is fitted for most completely.

DAVIS AS A POKER PLAYER.

Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Plays an Hour Every Night.

Should Henry G. Davis of Elkins, W. Va., be elected to the vice presidency and afterward succeed to the presidency the great American game of draw poker would of necessity become a regular institution in the White House, says a Washington special dispatch to the New York Herald. There is seldom an evening, except on Sundays, when Mr. Davis is in his home at Elkins that the regular poker game is omitted. An evening mail is received at Elkins about dinner time. There is an outgoing mail early the next morning. This makes it necessary for Mr. Davis to devote the early part of the evening to reading and answering his correspondence and deciding upon business propositions that may be submitted to him in the evening mail.

He gets through all of this by 10 o'clock, and at that hour he, the members of his family and guests who may be in the house assemble about a table in the upper hall. A deck of cards and a box of chips are brought out, and the game begins. It lasts until 11 o'clock, after which hour five jack pots are played.

White chips are worth a quarter and the reds and blues in proportion, and the amount of money that would change hands in an evening over that table would be large if real money was played for. As it is, everybody quits even. Mr. Davis has never staked a cent on a card game in his life, but plays with as much zest as if money were involved. He finds that this evening game takes his mind off his business and enables him to sleep soundly.

The other recreations of the Democratic vice presidential candidate are walking and riding horseback. At his home in Elkins and elsewhere, whenever it is possible, Mr. Davis takes a long horseback ride every afternoon.

GRAND ARMY SOUVENIR.

Model of Historic Saloon Will Be Seen at National Encampment.

A model has been completed by Schuyler post, No. 51, G. A. R., of Pennsylvania, located in Philadelphia which it is planned will be presented to Thomas G. Stevenson post, No. 26, of Roxbury, Mass., whose guests the Philadelphians will be during the coming thirty-eighth national encampment in Boston, says a dispatch from that city. The model is an exact reproduction of the old volunteer refreshment saloon which was located on Washington street wharf in Philadelphia during the civil war and was a popular rendezvous of United States troops mustered out of service on their return home. The model, which will be about four feet square, in company with the old cannon which was fired when the troops disembarked at the Philadelphia port at the close of the war, will be carried in the great parade in Boston and at the close of the encampment will be presented to the Roxbury post as a memento of the visit.

Few, if any, of the old soldiers who journeyed through the Quaker City on their return ever forget the old refreshment saloon. The latchstring was always on the outer wall, and the good cheer within was freely dispensed. There was no style. None was expected. The tables were long and made of plain spruce boards, the crockery was such that it would not easily break, but the solid, substantial food that was set before the soldier was a banquet fit for the gods compared to what he had been accustomed to in camp and on the march. This model will be one that will be cherished by the members of post No. 26 and their heirs and assignees as long as it holds together. Many incidents will be recalled when it goes through the streets on the day of the parade.

Giant Ocean Liner.

It is announced at Montreal that a new Cunard liner to ply between New York and Queenstown will be built at Newcastle-on-Tyne, says an Ottawa dispatch to the New York Tribune. It will be the largest vessel ever put in the water from any shipyard. It will take over two years to build, there being more work on it than on a first class battleship. It will have turbine engines and will cross the Atlantic in less than five days. The length will be 760 feet, breadth 87 feet, depth 60 feet, guaranteed speed twenty-five knots. It will accommodate 2,000 passengers.

Dogs With Souls.

Dr. Richard Hodgson of Boston, secretary of the Society For Psychological Research, in an interview the other day declared that dogs had souls as well as human beings and that the lower animals had mind pictures of things and events just as clearly as human beings, says the New York Tribune. "There is, however," he says "some doubt as to their power to communicate these pictures to human beings by telepathy. With Rider Haggard's dog, I think it was a case of clairvoyance in which his sublimal self witnessed the very accident to the dog."

WOMAN'S WORLD

MRS. W. P. FLEMING.

A Woman Who Discovers Stars and Does Other Scientific Work.

The only woman who has ever received an official appointment from the Harvard University corporation, is Mrs. Williamina P. Fleming, the astronomer. Beginning as a copyist for one of the observatory professors, she soon undertook the simpler computations and at once showed that she possessed the rare and peculiar mental faculties necessary for scientific research, says a writer in Modern Women. It was not long before her gifts in this direction gained recognition, and ultimately she was appointed curator of the famous astrophotographic library of the observatory, the only one of its kind in the world. Here, in the course of examining photographic plates, over 1,000,000 of which have come under her special observation, Mrs. Fleming has discovered a great number of variable stars and confirmed the discovery of several new ones. During the last fifteen years nine new stars have been discovered, and of these six were discovered by her. It is due to her effort that the number of known stars whose spectrum is of the third type has been increased from 1,000 to 3,000, while the number of the rare class of fifth type stars has been raised from sixteen to fifty-seven. In addition to various other celestial achievements she has the honor of being the first discoverer of the planetary nebulae by means of photography. Besides looking after all the routine work done by her assistants Mrs. Fleming helps to edit the annals of the observatory and finds time now and then to contribute articles to astronomical journals.

Childlike Innocence.

She presided at her husband's table, a marvel of prettiness and feminine charm. The men were indulging in vacation talk, and one told the usual story of an enormous aquatic denizen which he had only landed after hours of patient "playing," even then having sustained damage to his tackle.

"But," queried the attractive young hostess, with the most serious and wide eyed innocence, "when you were sure that you had the fish on the line why didn't you just pull him in right away? I should think that would be much easier that letting him race around so long in the water."

An outburst of laughter succeeded, of course. But very kind glances were thrown at the little woman as the fishermen explained to her the impracticability of her plan. All the women chimed in to show their superior knowledge, and thus she gained immense popularity on the spot.

Why do people puzzle so over the diminished marriage rate when the reason thereof is so plain? This type of woman—she who asks with the prettiest innocence all sorts of unthinking questions—is getting scarcer all the time, and yet she is the adored of masculine hearts the world over. Juliet was a woman like this, or there would never have been a Romeo.

In the meekest manner possible she achieves the sincerest flattery. It makes the average man feel so old and wise when he takes the maiden of his heart out boating and has to explain to her that rowing "front ways" is not usual, for the simple reason that it is harder to push the oars through the water than to pull them. He smiles at her question, of course, but tenderly, indulgently, with a pleasant warmth at the heart. Dear little girl! How she will follow him as her guide and bow to him as her superior in years to come! Perhaps.

Does this type of the feminine realize the effectiveness of childlike irresponsibility? Perhaps she does and is wiser in her generation than her sisters who pride themselves on being fully informed on all points. After all, her victories are not all over proud man. Children are always fond of her because they can surprise her with bits of information, and she says "Really?" with such a genuine accent as to delight their hearts.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Card of Identification.

Before starting out on a journey, be it long or short, a woman should always provide herself with a means of identification in case of accident. It is wise to fasten securely to the inside of one's coat or gown a card on which are plainly written one's own name and address, the name and address of the place one has come from and is going to. On the other side of the card have the name and address of some person to whom a message could be sent if necessary. This simple means of identification is within the reach of the poorest traveler and may save friends or relatives much expense and worry. Then the thought of being carried away to the hospital or morgue without the knowledge of friends should be sufficiently horrible to every woman to make her think up some means of avoiding such a calamity. Sensible women do not even go on a shopping trip without an identification card fastened securely to the inside of the bodice.

It is well also when traveling to paste to the lining of a purse, handbag, satchel and suit case a card with one's name and address. If any of these things get lost one stands a chance of recovering it and if any be stolen the thief may be moved to return it for a reward.—New York Tribune.

Study of Domestic Science.

Regarding domestic science as a profession, Anna Barrows, writing in the Chautauquan, says that the young woman of average ability and education who has taken two years of special training in the arts and sciences underlying the routine of daily life of a household, large or small, who does not expect a position made to suit her, but who is ready to cope with difficulties, will find the world waiting for her help in several directions. She may teach domestic science in public or private schools or lecture before women's clubs. She may direct the dietaries and feed large numbers of persons in hospitals and schools or send into other homes food prepared under her own roof. It is doubtful whether there are any occupations in the world which are so certain to be lasting as those that deal with our daily food.

Woman as a Worshiper.

Dr. Lyman Abbott says that today the tourist is shown in the cathedral at Durham, England, a cross set in the stone floor a comparatively little way up the nave from the entrance and is told that it was once the boundary line beyond which women worshipers must not pass. They were kept, as a sort of secondary class of humanity, at a distance from the chancel and the altar. Fashions in religious thought and observance change as in everything else. Then women were not believed to be high enough in the social scale to worship with their husbands, sons and fathers. Now they worship as proxies for the masculine portion of the community.—World's Work.

Dishcloths.

The dishcloth in many homes is a breeding place for microbes and contains more disease germs than almost anything else of the same size. Cheesecloth bags, in which salt and sugar come, make good dishcloths. It is a good plan to have two sets for constant use. They should be thoroughly washed every morning in hot water, to which has been added ammonia, soda or washing powder, then rinsed and hung in the air to dry. Use them on alternate days. Besides, it is well to rinse them each time after using and boil them once a week. If they acquire an odor, burn them.

Table Mat of Felt.

A mat for a table is made of white felt about eight inches square. At each corner are fastened three leaves of white felt, in contour like medium sized maple leaves. Each leaf is veined with brownish olive floss, and the three are fastened to the corners of the square by a small yellow satin bow. The leaves are put on the felt, one pointing out from the point of the square and one on each side of the leaf thus in place. This felt cover makes a very good lamp mat.

Bedrooms.

A bedroom need not resemble a hospital ward, but it should contain nothing that cannot be easily and immediately removed, beaten or washed, as the case may be. Curtains should not be banished, but they should be periodically removed and cleaned. Carpets are unnecessary, as rugs are so much more easily cleansed. The walls should not be covered with any woven material, but paper is perfectly permissible.

"I Want."

Woman is the real economic distributer. The millionaire manufacturer imagines that he himself runs his business. Oh, no. It is run by farmers' wives. When they do not care for yarn or calico, his looms stand idle for a year. The vast machinery of the world turns on woman's little word, "I want." Hence the education of women should include this factor, the desire to want the right things.

Dark Houses.

A dark house is almost always unhealthy, always an ill aired house. Want of light stops growth and promotes scrofula, rickets, consumption, etc., especially among children. People lose their health in a dark house, and if they get ill they cannot get well again in it.

The jealous woman demands her husband's love, and it's uphill business for him ever after. The tactful woman demands nothing and gets far more than the other.—Baltimore American.

Sponging woodwork with water in which a generous quantity of alum has been boiled is said to be an excellent method of keeping away obnoxious insects.

It is said lamp chimneys will last long if never touched with water. The spots on them can be removed with turpentine.

Plush goods if sponged with a little chloroform will look as clean and bright as when new.

Acting Is a Good Profession—For People of Ability

By LEO DIETRICHSTEIN, Playwright and Actor

IF we pay much attention to the wails in the theatrical journals, or if we scan the lists of those seeking employment in the dramatic agencies, we reach the supposition that the stage is overcrowded with players, and that, therefore, it is a bad profession for a young man or woman to endeavor to enter. As, however, I happen to be both a playwright and an actor, in my former capacity, when it comes to casting a new piece from my pen, and the manager and I get together with the idea of securing suitable members of the organization, I REALIZE HOW BARREN THE FIELD IN QUESTION IS. In other words, every man or woman that considers himself or herself a professional performer does not necessarily happen to be one. It is one thing to put on makeup and occupy a dressing room and quite another TO PROPERLY BODY FORTH INTO A CHARACTER the ideas of the author.

Accordingly I recommend to those speculating as to what arena of endeavor they had better adopt the art of acting AS A MEANS OF EXCELLENT REMUNERATION, always provided, of course, the newcomer is possessed of the elementary requirement—intelligence, spirit, an agreeable and carrying voice, and what is vaguely called "address."

The mere fact that few actors have business ability and spend all their money almost as soon as they receive it does not mean that it is impossible for a shrewd and conservative actor to live well within his income in perfect comfort. I may take occasion to say here that one reason so few stage folk have any money worth mentioning is that they do not realize this important fact—a salary of $100 a week, for instance, in the dramatic world IS NOT THE SAME as $100 a week received for services rendered, let us say, in the boot and shoe business.

For there is a wide difference between the usual theatrical season and the FIFTY-TWO WEEKS A YEAR salary that hired people receive in business. An average season lasts from thirty to thirty-five weeks, and even if it reaches forty-five weeks you will note that it gives the person in question seven idle weeks—nearly two months—and this, of course, makes a large hole in whatever fund may have accumulated during the active portion of the year.

FOR A YOUNG GIRL OF GOOD FAMILY, EXCELLENT EDUCATION AND ATTRACTIVE PERSONALITY WHO FINDS HERSELF PLACED IN THE POSITION OF EARNING HER OWN LIVELIHOOD WHERE ELSE COULD SHE FIND SO QUICK AND PROFITABLE A LINE OF OCCUPATION AS PLAYING A SMALL PART FOR POSSIBLY $25 A WEEK?

As a matter of fact it is the old story that there is ALWAYS ROOM AT THE TOP. The established stars are rapidly becoming older and then passing away altogether—those that were leading women only a short time ago are drifting into character parts—and any girl with grace of mind as well as of physique has splendid opportunities on the stage, PROVIDED SHE KEEPS HER HEAD. Then, again, how few men now appearing before the footlights can look like gentlemen as well as act like them.

ACTING AS A BUSINESS IS ALL RIGHT AND IS FERTILE IN SUCCESSFUL POSSIBILITIES, ONLY I RECOMMEND THAT MANY OF ITS DISCIPLES PUT MORE OF THEIR MONEY IN GOVERNMENT BONDS AND LESS OF IT IN CANVASBACK DUCKS.

Coeducation and Its Evils

By President G. STANLEY HALL of Clark University

BY RECENT STUDY IT SEEMS ESTABLISHED THAT HIGHER EDUCATION IN THIS COUNTRY REDUCES THE RATE BOTH OF MARRIAGE AND OFFSPRING, so that barely three-fourths of our male and only about one-half of our female graduates marry, and those who do so marry late and have few children.

In the family budding, boys and girls draw apart. To run with those of the other sex is condemned by sentiment. How the higher school interferes with these laws of nature recent studies show, in which A LARGE PERCENTAGE OF GIRLS ACTUALLY WISH THEY WERE BOYS. THEIR IDEALS GROW MASCULINE, AND WE SEEM SLOWLY TO BE DEVELOPING SEX WITHOUT A FEMALE CHARACTER.

Boys often grow unchivalric and girls careless in conduct, manner and attire. THUS ROMANCE THAT HAS ALWAYS GILDED THIS RELATION DULLS DOWN INTO COMMONPLACE. Where the presence of good girls stimulates the thought of wedlock before its time in young men, plans for bread winning are involved. If he marries a classmate a year or two after graduation, happy as those unions often are, he is often led to teaching or other occupations that involve a compromise with his ideals and perhaps a change of plan or profession.

The Strong Points Of the American

By General WILLIAM BOOTH, Head of the Salvation Army

I BELIEVE IN THE POSSIBILITY OF AN AMERICAN, NOT ONLY IN HIS SCIENTIFIC AND COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISES, BUT IN HIS ABILITY TO SECURE GREATER CONQUESTS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD, HIS INVENTIVENESS, HIS FREEDOM FROM SHACKLES AND CONVENTIONALISM AND HIS READINESS TO ADAPT NEW METHODS WHERE THEY ARE LIKELY TO MORE EFFICIENTLY AND QUICKLY REALIZE HIS AIMS.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased the sales of his Indian lands from $571,000 to $2,393,000 yearly. Still more homes for his family.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The Marlboro tax rate is higher than Quincy, but the tax-payers are pleased because of a reduction of $1 to $18.60.

Brookline's increase in assessed valuation this year was the smallest for ten years. There was a loss in personal property of $869,500. The tax rate is fifty cents higher.

Brockton has a lower tax rate, but still pretty high. It is $19.70 this year, against $21.80 last year. But North Attleboro takes the prize; its tax rate is $24 per $1000.

Perhaps the Y. M. C. A. will be able to secure the presence of Gov. Bates before the first of September for the corner stone laying. Rapid progress is being made on the foundation wall, and an early date could be selected.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Advertisin an soft Sope is sum times confused in the minds of sum people. In my bissiness I mostly notised I cud sell more advertisin when I had Somethin to Sell. Fur sum years I tride appeeling to peeple that had muney on the grounds that I needed the muney Myself. There okashunal stonyness at las give me paws, as they say in Bostin. Now when I sell advertisin I mostly go out with sumthing to Sell. If I need the muney I don't let on. I give the other feller a Guess at Thatt.—Uncle David in "Field and Stream" for August.

☞The most immediate of all questions is whether there is any protection obtainable by any method or means for the bottom of battleships against torpedoes. It is widely believed, for example, that by devoting less weight to superstructure and guns, and more to strengthening the framing and bottom plates, a hull can be made which will resist such attacks. This would probably involve the elimination of the intermediate battery and the restriction of battleship guns to a few of the largest caliber,—a result not impracticable in view of the great celerity we have recently attained in working these huge cannon. It also would probably require the giving up of some speed, as well as of armored protection at the ends of the ship. This, at least, is one possibility merely by way of suggestion. Is it not time we endeavored to think of ways of defending battleships before proceeding to the building, say, of 12,000-ton vessels at a cost of eight millions each, easily destructible by a few dollars' worth of guncotton?—Park Benjamin, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for July.

☞The question whether or not Theodore Roosevelt should be nominated for the Presidency had been under consideration within the organization of the Republican party ever since the death of President McKinley. Gradually, but inevitably, the opposition to him had diminished, until there remained not a single man to state openly at the party's convention that he was for any other candidate. Thus President Roosevelt was nominated with a complete unanimity at Chicago as President McKinley had been four years before at Philidelphia. Furthermore, there was no difficulty at all about agreeing upon a Republican platform at Chicago, and the selection of Senator Fairbanks for the second place on the ticket was accomplished with the utmost ease and dispatch. The results, as a whole, were eminently satisfactory to the entire Republican party, and the issues, as the Republicans had to present them, were so little dubious or obscure that they would have been prepared to meet their opponents at the polls on any day, however early. The campaign will have to be fought out alertly, however, and the Republicans will find that their unity and self-satisfaction will not alone win the victory in November.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for August.

BOWL CHRISTENED.

Granite City Club Visit Mr. James H. Penniman.

About fifty of the members of the Granite City club made a friendly call last evening upon James H. Penniman at his new home on Hancock street.

The party left the club rooms about 8 o'clock, and took a special car which landed them at his door. Mr. Penniman had prepared to spend the evening at home, and the first intimation he had that there was anything out of the ordinary doing, was when he was aroused by the barking of his dog.

Going to the door to see what the trouble was, he was confronted by President Jones and the other members who simply announced they had come to make a call.

Several of the members had peculiar looking articles in their hands, but when put together they formed a very handsome cut glass punch bowl and stand. There was no presentation speech, but "Jim" knew it was for him, and the smile that spread over his good natured face told how well he was pleased. The bowl was duly christened.

The boys were invited to make themselves at home, and the next few hours were pleasantly passed with cards. Shortly before midnight the boys left for home telling Jim as they departed to make good use of the bowl.

Templars' Pilgrimage.

At least five Quincy people will participate in the Knights Templar pilgrimage to the Pacific coast, which will include visits to the Yellowstone park, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Colorado Springs, the World's Fair at St. Louis, and other points of interest. Ex-Councilman Joseph C. Morse and wife will accompany De Molay commandery, Horace E. Spear will go with Boston commandery, Arthur W. Stetson will travel with Hugh de Payens commandery, and Miss C. L. Bliss will be a guest of Holy Sepulchre commandery of Rhode Island. They will start about Aug. 17, 19 and 23, and be gone until October. The trip has been so planned that they will be at the World's Fair at St. Louis on "Massachusetts day," Saturday, Sept. 17, when Gov. Bates and other representatives of the State will be present.

JAPAN'S COVETED LAND

One Great Object Is to Regain Island of Sakhalin.

ITS SEIZURE EVER A SORE SPOT.

Professor Watanabe of Tokyo University Tells of the Island's Value to Japanese—People's Will, He Says, Demanded War With Russia. Chinese Sympathy With Japan.

Professor Y. Watanabe of the University of Tokyo, who recently spent a few days in Boston studying the schools of mining and metallurgy in the Institute of Technology and Harvard university, is professor of mining and metallurgy in the great Japanese university and has charge of the Japanese mining exhibit at the St. Louis fair, says the Boston Globe. He is making a tour at the present time of the principal colleges and educational institutions in the eastern states in which mining and metallurgy are taught.

When sought at the Brunswick hotel by a Boston Globe reporter, Professor Watanabe spoke very entertainingly of the present war between Japan and Russia, and said it should be clearly understood that this war was not a governmental affair. It is a war of the whole people of Japan against the encroachments of Russia. It is a national war and one which the people demanded. He left Japan in March, when the excitement was at fever heat, and then the people were ready to sacrifice everything to carry on the war.

"But," said Professor Watanabe, "the war has not disturbed the business of Japan very much. Everything is going on very much as before the war, though I don't believe everything is going on in Russia as smoothly as before the war."

Professor Watanabe believes that if Japan is successful one of the first things she will demand from Russia is the cession of the island of Saghalien (also spelled Sakhalin), which Russia practically seized from Japan about thirty years ago. This has always been a sore spot with the Japanese, Professor Watanabe says, and a political party has been in existence for some time in Japan dedicated to the recovery of this island, which lies very close to the Siberian province of Amur, with the gulf of Tartary on the east-southeast and the sea of Okhotsk on the north-northwest. It has an area of 24,560 square miles and a population of 340,000. This island and the waters that surround it bear somewhat the same relation to Asia that Newfoundland does to America, for here are the great fishing grounds of the north Pacific and as fish is a staple article of diet in Japan the island's value can very easily be seen. The Japanese have had the right to fish on the coasts of Sakhalin ever since it was ceded, but they want the island back as a part of their empire. It is only separated from the island of Yesso by a narrow body of water known as La Perouse strait.

Last year the quantity of fish taken by the Japanese from these waters was 113,639 koku, valued at 1,192,404 yen, and the quantity taken by Russians amounted to 117,133 koku, valued at 1,679,607 yen. The Japanese have now ninety-nine fishing stations along the coast, against seventy-eight Russian stations. There are thirty Japanese fishing companies operating in the waters, against twenty-two Russian. So it can readily be seen that even now the Japanese have more than a sentimental interest in the island.

Professor Watanabe says there is little doubt that Chinese sympathy is with Japan in this war. He says that within the past few years China and Japan have been coming closer and closer in their sympathies. China has seen through the error of her exclusiveness and she has invited Japan to send teachers to her. This Japan has done, and at the present time there are probably 1,000 Japanese teachers in China. These teachers are in all parts of the empire. Several of the professors in the University of Tokyo have gone to Peking during the past year to teach. Most of the teachers are graduates of the universities of Tokyo and Kioto. These teachers get along much better in China than the teachers from any other nation, because there is such a similarity in the languages of both nations.

Fundamentally the languages are the same, and what is known as the Chinese classical language is very similar to the Japanese, but modern Chinese writing is very unlike Japanese writing. The significance of this teaching by the Japanese becomes more and more apparent every day, and it does not bode well for the future of any of the European nations in China. Japan will be the dominant influence in Peking if she drives the Muscovite out of Manchuria.

Diamond Ring In Bird's Nest.

Arthur B. Archibold, a Jersey City lawyer, recently recovered a diamond ring valued at $175, which he had lost in an unusual place, says the New York Times. "The ring, which was rather worn," he said, "slipped from my finger several weeks ago while I was feeding a couple of pet Belgian hares, which I keep in a coop in the yard. The other day I noticed a pair of sparrows, which had their nest beside a tin leader running down the side of the house, feeding in the coop. Hanging over the side of the nest was some excelsior that I knew came from the coops. Procuring a ladder I decided to investigate the inside of the nest. I found three young sparrows and the ring."

THE VERY THIN WOMAN.

Rules Which She Must Follow In Order to Gain Flesh.

The very thin woman must follow an entirely different regime from that ordinarily pursued if she expects to put flesh on her bones. If she is inclined to worry she should try not to be so intense in unimportant matters—she should shut her eyes, in a sense, to everything she can. The troubles which never happen wear out the nerves and destroy the health more completely than important events. Read only pleasant books and talk as much as possible to cheerful, jolly people who are too light hearted to relate harrowing tales to enlist your sympathy. Hurry is a twin brother to worry, so try to take life as leisurely as you may. Diet is of paramount importance in growing flesh, and, while overfeeding must not be confused with a liberal diet, the thin woman must eat plenty of only such foods as will yield substantial results. Sweet milk and cream, eggs, starchy and sweet vegetables and fruits, beef, mutton and fish will certainly increase her weight, unless she has some chronic trouble. Sleep is an important factor in gaining flesh. Get ten hours of regular sleep each night in a room well ventilated and a half hour nap during the day if you can. If inclined to be restless during the night eat a light lunch before retiring. A glass or two of warm milk and a slice of thickly buttered brown bread will be sufficient. Coffee and sweets should never form a part of such a repast.

GIRLS WHO FLIRT.

The Troubles They Are Sure to Bring Upon Themselves.

Girls should bear in mind the fact that if they wish to win the respect of men they must behave in a modest, dignified manner. Why should they respect her if she has no self respect? They will seek her society, and she will appear to have lots of attention, but behind her back they will laugh at her.

Men can tell at once the girl whom they can treat in an offhand way; they are not very particular when with her as to their language or conversation, says the Philadelphia Bulletin. They are equally quick to recognize the girl whom they know will allow no freedom; they treat her with a chivalrous respect such as they never show the other girls.

When it comes to choosing a wife men do not often look for her among the girls whom they have flirted with. They want a girl whose bloom has not been rubbed off by constant flirtations with other men, they want a girl who is fresh and sweet, and they do not want to feel that she has been just as sweet to numerous other men as she is to them.

You needn't be cold and stand off in your manner to men. Be as cordial and sweet as you can—indifference never makes friends—but don't, I pray you, spoil your girlish charm by letting any man feel that he can treat you with the slightest familiarity.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

The oftener soup is strained the clearer it becomes. An old napkin serves very well for a strainer.

When stewing prunes, add one or two spoonfuls of red currant jelly to the water in which the prunes are stewed.

A tablespoonful of sugar added to the water for basting roast beef will give a rich brown color as well as fine flavor.

An innovation for the table is boiled lettuce. Boil the lettuce until tender, serve the whole head and dress with butter, pepper and salt.

To prevent tomato soup from curdling add the tomato before the milk is put in, and remember to strain the tomato juice before turning it over the flower and butter.

Some very admirable cooks greatly simplify cake making by putting all the ingredients, even the eggs, together and making one long and vigorous beating do for the whole.

Egg Tonic.

A raw egg is an excellent tonic and is very strengthening. If prepared in the following way it is really a delicious drink: Put the yolk of an egg into a dish with a teaspoonful of white sugar and a teaspoonful of orange or lemon juice and beat lightly together with a fork. Put the white on a plate and add a pinch of salt. Then with a broad bladed knife beat it to a stiff froth. Now, as lightly as possible, mix all together in the dish, then as lightly transfer it to a clean tumbler, which it will nearly fill if properly made. It must not stand in a warm place, as it soon becomes liquid and loses its snowy look. Any fruit juice may be used in place of orange or lemon.

To Extract a Splinter.

A bit of home surgery, stated to have been practiced when a splinter is driven into a child's hand particularly deep, is its extraction by steam. A bottle with a sufficiently wide mouth is filled two-thirds with very hot water, and the mouth of the bottle is placed under the injured spot. The suction draws the flesh down when a little pressure is used, and the steam in a moment or two extracts inflammation and splinter together. This is very efficacious when the offending substance has been in for several hours, long enough to have started some of its evil consequences.

Creamed Dishes.

It may take a very few more minutes in the preparation, but the effect is sufficiently attractive to be worth the effort if escaloped codfish is cooked in individual baking dishes having buttered bread crumbs on top. In fact, all creamed dishes are attractive if served in ramikins.

CITY BREVITIES.

John B. Hart, time keeper at the Fore River plant, is at Franklin, N. H.

The West Quincys are at Dorchester today, but are hardly a match for the Dorchesters this year.

An important meeting of St. Francis court of Foresters will be held next Thursday evening.

The annual meeting of the Granite Manufacturers Association will be held next Thursday evening.

Miss Clara B. Cook of Newtonville will be one of the assistants of J. O. Hall, Jr., at the Millbury High school.

Avery L. Bennett of Arlington street is tutoring at a boys' summer camp at North Bridgton, on Lake Sebago, Maine.

Rev. Frank Wright Pratt of Wollaston will preach at Naples, Maine, during the month of August, and also give a course of stereopticon lectures there.

Officers Goodhue, Larkin, Milford and Kelliher leave tonight on their annual vacations. Their beats will be covered by Officers Stewart, Donovan, Reiley and Thorne.

The committee in charge of the Wollaston branch of the Mutual Flower Helpers' Mission will meet at the Wollaston Unitarian vestry every Monday night, between the hours of seven and eight. Contributions of flowers are urgently solicited.

POLITICAL DATES.

Only About Three Months to the Presidential Election.

The following dates have been selected from a calendar issued by the Republican State convention, and in most cases are applicable to voters of all parties. Quincy has adopted the joint caucus act, and there will be several changes this year.

REGISTRATION.

"Registrars shall hold such sessions as the town by by-law or the city by ordinance shall prescribe."

Oct. 19—"In every city registrars shall hold a continuous session from 12 M. till 10 o'clock, when registration shall cease."

Oct. 29 -In every town a like continuous session shall be held.

ELECTION OFFICERS.

Aug. 15—Last day for appointing election officers in towns divided into voting precincts.

Aug. 31—Last day for appointing election officers in every city.

CAUCUSES.

All caucuses for the choice of delegates to convention and the nomination of candidates to be voted for at the state election must be held as follows:

MT. WASHINGTON.

Braintree Young Man Makes the Ascent from Jackson.

Deeming that perhaps a short account of a climb up Mount Washington by one of their fellow townsmen might be of interest to some of your readers, I will take the liberty of briefly relating the same. On the other hand should this contribution find its way to the editorial waste basket I should not feel offended, for I sometimes think that the general public would be benefited if more of the reading matter was disposed of in this manner.

About eight o'clock one bright and sunny morning five young men left the beautiful village of Jackson with the intention of climbing Mount Washington. We had resolved to make the journey on foot, and each carried a blanket, sweater and food for two days, thrown over the shoulder. It is a peculiar fact that when weighted down the miles seem longer, the roads dustier and the beams of the sun hotter than usual.

After a few hours tramping we arrived at the famous Glen Ellis Falls, and we were well rewarded both by the beauty of the falls and also by the coolness of the water. One traveller whom we met there said, that he considered it one of the most beautiful in the world, and spoke from a wide and varied experience having seen all the principal ones. The falls although small by comparison are yet well worth a trip.

One mile farther on brought us to the celebrated Crystal Cascade, where the water comes rushing over a mass of granite 80 feet high. We experienced some difficulty in finding these falls as the path ended abruptly and it was only by crossing the river and hunting for the path that we succeeded in locating it.

Following this trail for two hours up the mountain side, after a hot and tiresome climb we arrived at the famous Hermit's Lake Camp, which was erected by the Appalachain club, and where we decided to spend the night. Then bright and early the next morning climb to the summit in time to see the sun rise. After satisfying the inner man, and taking a few pictures we dispersed to gather wood for the night fire.

Although we did not fear that wild animals would intrude, yet the boys believed it safer to have a fire and by a vote of four to one it was decided to divide the night into watches in true nautical style. The one minority voter refused to watch and rolled himself up in his blanket and snoozed comfortably all night. Modesty forbids me to disclose the identity of the sleeper. His wisdom however will be apparent when it is known that the others claimed to have slept from one to two hours. The night passed without alarm save for one visitor whose presence aroused some discussion as to whether it could be a skunk or a bear. The watchers claimed the darkness to great to distinguish its identity.

At three o'clock the man on watch in a voice that would have awakened the "Seven Sleepers" summoned all hands. Breakfast was served during which we were entertained by a thunder shower. At four o'clock we started for the summit, but before we had proceeded far, we were wet to the skin and as we climbed upward were greeted by a cold wind that chilled us to the bone and made us forget that a few hours before we were sweltering under the hot rays of the sun. It seemed as though we had climbed from a warm zone into a cold one. Soon the clouds completely enveloped us and save for the white paint on the stones which served as a guide we were shut in entirely. The climb in some places, almost straight up seemed exciting enough, but being wet to the skin we did not relish the cold wind which blew every minute. Still the best of spirits prevailed, and in the most difficult places jokes and merry words were only heard. We climbed at intervals until all of us were willing to rest and we sat down on the cold stones for a brief halt, but realizing that danger lurked about us in the cool wind we pushed as rapidly as possible to the top and it is needless to say that these last two miles were the longest that it had been our fate to travel. After about two hours of climbing in the clouds we saw looming up just ahead of us a building, and we immediately gave three cheers but it proved to be only a barn, and the top seemed as far as ever.

After resting in the barn for a half hour we decided to push on and to our great surprise soon discovered wooden steps which led to the Summit House where we quickly forgot the apparent hardships of our climb. We noticed just before our arrival at the top the stone erected to the memory of Lizzie Bourne who perished in a storm.

We were greeted and entertained by the genial and hospitable editor of "Among the Clouds" who mistook us for Harvard students. He encouraged us however by saying that he had seen travellers who looked worse than we did. After spending three hours on the summit we began our descent and return journey.

One incident which illustrates the fraternity and good fellowship of those enjoying the beauties of nature was brought forcibly to my notice. When about one mile from the camp I discovered that I had left my spectacles and well knowing the difficulty of retracing my steps, and not desiring to inconvenience my companions I said nothing about it. On our return down the mountain I met two men journeying on bicycles, and on making inquires found that they intended to climb Mount Washington and spend the night at the camp, and describing the place where I had left the glasses asked them to forward them to my address. Some four days afterward I was agreeably surprised to receive them, as well as a note from a prominent minister in Cambridge. Our homeward trip was characterized by no noteworthy incidents save a general fatigue for in two days we had trampled forty miles and climbed New England's greatest peak bringing with us pleasant memories that will make our trip one not soon to be forgotten.

BRAINTREE.

Frank H. Walker has resigned his presidency and membership in the Braintree club because he now lives in East Milton. He has been a very popular and active member which causes the members to miss him decidedly. Vice President, Warren B. Keith, was promoted to the Presidency and Dr. B. C. Shanks made vice president.

Harry Snow and Charles Cummings have returned from Billington Sea where they spent two very pleasant weeks in camp. The tent they occupied is now being used by Rodger Lakin and Herbert Parker for camping purposes.

Last Saturday, Mr. H. Willie Simonds while driving around Great Pond with his daughter Ora and Miss Anna Mae Thayer encountered a four and one half foot rattle-snake in the street. Mr. Simonds left his carriage and after one or two sharp strokes with a large stick captured the serpent. It was on exhibition and there were many who had never seen so large a rattlesnake. It had thirteen rattles.

Thursday, at 2 o'clock the funeral of the late George W. Bird was held at his home in Mayflower Park, Rev. A. E. Legg officiated. Among those of his numerous friends who contributed beautiful floral tributes were Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. George Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Dyer and family, Sanford Whiting, Employees of the Vinson & Howard Co., Fred White and Mr. and Mrs. F. Jacobs and son.

The tax rate is lower this year. Thanks to the voters who assembled at the March meetings and voted prudently on the appropriations. A drop of 90 cents; This year it is $19.60.

A cablegram was received from Harold Wellington, England, this week announcing his safe arrival at Liverpool.

Charles G. Sheppard for a number of years secretary and treasurer of the South Shore cooperative bank is to resign on account of pressure of other business.

Superintendent F. M. Drown has placed letter boxes at the corner of Quincy avenue and Allen street and at the foot of Prescotts Lane on Commercial street.

Rev. E. C. Stover will preach next Sunday Aug. 7th at the Central Baptist church, Chicopee Mass. Mr. Stover was pastor there for four years and many of his former parishioners wish to hear him preach once more. Rev. R. B. Moody, formerly pastor of the old Baptist church formerly located on the present site of the Methodist church of South Braintree resigned last Sunday July 31. the pastorate of the "Franklin Baptist church," and will retire from the ministry, making his home in Franklin, where he owns property. Mr. Stover was formerly pastor of the Franklin church.

The union services under Mr. Stover as pastor closed last Sunday. Beginning with next Sunday, August 7th, Rev. A. E. Legg will conduct the services, the Baptists and Methodists again uniting as during the past month. Sunday morning Mr. Legg will preach at the Methodist church, and in the evening at the Baptist church.

Master Standish Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Young of Myrtle street, celebrated his sixth birthday last Monday afternoon, Aug. 1st, by entertaining a party of little playmates. Games and kindergarten songs were enjoyed upon the lawn.

Last Monday evening was a gala night with Monatiquot lodge, Knights of Pythias. Procter's ice cream was served. Henry B. Vinton and suite installed the following officers that were not installed last week. I. N. Holbrook, M. of F.; Martin A. Minchin, M. of E.; A. H. Keith, I. G.

Rev. C. P. Osborn of Boston Seaman's Friend society will occupy the South Church pulpit tomorrow and will speak of the work done for seaman by that society and of the work done for the people by the seamen. A collection will be taken for the society. The church will be closed the remaining Sundays in August.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Spinney of Washington street are entertaining their neice Miss Edna Margeson of Hyde Park.

Miss Agnes Drinkwater returned Tuesday from a month's visit with relatives in Rockland.

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by which strengthens the whole digestive system

IN POLITICS ONCE MORE.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor William F. Sheehan Returns to Old Field.

The name of William F. Sheehan has appeared frequently in the past few weeks in connection with the nomination of Judge Alton B. Parker for president and the coming national canvass of the Democracy. For a half dozen years few names appeared more often in public print than that of Mr. Sheehan. As assemblyman, speaker of the assembly, lieutenant governor and an aggressive leader of his party in the state of New York, Mr. Sheehan in those days was constantly in the public eye, and his name was daily on the tip of the tongue or the pen. Then he dropped out of sight. He retired from politics—or intended to do so—and his old haunts knew him no more. The political world came gradually almost to forget his existence.

The resurrection of the former lieutenant governor of New York, in a political sense, came about through changed political conditions and the fact that he was a close friend of Judge Parker. As the sage of Esopus began to loom large on the political horizon Mr. Sheehan began to be heard about again. On his retirement from the lieutenant governorship in 1895 he removed from Buffalo to New York and entered upon the practice of his profession as a lawyer there, announcing that he was "out of politics." But politics is a game whose fascinations, once known, are hard ever after to resist. Mr. Sheehan made money in the practice of law, became attorney for large corporations and identified himself with leading metropolitan financiers, including August Belmont. Though inactive during Mr. Bryan's leadership he now finds himself once more in sympathy with his party, and as Judge Parker reposes much confidence in his political judgment he is likely to be consulted a good deal in regard to the direction of the canvass.

Mr. Sheehan was born forty-five years ago in Buffalo and as a boy sold papers for a living. He attended the public schools and St. Joseph's college, read law, was admitted to the bar at twenty-two and two years later was elected to the assembly of the state. In 1891 he was made speaker of the assembly and a year later became lieutenant governor, serving until the close of his term in 1895. Mr. Sheehan is a neighbor of Judge Parker, occupying a house at Esopus not far from Rosemount.

MISS PAULINE MORTON.

The Charming Daughter of the Secretary of the Navy.

It is understood that the gallant men who wear the blue uniform of the United States navy are especially pleased at the appointment of Mr. Paul Morton of Chicago as head of that department in the cabinet. One reason for this is the fact that the new secretary has a handsome wife and two charming daughters. The late head of the department, Mr. Moody, now attorney general, is not blessed in this way, and, though otherwise popular, this fact was against him, for the brave boys of our navy love to have opportunities of showing their chivalry toward the fair sex. Secretary Morton's family is expected to be an important social factor in Washington. His eldest daughter is married, but Miss Pauline Morton, a debutante of eighteen, has a career of "making love and breaking hearts" before her. She is likely to be the belle of many Annapolis balls. She graduated a short time ago from a fashionable school in New York.

MISS PAULINE MORTON.

A TRUTHFUL INDIAN.

He Didn't Get Tired Like the Rest, For a Very Good Reason.

Clement Scott, the English dramatic critic, took a profound interest in the American Indian. He had at his tongue's tip a hundred incidents wherewith to illustrate odd phases of the Indian's character.

"There was a farmer in the west who was hard put to it for help upon his farm. Indians were plentiful in the neighborhood, but they were poor workmen. Always tired, they would put down the hoe or rake as soon as the master's back was turned, and, selecting a cool spot, they would lie down on the grass and sleep the day away.

"But one morning a very tall, robust Indian asked the farmer to give him work.

"'No,' said the white man, 'you will get tired. You Indians are always getting tired.'

"'Oh, no,' said the other. 'This Injun never get tired. This Injun not like the rest.'

"'Well, I'll try you," said the farmer, and he engaged the man. He put him to work in a wheatfield; then he went away for an hour or two. When he returned he found the Indian asleep under a tree.

"'Here, wake up here,' he cried. 'You told me you never got tired.'

"'Ugh,' said the other, yawning, 'this Injun don't. But if he not lie down often he would get tired just the same as the rest.'"

A THRILLING SHOT.

An Incident In a German Performance of "William Tell."

When a performance of the drama "William Tell" was given at a certain German theater it was announced that the stage effects in the play were extremely fine and that the scene where Tell's splendid marksmanship was made apparent would astonish every one. The audience waited as patiently as they could until that scene and were certainly astonished.

The scene arrived where Tell was to shoot the apple from his devoted son's head, and the apple and Tell's crossbow were connected by an invisible wire, along which the arrow was to speed to the target.

At the proper cue the arrow did speed halfway toward the apple, and there stuck, to all appearance in midair. In vain did the doughty Tell shake his bow to carry the arrow to its mark. The son of Tell looked very frightened and didn't know what was happening.

The apple, firmly fixed on his youthful cranium, was bobbing about, the audience was laughing, and the laugh burst into a roar when one of Gessler's guards took in the situation and, coming forward from his position at the side of young Tell, calmly gave the arrow a smart rap with his spear, when it sped on its way and buried itself in the apple on the boy's head.

Wisdom of the Cat.

We may like cats or we may not like cats, but we must all confess that the cat is our superior. He uses us, in his eyes we exist for his delectation, we provide warmth and milk, we are a hearth rug to be jumped on and sat on, a curry comb to titillate him. In this aspect the cat is vastly superior to the dog, which is faithful to those who maltreat him, while a cat's fidelity takes the form of gracious adherence to those who serve him. He has proof of his philosophy. We knew an old lady, lodging in the suburbs, who spreads bread on the lawn every morning for the sparrows. Every morning, as the sparrows ate, the kind old lady's cat, ready behind the box bush, took his toll. How could he doubt that his mistress, his servant, was at the normal task of doing him service?—Saturday Review.

A Hint From the Baron.

Upon a client complaining to Baron Rothschild that he had lent 10,000 francs to a person who had gone off to Constantinople without leaving any acknowledgment of the debt the baron said:

"Well, write to him and tell him to send you the 50,000 francs he owes you."

"But he only owes me 10,000," objected the other.

"Precisely," rejoined the baron, "and he will write and tell you so, and thus you will get his acknowledgment of it."

Picture Books For Foreigners.

Picture books for the benefit of travelers are kept in the Paris police stations. It frequently occurs that foreigners lose things which they are unable to describe, because of unfamiliarity with the French language. The picture books contain representations of various articles, and the inquirer has only to turn the leaves and point out the illustration which most resembles the property he has lost.

Murderer of Henry Osborne Satisfied With His Crime

DELIBERATELY PLANNED

Intended to Kill Former Employer as He Slept Because He "Had It In For Him"--Excited Crowd Talked of Lynching

Hartford, Aug. 6.—Henry Osborne, a former police commissioner and one of the leading business men of this city, was murdered by his former body servant, Joseph Watson. The negro was found last evening in hiding under a bed in the basement of the Osborne home, after a close search for him had been made in all sections of the city.

Outside the house at the time the murderer was found were gathered fully 1000 persons, and as Watson, heavily manacled, was conducted down the steps to the police patrol wagon, the air resounded with cries of "kill him," "lynch him" from the crowd which surged in towards the officers as if it desired to take the prisoner.

As the wagon started towards the police station the crowd swarmed after it, a wildly demonstrative mass of humanity, presenting a spectacle the like of which has never been seen here before and has hardly been duplicated under like circumstances in New England.

At the police station, which is located at the junction of three streets, the scene was even more striking, for people almost fought among themselves to get a glimpse of Watson, and it was only by the greatest effort on the part of many officers that the crowd was kept from forcing its way into the guard room itself.

Watson is 18 years of age and is very unprepossessing in appearance. He did not quail even when face to face with the crowd which seemed so anxious to avenge the murder. When brought into the police station he was asked several questions and without hesitancy answered them. He said he killed Osborne. "I had it in for him, and I killed him," said Watson. "I am not afraid to die; and I am satisfied now that I killed him." He then described in detail the killing.

Mr. Osborne was deliberately killed by Watson out of revenge for being discharged as valet on July 15. He went to the Osborne house to commit the murder. Mr. Osborne's family was at their summer cottage at Crescent beach, near New London, but Mr. Osborne slept at home each nigght. Watson says that he got into the house by a key Thursday night and went to bed in the basement. Mr. Osborne was abed at the time.

Watson intended to commit the deed early, but he slept late and so was unable to get into the up-stairs bedroom while its occupant was asleep. As Watson went up stairs he heard Osborne stirring about and met him at the bathroom door, firing one shot. Mr. Osborne ran into his bedroom, leaving a trail of blood on the floor. The negro followed and twice more shot at Osborne, both bullets taking effect. The wounded man must have undergone terrible mental agony, as powder marks on his face and body indicate that the negro stood right over him as he fired the second and third shots. It was at this point that the first inkling of the tragedy reached the neighbors, for with the pistol shots were heard the words "Save me."

The sound of the shots and the dying words of the victim were heard by several persons on the street, and someone ran for the police, who rushed to the house and forced an entrance. Mr. Osborne was found stretched full length on the floor of the hall on the second story, a pool of blood being at his side. He was faint, but managed to say to the officer that Joe, the negro, had shot him and that there was no cause for it. Dr. King soon arrived and he ordered the removal of the wounded man to the hospital, but Osborne died just after reaching that institution.

The police had something in their favor in knowing the man who committed the crime and immediately the surrounding towns were notified to be on the watch for him. Although a search of the house had been made, they failed to locate the murderer and several times went through the room where Watson was hiding. Watson says that he was about to give himself up, fearing that the police would surely find him, but as they finally left the Osborne home and as the afternoon wore on he had hopes of making his escape when it became dark. The police finally decided to make another search of the house. When found Watson showed no fight and gave himself up.

Henry Osborne has been prominent in social and municipal life. He is survived by a widow, a son and a daughter, the son being employed in the office of the Dunham Hosiery company, of which his father was secretary.

Suicide of a Historian

Across the Pond For Ten Dollars

London, Aug. 6.—The White Star line has reduced its steerage rates to $10 by all steamers. It is expected that the Cunard line will make a similar reduction.

Balcom and Dunn Arraigned

Westboro, Mass., Aug. 6.—Edgar J. Balcom and William A. Dunn, conductor and motorman of the east-bound car in the fatal trolley accident on the Boston and Worcester line, were arraigned here on the charge of manslaughter before Judge Fowler and bound over in $2000 bonds for a hearing next Wednesday. Both secured bail.

Theft of Valuable Gems

Center Harbor, N. H., Aug. 6.—John D. Bates of Boston, a summer resident here, was robbed of more than $5500 worth of diamonds. It is believed to have been the work of professional burglars. The gems were kept in a chamois bag, enclosed in an envelope, and secreted in the wardrobe of their owner.

Yacht Races Not Timed

Newport, R. I., Aug. 6.—The end of the Philadelphia-Corinthian Yacht club cruise came with the arrival of the yachts here from New London. Out of 27 yachts starting with the fleet, 16 finished. No time was announced in any of the races.

Taylor's Worth Appreciated

Washington, Aug. 6.—The general board of the navy and the officers on duty at the navay war college at Newport have adopted resolutions testifying to the worth of the late Rear Admiral Taylor, chief of the bureau of navigation. Taylor was the originator and a member of the general board and served as president of the naval war college.

Digby's Respect For the Dead

Digby, N. S., Aug. 6.—Great sorrow is expressed here over the boating accident at Bear river. Flags were half-masted on the public buildings and principal business houses of the town as a mark of respect to the dead. The bodies of all the victims, with the exception of that of Captain Hersey, were sent to Woonsocket, R. I., today for burial.

Presbyterians Were Mistaken

Washington, Aug. 6.—A thorough investigation by the interior department of the complaint recently made to the president by a delegation from the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions that the Pima Indians of California are on the verge of starvation, reveals the fact that the Indians, on the contrary, are amply provided for.

How Earl Hargis Went A-shopping

By Sara Beaumont Kennedy

Copyright, 1903, by Sara Beaumont Kennedy

THE gentlemen's furnishing house on Spring street was making a "run" on fine shirts, and, although Earl Hargis hated shopping as the devil hates holy water, he wended his way thither, having been recently reminded by his landlady that his shirts were getting "low." On the counters were a vast array of garments in all sizes and colors. It seemed a hopeless task to decide among such a bewildering assortment of blues and pinks and lilacs and stripes and dots, and Earl found himself inwardly upbraiding Eve for entailing upon the human race the necessity for anything beyond "nature unadorned." He was just making up his mind to tell the sleek clerk to put him up "any old thing" when a sweet feminine voice from somewhere near his elbow asked another clerk to show her the shirts. Surprised to find a woman in a tailor shop, Earl glanced up from the red and black monstrosity he was examining and saw a slender and particularly pretty young woman beside him. In fact, there were two women, but he did not glance a second time at the elderly one.

"Jack had rather go shirtless than shop for himself," the young divinity was saying to her companion, "so I buy all his things. It is as much as I can do to drag him in here to be measured for a new suit. Ah, is not this blue shirt a beauty?" She lifted one of the garments Earl had rejected, and instantly it seemed the most desirable one in the lot. Down into the heterogeneous mass she plunged and drew out garment after garment, holding them up for inspection, rejecting or retaining them and talking gayly all the while.

"Do you know, Mollie, I think men are greatly to be pitied. Think of having nothing prettier or daintier than these madras things—no laces, no ribbons, no chiffons. I am sure I consider the wearing of organdies and elbow sleeves a higher privilege than stuffing ballots in an old box. Give me that red shirt," she continued to the clerk. "No, not the red and black. That is mourning for his Satanic majesty, so the proverb says. And now that lilac striped one. That is the very prettiest shirt I ever saw. Jack will look lovely in that, just lovely."

These remarks were divided between the clerk and her companion, but Earl drank it all in. What a lucky dog Jack was to have an angel like that to do his shopping and, incidentally, his housekeeping. He had never before felt his bachelorhood to be a burden. But at any rate he would profit if only at second hand by this woman's fine taste. So he surreptitiously duplicated the selections she made and, paying his bill, followed the two into the street. With what a sure tread the younger one walked! How well she held her shoulders and what wonderful gold gleams there were in her hair! Thinking enviously of Jack's luck, Earl went into the bank where he worked. But all day he seemed to hear that clear voice saying, "Jack will look lovely in this shirt, just lovely!" How nice it must be to have a pretty woman say that about one! And he put his own name in place of Jack's and tried to imagine how her voice would sound in pronouncing it. That night his dreams were a checkered conglomeration of blue and lilac shirts trimmed in impossible chiffons and short sleeves. In the morning he told himself he was a fool and went soberly to his ledger.

But a week later, prodded by a very shabby reflection in his glass, he once more sought the tailor's shop and, to his surprise, found the same two young women before the counter.

"I simply could not stand Jack in his old suit another day, so I am selecting him a new one, Mollie. This gray is very soft and will make up beautifully. That brown? No. I do not care for a dark man in brown. It kills his coloring. Gray emphasizes his best points. I shall take this."

She laid the sample down and went to look at some hats. Earl, unnoticed, picked up the bit of cloth and fixed the quality and shade in his mind. Was he not a dark man? And if gray suited Jack it would suit him also. While he was talking to the clerk he heard the clear voice that haunted his dreams so often of late saying:

"Not that wide brim, Mollie. A tall fellow like Jack would look childish in that. This straw alpine is the very thing. Jack's square, cut off shoulders will look like those of Hercules topped off with this."

Lifting his eyes to a nearby mirror, Earl saw without turning his head the hat she had chosen. Certainly Jack's shoulders could not be any squarer than his own. He, too, would have an alpine hat. And so once again had she rescued him from doubt. It really seemed a shame, almost a theft, for him to use her taste and judgment thus without her knowledge, but it was so much easier than thinking out things for himself, and it could make no difference to her, for she would never know. So he gave his order and then went outside and stood smoking until the two women emerged from the door, and he saw plainly the face of his unknown and unknowing mentor, and he told himself for the twentieth time that she was beautiful and that Jack was the luckiest dog in the world.

A week later when the gray suit came home he did full homage to her taste. Never had he had anything that suited him so well, and the alpine hat "topped" him off just as she had said. He caught himself ardently wishing that she could see him and set upon him the seal of her approval with one of those flashing smiles he had watched play about her fine lips. And, realizing what he was wishing, he blushed at his vanity and daring, and, having argued that it was neither wise nor proper for him to think so often of her, he set to work to forget the litheness of her movements and the exact tint of gold in her hair.

Before the suit was a fortnight old Mrs. Gorman gave her long remembered boat excursion.

"I specially wish you, my dear Earl, to meet Nellie Penton, and shall expect you to take her off my hands for the evening. She is just the girl to cure you of your bachelor proclivities," so the old lady wrote, and Earl, owing her several social obligations, acquiesced, mentally anathematizing the girl, who would, of course, be dull and homely. Women of Mrs. Gorman's age were likely to put general utility before grace or beauty in another woman.

The evening of the outing was perfect—a gold and violet sunset to be followed by star shine and moonlight such as Cupid dearly loves. A brilliant company had already assembled on the boat when Earl crossed the gangway and mounted to the cabin deck. He glanced at the cloud dyed water rippling away to the river's farther shore and then at the tete-a-tete chairs along the boat's rail and sighed to think that the coming hours, with such wonderful possibilities in the line of lovemaking, must be squandered on a plain, "sensible" girl. At the top of the stair there was something of a crush, most of the company having just emerged from paying their respects to the hostess in the cabin. So it happened that Earl, turning his broad shoulders first one way and then another to occupy less space, came at last to the cabin door and entered simultaneously with two other late guests.

At the far end of the saloon hung a huge mirror, and as the three newcomers cleared themselves from the outgoing crowd and stepped forward they involuntarily lifted their eyes to this mirror and then suddenly stopped, for the reflection showed a lithe, graceful girl with blue eyes and wonderful sun tints in her hair standing between two men who at first glance might have been taken for twins. With a quick motion the girl put her hand to her eyes as if to clear them from some mist, but when she looked again at the mirror the same reflection was there. On either side of her was a tall, dark, broad shouldered man in a light gray suit, lavender striped shirt and alpine hat. Even the white polka dotted ties were the same. She gasped, and her companion stared stupidly, but Earl flushed hotly. It was as if he had been detected in a theft with the stolen goods upon him. In the flash of time they stood thus he felt the girl's eyes travel over him questioningly, accusingly. Then, bareheaded, he strode across the floor to where the hostess stood surrounded by her guests.

"HOW DO YOU HAPPEN TO BE DRESSED JUST AS YOU ARE?"

"My dear Earl," she cooed softly, "I am so glad to see you! As soon as I am at leisure I will hunt up Nellie Penton and introduce you."

But Earl as soon as possible slipped away in the crowd. He knew he was a fool, but the thought of spending those moonlit hours with the homely Nellie and this other woman within reach was intolerable. If he could only talk to the latter for a few moments out there in the starlight by the rail, how delightful it would be! But he sternly forbade himself to seek so much as an introduction to her. He knew his duty to the proprieties, and there was no use in running his neck or his heart into a metaphorical noose. So after chatting with some chance acquaintances he found a quiet nook on the pilot deck and sat smoking and watching the stars reflected in the water, dreaming an idle dream of what "might have been."

But presently he was aware that some one stood behind his chair. A hand fell on his shoulder and then a clear voice said softly:

"Having a pleasant time, Jack, dear? You were wise to come up here. It's awfully stuffy dancing in the cabin. I literally ran away from Mrs. Gorman, who wished me to play the agreeable to one of her bachelor proteges."

A dozen emotions fought for dominance in Earl's consciousness. He knew he should declare himself, but a glance at the white hand on his shoulder dissipated his resolution. He simply could not tell her to take that hand away; every nerve in his body was responding to its gentle pressure.

"Was not that a strange meeting as we came in?" continued the girl. "For a moment I thought I 'had 'em,' as you bad boys say. Then I saw your two faces, yours clean shaven, his with a mustache, and my reason was re-enthroned. I knew I was not 'seeing double.' I wonder who he is. He is certainly very handsome, and his eyes—I should adore a man with eyes like that!"

The blood was racing through Earl's veins, mingling a tumultuous happiness with his embarrassment. Each moment an announcement of his identity seemed more imperative and at the same time more impossible. He could imagine her confusion if she now discovered her mistake. He had waited too long; there was nothing to do but keep up the deception and trust to fate. So he sat quite still while she babbled on for a few moments about the interesting stranger. Then she pulled his ear softly and ran away. Earl, relieved at the turn of affairs, followed her slowly and unnoticed to the deck below, where she paused in the belt of light that streamed from the cabin door. Inside Jack was dancing with a pretty girl and looking unutterably tender things into her upturned eyes. Seeing him, the woman outside stopped as if suddenly stricken with some moveless horror. Was she jealous? Earl wondered and would gladly have throttled Jack for her. But evidently jealousy was not the trouble. She passed her hand quickly over her eyes and then looked back over her shoulder up the stair she had just descended, a storm of questioning annoyance in her eyes. Then Earl knew she understood, and he stepped boldly out of the shadow beside her and lifted his hat.

"I most humbly beg your pardon," he began, but got no further, for Mrs. Gorman came out of the opposite shadow and exclaimed in delight:

"Well, here at last I have you two together. Earl, this is Miss Penton, of whom I told you, and, Nellie, this is Mr. Hargis, the crusty bachelor whose heart is said to be invulnerable and on whom I wish you to try your sharpest arrows. Run along, now, both of you, to the end of this deck. Supper is just being served."

She bustled on into the cabin with her invitation, and the two in the band of light stood staring at each other.

"How do you happen to be dressed just as you are," she demanded, "and how dared you sit up yonder"—

But he interrupted with another question. "You are not Jack's wife?"

"Jack's wife! Of course not. I'm his sister."

"His sister? Thank heaven! Say, let the supper go hang, and come back to the upper deck. I have yards and miles of apologies to make. Come, please." He drew her to the stair, and in a few minutes two pairs of eyes saw the broken star shine from the pilot deck.

"It was deucedly impertinent in me to use your taste that way," Earl concluded penitently when he had told her how he had eavesdropped her in the shops. "I can't be sorry, but—won't you forgive me anyhow?"

"I might forgive that, but you let me stand here with my hand on your shoulder and say"—

"And say you'd adore a man with eyes like mine? Yes, thank heaven, you said it, and I heard it."

She stood up. "Will you take me down to supper, Mr. Hargis?"

"No, for you are not hungry. You are going to stay right here and say that you forgive me."

And she stayed. Two hours later when they parted at the end of the gangway he held her hand a moment. "Miss Penton, there is something I wish very much to hear you say."

"What is it?"

"This: 'Earl Hargis, you are lovely in those clothes, just lovely, and I rather like you, and you may send me some roses in the morning and call to see me in the evening.'"

She must have said it, and many calls must have followed that first one, for when the house on Spring street had its clearing sale the following season two women again stood before the counter.

"Yes, Mollie, I have two sets to choose now, for Earl is as bad about shopping as Jack and has not set his foot in a dry goods store since we were married."

Reinforcement Can Only Prevent Russian Retirement

MAIN FORCE AT LIAO YANG

Only Two Determined Stands Made by Russians In Fighting on Their Front and Flank--Vague Port Arthur Rumors

London, Aug. 6.—There still is no news of importance from Manchuria. Both armies appear to be resting after the recent arduous fighting. Kuropatkin's main force is at Liao Yang, which soon must become untenable before the advancing Japanese hosts, unless the Russians are reinforced to an extent not conceivable. The Japanese already have landed 5000 men at Yin Kow and started them east toward Liao Yang, while the disembarkation of troops there continues.

A review of the recent fighting on Kuropatkin's front and flank shows that the heaviest engagements took place on Saimatsza-Liao Yang and Simoucheng-Haicheng roads. The late General Keller's corps did not make serious resistance at the Yangze pass and likewise General Stakelberg retired from Haicheng to Aushanshan without serious loss.

But General Herschelmann with the ninth European division held the Kuchiatzu and Yushu passes with great tenacity, and the fighting was bloody and the loss heavy. Likewise that at Nanga pass on the Simoucheng road by the Russians under General Zassalitch was of a desperate character. As in his battle at the Yalu, Zassalitch was smothered by the Japanese artillery fire which literally destroyed one of his batteries. This was due in part to the fact that Zassalitch did not receive his orders to retire until Zaroubaieff, who had received his, had fallen back and given the Japanese artillery an opportunity to enfilade Zassalitch's trenches.

The reports from Port Arthur still continue very vague. A reiteration of the story of frightful losses to the Japanese is made by persoss escaping from the fortress, the latest yarn placing the losses at 17,000 for the Japanese and 1000 for the Russians. One version says that the Japanese succeeded in taking two out of three of the Russian outer defenses, but must take the third or abandon the two already taken, as they are commanded by the one still in the possession of the Russians. Still other reports place the Japanese within two miles of the stronghold and set Aug. 15 as the date of the next "final" assault.

No More Sinking of Neutrals

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—It is authoritatively announced that there will be no repetition of the Knight Commander and Thea incidents. Russia has issued instructions to naval commanders not to sink neutral merchantmen with contraband on board in the future except in cases of direct necessity, but in cases of emergency to send prizes into neutral ports. "Direct necessity" may be regarded as a reservation of a right which Russia does not formally relinquish, but which will not again be exercised during the present war.

Russia's concessions in this matter may be looked upon as proof of her desire to avoid international complications or the unnecessary irritation of neutrals. The authorities here feel that this course will be satisfactory to Great Britain and the other powers. With such assurances it will make the Knight Commander and Thea cases much easier of adjustment.

Captain Rejected $10,000 Bribe

London, Aug. 6.—The Times asserts that the captain of the steamer Malacca (captured by the volunteer fleet steamer St. Petersburg in the Red sea and subsequently released at Algiers) was offered a bribe of $10,000 to admit that he had contraband of war on board.

Must Live Up to the Law

London, Aug. 6.—A dispatch from Philiopolis says that the porte insists that Russia shall give a written declaration concerning both flag and cargo before permitting volunteer fleet vessels to traverse the Dardanelles.

What Tokio Is Said to Expect

Berlin, Aug. 6.—The National Zeitung prints a private telegram from Tokio saying that Tokio is expecting the fall of Port Arthur and the capitulation of General Kuropatkin on the same day.

Eight Drowned While Bathing

Alton, Ills., Aug. 6.—While bathing in the Mississippi river last night, Michael Riley, his daughter, and six of the latter's little girl friends were drowned. They had joined hands and waded into the river and walked along a sandbar and, in the darkness, stepped from the sandbar into the deep channel.

Flight of Jailbirds

Georgetown, Del., Aug. 6.—Deputy Sheriff Purnell was handing dinner to a prisoner in Sussex county jail when another inmate knocked him down. The assailant quickly procured the keys of the jail and, with 10 others, escaped.

Death of Lady Tweedmouth

London, Aug. 6.—Lady Tweedmouth, the famous political hostess of the Liberal party and a sister of the late Lord Randolph Churchill, is dead. She was the daughter of the seventh Duke of Marlborough and was born in 1853.

War on American Labor

Washington, Aug. 6.—The state department has received a report of the employment of American engineers in Canada from Consul General Holloway at Halifax, who says the Canadian Amalgamated Association of Engineers contend that there are plenty of engineers in Canada competent to fill the positions now held by Americans and that the employment of Americans is in direct contravention of the alien labor law in operation against the United States. The consul says that all American officials employed on railroads are to be forced out.

Reprieve at Last Moment

Acadia, Fla., Aug. 6.—Isaiah E. Cooper was not hanged here for the murder of Marshal Bowman, as scheduled. Everything was in readiness when a telegram was received from Governor Jennings revoking the death warrant, but ordering Cooper held in jail for further orders. Cooper had kissed his four children good-bye and just before preparing to leave his cell made the solemn statement that he was innocent of the crime charged.

Recruiting Scouts Called In

Washington, Aug. 6.—The navy department has recalled the three naval recruiting parties which are traveling in different parts of the country, securing recruits for the navy. This action is due to a decision of the treasury department that officers engaged on recruiting duty are not entitled to traveling expenses, but may be allowed the usual mileage. This mileage does not equal the actual expenses of the officers by a large margin.

The Business Outlook

New York, Aug. 6.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that labor controversies are the most serious drawbacks to recovery in business, most other important factors tending toward improvement. Crop prospects are most encouraging and the loss in quantity of wheat promises to be fully offset by higher prices.

Thousands of Dollars For Missions

New York, Aug. 6.—The will of Andrew Alexander, a New York manufacturer, leaves to the board of trustees of the Reformed Presbyterian church ern missions, $10,000; for Indian missions, $5000; sustentation fund of the church, $20,000. The residuary estate goes to Alexander's widow and his two daughters.

Bond For Railway Postal Clerks

Washington, Aug. 6.—The postoffice department has directed that every railway postal clerk shall give $1000 bond to the United States. Each clerk shall pay the premium chargeable to himself. This order affects approximately 10,000 employes.

NEWS IN BRIEF

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR
Steam or Hot Water Heaters
you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

Stockyards Bank Experienced a Heavy Draft on It Resources

Chicago, Aug. 6.—The strike in the packing houses was practically lost sight of in the excitement attending a run on the Drovers' Trust and Savings bank, one of the stockyards institutions. The rush of the depositors to the bank started because of an unfounded rumor that one of the packers' representatives had withdrawn his money from the institution and reports that the bank was being used by the packing companies as an adjunct in paying off their new employes who have taken the places of the strikers.

All day long hundreds of excited depositors stood in line to withdraw their deposits. When closing time came there were at least 1000 persons waiting for their money. The officials of the bank called in extra tellers and the place was kept open until every depositor who presented himself at the window had been satisfied. The paying windows of the bank were kept open until after 8 o'clock last night. Nearly two hours before that time the last man in line had been paid his deposit in full and fresh arrivals had ceased coming.

It is estimated that upwards of 3000 depositors withdrew their deposits during the day. When the run was at its height the bank withdrew $100,000 of its deposit with the Commercial National bank and a like amount from the First National bank, in order to prevent any possibility of the bank being unable to meet its obligations.

The general strike situation is unchanged, bith sides standing firm with no sign of early settlement.

Turkey Needs Further Prodding

Washington, Aug. 6.—The cabinet regards the Turkish situation as sufficiently grave to warrant some change in the program that had been formed for the movement of the United States naval vessels in the Mediterranean. The determination was reached to have Admiral Jewell, commanding the European squadron, which has separated from the battleship squadron and is now at Villefranche, not to come further westward until further orders. Minister Leishman having notified the state department that he has failed to receive the expected satisfactory reply from the sultan concerning the rights of American citizens in Turkey.

Cuban Senate Quorum at Last

Havana, Aug. 6.—For the first time in several weeks there was a quorum of the senate yesterday and a resolution was passed declaring that the constitution required the presence of a two-third's majority in each house of congress only at the opening of the periodic sessions, instead of a two-thirds majority at the daily sittings of congress, as heretofore considered necessary. The action of the senate was not suggested by President Palma, who has persisted in a policy of non-intervention in partisan differences and congressional quarrels.

War Department Charges

Washington, Aug. 6.—The recent order assigning General Funston to command the department of the east has been modified by the war department and he will go to Chicago instead, relieving General Grant of command of the department of the lakes. The latter will go to the department of the east, with headquarters at Governor's island. General Williams is assigned to the command of the department of the Columbia, vacated by General Funston.

Lack of Good Life Preservers

New York, Aug. 6.—After a thorough inspection the Grand Republic was passed yesterday afternoon, although, owing to the small number of good life preservers on board, her carrying capacity was reduced from 2000 to 1250, no additional life preservers to replace those condemned now being available. As soon as the inspection was concluded the steamer was fired up in readiness for her regular evening trip.

Americans Easy Winners

St. Catherines, Ont., Aug. 6.—The opening day of the Canadian Henley regatta was devoid of special features. Constance S. Titus of New York was an easy winner in his heat of the single sculls. In the second heat Frank Greer of Boston took matters easy all the way, spurting at the finish and winning by half a length. The finals will be rowed today.

To Examine Our Industries

Chicago, Aug. 6.—The suggestion that the members of the inter-parliamentary group for the promotion of arbitration, who will meet at St. Louis in September, be taken on a tour through the large industrial centres of the United States, was adopted at a meeting here of the committee appointed by congress to provide for their entertainment.

First Victory Goes to Canada

Montreal, Aug. 6.—The Canadian yacht Noorna defeated the White Bear 5m. 55s. in the first of the series of races for the Seawanahaka cup, sailed on Lake St. Louis between yachts representing the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht club of Montreal and the White Bear Yacht club of St. Paul.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

THE PET MOUSE.

It Is Made of Cork, but Really Acts as Though It Were Alive.

You can have a pet mouse if you want to, and even though he is only made of cork with the proper manipulation he will act as though he were really alive.

First carve a cork into the form of a mouse as well as you can. Then cut away the under part of the body so it will lie perfectly flat. Two ears are now added by means of cardboard and a little glue, and the tail is formed by attaching a piece of cord in the place where it should be.

Blacken Mr. Mouse in the flame of a candle and then insert a tiny hook in the front part of his body, concealing it from view underneath his neck.

Next tie a piece of black thread about ten inches long to a convenient buttonhole. The end of the thread terminates in a loop.

Fix the loop in the hook, tightening the thread and put the mouse upon the back of your left hand.

If you move the hand back from the body the mouse, which does not move at all, seems to glide across the back of the hand, and at the moment it is about to fall, when it reaches the thumb, the right hand passed below arrives to catch it near the little finger, and from there by the same previous movement it appears to travel to the thumb.

THE DISUNITED STATES.

A Guessing Contest That Brings About Queer Blunders.

A guessing contest which seems easy to most girls and boys when they hear of it, but proves more difficult than they supposed, is the Disunited States.

Make an outline, nothing more, of each state in the Union. These must be drawn on separate cards or pieces of paper and be exactly like the outlines on the map. Have each card numbered and its number placed opposite the name of the state on a separate piece of paper, which is not shown until the contest is over.

You will be surprised at the mistakes made, for even those who have studied geography for years find it difficult to decide which state the outline stands for when it is all alone.

Each player writes his name on a slip of paper bearing the number he ventures to guess. The one who has the most correct answers should receive a prize. This is a simple game, but it affords amusement to schoolboys and girls and to older people who, having left school before many of the newer states were added to the Union, find it no easy task to guess the state by a mere outline.

Sometimes a river or a mountain sketched through the state in its proper place will give the guessers a better chance, but even then many funny blunders are sure to be made.

Conundrums.

What kind of a face does an auctioneer like best? One that is for-bidding.

Can you tell of what nationality Napoleon was? Of course I can (Corsican).

When is a nose not a nose? When it is a little reddish (radish) or a turn up (turnip).

What sweetmeat is like a person proposed for some office? The candydate (candidate).

Why is it almost impossible to kill a soldier? Because he can live in quarters very comfortably.

Why is a room full of married ladies like an empty one? Because there isn't a single one in it.

How to Make a Flute.

Wrap a piece of paper around a pencil. Paste the edge down, making a tube. To one end fasten a triangular piece of paper somewhat larger than the opening. To play draw in your breath through the open end of the tube.

A Watery Wish.

I wish that all the water on the rolly poly earth
Would run away from houses and get drownded in the sea!
I wish there was of sponges and of soap an awful dearth;
I wish I'd never had a bath these nine years since my birth!
Oh, my, but what a happy boy "yours truly" would be!

It wouldn't take a jiffy then to sling on all my clothes
And to hurry down to breakfast when the bell begins to ring.
I wouldn't have to go to bed when sister Polly goes
(She likes to wash—she really does—but then she likes to pose
As a model little girl, is "as sweet as anything").

There's only just one little thing that I would like to say
Before you write it down on paper black and white—
I guess I'd rather have a bath most fourteen times a day
Than have my dearie mother, in her sweet and gentle way,
Refuse to give a dirty boy a loving kiss good night.

PRESIDENT AT PLAY

VACATION DIVERSIONS OF THE NATION'S CHIEF MAGISTRATE.

He and His Opponent, Judge Parker, Both Devoted to Outdoor Life—The President Camps Out With His Boys and Enjoys Roughing It.

Theodore Roosevelt is a man who thoroughly enjoys life. He does not believe, with Russell Sage, in not taking vacations. He is known as the most strenuous of presidents, yet he enjoys immensely his summer rest. The energy which he puts into the discharge of his executive functions he obtains through his vigorous exercise and through being so much out of doors. Every day, year in and year out, no matter what the condition of official business or the state of the weather, he manages to obtain some air and exercise, but during the hot summer months the president plans to devote the greater portion of his time to life out of doors and to recreations which both recruit his physical energies and distract his mind from the heavy cares of his high office.

It is an interesting circumstance that the candidates of both the great parties for president this year are men who are devoted to outdoor exercise and who have been able to accomplish what they have largely because of the physical energy they have gained from constant communion with nature and use of their muscles under the open sky and in the light of the health giving sun. Judge Alton B. Parker takes his morning bath in the Hudson and his horseback ride during the summer season, and he forgets the cares of professional and public life amid the pastoral scenes of his farm at Esopus. Theodore Roosevelt, with his family of boys and girls about him at his summer home at Oyster Bay on Long Island, is also a thorough champion of life in the open. Active, agile, bubbling over with spirits like a boy out of school, always ready for a game or a horseback ride or a tramp over the hills and along the picturesque Long Island shore, the president of the United States shows that he at any rate believes in being natural and human and getting all that is to be had from a healthy, active, unrestrained enjoyment of a summer's vacation.

Mrs. Roosevelt agrees with the president in these ideas. She loves to be her husband's companion and to enjoy everything that he does, horseback riding, driving, reading and study. She does not find herself troubled with ennui when the warm days of midsummer are here. She is devoting much time this summer to study of German and to botany. The president is a splendid linguist and is especially popular with the diplomatic corps because he can converse with most of its members in their native tongue. Mrs. Roosevelt hopes by next winter to be as much at ease in German as the president. She is a fine French scholar. Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt are both fond of botany, and their out of door life makes it natural for them to devote time to observation of flowers and plants. When in Washington they are accustomed to have daily strolls about the White House grounds, in the course of which they examine the shrubs and plants.

Sagamore Hill, the Roosevelt home at Oyster Bay, is conveniently located for the enjoyment of short outings. Mr. Roosevelt has been accustomed to go camping with the boys—Theodore junior, Kermit, Archie and Quentin—at some time during every summer, and these excursions are looked forward to with great anticipations. The president is bringing his sons up to enjoy "roughing it" as well as he does himself, believing that this is productive of manliness and a good thing for both health and morals. The boys have to take things as they come and make no complaints when they go on one of these trips.

Four years ago, when Mr. Roosevelt was a candidate for vice president on the ticket with Mr. McKinley, he made a great many campaign speeches and traveled widely over the United States. It is not considered in keeping with the dignity of that high office for a candidate for the presidency who is already an incumbent of the position to travel about the country making campaign addresses. For this reason Mr. Roosevelt's summer is to be a comparatively quiet one. He will avoid the strain and fatigue of a speechmaking tour, with its incidental functions and handshaking episodes. It is expected that the president and his family will remain at Oyster Bay until late in September, and political delegations will not, as a rule, go to his summer home.

THE LOWER ANIMALS.

They Are Keen of Perception, but Are Incapable of Thought.

Animals have keen preceptions—keener in many respects than our own—but they form no conceptions, have no powers of comparing one thing with another. They live entirely in and through their senses. To all that inner world of reflection, imagination, comparison, reason, they are strangers. They never return upon themselves in thought. They have sense memory, sense intelligence, and they profit in many ways by experience, but they have not soul memory or rational intelligence. All the fundamental emotions and appetites men and the lower animals share in common, such as fear, anger, love, hunger, jealousy, cunning, pride, curiosity, play, but the world of thought and thought experience and the emotions that go with it belong to man alone.

It is as if the psychic world were divided into two planes, one above the other—the plane of sense and the plane of spirit. In the plane of sense live the lower animals, only now and then just breaking for a moment into the higher plane. In the world of sense man is immersed also; this is his start and foundation, but he rises into the plane of spirit, and here lives his proper life. He is emancipated from sense in a way that beasts are not.—John Burroughs in Harper's Magazine.

A PLAGUE RELIC.

The London Gazette Was One Result of the Great Epidemic.

A curious relic of the great plague survives still in the London Gazette. During the epidemic the autumn session of parliament was held at Oxford from Oct. 9 to 31, 1665, and Charles II. and his court went there to attend the session and to escape infection.

As it was essential that London should be kept informed of the proceedings, the king started an official journal, entitled the Oxford Gazette, the first number of which appeared on Wednesday, Nov. 15, 1665. It contained an account of what had been done in the way of appointments and gave some items of court news. About two months later the publication was transferred to the metropolis as the London Gazette.

The first Oxford issue does not appear to have reached London until Nov. 22, at least Pepys records under that date, very characteristically: "This day the first of the Oxford Gazettes come out; very pretty, full of news, and no folly in it. Wrote by Williamson. It pleased me to have it demonstrated that a purser without professed cheating is a professed loser, twice as much as he gets."

Candy.

"The talk about adulterated candies," said a manufacturer, "is nonsense. There is a national organization of confectionery manufacturers which makes a business of investigating all reports of poisoning from eating candy and has succeeded in exploding most of such rumors. When a child is hungry it will fill up on almost anything it can get hold of—green apples, for instance, or even gravel or grass. It gets sick, and the mother, knowing it had eaten candy that day, spreads the report that the sweets were poisoned. The organization looks into every such case it hears about and finds out the truth. Competition is too strong for any concern to try to sell adulterated goods. The firm's competitors would immediately analyze the piece which is sold suspiciously cheap, and if it contained injurious ingredients would not be slow in proclaiming the fact. Good business principles demand honesty in the manufacture of candies."—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

His Wish.

A wicked story is told about two partners who respected each other's business ability, but who hated each other cordially. To one of them came a fairy saying that he could have any boon he desired and whatever he had his partner should have in double portion. Naturally his first wish was for a barrel of money. "All right," said the fairy, "but your partner will get two barrels on that wish." "Stop a little," said the first. "Perhaps you'd better not give me a barrel of money. I'd rather you would make me totally blind in one eye."

Korean Customs.

According to the Rev. C. F. Collyer, an English missionary, the Korean "never cuts his hair or beard. To do so is considered a mark of dishonor to his parents, whom he strongly reverences. Any hairs that may happen to come out and even the parings of his finger nails are carefully saved and put into the coffin with him in order that he may go back to Mother Earth intact."

Forgetful.

Hicks—I do try to be polite, but I seem to be forever forgetting my manners. Wicks—What's the matter now? Hicks—I just gave a woman my seat in the street car and forgot to thank her for taking it.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Regulated by His Uncle.

Franklin—Does your watch keep regular time? Shankin—I should say so; it goes in the fifth of every month and comes out the fifteenth.—Chicago Journal.

Wouldn't Interfere.

Little Girl—Papa, it's raining. Papa (whose temper is somewhat ruffled)—Well, let it rain. Little Girl (timidly)—I was going to, papa.

The injuries we do and those we suffer are seldom weighed in the same balance.—Simmons.

STICHOMETRY.

A Book Custom That Never Attained Any Very Extensive Usage.

Stichometry, from the Greek stichos, a row, line or verse, and metron, a measure, is used in two senses. The first applies to the subject matter of Hebrew literature, whereby the rhythmic lines which constitute the parallelism of the poetical books are portioned off from one another; the second to an entirely artificial method of measuring off the contents of each book by so many lines of fixed or average length.

The former is of great antiquity and may have been introduced by the sacred writers themselves. The latter is due to Euthalius of Alexandria, 458, who applied it to the Pauline epistles and later to the gospels.

St. Jerome professed to have founded his method upon a similar treatment of the text in existing manuscripts of Demosthenes and Cicero. His original arrangement is thought to be represented by the Codex Amiatinus at Florence and that of Euthalius in the Codex Claromontanus at Paris.

As this system left a large proportion of each page blank and as vellum was costly, stichometry never attained any very extensive usage.

GROUND PEARLS.

The Product of the Young of Certain Scale Insects.

The large order of hemiptera includes what are known as scale insects (coccidae), some of which are very destructive to fruit trees, while others are the source of cochineal, and, perhaps, were the manna upon which the children of Israel fed in the wilderness.

The life history of these insects includes a motionless pupa stage, similar to the chrysalis of a moth or butterfly. Before passing into this dormant and helpless condition, the young of certain scale bugs make their way into the earth, and then a sticky fluid exudes from their bodies and quickly hardens into a protective coating, resembling plain or colored glass, and causes them to look something like beads, so that in some parts of the world they are known as "ground pearls."

The best known of these are dug out of the earth in the West Indies and strung into necklaces or other ornaments. Similar objects are prized and worn by the natives of other regions.

KEROSENE OIL.

It Is Paraffin In Great Britain and Refined Petroleum Elsewhere.

Petroleum (petra, rock; oleum, oil) is a liquid bitumen exuding from rocks.

Paraffin (parum, little; affins, akin), discovered by Reichenbach in 1830, in investigating the tar produced in the distillation of wood, is a colorless waxlike solid, which he named from its extraordinary chemical indifference, its "little affinity" with anything. He afterward isolated from the same material a liquid oil, which he called eupion, "very fat." For years both were regarded merely as chemical curiosities until it was realized that eupion forms the body of petroleum.

Pure paraffin resembles spermaceti and is inodorous and tasteless. Paraffin oil is chiefly a mixture of fluid hydrocarbons, and as it approaches gas more closely than any other illuminating agent and is cheap it has come into general use. Illuminating oils manufactured from petroleum are sold in Great Britain as "paraffin oil," in the United States as "kerosene" and on the continent as "refined petroleum."—London Globe.

Copperhead and Rattler.

The copperhead isn't a bad looking snake, as snakes go, but it has a mighty bad reputation. In fact, it is generally regarded as a mean sort of snake and is apparently without a friend or even an apologist. Although it won't chase you nor go out of its way to get a crack at you, it probably does more business per snake than does the rattler, the moccasin or any other of the venomous kind. It is said that where there is one there are always two copperheads, so when you smell green cucumbers look out, for that seems to be the only warning you will get of the presence of this reptile. The rattler is a little more polite, also more vicious, for after giving you timely warning it will stand its ground and fight like a good fellow, while the copperhead will run and hide.

Queens' Names on Oaks.

Many English queens have chosen oak trees in Windsor forest whereon their respective names, with the dates of their choice, have been commemorated by means of brass plates. In different parts of the forest, with seats round them, are oaks bearing the names of Queen Elizabeth, Queen Caroline, Queen Charlotte and Queen Victoria. "Herne's Oak," mentioned in the "Merry Wives of Windsor" as being in Windsor park, was destroyed by a gale on Aug. 31, 1863.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The vaudeville show at Keith's for the week of Aug. 8 will not include a sketch of any kind, and six of the acts have never been seen at that playhouse previously. Among the most prominent entertainers scheduled to appear are Louise Montrose, who will be favorably remembered as the lively dancing and singing soubrette of "The Prince of Pilsen" during its first season's run at the Tremont theatre; Tom Lewis, one of the most amusing blackface comedians in the varieties, and Sam. J. Ryan, in one of their mirth provoking burlesques; Conn and Conrad, in an original specialty, and Maddox and Wayne, cross fire comedians. Some of the new comers will be Bellclaire brothers, a duo of clever athletes; Joe Belmont, the human bird; Julie Ralph, mimetic comedian and baritone singer, and the Sisters Dellberg, costume change vocalists. The Fadettes will make an entire change of repoertoire, and the biograph will show all new pictures. Edwin Stevens, the noted "legitimate" comedian is underlined for the week of Aug. 22.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

A long neglected play, 'Pawn ticket No. 210" is to be the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre next week. It was written many years ago by David Belasco and Clay M. Green for Lotta and proved one of the notable successes of her repertoire. The story deals with the life of a child who, left by a desperate mother as a pledge with an old Jew pawnbroker who rears her as his own daughter and bestows a wealth of affection upon her not knowing her to be the child of his bitterest enemy. The character created by Lotta, Mag, will be played by Lillian Kemble and as the pawn broker Mr. J. L. Seeley will be seen in particularly strong character part.

WHAT MISS KEMBLE HAS DONE.

Although Miss Lillian Kemble, the new leading lady of the Castle Square Theatre stock company, is almost a professional stranger to the local public she has done things since she took up the work of the stage that show her to be well equipped for her new position. Hers was not a case of "stage struck" for notwithstanding that her father held a prominent position as a producing manager in Germany, and, later was identified with Herr Conreid's German company at the Irving Place Theatre New York, as comedian, Miss Kemble as a child shared her mother's aversion for the stage as a profession. She did not begin her regular professional career till about a half dozen years ago. Her talent was instantly recognized and she was "featured" even during her first season on tour. She has played in stock work two seasons as leading lady in both Chicago and St. Louis, heading her own company in the latter city, has played a season with the German stock company in Detroit and also an extended engagement on the Pacific coast.

On a Hike.

HEAT!

BY USING ONE OF OUR

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

LEFT DEAD BEHIND

Japanese Repulsed at Port Arthur, With Terrible Loss

FOUGHT FOR THREE DAYS

St Petersburg Cheered by Latest News From the Front--Tokio Thinks Kuropatkin Lucky In Having Eluded the Enemy

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—Lieutenant General Stoessel, commanding the Russian military forces at Port Arthur, in an undated dispatch to the czar, says:

"I am happy to report that the troops repulsed all the Japanese attacks of July 26, 27 and 28, with enormous losses. The garrison's enthusiasm was extraordinary. The fleet assisted in the defence by bombarding the Japanese flank.

"Our losses during the three days were about 1500 men and 40 officers killed or wounded. According to statements of Chinese and prisoners the Japanese lost as many as 10,000. Their losses were so great that the enemy has not had time to remove the dead and wounded."

General Kuropatkin reports from Liao Yang some small Russian successes in outpost fighting up to Aug. 5, without the expected great battle having been begun.

The simultaneous receipt of favorable news from these commanders in the far east raised the spirits of the Russian capital immensely. The dispatches were printed in special newspaper bulletins. The newsboys around the depots met the returning crowds of Sunday pleasure seekers and shouted their wares without being reproved by the police.

General Stoessel's report is taken as a satisfactory refutation of the recently repeated rumors of the fall of Port Arthur. He states that the determined Japanese assaults were repulsed with tremendous losses and figures 10,000 as the number of Japanese killed or wounded. This is admittedly on Chinese information, which heretofore has proved to be of exceedingly doubtful value. But with Russian losses of 1500 as a basis, the authorities here consider that 10,000 is a fairly conservative estimate, since the Japanese were beaten off in what must have been a desperate assault on tremendously strong fortifications. The fact that the Japanese were not able to remove their dead and wounded is taken to prove that their defeat must have been one of great severity.

The part played by the fleet bears out the prediction that Rear Admiral Withoft is able to render efficient support to the garrison.

The authorities do not divulge the source of General Stoessel's report, though it is understood that it came by way of Chefoo. The fact that the Japanese are in possession of the country as far north as Haicheng renders it unlikely that it came by the land route.

General Kuropatkin's report states that the Japanese are stationary on his eastern front, the greatest activity being on the south and southeast positions, where the Russians are able to take the offensive. While the movements in themselves are apparently of no great importance, they are interesting as showing that the Japanese are still halting before undertaking the serious task of attacking Liao Yang with its strong circle of defenses.

Sized Up by Japan

Tokio, Aug. 8.—General Kuropatkin's success in extricating his army from the Liao Tung peninsula without disaster has elicited much praise from the Japanese. The concentration of his army at Kaichou at one time seemed certain to involve it in disaster. It was popularly believed that a generally decisive battle would either be fought at Taichekiao or at Haicheng.

It is considered here that Kuropatkin sacrificed his prestige by abandoning an immense territory without a battle. He was forced to abandon or destroy valuable stores and munitions of war when the transportation was almost the most serious problem to the Russians. He also impaired the morale of his army, but he preserved his men and guns. It is evident that he had hoped and planned to check the Japanese at Tatchekiao. Then, after holding the enemy in check, it is believed to have been his purpose to concentrate his remaining force at Liao Yang and to strike Kuroki.

The unexpected loss of the Russian left at Tatchekiao and the appearance of the Japanese Takushan army on the flank forced the abandonment and surrender without a fight of Yinkow, Haicheng and New Chwang. It is generally believed that the crisis will come shortly at Liao Yang and that Kuropatkin will be forced to give battle, whatever his present purpose may be.

General Oku's and the Takushan armies are pressing northward and General Kuroki is close at hand ready to take any part necessary in the general Japanese plan.

The possession of Yinkow (the port of New Chwang) has enormously simplified the transportation problem for the Japanese. It gives their two armies a freedom of movement which they have heretofore not possessed. The Japanese are speedily repairing the railroad which the Russians failed to seriously damage in their hasty retreat.

Cost Him $15.

John Broderick, who is said to be employed by the Fore River works, visited Nantasket on Sunday and filled up with liquor. He started home on an electric car and amused himself by insulting passengers and using profane language. The conductor frequently warned Broderick to keep quiet but all to no purpose.

When the car reached North Weymouth the conductor called an officer who placed him under arrest. He was arraigned in court for drunkenness and fined $15.

Hardy Cup Presented.

The Wollaston Yacht club held its annual clam dinner Saturday afternoon at Lee's Squantum Inn. The members sat down at about 3.30, and during the dinner an orchestra rendered several selections. After dinner, Charles W. Dill, who had the afternoon in charge, presented in the name of the club, the Hardy cup to L. F. Hewitson, the owner of the Sheila, the winning boat. There were about thirty members present, and it was another red letter day for members of the Wollaston club.

Wollaston Boats to Enter.

Many of the Wollaston Yacht Club fleet intend participating in the South Shore cruise of the Massachusetts Yacht Racing Association. The boats leave Wollaston Club house Aug. 23 for Plymouth. The following have already signified their intention of going and others will undoubtedly accompany them: Claytonia, Pocahontas, Goblin, Memento, Brant, Romance and Grayling.

Race for Tenders.

The regatta committee of the Wollaston Yacht Club has arranged for a rowing tender race for Saturday, Aug. 20. The completion of the Hardy cup races made this an open date. Quite a little interest is being taken in the event, and on dark nights and early mornings many of the members find time to go over the course.

S. Y. C. Events.

The house committee of the Squantum yacht club announces the following social events for this month:

Saturday evening, Aug. 13, a social dance.

Saturday, Aug. 20, Ladies' day.

Sunday, Aug. 21, tow boat party.

American Challenger Wins.

The White Bear won Saturday in the international yacht race for the Seawanhaka cup at Montreal, so that the defender and challenger now have one each.

FOUR TO THREE.

Won in the Ninth by South Quincy.

Wollaston Parks and Atlantics Win.

West Quincys and Merrymounts Both Whitewashed.

There was a battle royal on the Ward Three playgrounds on Saturday when over 1000 people assembled to see the third game of the season between the South Quincys and the Quincys.

As the small score indicates neither team had a claim on victory until the last ball was thrown. Unfortunately that throw went wild of first, and instead of being three outs it allowed Birnie on third to score the winning run for South Quincy.

South Quincy was the first to score. After Drake had flied out Spargo got first on a pass. On his steal to second there were a couple of wild throws allowing him to score. Quincy retired one-two-three order, two at first and Pitts struck out.

SOUTH QUINCYS, 1, QUINCYS, 0.

In the next four innings South Quincy only sent 12 men to the bat. A. Dunn who received a pass to first was thrown out at second. Birnie, who got first on an error of Eldridge shared a like fate, and so did Oswald who made the first safe hit for his team.

Quincy secured an unearned run in the second on a safe hit by Mullane who went to second on a wild throw to first, made a daring steal to third, and scored on a pass ball.

SOUTH QUINCYS, 1; QUINCYS, 1.

Quincy also retired in one-two-three order in third and fourth, three on flies two at first, while McGovern struck out.

Quincy got a lift in the fifth, and the outlook was brighter. After Powers had struck out, and Duffy's flied out to right, Flynn was given a pass; he went to third on McGovern's single and an error, and scored on a single by Eldridge, who was caught out at the home plate later, but not before McGovern scored.

QUINCYS, 3; SOUTH QUINCYS, 1.

South Quincys added one in the sixth and had two men left on bases. J. Dunn, who scored, got first on error of Duffy. Patterson struck out, and Drake retired on a fly to Eldridge. Spargo then got a pass, and Birnie a single to right, bringing in a run. With men on third and second J. Duffy struck out.

QUINCYS, 3; SOUTH QUINCYS, 2.

Quincys missed a good chance to score in the sixth, Mullane and Smith reaching third and second with only one out.

South Quincys tied the score. After Oswald had flied out to left, Arthur Dunn made a clean three-bagger nearly to the brook in right field, and scored an earned run on a sacrifice by Donaher. J. Dunn retired at first.

QUINCYS, 3; SOUTH QUINCYS, 3.

In the seventh it was one-two-three order for Quincy.

Again in the eighth the Quincys missed their opportunity. After Rooney retired at first Pitts and Mullane hit safely but Smith struck out, and Powers popped an easy one to Patterson.

Spargo reached first in the eighth but was caught napping and was third out.

Duffy got first on an error in the ninth, and Flynn was hit by a pitched ball, but they were unable to score as McGovern popped a fly to Duffy and Eldredge and Rooney surprised all by striking out.

With a tie score Birnie opened the last of the ninth with a single to left. J. Duffy flied out to Mullane, and Oswald struck out. Then A. Dunn hit

BICYCLE MEET.

Base Ball and Other Sports Enjoyed at Atlantic.

There was not as many at the old time wheelmen's meet at Atlantic on Saturday afternoon as expected. This was perhaps due to the meet having been postponed once, and that the weather in the morning looked rather uncertain. The attendance however was fully 2000, although this number included many children who came from different parts of the city to enjoy the bathing.

It was after 3 o'clock before any considerable number of wheelmen arrived. After that however, they kept coming in bunches.

There was a series of sports that opened with a ball game between the Massachusetts club nine and a scrub team. The club team won by a score of 11 to 7.

The next event was a potato race and there were so many entries that it was run in heats. W. Duggan won the first heat in 32 seconds with Lee Abbott second. The second heat was won by E. J. McEnaney in 34 3-4 seconds, with C. W. Bean second. The final heat was won by Duggan in 43 seconds with Abbott second.

The tub race was won by Lawrence Bean in 3 minutes, 46 seconds, with C. W. Bean second.

There were four entries for the 100 yard swimming race. E. F. Lennon of Cambridge was the winner; time, 1 minute, 14 seconds. T. C. Charnley was second.

There were not more than a dozen Quincy wheelmen present.

Big Day for Electrics.

Sunday was a very warm day and thousands sought the electric cars as a means of keeping cool. The street railway company had every one of its cars in use and extra cars were run on all lines. It was noticed that there were few empty seats in any of them.

City square presented an animated scene all day. At times there were several hundred people waiting for cars. This is the main transfer point to the different lines and every car that arrived was no sooner emptied of its freight than it was as quickly filled again, so that there seemed no diminishing in the number of people.

The busiest time was during the early evening hours, when people who had been away for the day were returning home. By far the larger part of the crowd went toward Neponset, and on the Hancock street line cars were run every few minutes. The railroad officials handled the crowd well and there was but little confusion. There was a slight delay because of loss of power.

Drowned at Reservoir.

Luigi Rizzi, aged 23 years, of Barre, Vt., was drowned Saturday afternoon in the old Quincy water reservoir at Braintree. Rizzi, who came here from Barre last week to visit Henry Buzzi of Revere street, West Quincy, went to the reservoir with others to take a swim. He swam across once and was returning when he was seen to throw up his hands and disappear. It is thought that he was seized with cramps. An attempt was made Saturday night to recover the body, but was unsuccessful. Sunday a party of men with boats went to the reservoir and recovered the body with grapling irons.

Scare at South Quincy.

It was reported to the Police Saturday night that there was a man with a revolver in his hand chasing women about the streets of South Quincy. Later in the evening Officer Bouti arrested Ricci Mindi, aged 33 years, of 91 Franklin street, for drunkenness. Mindi answered the description of the man complained of. When searched no revolver was found, but he had an ordinary table knife and fork in his pocket.

Police Changes.

There were a few changes in the beat of the night officers at roll call Saturday night. Officer Donovan was transferred from Houghs Neck to Atlantic, Officer Olson from Norfolk Downs to Houghs Neck, and Officer Broberg from Atlantic to Norfolk Downs.

Cigars Stolen.

The barber shop of Antonio Lucci, at 130 Washington street, was broken into sometime Saturday night and 40 cigars and twenty packages of cigarettes were taken.

"I LIKE ICE CREAM."

Everybody likes it. We can all have as much as we want now for it is very easy to make when JELL-O ICE CREAM POWDER is used. All ingredients in the package; no cooking or fussing, simply add a quart of milk and freeze. A great success; try it and you will be delighted. Each package makes nearly two quarts. Four kinds: Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry and Unflavored. Order today from your grocer. Two packages for 25c.

Drift of Opinion.

☞According to the New London Telegraph, after his experience in building two large ships at Groton, Mr. James J. Hill said that he would sooner build a thousand miles of railroad than two steamships. One reason for that is because he knows more about railroads than he does about steamships. Judging from the length of time it has taken to complete the two steamships at Groton, Mr. Hill could have changed his remarks a little and said, with equal truth, that he could build a thousand miles of railroad sooner than two steamships. At Groton he had to have a shipyard built in order to construct ships. One of his reasons for doing this was that the American yards would not promise as speedy delivery as he wanted. He knows a lot more about steamship building now than he did then. Those two ships could have been built in an English yard in less than half the time taken at Groton. That is one reason why an English built ship is cheaper for the owners than an American. The capital involved is not tied up so long with no chance of earning interest.—Herald.

Criticism of Official Report on Wages and Cost of Living

DEMOCRATIC VIEWPOINT

Most Skilful Juggler Could Not Show Raise In Wages Claimed by Bureau of Labor--Retail Prices Used as Standard

Washington, Aug. 8.—Chairman Cowherd of the Democratic congress campaign committee has issued a statement in refutation of the recently published tables from the bureau of labor, relative to the increase in wages and the cost of living. Mr. Cowherd's conclusions are as follows:

In the bulletin on cost of living and wages recently issued by the bureau of statistics, the methods adopted are as remarkable as the conclusions reached. Wholesale prices have always been the standard by which the rise or fall of the cost of living has been computed. Had Colonel Wright followed the customary course of using wholesale prices he would have been confronted with the excellent tables issued by Dun and Bradstreet, both recognized commercial authorities.

Dun's table of prices shows that from July, 1897, the low point, to March, 1904, the highest point, cost of living increased 43 percent. The most skilful juggler could not show such a rise in wages. Party necessities, therefore, would not permit Mr. Wright to use this table, and he dare not refute it. So he adopts the shifting, uncertain and unknown standard of retail prices.

Wholesale prices are fixed and stable, the same in every community, with cost of freight added. There is neither stability nor uniformity in retail prices. Coffee sells in the same city for from 10 to 40 cents, tea from 20 cents to $1.50, best creamery butter from 18 to 30 cents a pound. A bright field agent selecting his stores and localities could find evidence in retail prices to support any theory. This was the way in which the cost of living was reduced.

The methods employed to raise wages were equally questionable. Everyone knows that the greatest increase in wages is to be found in those industries where union labor is strongest and where the strength of the union has been developed during the period under investigation. These conditions are peculiarly applicable to the building trades.

The greatest employers of labor in the country are the railroads and no other industry is a better barometer of the average wage. The railroads employ all kinds of labor, skilled and unskilled, union and non-union. In no other industry are as complete and accurate statistics available. Each railroad reports to the interstate commerce commission the total wages paid during each year and the total number of workmen on June 30 of that year. The average wage is therefore easily obtainable.

Why were no railroad wages included in Mr. Wright's report? The answer is apparent. The last report of the interstate commerce commission shows an increase of railroad wages of only 8 percent. The railroads employ more than 1,300,000 men. Mr. Wright's figures cover 176,827. Miners, one of the next largest body of laborers, also are omitted. Mr. Wright's table does not show that any one of these 176,827 men received more wages in 1903 than in 1902, or any other year. It only claims to show the hourly wage for these particular men has increased.

In other words, had a mill raised the wages of its employes 10 percent and then shut down one half the time, this would have figured in Mr. Wright's tables as an increase in wages. It would have been just as easy to have selected an equal number of establishments, whose output, quality of work and number of employes was decreasing, and shown a reduction instead of an increase in wages.

Then, too, by taking hourly wages, Mr. Wright would not have to consider the 600,000 men now out of employment. By carefully selecting his establishments, he did not have to consider the 1,000,000 whose wages, the trade journals tell us, were reduced in 1903 and 1904 from 10 to 30 percent. We shall appeal from Colonel Wright and his expert statisticians to one who figures more skilfully and carefully than he—the housewife with the market basket who must make her husband's scanty wage cover the constantly increasing cost of the family's daily needs.

Quarrelled Over Money

Gloversville, N. Y., Aug. 8.—A quarrel over money matters resulted in one Italian shooting and killing a fellow-countryman named Reilly at Cranesville. The murderer, whose name is unknown, is in the custody of the Amsterdam police.

Haytien Capital Is Quiet

Port au Prince, Hayti, Aug. 8.—In other towns there is some agitation, but the energetic measures taken by the government have put a stop to the anti-foreign movement. Quiet prevails here.

A Remarkable Old Woman

Meadville, Pa., Aug. 8.—Mrs. Mary Murphy, the oldest person in the state, if her age is correctly reported, died at her home in Kerrtown, a suburb of Meadville, aged nearly 134 years.

END OF "THE OLD MILL"

Popular Attraction at Revere Beach Goes Up In Smoke

Revere, Mass., Aug. 8.—More than 100,000 pleasure-seekers saw the "Old Grist Mill," one of the amusement resorts at Revere beach, and half a dozen refreshment booths destroyed by fire early last night. The fire started underneath a photograph gallery, the cause being unknown. The flames spread to the "Old Grist Mill" and a number of booths. The "Old Grist Mill" and an adjoining place of amusement were well filled with spectators. There was considerable excitement for a few minutes, but there was no panic and all escaped uninjured. The American house, a hotel near the fire, was badly scorched, but not greatly damaged. The total loss is estimated at $5000.

Greer and Lloyd Land Honors

St. Catherines, Ont., Aug. 8.—The two Massachusetts scullers, Frank Greer of Boston and George B. Lloyd of Arlington, covered themselves with glory at the Royal Canadian Henley here, when they won first honors in the senior and intermediate single scull shells, respectively, from the best scullers of this section. Carrying with it as the win does the title of champion of all Canada in their respective events, the pair have every reason to feel proud of their showing.

French Arsenal In Flames

Toulon, Aug. 8.—Fire broke out in the arsenal here at midnight, originating in the extensive stores. The fire spread rapidly and threatens to embrace entire blocks of buildings. Troops were at once called out and mustered in the streets. Within an hour after the fire broke out the entire population was aroused. Guns are being fired as signals for help, which is coming in from the whole countryside. The flames are spreading with the greatest rapidity.

Fifty Persons Perhaps Killed

Pueblo, Col., Aug. 8.—A Rio Grande passenger train went through a bridge at Pinon last night. The engine and five coaches were wrecked. The train dropped into Fountain creek, the bridge being weakened by continuous heavy rains. It is reported that between 30 and 50 persons have been drowned in the wreck. A call for volunteers has been made on Pueblo and every available man is being sent to the scene. Details are very hard to obtain.

British Advance In Thibet

Lhassa, Thibet, Aug. 8.—The British expedition is encamped a mile from the Sacred Mountain of Potala, on which is situated the Dalai Lama's palace. The Dalai Lama fled to a monastery 18 miles distant. It is reported that he has shut himself up in strict seclusion, declaring that he will remain secluded for three years. The city's surroundings are very fertile and the whole place gives evidence of great prosperity.

Bomb For President of Uruguay

Montevideo, Aug. 8.—An attempt was made upon the life of President Battle y Ordonez as he was driving with his family. As the party was passing along one of the principal streets of the city a torpedo was exploded at the side of the carriage. The explosion tore up the track of the railway running through the street and the pavement, but so far as can be learned no one was injured.

A Foolhardy Undertaking

New York, Aug. 8.—Clifford G. Baxter, a civil engineer, and Captain John Enright of the South Beach life saving station started on a swimming contest from Brooklyn bridge to the iron pier at Coney Island and both were taken out of the water temporarily crazed after swimming for seven hours and when within a mile of their goal. The distance is estimated at 13½ miles.

Anti-Tobacco Trust Measure

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—The senate has passed the anti-tobacco combine bill. It now awaits the royal assent. The bill is designed to protect the Canadian tobacco manufacturers against the methods of the big American concerns who, it is alleged, have been trying to force retailers to handle no goods except theirs.

Women Cast Large Vote

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 8.—The general election has resulted in a victory for the opposition party, which advocated reform in extravagance of administration. It is expected that the cabinet will resign. There was great exercise of the franchise by women, to whom it was only recently granted.

Filipinos to Visit President

St. Louis, Aug. 8.—Frederick Lewis, manager of the Morro village, and Dr. T. K. Hunt, in charge of the Igorote village on the Philippine reservation, left last night for Washington with eight natives of the Philippine islands to call on the president.

No Colombian Revolution

Caracas, Aug. 8.—A cablegram received here from Bogota, signed by General Reyes, says that the rumors that a revolution has broken out or is contemplated are false.

Our Fleet Off For Turkey

Ville Franche, France, Aug. 8.—The American European squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral C. T. Jewell has sailed for Smyrna.

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

Do you know a tomato when you see one? Yes, when it is outside a bottle of catsup.
Most "tomato" catsup is colored with aniline dye, or other artificial coloring matter; nobody would touch the stuff undisguised.
Columbia, "The Uncolored Catsup," contains only the red of the perfectly ripe tomato.
Lonesome business, but pure catsup.

BY AN ASSESSMENT

Labor Unions Will Raise Money to Aid Chicago Strikers

ULTIMATUM OF PACKERS

Determined to Re-establish Business on Normal Footing Without Overtures to or Recognition of the Union

Chicago, Aug. 8.—All the labor unions in Chicago have endorsed the stockyards strike. After listening to the strikers' side of the controversy, which was presented to them by President Donnelly of the striking Butchers' union, the Chicago Federation of Labor, which is composed of every labor organization in Chicago and has a membership of nearly 300,000, adopted resolutions last night, pledging the moral and financial support of the federated body as long as the strike continues.

Each member of the central body will be assessed a small sum per week, and the whole amount will be turned over to the striking unions to help in the support of the strikers and their families during the struggle with the packers. The exact amount each member is to be assessed was left in the hands of a committee with orders to report results tomorrow.

While the officials of the Federation of Labor were unable to give an exact estimate of the amount of money the strikers would secure from this source, it was stated that the total sum would be well up in the thousands each week.

After a fight which has lasted for nearly four weeks, a settlement of the stockyards strike seems to be as remote as at any time since the struggle began. Neither side to the conflict, during all this time, has shown any sign of weakening.

The packers, while claiming that they will soon have their affairs in normal condition again, so successful have they been in securing non-union men, yet admit that so far they have been able to get but 550 of their old employes back and that the majority of those men are unskilled workers.

In the last statement given out by the packers it was that nearly half as many men were at work now as before the strike began. These men have been brought to Chicago from all parts of the country, the majority of them having never seen a meat packing plant before coming here.

With these men the packers have succeeded in accomplishing a great deal of work, but, according to the strikers, every animal that has been slaughtered since the strike was called has been at a financial loss to the packers, as in the majority of cases a lack of skilled workmen has made it impossible to operate the by-products department, and this source of revenue which, under normal conditions, is a clear profit to the packers, has been allowed to go to waste.

The packers were figuring on a break in the ranks of the strikers when work was resumed this morning, but there is nothing that would indicate that the men were even considering such a step or that they had any idea of surrendering today or at any future time. According to President Donnelly of the Butchers' union, the strikers are in a better position today than they were on July 12, the day the original strike was called.

The determination of the packers to re-establish their business on a normal footing without overtures to or recognition of the union was given emphasis by placards which were posted in the Nelson Morris & Co. work rooms and along the loading docks. The placards read as follows:

"Foremen and old employes engaged in all departments of this plant will watch new employes and instruct them as much as possible in the details of their duties. This order is issued to aid in the rapid organization of our forces, as few, if any, of our former employes will be reinstated."

Representatives of the packers left last night to seek recruits in Michigan and Wisconsin lumber camps. The search in new territory for stock workers arises from the fact that fewer men are being enlisted in southern states, it having been found that plantation negroes do not take kindly to the hard labor of the packing houses.

May Call Out Retail Cutters

New York, Aug. 8.—A canvass has been made of over 400 of the retail butchers in the effort to induce them to stop buying the trust meat and deal with the independent slaughterers. It is alleged that all but one of the retail men promised to change their slaughterers. It is planned to call out every union man who is employed as a beef cutter in the retail trade, if the employers do not change from the trust to the independents.

Ore-Laden Freighter Sunk

Detroit, Aug. 8.—The freighter City of Berlin, with about 3000 tons of iron ore on board, collided with an unknown boat in the Detroit river north of Belle Isle last night, and sunk. The crew was taken ashore. There was no loss of life as far as can be learned.

Lost Life to Save Sister

Charleston, Aug. 8.—Miss Emma Laird, aged 22, was drowned in the surf at Sullivan's island while attempting to save her younger sister. The younger girl was unconscious when brought ashore, but was resuscitated after two hours' work.

THE PADRONE SYSTEM

Boston Schoolhouse Commission Said to Be Encouraging It

Boston, Aug. 8.—That the padrone system is in vogue in Boston, and is tolerated and fostered by the Boston schoolhouse commission, was the charge made before the Boston Central Labor union by its special investigating committee.

The committee reported the names of contractors who employ men under the padrone system, and told the number of men and hours worked by each and wage received for work done on the schoolhouses of this city.

It was charged that the wages range from $1.50 to $1.75 for nine and 10 hours; that the major part of the laborers employed in this work are non-citizens; that each laborer pays $1 to a padrone for employment; that many laborers have paid $1 for employment, and neither received work nor their dollar back, and that in some instances men paid a small percentage of their weekly wage to a padrone, thereby to retain employment.

The committee was delegated to make another attempt to have these conditions abrogated and a more equitable and legal system established.

Divine Service Shut Off

Revere, Mass., Aug. 8.—Determined to get satisfaction for the efforts of the Law and Order league to close the Sunday amusements, Revere beach proprietors, acting in conjunction with Agent Norcross of the park reservation, made an unexpected move yesterday when they prevented the head of the league, Rev. J. P. Bixby, from holding his regular Sabbath service on the beach. For 15 years Bixby, in conjunction with his assistants, has conducted Sunday afternoon services on an unaccepted street and hitherto there had not been the slightest attempt to stop them.

Lodge Replies to Critics

Boston, Aug. 8.—Senator Lodge, who was the principal speaker at the dinner of the North Dorchester Republican club at its dinner at Nahant, repeated his charge that the movement in this state for Canadian reciprocity is engineered by Democrats, who hope to defeat the Republican national ticket in the fall. Mr. Lodge denied that he was opposed to genuine reciprocity with Canada or any other nation, but he declared that he would always oppose reciprocal trade relations with foreign nations injurious to the industries of Massachusetts.

Fatal Explosion on Launch

Revere, Mass., Aug. 8.—Morton Ladd, a telephone inspector of Boston, was blown out of a naphtha launch by the explosion of a tank, and drowned off Revere beach last night. Arthur Nichols, a companion, was also blown overboard, but managed to swim ashore. When the men were out sailing in the launch they discovered that the naphtha tank was leaking. They searched for the leak with lighted matches, and suddenly the tank exploded.

Explosion at Summer Resort

New Haven, Aug. 8.—Two men were burned severely last night by the explosion of a 10-gallon gasolene tank in a booth in the Savin Rock grove used for the making and sale of a food specialty. Max Gordon, the cook in the booth, and F. Ginsberg, a helper, were brought to a hospital, where it is said that Gordon's burns may prove fatal. The explosion spread panic among the thousands of Sunday visitors at Savin Rock.

Perhaps Horses Were Poisoned

Dover, N. H., Aug. 8.—A foreign substance, believed to be poison, was found in the stomach of the trotting stallion Jewett A. by a veterinarian who performed an autopsy. The stallion dropped dead Saturday. Earlier in the week two other fast horses, Sagwa and Art Boy, died suddenly. The stomach of Jewett A. will be taken to Boston for examination by an expert chemist.

No Break at Fall River

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 8.—Judging from present indications, the strike of nearly 26,000 cotton mill operatives in this city, entering upon its third week, is as far from settlement now as when the mill managements and the union representatives broke off negotiations after the men had refused to work under a 12½ percent reduction in wages.

Disappointed In Love

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 8.—Antonia Saszasck, aged 20, was found dead on the steps of a house in Fairfield, where her former suitor, Antoine Fabryk, boards with relatives. The girl died from oxalic acid poisoning. It is said that the girl recently had a quarrel with Fabryk, resulting from a misunderstanding.

City of Rockland Floated

Rockland, Me., Aug. 8.—With her hull well patched, so that she leaked but little, the steamer City of Rockland, which narrowly missed leaving her bones on the Mussel Ridge ledges, left for Boston in tow of a big tug, there to be repaired for a continuation of her coastwise service.

Crystal Krauss Was Poisoned

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 8.—The chemist who is making an analysis of the internal organs of Crystal Krauss, whose mysterious death has led to the arrest and detention of her stepmother on the charge of murder, announces that he has found unmistakable indications of strychnine in large quantities in the stomach and liver.

Delhi Takes $50,000 Race

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Delhi, undoubtedly one of the best 3-year-olds in training, won the Great Republic, the $50,000 stake race run here.

Wisconsin Debatable Ground

New York, Aug. 8.—Democrats from different sections of the country have begun gathering here in anticipation of the meeting of the executive committee and the notification of Mr. Parker of his nomination on Wednesday. Timothy E. Ryan, member of the executive committee from Wisconsin, says that his state is debatable ground and expresses the opinion that the Republican factions there cannot be brought together.

Vessel Had a Hard Time

New York, Aug. 8.—The Nova Scotian ship Kings County sailed July 21 from Pensacola for Rio de Janeiro with a full cargo of lumber. On July 28 the ship was struck by a terrific squall and hove down on her beam ends, obliging her crew to cut away spars and sails to right her. The ship lost the fore and main topgallantmasts, the mizzen royal and jib-boom with sails attached. Captain Salter put into this port for repairs.

Trio of Boy Burglars

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Three boys, aged 11, 12 and 13 years respectively, have been arrested here for burglary and have confessed that they and others were implicated in over 35 burglaries and attempted burglaries in this city during the past few months and that they had also planned to commit arson. Some of those implicated are the children of highly respectable parents.

Bomb Thrower Hurt

New York, Aug. 8.—A bomb thrown into a crowd of Italians injured a score or more persons and led to the arrest of Vincenzo Donetto, who, the police believe, is a member of the "Black Hand" society, which for some time has terrorized residents of the Italian district here and extorted money from them by threats and actual violence. Donetto was himself more severely injured by the bomb than any of the others.

Sigsbee Going to San Domingo

Washington, Aug. 8.—Complying with the request of the state department, Admiral Sigsbee, at San Juan, has been directed to dispatch a war vessel to Monte Cristi, San Domingo. This was done at the suggestion of Mr. Dawson, the American minister to San Domingo, and the inference is that trouble is impending in that country.

His Last Game of Baseball

Dresden, O., Aug. 8.—Vern Lowe, aged 19, a member of an amateur baseball team of Coshocton, was struck in the head by a pitched ball in the second inning of a game, but the lad played through the other seven innings and made two hits, winning the game. At the hotel afterwards he fell unconscious and died in a short time.

Face to Face With Russians

London, Aug. 8.—The Times correspondent at Tokio sends a report that the Japanese have captured commanding positions north and northeast of Port Arthur at a distance of 2750 yards from the main line of Russian defenses.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The stock barns of Thomas S. Harrison at Pomfret, Conn., were destroyed by fire, causing a loss of $25,000. Three barns, 80 tons of day and a number of horses were burned.

William J. Winslow, 19, was drowned at Saugus, Mass., by the capsizing of a boat.

Rev. John B. Delaney of Manchester, N. H., has been appointed bishop of that diocese. Father Delaney was born in Lowell, Mass., 39 years ago.

While fishing in the river at Ridgefield, Conn., a boy found the body of George Barnum of that place. Barnum had no known relatives and it is believed that he jumped into the river.

Rev. Dr. Nevin, rector of St. Paul's, the American church in Rome, underwent an operation as a result of which his eyesight is being restored.

Max A. Hess, known in the theatrical profession as Max Arnold, the blind comedian, died at Philadelphia in a sanitarium. He was 43 years old.

Frank Mace, 22, of Marblehead, Mass., was drowned through being carried overboard from the bow of a yacht by the flukes of an anchor catching in his blouse.

THE MODERN WOMAN.

Dr. Lyman Abbott's Opinion as to Her Proper Sphere.

The real results of this modern woman's movement are seen, I believe, says Dr. Lyman Abbott in the World's Work, in better wages to self supporting women; in enlarged opportunities for productible industry; in consequent industrial independence for unmarried women; in a resultant release from the odious compulsion which drove women into marriage as the only means of livelihood open to them; in an end to that kind of marital subordination which grew out of the fact that an uneducated woman is inferior to an educated man; in an intellectual companionship in the married life based on a common understanding of all life movements and a common interest in them all; in the ability of the mother to keep the intellectual respect of her boy after he has gone out of the home to college or to business and to be his trusted counselor and his inspirer; in woman's broader horizon, larger life and more richly endowed character; in the ampler service she can render to society, to her country and to the world, and in her better equipment for the finest and highest service of all, that which is inherent in motherhood.

"It is a woman's destiny," Balzac makes one of his characters say, "to create not things, but men. Our creations are our children; our children are our pictures, our books and studies." This is the greatest career of all—greater than that of the lawyer, the doctor, the poet or the artist. Law governs life, medicine prolongs life, poetry portrays life, art presents a simulacrum of life, the mother creates life.

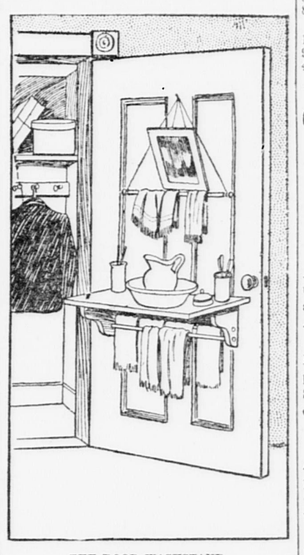

The education of the future will recognize motherhood as the supremest of all destinies, and the curriculum of all schools and colleges worthy of the name will be fashioned to conform to this standard and to prepare for this service.

A DOOR WASHSTAND.

How a Girl May Save Space if Her Room Be Small.

If a girl's room be small and she wishes to economize on space here is a scheme that might pay her to try. The washstand can be dispensed with if there is a well hung door between the room and the wardrobe. If the hinges are strong this closet door will prove a friend in need.

Buy two iron brackets and put up a shelf on the inside of the door. Make it wide enough to hold the washbowl and tooth mugs, soap dish, etc. A hole in the shelf into which the bowl can be set will remove the unpleasant possibility of the washbowl being switched off the shelf by the sudden opening or closing of the door.

Above this shelf suspend two or three rods by means of stout cords. These are for the wash cloths and towels. A small mirror may be hung above the towels if desirable, though care must be taken not to overload the hinges of the door.

Why Women's Wages Are Low.

Rather an amusing reason is given by Anna B. Doughten as to why young girls' wages still remain so much lower than young men's when the same work is accomplished and in quite as good a manner. "Seldom," she says, "does a girl work with any idea of permanency, and often the brighter and more capable she is, the sooner does some young man find that her qualifications are just what he wants in a wife. Indeed, it is a fact," says this philosopher, "that many employers have found it useless to train good looking, capable girls in any special lines, for just when they are fitted for the required duties and the accompanying higher salary, off they go." Miss Doughten is in a position to discuss the subject as she is social secretary in one of the largest publishing houses in America.—Social Service.

Training Children.

Apropos of the modern methods of training children, a writer in the Lad's Pictorial remarks that, although she "believes thoroughly in the influence of love and patience, the modern child is not a brilliant example of the new method. It is too often pert, ill mannered, blase, self willed and no respecter of persons. It is nonsense to maintain that a young undisciplined, mentally and physically unformed creature can be treated like a grownup. Everything young, whether it be a child, a puppy, a colt or a tree wants discipline, and discipline is not to be maintained by theories."

Merrymounts Defeated.

The Merrymounts went to Hingham and were defeated by the Wampatucks Saturday afternoon.

Both pitchers were very effective, only eight hits being made by the two teams.

In the seventh inning Kimball got a base on balls, moved up on a sacrifice and scored the only run of the game on a wild pitch that struck the edge of home plate and bounded over Burchsted's head.

BOTH LEGS BROKEN.

Quincy Man Run Over by Electric at Braintree.

Patrick Holland of 6 Quincy avenue was run over by an electric car at Braintree on Sunday evening, and had both legs broken at the ankle, and the heel of his right foot crushed.

Holland was lying beside the car tracks near the corner of Washington and Elm streets. It was quite dark at this point and his feet were on the car track while in this position the 9.30 car for Quincy came along and before the motorman saw him or could stop the car the wheels passed over his feet

The car was stopped immediately but the unfortunate man was so wedged beneath the car that it was some minutes before he could be removed.

He was taken to the office of Dr. C. M. Marstin where he was attended by Dr. Fillebrown. Later he was removed to the Quincy City Hospital in Hall's ambulance.

Reward Paid.

Officer Goodhue received a check for $100 this morning from the State Farm at Bridgewater. This was the amount of the reward offered for the capture of Edward King, an escaped insane criminal. Officer Goodhue captured King on the railroad tracks under the School street bridge on the night of June 25.

The officer first saw King at the Quincy Adams station. It was raining at the time and as the officer entered the station King jumped through a window and ran down the track. Officer Goodhue gave chase and caught the fellow, and after a severe tussle landed his prisoner at the police station. It was not until next morning that he learned that there was a reward offered for the man he had captured. Today is the first day of the officer's vacation, and the $100 will come in handy.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edwin D. Dodge and Rufus R. Kingman were fined $5 each for speeding automobiles at Milton.

Royal Norton was fined $3 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Ricci Mendi was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until August 15.

Chester N. Brown was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued until Aug. 22.

John Broderick was fined $15 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Evan J. Evans was arraigned for drunkenness at Cohasset. Case continued until Sept 12.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

Copyright, 1904, by Duncan M. Smith.

PAYING THE FIDDLER.

When you're feeling pretty blue,
Don't know what you've done or said,
Feel as if you'd like to chew
Off some stupid fellow's head
Just to show him where he's at,
Throw a brickbat at the cat.

When your nerves are all unstrung,
Rasped and tortured through and through,
Do not try to hold your tongue;
Do just what you want to do—
Don't control yourself at all;
Kick the table through the wall.

Just give all your feelings vent;
Lay about from left to right;
Probably you will repent—
Doesn't matter; spit your spite
Out upon the fellow who Happens to run into you.

When your anger all is done,
When you've finished with your brawl,
You can have a lot of fun
Squaring up the bills for all
Damages your temper wrought.
This will give you food for thought.

The Mortgage.

High water never washes away the mortgage. It may uproot trees and take the hencoops sailing on down to the next state, but after the floods have subsided the mortgage is still there as firmly as though it had been anchored to the foundations of the earth and then nailed down to the sills of the barn to make it doubly secure.

Cyclones may blow away the wood shed, unroof the house or take the haystack on a Cook excursion over into another county, but when the blow is over it is always found that not even a corner of the mortgage has been jarred.

Talk about sticking closer than a brother! There is a friend that hangs to the place like a porous plaster. Thieves do not come in and steal it, the sun does not warp it; neither does it wander off down the road every time the gate is left open.

For a good, practical recipe for losing a mortgage, men would pay most any sum; but, try their best, they simply can't.

Why It Is There.

Though rain the prohibition state may fall
When winds blow from the south,
The drug store, always within hail,
Can break the fiercest drouth.

Each the First.

"Did you ever kiss a girl before?"

"Of course not, and, besides, my darling, do you suppose I would own to it if I had? You don't think for a minute that I am going to admit to the next girl that I happen to fall in love with that I ever kissed you, do you?"

Matter of Definition.

"He lives a dog's life since he married the widow."

"You mean a married man's life," volunteered the incorrigible old bachelor, although it was not his put in.

Like Cures Like.

On close investigation
I think that you will find
Some who were cured by mind cure
Were sick but in their mind.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Appendicitis is not any more painful than cramp colic, but it is a great deal more stylish.

The man who has a large lawn to mow thinks he has discovered perpetual motion in growing grass.

A tramp never takes a telescope to look for work, no matter how anxious he may be to find it.

The average man is never so happy as, when he has succeeded along some line, in putting another man out of business.

If he hasn't one of his own, a boy selling matches has to hire a sick mother as a part of his stock in trade.

Some people by reason of the very superior quality of their nerve miss few of the good things of the world.

Heroes are men who have the good judgment to die at the psychological moment.

Some people are so light hearted that they won't take even a mother-in-law seriously.

It is not a very bright man who has to go two terms to the same school of experience.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Salt, though not agreeable, will heal any small cuts rapidly. It is an excellent disinfectant.

Plain soda water, taken in moderation, often aids digestion, but soda water with fruit sirups is bad for a weak stomach.

To relieve the pain in a finger that has been mashed or pounded, plunge the injured member into as hot water as the patient can stand.

One-half pint of vinegar, one tablespoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cayenne pepper and one pint of boiling water will cure night sweats. Mix, let cool and strain, and sponge the patient at bedtime.

A very good remedy for relieving earache is to fill a little bag of soft flannel with salt and make this very hot in the oven. Test it against your cheek to make sure it is not too hot, and then apply to the aching ear.

Children's Food.

A healthy, well developed child fifteen months old may be fed soft boiled eggs, well cooked cereals, beef juice, finely minced baked apples, toast and even dried homemade bread, barley gruel and plenty of pure milk and a moderate amount of cream if it agrees with the child. Do not allow the baby to taste harmful foods. The pernicious habit of giving baby "little tastes" of whatever it cries for cannot be too strongly condemned. It results in strife and often in severe illness. If the maid or nurse disobeys in regard to feeding the baby, she is not fit to have the care of a child. Better take this part of the work in your own hands and thus know what your baby eats.

Bogus Coffee.

It would seem that there is more profit in imitation than in the real thing. Six firms are engaged in making machinery to turn out bogus coffee beans made from a dough, molded into correct shape and varnished with coffee extract. Six firms making machines for other firms to use in manufacturing these bogus berries, mind you! It behooves the coffee buyer to examine closely the coffee she buys. The real coffee bean is lighter in color, generally a trifle smaller and tastes quite different from the imitation.—Detroit Free Press.

SEVENTY-SIX DEAD

List of Victims of Rio Grande Wreck May Be Lengthened

FILLED CARS ENGULFED

But Three of Their Occupants Believed to Have Escaped Death--Train Went Through Bridge Into Swollen Stream

Pueblo, Col., Aug. 9.—The wreck of the World's Fair flyer on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad near Eden, seven miles north of Pueblo, proves to have been one of the greatest railroad disasters in the history of the country. Two crowded passenger cars and a baggage car were engulfed in the torrent that tore out a trestle spanning Steele's hollow, otherwise known as Dry creek, and, so far as known, only three of the occupants of these cars escaped death. Two sleeping cars and a diner, completing the train, remained on the track at the edge of the abyss, and none of their occupants was killed or injured.

How many perished probably never will be definitely ascertained, for the treacherous sands are drifting over the bodies. Searching for the dead was begun on an extensive scale and still is in progress. All corpses found were brought to Pueblo and placed in four morgues here. At 8 o'clock last evening 76 bodies had been recovered and of these 50 had been identified.

Two bodies were taken from the stream at First street, Pueblo, more than eight miles from the point where the disaster occurred, and it is probable that some may be recovered even further down stream. None of the bodies is badly mutilated and all are in such condition as to be recognizable. Many identifications have been made by articles found on the bodies, no persons who viewed them recognizing the features.

F. M. Jones, the station agent at Eden, who was the first to go to the aid of the stricken people on the train, gives the following version of the accident:

"I was sitting in my office, a mile from the wreck, when suddenly a loud sound, followed by a series of smaller reports, startled me. I had heard of No. 11 passing Pinon from the operator there and at this time she was overdue more than six minutes, an unusual thing for the flyer.

"Becoming alarmed, I seized my lantern and ran up the track to the place where the bridge should have been. The faint rays of my lantern threw just enough light for me to distinguish three cars, but between myself and them there was a chasm 50 feet wide, through which dashed a river almost level with the ground upon which I stood. Opposite me I could make out the outlines of three cars, but the other four that usually make up No. 11 were nowhere in sight. I started across the mesa in the direction of the river, which was high and making much noise. After walking about half a mile I saw near the bank a dark object. It was almost stationary in midstream with one end swinging toward the left bank. I slipped off my clothes and plunged in, swimming in the direction in which I had come, as I knew the strong current would carry me down stream. By proceeding in this course I managed to get to the object, which proved to be a chair car, half on its side and held in position by an arm of land extending into the stream probably 15 feet. The roof of the car was gone and inside there was not a soul to be found. Guided by the light of my lamp on shore I struck out for the bank, and being a strong swimmer I reached it in a few minutes. The car, or what was left of it, broke loose and was completely demolished. It was then after midnight.

"There were two survivors of the wreck that I know of, the fireman and a passenger in a chair car. His story he told me in a dazed manner. He was sitting in the third chair from the rear of the car when the train turned upward and the suddenness precipitated him through the window and after turning a complete circle, he landed on the bank."

Flyer Wrecked In Indiana

Plainfield, Ind., Aug. 9.—Running at the rate of 60 miles an hour, a through train from St. Louis with 300 passengers aboard struck a broken rail near the depot here. Five cars were turned over and destroyed by fire, caused by the explosion of a gas storage tank. None of the passengers was killed, and only one was seriously injured. The fire which destroyed the coaches also consumed a grain elevator and a string of freight cars.

Freight Train Crew Drowned

Henderson, Ky., Aug. 9.—A fast freight west through an open bridge at Spottsville last night and the crew of eight were drowned. The bridge is swung on a pivot in the center and had been turned to admit the passage of a steamer.

President Reprimands Postmaster

Washington, Aug. 9.—The president has approved a report of the civil service commission recommending that Postmaster McMichael of Philadelphia be reprimanded as the result of the investigation of the charges filed by Robert B. Jenks, secretary of the Civil Service Reform association of Philadelphia, alleging political discriminations in McMichael's selection of employes.

Lawyer Duggan.

John A. Duggan was the only Quincy young man to be sworn in as attorney-at-law on Friday last. Mr. Duggan is the eldest son of the late John A. Duggan who was prominently connected in politics and street railway matters in this city. He attended the public schools, being graduated from the Quincy High school in the class of 1900. In the fall of that year he took up the study of law, at the Boston University Law school from which institution he received the degree of LL. B. in June, 1903. Mr. Duggan intends to open an office in Boston with an evening office in Atlantic early in September.

GOVERNOR BATES COMING FOR CORNER STONE LAYING.

HON. JOHN L. BATES.

HAS ACCEPTED

Invitation of the Quincy Y. M. C. A.

Sept 29 is the Date Selected.

Granite Firms Contributing Stone and Work.

Gov. Bates is coming!

Thursday, Sept. 29, the date!

Y. M. C. A. corner stone laying the great event!

Representative R. R. Freeman has been successful in securing a favorable reply from Gov. Bates to the invitation of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association to attend the laying of the corner stone of the new Association building on Washington street, and Sept. 29 has been agreed upon as the day.

The date is a little later than the Association desired, but absence of the Governor from the State a greater part of September made it necessary. Work on the building, however, will not be retarded, and should be well advanced.

The committee on the corner stone laying includes six prominent citizens, and now that the date has been selected, they will arrange a good program. Dr. Horace M. Willard, the ex-Councilman and principal of the Quincy Mansion school is chairman; other members are Dr. John A. Gordon, Amos D. Albee, Representative R. R. Freeman, Rev. E. N. Hardy and Councilman N. G. Nickerson.

One of the interesting features about the Young Men's Christian Association building is that all the stone which is being used in the foundation is being contributed by the quarry companies on the North Common.

Five quarry owners stating that they would load teams as fast as they were sent. More than 150 perch of stone has already been put on the lot and as more is needed.

This will be an item of considerable saving for the association and shows the spirit which is abroad in favor of the movement. The leading teamsters have each contributed one day or more of teaming.

The corner stone will be cut from a block of sap-face granite, a gift from Galvin Bros.' quarry. The cutting will be done at the sheds of Swingle & Falconer.

The work on foundation walls is progressing very well and is a piece of masonry hard to duplicate anywhere outside of Quincy.

BACK IN WALES.

John Evans Has No Love for the Lords, Dukes and Earls.

Snowdon Mountain, N. Wales,
July 29, 1904.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I am back from London, Leicester, Manchester, Birmingham and many of the large cities of the United Kingdom once more, and enjoying the balmy breezes of this most beautiful corner of the whole empire, Wales.

Snowdon is the highest mountain in England, from the top of it, which one can reach in one hour with the climbing train, can be seen the country for miles. Beautiful villages and thousands of little farms with their contented occupants making the hay or weeding their turnips, potatoes, etc. The sea is also visible on both sides. The steamers coming and going to all parts of the globe seem to be under your feet.

I spent last Sunday at the foot of this mountain with my cousin, Rev. J. Evans Owens of Llanberis, a town of 3,500 population. I am now taking a trip through these fertile valleys in a small trap with one of the smallest, cutest and smartest ponies in the country. It is a Welsh mountain pony.

It is hard for me to describe to you the beauty of this most beautiful land. It is dotted with small fields and every one of them fenced with thorn fences clipped so even and pretty that they would be appreciated by any in their front lawns.

The only thing that stings my heart is, that those loafers in the shape of lords, dukes, earls, counts and I don't know what, own all this land, and charge enormous rents, tithes and taxes on the poor people who work hard from sun to sun to make them so lovely and productive.

They are now in the height of their hay harvest. The crop is better than usual. Next month the grain harvest will be all the go. Between the two harvests every town has its Agricultural show where they bring the products of these farms—horses, cattle, pigs, sheep, farming implements, in fact everything they raise—for competition in prizes, etc.

Everyone seems to be happy and contented with their lot.

I am going next week to Ireland by way of Holyhead by the London and North Western railway and the Kingston boats. I shall visit Dublin, Cork, Killarney, Limerick, Listowel, Kilkee, Bray, Ovoca, Galway, Sligo, Navan, Old Castle and other places in Ireland.

My Irish friends will do well to take the Ledger, and watch what I will have to say about the old Emerald Isle.

SLADE----HASTINGS.

Well Known Quincy Young People Married at Northfield.

Just before the morning service, in the old Unitarian church at Northfield, Massachusetts, a quiet wedding took place on Sunday, August seventh. The contracting parties were Miss Mary Virginia Hastings and Mr. James Henry Slade, both well known young people of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. M. Wilson of the Northfield Unitarian church who was for many years pastor at the old Stone church, Quincy. Among the few relatives present were Mrs. James H. Slade of Quincy, mother of the groom, and Mrs. Sabin A. White of Orange, N. J., mother of the bride.

In the church service which immediately followed the ceremony, the well known sweet voice of the bride was heard. This is the church which her family always attended during their residence in Northfield, and where she sung many times before she came to Quincy to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Slade will reside at 277 Newport avenue, Wollaston.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam's family increased the number of telegrams sent from 72,000,000 to 91,000,000, an increase of 19,000,000 yearly.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Massachusetts people seem to be everywhere. Even in the railroad disaster in Colorado they are numbered among the dead and the saved.

Not much fault can be found with the August weather this year. Certainly not with such a day as today. It is said a hot wave is predicted, but we have had our hottest days of 1904.

C. P. Knox, the new Senator from Pennsylvania, who made such an efficient attorney general, recently said that "President Roosevelt is a wonderful man; he gets to the bottom of things very quick." That is really one of the reasons why some people profess to dislike him.

Boston is already resplendent with decorations for the Grand Army encampment of next week. Great interest is being shown in the visit of the veterans, but there is still quite a balance needed for the guarantee fund which should be promptly subscribed. Some Grand Army men have already arrived. It will probably be the last time Boston will have the G. A. R. encampment.

Now Boston seriously feels the injustice of tax laws which allow personal property to be taxed where stockholders reside, rather than where the business or manufacturing plant is located. Quincy as well as Boston suffers, while Brookline, Newton, Wellesley, Nahant and Cohasset are favored. Perhaps it would be better if corporation taxes were paid to the State, and the State tax on cities and towns reduced or abolished.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ If the breakfast food men should strike while the butchers are locked out, what, indeed, would the country do?—Louisville Herald.

☞ Dr. Ames, former Mayor of Minneapolis, convicted bribe taker, announces that he will run for Congress. It must be an immoral constituency that would give him a nomination, to say nothing of an election. Ames is a Republican in a Democratic district, and the nomination must be going abegging when he is permitted to stand for Congress.—Lynn Item.

☞ The southern cotton mills are not profiting by the suspension of manufacturing in Fall River, which is only another bit of evidence showing that the industry is in bad shape, and that Fall River manufacturers cannot be held accountable for conditions which have made it imperative to reduce wages. At a recent meeting of 75 Carolina, Georgia and Alabama mills it was decided to reduce production one fourth during August and September. Other southern mills are to join in the movement, and, as a matter of fact, most of them are on short time now.—Banker and Tradesman.

LIMIT TO PATIENCE

It Is Nearly Reached In Our Grievance Against Turkey

PLAINLY STATED BY HAY

Turkish Minister at Washington Put In Possession of a Few Facts Concerning Which He Was In Doubt

Washington, Aug. 9.—Secretary Hay has bluntly told Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister here, that the patience of the American government is well nigh exhausted. The minister is expected to communicate this information to his home government speedily.

Chekib Bey had no instructions from the porte when he called at the state department. He had seen the newspaper reports of the intention of the state department to second Minister Leishman's efforts diplomatically at Constantinople by the presence of a fleet of American warships in Turkish waters, and he doubted the reports. Secretary Hay soon satisfied him on that point, and the minister returned to his legation to frame a dispatch for the information of the Turkish officials.

He did not care to make any statement as to the nature of his interview with Mr. Hay. There appeared to be an impression in the mind of the Turkish statesman that because the President of the United States could not make war without the consent of congress he thereby was estopped from indulging in a naval demonstration to forward his purpose to secure fair treatment for the Americans in Turkey. It is believed that on this point also the Turkish minister was enlightened by Secretary Hay.

When Chekib Bey left the state department he evidently was in a state of concern over what he had heard. To repeated inquiries he admitted that he had heard nothing from his government on the subject. The minister was unwilling to discuss the dispatch which he expects to send to his government. He had been planning to go away for a brief rest, but said that he might be detained here now.

Porte May Hasten to Yield

Constantinople, Aug. 9.—The announcement of the dispatch of the American European squadron to Smyrna has perturbed the porte, and doubtless will hasten the solution of the questions at issue between the United States and Turkey in a manner satisfactory to the former. The porte promised Minister Leishman that a reply favorable to the American demand for the same favored treatment in the matter of schools, hospitals and charitable institutions as is accorded to other powers would be given Aug. 2. The giving of the answer was then postponed to Aug. 4, but up to the present time no answer has been received. The American legation has now sent a communication to the porte pointedly demanding a speedy and final settlement, the issuance of the necessary orders and the official acknowledgment by Turkey of the American demands.

Murdered and Thrown In Cistern

Charleston, Aug. 9.—The body of Jacob Kind, keeper of an illicit liquor shop, who has been missing since last Thursday, was found floating in the cistern on his premises last evening. There was a gash in the throat and several stabs in the breast. His clerk, Edward Kennedy, left Charleston Sunday night with considerable money, and every effort is being made to capture him.

Death of Mamie Gilroy

New York, Aug. 9.—Mamie Gilroy, an actress and singer who had appeared in many musical productions on the American stage, died at the home of her mother in this city. The cause of death was heart disease, which followed a brief illness. Miss Gilroy had completed arrangements to star in a road production when she was taken ill.

A New Zealand Earthquake

Wellington, N. Z., Aug. 9.—The heaviest earthquake which New Zealand has experienced in many years occurred at 10:22 o'clock this morning. Several public buildings were seriously damaged and private firms also suffered heavy losses. The shock was general on both islands. No loss of life has been reported.

Duel Over a Dollar

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Meeting alone on a bridge connecting two of Morris & Co.'s buildings, Robert Thomas and Joseph Chase, negro strike breakers, battled desperately. Finally Thomas plunged a knife into Chase's abdomen, inflicting a probably fatal wound. Thomas was arrested. The men fought over a dollar.

To Abate Dogfish Nuisance

Halifax, Aug. 9.—Three reducing plants to be operated by the government for the disposal of dogfish which infest the coast waters are to be built. The fishermen, who are anxious to exterminate the dogfish, will be paid a good price for their fish offal and all the dogfish they can bring in.

August Belmont at Rosemount

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 9.—August Belmont came here last night from New York and spent the evening with Judge Parker. Nothing can be learned regarding the conference between Parker and Belmont.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR

Move of the Heads of the North American Trust

Boston, Aug. 9.—A petition for the appointment of a receiver and a closing up of the affairs of the North American Trust has been brought in the supreme court by John M. Barry and Francis C. Webster, two of the trustees. The petition is brought against the North American Trust and Frank E. Lewis of Lowell.

The petitioners claim that because of various legal actions that have been brought against the company and because of the publicity it has lately received it can no longer conduct its business. A further ground for seeking the receivership is found in the claim that there has been a disagreement among the trustees regarding the distribution of the assets, and particularly regarding the distribution of certain funds contributed by Lewis, against whom the petition is in part directed.

Barry and Webster, the petitioners, were arrested by government officers on a charge of conspiring to defraud the public. The next day Charles Record, another trustee, surrendered himself to the authorities. A few days previous to the arrest of Barry and Webster the postal authorities held up the mail matter of the concern. The company had branch offices in many New England cities. The government officials claimed that the company's business was a lottery and was also fraudulent.

Prison Like Home to Him

Boston, Aug. 9.—Judge Gaskill sentenced Robert Hart to state prison for not more than 10 and not less than nine years for hurling a brick through the window of a jewelry store on Count street, scattering valuables all over the sidewalk. Bystanders picked up a good share of the articles. Hart, instead of trying to escape, remained an interested looker-on, and when the police came he calmly gave himself up. Later he said he committed the offense in order to get back to prison. "I've no other place in the world to go to," he declared. "I've been there so long that it's like home."

Yeggmen Got Away From Police

Boston, Aug. 9.—Three desperate yeggmen, two whites and a negro, attempted to tunnel their way through a vault in the cellar of Horace Osborne, 17 Lee street, Cambridge, where valuables were stored, yesterday afternoon, and, although a patrol wagon of police nearly caught the men, they eluded pursuit and escaped, followed by an ineffectual fusillade from the policemen's revolvers. The men are believed to be members of the same gang who carried a safe from the store of Julius Snyder at South Boston, to the strandway, opened and robbed it.

Death Due to Violence

Limington, Me., Aug. 9.—The coroner's jury which investigated the death of George Skillings, a horse trader and peddlar, aged about 40 years, whose body was found in his well on July 14, returned a verdict that Skillings came to his death at the hands of some person or persons unknown. The evidence will be submitted to the grand jury of the supreme court.

Recovery of Mace's Body

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 9.—The body of Captain Frank Mace of Marblehead, who was drowned from the yacht Louise off Magnolia, was recovered in 20 feet of water by a diver. A wound over the right eye explained why Mace did not rise to the surface after falling into the water. It is thought that in falling he struck the anchor, which rendered him unconscious.

Money For Hospital and Missions

Portland, Me., Aug. 9.—By the terms of the will of Mary E. Potter, $30,000 is bequeathed to the Maine general hospital, $2000 each to the American Board of Missions and the Congregational Home Missionary society and $1000 each to the American Missionary association and Good Will farm at East Fairfield.

Thought to Be a Robber

Newfane, Vt., Aug. 9.—Under the name of J. F. McCarthy, the stranger arrested in Brattleboro, charged with complicity in blowing open the safe of the Windham County Savings bank, in this town, was arraigned before Justice Skinner. McCarthy pleaded not guilty and was held in $1500 bonds for trial in September.

Increase In Boston's Tax Rate

Boston, Aug. 9.—Boston's tax rate for the coming year is to be $15.20 per thousand, an increase of 40 cents over that of the last two years. The principal reason for this state of affairs is the increased cost of running the city, owing to the state assessments, etc., with an insufficient increase in the income to offset it.

Second Accident Killed Him

Madison, Me., Aug. 9.—Just one hour after falling into the river and being rescued from drowning by fellow-workmen at the Great Northern Paper company's mills, Clifford Gilbert, aged 25, fell 70 feet from a cable extending to a mast head and was instantly killed.

Tobacco Crop Badly Damaged

Westfield, Mass., Aug. 9.—Damage to the tobacco crop to the amount of over $100,000 was done in this vicinity by a hailstorm of about 15 minutes. The crop was one of the finest which has been grown in this vicinity for some time.

On an Eastern Cruise

New London, Conn., Aug. 9.—The battleships Texas and Massachusetts, monitors Florida, Arkansas and Nevada, and training ships Hartford and Chesapeake have left here on a cruise to the eastward.

CITY BREVITIES.

Walter Cody of Wollaston, has returned to Charlottetown, P. E. I.

The Wollaston Yacht club will have a club championship race on Saturday.

James H. Cunningham, the Overseer of the Poor, is at Oakland, Me., for two weeks.

Miss Lottie B. Perry of Arnold street has returned from a month's visit to Sharon, Vt.

The Harrington estate on Sumner street will be sold at auction on Saturday in three parcels.

Charles F. McGilvray, druggist of Music Hall pharmacy, is spending his vacation at St. John, N. B.

Masters Vivian and Elliot McCarthy of Beale street are visiting their grandparents at Charlottetown, P. E. I.

Sidney F. Shirley of the Globe won the net prize on Monday on the Wollaston links, in the play-off for the net prize of the Press Golf club tournament with W. U. Swan.

Mr. and Mrs. Sabin A. White of Northfield have issued cards announcing the marriage of their daughter, Mary Virginia Hastings to Mr. James Henry Slade, on Sunday, August the seventh. Mr. and Mrs. Slade will be at home at Wollaston.

A very largely attended Italian picnic was held at New Downer Landing on Monday by "high-tone" Boston societies. Many of the men wore elaborate uniforms. On the return trip by electrics they carried many large birch branches.

After the dinner on Saturday of the Wollaston Yacht club it is said that the members gathered on the broad verandas of the Inn and listened to the stories of thrilling escapes on the briny deep told as only "Bill Fields" has courage to tell them.

Mrs. W. T. Babcock and Miss Corinne Babcock left Quincy Saturday for a few days as guests of Miss Valentine at her home in Ashland, Mass. Miss Valentine will be remembered by many as a very successful assistant in the High school here when Mr. Keith was principal. Miss Valentine and her cousin Miss Wheeler, now own the homestead at Ashland, which is a pleasant and interesting old house surrounded by beautiful elm trees.

The First Newspapers.

The first newspapers, the Venetian gazettes, were for many years circulated only in manuscript because the government would not allow their publication in print. Becoming scurrilous, they were prohibited in every part of Italy by a special bull issued by Gregory XIII.

A Plant Barometer.

There is a species of plant in Australia that by its behavior will accurately foretell not only the state of the weather, but will give notice of a seismic disturbance which may be at hand.

The British Epaulet.

In the British army the epaulet dates back to the year 1791. In more recent times the officers wore golden and the men worsted epaulets. But these were discontinued in 1855, during the Crimean war, because officers thus distinguished were exposed to needless risk.

The First Balloon.

The idea of the balloon first occurred to the Montgolfier brothers from seeing a large piece of paper fall over the fire, become inflated with smoke and hot air, rise and sail away.

Consumptives In Germany.

In Germany when a person breaks down with consumption he is sent to a government sanitarium, where he is kept until he recovers or dies. In the meantime his family receives a weekly pension from a fund to which the patient himself contributed when he was in good health. By this means the risk of spreading the disease is avoided.

Salicylic Acid.

Salicylic acid is an ingredient of strawberries and to a less degree of most other fruits.

An Odd Coincidence.

The anniversary of the death of the first Napoleon at St. Helena is the one and only day in the year when the setting sun appears framed within the curve or archway of the Arc de Triomphe at Paris. Is it coincidence or fate?

Debt as Livelihood.

An applicant for relief in England, who recently appeared before the Swansea guardians, said he lived by getting into debt.

Cattle In Bavaria.

Cattle in Bavaria are much used in plowing and hauling. They are frequently yoked in a curious manner, so that the pull comes from the forehead and not from the neck, or, rather, shoulders, which is the ordinary way elsewhere.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR

Steam or Hot Water Heaters

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

NO DEFINITE NEWS

Actual Situation In Manchuria Not Known at St Petersburg

JAPS LOSE TWO CRUISERS

Besiegers Surround Outer Defenses of Port Arthur, Where Panic Is Said to Exist--Stoessel Said to Have Killed Himself

St. Petersburg, Aug. 9.—There is increasing impatience among all classes for decisive news from Liao Yang. Lieutenant General Sakharoff's report that there has been no change in the Manchurian army's sphere of operations merely adds to the tension, which possibly will continue for some time.

There is no telling how long the notoriously slow and methodical preparations of the Japanese may occupy before they feel ready to advance on General Kuropatkin's strong positions. Every day's delay gives the Russian commander better opportunity to fortify or to get away in case he decides to avoid a big battle, though it is not generally thought here that there is much likelihood of his retreating without a decisive fight.

Viceroy Alexieff's dispatch from Mukden communicating official messages from Port Arthur bears out the reported loss of the Japanese protected cruisers Itsukushima and Chiyoda and indicates considerable activity on the part of the Port Arthur squadron. The care exercised in sending a dredger fleet ahead of the squadron, both in leaving and returning to the harbor, is amply vindicated by the loss of only one of the pilot boats and is also taken as guarantee that there will be no further damage to the Russian warships by Japanese mines.

The report that the Japanese are landing troops in Louisa bay (nine miles northwest of Port Arthur) evokes no surprise at the war office. The officials there are astonished that the Japanese had neglected to do so at the outset of the siege of Port Arthur. This enables the besiegers to surround the outer defenses and feel out the weakest point and drive home an attack where least expected. The war office does not confirm the Chefoo report of an attack on Port Arthur Aug. 5, and believes the telegram refers to the assault of July 20, 27 and 28.

A Terrible State of Affairs

London, Aug. 9.—According to the correspondent of The Morning Post at Shanghai, it is reported there that there are 10,000 sick and wounded persons at Port Arthur and that the Russians are negotiating with the Japanese to send the hospital ship Mongolia away full of sick.

It is reported, the correspondent says, that Lieutenant General Stoessel (in command of the military forces at Port Arthur) has committed suicide and that panic prevails at Port Arthur.

Marquis Oyama (commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces in Manchuria) has proceeded north and expects to attack Liao Yang Aug. 20.

Assault on Port Arthur

Chefoo, Aug. 9.—The firing of heavy guns at intervals of one minute has been distinctly heard in the direction of Port Arthur since 10:30 p. m. yesterday, the acoustic conditions of the atmosphere being unusually favorable.

Americans Tinkering the Fulton

St. Petersburg, Aug. 9.—The engineer, six men and three pilots belonging to the submarine boat Fulton have arrived from the United States and are preparing the boat for her trials at Cronstadt.

CONTRABAND OF WAR

Fuel and Raw Cotton Should Not Be Classed as Such

Washington, Aug. 9.—"The recognition in principle of the treatment of coal and other fuel and raw cotton as absolutely contraband of war might ultimately lead to a total inhibition of the sale of neutrals to the people of belligerent states of all articles which could finally be converted to military uses. Such an extension of the principle by treating coal and other fuel and raw cotton as absolutely contraband of war, simply because they are shipped by a neutral to a non-blockaded port of a belligerent, would not appear to be in accord with the reasonable and lawful rights of a neutral commerce."

This is a summary of a declaration by Secretary Hay on the right of neutral nations during war. It was embodied in a circular to American ambassadors to Europe which was issued from the state department June 10 last, but for some reason was withheld from the public, although certain shippers who inquired at the department after their right were supplied with copies. The circular is based on a declaration by the Russian government that coal, naphtha, alcohol, and other fuel have been declared contraband.

"Sound and Reasonable"

London, Aug. 9.—London newspapers contain editorials strongly approving the circular issued by Mr. Hay as to what constitutes contraband of war. The Times says: "Mr. Hay lays down a sound and reasonable rule on the subject. We trust our government will not delay in letting it be known that we fully share the views of the United States and that we shall steadfastly uphold them."

Meeting of Democratic Committee

New York, Aug. 9.—The national Democratic executive committee was in session five hours, but an epitome of the work, prepared by Secretary Woodson, does not go into details of the meeting. The members of the committee were also very reticent, although the statement was made that the session was harmonious and the conclusions were reached without discord. It was decided not to establish branch headquarters in the west at present. Every member of the committee said that the existing differences between McCarren and Murphy in greater New York were not taken up.

Arsenal Fire Loss of $2,000,000

Toulon, Aug. 9.—The arsenal fire was finally brought under control late last night. During the entire day squads of sailors and soldiers manned the pumps. There were 19 casualties among the troops. Of the three torpedo gunboats which were lying at the burned slips, two escaped to sea without injury, but the other was seriously damaged. The losses will exceed $2,000,000.

Wheat Options Above Dollar Mark

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Under the excited buying by frightened shorts, wheat bulged 3 3-8 cents a bushel, following a net advance of 9 cents last week, due to crop damage reports. A fresh series of sensational rust damage dispatches from the northwest caused the excitement. About everybody who was short started to cover. September sold up to 101 1-8, December 100 1-4 and May 102.

Charged With Killing Soldier

New York, Aug. 9.—Arthur B. Fink, proprietor of a saloon near Fort Schuyler, and Christian Acker, a private in the coast artillery, were arrested last night, charged with the murder of J. P. Hammett, an artilleryman, who was found floating in Westchester creek with a bayonet wound in his chest.

Many Matrimonial Failures

Des Moines, Aug. 9.—Lewis Brindley, a Des Moines butcher, 25 years old, bears the distinction of living with his sixth wife. Brindley is not bound to the previous five, they having taken advantage of the divorce laws to be rid of him when he manifested a loss of affection for them.

NEWS IN BRIEF

George B. Sands, 76, a retired dry goods merchant of St. Stephen, N. B., received injuries by a fall from a steamer at Eastport, Me., which resulted in his death.

D. A. McPherson, one of the leading butter and cheese exporters of Canada, fell off the steamer Bohemian while she was passing through Coteau rapids, above Montreal, and was drowned.

Creditors with claims amounting to $775,000 petitioned for a receiver for the Chicago branch of the United Button company of New York. Judge Kohlsaat appointed Thomas H. Stevanson receiver.

ICE BOYCOTT SANCTIONED

How Strikers Hope to Win In Their Fight With Packers

Chicago, Aug. 9.—The union teamsters are to be the principal weapon which the labor leaders propose to use to win the stockyards strike. Orders have been issued to drivers of ice wagons to deliver no more ice to butchers who buy of the big packers or to any branch house of the packing plants where the men are now on strike. The order is a duplication of the one issued last week, but which was never enforced because it had not been sanctioned by the international officers of the Teamsters' union. This was done yesterday. The packers claim to now have the situation well in hand.

New York Butchers to Strike

New York, Aug. 9.—The advisory board of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workers' Union of North America, at a meeting last night, decided to order a strike in New York and vicinity. Between 3000 and 4000 men will be called out. Slaughtering stopped at 8 o'clock this morning and 24 hours will be spent in cleaning up so as to leave the abattoirs in good condition.

To Collect Funds For Strikers

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 9.—The committee of collectors which will tour the country soliciting funds for the textile strikers met last night and selected their companions and decided upon the districts to be visited. There are 34 collectors in the party. About 1000 needy cases among the mill operatives have been attended to by the relief committee since the relief stations were opened yesterday morning. The day's work represented an expenditure of approximately $1500.

Thousands of Workmen Involved

New York, Aug. 9.—The general lockout against unions in the building trades whose members have recently ordered strikes, in alleged violation of an arbitration agreement, has gone into effect. The number of men affected by the lockout is variously estimated at from 50,000 to 100,000. About half of these are skilled workmen, the remainder being laborers, whose employment depends upon the skilled workers.

Gained Nothing by Long Strike

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 9.—The carpenters' strike, which has been on for 14 weeks, was declared off last night. The men returned to work today without having gained a single concession from the contractors. Their demand was for a minimum wage rate of $3 a day of eight hours for a term of three years from May 1. When the strike went into effect 225 men quit work.

No Applications For Aid

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 9.—At a meeting of the striking employes of the United States Cotton company last night it was announced that financial aid was being received from several labor unions throughout Rhode Island, but as yet none of the strikers have applied for aid.

American Supremacy on the Seas

London, Aug. 9.—Captain Brassey, editor of the "Naval Annual," speaking at Catfield, said he was convinced that within 10 years the command of the seas would have passed from Great Britain to the United States. The latter country, he declared, is now building more battleships than England is and its resources are greater than are those of Great Britain, whose only hope of maintaining her supremacy on the sea was a federation through which the colonies would aid in the building up and maintenance of the navy of the mother country.

Business Men's Close Call

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 9.—A party of 11 business men narrowly escaped drowning in Narragansett bay through the sinking of a 38-foot catboat. The party had been sailing but a short time when the craft struck Montcalm rock, about a mile from shore. The yacht quickly went off again, but begun to rapidly fill. Her bow was turned for the nearest land and the party effected a landing, the boat sinking a short distance from shore.

Captain and Three Men Drowned

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 9.—Schooner Ella Frances of Rockland, Me., was sunk off Cape Cod on Saturday by the steamer Nantucket, from Boston to Norfolk. Captain Thorndike and three members of the crew of the schooner were drowned. One man was saved and landed at Norfolk.

Vessels Collided In Fog

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Aug. 9.—Two collisions between vessels of the coasting fleet occurred off Vineyard sound lightship during a heavy fog, but the wind was light at the time and at least three of the four sustained no serious damage. The fourth vessel has not yet reported.

Two to Noorna's Credit

Montreal, Aug. 9.—Noorna defeated White Bear in the third race of the series for the Seawanhaka cup and has now won two contests, White Bear scoring one. The difference at the finish was 3m. 45s. The race was sailed over a course of 12 miles.

Cheap Grand Army Fares

Chicago, Aug. 9.—The rate war over the Grand Army business has broken out afresh. The Grand Trunk announces that its rate from Chicago to Boston will be $15.40 for the round trip.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Aug. 10.
Sun rises—4:46; sets—6:53.
Moon rises—3:38 a. m.
High water—10 a. m.; 10:15 p. m.

Fair weather with moderate temperatures will prevail in New England.

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE.

Every Woman Should Spare Herself All Unnecessary Work.

"I hold," said the head of a household recently to me, "that it is the duty of every woman, especially a mother, to spare herself as much as she possibly can. But when you come to look into the matter, you will half believe that they are bent on killing themselves. For instance, look at the woman who does the washing and ironing of her family. Ask her why she does not buy one of the labor saving washing machines and she will reply that she cannot afford it. But if you go into her parlor you will find a piano, or, if not that, then pieces of expensive furniture that could easily have been done without, or their places filled with simpler articles. On ironing day you will see her bending over the board in a hot kitchen, while the dining room is shut up. Ask her why she does not do her ironing there and she will answer that she wants to save the carpet, or keep the apartment cool. And the number of unnecessary articles that you will behold when her ironing is finished! Why, since she must do the work, will she not dress her children plainly and thereby spare herself long hours in pressing out tucks and ruffles which at the end of a day's wear are again fit for the washtub? And all the necessary articles do not require to be ironed, when there is only one pair of hands to do the work, and of the house. We see the same foolish expenditure of strength in cooking. The average mother spends the best part of her day in the kitchen, in work that is not only unnecessary, but also unhygienic. If we ate less, and that little were scientifically prepared, not only would the mother husband her energy, but the family would possess better health.—Beatrice Bancroft in Men and Women.

THE WOMAN MINISTER.

She Has Come to Stay In the Congregational Church.

The woman minister has come to stay in Congregationalism. While other denominations, like the Methodists and Episcopalians, refuse to ordain women, the Congregational denomination, in most sections of the country, at least, seems willing to approve well qualified women or to extend to them the same opportunities in the Congregational ministry that are offered to worthy and well educated men. The divinity schools of the denomination admit women to their courses, and some of them, like Hartford Theological seminary, make a specialty of the opportunities offered women.

And yet it is not likely that there will be such a pressure from the feminine side of the house into the ranks of the ministry as to crowd the men to the wall. As in the case of the law and medicine, it will probably only be the occasional woman in coming years who will choose the ministry for her profession. But it seems certain that, provided they possess the desirable natural and acquired qualifications, women will be welcome in the Congregational ministry, at least, and find an important work to do for their fellow men and women. The ministry, like every other profession, must be judged by its fruits and subjected to this ancient but still pertinent test. The women preachers throughout the country are doing honor to their sex and are scoring a success which might not have been anticipated a quarter of a century ago.—Boston Transcript.

What's the Difference?

"Why, her grandfather was a surgeon."

"Well, mine was a butcher."

The Natural Inference.

"Who is at the telephone?"

"Your wife, sir."

"What does she want?"

"The only word I can understand is 'numskull.'"

"Let me come there. She probably wants to talk with me."

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear has returned from a week's vacation.

Mrs. Malone of South street has been in very feeble health the past few days.

Charles Turner has returned from Bath, Maine, and reports a very pleasant visit.

Mrs. James E. Myers and son Harold leave today for Cotuit, Mass. where they will be the guest of Capt. and Mrs. W. B. Crosby.

Joseph Barraja, lately of the draughting department of the Fore River Co., left last week for New York, where he will make his future home.

Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., will assemble at G. A. R. hall, next Tuesday at 8 A. M., in full uniform, to take part in the Boston parade.

The High school at Millbury of which John O. Hall, Jr., of this city will be principal, will open in September with a complete new corps of teachers.

John P. S. Churchill clerk at the district court is away on a two weeks vacation. Geo. E. Adams is officiating as clerk during Mr. Churchill's absence.

Mrs. Frank E. Burgess of Beach street mourns the loss of her sister Miss Harriet Thing, who died at her home in South Boston, Monday morning.

Miss Ruby B. Betts of Wollaston attended the opening hop at Hotel Eastman, Mt. Kearsarge, N. H., Monday evening. She wore white muslin and lace.

People are beginning to wonder when the weeds are going to be removed from the sidewalk on South street near the Connor estate. It is impossible for one to pass on the sidewalk without getting covered with burrs.

The members of "Welcome house," a refuge for young girls in Boston, were entertained at the residence of Mrs. Babcock on Friday afternoon, Aug. 5, by St. Margaret's guild of young ladies of Christ church. Supper was eaten under the trees, preceded by games and music from a phonograph in the skilful hands of Mrs. Lawson of the Chestnut street store.

Wife and Brother Arrive.

Mrs. Angelo Rizzi, wife of the man who was drowned in the Quincy reservoir on Saturday, with the unfortunate man's brother, Joseph Rizzi, have arrived in Quincy from Barre, Vt., to claim the body. According to a dispatch from Barre, Rizzi left that city a month ago, and went to Harrisburg, Pa., from which place he came to Quincy.

A PROTEST.

Does Quincy Need a Judge Emmons?

Disorderly Conduct at Squantum Head.

Claim That It Causes Depreciation of Property.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Is it not about time for a protest to be made by the Mayor and the city authorities of Quincy against the use of the City of Boston land at Squantum Head for such drunken and disorderly purposes as it is at present?

It is a shame that such an historic spot, one of the most beautiful headlands in Boston Harbor should be used as it is at present. Being unfortunately under the control of the street department of the City of Boston, some 60 permits were granted this year to campers, each tent containing from four to ten men and women.

The writer on Sunday afternoon saw men and women in all stages of intoxication lying clasped in each others arms, rolling about under the apple trees in full view of every passer by. Each electric brought more crowds of young men and women and the sight of such immorality had certainly a debasing effect upon all.

Young boys not over 13 years of age have been seen there many times intoxicated the past summer. The one police officer stationed there has his hands full. He is one of the ablest men of the Quincy police and is paid by the City of Boston, but he is powerless to act unless there is some gross violation of the law, as these people hold permits from the City of Boston.

Last Sunday afternoon some twenty young rowdies came out from the grounds and proceeded on a tour all over Squantum, smashing fences, insulting women and children, who were quietly bathing on private estates and breaking up the fences upon the properties.

When night comes matters become much worse, and the grounds at Squantum Head become the scene of orgies that are disgraceful.

Is it not about time that a protest was made against all this, especially upon the Sabbath. Why should Quincy tolerate such a plague spot at her very doors? Why should not the city of Boston be compelled to place the park at Squantum Head under park rules and have it managed properly and decently?

Squantum property has depreciated fully fifty per cent. since the city of Boston has maintained this nuisance at Squantum Head, and it will continue to depreciate unless some steps are taken by the city officials in this matter.

There seems to be no legitimate excuse for the maintenance of this nuisance by the city of Boston, as it brings in no money, on the contrary is only a bill of expense for police service, etc.

The purpose of this letter is to try to arouse in the minds of the city officials a sense of the duty they owe, not only to themselves, but to peaceful law-abiding citizens as well as to our young children about us, to rid Squantum and Atlantic of the gross immoral practices and lawlessness at Squantum Head.

This morning the writer took a trip down to the place. It was a sight to see. This beautiful spot was littered from one end to the other, with newspapers, bottles, playing cards, garbage, swill, tin cans, paper boxes and litter of all kinds.

How can it be otherwise with several hundred persons and their friends camping out without any adequate sanitary conveniences?

Will not the Mayor heed this protest, or shall we have to try to find a Judge Emmons for Quincy? Atlantic.

BOSTON TAX RATE.

Valuation and Receipts Not Up to Expectations.

Boston's tax rate has gone up forty cents so that it is the largest since 1884. Six of the wards report a loss in real estate valuation, and fifteen a loss in personal property. There is a net gain of $16,581,528 in assessed valuation but last year the gain was over $29,000,000. A similar gain was anticipated by the aldermen and council when the appropriations were made this year, but it did not materialize, and therefore the tax rate goes up.

An increase of forty cents on a thousand in Boston will raise $494,815.54, and it will be seen that Boston expenses are increasing at a rapid pace.

Chairman Comins of the board of assessors says: "The loss in personal property, $3,981,072, can be accounted for by the general dullness of business, the depreciation in the value of public securities, the distribution of various large trust properties to individuals residing outside of the city, and by a large number of business concerns (the partners of which live outside of the city) taking the advantage offered by the new Massachusetts corporation law and incorporating thereunder, thus paying their taxes in the cities of their individual domicile, and nothing to Boston for care of streets, police and fire protection, etc."

The Herald says editorially: "We live in a time when the pressure for public spending is enormous, and the day of reckoning is given little thought until it comes around, as it is sure to do. Appropriations were based on an estimated increase of valuation for the year that the assessors could not make in view of the actual state of affairs. There has been an increase in the rate of state, county and city taxation. The state tax has gone up six cents on the thousand dollars, the county tax four cents, and the city tax thirty cents, a total increase of forty cents. This is the first year since 1898 that shows a decrease from the previous year in the amount of taxable personal property."

Can You Blame Them?

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

NEW PLANT.

Larger Gas Mains to Replace Present Ones.

Extensions Also to be Made.

About $100,000 to be Expended in Improvements.

The Citizens' Gas Co. has commenced work clearing the land at South Quincy recently purchased by the company for its new plant. A spur from the main line of the railroad is also being built so that material for the new plant may be landed on the spot.

It is the intention of the company to commence work immediately upon its plant.

The company also find that it will be necessary to entirely repipe the city, as the present mains are too small to give an adequate supply. The main supply pipe from the present works on Brackett street is but a six inch pipe, while the new main to be laid will be a sixteen inch pipe.

In addition to repiping the district already supplied, the company intends to extend its mains to many sections not now reached.

The new plant and the new mains and extensions proposed will, it is estimated cost $100,000.

A Rescue Just Reported.

Thomas F. Donnelly of Roxbury wants to thank J. H. Malloy, a 14-year-old lad who saved him from drowning at Quincy on Sunday. He says:

"I fell into the water at Quincy Point Yacht club pier last Sunday. No one was around except Malloy and two older companions. Malloy dived in and held me up until his friends pulled me into a boat."

TODAY'S COURT.

John Nelson and John Glen were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Cases continued until Aug. 15.

Daniel McCarty was arraigned for assault on John O. Neil at Quincy. He was fined $5.

The continued case of Forbes Craig, Jr., for being concerned in building a bon fire at South Quincy on the night of July 3, was called and again continued until Sept 28.

The continued case of Frank Mullen for assault on the crossing tender at the Quincy Adams depot was heard. He was found guilty and a fine of $5 imposed.

GEORGE FOSTER PEABODY.

The New Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

George Foster Peabody, who was chosen treasurer of the Democratic national committee at the recent meeting in Indianapolis, Ind., has for many years been active as a Democrat, but is better known as financier and philanthropist than as politician. He is a member of the banking house of Spencer Trask & Co. and is an officer in a large number of influential corporations. Mr. Peabody has been particularly noted for his interest in various reform movements, his generous contributions of both money and personal effort in furtherance of education in the south and his faith in the industrial future of the republic of Mexico.

Born in 1852 in Columbus, Ga., Mr. Peabody may call himself a southerner, yet the most of his life has been spent in the north, for his parents removed to Brooklyn when he was eleven years of age, and that city has since been his home. As a boy he attended the Deer Hill institute at Danbury, Conn., but he went to work in a dry goods store at fourteen, and his subsequent education was obtained by taking literary and scientific courses at the Brooklyn Young Men's Christian association. After fourteen years in the dry goods business he turned his attention to finance and won national reputation in this field. He was a member of the Indianapolis monetary convention. In 1896 he supported the Palmer and Buckner ticket.

GEORGE FOSTER PEABODY.

PRESIDENT CASTRO AGAIN.

Asphalt Controversy Directs Attention to Venezuelan Executive.

It is a rare day when the government of Venezuela is not embroiled in some kind of trouble under its present arbitrary executive, General Cipriano Castro. According to United States Minister Herbert W. Bowen, the Venezuelan government has acted with high handed injustice in the matter of the asphalt controversy now exciting attention. The minister intimates that there was collusion between the executive and judicial branches of the government in the seizure of the asphalt company's property and that this seizure was in defiance of the statutes of Venezuela. The asphalt lakes of the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company were seized by the Venezuelan government under the authority of an embargo or injunction issued by a Venezuelan court, by which a receiver was appointed for the property. The company has enjoyed a concession from the Venezuelan government, and it is claimed the procedure was illegal.

It is now about two years since President Castro had a lively revolution on his hands. Close on the heels of the revolution—indeed, before it was entirely suppressed—came the trouble with the allied European powers regarding unsettled claims for damages. War was only averted by the action of the United States in having the difficulty referred to arbitration.

President Castro is a swarthy complexioned little man with high forehead and short beard, and he is said to have considerable Indian blood in his veins. He rose from muleteer to be president and rules Venezuela by the power of fear. He came to the presidency through the overthrow of his predecessor, Senor Andrade.

Mr. Mutt Came To Rebuild His House

"YES," said Mr. Mutt, "it was rather odd, the way I came to rebuild my house. You see, Mrs. Mutt was in town one day and happened to buy a very handsome hall lamp, one of the kind that stands on the post of the stair banisters," and then he went on to describe the development of the house:

"Well, as soon as she got the lamp home we saw that it was too large for the style of the stairs, so I had to get the carpenters to come in and widen them and put in new balustrades and posts, and set them over more toward the center of the hall. When that was done the hall didn't look like a hall at all, and I had to have the carpenters tear out the walls and make the old dining room into a new hall.

"Then, of course, the kitchen had to be torn away and rebuilt at the back of the house, so that the old kitchen would do for a sitting room, and there had to be a new dining room built to match the finish of the hall. And when things got so far we saw at once that we had to have a library off the hall, and then the veranda had to go to make room for the library, and my pet rosebushes came up to give a chance to build the new veranda.

"Well, to make a long story short, I had to remodel the second story to match the first, and put a third story on in order to take care of the rooms that were crowded out by the changes in the second. And so I had a new house all round."

"And was your wife pleased?"

"Only partly. You see, just on the last day, when the carpenters had completed the third story and were finishing work on the whole job, one of them dropped his hammer through the skylight, and it fell to the hall and smashed the lamp that had started the whole thing."—Tit-Bits.

Keeping Up the Delusion.

"Yes, we have stopped eating meat at our house."

"You must find it rather hard at first, don't you?"

"Well, yes. But we are doing our best to break in the change gently. We use lots of vegetables, you see, and serve them in a way that suggests meat as closely as possible. We have beets a la mode, and our cook trims the turnips so they look like French chops, and we have Hamburger parsnips and porterhouse potatoes and onion tenderloins and sirloin of cabbage and Boston sausages."

"And what are Boston sausages?"

"Why, they are gelatin fillers stuffed with brown bread and beans."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In Memoriam.

"Rather handsome young widow, isn't she?"

"She's more than 'rather handsome.' I think she's one of the handsomest women in town."

"Too bad she has such poor taste."

"I can't agree with you if you think she has poor taste."

"Every one of her diamonds is nothing more than paste."

"Oh, that may be so. She probably wears them in memory of her husband. He was a billposter."—St. Paul News.

He Knew.

Of course it happened when there was company present.

"Mother," said Willie's elder sister, who had been reading a nautical story, "what is a spanker boom?"

"You bet I know," broke in Willie vociferously.

Then they all made haste to change the subject, not because Willie knew, but because he thought he knew.—Chicago Post.

Merely Wished to Know.

"Miss Passay," he said, "there is something I have for some time wished to ask you."

"Oh," she gasped, "I'm so glad—that is I—I mean, is it anything personal?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Contrary to Tradition.

We thought he was a genius,
But we've rather lost respect.
In several particulars
He doesn't seem correct.
He's industrious and clever,
Makes a speech or sings a song,
But his clothes all seem to fit him,
And his hair is none too long.

The grocer and the tailor
Say he always pays his debts.
The town he's never painting,
And his family never frets.
Of course he's just plain people,
Nothing picturesque or quaint.
We thought he was a genius,
But we're kind o' glad he ain't.

"HONEST DEFEAT"

Chandler Prefers It to Being Taken Off Delaware Ticket

IS NAMED FOR GOVERNOR

Addicks Men Steal a March on the "Regulars," and Their Candidate Is Likely to Be Displaced Before Campaign Opens

Dover, Del., Aug. 10.—Dr. Joseph H. Chandler, when nominated for governor of Delaware by the "regular" Republican convention yesterday, created a profound stir by taking the platform and declaring that he accepted the nomination under the sole condition that he would enter the fight to the end and stay on the ticket until November. "I would rather suffer honest defeat," he declared, "than be pulled off the ticket that somebody else might be substituted."

This was received with deafening cheers from the Dupont men, who had won a victory over the Higgins forces in nominating Chandler. The "regulars," who composed the convention, are really outnumbered by the Union, or Addicks, Republicans, and when in recent years they have made out a ticket it has always been with the understanding that a truce would be patched up later and both Republican factions would agree to trade and substitute the nominees, making one ticket to meet the united Democrats.

Many of the Dupont delegates, after the completion of the state ticket, thinking they had won a victory against any alliance with Addicks or Addicks Republicans, left for their homes.

The Higgins men, who are more conciliatory to the Addicks Republicans, and desire one state ticket even at a sacrifice, after many of the delegates had left got through a resolution empowering the state central committee to make any changes upon the ticket named yesterday, which, in their judgment, is necessary to bring about the success of the whole Republican ticket in Delaware.

The platform endorsed Roosevelt and demands the enforcement of the vigorous Delaware laws against bribery.

It is not considered possible that the Union Republicans will endorse the nomination of Chandler for governor, although they may not object to Knowles for congress or to Richards for attorney general.

PARKER ACCEPTS

Outline of Platform Upon Which He Will Seek Presidency

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Alton B. Parker was today formally notified of his nomination as Democratic candidate for the presidency of the United States. Flags and bunting were draped about the low platform from which the speeches were delivered, on the lawn just north of the house. Over 1000 persons heard the speeches, many Ulster county folk being present.

In his speech of acceptance Mr. Parker repeated his declaration that he regarded the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established. He said that we must ever be on our guard against the danger of usurpation of that authority which resides in the whole people, whether the usurpation be by officials representing one of the three great departments of government or by a body of men acting without a commission from the people. Touching upon the Colorado labor war, he said that the essence of good government lies in strict observance of constitutional limitations, enforcement of law and order and rugged opposition to all encroachment upon the sovereignty of the people. The present tariff law was declared to be unjust in its operation, excessive in many of its rates and so framed in particular instances as to exact inordinate profits from the people; Mr. Parker asserted the necessity of its revision. Referring to trusts, he said that the fact that they have increased in power has been due to the failure of officials charged with the duty of enforcing the law to take the necessary procedure to procure the judgments of the courts in the appropriate jurisdiction. Mr. Parker expressed opposition to militarism and imperialism and said that, should he be elected, he would not be a candidate for nor would he accept a renomination.

To Look Over Battleground

New York, Aug. 10.—The first formal meeting of the Republican executive committee developed the fact that the real work of the campaign can be proceeded with. It was found, however, that only in a general way did the members of the committee know what the political situation was in the so-called doubtful states. Steps will at once be taken to procure full and accurate information from trustworthy sources in every part of every state that is now considered a battleground.

Wisconsin Claimed For Roosevelt

Washington, Aug. 10.—Senator Spooner of Wisconsin had a conference with the president and the talk related to general politics and to the situation in Wisconsin. "I haven't the slightest apprehension about the electoral vote of Wisconsin," said Spooner. "It certainly will be cast for Roosevelt and Fairbanks. Our local trouble does not affect the national ticket at all."

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Minnie E., wife of Mr. Murdock Gillis, died suddenly Tuesday afternoon at her home at 24 Chestnut street. Mrs. Gillis had made no complaint of being ill and apparently was as well as she had been for years. During the early part of the afternoon she went up stairs and was in the act of moving a lamp from a table when she fell over dead. The noise of her fall was heard by those in the rooms below but no attention was paid to it, so that it was some minutes before they found her. Dr. Garey was summoned but Mrs. Gillis was beyond all human aid. Heart disease is given as the cause of her death. She was 25 years of age.

LAST STRAW.

Outlook Not Bright for Quincy Granite.

Now Seriously Handicapped in Trade.

But There Are Rumors of Further Demands by Labor.

The present bill of prices between the Granite Manufacturers and Cutters' Union expires March 1 of next year, and if a change is desired by either party notice must be given December 1 of the present year. It is understood that the Cutters' Union are to ask for a change which will mean quite an increase in pay.

The present bill of prices fixes the minimum wage at 33 cents per hour or $2.64 for an 8 hour day. While it is officially known what the cutters are to ask, it is understood to be for a minimum wage of 37 1-2 cents per hour or $3 for an 8 hour day. In addition to this it is understood that they will also ask for a half holiday on Saturdays during the summer months without loss to pay.

As the matter has not been brought to the Manufacturers Association officially as yet, the Association has of course taken no action as a body. Individual members however have expressed themselves as strongly opposed to the increase on the ground that business does not warrant it.

Anyone who knows anything about Quincy granite knows that it is very hard and much more difficult to quarry than other granites. In Barre, for instance, the granite lies in sheets on top of the hills and is very easily quarried; blocks of any desired size being easily obtained. In Quincy most of the quarries are very deep. The granite is hard to quarry and it is no easy matter to get it from the quarries to the sheds.

In addition to that, great care has to be exercised to see that the blocks are free from knots which show plainly when polished. All of these things have tended to increase the price of rough stock.

This taken with the wages paid the cutters today has seriously handicapped the granite industry in Quincy, and is probably one of the reasons why business has been so quiet this year.

If the high price that must be charged for Quincy granite monuments today has handicaped business, the manufacturers ask what the condition would be if the cutters were granted the increase it is rumored they are to ask for next December. It may be as the "last straw" on the camel's back.

—India has, perhaps, a greater variety of plants than any other country in the world, having 15,000 native species, while the flora of the entire continent of Europe embraces about 10,000.

—A shabbily dressed man, wearing a pair of army trousers, was arrested and fined in Strafford, England, for "bringing discredit on His Majesty's uniform."

—In the comparatively small sales thus far made of American rice in Cuba it has given universal satisfaction, the people claiming that it possesses a richer flavor and greater nutriment than the Eastern rice.

THE WORLDS FAIR.

A Surplus of Good Rooms Says a St. Louis Paper.

An editorial from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat on the cost of visiting the World's Fair will be of interest to those contemplating a visit:

"As little as you like" is the true answer to an inquiry as to the expense of seeing the Fair. The financial strain is not on visitors, but on the vast army who have gone into business ventures connected with the Exposition. As the Fair has been running 100 days, visionary ideas have been cleared away. At no time has the capacity of the city to care for strangers been much more than half tested. Tens of thousands of spare rooms have never yet been occupied, though the total record of attendance has reached 6,000,000. Competition has brought down the price of lodging and meals until their cost is lower here, on the average, than in other large cities.

The reason for these conditions is plain. Immense preparations were made for a great tide of visitors. Though there may be more than 100,000 a day, the arrangements are sufficient for five times that number. Consequently, the problem rests upon the purveyor, not upon the visitor. The veriest bird of passage can take in the Fair if he has 50 cents and a sandwich in his pocket. After traveling over the two square miles of wonders he can find a seat in some shady nook where he can eat his home snack, to the music of some of the best bands in the world; and all that St. Louis asks is that he will tell his neighbors the exhibition is a grand thing, and that he found no extortion.

It is reasonable to assume that from this time henceforth the railroad fare, by excursion and otherwise, will be placed at the minimum. Such is unquestionably the case with the cost of rooms and meals. The supply outruns the demand, and everybody knows the economic result of that situation. One who tarries long—and that is the only way to see the Fair with any approach to thoroughness—can find pleasant quarters at fair prices. Those who come for a few days can regulate their expenditures at will by the exercise of ordinary judgment. Probably at this time there are at least 50,000 vacant guest rooms in the city. Visitors ought to be able to suit themselves in that respect, and as to meals they have an embarrassment of riches in a city where the restaurants and lunch stands are five times as numerous as usual. Somebody will get left, but not the traveler within our gates.

We find in the Brookfield (Mo.) Gazette, whose editor recently saw the Fair, some well-conceived remarks on the subject: "The buildings alone," says this eyewitness, "even if there were nothing in them, would be worth traveling many miles to see. One look at that magnificent city at night, with its superb electrical display, is the event of a lifetime. It is the greatest and grandest exposition the world has yet produced; it is doubtless the greatest the world will ever produce; it is possibly the last world's fair that will be held for many years, possibly the last that will ever be held."

Another of the same size, with a similar congregating of strange peoples, will hardly rise again within the twentieth century. Where would the $50,000,000 to create it come from, in addition to the enormous labor, freely rendered for the common good and enjoyment? No, the counterpart of the Fair will never be seen. It will stand unique in history as first among international expositions, and costly beyond any hope of coming out financially even.

New England people can make the trip from Boston in luxurious through cars via the New York Central R. R. lines, which include the Boston & Albany, the Lake Shore and Michigan, and the Big Four. This route operates several quick trains, and gives the best of service. Passengers can be one night or two nights on the road, according to the time they leave Boston, and the route is through the picturesque Berkshires, Albany, Syracuse, Buffalo, Cleveland, Indianapolis and other large cities.

Houghs Neck and Boston.

It is possible that very few of our readers know that they can have a delightful sail between Houghs Neck and Boston for fifteen cents. It is a nice trip of about 50 minutes among the islands in Boston harbor, and so near shore that no one is seasick. One can go from any part of Quincy to the Neck for five cents, and from there to Boston for fifteen; making a very pleasing and refreshing trip for twenty cents. Cheaper than staying at home and paying the doctor. Take a trip once a week and enjoy yourself.

☞ Main Spring while you wait. Watch cleaned $1.—Williams.

CONGRESSMEN.

Will Inspect the Rivers of Quincy.

Probably on Friday Morning.

Are Members of River and Harbor Committee.

When the congressional committee on rivers and harbors reaches Boston on Thursday, says the Herald, it will leave the navy yard for a trip through the main channel, inspecting the various works of harbor improvement being carried on there, and will then proceed to Marblehead, and after a luncheon at the Eastern Yacht Club, will return to Boston in the afternoon.

Congressman William S. McNary, in conjunction with Secretary Preston of the Chamber of Commerce, has made arrangements for a sub-committee, including Chairman Burton, to visit the Neponset river between Quincy and Boston, the Town river of Quincy, and the Fore river between Quincy and Weymouth, for the improvement of which Congressman McNary introduced bills in the last session of Congress.

After the inspection of these rivers the sub-committee will join the main committee at Rockport to examine the work upon the Sandy Bay breakwater.

Holiday Proposed.

There is considerable talk of a holiday in Quincy next Tuesday, especially during the hours of the parade, say from 9 A. M. to 3 or 4 P. M. Most everybody wants to see the Grand Army parade and should have the opportunity.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased the expenditures for his public schools—those bulwarks of a nation's progress and liberty—from $183,000,000 to $250,000,000, an increase of $67,000,000 yearly. Of this total expenditure his praiseworthy school teachers received $161,000,000 in 1903, an increase of $43,000,000 over 1896. The students in his universities, colleges and the like increased from 86,000 to 110,000. In his public schools the enrollment increased from 14,500,000 to 16,300,000, an increase of 1,800,000.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Twelve houses at Winchester were entered Monday night during the absence of the families. Thus the pleasures of vacations for many are disturbed.

On Aug. 11, 1827, President John Quincy Adams and a party left Quincy for a sailing excursion. Just to think of it, they started from "the Canal," on what is now Canal street.

Another month and the City Council will be wrestling with the question as to who will serve out the unexpired term of Miss Adams on the School board; Mr. Miller, Mr. Sprague or Mr. ——. But that is not as important as the necessity of supplying additional High school accommodations.

The first election of importance since the nominations will take place in Maine in September. It is a state election and to a certain extent is thought to indicate the drift of politics. Republican pluralities in that state have run from 41,645, to 27,490, both parties will put forth the largest vote which can be drummed up. All the Democrats can hope to do in that state is to reduce the Republican plurality and they may not be able to accomplish that.

Drift of Opinion.

☞There is no need of "philosophy" over the Boston tax rate. It is as simple as six and six make 12. The city is growing at an average rate, and the municipal appropriations have grown at an extraordinary rate. Valuations could never keep up with such expenditures unless Boston should take on the gait of a western boom town. The tax rate, $15.20, highest for 20 years, simply works out in figures that Expert Accountant Chase reported to Boston two years ago, a report the city read indifferently, and failed utterly to act upon. Mr. Chase said our way of running the city was wholly extravagant. And the methods went right on. Now, of course, we have the bills to pay.—Record.

☞The Republican party is not opposed to reciprocity. On the contrary we who in the last eight years have given the largest extension ever known to our foreign markets heartily favor it. Our opinion on that subject is plain. The Republican Senators and Representatives from Massachusetts stand ready to advocate and urge it in accordance with the platform on which they all stand, and with the wishes of their constituents. I say to the Republicans of this State, and to the business men who are peculiarly interested in reciprocity, that their Senators and Representatives are in sympathy with them on that policy, and that any attempt to make it appear otherwise is a mere invention of the enemy which they should utterly repudiate. — Senator Lodge, Aug. 6, 1904.

☞ Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

CUT OFF RUSSIANS

What Japs Will Try to Do In Their Northward Movement

CHINESE IN THEIR RANKS

Example of Ten Thousand Formosan Subjects of Japs, It Is Feared at St Petersburg, May Prove Contagious

St. Petersburg, Aug. 10.—Although Lieutenant General Sakharoff reports that there is no change in the situation around Liao Yang, it is evident from the special dispatches from Liao Yang and Sintsintin that the Japanese are continuing their preparations for a flanking movement, which may possibly alter the nature of the expected engagement at Liao Yang, and which may also further delay the crucial development.

The concentration of a strong Japanese force at Saimatsze indicates an intention to press forward towards Mukden and, if possible, to cut the communications and prevent General Kuropatkin from retiring northward. Kuropatkin is evidently aware of these movements and is sending out reconnoitering parties from Sintsintin along the Saimatze road. This is shown by a slight encounter with a Japanese outpost within 30 miles of Sintsintin. The Japanese are also bringing up strong forces from Yinkow.

A column marching from New Chwang with the evident intention of flanking Liao Yang from the westward included 10,000 Chinese from the island of Formosa, who are Japanese subjects. A press correspondent at Liao Yang points out the alarming character of this development and fears that the example may prove contagious. If the local Chinese are induced to join the Japanese it will be impossible to distinguish the Formosan and Manchurian Chinese. This revives the spectre of Chinese enrollment with the more remote possibility of foreign entanglements.

There is considerable anxiety regarding the presence of General Yuan She Kai, commander-in-chief of the Chinese force, and General Ma, with strong forces of troops in the north, lest, should a convenient opportunity present itself, they would be tempted to overstep the bounds of neutrality.

There is an unconfirmed rumor that General Linevitch is bringing large forces to Mukden to reinforce Kuropatkin. Linevitch's troops are stationed around Vladivostok and it is doubtful if they could arrive at Liao Yang in time.

It is stated on good authority that Viceroy Alexieff is still at Liao Yang.

Russian Raids In Korea

Seoul, Aug. 10.—Two companies of Russian troops entered Gensan yesterday. Finding the Japanese to be in superior strength the Russians retired. There were no casualties on either side. The raiding character of previous Russian movements in this direction has entirely disappeared, and the natives are being treated with kindness. Everything indicates that a systematic advance has been begun by the Russians into northeastern Korea.

Denial of Heavy Japanese Losses

London, Aug. 10.—The Tokio correspondent of The Times says he learns on the best authority that there is no truth whatever in the rumors of the Japanese reverses with heavy losses at Port Arthur.

Germans Grabbing Eastern Trade

London, Aug. 10.—The Times asserts that within the last 10 days the North German Lloyd line and the Hamburg-American Steamship company have freely accepted at Antwerp cargoes for Japan, consisting of electric cables, machinery, iron, wires, plates and light rails, which were refused by British companies on the ground that they might be suspected of being contraband of war.

In a strong editorial, The Times demands that the government must take immediate means to resist the Russian doctrine concerning contraband of war, declaring that the subject brooks of no delay unless the British far eastern trade is to pass into the hands of German rivals.

Doesn't Take Lodge Seriously

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—In the Canadian senate, Senator Sullivan drew the attention of the secretary of state to Senator Lodge's declaration on reciprocity with Canada, and asked him to bring it before his colleagues in the government. The minister replied that he did not propose to treat the matter seriously, as the remarks referred to were manifestly for election purposes.

Charged With Stealing Diamonds

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Evelynne Rogers, who is wanted in New Bedford, Mass., on a charge of having stolen $3000 worth of diamonds, was turned over to the New Bedford authorities on a writ of extradition signed by Governor Yates. Miss Rogers was arrested here last winter, accused of having passed worthless checks.

Assaulted a Child

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 10.—Hiram Bean of Marshfield, who was recently arrested at Lawrence, Mass., pleaded guilty here to assault upon Jessie Kent, 12 years old, and received a sentence of from three to eight years in state prison.

THE GOELET JEWELS

Found In Safe In Which They Had Been Left by Owner

Newport, R. I., Aug. 10.—The $200,000 worth of jewels, which Mrs. Ogden Goelet had reported as having been stolen, have been found in her safe in New York city. The detectives whom Mrs. Goelet engaged to investigate the supposed robbery decided that the jewels had not been stolen, but probably had been mislaid. The detectives accordingly prevailed upon her to make a journey to New York and examine her effects closely. The result was that Mrs. Goelet found her missing property in her safe in that city.

Since the reported robbery much mystery has surrounded the affair, and it was not until yesterday that it became known generally who owned the missing property. All those who had any connection with the case maintained the strictest silence, and many rumors regarding the value of the gems had been in circulation. The New York police were notified and a description of the jewels was sent to the detectives at Scotland Yard, London.

The news of the supposed robbery created a sensation in the Newport colony, and as a result many cottagers have deposited their valuables in safety deposit vaults within the past few days.

No One Willing to Be Guardian

Hartford, Aug. 10.—Joseph Watson, the negro lad, who shot and killed former Police Commissioner Henry Osborne last Friday, was in the city court for a hearing on the charge of murder. Watson appeared indifferent to the nature of the proceedings and entered a plea of guilty, which the court refused to accept. The appointment of a guardian ad litem for Watson was ordered, but none of the attorneys, of whom there were a large number present, would accept the office. The court finally named E. L. Smith, an attorney, and the hearing was begun. At its conclusion the court found probable cause, and held Watson without bail for the superior criminal court.

Adrift Eleven Days In Dory

Boston, Aug. 10.—For 11 days Peter Bradley and Charles Conley of Boston, dorymates and members of the crew of the fishing schooner Indiana, were tossed about in an open boat in mid-ocean at the mercy of the wind and waves, and during all that time were without a drop of fresh water or an ounce of food. Yesterday the two fishermen were landed at North Sydney, N. S., by the schooner Hydrangea, whose captain picked up the castaways about 40 miles off St. Pierre, Miq., in a condition of utter exhaustion. The men will recover.

Great Welcome Awaits Veterans

Boston, Aug. 10.—Boston has already bloomed out in gala array in honor of the G. A. R. veterans who are about to open their great encampment here. All over the business section the decorations are hung and the streets are gay with color. The plans for the entertainment of the 35,000 or more veterans who are expected here next week are of a very elaborate character, and the local managers plan to make this the greatest encampment in the history of the order.

Autoists Given a Chance

Boston, Aug. 10.—Each of the 137 automobilists found to be evading some of the requirements at the time of the recent hold-up by the police will be informed by the board of police of the particular lack found in their equipment and will be warned that if the defects are not remedied at once they will be subject to prosecution. Beyond this nothing will be done until after the next inspection has been made.

A Menace to Navigation

Boston, Aug. 10.—The revenue cutter Algonquin left here this morning to search for the derelict schooner, Ella Frances, which was sunk off Cape Cod by collision with the steamer Nantucket. If successful in her search, she will destroy the derelict. Part of the craft, which is dismasted, is submerged and part of it is just awash and is extremely dangerous to navigation.

A Baby's Tragic Fate

Waterford, Conn., Aug. 10.—Edward S. May, aged 26 months, was riding in a launch in the Niantic river with two small children, a governess and a man in charge of the boat. The children were playing on a shawl on the bottom of the boat and in some way this became entangled in the machinery, drawing the baby into the fly-wheel. He was almost instantly killed.

Mrs Hayden Admitted to Bar

Boston, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Addie F. Hayden of Fitchburg was admitted to the bar by Judge Morton in the supreme court, on motion of T. W. Proctor, her counsel. She is the widow of the late Judge Hayden of Fitchburg, and as Adelaide Gillette became a clerk in his law office 15 years ago. She has been trying for admission to the bar for seven years.

Looking After the Needy

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 10.—Treasurer O'Donnell of the strike fund committee reports that up to date the committee's expenses incident to the strike of the 26,000 cotton mill operatives in this city has been $1200. The relief bureaus will be opened again on Friday and orders will be issued to all whom an investigation prove to be in need of aid.

Body Hurled Sixty Feet

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 10.—Harold Clark, 45 years old, employed as a telephone lineman, was struck and killed by a train at a crossing here. His body was hurled 60 feet and was frightfully mangled. A wife and six children survive.

CITY BREVITIES.

W. G. Shaw and family have gone to the Weirs, N. H.

The Quincy day nursery building at Brewers corner is being repainted.

The Willard House at West Quincy was burned 28 years ago today—Aug. 10, 1876.

The residence of George H. Elcock on Copeland street with its many handsome dahlias is very attractive.

The Wollaston Park A. A. and the Quincy A. C. meet on Saturday at Merrymount Park for the first game in a series of three.

Mrs. Susie Flowers and her niece, Miss Lottie, left today for a much needed rest to the Adirondack Mountains and on their return will stop at Burlington, Barre, and Montpelier.

Deciding Race Today.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—Yesterday's race for the Seawanhaka cup resulted in a victory for the White Bear, the American challenger. The Noorna and the White Bear now have two each to their credit, and the deciding race will be sailed today over the windward course.

The Magazines.

The August American Boy, published by the Sprague Publishing Company, Detroit, Michigan, is noteworthy especially for its account of American Boy Day at the St. Louis Exposition, July 5th, which was planned and carried out by the publishers of that periodical. Half a dozen pages of The American Boy are given to a detailed account of the proceedings, splendidly illustrated. No boy, and indeed no adult, can read this account without feeling something of the inspiration of the occasion. The publishers also announce in this number that they propose to try to make American Boy Day a permanent American institution in every city and country town in the country.

Peers' Rights.

Old authorities taught that a peer, if he wasted his property so as to be unable to support the dignity, could be degraded by the king. It is now held that degradation can be effected only by vote of his peers.

Cocoa and Chocolate.

Cocoa and chocolate are prepared from the nuts by freeing them from the pulp and making them undergo a process similar to malting. They are afterward roasted in a perforated cylinder and are then freed from their husks and made into cocoa or chocolate.

Corn.

All kinds of corn are altered by heat, but only in the popcorn is the structure such as to favor an explosion, which gives to the popcorn its name.

The Bamboo.

The bamboo is not a tropical plant, as commonly supposed. It grows in regions where the snows are so heavy that they often break down the young stems and where the thermometer drops to 15 degrees F. below the freezing point.

Jew's Ear Fungus.

The Jew's ear fungus, which grows on stumps of the elder, is so named from its unmistakable likeness to a human ear.

Old Roman Titles.

Among the degenerate Romans from A. D. 100 to A. D. 500 titles were graded with almost mathematical exactness, and men of different social rank insisted on being addressed as illusters, spectabiles, clarissimi, perfectissimi, egregii, and so on, according to their position.

Sense of Smell.

The sense of smell is keener in fresh air than in stale or polluted air.

Birds That Shave.

Man has a rival in the art of shaving in a South American bird called the "motmot," which actually begins shaving on arriving at maturity. Naturally adorned with long blue tail feathers, it is not satisfied with them in their natural state, but with its beak nips off the web on each side, leaving only a little oval tuft at the end of each.

Albino Hair.

Sachs, who was both an albino and a scientist, demonstrated that the hair of albinos contains less iron than that of normally constituted individuals.

Korean Customs.

The Korean never cuts his hair or beard. To do so is considered a mark of dishonor to his parents. Any hairs that may happen to come out and even the parings of his finger nails are carefully saved and put into the coffin with him in order that he may go back to mother earth intact.

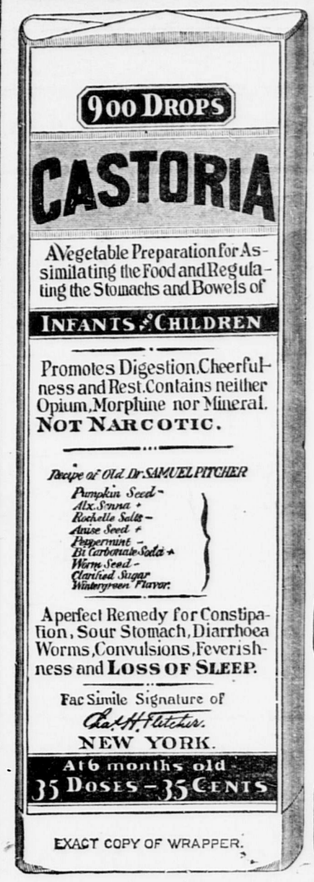

General Debility

Day in and out there is that feeling of weakness that makes a burden of itself.
Food does not strengthen.
Sleep does not refresh.
It is hard to do, hard to bear, what should be easy,—vitality is on the ebb, and the whole system suffers.
For this condition take

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It vitalizes the blood, gives vigor and tone to all the organs and functions, and is positively unequalled for all run-down or debilitated conditions.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR

Steam or Hot Water Heaters

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

TURKEY'S ENEMIES

Declared by German Paper to Be "American Asiatics"

THE SULTAN'S HESITATION

Outcome Will Be Watched With Interest Because President's Failure to Enforce Demands Would Cause Loss of Prestige

Berlin, Aug. 10.—The National Zeitung, printing the news of the action taken by Secretary of State Hay with regard to the difficulties between the United States and Turkey, considers the subject at great length, and says that the centre of gravity lies in the demands of the United States, which are no longer for compensation to Americans for losses sustained owing to the troubles in Armenia, but for the raising of American diplomatic representation to ambassadorial dignity, in order that American citizens may enjoy in Turkey the same rights and privileges enjoyed by the citizens of other powers signatory to the treaties to the powers and Berlin.

The Turkish government opposes the wishes of the United States in this respect allegedly on the grounds of economy, but really because naturalized Armenians, "American Asiatics," are the most dangerous enemies to the existing order of affairs in Turkey.

The sultan, The National Zeitung says, is not likely to yield without a hard struggle, and President Roosevelt cannot afford the loss of prestige which would result from a failure to enforce his demands. For this latter reason the outcome will be watched with the greatest interest. The sultan probably will be reluctantly forced to seek Russian support at the same time that Russia is being confronted by strong Armenian opposition. Should Russia respond and bring the question of the passage of the Dardanelles into relation with this affair, The National Zeitung thinks that the situation might become extremely complicated.

Dynamite Thrown Into Foundry

Watervliet, N. Y., Aug. 10.—A partially successful attempt was made to wreck the plant of the West Side Foundry company, just outside this city, with dynamite. The night watchman heard a window open in the motor room and the explosion occurred immediately after. The foundry has had trouble with its employes and a strike has been in progress since April 19. The striking iron moulders are so strong in this vicinity that the explosion is discussed with extreme reticence.

Nudd's Fortune Unearthed

Boston, Aug. 10.—The mystery surrounding the whereabouts of thousands of dollars' worth of stocks and bonds left by Carlos S. Nudd, the Boston civil engineer, who died suddenly at a Harvard ball one month ago, has been partly cleared by the finding of $40,000 in securities at the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company. Leroy Sanborn of Frankan Falls, N. H., has applied for papers as administrator of the estate.

Sad Fate of Aged Couple

Ridgewood, N. J., Aug. 10.—Hudson Conkling, 81, and his wife, 85, were walking on the railroad tracks and apparently heard the whistle of a locomotive, but became confused and did not seem to understand which way the train was coming when it rushed around a curve and struck them. The bodies were mangled horribly. They leave 23 descendants in three generations.

Constables Permitted Lynching

Selma, Ala., Aug. 10.—Charged with murder in the first degree, Constables Ransom, Stanfill and Cherry are in jail here awaiting a preliminary hearing. Edward Bell, a negro, was charged with killing another negro. After a preliminary hearing he was placed in charge of the three constables to be conveyed to jail in Selma. On the way to jail the negro was lynched by negroes.

Dairy Depot Is Closed

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 10.—The Haverhill dairy depot has been closed, pending an examination of its affairs by the Milk Dealers' association, in whose interest it is operated. Manager McCormick is not in town and no statement concerning the finances of the depot has yet been made.

Yacht Found Overturned

Detroit, Aug. 10.—The sail-yacht Rambler, belonging to Herbert Bowen, a lawyer, was found upturned at the mouth of the Detroit river and it is feared that Bowen's 19-year-old son, Percy, and his chum, Harrison Welton, son of a Detroit broker, are drowned.

Death of Senator Vest

Sweet Springs, Mo., Aug. 10.—Ex-United States Senator George G. Vest died at his home here. He was born in Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 6, 1830. He had served in both branches of the Confederate legislature and was for 24 years a member of the United States senate.

Reception Wound Up With Riot

Toronto, Aug. 10.—A reception in Queen's park last night in honor of the winner of the King's prize at Bisley was turned into a riot, during which the platform broke and seven people were badly injured.

Mother and Four Children Killed

Chicago, Aug. 10.—A mother and her four little children were instantly killed and a number of other persons seriously injured in a collision last night between a passenger train and a freight train at the Brighton Park railroad crossing. The passenger train was struck by the freight cars and two of the coaches were overturned. One of the freight cars crashed through the woodwork of one of the coaches, where the five who were killed were seated. They were a family of six, and C. C. Schwartz, the father, was the only one who escaped with his life. Although suffering from broken bones and bruises, he may recover.

Scalped In Peculiar Accident

New York, Aug. 10.—As Miss M. Dougherty of Rochester was stepping out of an automobile in Central park last night she slipped and fell and her hair became caught in the crankshaft of the engine, which was still in motion. The crankshaft wound up the hair till it pulled her head to the end of the shaft and then ripped off her scalp. Though her wound is a very severe one, she will undoubtedly recover.

Crime Without Known Incentive

Butte, Mont., Aug. 10.—The residence of Mrs. Bella Powers was almost demolished by three unknown men, who placed a charge of giant powder in a closet, lighted the fuse, and fled. Several persons in the house were slightly injured by the explosion. There is no clue to the perpetrators or to their motive for blowing up the house.

Dissatisfied With Weighing

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 10.—Eight hundred miners employed at the old forge colliery of the Erie company have gone on strike. They claim that the scales with which the mine cars are weighed are incorrect and that they are deprived of the credit for half a ton of coal for each car. The trouble at the Barnum colliery, where 1000 men are on strike, is of a similar character.

Gone From Boy Husband

Newark, N. J., Aug. 10.—On the eve of a dinner, which was to be given in her honor by her husband's relatives, the 17-year-old bride of John Gilbert, himself only 19 years old, has mysteriously disappeared, and though diligent search has been made the young husband has been unable to find any trace of his bride.

Fire in Welford's broom factory at London, Ont., wiped it out and spread to the street car barns, which were destroyed.

NEARLY FORTY MISSING

List of Dead In Colorado Wreck Has Reached Seventy-Six

Pueblo, Col., Aug. 10.—Organized searching parties have scoured the Fountain river banks for miles in the hope of finding the remaining bodies of the victims of Sunday night's wreck at Eden. Seven more bodies have been recovered and a number identified.

A coroner's jury was called, which viewed the scene of the wreck and examined a number of witnesses. The examination into the cause of the disaster will be exhaustive and it is thought that it will require more than a week to hear all the witnesses that have been subpoenaed. Four railroad men were examined. Their testimony was mainly as to the amount of rain that fell during the storm in the neighborhood of the wreck.

The morgue and undertaking establishments have been besieged by anxious relatives and friends. The work of identification is proceedingly slowly, as the bodies now being recovered are in bad condition. Many mistakes are being made, in several cases the matter hanging in doubt since Sunday night.

The total number of identified bodies recovered from the Eden wreck is 76. The list of those reported missing has now nearly reached 40.

Armenians on the Rampage

Tabriz, Persia, Aug. 10.—On July 13 a band of Armenian revolutionists appeared near Outchkilissa. Turkish soldiers and Kurds, finding an excuse, attacked and destroyed five villages, butchering men and outraging women. Two large Armenian bands marching to help the insurgent leader, Antranik, attacked two garrisons for revenge on July 25. Bombs were thrown into these places, killing many, and severe fighting ensued. A majority of the soldiers were killed and the garrisons resembled graveyards. The number of soldiers killed amounted to several hundred.

Shortage In Military Company

Boston, Aug. 10.—According to Corporal Mahoney, treasurer of company A, Eighth regiment, of Charlestown, the company funds are in a bad state, between $2000 and $3000 being unaccounted for, and he has made a report of the matter to Colonel Pew. The latter has the matter under consideration and it is expected he will appoint a committee to conduct an investigation and see what is in the report. Company A took the place of company D of the Ninth regiment, that was disbanded shortly after the close of the Spanish war.

Boycott Not Wholly Successful

Chicago, Aug. 10.—The stockyards strike leaders are seeing that the boycott against the retail markets which have been placed under the ban of the unions is being enforced, but in many of the places the boycott does not work so well as had been expected, the retailers being able to haul what ice they require in their own wagons. The packers claim that fully 80 percent of the usual amount of work is being carried on.

Fifty Dwellings Destroyed

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 10.—Fire that started in the pattern shop of the Albion Iron works last evening destroyed a portion of the building, together with a quantity of valuable machinery. A strong wind carried the sparks to the residence section, where it burned itself out. In all about 50 houses were destroyed, the majority being homes of working people. The loss exceeds $150,000.

Winchester Houses Ransacked

Winchester, Mass., Aug. 10.—A gang of lower-story workers reaped a harvest in Winchester, ransacking nearly a dozen houses and securing everything from cash to clothing. The breaks in nearly every case were made by smashing lower rear windows. The thieves evidently took no chances, for all of their work was done on the lower floors. No clues were left by the burglars.

Probably Mentally Unbalanced

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 10.—The body of Henry Franklin, aged 73, was found in the Little river. It is thought he committed suicide. Franklin attracted attention some time ago when he was found bound to a tree on the bank of the Merrimac river. At that time he could not account for his predicament and it was thought that he was mentally deranged.

Won't Work on Vermont Marble

Harrisburg, Aug. 10.—Several marble setters have quit work at the new state capitol. There has for some time been a strike on at the Vermont quarries and the leaders have called out workingmen all over the country. This affects the men on Vermont marble only.

Left $7,000,000 In Real Estate

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Letters of administration for Joseph Leiter, son of the late Levi Z. Leiter, have been applied for in the probate court. The real estate in Chicago and Cook county is valued at $7,000,000 and the personal property at $10,000.

No Attack on Americans

Bogota, Aug. 10.—The reported attack on the American consulate here is untrue. The consul, charge of affairs and other American citizens enjoy all the guarantees in Colombia, where complete peace reigns.

A GIRL LIFE SAVER.

Vassar Graduate Joins Corps at Long Beach, N. Y.

LEARNED TO SWIM WHEN A CHILD

Miss Norma Hamilton of New York Is a Splendid Swimmer and Handles a Boat With a Master Hand. Is Wealthy, Handsome and Strong. Modest In Her New Venture.

The summer colony at Long Beach, N. Y., has received a thrill that should keep it titillating for the remainder of the season, says the New York Evening World.

A young woman has joined the life saving corps at the beach, and it is said she is the first of her sex to undertake the heroic task of rescue work from the line of dangerous breakers that pound the sands of Long Island's southern shore.

The young woman life saver is Miss Norma Hamilton. She is nineteen years old and a graduate of Vassar. She is spending the summer at Lynbrook. In the winter she lives with her mother in a fashionable part of New York. It is said by her friends that she has made this departure in the line of feminine effort simply to prove what a woman can do in difficult emergencies. As she is wealthy, the remuneration means nothing to her.

Her qualifications for the job of life saving are beyond question. Captain Billy Leggett of the corps declares she is a wonderful swimmer and can handle a lifeboat with a master hand. She can go through a line of breakers like a scared shark, and she has outdistanced the strongest men swimmers on the beach in a half mile sprint.

"It's really true that I am a member of the life saving corps," said Miss Hamilton, who is as brown as a berry and lithe and graceful of figure. "I have been able to swim ever since I can remember, and I don't see anything wonderful about it. When I was a little bit of a girl, we spent our summers in Maine, and I learned to swim in the lakes. Of course fresh water swimming is much harder than salt water, so it seems strange to me that more women do not swim at Long Beach.

"I swim at Long Beach all the time and sometimes stay in the water all day."

Strange to say, there is nothing of the Amazon type in Miss Hamilton's makeup. She has broad shoulders that spread out on the shapely Gibson lines, but withal her figure is willowy and delicately molded. Her features are clear cut and her eyes of that gray color that denotes unflinching determination and fearless courage.

In a daintily cut bathing suit open at the throat to show a deep, nut brown tan, her hair done up in a tight coil and her arms swinging free at her side, Long Beach's new life saver patrols her section of the long stretch of sand with a nonchalant ease that shows her independence of thought and her disregard of what the frailer of her sex may regard as a prodigious disregard of the feminine conventions.

Before she was accepted in the role of life saver Captain Billy Leggett tried her out with a series of tests which would have stumped the majority of men who belong to the summer colony. When the surf was running high she was asked to test her speed in getting to a buoy well beyond the line of breakers.

"My eyes went popping," said Captain Billy, "when I saw the way that girl went through those waves. She went over them like a catamaran driven by a forty horsepower engine, and she's got a stroke that beats anything in the feminine swimming line I have ever seen. She can handle a boat like a trained life saver, and I feel confident that if she is ever called upon to get real busy her work will be a sort of revelation."

Miss Hamilton is exceedingly modest about her new endeavor; also she wonders that any one should think it strange that she should wish to join in so noble an effort as that of saving lives.

"Some may think it a bit out of the ordinary," she remarked, "but as long as I am fitted for the work I think that clinches my argument as to why I enlisted my services. Though I don't call myself one of the modern athletic girls of the century, I nevertheless consider myself an athlete. I can swim rings around a great many of the men who do the same work I am doing now, and I see no reason why I should not employ my ability in a good cause."

Kaiser's Automobile Colors.

The German Automobile club is nearly bursting with pride and importance. The kaiser has "graciously consented" to fasten the club's sign to his auto, with the proviso that a crown be placed over the initials, says a special Berlin cablegram to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. His majesty further promised to wear the club's "auto cap" at some occasion to be specified later. In view of these "privileges," the emperor announced that he had decided to paint his automobiles yellow and blue, which means that no one else durst adopt these colors. Further, he will dress his chauffeur and huntsman—no automobile would be complete without a huntsman—in brown leather and ditto cap, edged with a silver band bearing black eagles.

A Railway Change.

On the important eastern trains of the Pennsylvania railroad a la carte breakfasts and luncheons will be served instead of on the table d'hote plan as heretofore.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

Better apply TODAY for information regarding Prudential policies to

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Showery today.

The mercury was in the fifties early this morning.

"When it rains in August it rains honey and wine."

James Rice and family of North Abington are at Houghs Neck.

John L. Miller goes to Atlanta, Ga., today, for a two weeks' trip.

E. E. Gray Co., of Hancock street, quote low prices for seasonable goods.

Thomas J. Dunphy of the Quincy Quarry Co. is having a two weeks' vacation.

The Quincys and the Winter Hills will play on the Ward Two playgrounds on Saturday.

On the Ward Six playgrounds on Saturday the Atlantics will play the St. Marys of West Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Channing Willis were guests of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Brown at Brockton over Sunday.

Arthur B. Foster left Wednesday for Halifax, Hawkesbury, Baddeck and Sydney on a vacation of about two months.

If the weather permits the grocery clerks of Atlantic and the Rhodes Bros. team of Boston will play this afternoon on the Ward Six playground.

Mrs. John D. Riordan and children of Crescent street, Brockton, are at the Happy Thought cottage at Houghs Neck for the month of August.

Pequot tribe of Red Men of Brockton will hold an outing on Sunday at Houghs Neck. The Rock island farm will be their headquarters, and a clambake will be served.

Harry S. Nicoll, the retiring president of the Granite Manufacturers' Association, and an ex-councilman, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Legislature next month.

Friends of Harry S. Kemp will regret to learn of his untimely death, especially as he was making a success in life, and advancing step by step to positions of responsibility. Sympathy is extended to his aged father and brothers.

At least four Quincy men expect to take part in the manoeuvres at Manasses next month. The following have enlisted in Co. H of Charlestown, Fifth Massachusetts Regiment: Harry J. Matthews, Frank N. Benson, J. Francis Morrissey and Lewis D. Garrity.

HARRY S. KEMP.

His Death at Norfolk, Va., a Shock to His Relatives Here.

Word has been received in Quincy of the death Saturday at Norfolk, Va., of Harry S. Kemp, son of Mr. John J. Kemp of Newcomb street. Mr. Kemp was taken sick with typhoid fever two weeks ago, but was not considered to be dangerously ill, and he refused to have his parents notified for fear that it would worry them. Last Saturday his illness took a sudden serious turn and he passed away before his parents could be summoned.

Mr. Kemp was born in Quincy, Dec. 27, 1863. He received his education in the public schools of the town. He then took up the study of electricity and made himself a thorough master of that business. He worked for a time as a machinist in Quincy and then went to Tampa, Fla., where he built an electric railroad. After that he built electric railways at Cottage City and in many other places throughout the country for the General Electric Co.

He then went to work for the Staten Island electric railway, New York, when that road was first built, as its master mechanic. From there he went with the Gold Car Heating company as its eastern manager. In 1899 he returned to the Staten Island Co. as superintendent.

At that time the Staten Islander in speaking of him said: "Mr. Kemp is a man of energy and is always on deck, and his return to Staten Island has been greeted with delight by his many friends."

He did not remain there long, for in 1900 he accepted a position with the Standard Electric Co. as its superintendent of construction, with whom he has since remained. He has travelled all over the country constructing electric roads, making headquarters at Norfolk, Va.

He married a Southern lady a little over a year ago, who survives him.

NEW PRESIDENT.

Quincy Granite Manufacturers Elect John L. Miller.

The annual meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' Association of Quincy was held Tuesday evening and these officers elected:

President,—John L. Miller.
Vice president,—Thomas F. Mannex.
Secretary,—T. J. Dunphy.
Treasurer,—James Joss.
Executive Committee,—John L. Miller, Thomas F. Mannex, James Joss, John C. Murray, James H. Elcock, Alexander Falconer, Henry McGrath, Walter Fegan and Alfred O. Diack.
Membership Committee,—William T. Spargo, John A. McDonnell, James H. Elcock, George Clark and Robert Mavers.

John L. Miller, the new president of the Association, is now at the head of the well known firm of Thomas & Miller, which established business in Quincy in 1886. Mr. Miller has an experience in the granite business of over thirty years in Quincy, and he is a master of every branch of the business.

He served his time as a stone cutter, learning that branch of business thoroughly. He worked at his trade for a number of years, and about 1879 he became the manager of the Merrymount Granite Co. He held the position until 1886 when he formed a copartnership with W. H. Thomas of New York, under the firm name of Thomas and Miller.

He has always taken an active interest in Association matters, and has been a hard worker for success.

The communication relative to Squantum Head in Tuesday's Ledger, has been discussed at length at Atlantic, and more than one has remarked that it came pretty near being the truth.

—The Mississippi and its tributaries are navigable for 35,000 miles; the rivers of Europe furnish navigation for only half as many miles, and few of them are connected.

—The prospects of France for the coming year, according to contracts now in view, for shipbuilding, railroads and structural works give promise of a much larger demand for iron and steel in the near future.

SUFFERINGS OF CZAR'S MEN

Pitiful Letter From a Jew at Port Arthur—Would Welcome Death.

A letter from Abraham Strauss, a Jewish soldier in the Russian army at Port Arthur, has been received by B. Fine, a prominent merchant of Fulton, Mo., says the New York Times. Strauss and Fine were born in the same Russian village.

The letter, which is dated June 17, tells a pitiful tale of the hardships that are being undergone by the Russian soldiers. A translation of part of the letter reads:

"Several months ago I was taken as a soldier by the Russian army, was at once sent to the front and am now at Port Arthur, one of a company of 800. As soon as they took us from the recruiting office they sent us to Yalesvatgot, and from there dispatched us to Sevastopol, where we stayed fifteen days, and were all sent together to Port Arthur. The trip took forty-eight days by rail, and at the end of the journey we were so fatigued that our friends hardly knew us when we arrived.

"Food we get once in twenty-four hours, and then very little—too much to starve on, but hardly enough to live on. The few kopecks that I had when I left home are all gone, and I have not one kopeck left. You know how it is to be a Russian soldier without money, a Jew especially. It is a hardship that I cannot describe.

"We got in here on Feb. 10, and the same day they dressed us in soldiers' clothing, with guns on our backs, and put us on guard, and in that way we stand for hours at a time. We are not allowed to change clothes or sit down while on duty, and in the few hours that we are off duty we must sleep with our clothes on and guns strapped to us.

"We must be ready for death at all times, and I pray that it will come to me soon, for I would accept it with joy. But, to my sorrow, death has not come, and God only knows how long we will have to suffer."

Her Prime Object.

He—Your great desire is to elevate the stage, I suppose?

She—No; my great desire is to elevate my salary.

Why, Certainly.

"What would you say if I kissed you?"

"There's a better way to find out than asking me."—New York Evening Journal.

DAVIS' MIDDLE NAME.

Newspaper Correspondent Thought It Was a Slang Expression.

Ex-Senator Henry G. Davis of West Virginia within the hour of his nomination for vice president by the Democratic party was sought out by a correspondent for a newspaper that has a penchant for middle names. According to instructions wired from his office the reporter asked:

"Senator, what does the 'G' in your name stand for?"

"Gassaway," was the reply.

"But really I must find out," said the reporter, smiling faintly.

"Gassaway," repeated the candidate. "Is that West Virginian for 'chase yourself?'" inquired the young man.

"No," chuckled the ex-senator; "it's my middle name—an old family name."

"Oh," said the correspondent, "I thought it was a slang expression I hadn't heard before."—New York Times.

Substitutes For Butter.

A German chemist, Dr. Heuner, proposes to buy up all cocoanut oils and transform them into "vegetable butter," a savory, inodorous and succulent substitute for true butter, says the London Globe. Cocoanut oil, like butter, contains 7 per cent of soluble acids—namely, butyric acid and capric or decylic acid, which give a plesant aroma to butter and have a taste of hazel nut. Cocoa butter contains less water than true butter and will keep fifteen or twenty days without showing any acid reaction. Therefore it is useful in making pastry. Cocoa butter has also been found by trial the better antiseptic against infection by microbes, and as it is quite digestible the various boards of health have not objected to it.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Pilgrimages Almost Daily to the City of Presidents.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN ADAMS.

Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic socities admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Closed for repairs, but soon to be opened to the public by the Society of Colonial Dames, the new owners.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company where warships are being built for the government.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR

Steam or Hot Water Heaters

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

SPEECHES IN RAIN

Ardor Not Dampened, However, at the Parker Notification

SIX HUNDRED ATTENDED

Candidate's Speech Followed With Close Attention and Was Liberally Applauded--Waving Flags at Close Almost Concealed Occupants of Stand

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The formal notification of Alton B. Parker of his nomination for the presidency of the United States as the candidate of the Democratic party, and his acceptance of the nomination, gave public expression for the first time of his views on the issues drawn between his own and the Republican party.

The formal notification was brought to him by Representative Clark of Missouri, as chairman of the committee representing every state and territory in the union. Mr. Clark, in a brief speech, informed the candidate of his nomination and presented to him a formal communication to the same effect adopted by the committee.

Standing bareheaded, during a brief lull in the rainstorm which had lasted since soon after daylight, Judge Parker accepted the nomination and set forth his views upon the issues before the country in a speech that evoked frequent and hearty applause.

The ceremony was held on the lawn at Rosemount, under the trees at the north of the house, and was attended by upwards of 600 people. The company included many Democrats of national prominence as well as a large and representative delegation from Tammany Hall and several well known Democrats from Albany and other upstate points. There would have been a gala day gathering from Kingston and vicinity, but the rain had been so heavy and continuous that few local people ventured forth. Most of the time during Clark's speech the rain was falling in a steady drizzle, but it stopped entirely just as Parker began to speak, and held off until he finished.

Mr. Clark was speaking in the rain, and Parker was standing bareheaded without shelter, when a man in the crowd called: "Somebody hold an umbrella over Judge Parker." A number were immediately offered, but the judge refused them with a courteous wave of the hand. "Justice for all, special privileges for none," said Clark, and the spectators showed their appreciation of the sally by a shout of laughter.

While Parker was speaking there was no need of shelter. The rain stopped and not a breath of air stirred. In the stillness every word could be heard distinctly to the farthest borders of the crowd. It is many years since Parker has been heard in a political speech, and to most of his hearers he was absolutely new in that capacity.

They heard him with a keen interest, not unmixed with curiosity. The address was delivered in the clearest tones, in a voice seldom raised above the conversational pitch, but perfectly audible, nevertheless. His enunciation was distinct and his delivery exceedingly deliberate. He used few gestures, making his emphasis almost entirely with his voice. He adhered to the text of his written address, with whose wording he appeared perfectly familiar, though he held a copy in his hand and followed it somewhat closely with his eye while speaking. He made no variation whatever from the speech as he had originally perfected it.

The speech was heard with closest attention and applause was frequent. His audience awoke to a high pitch of enthusiasm when he spoke of the policies of so-called militarism and imperialism. "Ours is a world power," said he, "and as such it must be maintained, but I deny that it is at all recently that the United States has attained that eminence."

This brought forth a burst of cheers that caused the speaker to wait a few minutes before he continued to speak. His pledge not to accept a second term if he should be elected aroused instant interest, which increased to marked enthusiasm when the speaker went on to explain his position. Then the crowd seemed to yield to the force of his reasoning and at the end of a particularly telling period toward the close of the speech it gave the candidate the greatest demonstration of the afternoon. It looked as though every man, woman and child in the throng surrounding the platform had a small American flag and as they cheered the waving flags almost concealed the occupants of the stand. The speaker waited for the applause to subside and then made his few concluding remarks, finishing his address at 2:54 o'clock.

As Judge Parker spoke his closing words the band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner," and from the deck of the yacht Sapphire a number of bombs were fired in a salute. These, bursting in the air, released parachutes from which were suspended the national colors. Later there were whistle salutes from the steamer Sagamore, the Sapphire and August Belmont's yacht, the Scout, which brought David B. Hill from Hyde Park.

After the ceremony all crowded up eagerly to shake the candidate's hand and to congratulate him upon his speech. The reception was continued on the veranda until after 4 o'clock.

Statue of Minute Man for Framingham by Mrs. Kitson.

Mrs. Theo Kitson has just completed the full-size clay model for her statue of the Minute-Man of the Revolution for the town of Framingham. The figure is a little more than 8 feet high, and will be sent to the Bonard foundry in New York this week to be cast in bronze. It is probable that the dedication ceremonies may take place this coming autumn, as the statue will be ready in October.

Mrs. Kitson has had the felicitous idea, says the Boston Advertiser, of taking the village blacksmit has the type of her minute-man in this instance, and by the way of giving him his appropriate background she has introduced, just back of his brawny form, his anvil, hammer and tongs. He has just been summoned for duty, and as he leaves his work still wearing his leather apron with his shirt-sleeves rolled up above the elbows, showing the superb muscles of his arms, he pours from the antique powderhorn a charge of powder into the pan of his old flintlock gun.

This action, which we cannot remember having seen depicted in plastic form before, is happily chosen, and very graphically and freely rendered, giving a very effective combination of lines to the composition, as seen from front and both sides, besides lending an illustrative significance to the figure which is massive, virile and picturesque in the extreme.

The head is especially fine and noble, the countenance having an appearance of great intelligence, firmness and determination. Moreover, the figure stands upon its feet admirably, with a highly satisfactory sense of poise. The statue will be placed upon a plain pedestal of granite about 6 ft. high, at a point about half-way between Framingham Center and So. Framingham.

ADAMS AND HANCOCK

Identified with Boston History as Well as Quincy.

The places of historic interest in Boston will be placarded. In the list are 68 sites, and some Quincy people may not know these facts relative to illustrious sons who were born in Quincy:

HOTEL TOURAINE.

"Here stood the house of President John Quincy Adams."

WEST CORNER MERCHANTS ROW AND SOUTH MARKET STREET.

"Here was situated the shop of John Hancock, who dealt in English and India goods."

BEACON STREET NEXT MT. VERNON PLACE.

"Here stood the residence of Gov. John Hancock.

Other placards recall Benjamin Franklin, Anne Hutchinson, Gov. Winthrop, Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., Peter Faneuil, Daniel Webster, Gen. Joseph Warren, Gov. Andrews, Cotton Mather, Paul Revere, James Otis, Samuel Adams, and many others, as well as historic sites.

Quincy Vs. Fitchburg.

Quincy makes a good showing when compared with the larger city of Fitchburg. Our increase in valuation is faster and our tax rate less.

Miss Morton to Christen.

Miss Pauline Morton, the daughter of the Secretary of the Navy, will christen the training ship Cumberland, to be launched Wednesday, Aug. 17, at at the Boston navy yard.

☞ Forty-three years have passed away since the Civil war veterans first responded to the call for arms and rallied to the defense of their country, more than the average life of a generation. To many, perhaps to most of these who are now living, the story of their valorous deeds is but repeated history, although to the participants they will ever remain a living reality. But the influence of the brave deeds of our fathers and brothers will never be forgotten while a government of the people, for the people and by the people shall not perish from the face of the earth.—Gloucester Times.

—Two aluminum models of the great East River suspension bridge, perfect in every detail, are exhibited in the City of New York building on the Model Street at the World's Fair. They show the footways, the surface car and elevated tracks, and the wagon ways.

—New Bedford's tax rate is $19.20 an increase of $1.20 over last year. She has lost 231 polls, and her net gain in valuation was jacked up $1,040,822.

CASE DISMISSED.

Alexander Wilson Discharged on Shooting Charge.

The continued case of Alexander Wilson, who it was alleged fired the shot which struck Laura Delorey in the breast on the afternoon of July 4, while she was seated in a house on Water street, came up this morning in the district court.

Miss Delorey while on the road to recovery was not able to appear in court. There was no evidence to connect Wilson with firing the shot. On the day of the shooting Wilson, with others, entered the house where the girl was, and it was alleged that he told them to keep quiet and the least said about it the better. On the other hand Wilson and the Delorey girl herself, say that when he came in he told them not to get excited. The court ordered the case dismissed.

HOLIDAY WANTED.

Letter Carriers of Paul Revere Post Would Appreciate It.

The suggestion of a partial holiday in Quincy on Tuesday next, meets with favor.

The Grand Army and veterans employed by Uncle Sam at the post office would like to see it, because otherwise they say they cannot get away, as there are no substitutes to take their places.

Should the stores close at 9 A. M., the clerks could take the 9.12 train for Boston, and if it is desirable to reopen at 3 or 4 P. M., the clerks can get back.

The office of the Daily Ledger is ready to shut down for the entire day if the holiday idea becomes general.

Back from Sweden.

Edward J. Sandberg arrived home this morning from Sweden, where he has been since May 24. He came on the Saxonia which docked at 9.30 A. M. A number of his Quincy friends were at the wharf to welcome him home. C. F. Carlson who went to Sweden with Mr. Sandberg will not return until next month.

Bids for Battleships.

The Clyde ship-builders have been asked to make tenders at once for the construction of British battleships which will excel anything in the world.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam decreased the number of commercial failures among his family from 15,088, with liabilities of $226,000,000 to 12,069, with liabilities of $155,000,000, a decrease of 3,019 in number and $71,000,000 in liabilities.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

High tax rates are not confined to Massachusetts; the rate in Portland, Maine, this year is $20.80 per $1,000.

Malden finds that it made a mistake in reducing its water rates from $20 to $14, as there is a deficiency in the water department to be met by taxation. The Quincy maximum rate for a house is $18, a happy medium.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Schemes that offer much for little in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred are unsafe investments. Projects of real, substantial merit promise less profit, but the investor stands an infinitely better show of getting something for his money. "Steal" stocks and something for nothing schemes are good things to fight shy of. They are profitable only to their promoters, and the promoters as a rule are men whose gift of gab has been developed at the expense of their conscience.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞Meat eating is a fashion—not very cleanly, not very human, not very safe, unbeautiful, expensive. But it is a fashion; and the painstaking housewife will feel most uncomfortable when she finds all the butchers in town keeping closed doors or sitting on stolid guard over empty ice boxes. The painstaking housekeeper will wonder what she can possibly get in place of meat. The legumes, peas, beans and lentils contain all the elements of food that are found in meat, but are free from the uric acid, zathins, creatin and other poisonous substances with which each morsel of meat is loaded. A dish of peas or beans used in place of the inveterate steak or chop will satisfy the appetite, feed bones, muscles and nerve, and leave one entirely free from the heavy, full feeling, perhaps accompanied by slight dizziness, that so often follows the free eating of flesh. Then there are also milk, cream, cheese and eggs, etc.—Health Culture.

☞If it is desired to keep a town in a stagnant condition, showing no growth, and no enterprise, the best way is to be lavish in municipal expenditure, push the tax rate up to a high figure and hold it there. It will keep out capital much more efficiently than a scare crow will protect a cornfield from birds. Taunton is in that unfortunate condition now. The electric light elephant, the sewer leech and outrageous county debt has leaded its tax payers, and there can be no relief unless there is a municipal economy of the strictest kind. If a prudent man finds his outgo is too big for his income, he does not open the faucet wider and pile up a bigger mortgage on his property. People expect their city officials who manage the public outgo and income to be as careful as a sensible man. If they are not, there is nothing to do but fold the hands and slide down hill into the swamp.—Taunton Gazette.

A PEACE "FEELER"

Diplomat Close to Czar Shows How Powers May Intervene

RUSSIA NOW PESSIMISTIC

Realizes Situation In Manchuria, Where Japs Are Closing In on Kuropatkin From Three Directions--Russian Fleet Emerges From Port Arthur and Has Severe Engagement With Japanese Fleet Outside

London, Aug. 11.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says:

"Discounting the fall of Port Arthur and the disastrous defeat of General Kuropatkin at the hands of the combined Japanese armies, some diplomats are already speculating upon the situation in which the combatants would be left and the question as to whether it is possible that a way would be opened for peace.

"One diplomat, representing a European power at the court of Emperor Nicholas, says: 'Secretary Hay's note opening a way for the guarantee of the administrative entity of China, to which all the powers subscribed in principle, may after all become the means of bringing about peace. If Japan, pushing the Russian military forces out of Manchuria and obtaining undisputed possession, should then formally relinquish the province to China, its real owner, and call upon the powers under their guarantee to protect the entity of the Celestial empire, I do not think the powers could escape responsibility.

"'There would, of course, be difficulties growing out of the predelictions of the various powers. Nevertheless, all the powers, I believe, are in accord in a common desire to see peace restored, and many are of the opinion that the only hope of peace in the immediate future, if the Japanese succeeded in driving the Russians out of Manchuria, rests upon the intervention of all the powers on the basis of their replies to Mr. Hay's note.

"'Russia could better afford to yield to the powers than to Japan alone.'"

If the dispatches are to be trusted, St. Petersburg is alarmed about the situation in the field of operations in the far east. Kuroki, with a great army, is threatening Kuropatkin from the east; the armies of Oku and Nodzu are pressing upon him from the south; Oyama is moving from the southwest with the army landed at Kinkow, while still another Japanese force is said to be moving on Mukden along the Shanhai Kwan railroad, which leads to Sinmintum, 30 miles west of Mukden.

To add to the disquiet is the fact that the Japanese have secured a footing on Wolf hills, where presumably they are mounting siege guns with which to bombard Port Arthur.

This bald statement of the facts of the case certainly does not make cheerful reading for Russians. Without any reliable information as to the number of men and the strength of artillery with which Kuropatkin faces this military proposition, it is difficult to make accurate deductions.

It would seem that the greatest peril to the Russian main army is the movement along the Shanhai Kwan road toward Sinmintun. This route offers the easiest line of approach to Mukden. There are, so far as is known, no fortified points along this road and Sinmintun is only weakly held. The place offers a good base for a movement against Mukden.

After all the anger and loud talk in London about the status of the volunteer fleet, the fact that Turkey has admitted the right of Russia to send these ships through the Dardanelles, stipulating only that they shall not be armed or carry munitions of war, and that they fly the commercial flag and pass through separately, is not palatable. The sultan apparently does not concern himself as to what becomes of the vessels after they reach the open sea.

GREAT SEA FIGHT ON

Russian Fleet Leaves Port Arthur and Fights With Japs

Tokio, Aug. 11.—The Russian fleet emerged from Port Arthur Wednesday and a severe engagement with the Japanese fleet, lasting all day, followed. The Japanese destroyers attacked the Russians at night. The results of the engagements were unknown. The Russian battleships Retvizan and Pobieda were seen outside Port Arthur this morning.

Chefoo, Aug. 11.—Admiral Sah of the Chinese navy arrived here last night from the Kiaotao Islands. He says the firing Monday night was at Port Arthur and was heavy all night long. Further firing, according to the admiral, was heard yesterday afternoon.

By Way of Cheefoo

Chefoo, Aug. 11.—A Russian torpedo boat destroyer entered Chefoo harbor at 5:30 o'clock this morning and reported that six Russian battleships, four cruisers and half of the torpedo boats escaped from Port Arthur yesterday morning. The torpedo boat destroyer left Port Arthur last night, bringing in five passengers, who stated that the Japanese fleet is pursuing the Russians and that a battle on the open sea is expected.

EMBEZZLED $1000

Charge Against the Washington Agent of a Boston Firm

Boston, Aug. 11.—William Hopkins, a former resident of this city, was arrested last night, charged with being a fugitive from justice. Hopkins was arrested at the request of the police of Washington, in which city he is wanted for the alleged embezzlement of $1000 from D. P. Nichols & Co., carriage manufacturers, whose agent he was.

The company is a Boston concern with branch offices in a number of the large cities throughout the country. Hopkins had charge of the Washington office. It is charged that Hopkins sold carriages for the company and kept the payments for his own use.

Chief Watts of the local bureau of criminal investigation received a telegram from Chief of Police Sylvester of Washington, stating that Hopkins was in this vicinity. After a long search two police headquarters detectives located Nichols in Jamaica Plain. He was locked up and an officer from Washington will take him back to that city. Hopkins is a prosperous appearing man of about 38 years of age.

Submarine Won Over Gunboat

Newport, Aug. 11.—A sham battle between a submarine boat, Shark, and the gunboat, Hist, took place off Beaver Tail and the former won. The Shark made a submerged run from the torpedo station to the gunboat, 3½ miles distant, and was not seen by officers on board the gunboat until within 90 yards of the ship. The Shark used her periscope, and found it a great improvement over the altiscope with which she was formerly equipped.

Police Chief Retires

Hartford, Aug. 11.—The resignation of Cornelius Ryan as chief of police was received last night at a meeting of the police board. He was given leave of absence until October, when his successor will probably be chosen. Ryan has been 43 years in the service of the police department, rising from the position of patrolman to appointment as chief three years ago.

Revere Will Be Wide Open

Revere, Mass., Aug. 11.—Every amusement place at Revere beach, including the Crescent Gardens theatre, was given a license for Sunday and week-day performances at a protracted meeting of the board of selectmen last night. The arguments were exhaustive, but the majority for licenses is said to have been more than sufficient.

No Trace of Bosworth's Slayer

Hartford, Aug. 11.—A reward of $3000 has been offered by Governor Chamberlain for the apprehension of the murderer of Eugene Bosworth of New Britain, who was killed in that city on Aug. 2 last. Thus far the New Britain authorities have been unable to discover any clue pointing to the identity of Bosworth's slayer.

Discovery Wreck Discovered

Seattle, Aug. 11.—The hull of the Nome steamship Discovery is lying on the inner side of Middleton island near Valdez, according to advices just received here. When the Discovery went down between 25 and 40 persons met death, the exact number aboard the vessel at the time not being known. The vessel made her last call at Yakutat, en route from Nome, about the middle of last November.

Met Steamer In Distress

Honolulu, Aug. 11.—The U. S. S. Solace has arrived here from Manila. She reports having met the British S. S. Brodwick Castle in distress. She was short of provisions and her chronometer was broken. The Solace gave the British steamship her reckonings and supplied her with a chronometer and provisions.

Political Conference at White House

Washington, Aug. 11.—President Roosevelt had as guests at luncheon Secretaries Taft and Shaw, Postmaster General Payne and Patrick Egan of New York, former minister to Chili. The nature of the conference at the luncheon is understood to have related to the political situation, especially in the east.

Heavy Theft of Lead Pipe

New York, Aug. 11.—Lead pipe insulation, including copper wire, has recently disappeared from the Edison Electric Light company's various storage houses and subways. It is said by a representative of the company that $100,000 worth of the product, which costs $1.25 a foot, has been purloined.

Repeats That Jewels Were Mislaid

Newport, R. I., Aug. 11.—Chief of Police Richards has given out a lengthy statement in which he reviews the case of the Goelet jewels. He reiterates his assertion that Mrs. Goelet had mislaid the jewels and had forgotten where she had put them. No new facts were brought out in the statement.

Johnson Is Governor of Chicasaws

Oklahoma City, O. T., Aug. 11.—Complete returns from the Chickasaw Nation, I. T., show that D. H. Johnson was elected over R. McLish for governor by a majority of 187. This is the last tribal election in the Chickasaw nation.

Austria Suffers From Drouth

Vienna, Aug. 11.—On account of the drouth the government has issued an ordinance prohibiting the exportation of barley, maize and all kinds of fresh and dried fodder until further notice.

Canada Keeps Seawanhaka Cup

Montreal, Aug. 11.—Noorna won the fifth and deciding race, defeating White Bear by 2m. 48s, and the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht club retains possession of the Seawanhaka cup.

Wednesday was Mildred Hall day on the Floating Hospital. Among the guests were Mrs. W. E. Merrill and Mrs. C. J. Hennigar of Wollaston.

Miss Grace Barry, of the claim department office of the Old Colony street railway, is on a two weeks' trip to the St. Louis Fair. She will visit Niagara Falls and New York on her way home.

The headquarters of the Granite Cutters' National Union will be removed from Washington, D. C., next week and will be located in the Hancock building. James Duncan, the secretary-treasurer will be in charge.

FAIRBANKS AS AN ORATOR.

How the Senator When a Youth Was Instructed In Public Speaking.

A story is told of how in early days Senator Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, the Republican vice presidential nominee, was instructed in public speaking by a certain professor whose favorite maxim was, "Always speak what is uppermost in your mind, for that is sure to be uppermost in the minds of your audience."

"Is this necessarily always the case?" inquired the embryo senator, to whom this was a new doctrine, says Joe Mitchell Chapple in the National Magazine for August.

"Always," said the professor, with a finality in his manner that forbade further discussion.

Some time afterward the young orator found himself before an audience in which ladies largely predominated. The room was warm and stuffy. In the front rank sat the aged professor with scholastic mien, his eye fixed expectantly upon his protege, his glance seeming to reiterate that oft repeated maxim, "Speak what is uppermost." The address was begun with fine effect in the young man's best style and most melodious voice, but soon an air of nervousness and uneasiness began to appear, and the orator grew warm and flurried. There came a moment when the flow of fervid oratory instantly dried up. The tall form of the young man almost seemed to waver when suddenly he caught the professor's eye. A flash of inspiration came to him, dictated perhaps by the "sandy desert" condition of his throat.

"I'll have a drink," he said.

This was too much for the audience, who knew well that the orator never drank anything stronger than water. But this was the turning point of the meeting, which came to a successful close, that moment of self forgetfulness having given the speaker an opportunity to collect his thoughts and proceed.

Animals In Japan.

Japanese birds build their nests in the city houses. Wild fowl, geese and ducks alight in the public parks and wild deer trot about the streets.

Gesture Language.

In Naples gesture often takes the place of words not only with lazzaroni, but even with princes. King Ferdinand, on his return to Naples after the revolt in 1821, addressed his subjects in gestures. He reproached them, admonished them and finally pardoned them, sending them away satisfied without having articulated a single word.

Fish Color.

Change of color is one of the best indexes to the emotions of the fish. When the fish is sick its color is apt to be faint, while when in health, angry or breeding the colors stand out brightly and vividly.

Insured for $2,000,000
L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in
The Prudential Insurance Co.
for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.
Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.
Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.
Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."
Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.
These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.
Better apply TODAY for information regarding Prudential policies to

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays
are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is
WHAT IT PAYS.
The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.
DOES IT PAY
to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

POPULISTS' CREED

It Can Never Die, In the Opinion of Candidate Watson.

SCORES BOTH OLD PARTIES

Makes Sarcastic Reference to Their Conventions and Appeals Against Fusion With Democrats In Nebraska

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 11.—Thomas E. Watson and Thomas H. Tibbles opened the Populist campaign here when the state convention met to nominate candidates. The Oliver theatre was filled, the anti-Parker element predominating strongly.

Mr. Watson said this was the first part he had taken in politics in eight years, but that the fires of Populism still burned fiercely within him. He said true Populists would not be swayed from principles by mere results at the ballot box and after summarizing the tenets of his party he declared: "Such a creed can never die."

Mr. Watson scored both the old parties and ridiculed the Republican national convention as a cut and dried affair. Of the Democratic convention he said: "It made its appeal to the deity through a megaphone and drafted its platform by telegraph."

His speech, which occupied nearly two and a half hours, was an indirect appeal against fusion, and he was frequently applauded. At its conclusion permanent organization was effected by the election of former Senator Allen as chairman. Committees were appointed and adjournment was taken until 8:30 in the evening.

At the night session the Populists voted to select Watson and Tibbles electors regardless of any action taken by the Democrats. The question of fusion on the state ticket was then taken bitter debate, which was not completed at adjournment.

The meeting of the Democratic convention was delayed two hours to give the delegates an opportunity to hear the address of Watson and to permit conferences with Populist leaders concerning fusion of the two parties. It was admitted that fusion along the lines suggested by the Populists, the substitution of Watson and Tibbles electors for those of Parker and Davis, and an equal division of the state officers, would never be conceded by the Democrats, who insisted on fusion alone on the state ticket, each party supporting its presidential nominee.

A committee on rules and procedure, which in reality was a committee on conference with the Populists, was appointed and a motion made to take a recess pending its report. This was voted down and the convention proceeded to select Parker and Davis electors. John A. Lynch and R. O. Adams were chosen electors-at-large. At 10:45 last night a recess was taken.

CANNON IN VERMONT

Speaker Lauds Republicans and Discusses Parker's Telegram

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 11.—The Republican campaign was formally opened in this state yesterday afternoon, the exercises including a luncheon to the prominent Vermont party leaders and other distinguished guests, and an open air rally in City Hall park. Speaker Cannon of the national house of representatives was the principal attraction and hundreds turned out to hear him.

Congressman Foster presided and the speakers, besides Mr. Cannon, were Congressman Littlefield of Maine and Senators Proctor and Dillingham of Vermont.

Speaker Cannon prefaced his address on the issues of the day by outlining the history of the Republican party, and said that as a party it was founded not upon sentiment, but as one which always stood for freedom and equal rights and was ever in favor of progress. He then gave elaborate statistics tending to show the prosperous condition of manufacture and industry under Republican rule.

Referring to Parker's now famous telegram to the Democratic convention after the announcement of his nomination for the presidency, Mr. Cannon said: "It was Judge Parker's only chance. He sent that telegram because he was between the devil and the deep sea." He characterized the New York Sun as "the devil," and the Bryan wing of the Democratic party as "the deep sea."

"Judge Parker," said Mr. Cannon, "had to send that telegram to satisfy his New York friends. If he had not done so he would have offended them, whereas, on the other hand, the sending of it offended the Bryan wing."

Harrison For Governor

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Congressman Francis B. Harrison has been put forward for the Democratic nomination for governor. His name was suggested in an informal discussion between New York politicians and it was received so favorably that some of the Tammany officials predicted that the names of Mayor McClellan and Daniel S. Lamont would be eliminated from the contest. Advocacy of a boom for Harrison is said to be in keeping alike with the inclination of state leaders to give the governorship nomination to Tammany and with the demand of that organization that its claims be recognized.

FRESH NEGOTIATIONS

Another Attempt to Settle Stockyards Strike by Mediation

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Determined efforts are now being made to settle the stockyards strike by mediation. Negotiations begun between the Retail Butchers and Grocers' association and representatives of several labor unions, which would undoubtedly be involved in the strike should it be prolonged much longer, resulted last night in the appointment of a committee to negotiate with the packers in an attempt to bring about a joint meeting between the employers and the striking unions.

Strike Breakers Sent Into River

New York, Aug. 11.—Two hundred strike breakers destined for the plant of Schwarzschild & Sulzberger were attacked by a number of beef workers last evening and were completely routed. Several of the strike breakers were badly beaten and others jumped into East river, from which they were rescued with difficulty. The beef workers were "fat men," who clean up after the regular workers. They were about to join their striking fellow-workmen when the non-union men arrived on a lighter. They became enraged at the coming of their successors and, quitting work, attacked them.

Big Strike Over Simple Matter

Hartford, Aug. 11.—As a result of meetings last night of the Contractors' association and the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' unions, there seems to be no immediate prospect of settling the differences which have arisen over the strike of employes of Contractor Andrus because of the latter's refusal to pay to George Butler 75 cents, which Butler asserts is due him for work done. There is a likelihood of an extension of the strike.

Relieving Strikers' Wants

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 11.—The distribution of relief to the needy strikers continues. A total of $1800 has been expended for succor since Monday. By tonight the relief committee expects to have all cases now upon the books cared for, and the several relief stations will be reopened on Friday.

Archbishop of Canterbury Coming

London, Aug. 11.—Rev. Dr. R. T. Davidson, archbishop of Canterbury, has issued a message to the clergy and laity announcing his forthcoming visit to the United States to attend the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States and Canada, which will be held in Boston in October. The journey, he says, is undertaken in the belief that it will promote closer amity in the common work of the church in the two countries.

Consul Gowdy's Office Robbed

Paris, Aug. 11.—Consul General Gowdy, on arriving at the American consulate, found that his private desk had been forced, the woodwork badly smashed, petty cash and postage stamps amounting to several hundred francs abstracted and his papers ransacked. The big safe of the consulate bore conspicuous traces of unsuccessful attempts to force it open. The police are making the fullest investigation.

Given Porto Rican Positions

Washington, Aug. 11.—President Roosevelt has appointed Regis H. Post of New York to be secretary of Porto Rico, and Erastus S. Rockwell of the District of Columbia to be auditor of Porto Rico. These appointments are made temporarily until the president shall have time to reorganize the entire council of the island government.

Hunger Brought Surrender

New York, Aug. 11.—Because of hunger, a man who said he was John A. Gaffney, 28 years old, walked into a police station last night and confessed to the theft of $50 from his employers in Watertown, Mass. The only reason he gave for surrendering himself was hunger, not having eaten anything in the last two days.

Old Newspaper Man Dead

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Sherman M. Booth, one of the original abolitionists of the middle west, and the oldest graduate of Yale university in Illinois, died here last night, aged 92. He was prominent as an editor, and conducted several newspapers before and after the Civil war.

Lightning Kills Man and Boy

New York, Aug. 11.—During a heavy thunderstorm in this city and vicinity William Hagen, 27 years old, was killed by lightning while driving a truck in Brooklyn. An unidentified boy was killed by lightning in Brownsville. Several buildings were struck.

Fatal Quarrel Over Cards

New York, Aug. 11.—Peter Corb, an Italian laborer, was stabbed to death during a quarrel over a card game here in a saloon. The police are still searching for Vincenzo Magalloro, who did the stabbing.

Muravieff Von Plehve's Successor

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—There is a persistent rumor that the czar has signed the appointment of Minister of Justice Muravieff as minister of the interior in succession to the late M. Von Plehve.

Car Struck Telephone Pole

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 11.—The brakes refused to work on an electric car here while running very fast and the car crashed into a telephone pole. Six passengers were badly injured.

Wong Bing Raises a Question

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Wong Bing, a Chinaman, arrested on a New York Central train for boundary jumping, alleged he was a naturalized British citizen and had been living at Brookville, Ont., for five years. As such he claimed the right to enter the United States, but the commissioner ordered his deportation. The question is raised whether he can be deported to Canada or to China. Canada makes no provision for Chinese citizens and will not allow Bing to return. John Williams, who brought the Chinaman across the border, was held for the United States grand jury.

Thea Was Legally Sunk

Vladivostok, Aug. 11.—The prize court has condemned the German steamer Thea, which was sunk by the Vladivostok squadron off the coast of Japan July 24, and declared that the Russian cruisers were justified in sinking the vessel. Evidence was produced that since March 25 the Thea has been engaged exclusively in the Japanese trade between Japanese ports. On this ground the court declared that she had lost all her rights as the vessel of a neutral nation.

Fraudulent Naturalization

New York, Aug. 11.—G. W. Morgan, state superintendent of elections, says it is estimated that $600,000 has been made within the past year in the sale of fraudulent naturalization papers, and that the federal authorities estimate that over 100,000 fraudulent naturalization papers have been sold by those engaged in this illicit traffic and that 30,000 of these have been issued in New York city. Italians are by far the greater offenders in this matter.

Street Car Turned Over

Mauch Chunk, Pa., Aug. 11.—A big summer car on a street railway ran away in Beaver Run valley, south of Mauch Chunk mountain. The brakes refused to work and when the car struck a curve at the foot of a grade it turned completely over. The motorman, conductor and two passengers were perhaps fatally hurt. The car was prevented from rolling into Beaver Run, 70 feet below, by line poles and trees.

Autoists' Long Trip Ended

St. Louis, Aug. 11.—The party of automobilists coming from the east to meet at the World's Fair arrived yesterday. Among the first to cross over the Eads bridge was a car from Philadelphia. Not far behind was the main body, 61 in number. Owing to heavy rain Tuesday night the run from Springfield had to be made at half speed, and the line of automobiles was pretty well spread out.

Labor Affects Colorado Politics

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Senator Dick of Ohio, who came here to have a talk with Secretary Dover, came direct from Colorado. He says of the situation there: "It would be idle to deny that the labor troubles have affected the situation, but in my opinion, they have not jeopardized the Republican cause in that state."

Tried to Wipe Out Family

Pueblo, Col., Aug. 11.—J. W. Miller shot and killed his wife, attempted to murder his eldest daughter and then killed himself. The daughter escaped by running out of the house, taking two younger children of Miller with her. No motive for Miller's act is known.

France Loses a Statesman

Paris, Aug. 11.—Former Premier Waldeck-Rosseau died at his country residence at Corbell from the effects of an operation which his medical attendants deemed to be a final necessity.

The Bancroft at Monte Cristi

Washington, Aug. 11.—A cablegram announces the arrival at Monte Cristi, San Domingo, of the gunboat Bancroft, at the request of Minister Dawson for the protection of American interests.

RECLAIMING WILD LAND

The Value of Drainage Near Rothville, Mo.

CROPS WHERE FISHES ONCE SWAM

How a "Yankee Farmer" Bought Swamp Land For Fifty Cents an Acre and Is Converting It Into Productive Land Worth From Fifty to Seventy-five Dollars.

One of the largest private enterprises in the west to reclaim waste land is now under way between Rothville, Mo., and Dean's lake, on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, says the Kansas City Star. The fire in the engine operating the dredger is never banked, because the force works in two shifts throughoout the entire day and night. The tract comprises 9,000 acres of swamp land, which a year ago was a sportsman's ideal resort for duck hunting and fishing. The owner is W. A. Rankin of Rankin, Ill., who is opening the eyes of Missourians to the value of land they had long since given over to the fishes. Mr. Rankin was four years buying this big lake. It was sold by the county as swamp land at from 50 cents to $1 an acre. The whole tract could not be acquired at once, and the investor waited patiently until he could obtain a tract the size he wanted. The people smiled at the Illinois man's poor investment and felt sorry for him. They are not pitying him now, because they see that Mr. Rankin was wiser than they knew.

Mr. Rankin's dredgers have been at work about a year. Here and there where the water has been drained off are small patches of corn, hay and oats. Their advanced condition now clearly indicates the remarkable productiveness of the land.

The main canal running through the center of the swamp will be four miles long and twenty feet wide. It will empty into Yellow creek, which in turn loses itself in the Grand river. There will be lateral ditches leading to the main canal. With the water removed and dangers from floods reduced to almost nothing by the drainage ditches, the tract will rise into high class Missouri farming lands—from $50 to $75 per acre. Mr. Rankin has already invested $50,000 in the drainage work and intends to place as much more before he has his system perfected. He employs every ablebodied man at from $1.50 to $3 a day, but it is noticeable that most of the workmen are strangers in the community. The reason is that Rothville laborers have an aversion to working in the mud. It is not a clean job, and the man who undertakes it must face the necessary condition of soiled clothes as if he enjoys it.

There is no more fifty cent land in these parts. Mr. Rankin's enterprise has sent prices skyward. Those who own swamp land, but haven't the means to convert it into productive fields, will wait in the hope that another millionaire investor may start their way. It would be useless for the owner of a few hundred acres to attempt any marked improvement on his own account, because water from adjoining lands would nullify his efforts, but many small landowners could combine and organize a drainage association under the laws laid down for that purpose. There is talk of doing this since observing the admirable results of the Illinois man's system.

Mr. Rankin employs between sixty and seventy men. They live in tents located on the high land. The dredger eats its way through the land, the water following behind in the completed canal. No retracing is required. The waterway is finished up to the point where the dredger stands. The people of the neighborhood of Rothville call Mr. Rankin "the Yankee farmer" because he came into a wilderness that nobody wanted and with his strange looking craft is driving out the fish and water moccasins and turning it into a land of promise. It is Yankee-like, they say, to do those things.

The Czar a Hard Smoker.

After breakfast the czar of Russia smokes a very strong Havana cigar, says the London Mail, and indulges in tobacco incessantly for the rest of the day, although his doctors have warned him that it is most injurious to his health.

In a Japanese Garden.

In a garden wee and cool,
Stunted pine and fairy pool,
Tinkling, tinkling now and then
On her carven samisen,
Sighing for the little man
Gone to fight for dear Japan,
Sits the girl, Oyucha San.

Ah, but you were proud of heart
When you saw his troops depart!
Riding like a foreign lord,
Boots and cap and dangling sword,
Demigod hero man
Who would make a new Japan—
Thus he seemed, Oyucha San.

"Good success!" I heard you pray
On the hour he went away.
Should the gods heed, can you guess
What may come with "good success?"
How his sword may change the plan
Of the silken old Japan,
Almond eyed Oyucha San?

Hear the crickets' reedy tune!
See the lantern of the moon
Glint the lacquer on the deep
Where the gray carp lies asleep!
Why should armies scheme and plan,
Dun ambition for Japan,
Which is blest, Oyucha San?

How the gods may be surprised
When Nippon grows "civilized!"
When the spade of commerce threads
Railroads through your iris beds!
Vanish clogs, kimono, fan;
Vanish beauty from Japan—
Vanish you, Oyucha San!

Progress calls you, so, alas,
Yeddo's blossom time must pass!
Soon you'll hear the grinding mill
Shriek and fume on Nara's hill,
O'er an ugly, changed Japan—
And for this your little man
Goes to war, Oyucha San.

The owners of orchards will most certainly feel relieved when the fruit season is over. It doesn't speak very well for the boarding houses when the men come directly from the supper table and raid the hard winter pears in the neighboring yards.

Augustus F. Nightingale of Chicago, president of the University of Illinois, has spent a few days this week in this, his native town. He was on business connected with the University and therefore had not time for an extended visit. He appears in good health and spirits.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

A Snap For Him.

They sat beneath a maple tree,
Back in a nook where none could see,
And when a star shot through the air,
Of course he kissed her, which was fair.

Too slow the stars fell from the sky,
So he called in a firefly,
And later on, more bliss to gain,
Spied far the headlight of a train.

An automobile scorching near
Is new occasion for good cheer;
It has five lights the way to find,
And for good measure one behind.

But, Jumping Caesar! Oh, yum, yum!
See, campaign torchlight marchers come
And halt a few rods from their tree
To drill where they can plainly see.

As Dangerous a Plaything.

"Primitive man had to get along without the automobile."

"Yes, but he had a club which, while much cruder, was quite as effective."

The Summer Boarder.

In regard to the summer boarder there is yet another side. We only hear about it from the standpoint of the lady who has been lured into the country by the seductive advertisement and dumped down on a spot that had already been pre-empted by a colony of mosquitoes and where the canned goods of commerce serve as a poor substitute for fresh country vegetables; a place where the ice trust lays no tribute, and where oleomargarine performs thrice a day in place of real butter that has been shipped away to the lucky city customer.

The other side is the side of the woman who runs the ranch. For $4 a week she is expected to furnish board like that of the Waldorf-Astoria, to have scenery that is a combination of the mountains of Switzerland and the lakes of Scotland, to have a cool breeze trained to spring up at the touch of a button and to furnish a band concert eight evenings in the week.

Between these two extremes there is a medium—unhappy, it may be, but if the scientific investigator will take the trouble to look up each case he will see that the summer boarder gets just about what he pays for and no more.

Cause and Effect.

He ate a piece of hotel pie,
And when he had a morbid dream
And thought the nightmare was a team
He couldn't figure why.

A Family Resemblance.

"The peach crop must be of the cat family."

"How do you make that out?"

"It appears to have nine lives."

Natural Consequence.

"What crime is he charged with?"

"Stealing a watch."

"Of course he will have to 'do time' for that."

AN AUTO TORPEDO BOAT.

Invention to Increase Deadly Character of Torpedo Warfare.

The terrible effectiveness with which mines and torpedoes have been used in the Russo-Japanese war lends interest to inventions designed to increase their deadliness. Francis and C. F.

AUTO TORPEDO BOAT AND HOW IT IS SENT AGAINST AN ENEMY.

Herreshoff of New York are said to have submitted plans to the navy department for an autoboat torpedo, through the use of which a torpedo attack could be made with practical certainty as to results. Such a boat could be built in the form of a torpedo, so that two persons might operate it, steer it to within a few hundred feet of the vessel to be attacked and then jump for their lives, life preservers being furnished them to enable them to keep afloat until rescued.

A SONG FROM THE HEART.

How Walter Kittredge Wrote "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground."

A song that has stood the test of forty years is "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground." It has a simplicity and pathos that have kept it popular after many of the songs written during the civil war and in vogue for a time have long been forgotten. Many an assemblage has been stirred to tears by it. Over 100,000 copies of it have been sold, and the author, who is still living, continues to enjoy a royalty from it. His name is Walter Kittredge, and he lives quietly on a farm in Reed's Ferry, a remote hamlet of New Hampshire near the Merrimac river. When he wrote "Many are the hearts that are weary tonight," Kittredge was expecting to be mustered into the army next day. He stood before a window of his home with violin and bow in hand. In the next room were his wife and child. As he thought of the parting from them he played, and words and tune shaped themselves in his mind. It was a genuine song from the heart. But he did not go to war. An illness prevented his enlistment.

WALTER KITTREDGE AND VIOLIN ON WHICH "TENTING TONIGHT" WAS COMPOSED.

WAR VESSELS BARRED.

Russian Ships of War May Not Pass Dardanelles and Bosporus.

If Russia were able to send war vessels from the Black sea into the Mediterranean by way of the Bosporus and the Dardanelles it would be of great advantage to her in view of the present war with Japan. But that privilege is debarred her by the treaty of Paris of 1856, negotiated at the close of the Crimean war. This provided that the sultan of Turkey should have the power to prevent ships of war of foreign nations from entering the straits of the Dardanelles and of the Bosporus and that so long as the sultan was at peace his majesty should admit no such ships into these straits. Whenever since 1856 Russia has tried to override this treaty the other powers have prompted the sultan in maintaining it. Recently the czar has endeavored to get around its provisions by sending a so called "volunteer fleet," consisting of armed merchant ships, from the Black sea through these straits, and this course has aroused protest.

THE DARDANELLES, BOSPORUS AND TURKISH FORTS.

NATIONAL RIFLE RESERVE.

War Department's Plan to Develop Expert Marksmen.

The national board for the promotion of rifle practice, under authority of the war department, has announced plans for the formation of a national reserve of qualified riflemen, says a Washington special dispatch to the New York Times. Those who qualify under the rules adopted will receive a national marksman's button.

The board points out that in the event of war the United States must depend very largely upon the militia and the volunteers for their fighting force. With the modern arms it is all important that the soldier should know how to shoot and to hit what he shoots at.

"By the plan proposed," says the report of the board, "we believe that the United States will within a few years have more than 1,000,000 who will have on the line of battle nearly all the requirements for the most efficient soldiers in the world. We propose to educate our young men and boys over fifteen years of age to be an army of expert rifle shots. A high degree of skill in rifle and revolver shooting and the confidence which a knowledge of this skill gives will make a timid man brave and a brave man more courageous."

It is especially desired to induce practice by the younger men because by far the larger part of an army in the field will be made up of very young men, so that every endeavor should be made to carry on more particularly the practice of the young civilians. It is recommended that this should be done by means of shooting galleries and field ranges and that in erecting armories for the national guard additional range facilities be provided. The report advocates the establishment of sufficient range facilities to permit of active rifle practice by 500,000 to 1,000,000 men.

The plan was devised by a board of which General W. P. Hall, United States army; General Bird W. Spencer, president of the National Rifle association, and I. A. Haskell, vice president of the National Rifle association, were members. It has been approved by Secretary Taft and officially promulgated by the war department.

HOW TOGO WENT TO WAR.

Admiral Didn't Even Bid Wife Goodby, Says American Guest.

Miss M. M. Carpenter, who recently returned to her home at Dunellen, N. J., after a nine years' residence in Japan, was a welcome guest at the home of Admiral Togo of the Japanese navy, and brought with her a dagger which the younger son of the mikado had presented to her, says the New York Times. She was a visitor at the admiral's house after the opening of hostilities with Russia.

The admiral, Miss Carpenter says, left his family without letting even his wife know where he was going or what the character of his mission was, and the admiral's wife did not know of his movements till she saw his name in the papers in connection with an early naval engagement.

"Secrecy," added Miss Carpenter, "marks all the movements of the Japanese warriors. Here in war times we enthuse and arouse the patriotism of the people with pageants of soldiery going to the front to do battle. But in Japan the soldiers are carried through the country and the cities in locked cars, windows closed so they cannot be heard, and curtains drawn so they cannot be seen. And yet patriotism is intense everywhere. Rich and poor alike at the first intimation that war must come even put their most precious heirlooms in pledge for the government's aid and contributed many millions of money to the nation's war fund."

Women Who Seek to Be Old.

A number of women of Los Angeles have formed a unique club known as the Hundred Year club, its members having for the prime object longevity, says a Los Angeles dispatch. By scientific care for body and mind it is expected that its members will live to be a hundred years old or more. The society will be comfortably housed and there will be provided a library of hygienic literature and a course of instruction as to the proper care of the body, while mentality will receive due consideration. Women who have attained the age of ninety years will be admitted without fee and will be entitled to the privileges of the club without dues or other expenses. The president of the club is Dr. Amelia Brotherhood.

Flower Trimmed Frocks.

Artificial flowers are used for the trimming of gowns this summer, and even carriage robes have a flower or two crushed against the girdle, says the New York Press. Flower trimmed evening gowns are not unusual, since this is a favorable fashion for debutantes. Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster wore at a recent luncheon in Newport a pale yellow muslin gown with a broad girdle of yellow silk. Two orange hued flowers were tucked into the girdle, and another orange colored blossom was poised coquettishly under one ear. These flowers saved the gown from being commonplace, but for matrons this flower fad is not safe.

Ban on Chinese Foot Binding.

The Japanese government in Formosa has decreed the abolition of foot binding in the island. A fine of $100 will be imposed for every breach of the law, and Chinese girls under six years of age whose feet have been bound must now have them unbound. After that age the feet are hopelessly deformed, but young children's feet return to their natural shape. Chinese mothers are making a great lament over the enactment, but in a few years the enforcing of the law will be acknowledged to have been wise.

EVERY ONE WILL FLY

"AIR 'LL BE FULL OF US," PREDICTS INVENTOR HOLLAND.

At Work on a Flying Machine He Is Confident Will Soar—People Were Skeptical When He Invented His Now Famous Submarine Boat.

If Inventor John P. Holland has his way about it, men and women of flesh and blood will not have to wait until they have assumed their astral bodies before putting on wings. Mr. Holland proposes that they shall soon be able to buy wings—wings guaranteed to fly—at the comparatively low price of $10 per pair. He is sanguine about the success of the invention he is now working upon. "Fly!" he recently exclaimed when questioned about his plans for navigating the air. "Why, in a few years the air 'll be full of us."

Mr. Holland expects to be able actually to fly, not merely to sail in the air by means of a balloon. He contemplates fitting the public out with wings so that each individual can go from point to point through the air with as little difficulty as is now experienced in riding a bicycle and in time with perhaps even less danger than bicycle riding now involves.

The inventor has succeeded heretofore in doing things about which people were skeptical. He was put in the class with Jules Verne's Captain Nemo when he began experimenting with submarine boats, but the boat that navigates the ocean beneath the waves is now an undoubted success. Consequently, when he says he expects soon to be able to flap a pair of wings and ascend into the air, weight is given to his promise.

The flying machine devised by Mr. Holland consists of four wings, each ten to fifteen feet long. They are to be strapped to the body, two at the shoulders and two at or near the hips. This arrangement, it will be noted, is different from that supposed to be in vogue among the angels, but of course the science of flying is new among mortals, and improvements may be introduced as time goes on. By Mr.

"FLY!" SAID INVENTOR HOLLAND. "WHY, THE AIR 'LL BE FULL OF US."

Holland's plan both hands and feet will be used in working the wings. The mechanism upon which the inventor is now experimenting in a shop in Jersey City is composed of aluminium, steel wire and leather and only weighs about twenty-two pounds, exclusive of the wings. It has not been decided of what to make them. "But," says some one, "what if the wings should break or the mechanism should fail to work while the wearer is a few hundred feet up in the air?" Mr. Holland intends to provide against accident by building the wings in such a manner that the person flying can come to the ground slowly and safely if anything goes wrong with the apparatus.

Once the possibility of flying has been proved it will be easy to provide particular kinds of wings for different kinds of people. The butterfly of fashion will naturally want a different style of wings from the workingman who flies from his suburban cottage to the factory in the city each morning, carrying his dinner pail. Fashions in wings will in time adapt themselves to the requirements of the case. In a similar way persons who learn to fly will soon discover how to avoid entangling themselves in trolley wires and how not to alight in the street in front of an automobile or on top of a baby carriage. Similar difficulties were mastered when people began to ride bicycles. Mr. Holland advises selecting the top of a skyscraper or an open space in a park for alighting, as it will be necessary to descend at an angle rather than straight down.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Pilgrimages Almost Daily to the City of Presidents.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

BIRTHPLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic societies admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Closed for repairs, but soon to be opened to the public by the Society of Colonial Dames, the new owners.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company where warships are being built for the government.

Packers Say That Further Conferences Would Be Useless

NEW MOVE OF STRIKERS

One of Their Number Who Holds Stock In Packing Concern Will Demand Interference by the Government

Chicago, Aug. 12.—The stockyards strike seems no nearer a settlement than it did since the struggle began. Efforts of committees composed of retail butchers and grocers to bring about a conference between the packers and the strike leaders were of no avail.

The retail committee was in conference with representatives of the packers for three hours yesterday afternoon, and at the end of the meeting a statement was given out by the committee of business men saying that they were informed that, considering all that had passed and present conditions, no good reason existed why any further conference with the strikers would be beneficial. The packers refused to discuss the matter further than to confirm the statement given out by the intermediary committee.

When the strike leaders were informed of the decision of the packers to refuse to enter into further conferences with the unionists they began to form plans to force the hand of the legal department of the United States government in an endeavor to bring about a settlement.

The plan, in effect, is this: An action will be started in the federal court in the name of a striker who holds stock in one of the biggest of the packing concerns, demanding that the injunction now held by the government against combinations among the packing firms be put into operation, on the ground that the illegal combination still exists and, through it, shareholders are suffering a loss. This, it is expected by the strike leaders, will induce President Roosevelt to take up the fight and force the packers to produce their books, contracts and agreements in open court. Such a step, it is believed by the strikers, will bring the packers to terms and end the struggle.

Negro Got Away From Mob

Chicago, Aug. 12.—A negro strike breaker was mobbed yesterday inside the stockyards. He was standing on a passenger coach platform while a train was passing the chutes, where a crowd of cattle handlers was assembled. The handlers, who are union men, but not on strike, began yelling. The negro drew a revolver and fired four shots into the crowd. Instantly 100 stock handlers began chasing the train. The negro jumped off and the maddened cattle men turned in pursuit of him, yelling "lynch him." The negro ran in the open for about a hundred yards and then dodged under a freight car and escaped.

Boilermakers' Strike Ended

New Haven, Aug. 12.—All of the old boilermakers of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, who have been on strike since last March, have returned to work in accordance with the terms of an agreement with the company. The men will get an increase in pay of 1½ cents an hour, which is about half what was asked for when they struck. They also get a nine-hour day. Most of the strike breakers have left for New York.

No Labor Parade at Fall River

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 12.—The Central Labor union last night voted to abandon the Labor day celebration. The city had appropriated $800, and it was voted to return this sum and recommend that it be transferred to some department where it might be used to relieve suffering. The business on hand at the relief station has been cleared up, and it opened today to receive applications.

Numerous Riots at New York

New York, Aug. 12.—Brawls and small riots between the strikers and those who had taken their places were of frequent occurrence last night. Several arrests were made. Despite the large force of policemen near the slaughter houses, there were many exciting scenes in that district and the police were kept busy protecting the non-union men.

Contributions For Strikers

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 12.—The Cotton Weavers' union last night voted to send $50 a week to the Fall River strikers during the continuance of the strike and also voted a donation to the Waltham strikers. The Textile Council has voted a donation of $100 to aid the Fall River strikers and the Carpenters' union $25 for the same purpose.

Strike Breaker Badly Beaten

Chicago, Aug. 12.—While standing on his doorstep last night, John Schuman, a strike breaker employed by Swift & Co., was attacked by rioters and severely beaten. A riot call was sent in, but the crowd scattered and no arrests were made. It is believed Schuman's injuries are fatal.

Tube Workers Get a $1000 Lift

Somerville, Mass., Aug. 12.—The American Federation of Labor has donated $1000 to the assistance of the strikers of the American Tube works.

Funeral of Mrs. Gillis

The funeral of Mrs. Murdock H. Gillis, whose sudden death was told in Tuesday's Ledger, was held on Thursday afternoon from her late residence on Chestnut street. Quite a large number of friends and relatives were present and the esteem in which the deceased was held was further attested by the floral offerings. Two beautiful pillows were sent, one by the people who live in the house where Mrs. Gillis died and the other by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Gillis. Wreaths, suitably inscribed, were sent by Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Tirrell, Mrs. Mary Flowers, and Daughters of John Adams, L. O. L. —

The funeral services were held at 2.30, conducted by the Rev. T. S. St. Aubin, who is supplying the pulpit of the Water Street Presbyterian church in the absence of the pastor. The services consisted of prayer, the reading of selected passage of scripture, and remarks by the Rev. Mr. St. Aubin on mystery of death and the importance of faith, and devotion to spiritual things. The burial was at Mount Wollaston cemetery. Mrs. Gillis' maiden name was Minnie Crabb. She came from Hunter River, P. E. I., and had been married nearly three years. Besides her husband she leaves a child about a year and a half old.

HOUGHS NECK.

The Grand Carnival May Be Postponed Two Weeks.

There have been but few new arrivals at the beach this week, for the reason that practically every cottage has been let and is occupied. About all that the real estate men now have are a few rooms to let by the week. There are more people at the beach at the present time than at any time last year.

Next week Wednesday, Thursday and Friday are the days fixed by the committee some weeks ago for the annual festival. Plans however for the event are not as yet completed and it is not known just what the program will be. The trouble is the lack of funds. A committee is making a house-to-house canvass for funds, but is not meeting with the success anticipated.

Sentiment at the beach is divided. Some favor a three days event, while others think that one day would be much better. This in a measure accounts for the lack of enthusiasm. There are quite a number who want a firemen's muster on the last day, but whether the committee will decide to hold one depends largely upon the amount of money raised.

A meeting of the committe will be held tonight when reports of the canvassers for funds will be made and it will be decided just what will be done. There is a possibility of the affair being postponed for two weeks.

ALONG THE BEACH.

Thomas W. Newman and family of Jamaica Plain are in the Sunlight cottage on Bird street.

H. P. Carey and family of Dorchester occupy the Perry cottage on Winthrop street

A. J. Veno and family of Dorchester enjoy life in the Aftercabin on Centre road.

E. Gilmore and family of Brockton find the new Finch cottage on Charles street a delightful place.

There are twenty-one clubs summering at the beach this year.

The steam roller is doing a good job on Sea street and the street is now in prime condition.

DAY OF THE PARADE.

Will Be a General Holiday in Greater Boston.

All the postoffices in the Boston postal district will have a holiday on Tuesday, the day of the Grand Army parade. These do not include Quincy, but do include Milton, Brookline, Cambridge, Somerville, Chelsea, Wintbrop, Revere, Malden, Everett, Arlington and other cities. These stations will have a morning delivery only, the offices being closed at 10 A. M. for the day.

Quincy is as much interested in the parade of the Grand Army as some of the above cities, and so many letter carriers are G. A. R. veterans, and so many employes at the local stores are anxious to see the parade, that Tuesday will probably be a holiday in this city.

A petition in favor of a holiday for the letter carriers has been suggested, but is hardly necessary. If the holiday idea becomes general Postmaster Hammond will act.

A canvass is being made among the business houses in City Square to see how many will be willing to close their places of business next Tuesday. The general sentiment seems to be in favor of closing, and it is probable that there will be a general suspension of business.

Postmaster Hammond says he has done nothing toward closing the office during any part of the day, but if the store business is generally suspended, the office will be open on the holiday schedule; that is from 7 to 10 A. M. and 5 to 7 P. M., with one collection and one delivery in the morning.

RETURN GAME.

Great Foot Ball Match Scheduled for Tomorrow.

Lovers of good sport, and especially those interested in Association foot ball, should endeavor to be at Ward Three playgrounds on Saturday, at 3 o'clock P. M., when the Quincy foot ball team will try conclusions with the Barre Rangers of Barre, Vt.

It is generally known that the Quincy team journeyed to Barre with the excursion of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association on July 29. They played the Barre team on July 30, and were defeated by a score of one goal to nothing. But the spectators nearly all agreed that the Quincys had decidedly the best of the game, making the Vermonters play on the defensive nearly all the time. The Rangers' however, managed to get in a solitary goal when there were only nine minutes more to play.

The Quincys intend to show that they have the superior team, and the Vermonters say they will pile in a few more goals, but whatever is the result it will be a game worth seeing when the teams line up for the fray.

There is a very keen rivalry between the teams as both feel that it rests on them to fittingly uphold the reputation of the two great granite cities of the east.

The management committee of the Quincy club intended to have the Barre team come to Quincy sometime in October, of this year, to play the return game, but as the Quincys have joined the Merrimac Valley league and the league games begin on the first Saturday in September, and will continue every Saturday for three months, it was deemed advisable to play the Barre team before the league season opened.

Both teams are in prime condition for a hard game, and the strangers will play Ewen, the champion wrestler of Vermont, at full back. The Quincy City band will render some favorite selections during the game. President Alexander, of the Barre Granite Manufacturerers' Association, will accompany the football players on their trip.

Church Festival.

A festival was held in the Swedish Congregational church on Garfield street, Thursday evening. The program included:

Piano solo by Carl Gustafson.
Hymn by the congregation.
Bible reading and prayer.
Song by the male choir.
Speech by pastor of the church.
Song by the male choir.
Piano solo by Carl Gustafson.
The subscription.
Thanks to the congregation by the president.
Benediction by the pastor.

After which refreshments were served. The festival was largely attended. Mr. H. H. Faxon being among those present.

OUR RIVERS

Inspected by Committee From Congress.

Met at Neponset by Mayor Bryant.

Town and Fore Rivers Also Visited by Tug.

The River and Harbor committee of Congress were in Quincy this morning and made an inspection of Town and Weymouth Fore rivers. In the party besides the committee was Representative McNary of the tenth district and Representative Freeman of Quincy.

The party came to Neponset on one of the early morning trains, where they were met by Mayor Bryant and Harbor Master Hamilton Flood. The party first made an inspection of Neponset river.

The plan then was to take a special car for the Fore River Works. At the last minute, however, the plan was changed.

Instead of taking a special car for the Fore River they boarded a tug and steamed up to Quincy. They went up Town river as far as possible then back through the Quincy Point bridge and inspected the Weymouth Fore river.

A landing was made at the Fore River dock and the party made a short visit to the works, and then took carriages for Quincy.

On the way up they drove to the birthplaces of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, then to their burial place, but did not stop at either place for lack of time.

The party reached the Quincy depot in time to take the 11.08 train for Boston.

The personnel of the congressional committee on the Massachusetts trip is: Hon. Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, chairman: Hon. Roswell P. Bishop of Michigan, Hon. De Alva S. Alexander of New York, Hon. James H. Davidson of Wisconsin, Hon. Wesley L. Jones of Washington, Hon. John H. Bankhead of Alabama, Hon. Stephen M. Sparkman of Florida, Hon. Joseph E. Randsdell of Louisana, Hon. George F. Burgess of Texas, Hon. Benjamin C. Humphreys of Mississippi, Hon. George P. Lawrence of Massachusetts, James H. Cassidy of Cleveland, clerk of the committee, and Joseph H. McGann of Cleveland, assistant clerk.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

NORFOLK ss. Quincy, July 5, 1904.

SEIZED on execution and will be sold at public auction on MONDAY, the twenty-second day of August, 1904, at 9 o'clock A. M., at my residence, No. 163 Franklin street, Quincy, said County, all the right, title and interest which Andrew A. Meyer of Quincy had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the eighth day of March, 1904, at two o'clock and thirty minutes P. M., (being the time the same was attached on mesne process), also had on the fifth day of July, A. D. 1904, at two o'clock and forty-five minutes P. M., (being the time the same was seized on execution) in and to the following described real estate, to wit:

A certain parcel of land in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, with the buildings and improvements thereon, being in part the premises conveyed to Peter P. Veale by Napoleon B. Furnald, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 798, page 304, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a stone bound on Sea Street, at the northeast corner of land now or formerly of Charles P. Brown; thence running in a westerly direction one hundred (100) feet more or less to a post at the northwest corner of said land of Brown; thence turning and running in a southerly direction twenty-three (23) feet more or less to the northeast corner of land now or late of Shaw; thence turning and running in a northwesterly direction along the edge of the upland, six hundred and ninety (690) feet more or less to an old post; thence in a northeasterly direction across the flats, four hundred and twenty (420) feet more or less to a post on to land of James Mears; thence in an easterly direction along the land of said Mears, three hundred and twenty-three (323) feet more or less to a post; thence in a southerly direction along the land of said Mears, three hundred and ninety (390) feet more or less to a stone bound at end of wall on the flats; thence in the same direction along the land of said Mears, two hundred and fourteen (214) feet more or less to a passageway running to land above described, ten (10) feet wide; thence along land now or late of Boyd, eighty-nine (89) feet more or less to a post; and thence turning and running in an easterly direction six (6) feet more or less to the point of beginning on said Sea Street.

And also a certain parcel of land with the buildings and improvements thereon, being the premises conveyed to Peter P. Veale by William Boyd, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 798, page 306, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a stake on Sea Street, at the northeast corner of land formerly owned by William Croncher, and southeast corner of land hereby conveyed; thence running northeasterly on line of Sea Street, to a stake, there measuring about ninety-five (95) feet. Said stake is on line of Sea Street, on the southerly side of a drift way, ten feet wide; thence turning and running in a westerly direction on said drift way, to a stake about seventy-nine (79) feet; said stake is on the easterly line of land formerly owned by William Croncher; thence turning and running in a southerly direction about eighty (80) feet to a stake in line of fence; thence turning and running easterly about four and a half feet to the point of beginning in said Sea Street.

Also another parcel of land conveyed by James Mears to said William Boyd, dated November 11, 1889, bounded and described as follows: Northerly on land formerly owned by James Mears, thence measuring about eighty-one (81) feet; westerly on land formerly owned by William Croncher, there measuring about eighty-eight (88) feet; southerly on a drift way ten (10) feet wide, there measuring about eighty-eight (88) feet and about twenty-six feet on Sea Street; and easterly on land formerly owned by Martin French, or Arthur H. Dunham, about eighty-eight (88) feet.

Said real estate heretofore described constitutes all the premises shown on plan of H. T. Whitman, dated December, 1897, and recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, Plan Book 20, Plan 934, and is the same conveyed to Andrew Meyer by the Collector of Taxes for the City of Quincy, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 919, page 195, 196 and said tax title is still standing in name of Andrew Meyer.

Also certain real estate being the same of which Estelle M. Meyer died seized, see case No. 37,426 in the Norfolk Probate Court, conveyed to Charles M. Moore, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 955, page 562, consisting of a cottage house and 7750 square feet of land on Sea Avenue, Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, being lot thirty-one (31) on the plan of the Mears estate, recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, plan book 9, plan 375, said real estate being bounded and described as follows: Northerly by lot thirty on said plan, one hundred six and fifty one-hundredths (106.50) feet; westerly on Sea Avenue, seventy-five (75) feet; southerly on lot 32 on said plan, one hundred (100) feet; easterly on land of heirs of James Mears, seventy-five and six tenths (75.6) feet; containing 7730 square feet.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Boston's preparation for the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic next week, is in keeping with her record, and decoration is the order of the day from dawn until evening right along. Red, white and blue bunting, in profuse and artistic display, may already be seen upon the buildings in Boylston, Tremont, Washington, Milk Summer and State streets, and pictures of battles during the war for the Union may be seen in many a store window, and other features are presented in some store fronts, in one way or another associated with the welcome to the Grand Army.

The State House is prettily decorated with the G. A. R. emblem as a central design in front. Seats upon the Tremont street mall of the Common extending back to a height of thirty feet are prepared for the "Flag of two thousand school children, and approaching Boylston street thousands of seats are ready. On Boylston street itself there is seating capacity for four thousand people.

The Public Garden as usual beautiful with tree, and shrub and flower at this season, is adorned with arches at the entrances; midway on Charles street, on Boylston street, at the corner of Arlington and opposite Commonwealth avenue. The main arch, approaching the Public Garden from the Common, is in honor of "Grant," with the pillars at either side inscribed with names of generals and battles. Directly opposite, across the Public Garden bridge is in honor of "Farragut" with naval battles and commanders inscribed thereon. "Sherman" crowns the arch from Park square approaches, and "Sheridan" that at Boylston and Arlington corner, each with data in keeping with the others.

Opposite Commonwealth avenue on the Public Garden nearby the Farragut arch, the flag of our Union has been beautifully wrought in garden excellence, displaying even the folds of a waving banner. A little further on, toward Beacon street, the Grand Army badge is wrought with the same consumate skill and life which flowerets present. Yet further along, the "Kearsage Association of Naval Veterans" is accorded a badge with anchor and cable. About the equestrian statute of Washington, the Woman's Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans and others have badges,—all striking emblems in florist masterpieces.

Twenty-six electric light poles are strung along at either end and across the bridge, crowned with the old army corps badges; the trefoil, Greek cross, maltese cross, etc., and encircling each badge are wreaths of laurel. The badges are made to glow with electric light, while blue and red lamps cluster in the wreaths of laurel, and when alight will give, with other lights strung along wire from the poles, that realistic representation of army guides in red, white and blue badges, which will prove a delight to the veteran and pleasure immense to all who behold the gorgeous spectacle.

SAME OLD RUMORS

No Warrant For Stories That Port Arthur Has Fallen

LIKELY TO SOON HAPPEN

Nothing Definite as to Naval Fight Off Port Arthur or Whereabouts of Russian Fleet --Great Britain Takes Exception to Russia's Interpretation of Contraband Goods

London, Aug. 12.—Rumors that Port Arthur has fallen are again current, but apparently there is no further warrant for them than on previous occasions. It is regarded as impossible that Port Arthur can hold out much longer, but there is no further news at hand either concerning the fortress or the fate of the Port Arthur squadron beyond the statement from Chefoo that the protected cruisers Askold and Novik have entered the port of Kiauchau, which is German leased territory.

The Chefoo correspondent of The Daily Telegraph states that Lieutenant General Stoessel, commander of the military forces at Port Arthur, personally commanded the Russian forces in the fight for the possession of Taku mountain, which was accompanied by fearful carnage. The correspondent adds: "The Russians are short of ammunition and the garrison is exhausted by incessant fighting. If the Japanese continue their assaults with fresh troops the worst must happen."

There has been a naval fight off Port Arthur; on that all of the dispatches agree, but there is great confusion as to the result. Tokio reports that the attempt of the Russian fleet to escape from the harbor was frustrated, at least in part, by Admiral Togo, who drove two of the ships back to the protection of the forts. Chefoo hears that the larger ships of the fleet escaped, and that 16 of them, including a hospital ship, has been sighted off that port.

The captain of a Russian destroyer which reached Chefoo from Port Arthur is made to confirm the report of the escape of the vessels, allowing it to be understood that they are heading for Vladivostok. The fact that the commander of the destroyer asked permission of the Chinese authorities to dismantle his ship and lay it up at Chefoo for the period of the war indicates either that he was closely pursued by the enemy and had no chance to escape, or that the dash of the fleet was meant to be its final abandonment of Port Arthur. St. Petersburg and Vladivostok dispatches also assume that the ships are going to Vladivostok.

The freedom with which every Russian source tells of the destination of the fleet leads to the suspicion that its destination is not Vladivostok unless the Russians by their putting that place forward so boldly hope to deceive the Japanese by telling the truth.

NEUTRAL SHIPPING

Russia's Broad Specifications Regarding Contraband Goods

London, Aug. 12.—Great Britain is distinctly dissatisfied with Russia's attitude in the case of the British steamer Knight Commander, and continues to press the latter to make substantial modifications of the list of articles regarded as contraband.

Count Benckendorff, Russian ambassador to Great Britain, called at the foreign office and conferred for an hour with Foreign Secretary Lansdowne. The latter dwelt on the sweeping character of Russia's proclamation, some of the provisions of which, after specifying various goods as contraband, closed with the word "etcaetera" which Lord Lansdowne pointed out can include anything and everything the Russian authorities desire.

As this is a serious restriction on neutral shipping Lord Lansdowne insisted that the regulations should not contain generalities of that kind. In reply Lord Lansdowne was assured that Russia had no desire to unnecessarily hamper neutral shipping, but she could not afford to permit Japan to receive supplies which would facilitate her military operations. Russia was prepared to modify her regulations provided Great Britain, on her part, would accept the regulations and bind herself to observe them in future wars in which she is involved.

Lord Lansdowne is now considering how far in this direction he can go without creating regulations embarrassing to Great Britain. These conversations between Lansdowne and Benckendorff are merely preliminary to the formal negotiations. All the direct negotiations relating to the Knight Commander have occurred at St. Petersburg.

St Petersburg on Anxious Seat

St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—Public anxiety regarding the fate of the Port Arthur squadron has reached the highest pitch. The reports from Tokio and Chefoo of the sea fight which followed the departure of the squadron are so conflicting and inconclusive that a strong hope exists that the Russian ships succeeded in breaking through the Japanese fleet. Indeed, it is rumored that the admiralty has received information that the squadron has passed beyond the Shantung promontory, which would bring the squadron at least 150 miles to the southeast of Port Arthur and into the Yellow sea.

As to Fighting on Land

St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—Even with the absorbing topic of the escape of the Port Arthur squadron, the question whether General Kuropatkin will accept or refuse a general engagement at Liao Yang continues to be a subject of the liveliest interest. Opinions greatly differ and the profound ignorance regarding Kuropatkin's plans is shown in the different views held by members of the general staff. Experts of the bureau of operations mostly incline to the belief that a collision between the main forces is inevitable.

Shipping Suspended

Berlin, Aug. 12.—The Tokio correspondent of The Lokal Anzeiger says that commercial shipping has been entirely suspended, owing to the escape of the Port Arthur squadron, the present location of which is unknown. The Lokal Anzeiger, in commenting on the dispatch, says it indicates that the squadron has crossed the strait of Pechili and has rounded the Shantung promontory.

Baltic Fleet In Commission

Cronstadt, Aug. 12.—Admiral Birileff, in command of the naval forces here, has ordered Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, commander of the Baltic fleet, and his staff, to take up their quarters on board the battleship Souvaroff and to be in readiness to sail on Aug. 14.

Warships Pass the Dardanelles

London, Aug. 12.—The Brussels correspondent of The Daily Telegraph declares that two vessels of the Russian Black sea fleet have already passed the Dardanelles without the interposition of any difficulty on the part of the Turkish government.

Russians In Kianchau Bay

Chefoo, Aug. 12.—The Russian protected cruisers Askold and Novik and one torpedo boat destroyer entered the Kiauchau bay last night and exchanged salutes with German vessels.

ROOT FOR GOVERNOR

Will Be Drafted For Nomination, Even Against His Will

New York, Aug. 12.—"Elihu Root must take himself out of the field for the governorship in a more positive manner than he has yet indicated or he will be nominated at the Saratoga convention next month." That was the opinion expressed by a member of the New York Republican state committee after he had been conferring with other members of the committee yesterday.

"How about the letter which Mr. Root wrote to Governor Odell?" the member was asked.

"That letter was personal and private," was the reply, "and while it gave reasons why Root would not be a candidate it did not say that he would not accept if he were nominated. He will have to make a public declaration through the newspapers or the convention will put him at the head of the ticket."

Other members of the committee talked in a similar strain, and the Root boom is again on in earnest. This kind of talk would indicate that the former secretary of war is to be drafted for the nomination, no matter how much he may dislike it.

Fusion Ticket In Nebraska

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 12.—An agreement looking to fusion on the state ticket was effected by Nebraska Democrats and Populists in their state convention after many hours of conferences between committees representing the two parties, and at times acrimonious debates in the separate conventions. A strong Populist minority opposed fusion on any basis except Democratic endorsement of the Watson and Tibbles electors, but this was met by an emphatic refusal from the Democrats and a counter proposal for an equitable division of the state officers, which was finally accepted. The Populists thereupon nominated George W. Berge for governor. The Democrats later endorsed the nomination of Berge.

Hoke Smith Talks to Democrats

New York, Aug. 12.—Former Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith was the principal speaker at the annual outing of the Democrats of Queens borough, held at College Point, L. I. Over 3000 Democrats were present. Mr. Smith said that their candidate's plain, clear declaration in favor of obedience to law, his devotion to constitutional government, his equal and just recognition of the rights of person and property, give joy and hope to all who love their country. Hanging over them like a cloud was the possibility of the election of a man whose restless egotism placed the entire country in a state of uncertainty, and about whom the inquiry, with no feeling of hope, was constantly made: "What will he do next?"

Parker Meets Parker

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 12.—George F. Parker of Indiana, who is in charge of the literary bureau for the Democratic national committee, spent yesterday afternoon with Judge Parker at Rosemount. The question of putting out in pamphlet form Judge Parker's speech of acceptance, and the letter of acceptance, which will be issued within a few weeks, was discussed, as well as other subjects relating to the literary side of the campaign.

THE WORD DOILY.

Originally It Was the Name of a Fabric For Summer Wear.

Though the word doily is now restricted in meaning to the small cloth that covers a dessert plate, it had originally a much wider signification. It seems to have been introduced as a cheap and fashionable fabric, specially for summer wear, about the latter part of the seventeenth century, for Dryden speaks of "doiley petticoats," and Steele in the Tatler mentions "a doyley suit."

The name has been long connected with a London firm, trading as linen drapers, in Upper Wellington street, Strand, who occupied the great old corner house next to Hodsoll's, the banker, from Queen Anne's time to 1850. Though their name happens to be the same as that of the stuff, there is no authority for linking the two together.

Wedgwood rejects derivation and suggests the Dutch dwaele, a towel, or, better still, the Swiss dwahell, a napkin. The doily itself used to be called a "doily napkin" till shortened by customary usage.—London Standard.

His Person Sacred.

The person of the Korean emperor is sacred. If human hand touches him it is sacrilege, and the punishment for sacrilege is death. If the emperor touches a subject he becomes sacred. The emperor's name must be mentioned only in whispers. His portrait is never painted except after death. Then it is worshiped. Once a foreign ambassador sought to present the emperor with the portrait of his sovereign. But the minister for foreign affairs regarded the offer as an outrage, and the portrait was never accepted. The emperor's power is boundless; his word is law, and he owns everything, land and people, without restriction. A simple wish is a command.

Shopping In the Philippines.

A traveler in the Philippines writes: "There is no place where shopping is easier than in Manila, for it is almost absolutely impossible to buy anything you require. You can nevertheless purchase, if you are so inclined, everything you do not want—and soiled at that—at four times or so its normal value."

Oscar's Definition.

Salt Rheum

You may call it eczema, tetter or milk crust.

But no matter what you call it, this skin disease which comes in patches that burn, itch, discharge a watery matter, dry and scale, owes its existence to the presence of humors in the system.

It will continue to exist, annoy, and perhaps agonize, as long as these humors remain.

It is always radically and permanently cured by

RAFT CHAIN BROKE

Many Picnickers Were Precipitated Into a Pond

A GREAT PANIC ENSUES

Women and Children Knocked Down and Trampled Upon--Heroic Rescues of Those Who Were Thrown From the Raft

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 12.—By the breaking of a chain which held it to the shore, a landing raft loaded with picnickers was sent adrift in a lake at West Chelmsford yesterday and in the panic which ensued several women and children were pushed overboard and seriously injured. The occasion was a union picnic held under the auspices of the several churches in Chelmsford.

The churches participating were the First Unitarian, the Second Congregational, the Central Baptist and the All Saints Episcopal churches of Chelmsford Centre and the First Baptist church of South Chelmsford.

A list of sports had been arranged, among them a swimming race, and more than 50 of the picnickers crowded onto the landing raft, which was held by a chain running its entire length and fastened to the bank at either end.

The contestants had assembled at the raft, which was the starting point of the race, at 4 o'clock, and when the referees gave the word they started. Immediately those on the raft crowded to the end of the float to witness the finish. This action caused the chain to snap at one end. A rush was made for safety and the other end gave way, setting the raft adrift and precipitating 25 into the water, where the depth was about 15 feet.

During the rush many women and children were knocked down and trampled upon and most of those injured received their injuries at this time. One little girl was tossed in the air by the careening of the raft and landed on the bank of the lake. Referees Taylor and Bliss grasped Miss Nellie Redman and Miss Votes and swam ashore. The latter was grasped by the hair as she was disappearing for the third time. Miss Marjorie Armstrong was also rescued with difficulty.

William Clinton rescued Mrs. Weaver and her 8-year-old daughter, Beatrice, and carried them to safety, and also aided in saving from drowning a man and boy whose names could not be learned. Rev. A. F. Ernshaw of the Second Congregational church dashed into the water and saved several children from drowning.

The victims of the accident were taken to their homes and it was found that only Mrs. Gertrude Weaver had sustained serious injuries. She fainted after her rescue and was found to be injured about the body from being trampled on. It is expected she will recover.

Chance to Try Divine Healing

Chicago, Aug. 12.—An epidemic of smallpox has broken out in Zion City, the home of the so-called divine healer. There are said to be 15 persons ill with the disease. As there are no physicians in Zion City, and Dowie will not permit his followers to use drugs in any form, fears are entertained that the disease may spread to surrounding towns. Zion City is outside the city limits of Chicago and the city officials have no power in the matter.

Hundred Killed In Eden Wreck

Pueblo, Col., Aug. 12.—During the funerals of many victims of the railroad disaster at Eden that were held here all the business houses were closed. The bodies of the missing victims have probably been sucked into the quicksands and will never be recovered. Careful revision of the dead and missing confirms the original estimate that not less than 100 lives were lost.

New Counterfeit In Circulation

Washington, Aug. 12.—Chief Wilkie of the United States secret service has received from Boston a new counterfeit $2 silver certificate of the series of 1899. The note apparently is a zinc etching poorly printed on two sheets of paper, between which ink lines have been made to serve the purpose of silk thread. The face of the note is heavy and blurred.

Increase In Postal Receipts

Washington, Aug. 12.—A net increase of 4 percent is shown in the statement of the gross postal receipts for July as compared with July, 1903, at the 50 largest postoffices. The aggregate receipts at the 50 offices were $4,871,054. There were decreases at several offices, including Lowell, Worcester and Springfield, Mass.

Uruguay Has a Revolution

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 12.—A revolutionary movement has begun at Ascunsion, the capital of Paraguay, with the object of overthrowing the administration of President Ezcurra. The government forces are concentrating at the capital. Foreigners are taking refuge in the legations of their respective countries.

To Call on President Roosevelt

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—The U. S. transports Kilpatrick and Sumner, having on board 500 Porto Rican schoolteachers, who have been attending the summer schools at Harvard and Cornell, have arrived here. The teachers will spend today in Washington and will be received by President Roosevelt.

NABBED AT BOSTON

Boothman Said to Have Forged and Uttered $9000 Draft

Boston, Aug. 12.—Joseph Boothman, who bears three aliases, was arrested here last evening as a fugitive from justice and held for the police of Buffalo, where he is wanted for forging and uttering a draft for $9000. The officials of the Fidelity Trust company of Buffalo claim to have been defrauded by Boothman's operations.

The local detectives have been watching for Boothman for several days. He was arrested at the South Terminal station as he was boarding a train for Providence. He acknowledged his identity and will go back to Buffalo without extradition papers.

Boothman conducted his alleged operations in Buffalo under the name of R. H. Thomms. He had a draft for $51 on a Hudson, N. Y., bank, and it is claimed that he raised this amount to $9000. This he deposited with the Fidelity Trust company and on July 5, it is charged, he drew $750 by check. On July 11 he is alleged to have drawn $2000.

Boothman is about 55 years old. He is a short, stout man, with a gray moustache, and dresses in the height of fashion. He is a native of London.

Manslaughter Charged

Westboro, Mass., Aug. 12.—A hearing in the case of Conductor Balcom and Motorman Dunn, charged with manslaughter in the collision on the Boston and Worcester line from which two deaths have resulted, was held in court here. The government tried to show that the accident was due to disobedience of orders and rules by Balcom and Dunn. The defense did not offer any evidence. The men were bound over to the grand jury in $2000 bonds each. They secured bail.

Worried Himself to Suicide

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 12.—Despondent because students had daubed the building with green paint, Peleg Borden, aged 67, who for 17 years has been janitor of the B. M. C. Durfee high school, shot and killed himself. Borden's pride in the beautiful schoolhouse amounted almost to a passion and the vandalism preyed upon and, possibly, unsettled his mind.

Receiver Gray Gets Assets

Boston, Aug. 12.—Accountants are at work on the books of the North American Trust, which closed its offices a few days ago because of the arrest of its officers. Books and assets have been turned over to Receiver Gray, and the extent of the operations of the alleged fraudulent concern may become known in a few days.

Guilford Waives Examination

Boston, Aug. 12.—When Curtis P. Guilford was arraigned before the United States commissioner on the charge of embezzlement from the First National bank, where he was employed as a clerk prior to his arrest, he waived examination and the commissioner held him in $1000 for the grand jury.

Drowned Man Identified

New London, Conn., Aug. 12.—The man whose body was taken from the harbor here was the son of J. W. Perry, former chief of the Brooklyn fire department. He was a ship carpenter. Perry is said to have taken a boat up the sound. He leaves a widow and a daughter at Greenport, L. I.

Fall From Tree Caused Death

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 12.—While clearing gypsy moth nests from the fruit trees in his yard William Holland lost his balance and fell to the ground. He struck on his spine and the lower part of his body was paralyzed. His death followed a few hours later.

"Victim of a Plot"

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 12.—A dispatch from New Haven states that M. J. O'Hara, the missing great keeper of records, Improved Order of Red Men, who left this city on Monday to attend the state convention of that order at Gloversville and failed to put in an appearance at that place, was in New Haven yesterday. The dispatch states that O'Hara was the victim of a plot and adds that he will soon return to Elmira and explain all.

Eight Men Drowned In Mine

Salisbury, N. C., Aug. 12.—The Barringer gold mine, near Gold Hill, was suddenly flooded with water last evening, causing the instant death of eight men employed in the mine. The men were in the mine shaft when a large pond located near the entrance to the mine broke loose, the waters rushing in terrific force to a depth of about 100 feet upon the men, who were powerless to save themselves.

American Murdered In France

Nice, Aug. 12.—The body of an American seaman was found in the harbor of Villefranche yesterday. There were wounds on the scalp and four stabs in the eyes. The autopsy showed it was a case of murder. The corpse had been five days in the water. The American vice consul has not been able to identify the victim.

Growth of Knights of Pythias

Chicago, Aug. 12.—The report of the endowment rank of the Knights of Pythias has been completed for submission to the biennial meeting of the supreme lodge. During the two years 21,458 applicants for membership were credited and death claims were paid amounting to $2,625,849.

Wrecking Steamer Ashore

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 12.—The wrecking steamer Somerset, Captain Porter, and crew of six men, went ashore off Little Egg Harbor inlet. The crew of the life saving station landed the crew last night. An effort will be made to float the vessel.

"Black Hand" Men Caught

New York, Aug. 12.—Giuseppi and Phillippo Massaro are locked up on a charge of exttortion. They are accused by Ruggiero Nicosia of sending him two letters signed "Black Hand," demanding $4000 or the lives of himself and his three children. Nicosia turned the letters over to the police and a trap was laid. Nicosia paid $125 to Giuseppi and the police claim to have captured him in the act of receiving the money, which was marked.

Prepared to Defend Himself

Cripple Creek, Col., Aug. 12.—Rev. T. S. Leland, pastor of the Victor Methodist Episcopal church, who was warned by masked men to leave the Cripple Creek district, declares that he intends to remain and will resist any mob that attacks him. He had taken no part in the industrial struggle here up to last month, when he became unsparing in his condemnation of the deportation system.

Congo Representative at Washington

Washington, Aug. 12.—King Leopold of Belgium has appointed James G. Whiteley as consul of the Independent Congo State in this country. This is the first consular representative of the Congo appointed in the United States. Mr. Whiteley is a newspaper man, an author and also a banker. He has represented the United States government at several international congresses.

THE HEAD ON THE FLOOR.

Startling Incident Accompanying the Death of a Slave Trader.

In a squalid court in Edinburgh many years ago a man who had been notorious for his cruelties as a slave trader lay dying. Mental terror made his end appalling to witness. According to Scotch custom, the family opened the door to let the spirit pass. To their infinite horror, the bloody head of a black man suddenly rolled into the room. The family shrieked with fright. The man on the bed gave a yell of terror. They turned to his bedside, but he expired as they watched him. When they looked toward the door again, the head had disappeared. There was a splash of fresh blood upon the floor to mark the spot where it had been, but nothing else to certify that the horrid sight had not been a creation of morbid imaginations.

This appearance of a negro's head in the room of a man dying after he had committed innumerable barbarities upon black slaves was a strange coincidence and nothing more. Professor Owen, the famous anatomist, had been attending an anatomical lecture where the body of a negro had been dissected. He was taking the head home with him to examine it more carefully. The streets were wet and slippery. Just as he was passing the open door of the house in which the man lay dying he tripped, and the head, slipping from the cloth in which he had it, rolled into the little room. The cry of the dying man diverted the attention of those who were in the room, so that Owen was able to secure his treasure and depart unnoticed.

A MODERN HAMLET.

Wherein Hawthorne Was Akin to the Melancholy Dane.

Certain characteristics of Hawthorne are, of course, indisputable, and it is not fantastic to add that some of these qualities bear a curious resemblance to those of that very Prince of Denmark who seems more real to us than do most living men. Hawthorne was a gentleman; in body the mold of form, and graced with a noble mind. Like Hamlet, he loved to discourse with unlettered people, with wandering artists, with local humorists, although without ever losing his own dignity and inviolable reserve. He had irony for the pretentious, kindness for the simple hearted, merciless wit for the fools. He liked to speculate about men and women, about temptation and sin and punishment, but he remained, like Hamlet, clear sighted enough to distinguish between the thing in itself and the thing as it appeared to him in his solitude and melancholy. His closest friends, like Horatio Bridge and William D. Ticknor, were men of marked justice and sanity of mind—of the true Horatio type. Hawthorne was capable, if need be, of passionate and swift action, for all his gentleness and exquisite courtesy of demeanor. Toward the last he had, like Hamlet, his foreboddings—"such a kind of gain giving as would perhaps trouble a woman"—and he died, like Hamlet, in silence, conscious of an unfinished task.—Bliss Perry in Atlantic.

Reason For Marrying.

They were talking about a friend of hers who had married a bishop stationed in Kamchatka or Timbuktu or some other heathen land.

"I never could understand why she married him," said the young woman. "She seemed the last girl on earth to marry a bishop. She cared so much more for having a good time than she did for church work and sewing circles."

"Girls are pretty wise nowadays," said the young man, "and they generally have a good reason for marrying the way they do. A girl friend of mine married a doctor so she could always be well for nothing, and maybe this girl married the bishop so she could be good for nothing."—New York Tribune.

The Traitor's Stone.

A curious specimen of the famous Traitor's stone of Rome is still preserved in England. It is a large round piece of sandstone, much of the appearance of a millstone, with a few apertures which make it bear a faint resemblance to the human face. At one period in Roman history it was the custom to have all persons suspected of traitorous conduct place their hands in the mouthlike opening. If the stone bit their fingers the prisoners were deemed guilty.

Japanese Prison Food.

The food given the prisoners in Japanese prisons is in proportion to their conduct and industry, the prisoners who do not conduct themselves as they should receiving a cake of rice, which must last for seven days, while in the case of the orderly prisoners the same cake lasts only four days. The prisoners who conduct themselves properly receive also a little horse meat and potato or pea sauce with their meals.

They Go Together.

"And what are you going to do when you're a man?" asked the visitor.

"I've been thinking," replied the bright boy, "of starting an elephant farm in Virginia."

"An elephant farm?"

"Certainly. Why not? They raise peanuts there."—Philadelphia Press.

Fond of Children.

"The dog you sold me yesterday would have eaten my little girl up this morning if she had not been rescued."

"But you insisted on having a dog that was fond of children."

The reason a man marries his sweetheart is because she is not like other girls. The reason he divorces her is because she is.—Illinois State Journal.

J.F.SHEPPARD & SONS

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

Better apply TODAY for information regarding Prudential policies to

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Auction sale tomorrow at 2 P. M. of Sumner street real estate.

The Mt. Wollaston bank has had its charter renewed for twenty years.

Arthur Wills of Wollaston has been a guest of his parents at Easton this week.

An inquest was held before Judge Avery this morning on the death of Nicademas Arenues who was killed on the Quarry railroad last June.

Co. H. of Charlestown, in which Quincy men have enlisted, will have a new captain, when it goes south next month, 1st Lieut. George T. Latimer being elected Thursday evening in place of Capt. V. E. Gilson retired.

L. S. Stacy, a granite cutter, is a petitioner in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $449. The creditors include J. B. Reinhalter, $275; Benjamin Johnson, $60; Eagle Polishing Co. $40; and others.

The cannon ball found in the new water trench at Quincy Neck last week is now on exhibition at the store of G. F. Wilson & Co. Whether it is a relic of the Revolutionary war, is yet undecided.

The young people who were to have taken a straw ride to Nantasket Monday evening were disappointed when the man with the hay-wagon did not show up. However, they did the next best and took the electrics to the beach.

THE MILK TEST.

How You May Discover if Your Digestion Is Perfect.

Milk is known to be one of the few complete foods. It contains the bone, muscle and fat producing elements and sustains the heat of the body. The milk of different classes of animals (mammals) varies in composition to suit the different requirements; thus mare's milk is richer in sugar, but lacking in protein, compared with cow's milk.

Another fact of interest connected with milk is found in the difficulty with which some persons digest plain milk. It is safe to say that should any organ, secretion or digestive juice fail to perform its free duty the milk consumed will not be properly digested. The reason for this is simple. Milk contains such a variety of compounds that all portions of the digestive system are called into activity for the digestion of these varied elements. The gastric juice attacks the cheesy matter; the pancreatic and intestinal juices digest the sugars and fats. This takes the milk through the stomach and the small intestines into the large intestine. The lower intestine digests wood fiber also. This alone of all the forms of food nutrients is not found in milk. Because of the facts above stated the ability to drink milk is a test of perfect digestion in nearly all cases.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE LEGEND OF JAPAN.

Origin of Dai Nippon, According to Shinto Mythology.

According to the Shinto mythology, in the beginning chaos reigned, and in it were contained the germs of all things. From chaos was evolved a race of heavenly beings termed "celestial kami," of whom Izanagi, a male, and Izanami, a female, were the last.

These two were instructed by the other deities to descend from heaven and beget islands, and to help them on their mission they were presented with a jeweled spear. Standing on a bridge floating in the ether, they reached down and stirred the brine and then drew up the spear. The brine that dripped from this weapon was heaped up and became the island of Onogoro, and on it the pair descended and begat several other islands.

The first of these was Hirugo, but as it did not meet with the approval of the deities it was put into a boat and allowed to float away. The next was the island of Awa, and so in succession were produced the remaining islands of the archipelago, now termed by Europeans "Japan," but by the Japanese themselves "Dai Nippon," "The Great Sunrise."

CAUSTIC CURVES.

Why a Napkin Ring Throws a Heart Shaped Reflection.

It is found that in concave spherical mirrors the reflected rays only come to a definite focus in the point, when the angular aperture of the mirror does not exceed eight or ten degrees. With a larger aperture the rays reflected near the edge cut the axis of the mirror at a point nearer its surface than those from points immediately around the center. This being so, and the curve of the mirror being continuous, a corresponding curve of successive focal points is formed in space, and can be rendered visible by the rays falling on a reflecting surface, such as a sheet of white paper or a tablecloth.

The napkin ring is a cylinder and possesses the properties of the spherical mirror along one diameter. The rays falling upon portions more remote from the center line are brought to a different focus from those falling nearer the center, and this produces the peculiar heart shaped reflection.

These figures are known as "caustics by reflection," and can be well observed by allowing the light of a candle to fall on the inside of a cup or tumbler partly filled with milk.

Cooper and the Poacher.

James Fenimore Cooper, once upon a day, caught a man on his grounds stealing some of his best apples. At the sight of Mr. Cooper the man began to run away. Cooper hailed him, and told him that he was not only doing wrong, but had wronged him, for if a stranger saw people slyly creeping into his grounds to get a few apples or vegetables they would come to the conclusion that he (Cooper) was a miserly, ill natured and niggardly person. If he wanted any such thing he should come in boldly at the front gate, like an honest man, fill his basket and freely receive with the best wishes of an open heart.—Schoolmaster.

His Sole Regret.

"You are not afraid to die, are you?" asked the weeping watcher by the bedside.

"No," whispered the chronic kicker, "but it does worry me to think that I shall soon be with the silent majority when all of my life I have so enjoyed being in the noisy minority."

Relaxation.

Mrs. Saltonstall—I feel tired to death this morning. I've been out till midnight the last four nights running. Mrs. Walsingham—So do I. I have had company for two weeks now, and I'm all worn out. Let's go shopping.—Somerville Journal.

Charm strikes the sight, but merit wins the soul.—Pope.

Dock Needed.

The navy department has asked the contractors when the new dry dock at the Portsmouth navy yard will be completed. The dock is needed just now and it is probable that the first work done in it will be the replating of one the large ships of the navy.

TODAY'S COURT.

THE AMIABLE MULE.

A Few Words of Praise For This Much Maligned Animal.

"After a lifetime of close association with the mule," says an old military official, "I have never known him to kick a man, nor have I ever met a man who knew another man of his own knowledge who had been kicked by a mule.

"This is a bold statement, but it is true nevertheless. You can question soldiers of the army everywhere, and I confidently predict that they will bear me out in this. I know I am uprooting a popular belief, but I ask you to stop and think and see if I am not doing our mule friend a deserved justice. Horses' kicks are plenty. Mule kicks are as rare as promotions. Were you ever riding at night on the prairies, far away from comrades and camp, weary, looking for the distant twinkling campfires not to be found? Did you ever at such a time see your mule friend lift his tireless head and blow his resonant trumpet of discovery of the sought for haven? He has not seen it, but he has smelt it, and in a moment is trotting a bee line for the distant picket line and forage ration. Were you ever riding across a dreary, dry, dusty country, thirsty, no water in sight and its whereabouts undiscovered? Throw the bridle loose on the mule's neck and give him his way. He will take you to water as unerringly as a carrier pigeon wings its way to its roost."—Nebraska State Journal.

THE PHONOGRAPH.

Its Invention Was the Result of a Cut on the Finger.

An accident—a cut on the finger—caused Edison to invent the phonograph, or talking machine.

Mr. Edison told the story of this invention to a reporter. At the time, he said, he was singing into a telephone, and in the telephone's mouthpiece he had placed, for safe keeping, a fine steel point. Suddenly this point cut his finger. He found, to his surprise, that it had been moving here and there and roundabout, guided by the vibrations of his voice.

He placed a strip of yellow paper under the steel point, replaced it in the mouthpiece and said the alphabet. The steel, while he spoke, ran over the paper, and for each letter of the alphabet it made a different mark or scratch.

This was what Mr. Edison had hoped for. He now held the steel point still and drew the paper scratches slowly over it. There was given forth, very faintly, the alphabet as he had repeated it.

Thus the principle of the phonograph—the registering and the reproduction of the voice's vibrations—was discovered through the cutting of a finger. It was Edison's finger, though, that was cut. Smith's or Brown's might have been quite hacked off and no phonograph would have resulted.

Nose Musicians.

Of the Tagbanoua, a tribe on the long narrow island called Palanwan, in the Philippines, Mr. Landor writes: "Most musicians of other nationalities play wind instruments by applying them to the mouth. The Tagbanoua plays them with his nose! The lantui, a reed flute, has two holes, and one nose piece at one end of the cane, at the joint. The lantui is pressed by the thumb against the left nostril, the right nostril being held tightly closed by the first finger of the hand. The Tagbanoua nose is so flattened at the base and has such expanded nostrils, elongated at the side, that it is especially adapted for this purpose. The Tagbanoua musician can get in this fashion some sweetly pathetic sounds—by far the most melodious sounds I have ever heard from any body's nose, and he is even bold enough to attempt, with success, too, a trill."

A Fussy Nuisance.

Of a prominent lecturer of London an acquaintance says: "On one occasion he was the guest of a friend of mine, a busy Liverpool merchant, and when the popular lecturer returned from the hall he asked for all sorts of impossible dishes and liquid concoctions peculiar to abstainers, a demand which somewhat upset the routine of the household. When in bed his nervous temperament was tried; he could not bear the ticking of the clocks, so he paraded the house in the small hours of the morning and stopped them all. In consequence of this the servants had to be roused by violent bell ringing. But the guest was not to be distressed, so he arose again and ordered the servants back to their rooms and locked them in and then went back to bed."

A Relic of Barbarism.

In ancient times it was the custom of the victors in a battle to decorate their doorposts with the skulls of the vanquished. With the advance of civilization of course we no longer continue this bit of barbarity, but the custom has not been allowed to drop altogether, as is seen by the stone balls which are often set on gateposts, a relic of a barbarous idea of long ago. In certain parts of Africa the skulls are still used as decorations. Whole villages may be seen with the doorposts of the houses surmounted in this grewsome fashion.

Finds Some Drawbacks.

"I suppose you enjoy the freedom from care that a fortune brings?"

"Well," answered Mr. Cumrox, "it's good to have money. But if I hadn't got rich I wouldn't have had to study French or learn to pronounce the names of Wagner's operas."—Washington Star.

Even.

Tramp—Honestly, sir, I don't know where my next meal is comin' from. Citizen (gruffly)—Neither do I! It is certainly not coming from me!

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Pilgrimages Almost Daily to the City of Presidents.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

BIRTHPLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic societies admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Closed for repairs, but soon to be opened to the public by the Society of Colonial Dames, the new owners.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company where warships are being built for the government.

THE BATTLE CRY OF FREEDOM.

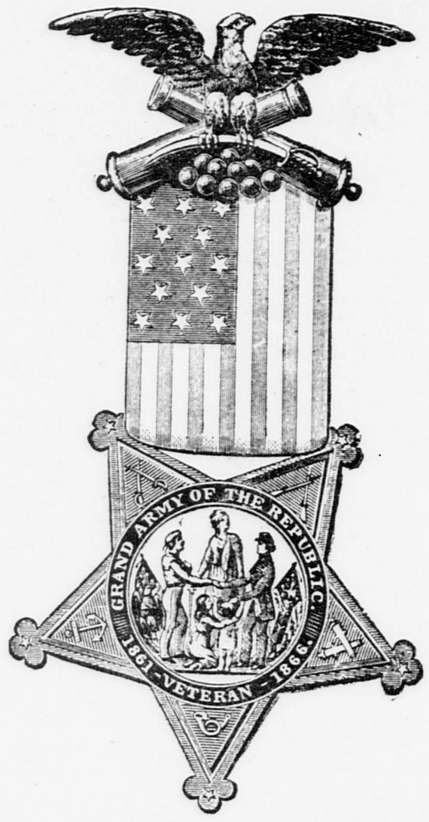

Yes, WE'LL RALLY round the FLAG,
Boys, we'll rally ONCE AGAIN,
SHOUTING the battle cry of FREEDOM;
We will rally FROM THE HILLSIDE,
We'll gather FROM THE PLAIN.

CHORUS—Shouting the battle cry of Freedom (etc.)

We are springing TO THE CALL
Of our BROTHERS gone before,
Shouting the battle cry of FREEDOM,
And we'll fill the VACANT RANKS
With a MILLION FREEMAN more.

CHORUS—Shouting the battle cry of Freedom (etc.)

The UNION FOREVER,
Hurrah boys, hurrah!
DOWN with the TRAITOR,
UP with the STAR,
While we RALLY round the flag,
Boys, rally ONCE AGAIN,
Shouting the battle cry of FREEDOM.

TENTING ON THE OLD CAMP GROUND.

We're tenting tonight on the old Campground,
Give us a SONG TO CHEER
Our weary hearts, a SONG OF HOME,
AND FRIENDS we love so dear.—CHORUS.

We've been tenting tonight on the old Campground,
THINKING of days gone by,
Of the LOVED ONES at home that gave us the hand
And the tears that said "GOOD BYE!"—CHORUS.

We're TIRED OF WAR on the old Campground.
MANY are dead and gone,
Of the BRAVE AND TRUE who've left their homes,
Others been wounded long.—CHORUS.

We've been FIGHTING today on the old Campground,
MANY are lying near;
SOME are dead and SOME are dying,
MANY are in tears.—CHORUS.

CHORUS.

Many are the HEARTS that are WEARY tonight,
WISHING for the war to cease,
Many are the hearts looking FOR THE RIGHT,
To see the DAWN OF PEACE.
Tenting tonight; tenting tonight;
Tenting on the old Campground.

BOGUS $2 NOTES

Pile Aggregating $10,000 Found In Home of Boston Doctor

ARREST OF IMPORTANCE

Federal Officers Said to Have Found Complete Outfit Capable of Making Spurious Money Which Has Flooded the City

Boston, Aug. 13.—A case of alleged counterfeiting attended by unusual circumstances was revealed by the United States secret service agents when Dr. Frank G. Sanft, a well known physician of the Roxbury district, was arrested, charged with attempting to pass a counterfeit $2 bill, and when later bogus $2 notes, aggregating $10,000, were discovered at the doctor's home. In addition to this the federal authorities located at the same house a complete outfit capable of being used in the manufacture of spurious bank notes. The secret service agents had been working on the case for some time and they regard the arrest as one of the most important for a considerable period.

Within the past several months many banks, and especially the Boston Elevated company, have reported to the government officials here that the city was being flooded with counterfeit $2 notes. This started the investigation, which soon led to the belief that the illegal currency was emanating from Roxbury.

The United States agents were about ready to make a raid yesterday when they received a report that Dr. Sanft had been arrested by a city policeman charged with attempting to pass a bogus bill on a fish peddler near the doctor's home. Then followed a minute inspection of the physician's house. The officials announced later that they had discovered a large amount of the spurious money concealed in a closet and in a wall of Dr. Sanft's house.

In other parts of the place were found various portions of the counterfeiting plant, including photographic apparatus, Chinese fibre paper, printing frames and a German lens of excellent make. All this was seized.

The physician was taken into custody by the federal detectives. He will be arraigned before Commissioner Fiske, charged with counterfeiting and with having attempted to pass counterfeit money.

Dr. Sanft has practiced in the Roxbury district for the past 17 years. He has lived with his wife and two daughters and has always borne an excellent reputation. In the summer he maintains an office on the south shore. He is prominent socially in Roxbury.

Counterfeiters' Den Raided

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Eight men who are charged with making spurious coin were arrested by federal authorities in a basement. Seven of the men were at work making counterfeit coins when confronted with the weapons of the raiders, and were taken into custody. Several bags of counterfeit money were captured and one of the men who had escaped was arrested later.

Mrs Maybrick Protests Innocence

London, Aug. 13.—The Daily Chronicle publishes an interview with Mrs. Florence Maybrick. The interviewer describes Mrs. Maybrick is no way shattered, either physically or mentally, though her face is drawn as with grief and suffering. Mrs. Maybrick said she could never hope to repay the debt of gratitude owed Ambassador Choate, Secretary White of the American embassy and other kind friends. To the interviewer Mrs. Maybrick protested her innocence as firmly as she had done at the beginning.

To Appeal to Mayor Harrison

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Mayor Harrison will be asked to do what he can toward settling the stockyards strike. With all prospects of peace, or even peace conferences, gone, the retail meat dealers and grocers last night decided to ask Harrison to take a position in the present conflict similar to that taken by him in the street car strike last fall, which was settled through his efforts.

Lack of Fraternal Feeling

New Orleans, Aug. 13.—Delegates of the G. A. R. to the Boston encampment left here last night. There are two factions in the local jurisdiction and the differences are so wide that the delegations went on different trains. Colonel Keating left with a party of 45 and Captain Lewis took a delegation largely made up of negro members of the army and their families and friends.

A Meteoric Exhibition

Meadville, Pa., Aug. 13.—A meteor or large aerolite struck the earth somewhere near Concord station early this morning. A terrific explosion accompanied the compact with the earth, followed by a high wind, lasting 15 seconds. Erie trainmen for a distance of 80 miles saw the great light, which lasted for about 10 seconds. The explosion shook buildings 20 miles away.

Crooked Bank Clerk Sentenced

St. Louis, Aug. 13.—Robert B. Taylor, formerly a clerk in the Citizens' National bank of New York city, who uttered forged banknotes and passed them, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1 and serve five years' imprisonment. Taylor was arrested here with unsigned bank notes in his possession amounting to more than $6500, belonging to the bank with which he was employed.

EXCLUDED FROM WILL

"Sealed Letter" Bequest to Bryan Is Declared Void

New Haven, Aug. 13.—A decision adverse to W. J. Bryan in his contest over the will of the late P. S. Bennett of New York and this city was handed down last evening by the supreme court of errors after an all-day session. The decision virtually denies that Bryan is entitled to the $50,000 mentioned in the sealed letter written by Bennett and addressed to his widow to be read by her after his death. By this letter the widow was asked to give $50,000 to Bryan and his family.

The decision sustains the opinion given by the superior court in the case last spring, and also the decision of the probate court, before which the matter was first brought up. No opinion was filed with the decision, although the memorandum given out by the court reporter was as follows: "William J. Bryan et al appeal from probate. No error, opinion by Chief Justice Torrance."

Police Get "Boothman's" Baggage

Providence, Aug. 13.—It has become known here that the alleged forger, Charles J. Lawrence, who was under arrest in Boston under the name of Boothman, has lived for the past two weeks at the Silver Springs hotel in Riverside under the name of James Bromwell. The local authorities have sent to Boston his baggage which had been left here, with the expectation that it might assist Boston officers in working upon the case, which is said to include the swindling of several banks.

Would Enjoin Ticket Brokers

Boston, Aug. 13.—Three railroads have applied to the superior court for an injunction against various ticket brokers in this city, restraining them from dealing in the special non-transferable tickets issued to persons intending to attend the national encampment of the Grand Army next week. Judge Fessenden issued an order of notice to the various ticket brokers to show cause why an injunction should not be issued against them, as requested by the railroads.

The Rockland Badly Damaged

Boston, Aug. 13.—The steamer City of Rockland, recently ashore in Penobscot bay, was surveyed on the railway at East Boston and found to be very seriously damaged. The timbers and frames on the starboard bilge are crushed in, making a hole nearly 46 feet long. The keel is badly damaged. The interior woodwork is warped and considerable of the fittings are missing. The engines and boilers will all have to be overhauled, in addition to hull repairs.

Double Tragedy at Boston

Boston, Aug. 13.—Leo Toletto, a Spaniard, late last night, it is alleged, fired two shots at Marie Allard, and then attempted suicide by shooting through the head. Both the man and the woman were taken to the city hospital, where it was stated that they are dying. James Serber, with whom the girl was walking at the time she was shot, has fled.

Quarry Foreman Killed

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 13.—Harper Vroman, foreman in the quarry of the New England Lime company, was hit on the head and killed by a rock thrown up by a blast. He was slightly deaf, and, it is believed, failed to hear the warning of the other workmen when the blast was set off.

No Change at Fall River

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 13.—The strike situation remains unchanged. Not a mill has been operated since the day the strike was declared and the operatives still maintain a determination not to return to work under the wage schedule offered by the manufacturers.

War Veteran's Fatal Fall

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 13.—While on a tree decorating his house with bunting for the G. A. R. encampment celebration, William Howland, 68 years old, a Civil war veteran, was almost instantly killed by falling from a limb to the ground, a distance of 50 feet.

Will Disregard the Union

Pittsburg, Aug. 13.—The Macbeth-Evans Glass company, probably the largest manufacturers of lamp chimneys in the country and employing 4000 men, announce that their plants will be run on an "open shop" basis, beginning next week. The reasons given by the company for its severance of relations with the union are that the workers' terms are unreasonable.

Left All to Her Husband

New York, Aug. 13.—The will of Olivia L. Clemens, wife of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), has been filed for probate. All the estate, real and personal, is left to Mr. Clemens absolutely and he is named as executor. No petition has yet been filed, so that the approximate amount of the estate is not ascertainable.

Jockey Fatally Hurt

Buffalo, Aug. 13.—There was a mix-up at the Fort Erie track which no one can accurately describe further than to say that False Entry, ridden by Jockey Richsteiger, fell, and that another horse, coming on behind, stepped upon the fallen horse and jockey. Reichsteiger was taken to a hospital, where he died.

Pistol to Enforce Collection

Cleveland, Aug. 13.—Melancthon Millard, 60 years old, a lawyer, shot and probably fatally wounded Barnard Hassey, 32 years old, in the office of the lawyer as a result of a quarrel over the collection of a small sum of money. Millard surrendered and stated that he shot Hassey in self-defense.

Women Are as Courageous as Men

By Mrs. FRANK LESLIE

IT is the accepted idea of the world that courage is a masculine attribute almost exclusively, and that all women are timid creatures, needing all sorts of protection and support, shelter and encouragement from man, who, according to St. Paul, "is the head of the woman."

PERHAPS HE IS, BUT I MUST SAY HE DOES NOT ALWAYS KEEP AHEAD.

Now, my own theory is that this idea, set up in the dark ages, when woman was either a slave or a servant to man, has, like many other respectable ideas, become outgrown and antiquated. The last fifty years have developed the nature and capacities of woman with a good deal of the instantaneous transformation seen in a pantomime, or, to put it more prettily, the effect upon a garden of roses, which in one hour of hot sunshine develop from half blown buds into flowers of glorious and fragrant maturity.

NOW, ONE OF THE ERRORS WHICH TIME HAS THUS FAR PERPETUATED AND NOW IS READY TO ABJURE AND CONTRADICT IS THIS OF THE COWARDICE OF WOMEN AND COURAGE OF MEN AS DISTINCTLY OPPOSED TO EACH OTHER.

I was present when a sweet little curly haired thing, a girl of some twenty years, seized a savage bloodhound by the neck and choked him off her pet kitten, which he had chased into the house—that is, I don't suppose her tiny dimpled hands were really capable of choking him, but he was so impressed by the dauntless spirit behind them that he dropped the kitten and ran. When his master was told of the exploit he turned pale and exclaimed: "My God! That dog has torn a man to pieces before now!"

THE STRONGEST SPRING OF ACTION IN A WOMAN'S NATURE IS LOVE, AND THE PERFECTLY RECKLESS COURAGE SHE WILL SOMETIMES DISPLAY MUST HAVE ITS ROOT IN LOVE. She must feel the need of saving or serving some one whose life is dearer to her than her own, or, like Joan of Arc or Charlotte Corday, she must love her country better than herself and despise the death awaiting her in its defense.

In fact, the truth is that MAN'S COURAGE IS MATTER OF CALCULATION, and so may be served to order, may be indulged or restrained, may be sold to the highest bidder, and if a higher appear may be transferred and resold without injuring its quality in the least. This is not to be taken as an ill natured hit at mankind, but a simple statement of fact as relating to mercenary troops and soldiers of fortune, and I only point out the fact as opposed to that other fact just mentioned—namely, that woman's courage springs only from the personal feeling of the moment and has its root in love.

BUT, AFTER ALL, IT IS MORE IN THE MORAL THAN THE PHYSICAL WORLD THAT WOMAN'S COURAGE IS MOST CLEARLY SHOWN, AND ALSO MAN'S COWARDICE, AND IN NO DIRECTION MORE PLAINLY THAN IN MATTERS OF THE HEART.

For instance, if poverty—deep, dire poverty—comes, it is woman's courage that meets it and makes the best of it; it is she who dares to show herself to the world, to their own world, in the garb and equipage and occupations of poverty.

Perhaps THE MAN BREAKS DOWN UTTERLY, for men are far more prone to break than bend, AND THEN nine times out of ten THE WIFE FINDS COURAGE AND ABILITY to take up the laboring oar that he has dropped and becomes the breadwinner of the family. And with what brave and strong resolution is that labor accomplished, even when the frail physique seems crumbling beneath the strain!

IN OTHER WAYS, TOO, IS THERE A DISAGREEABLE TRUTH TO BE TOLD OR A CAUTION GIVEN OR A WARNING CONVEYED IN SOCIAL OR MORAL MATTERS. WHO HAS THE COURAGE TO DO THESE THINGS—IS IT A WOMAN OR A MAN?

The Relation of Railroad and Telegraph to Our Body Politic

By JAMES M. BECK, Former Assistant Attorney General

IN view of the centralizing tendencies of steam and electricity our country will eventually consider the propriety of such an amendment to the constitution as will grant to transportation companies the right to transact their business throughout the country under the protection of A FEDERAL CHARTER. Such a law would unquestionably go far to obliterate state lines and create a government more strongly centralized than the wildest dream of Alexander Hamilton. But neither Hamilton nor Jefferson ever conceived the possibility of the railroad or the telegraph.

THROUGH THEIR CENTRIPETAL TENDENCIES NO LONGER IS THERE A GROUP OF STATES UNITED WITH A SLENDER THREAD OF FEDERAL POWER, BUT A NATIONAL ORGANISM WHOSE ARTERIES ARE THE RAILROADS AND WHOSE SENSITIVE NERVES ARE THE TELEGRAPH WIRES, AND THIS ORGANISM CAN NO MORE BE DIVIDED INTO SEPARATELY VITAL PARTS THAN YOU COULD DIVIDE THE HUMAN BODY.

Why There Is No American School of Painting

By ALPHONSE MARIA MUCHA, French Artist

AMERICA IS TOO YOUNG yet to have developed an artistic side. There are painters here, and very good ones too. But they are not American painters. Although born here, they are European, generally French. They study abroad and are formed there, so that their best efforts are in reality only copies. AT THE PRESENT RATE OF DEVELOPMENT, HOWEVER, THE REAL AMERICAN PAINTER WILL BE PRODUCED WITHIN FIFTY YEARS, AND THEN HE WILL CREATE FOR HIMSELF. HE WILL HAVE ORIGINALITY. HE WILL BE AMERICAN.

The second generation will witness an American renaissance. But the country is too young yet. It will have to be waited for.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

OUTBURST OF JOY

Long-Desired Czarevitch Makes Entry Into the World

THE CZAR'S FIFTH CHILD

Birth of Heir to Russian Throne Attended With Ancient Ceremonial--Event Which Disjoints Nose of Grand Duke Michael

St. Petersburg, Aug. 13.—The official announcement of the birth of an heir to the throne was first made in a proclamation issued by Emperor Nicholas at the Peterhof palace. The proclamation is dated July 30, Russian style, but it was not distributed until this morning:

"By the grace of God, we, Emperor Nicholas II, emperor and autocrat of all the Russians, czar of Poland, grand duke of Finland, etc., etc., announce to all our faithful subjects that our dear wife, Empress Alexandra Feodorovna, was safely delivered of our son Alexis.

"This joyous event is vouchsafed us and our kingdom by God as a blessing. Our prayers should be rendered to the most high for a continuance in growth and health of this our first born son, who is to be our heir and who is committed to our care by God for the perpetuation of our great office in the state.

"According to our manifesto, issued July 28, 1899, we appointed our dear brother, Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, as heir apparent until a son should be born to us. From the present day this title devolves upon our son Alexis, with the calling and title of heir apparent and all rights attached thereto.

"Given at Peterhof the 30th day of July in the year of our Lord 1904 and the 10th year of our reign.

"Nicholas."

A day marked by the display of flags, the firing of salutes, and holding of religious services and the extending of official congratulations, was followed by a night of brilliant illumination. Literally tens of thousands of tapers glimmered before the altars of St. Petersburg's many shrines. In chapels and cathedrals everywhere there were solemn choruses of thanksgiving, from the imperial chapel of the Peterhof palace to the humble lamp-lit shrines of the streets, where the hurrying pedestrians, laborers and drosky drivers waited to cross themselves.

The street crowds last night were, however, much quieter than usual on a holiday, for the popular rejoicing over the event at the Alexander villa could not dispel the intense anxiety which prevailed regarding the fate of the squadron on which so much depends.

The birth of the czarevitch was attended with all the ceremonial ordained by imperial tradition. In accordance with the Russian law, there were present, besides the emperor, Baron Fredericks, the gorouky, the grand marshal of the court. Dr. Rott, the czar's family physician, was the accoucheur, and Dr. Hiruch was the surgeon in attendance. Dr. Rott personally announced the birth of the heir to the awaiting imperial family. An imperial salute of 101 guns was subsequently fired, first from the Peterhof, and it was then repeated by all the forts around St. Petersburg. The christening of the heir will occur in a fortnight.

The importance of the birth of an heir to the throne of Russia cannot be exaggerated, coming as it does at a time when the Russian people are depressed by the reverses which the arms of Russia have sustained in the far east. Not only will the coming of a son to the emperor and empress bring joy to Russia in general, because it marks the advent of a new era for Russia, but it will put an end to the intrigues, more or less open, which have been features of the recent reign since the birth of the first daughter to their majesties. Up to yesterday Grand Duke Michael, only brother of the czar, was the heir-presumptive. A powerful, healthy, ambitious man, born in 1878, Grand Duke Michael is much beloved by the people, and in recent years has been looked upon as the probable successor of Nicholas III. The birth of an heir to Russia's throne also disposes of the ambitions of the family of Grand Duke Vladimir, oldest uncle of the czar and father of Grand Dukes Cyril, Boris and Andre, and of Grand Duchess Helena, wife of Prince Nicholas of Greece.

Alleged Vow of the Czar

Berlin, Aug. 13.—The Kleine Journal says it expects that the birth of an heir to the Russian throne will be followed in a few days by the proclamation of a constitution, claiming to have been informed that the czar vowed he would give a constitution to Russia if the empress gave birth to a son.

Roosevelt Won't Make Speeches

New York, Aug. 13.—Chairman Cortelyou says that President Roosevelt will not make any political speeches this year. Beyond the speech to the notification committee and the letter of acceptance, which is yet to be published, the president will not take any public part in the campaign.

Bird Slaughter Must Cease

Washington, Aug. 13.—A cablegram from Lieutenant Owen, commanding the detachment of marines at Midway island, the landing point of the Pacific cable, states that the employes of the cable company threaten to leave the island by the next steamer if the order of the navy department prohibiting them from shooting the beautiful birds of the island is enforced. The department insists that the order be rigidly enforced. The government is determined to stop the slaughter of these birds of plumage.

Parker Receives Women Visitors

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 13.—A delegation representing the inter-denominational council of women for Christian patriotic service called on Judge Parker to discuss the anti-polygamy question with the candidate. While he did not promise to discuss the question of Mormonism in his letter of acceptance, it is known that he approves of the anti-polygamy plank of the St. Louis platform and will give it consideration before concluding his letter.

England's Mission In Thibet

London, Aug. 13.—In the house of commons, during a discussion of the India budget, Indian Secretary Brodrick, replying to criticisms of the Thibet expedition, said he was unable to say when it would return. The government did not propose a permanent occupation, but it must insist on the authorities at Lhassa giving assurances that Great Britain's name would be treated with proper respect.

Booth Tucker to Leave Us

New York, Aug. 13.—In connection with the recent international congress of the Salvation Army numerous changes of territorial leaders have been arranged. Among others it has been decided that Commander Booth Tucker will leave the United States about the middle of November. Announcements will be made later regarding the commander's successor and his future apointment.

Wife Murder Suspected

Glens Falls, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The body of Mrs. Orange Frazier was found at her home near Graphite with her throat cut. Orange Frazier, her husband, is missing, and the authorities are looking for him. Recently, it is said, Frazier has been quarrelsome and has often abused his wife. Their baby was laughing and playing innocently about the floor when the woman's body was discovered.

Mexicans Punishing Murderers

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 13.—Munoz, one of the murderers of American prospectors in Sonora, was taken to the scene of his crime, where he confessed and met death at the hands of a file of soldiers. Manuel Truxillo, another of the band, jumped into the river while handcuffed and is believed to have been drowned. Three others implicated by Munoz will be shot.

BRILLIANT SWORDPLAY.

Italy Is the Home of Fencing as a Refined Art.

Although the Germans were always redoubtable at the rougher games of swordsmanship, it is in Italy that we find the first development of that nimbler, more regulated, more cunning, better controlled play which we have learned to associate with the term fencing. It is from Italy that fencing as a refined art first spread over Europe, not from Spain, as it has been asserted by many writers.

It is in the Italian rapier play of the late sixteenth century that we find the foundations of fencing in the modern sense of the word. The Italians—if we take their early books as evidence and the fact that their phraseology of fence was adopted by all Europe—were the first to perceive, as soon as the problem of armor breaking ceased to be the most important one in a fight, the superior capabilities for elegant slaughter possessed by the point as compared with the edge. They accordingly reduced the breadth of their sword, modified the hilt portion thereof to admit of a readier thrust action and relegated the cut to quite a secondary position in their system. With this lighter weapon they devised in course of time that brilliant, cunning, catlike play known as rapier fence.

The rapier was ultimately adopted everywhere by men of courtly habit, but in England at least it was not accepted without murmur and vituperation from the older fighting class of swordsmen.—Cornhill.

MEASURE HIS FINGER.

If It Is Longer Than Yours, He Will Rule You When You're Wed.

It is rather late in the day for this bit of advice, but the girl who thinks of marriage should take the precaution of first measuring the forefinger of her lover with her own before she commits herself irrevocably. If his forefinger happens to be longer than her own she would best reject him, for she will never rule her own household, the rule being that whichever has the longer forefinger becomes the ruling power in this home. One engaged girl, upon being told of this test, carefully measured fingers at once, and, upon finding that her fiance's finger was much longer than her own, stoutly declared that she didn't care. "She didn't want to rule the house anyway!" The man breathed freely once more. It was this very same girl, however, who was observed to make special and strenuous efforts to set her own right foot upon the church step before the groom, and to place this same foot upon the carpet before his. It is a sure sign that whichever sets foot first upon the church step and upon the carpet at the altar will rule the house!

Which offers a solution of the "longest forefinger" problem! Avoid as you would the pestilence the tying of your shoe in a carriage upon your wedding [illegible] to "unlucky!"—Exchange.

London Doctors' Fees.

Discussion by London newspapers of doctors' fees has brought to light some curious information. "I know a man," one doctor is quoted as saying, "who has a guinea practice in Harley street, a five shilling practice in Kensington and a sixpenny practice in Seven Dials."

In Clapton, a poor quarter of London, fees of twopence (4 cents) are said to be not unknown. One newspaper remarks: "Of the twopence fee it might be said that it brings sickness within the reach of all. In Clapton, at any rate, there is no excuse or justification for any one being well."

This same newspaper says, "Now that flats are so fashionable the doctor's difficulty in guessing the paying ability of his patient is enormously increased, flats being alike the refuge of the wealthy and the indigent."

A Bit of a Blow.

"I suppose you have encountered worse gales than this?" asked an inquisitive passenger of the sailor man during a very moderate bit of a blow.

"This yere ain't a gale," responded the salt. "Why, I was onct in the bay o' Biscay when the wind blew all the paint off the bulwarks. It took four on us to 'old the captain's 'at on 'is 'ead, and even then all the ankers was blown off 'is buttons. That was a blow for yer. Why, even"—

But by this time the curious passenger realized that he was being guyed, and he did not give the imaginative tar the chance of finishing his interesting narrative.

His Bravery.

"Oh, George," sighed the romantic girl, "I wish you were like the old time knights. I wish you'd do something brave to show your love for me."

"Gracious," cried her fiance, "haven't I agreed to marry you, and me only getting $20 a week?"—Exchange.

Genial Jane.

Jane—After looking at me for a minute or two Harry said, "Do you know, Jane, that a veil improves you greatly?" Carrie—Not very complimentary. Jane—No, but what pleased me was the fine tact he employed in imparting an unpleasant thought.—Boston Transcript.

Not Her Fault.

Eva—I thought you were never going to speak to Harold again as long as you lived? Ciss—I know I said so, but it wasn't my fault that I broke the resolution. Eva—How did it happen? Ciss—He called me up over the telephone.—Woman's Journal.

Charity and personal force are the only investments worth anything.—Whitman.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam's able diplomacy put the United States in the forefront of the nations of the world, with an increase of only from $1,755,000 to $3,382,000 in the total expense of his department of state.

UNDER PROTECTION.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Now, gentlemen, a word to yon college men. A college education and its advantages is a much mooted question. There has been arguments pro and con as to its value, as to whether it was really worth while. As I saw it put once: "You may edcuate men, monkeys, pigs and failures, but when you have done you still have men, monkeys, pigs and failures. College does not change the nature of the trainee, but it does rub off the husks [illegible] the central kernel, and if there be a man within it will bring him out; if there be a failure within it will but give a better command of language with which to excuse his failure."—Henry L. Rosenfeld.

☞I don't believe there is any one feeling that enters into the hearts of all the people so universally and that appeals to any one so much as that feeling that we call patriotism; and when you run it down you find it is nothing but prejudice after all; but it is the best prejudice. There was never any man in this country who did not have prejudice of that kind, and I would like to see the man who is not prejudiced in favor of the little town where he used to live, and then I would like to see the man who does not think his county is the best county, and his State the best State, and his Nation the best Nation; and over and above all that, I would like to see the man who does not think the Anglo Saxon race to which we all belong is the best race in all the world.—Robert K. Morton.

☞Dynamite is of a very sensitive disposition and should be treated with love and gentleness. If shown proper deference it is amiable and docile, but when crowded and stepped on is liable to be resentful. Upon any little jar in social relations it has been known to go up in the air and break up entire neighborhoods. When its serenity is once disturbed its pugnacity is equal to that of a prize fighter's jaw. It then tears up the ground and makes unpleasant remarks that can be heard for miles around. When smitten it does not obey the Scriptural injunction to turn the other cheek but immediately flies all to pieces. When once it breaks with its associates everything is off and it is hard to patch things up. It is habitually reserved in manner, and those who have thought they could induce it to thaw out have mostly had their fond hopes shattered. It is rather reckless in its operations, and, while given to booming, is often in the hole. It dislikes knockers and kickers and detests the man that slaps it on the back or pokes it in the ribs. It has an irritable temper and blows up its best friends on the slightest provocation. Don't grow too familiar with this sensitive creature.—Brockton Enterprise.

—The young man who thinks he cannot exist on $18,000 a year ought to be a Fall River weaver out on strike for a little while.

BIG FORECLOSURE.

The Shipyard to be sold at Mortgagee's Sale.

As a part of the reorganizasion scheme of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, all the property of the company, both real estate and personal property is advertised in this issue to be sold at mortgagee's sale on Wednesday Sept. 7.

Probably work will not be interrupted, and after the reorganization the company will be in a much better financial condition than of late. It has been known to many that the plant was greatly over-capitalized, and the only hope of success was to get rid of the watered stock. This is contemplated in the reorg anization.

Rescue from Drowning.

Walter Fox, aged about 13 years, came near being drowned yesterday at the city bath house. The lad could swim a little and had been in the habit of jumping off the wall where the water was not very deep. The tide was unusually high and when he found the water deep he became frightened and lost control of himself. Jack Starr, the bath house keeper went to his rescue, and with the assistance of Winslow Harris succeeded in pulling the lad ashore.

STETSON—In Zurich, Switzerland, August 10, Mr. Amos W. Stetson of Braintree, aged 77 years.

MURPHY—In Weymouth, Aug. 12, Mr. Terrence Murphy, of Richmond street, aged 79 years and 6 months.

ELLMS—In Norwell, Aug. 12, Alfred R., son of Mr. George B. Ellms, aged 8 years.

A WORK OF ART.

St. John, the Evangelist, Cut in Marble at Ssuth Quincy.

Ghigli Bros. the sculptors, in Swingle & Falconer's block Water street, have on exhibition a work of art in the form of a life-size marble statue of St. John the Evangelist. Tiffany of New York is the designer and the statue will be shipped next week to Mrs. Abbott of Glen Falls, N. Y.

Yesterday Mr. Tiffany and Mrs. Abbott were at the studio and readily accepted the statue.

It is cut from a solid piece of Vermont marble and shows the evangelist with book in one hand and crayon in the other. The face is as near perfect as the skilled mechanic could make it. It shows St. John with eyes turned toward heaven in the act of getting inspiration for the continuation of his writings. The folds of this robe are particularly soft, and it is easily the best piece of work of its kind to leave Quincy.

Abraham Ghigli made the model after a design of Tiffany, and Archimedes his brother, cut the work in marble. Messrs. Ghigli purpose to admit those who care to view the work prior to its shipment on Wednesday, August 17.

New Company at Braintree.

There has just been incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts a new company to be known as the Victor Metal Company with plant on Mill lane, East Braintree as heretofore. The plant will be immediately increased by erecting a wooden rolling mill, 50 x 100, on the cellar put in last year. Adjoining this mill then will be a boiler and engine room, also a furnace room. There will be an overhead covered passageway, over Mill lane connecting the new building with the present plant.

There will be considerable more yard room in the rear of the present building when a stone wall is made along the room and the filling is put in. A spur freight track is to be built into this yard and also one to the new building.

About 25 men are now employed at the Victor Metal Works with considerable work ahead of them. One large contract the company has is for forty tons of castings for the new United States ship "Washington."

The members of the Victor Metal Company are William Astor Chandler, Lewis Nixon and Samuel Jenney of New York; Mr. Reuben of Havana, Cuba; Victor C. Lassen, East Braintree. Mr. Nixon was president of the United States Shipbuilding Company and is now the owner of the Ramsey Ship Yard at Perth Amboy, N. J.

We predict that soon nearly one hundred men will be employed at the Victor Metal Works and East Braintree will become more interested in this industry.

World's Fair Trains.

Three through trains which make fast time are run between Boston and St. Louis daily via Boston & Albany R. R. They leave at convenient hours and arrive at convenient hours, and one can be on the road one night or two nights as he pleases.

One express leaves Boston at 10.45 A. M. and arrives in St. Louis at 5 P. M. the next day.

Another express leaves Boston at 2 P. M. and arrives in St. Louis at 9.45 P. M. the next night.

The third express leaves Boston at 8 P. M. and arrives at St. Louis at 7.30 A. M. on the second day.

One can start on a Saturday evening; if time is limited; reach St. Louis at 7.30 Monday morning; have six days at the World's Fair, and start for home Saturday evening, reaching Boston on Monday morning.

Only a Mask.

Many are not being benefitted by the summer vacation as they should be. Now, notwithstanding much outdoor life, they are little if any stronger than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well. What they need is what tones the nerves perfects digestion, creates appetite, and makes sleep refreshing, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Pupils and teachers generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by this great medicine, which, as we know, "builds up the whole system."

—Twelve hundred pennies are on exhibition in the Palace of Liberal Arts at the World's Fair. They are very neatly arranged in the form of a cent, with the Indians' head outlined in the coins, but the most interesting thing about the coins is that 900 of them bear the same date, 1877. Pennies of this date are very rare, and the collection is the largest known collection of rare coins of one date in America. The exhibit is property of Henry Hammelman, of Buffalo.

—The story comes from Australia that a cyclist name Kiff has just completed a remarkable ride of 1,000 miles on a bicycle. The rider travelled from Rockhampton to Sidney, in 28 days, inclusive of stoppages. Kiff only has one leg, yet he used a machine geared to eighty.

A HELPING HAND.

Business Was Good with Mr. and Mrs. Bowman Last Evening.

Intervale street, a very quiet section of South Quincy, was last night the scene of much animation. A raid by several hundred people was made on Mr. Bowman's new store, and what the crowd did not buy was not there. Cases of tonic disappeared as if by magic. Tobacco, cigars, pipes, candies, canned goods of all kinds, and things too numerous to mention went like fire sparks.

At one side of the store Mrs. Bowman presides, with a line of articles dear to the feminine heart. Much thought and pains had been bestowed on the arrangement of these on the shelves and counter. Delicate fabrics, ginghams and calicoes of variegated colors had all been placed for effect, but the host of ladies who bore down on the place soon changed the appearance, and today instead of the beautiful bundles of goods, Mrs. Bowman has nothing but empty shelves and tills full of money.

The raiders were treated to some fine bagpipe music by Mr. A. Ellis who lives in the vicinity.

OLD WAR RELIC.

Bayonet from the Gun of Francis L. Souther.

G. F. Wilson & Co. have on exhibition in their store window a bayonet from the gun carried by Francis L. Souther of Quincy, the first union soldier killed in the regular line of battle in the war of the Rebellion, at Big Bethel, Virginia.

The gun, with the bayonet attached, was one of those used in taking the body from the battlefield at Big Bethel and was brought home by Dr. Saville, Surgeon of the 4th regiment, Mass. Infantry, of which the late Abner B. Packard was colonel, and Col. Henry Walker, well known to Quincy people, the adjutant. It was afterwards given to Thomas Smith of Co. H of the same regiment, and of which Franklin Curtis who is still active in G. A. R. affairs was captain.

This old relic, the gun to which it was formerly attached having long since been destroyed by fire, is highly prized by Mr. Smith, in whose possession it has remained since 1863.

Amos W. Stetson Dead.

A dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, announces the sudden death at that place last Wednesday of Amos W. Stetson of Braintree.

Mr. Stetson was the son of Caleb Stetson, once a prominent business man and financier in Boston. He was born in Boston in 1827 and became a partner in a leather concern in 1848, under the name of Atherton, Stetson & Co., retiring in 1861, in order to devote his entire attention to financial interests. He became a director in the State national bank in 1859, and was president of it from 1866 till 1890, when he resigned, though he remained a director till his death. He was an incorporator of the New England trust company and vice president when he died. He was also director in the Dwight manufacturing company.

His wife died ten years ago. He is survived by a son and daughter, William A. Stetson and Mrs. Charles B. Wheelock of Newtonville. Mr. Stetson was a member of the old South church. He was a liberal benefactor of Wellesley college. The remains will be brought to Boston for burial.

Freedom Party.

A very pretty party was given last evening, by Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Page, at their home on Winthrop avenue, Wollaston, for their nephew, H. Houghton Shumacher, in honor of his twenty first birthday. There were twenty five guests present, who spent a most enjoyable evening dancing, the German being the feature of the evening. Dainty refreshments including a birthday cake, were served, after which the guests took their leave, wishing Mr. Schumacher "many happy returns of the day."

Amony those present were: Mrs. C. P. Schumacher, Misses Ethel Babcock, Mollie Brown, Janet Carr, Marjorie Fay, Marion Howe, Marguerite Hussey, Bertha Josselyn, Helen Josselyn, Lucy Luard, Margery Melcher, Annie Pinkham, Gertrude King.

Messrs Ernest Arnold, Fred Thayer, Thorpe Babcock, Sidney Carr, Gordon Adams, Herbert Arnold, Houghton Schumacher, Waldron Schumacher, George Bailey, Bert Pitts, Lawrence Loring, Brooks Keyes, and George Brown.

President Connors Back.

John J. Connors, president of the Teamsters union, is home from Cincinati, where he has been as a delegate to the convention of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. He reports having had a grand trip. On the homeward trip the party visited Chicago, Niagara Falls, Washington and Canada. He has been gone two weeks.

CITY BREVITIES.

The South Quincys and Merrymounts will play at Merrymount park this afternoon.

Parker Sheldon, who has been very ill with rheumatism is slowly improving.

Mr. Adams, draughtsman at the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., is taking his vacation.

Edward Rivinus of Wollaston will assist the choir at the Old South church Weymouth, on Sunday mornsng

H. A. MacPherson, draughtsman at the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., is enjoying a brief vacation at his father's summer home at Marshfield.

Albert Keating of Washington street will be upon the strff of the commanders of the Massachusetts posts at the G. A. R. parade in Boston on Tuesday.

The Boston Academy students are to give a recital in Music hall, Quincy, Sept 28, assisted by high class professional talent.

A large audience should greet Rev. George Benedict at the Quincy Point church on Sunday morning. Mr. Benedict served as pastor of this church for a number of years, his successor being Rev. Sherman Thompson.

Many people at Quincy Point have complained lately of havipg their slumbers disturbed. The cause is nothing more or less than a cow chained in a meadow, who keeps up constant music through the night.

Mr. John Calla of Union street dropped a roll of bank bills this morning on on Washington street, but fortunately the finder was seen when he stopped his bicycle and picked them up, therefore he will probably return them and receive a reward, which is advertised.

Through an unintentional oversight, no mention was made in Thursday's Ledger of the following people who sent bouquets and wreaths to the funeral of Mrs. M. H. Gillis: Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Newcomb, Mr. Christopher Cheever, Miss Mary McLean, Miss Christena McLean, Mrs. Brackett, Mrs. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. James McGrath, Mrs. Colonel Packard.

WHEN THEY HAWHAWED.

Ex-Judge Parker's Reply to a Traveler That Amused Politicians.

Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, the Democratic nominee for president, was the center of a little group the other day comprising politicians, a newly returned traveler from abroad and a newspaper woman, says the New York Times. The traveler was giving a long and somewhat tiresome account of his experiences in Europe, and the newspaper woman was slowly but surely driving the judge to desperation by bombarding him with questions on many subjects.

"Judge, the most impressive thing I saw in Japan was an idol," said the traveler. "It was the figure of a woman seated and resting her chin in the palm of her right hand. I couldn't find out what she had done to be so immortalized."

The judge parried the newspaper woman's forty-ninth query, then said to the traveler: "I know. The Japanese are wise, and they erected that idol as expressing their reverence for a woman that can hold her own jaw."

Then the politicians to a man said, "Hawhaw!"

Gowns of Stone to Be In Style.

Not to the looms of France, but to the rocks of the United States, the society women of the United States now will look for gowns, for a resident of Orange, N. J., has discovered a process by which he can convert the silky fiber of asbestus into a cloth similar to silk, says an Orange dispatch. Besides being absolutely moth proof, the cloth will resist fire.

Back From Vacation.

Back from my summer vacation,
In the noisy old town once more,
Away from the vicious mosquitoes
And the chiggers that sting and bore,
With my neck all raw and blistered
And my nose as red as a beet,
I find that the city is welcome
And that life in town is sweet.

Back from my summer vacation,
Away from the worms that creep
And the gnats that crawl down my neckband
And bother me while I sleep.
Afar from the flies and the spiders
And the June bugs that biff and pelt,
I am glad to get back from the country
And the loneliness I have felt.

Back from my summer vacation,
And the soggy old stuff to eat,
Where a restaurant meal is a pleasure
And a table d'hote is a treat,
Where there's something to do besides grumble
And something to do besides wait,
Where I get my papers each morning,
And they're never a whole day late.

Back from my summer vacation,
In the good old town once more,
Afar from the oppressive silence,
To the rush and the rout and roar.
In the city there's something doing,
There's joy in the meet of might,
And the soul expands with the struggle
And grows in the shock of fight.

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

GRAND CARNIVAL.

Will Be Held at Houghs Neck Three Days Next Week.

The Houghs Neck festival committee met last evening when reports were received from the canvassers for subscriptions.

The reports were so encouraging that it was decided to hold the carnival next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, as at first planned.

The complete program has not been made out as yet, but as outlined at last night's meeting, the carnival will open Wednesday by a parade in the morning. This will also be children's day and there will be ice cream for the children and sports.

Thursday it is hoped to have a firemen's muster. Whether or not this will be held will depend upon the number of tubs that enter.

Friday will be devoted to sports of various kinds.

MOSQUITO BITE ANTIDOTE.

Seaman Tells of Relief Afforded by Using Beer Externally.

Captain Charles K. Adams of the Maryland Pilots' association reports having discovered a new antidote for mosquito bites, which, according to his statement, also proved a perfect protection against their attention when sleep was sought, says the Baltimore Sun. He gives the formula in the following words:

"A few days ago on board the steamer Pilot, when the vessel was alive with mosquitoes, the thermometer 106 degrees in the shade and the sand dunes on Cape Henry blinded the eyes, I sought—I know not why—refreshment in a bottle of beer, but the heat and viciousness of the mosquitoes prevented me from enjoying the beverage.

"Thoughtlessly I poured some of the fluid in one hand and began to rub a ridge of mosquito bites that formed a bracelet around my wrist. There was a momentary smarting, followed by cessation of the itching, and then I felt relieved. I began to think of cause and effect and concluded that if beer would reduce the discomfort of mosquito stings maybe it would prevent the marauder inflicting them. I took what remained of the contents of the bottle and bathed my face, hands and feet and lay down for a sleep. It is no exaggeration to say that not one insect got in his work. I awoke refreshed and without a mark of his business end about me anywhere.

"I intend to keep up the preventive even if I have to forfeit the refreshing pleasure that a glass of beer gives me when lying at the mosquito paradise off Cape Henry."

JAPANESE FINE SHOTS.

Russian Sergeant of Scouts Tells of the Enemy's Good Points.

A Russian sergeant of scouts who was captured by the Japanese, but who escaped with eight comrades from the island of Shikoku, Japan, has arrived at Paris, says the New York Times. He communicates some curious impressions of the war.

The Japanese, he says, are excellent shots, and no Russian reconnoitering party could remain a quarter of an hour under their fire. To four or five of the enemy whom the Russians would manage to kill the Japanese would shoot a hundred Russians.

The sergeant says the Japanese cannon are immensely superior to the Russian, having a longer range and greater precision and being very much lighter. Three horses can pull a Japanese gun, while a Russian gun requires six.

The Russian officers, according to the sergeant, believed Japan would be beaten, but the Russian rank and file were convinced she would win. Every Japanese scout carries a map which enables him at once to discover where he is, but the Russians, having no such maps, are always at a loss.

The Japanese treat their prisoners well and with courtesy.

THEIR DAY TO KICK.

Horses Lay Out Two Men---Both Cases Serious.

Edward McDonald, a driver for the Quincy Beef Co., was severely injured yesterday afternoon by being kicked in the head by a horse at the company's stable on Dimmock street. Just how the affair happened is not known at present. It was about 4.30 when he was found lying unconscious on the stable floor in the rear of one of the horses.

The police ambulance was summoned and he was removed to the City Hospital. His face was badly bruised where the horse had kicked him, and it was at first thought that his arm was broken and that he might have sustained a fracture of the skull.

Upon examination it was found that his arm was not broken, but that he had sustained a fracture of the skull. He passed a fairly comfortable night, and this noon he was resting comfortable. He is in a serious condition, however and the physicians can not give much encouragement as yet.

William Corcoran, driver of the truck at the Central Fire station, was severely kicked in the leg yesterday by one of the horses. He was taken to his home on Cottage avenue. It was at first thought that his leg had been broken. Fortunately however no bones were broken.

Wanted a Ride.

Patrick White and James Meeney, aged 12 and 11 years, had a long ride yesterday in one of Penniman's & Sons carriages. It was about 11 o'clock when White started from Penniman's stable, near the depot, with a horse and carriage for Swithin Bros. which he was to take to their office at Durgin & Merrill block.

He delivered the carriage all right and hitched the horse to a post, as the parties were not quite ready to start. He then stood on the sidewalk and admired the turnout. While thus engaged he was joined by Meeney. There was a few minutes conversation, then the boys unhitched the horse and getting in drove off. Ten minutes later the team was missed and it was not long before a description of it had been sent to the police of neighboring towns.

No trace of it was found however until 4 o'clock when Officer Murray held it up as the boys were driving from Houghs Neck. They had been on a grand ride, and had kept the horse on the move constantly since morning.

The horse was well tired out and hungry, but otherwise all right.

—The vacation season is in full blast. Everyone "wants a change," and all who have the leisure and the price are taking it or preparing to take it. But there is a good deal of common sense, which will appeal to the stay-at-homes, in the statement of the New York Times that what you want is just what you have, and to take it with you anywhere is impossible. Your apartments, says this philosopher, are large, airy cool and quiet. You fancy them hot, but as compared with a low-studded farmhouse bedroom with one small window they are as heaven to its antithesis. You have an ideal bath with every toilet luxury which the taste of a Sybarite could suggest. Not a bug or fly or mosquito enters your windows. Noise from the street? You would think it oppressive silence after lying awake for one night listening to the katydids, the crickets, and the myriad of noisy insects quarreling in the trees. You may sleep until you choose to rise in the morning. For breakfast you have the choicest products of farm and garden, for these all come to the cities. You may dine to your liking, at 7, al fresco if it suits you, and find yourself perfectly nourished. If you want amusement you may have it, afloat or ashore, and your bed when you reach it will invite you to lie down to pleasant dreams. By day you do not need to overwork. No one expects it in midsummer. In September you will come up smiling and contented, the envy of your migratory friends, who will swear great oaths to imitate your good example another year, and forget them in due course. Is this a too favorable presentation of the comforts of a stay-at-home vacation?—Boston Courier.

MESSENGER DISCIPLINE

New Jersey Manager's Plan of Reforming His Boys.

BETTER PAY IF THEY OBEY RULES

John F. Coogan of Newark Adopts Plan to Stop Novel Reading, Cigarette Smoking, Etc.—Co-operative Arrangement That Already Has Worked a Manifest Reform.

Newark (N. J.) business men are thinking of voting a medal to Local Manager John F. Coogan of the Postal Telegraph company or at least of recommending him as worthy of the proposed benefits of the Carnegie hero fund, says the New York World. They are convinced that Coogan is not only a hero, but also a genius.

Coogan directs the energies of some thirty boys who deliver messages that come over the wire to Newark residents. Once upon a time Coogan was champion batsman of the Eastern Baseball league, and he is thankful for the rigid discipline he was then placed under. He has endeavored to follow the same methods in his business life, but for years he was frustrated because of the seeming impossibility of drilling his staff of messenger boys into a recognition of disciplinary efforts.

Coogan fancied Newark boys to be the same as boys are everywhere. "Rush" messages were always to them of less importance than to discover by reading to the end of the story how "Butts, the boy detective," got the drop on Scar Seamed Sam, the sentimental sailor, and saved the fortune for Little Lady Lucy, the beautiful waif.

It was also in keeping with the messenger boy's code of ethics to smoke a cigarette before he answered a hurry call.

Manager Coogan studied the problem of the reformation of the messenger boy. He tried discharging them, but this brought only temporary relief, as the newcomers soon fell into the easy habits of their predecessors. After years of study Coogan has evolved the scheme that has branded him as being of the stuff heroes are made of. He put his plan into effect a few days ago, and the change he has wrought, even in a brief time, has been wonderful.

In effect he has divorced the boy from the novel, caused him to look upon the "paper smoke" with loathing and turn his head away in honest horror at the sight of a colored boy with a couple of dice in his hand.

He called his thirty boys together and said:

"Boys, I have come to the conclusion that we can get along much better if we adopt a little co-operative plan I have in mind. That means that we should work to help each other. Now, I am authorized by the company to promise you all an increase of pay. Some of you will get $1, some $2 and some $3 a month more than you are now getting. Maybe you will all get the $3. It will depend upon yourselves.

"In order to become entitled to this increase you will have to promise me these things: During the next six months you will not smoke cigarettes nor read dime novels during business hours; you must promise not to curse or swear, gamble with dice or in any other form and deliver your messages promptly. If you do all these things I will agree that the company shall pay for your uniforms and give you some more money."

The proposition came as a surprise. It tickled the boys. Every one of them solemnly subscribed to the promises exacted. They also willingly agreed to forfeit certain portions of their expected raise for each fall from grace, and the new order of things was at once established. The success of the plan of Coogan has thus far been complete.

"The change produced in my boys is wonderful," he said but recently. "They have entered heartily into the spirit of the thing, and they are adhering strictly to the conditions. I made it plain to them that I did not seek to make saints of them, but merely to engage with them in a plain business proposition for our mutual benefit. There has not been a serious breach committed as yet, and I believe the boys will become so accustomed to the change that the benefit to them in a moral sense will be far greater than the gain they will receive in their pay."

Football Star a Shoemaker.

Young Tom, or "Blondy," Graydon, star football player, who ended his career at Harvard last year shortly after eloping with Miss Beryl Whitney of Boston, has given Cincinnati society a new topic of conversation, says the New York World. When he returned from college he received $25,000 as part of his inheritance. Instead of "blowing" this in the merry round of society he invested it in the shoe manufacturing business. Daily now he can be seen arrayed in long overalls and grimy shirt sitting at a bench with half a hundred other workmen tapping pegs into shoes. He says he is determined to understand his business from the cellar to the roof, as that is the surest way to succeed in it.

Naming Russian Children.

The Russian peasants are beginning to name their children after the oft mentioned towns in the seat of war. The name Arthur was very rare up to the present year. Now it is all the rage. One child was baptized Vladivostok, another Retvizan, and so on.

PLAYING THE SPY

[Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure.]

While Sheridan and Early were facing each other in the Shenandoah valley a Federal soldier named Sid Davis was sent into the lines of the latter to secure information. He took with him a peddler's pack and claimed to be a civilian and a resident of Virginia, and his excuse for not being in the Confederate army was that he was physically incapacitated by heart disease. On penetrating the enemy's lines he was taken before General Early, who questioned him at length and seemed satisfied with his answers. As he left the tent, however, he encountered a private soldier who was lying in wait for him and who shook a fist in his face and said:

"Say, Yank, yo' fooled the gineral, but yo' can't play it over me. Yo' are a dodgasted Yankee spy, and I'll prove it before yo' leave camp!"

The Confederate was a rough specimen of the soldier, having a saber cut across his face and an aggressive manner of speech, but why he should display such malevolence toward a stranger Sid could not make out.

"Are you drunk, or what, that you call me a Yankee spy?" blustered Sid as three or four of the man's comrades came up and seemed inclined to make trouble.

"No, I'm not drunk, and I saw yo' in the Union camp at Charlestown last spring when I was a prisoner of war there," was the answer.

"Nonsense, man. If you have got any charges to make against me, go to the general. If he is satisfied that I am all right, it's not for you to kick."

"I say yo' are a Yankee spy, and I say I'll prove it and have yo' hung!" growled the man as he and his comrades sauntered off.

Sid picked up his pack and found a place to lodge and next morning began peddling his goods through the camps. The rest of his adventures is told in his own language:

"By haggling with customers over prices, and by hanging to the goods as long as possible, I made them last me two days. In that time I had made close figures on every branch of Early's command, and had also got a good idea of the strength of his position. I had secured all I came for and was ready to return and report, but officers stopped me by the dozen to send messages to friends in Washington or ask that I make purchases for them. I was handed upwards of $5,000 in Confederate money, and, though I would have no chance to return it, it was no gain to me. The whole sum would not have purchased a bottle of ginger ale of a Union sutler.

"As to the man with the saber cut, I had seen him two or three times during the two days, and I knew that he was trying his best to work up a suspicion against me. Some of the soldiers asked me a few questions, but most of them were satisfied that I was what I claimed to be. I learned that the man went to General Early and stated his case, but as I was not sent for the general could not have taken much stock in what he said.

"I had intended to creep out of the Confederate lines in the darkness of night, but observing that the camp sentinels and pickets had been doubled and having met with such good luck in playing my role, I decided to go to the general and ask for a regular pass. I did not find him, but his adjutant general promptly handed me the paper, and just at sunset on the second day I left by the same road I had entered. I had no writing of any sort about me, and if stopped and searched there was nothing to incriminate. What information I had secured was all carried in my memory, and I had no fear of forgetting any of it.

"No one questioned the pass until I came to the last picket post. There were four men on this post, and one of them was he of the saber cut. As he realized that I was escaping his clutches he threw his hat on the ground and shouted:

"'I don't keer if he has a hundred passes! I tell yo' he is a Yankee soldier and a spy, and dod rot him he can't git by me!"

"The other three men, one of whom was a corporal, protested that they had no right to stop me, as the pass was all right and not to be questioned at any post, and I spoke softly in hopes of placating the man, but he grew still more fierce and handled his musket menacingly and shouted:

"'He's shorely got to go back to camp with me. I kin tell the gineral how to trap him. About face and forward march or I'll put a bullet into yo'!"

"Of course I refused to go back, and in this I was stoutly supported by the three others, two of whom had purchased goods of me the day before and been very friendly over it. They argued and protested, and just when I was hoping that the man with the scar would calm down he suddenly drew up his musket with the intention of shooting me in my tracks. As the weapon came up one of the men sprang forward and struck it upward, and another seized the man. Just how it was done I could not follow, but the musket was discharged, and the heavy ball struck the fellow under the chin and tore the greater part of his face away. He was dead in thirty seconds, and his comrades were bending over his body with looks of horror on their faces when I hurried away down the road. Had they insisted on my going back to camp with them and aiding them to make the tragedy clear to the officer of the day I should no doubt have fallen under suspicion and perhaps met the fate meted out to spies."

INVASION OF NEUTRAL PORT

Japs Criticized For "Cutting Out" Russian at Chefoo

AGREEMENT IS VIOLATED

Amounts to Extending Area of War--Chinese Admiral Had Prepared His Ship For Action to Prevent Towing Russian Vessel Away, but Was Deceived by Representation of Japs' Promising to Return--A Hand-to-Hand Conflict on Board the Captured Vessel

London, Aug. 13.—The general opinion of the London morning newspapers is that Japan will make atonement for the Ryeshitelni affair by restoring the ship to the Chinese authorities, but at the same time it is admitted that international obligations have so frequently been thrust aside during the course of the war that Japan may possibly feel entitled to make a law unto herself.

The greatest interest is evinced in the outcome of the naval battle, throwing light on which no further news has reached London.

As near as can be figured from the confused reports Admiral Togo thwarted Russia's attempt to liberate her beleaguered fleet. Three vessels, the Czarevitch, Novik and one other vessel, have arrived in the German harbor Kiaochou, the first named in a damaged condition. A destroyer which put into Chefoo, dismantled and placed herself under the protection of the Chinese authorities, was "cut out" by the Japanese and taken from the harbor. One torpedo boat is reported at Shanghai. Five battleships returned to Port Arthur.

Whether these composed the entire squadron is not known, but it is reported that four Russian "battleships" were sighted yesterday off Saddle islands, 70 miles southeast of Shanghai, and more than 500 miles south of Port Arthur.

Once more is Japanese superiority on the sea clearly demonstrated. The brilliancy of the affair is marred by a violation of the usages of war in the "cutting out" of the Russian torpedo destroyer in the harbor of Chefoo. What China will do about the insult to her integrity cannot be stated, but had it been a British or an American harbor where the affair occurred Japan would be called upon to restore the captured vessel, to give ample financial reparation and to make the most abject apology. Any failure on the part of Japan to do this would have meant war with the offended nation.

The affair may have a far-reaching effect. It is a clear violation of Japan's agreement with Secretary Hay to respect the "administrative entity" of China. A belligerent war vessel has a right under the laws of war of throwing itself on the hospitality of a neutral. This was done unreservedly by the Russian commander.

A dispatch from Chefoo says:

Interviews with Admiral Sah and Captain Ching, who is in command of the Haiyung, indicate that the Chinese naval authorities were more active than was at first supposed. When the first Japanese torpedo boat destroyer, towing the Ryeshitelni, departed to the northward, the second Japanese destroyer steered a course past the flagship and the cruiser Haichi. The latter cleared for action and signalled to the destroyer to stop. This was done. Admiral Sah informed the commander of the Japanese destroyer that the Ryeshitelni must be returned, as the neutrality had been flagrantly violated. To this the commander of the second destroyer replied that he would overtake the first destroyer and return to Chefoo. Admiral Sah accepted the word of honor of the Japanese commander and allowed him to depart.

The Chinese admiral is deeply chagrined at this occurrence and is ill as a result. He has turned the command of his squadron over to Captain Ching.

Captain Ching says that when the Japanese destroyers entered the harbor of Chefoo he sent an officer on board and assured Commander Fujimoto that the Ryeshitelni was disabled and that his officers and crew had signed a parole. Later the admiral followed his messenger and personally repeated this information at length, whereupon Fujimoto said he had no designs on the Ryeshitelni. Admiral Sah next sent an officer in a small boat to the lightship, which was near the Ryeshitelni, to watch developments.

Captain Shestakovsky, feeling insecure, requested that his ammunition and one torpedo be returned to him or that a Chinese cruiser prepare to guard him. To this the Chinese officer on the lightship replied that he had been ordered merely to report developments. Accordingly Shestakovsky assembled his crew and addressed them, saying that an attack was possible. All the men of the Ryeshitelni slept that night on deck with life preservers under their heads.

When the lieutenant from one of the Japanese destroyers boarded the Ryeshitelni at 3:30 in the morning the crew which brought him, with bayonets affixed to their rifles in their hands, followed their officer. Captain Shestakovsky protested against this, saying: "I am unable to resist, but this is a breach of neutrality and courtesy."

Captain Shestakovsky then secretly commanded one of his lieutenants to prepare gunpowder with which to blow up the Russian destroyer. To gain the time necessary to make ready for this step, Shestakovsky argued international law with the Japanese officer, whose reply to all the contentions of the Russians was: "Come to the open sea and fight or prepare to be towed out."

In the meanwhile the command was issued quietly to the Russian soldiers to resist the Japanese with their fists in the manner which would be shown them by their captain.

Continuing his account of the occurrence, Shestakovsky said: "The Japanese officer told me to surrender and that as a prisoner my life would be spared. This insult so stung me that I struck the Japanese before I intended to. I was afraid that the explosive to blow up our vessel had not yet been prepared. My blow knocked the lieutenant overboard. In going he dragged me with him. He fell into his small boat alongside, while I fell into the water. I clung to his throat and pummelled him until my hold was broken."

The crew of the Ryeshitelni meanwhile had begun fighting with the Japanese sailors, who used their rifles and bayonets. The fighting men scuffled over the deck and fell overboard in struggling pairs after the example accidentally set by their captain. Shestakovsky was shot at four times while in the water and received a deep wound in the right leg.

There were 51 Russian officers and men on board the Ryeshitelni and 35 have been accounted for. A number of the Japanese attackers also are believed to have perished.

Being unable to regain the deck or his ship, Shestakovsky swam toward a nearby junk, from which he was driven away by blows with a boathook. He remained in the water for 50 minutes, swimming in spite of his wound, and was finally picked up by one of the three boats sent out by the Haiyung. Captain Ching cared for the Russian captain and two of his lieutenants in his own cabin. The Russian sailors rescued by the boats from the Haiyung exchanged their drenched clothing for the uniforms of Chinese sailors, in which garb they were brought ashore to the Russian consulate.

Before leaving Chefoo Commander Fujimoto sent an outline report of the occurrences of the night to the Japanese consul here. This report differs from that of the press only in that it does not say that the Japanese fired at the Russian soldiers while the latter were in the water. It adds that the commander was acting under his admiral's orders to fight or capture the Ryeshitelni.

Captain Shestakovsky is unable to explain why his vessel was not sunk by the explosives made for that purpose. He declares that he is disgraced, although the Russian refugees here insist that he is a hero.

The nature of Shestakovsky's mission to Chefoo is not known, although it is doubtless important. During the interview with the Russian captain regarding the capture of his vessel it was inferred that plans and important papers were burned on board the Ryeshitelni before the Japanese boarding party arrived.

Not Regarded as Serious

Berlin, Aug. 13.—Chancellor Von Buelow, who came to Berlin to see Emperor William, returned yesterday afternoon to Norderney island, where he is spending his vacation. This is interpreted to mean that he does not regard the arrival of Russian warships at Kiaochou as being a serious incident.

Washington, Aug. 13.—The Japanese legation has received a revised list of casualties on the Japanese side from the battle of Chingjiu March 28, up to and including the battle of Yangtzling, Aug. 1, showing the total estimated casualties to be 12,055.

Courting Trouble With England

Tangier, Aug. 13.—Hamet Jaiya, principal secretary to the Moroccan minister of war, has been arrested and imprisoned here and his goods confiscated under orders of the sultan. Jaiya is a British subject and European residents say that life and property are unsafe. The British legation has strongly protested to the Moroccan government, but so far the protest has been entirely ignored.

Weekly Trade Review

New York, Aug. 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that better trade reported during the past week is most encouraging. Two labor controversies are particularly harmful. Despite some injury to spring wheat the agricultural prospect is very bright, while higher prices promise to neutralize the effect of such loss in quantity as occurred.

ROSEBUD LAND LOTTERY

Incidents of Distributing the Prizes at Chamberlain, S. D.

SOLDIER WINNER OF THE FIRST.

Facetious Crowd Cheered Wildly For Private William McCormick of the Second Nebraska Regiment—Greeted Anna M. Adden of Dentonville, Kan., as "the First Lady of the Rosebud."

Here are some incidents of the Rosebud reservation lottery personally conducted with such eminent success by Uncle Sam and recently closed in the frontier South Dakota village of Chamberlain, says a special correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Twenty-four hundred farms were the prizes. When the big churn had been whirled for five minutes and the names thoroughly mixed, and a boy, chosen by lot from a list of eight, had drawn the first name and it was found to be that of William McCormick, the crowd cheered wildly for the man who had been presented a fortune of $15,000. McCormick is a veteran of the Spanish-American war who served gallantly in the famous Second Nebraska regiment. By drawing the first number of the 107,000 in the big lottery he earned first choice of the 2,500 quarter section farms to be given away.

The method of drawing was simple enough. One hundred and seven thousand envelopes, perfectly plain, were received in their original boxes. The name and address of one applicant for lands written on a card were placed inside of each envelope, which was then sealed. The envelopes with these inclosures were then replaced in the original boxes and these sealed and numbered consecutively.

The big "churn" in which the envelopes were to be mixed was simply a solid wooden box 2½ feet square and 10 feet long. It was not nearly large enough to hold all the envelopes, so the numbers of the sealed boxes were placed in a hat and carefully mixed in full view of the assembled multitude. Then numbers were drawn from that representing enough boxes of envelopes to fill the churn, and the boxes with the corresponding numerals were promptly dumped into the churn.

The churning process consisted in agitating the big box, which was hung on a swivel, by turning a crank. This was kept up for five minutes and then the drawing began. The crowd was full of advice and facetiousness.

Commissioner Richards of the general land office, his assistants, Judge Wakeley of Omaha and P. F. Sherman of Sioux Falls, and several others occupied places on the platform. The crowd could see everything. Eight boys, all living in Chamberlain, had been selected to do the drawing for the first day. They were Arthur Rogers, James Stevens, Edgar Clute, Lionel Grandpre, Clinton Laughlin, Lucky Somers, Lucien Baker and David Ganaway. When Ganaway's name was announced the crowd thought it was Gassaway.

"Well, make him vice president," yelled somebody, and the crowd roared.

"Lucky's the boy for my money," roared a man with a fog horn voice, when Lucky Somers' name was called, and he was, for he drew the privilege of taking the first name from the box. When the box stopped revolving after the churning process, Lucky stepped forward, and there was silence at once. The cover was removed from the small opening through which the envelopes were to be taken out, and Lucky, standing on a big box so that he would reach to the top of the churn, inserted his hand (he could not see inside) and drew out an envelope. He handed it to Judge Wakeley, who examined it and passed it to Mr. Sherman, and he in turn to Commissioner Richards. The crowd was holding its breath. There really didn't seem any excuse for men moving so deliberately.

"Hurry up, please, I want to get a turnip crop in," shouted a pale faced man at the front of the stand. His voice was thin and piping, and in the tense silence the entire crowd heard him distinctly. The commissioner had just turned to the crowd to make his announcement, but the crowd had a new idea. The thin man's anxiety to get to his farm and plant his turnips before it should be too late carried the throng off its feet, and in an instant it was shouting with laughter. But the interest was too earnest for this to last long. Commissioner Richards held up his hand for order, and he got it.

"William McCormick, whose last postoffice address was Lancaster, Pa., draws the first chance," he announced. The crowd was not pleased at first. Nebraska, South Dakota and Iowa furnished three-fourths of the applicants, and here came a man all the way from Pennsylvania to draw the $15,000 first prize, for the first quarter section, sure to be used for a town site, was figured easily worth this sum.

"Who is he?" demanded somebody after a spasmodic effort at cheers had resulted unhappily. The commissioner had turned to the record books and had the information at hand in a moment. "He's twenty-seven years old, five feet six inches high, unmarried, was born in Philadelphia and served in the Second Nebraska in the Philippines during the Spanish war," called out the commissioner.

That made it all right. The winner was a Nebraskan and a soldier of the famous Second Nebraska that saw more hard fighting and earned more glory than perhaps any other volunteer regiment that was sent to the Philippines. The Nebraskans in the crowd started the cheering and everybody joined.

"We'll marry him to the first girl that comes out of the box," yelled a man with a voice like the angel Gabriel.

The crowd remembered it. The drawing went on with only abated interest. The numbers came rapidly and were announced. Talus Rugge was No. 2. His address was announced as Tea, S. D. "He'll want something stronger than tea when he gets the news," piped the humorist with the thin face and falsetto voice.

H. Wesley Brown, Dakota City, Neb., was No. 3. The crowd disapproved of his parting his name in the middle and made sundry jocular remarks. When the drawing had reached No. 24 the first lady's name was down.

"Anna M. Adden, Dentonville, Kan.," announced Commissioner Richards.

"Come on, Billy McCormick. Here's yer superior two-thirds!" came up from the thin man's falsetto.

"First lady of the Rosebud," volunteered another.

"Send for the preacher!" from the megaphone.

"We'll run 'em both off the reservation if they don't invite us to the wedding," announced another.

Miss Adden was cheered lustily, and that evening the health of "the first lady of the Rosebud" was drunk all over town.

Iowans, South Dakotans and Nebraskans will divide honors about equally. They will get about 80 per cent of all the lands.

After it was all over the land office clerks made the discovery that they had given an erroneous residence for McCormick, and instead of living in Pennsylvania he was a resident of Lancaster county, Neb. The announcement was made on the evening of the first day of the drawing, and the westerners were greatly pleased to learn that after all a real westerner had drawn the big prize.

The town which will get more than any other is Sioux City, Ia., because it is near and almost 20 per cent of its 50,000 people registered.

SUN PARLORS A FAD.

New Yorkers Building Them on Roof Tops.

Believing that untold good will derive from them, many wealthy New Yorkers are having the roofs of their residences equipped with sun parlors, and it is thought that in time many less wealthy persons will be able to spend three or four hours a day during the winter months in the warm rays of the sun, says the New York Journal.

The first New Yorker to inaugurate these sun bath parlors is Robert H. McCurdy, manager of the Mutual Life Insurance company. He has ordered plans from his architects for a sun bathing parlor on the roof of his fire proof residence at 11 East Ninth street, and it is expected that it will be finished some time in December.

The parlor will have a southwestern exposure, and the McCurdy family will have the benefit of Old Sol for many hours during a bright day.

F. W. Winterburn, a representative of Mr. McCurdy's architects, said:

"Physicians have always recommended plenty of sun during the winter months, especially for people who are slaves to any pulmonary disease. A few hours in the sun each day will do untold good to anybody, whether sick or well. The health resorts of Lakewood and Colorado are sought just for the warm rays of the sun. Why can't we have health resorts of our own right here in New York? The sun is the same in all parts of the world when remitted through glass, and there is no reason why the sun in New York won't be as beneficial to lung diseased people."

"PAP WILL BEAT PARKER."

Archie Roosevelt Says His Father Knows Enough Not to Lose.

Archie Roosevelt, son of President Roosevelt, was in Indianapolis an hour or two the other night en route to St. Louis. As he stood at the gate entrance awaiting his train's departure some one asked him why his father did not come with him, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Because he is too busy getting ready to be the next president," he replied.

A gentleman then said to him that Parker would occupy the White House after next March.

The boy laughed as he replied, "Well, now, we have lived there for several years, and I guess my pap knows enough not to let Mr. Parker beat him out this time."

Object of Old Maids' Club.

At the annual meeting of the Old Maids' league of Bristol, Wis., held the other night, four of the leading young women of the village were elected to membership, says a Kenosha (Wis.) dispatch to the Chicago Inter Ocean. Before they were admitted to the mysteries of the organization each of the girls was forced to take an oath that she would use all honorable means to become a wife during the next twelve months. The girls initiated under this original obligation were Misses Lulu Rowbottom, Lydia Curtis and Jessie and Jennie Garland. It is claimed that none of the girls is engaged to be married, but the work of the league has been so successful in the past that wagers of two to one are made that all the girls will be married before the end of the year.

A Park at Virginia's "Bloody Angle."

A syndicate of northern capitalists has purchased the McCoul and Fairchilds farms near Fredericksburg, Va., which form a portion of the battlefield of Spottsylvania Courthouse and on which the celebrated "bloody angle" is situated. They propose, says the Baltimore Sun, to restore the breastworks, erect suitable monuments and convert the property into a park.

Mr. Miggs' Mitigator

By CAROLYN WELLS

Copyright, 1903, by Carolyn Wells

EZRA MIGGS, as any one might surmise from his name, was an inventor, and if his name is unknown to scientific fame it is only because his inventions were of that indefinite sort which are interesting in the extreme, but which never seem to be of any practical use.

His experiments, which were often conducted before large and intelligent audiences, were always successful and as phenomenal and marvelous as those of liquid air, but absolutely useless.

But at last Ezra Miggs invented something which he felt sure must be a boon to all mankind from Indus to the pole, and in the exuberance of his joy and satisfaction over his new achievement he ran at once to the home of his fiancee, Miss Mabel Hooper, to describe the new invention to her and to enjoy her loving and enthusiastic congratulation, for as Miss Hooper was a sympathetic young woman and had never been engaged before she took a deep and absorbing, if somewhat ignorant, interest in all Mr. Miggs' inventions and looked upon her betrothed as something better than a Franklin and a little wiser than a Lavoisier.

And so it happened that when Mr. Miggs burst enthusiastically into her presence exclaiming, "My dear Mabel, I've invented a mitigator!" she beamed gladly and responded:

"Oh, Ezra, I so hoped you would!"

"You see, Mabel," he went on, "the usefulness of an invention depends entirely on the number of people it affects. Now, is there any one in the whole world who is not affected by excessive heat or cold?"

"No one," said Miss Mabel in a tone that would have carried conviction to the most bigoted controversialist.

"Then," said Mr. Miggs triumphantly, "if I mitigate the fierceness of winter's cold and of summer heat, which by my new invention I have proved myself capable of doing, am I or am I not benefiting mankind to a vast, an incalculable extent?"

"You are!" said Miss Hooper as fervently as before. And she gazed adoringly at her lover as though she would look through his eyes into the master mind behind them.

"And the machine," went on Mr. Miggs, appreciating her adoration, but unable during the stress of his present intellectual excitement to respond to it, "is so small, so convenient and so accurate in its perfect mechanism that I may already look upon it as a practical and therefore financial success."

"And when may I see it tested?" asked Miss Hooper, who had learned by experience that this question was now due.

"Whenever you like," replied Mr. Miggs radiantly. "Shall we say tomorrow?"

"Tomorrow is just the day! I am giving an afternoon tea, and as the weather is so bitterly cold I feared the attendance would be small. But if you could—well—that is—how does the invention work?"

"Oh, it is applicable to all areas or localities. Suppose I hang it on your front veranda tomorrow afternoon. It will automatically mitigate the cold in the atmosphere and the air will become warmer and the thermometer rise as if a new sun had diffused a gentle radiance all about."

"Oh, that will be fine! And then all my friends will come, especially Miss Boynton, who never ventures out in cold weather, and I want her particularly because she will bring her brother, and men are always scarce at a tea."

About 3 o'clock the next day Mr. Ezra Miggs hung a small box not unlike a pocket camera on the outside wall of Miss Hooper's house.

That young woman watched the performance with interest and gazed in silent awe as Mr. Miggs adjusted dials and set registers among the complicated machinery.

At last the inventor declared the mitigator was in working order, and he and Miss Hooper went back into the house to await results.

It was an unusually cold day, with a fierce northeast wind which blew like liquid ice and left the atmosphere raw and penetrating.

After waiting half an hour Mr. Miggs proudly escorted Miss Hooper out of doors again, fully confident of the success of his invention. Nor was he disappointed. The air, though still cold, was soft and pleasant; the wind had calmed down to a brisk breeze, and it was simply a fresh, bracing winter day.

"Is it warm enough?" asked Mr. Miggs anxiously. "We don't want to overdo it and get July weather, you know."

"It is fine!" cried Miss Hooper, clapping her pretty hands. "And it is just as I like it. But Miss Boynton is so delicate and so afraid of a chill! Suppose we let it get a trifle warmer."

"Very well," assented Mr. Miggs. And they returned to the house, and then the guests began to arrive for the tea.

"How warm it's growing?" and "How the weather has moderated!" exclaimed every one as they entered. And Miss Hooper smiled with inward satisfaction as she greeted Miss Boynton and her handsome brother.

But as the Hooper furnace had been urged to its utmost during the frigid morning hours it had now reached a point where it was impossible to check it. The rooms were growing unbearably warm, and Miss Hooper called Ezra Miggs to her and begged him to stop mitigating the cold weather or they would all be baked alive.

"Why, Mabel, dear," he replied, "my machine mitigates heat as well as cold. I will bring it inside, reverse the indicators, and soon it will mitigate the heat of these rooms to a pleasant temperature. Have no fear. I will watch it carefully and not allow the house to grow too cold."

The mitigator worked like a charm. Hung unnoticeably on the drawing room wall, it soon reduced the temperature of the house to the most desirable degree, and all were comfortable once more—all, that is, save Ezra Miggs.

Although his invention was proving itself a marvel of practical usefulness, he was plunged into depths of deepest woe, and this because Mr. Boynton, whom Miss Hooper had expressed such anxiety to have present, was monopolizing the attention of that charming lady to a marked degree. He hung over her chair and plied her with merry banter, to which she responded with coy and bewitching demeanor.

As Mr. Miggs watched them he felt his angry passions rise, and in defiance of Dr. Watts' dictum his hands felt evilly motioned toward Mr. Boynton's deep and expressive eyes.

But Ezra Miggs was not an inventive genius for nothing. He knew that he must not give way to his temper and make an exhibition of himself in a lady's drawing room, and yet the fires of jealousy and anger surging up in his heart were well nigh uncontrollable. So like a flash he conceived the clever idea of mitigating his own fury with his own mitigator.

The rooms, now at a proper temperature, no longer needed the assistance of the machine, and Ezra, without attracting attention, took it from the wall and placed it, with the cooling adjustment still going, in his inside breast pocket.

The effect, though gradual, began at once, and after a few moments Mr. Miggs could look calmly on while his betrothed flirted desperately with another and a handsomer man. This was well, and, able now to rejoice fully in the success of his great invention, Ezra Miggs gave himself up to the gayety of the occasion and chatted entertainingly.

After the tea was over and the last guest had shaken hands and gone out into the pleasant, balmy dusk Mr. Miggs, by virtue of his presumptive connection with the family, stayed behind to dinner.

He was enthusiastic over the virtues of his mitigator, and Miss Mabel was even more flattering than usual, for she knew that she had neglected Ezra during the afternoon and felt a trifle guilty.

But for a wonder Mr. Miggs paid little attention to her kindly speeches and seemed more interested in conversing with her father and mother.

Miss Mabel was a little annoyed at this; but, still remembering Philip Boynton, she redoubled her efforts to be fascinatingly attractive. To no avail, however, for, though Ezra answered her with utmost politeness, he seemed to have no especial regard for her.

Later in the evening the young couple found themselves alone in the dimly lighted music room.

"I can't bear it, Ezra!" said Miss Hooper, almost sobbing, as she flung her fluffy pompadour against his gardenia. "What has changed you so? Don't you love me any more?"

Ezra Miggs started as a man who has suddenly awakened to a fact.

"Why, Mabel," he said, "I don't believe I do. I can't explain it, but somehow I don't feel the slightest affection for you. I admire you, of course; I recognize your beauty and grace, but I must confess I don't love you."

"Oh," wailed Miss Hooper, "it's all because of that horrid Philip Boynton! I wish he hadn't come! I wish—I wish I were dead!"

"No, Mabel, no," said Mr. Miggs, smoothing her hair gently; "no, it isn't because of Mr. Boynton. I know it isn't, and I'll tell you how I know."

Mabel listened to the account of how Mr. Miggs' jealous rage was lessened and finally extinguished by his wonderful mitigator, and as the narrative neared its end she raised her head with a sudden inspiration.

"Ezra Miggs," she cried, "where is that miserable mitigator?"

"Here," he answered, slapping his breast pocket. And with a mad dive Miss Hooper extricated it and waved it aloft.

"I see it all!" she exclaimed. "The horrid, horrid thing! It is this that, resting against your heart, has mitigated your love for me! But it shall never do so again!" And, throwing the delicately wrought machine on the floor, she brought down her Cuban heel upon it with all the precision and muscular force of an expert in physical culture.

Ezra Miggs looked dazed at first; but, relieved from the influence of the machine, his affection was returning with unmitigated fervor, and he clasped Miss Hooper to his heart with no words but those of forgiveness and love.

Swans' Eggs and Thunder.

A beautiful white swan sat patiently on her nest in a zoo.

"She's a-settin'," her keeper said. "There's seven eggs under her, and they'll all be ready to hatch out by the time the next thunderstorm comes up."

"Thunderstorm?" said the visitor. "What has a thunderstorm got to do with it?"

"It'll hatch out the eggs," the keeper explained. "Swans' eggs are so bloomin' hard that nothin' short of a good clap of thunder will burst 'em. It's a well understood fact among naturalists that young swans are never hatched except during thunderstorms. Did you ever examine a swan's egg? Why, hang it, it's as hard as a rock!"

Considerably impressed, the visitor sought out the superintendent of the zoo.

"Your bird keeper," he said, "tells me that swans' eggs are so hard that it takes a thunderclap to hatch them. Is this true?"

"It is a tradition," the superintendent said gently. "Many persons think it true. You and I, however, would just call it a tradition—an odd, pleasant, interesting tradition."—Washington Post.

Ceremony of Introduction.

There can be no question as to the safeguard thrown around society generally by the ceremony of introduction. The man or woman of the world who has become possessed of the proper savior faire may speak to whom he or she pleases, because it is never his or her pleasure to speak to the wrong person, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

But the introduction is an essential, and the introducer should be held responsible. Nothing so evidences the proper knowledge of the correct as one's way of introducing—the younger to the older, the maid to the matron, the man to the lady. These are correct as well as that the distinguished guest should always have others presented to him or her, not he presented to them.

Names should always be most distinctly pronounced, as much embarrassment results and sometimes great mistakes. It is pleasant to mention a mutual acquaintance also in making introductions.

JAILS IN JAPAN.

Discipline Is Military In Form, but Reformatory In Spirit.

A Japanese prison is thus described: "Imagine a park or garden in the Japanese style, with dwarf trees, surrounded by a hedge instead of a wall. In this park one sees a group of Japanese houses like those occupied by the peasants. The prisoners are all at work, proportioned to their physical ability. Some are thrashing and grinding rice. Others are weaving coarse cloth of a dark red color of which the prison uniforms are made. The old and infirm are separating leaves of paper. All of them receive a percentage of their earnings. The younger prisoners are in school. The discipline is military in form, but in its spirit reformatory. There are few evasions, notwithstanding the ease with which they could be effected. One reason for this is the efficiency of the Japanese police, which is said to be the best in the world. The prisoners are divided into three grades and are differently fed, according as they are idle and refractory, amenable to discipline or exceptionally well behaved. The only other punishment is solitary confinement in a sort of dungeon, not exceeding five days. No prisoner may be discharged, however short his term of sentence, unless his family or friends assume responsibility for him. The result has been the organization of a large number of prisoners' aid societies."

FEVER HEAT.

The Reason Some Fruits Have the Effect of Cooling the Blood.

In health the temperature of the blood is constant, and even when spots and rashes appear on the skin there is no departure from the normal temperature unless there is a cause for fever, such as blood poisoning, the invasion of some microbe or serious disturbance of the nervous system. In fevers, when the temperature of the blood is raised, vegetables are never given, as they would not cool the blood, but might help to heat it.

Some fruits have cooling properties, as they contain citric acid, and this forms citrates in the blood and increases the perspiration. In serious fevers, however, it is much safer to give measured quantities of citrates to produce this effect than to trust to the uncertain action of fruit.

Fruit and fresh vegetables are antiscorbutics—that is to say, they are apposed to scurvy. The cause of this disease is not clearly understood, but it is certainly due to an absence of these wholesome constituents from the diet. The flushing of the skin, with spots and rashes, popularly called "heating of the blood," is relieved and effete matter is eliminated by their use, hence the popular phrase that they cool the blood.

SOAP BUBBLES.

The Method Newton Adopted In Measuring These Thin Films.

Sir Isaac Newton studied the colored rings in soap bubbles, which appear white at first and then, as the bubble is blown out, brilliant iridescent colors appear in zones around the summit till it becomes black and bursts.

These films Newton succeeded in measuring by their color, producing them by a plano convex lens on plate glass. At the point of contact was a black spot with some six or seven rings of light and dark colors alternately. The thicknesses of the dark rings he found proportional to the numbers 0, 2, 4, 6, and of the bright rings proportional to 1, 3, 5. The thickness of a sky blue film was found to be two-millionths of an inch; of orange red, eight; of violet, eleven; of green, fifteen; of purple, twenty-one, and of yellow, twenty-seven-millionths of an inch.

Messrs. Rucker and Reinold more recently confirmed this by measuring black soap films, which they find average three or four millionths of an inch. This, then, is a measure of the depth of water and the particle of soap which together make up the soap bubble film.

A Pretty Name For a Girl.

"You didn't think of the work we have to do when you christened it," said the Ebbew Vale magistrate's clerk wearily on Saturday when an applicant for a certificate of exemption from vaccination stated that his child's name was Caereiraelbbwyneth.

The Applicant—Can't you spell it?

The Clerk—I may get at it if you give me time. Is it a boy or a girl?

The Applicant—A girl.

"What is the meaning of the name?"

"I will tell you when I have more time."

A Welsh minister in court explained that the literal meaning of the name was "snow lover."—London Mail.

A Trick of the Trade.

Many of the local curiosity shops planted in the back streets of most county and country towns are simply kept up by large London firms who, from a prolonged study of human nature, have discovered that people who are shy of buying old furniture or old silver in Bond street or Piccadilly are ready and eager purchasers of precisely the same objects, at a rather higher price, when they come upon them in the back streets of a country town.—English Country Gentleman.

His Scenery.

Comedian—So our manager has been sick. What did the doctor say? Soubrette—Said he needed a change of scenery. Comedian—H'm! The doctor must have seen the show.—Philadelphia Record.

He Was Sincere.

Friend—What did he say to you when he proposed to you? Miss Rox—He said life without me meant nothing. Friend—He was sincere in that. That's just what his possessions amount to.

New Advertisements Today.

D. E. Wadsworth & Co.—Closing Notice.

Lost—Roll Bank Bills.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Wollaston friends of Miss Helen Farwell are sorry to learn of her recent severe accident at Shirley.

The house at 345 Washington street, formerly occupied by Mrs. Joseph Makin has been rented to Lieut. Commander Gow of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co.

The reunion of the Nye Family Association, of which William L. Nye is president, and Mrs. Henry Alden Belchcher of Randolph the secretary, will hold its annual reunion at Sandwich, Aug. 17-19.

Pettingill Agency.

The advertising agency of "Pettingill" which for the last decade has been located at 22 School street, Boston, removed last week to commodious offices in the Tremont building. Where the agency will now devote its endeavors to every phase of advertising—newspapers, out-door display, street cars, circulars and booklets, so as to be in a position to take charge of each customer's whole advertising and give him an individual advertising department.

Houghs Neck and Boston.

It is possible that very few of our readers know that they can have a delightful sail between Houghs Neck and Boston for fifteen cents. It is a nice trip of about 50 minutes among the islands in Boston harbor, and so near shore that no one is seasick. One can go from any part of Quincy to the Neck for five cents, and from there to Boston for fifteen; making a very pleasing and refreshing trip for twenty cents. Cheaper than staying at home and paying the doctor. Take a trip once a week and enjoy yourself.

Inconsiderate.

The Proprietor (to lion tamer, who is being rather badly mauled)—Hi there! Is that the way you look after my interests? Fancy giving a sensational turn like that when there's nobody in the place to see it.

A Helping Hand.

"What are you standing there for? Don't you see I'm going to hit the ball?"

"You've missed it so often I thought I'd show you where it is."—New York Evening Journal.

BRAINTREE.

Leo Brett and Louis Howland returned last Saturday from a three week's fishing excursion on Damariscotta Lake, Maine, sunburned and happy.

Walter Howland, Irving Stoddard, Edward Cuff and Elihu Oliver left last Sunday bright and early for two weeks of recreation at Plymouth.

Mrs. C. G. Richards of Boston formerly of South Braintree was the guest of relatives in town several days this week.

Camp 32 Sons of Veterans have received an invitation from the Woman's Relief Corps 96 to attend the Woman's camp fire at Mechanics hall during the G. A. R. encampment.

Miss Flora Dyer who has been visiting her mother Mrs. Samuel Dyer of Washington street has returned to her home in Westboro.

Albert Qualey, Harry Fish and Alfred Clark started Sunday in the gasoline launch, Helen, for Provincetown. They made stops at Scituate and Plymouth. Mr. J. R. Qualey went to Provincetown Thursday via steamer to return with the young men.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather of Wednesday evening about thirty gathered at the home of Rev. Mr. Stover for the "Lawn Social" which had been announced for that time and enjoyed the evening in conversation, music, games, etc. Ice cream and cake were served, and as the party separated they felt that the only drawback had been the dampness of the atmosphere which prevented the free use of the boats and other out-of-door enjoyments.

The Christian Endeavorers will meet as usual at the Union church Sunday evenings at 6 o'clock during the month of August. All other services are discontinued through the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos J. Loring returned from a three weeks' outing at Fort Point Monday. Mrs. Loring is entertaining Miss Margaret Looney.

Francis Gardner of Elm Knoll road was suddenly taken ill Saturday afternoon at his home, but at present writing, although confined to his room is improving a little.

Dam will replace Ryan as pitcher for Braintrees in the game this afternoon with the Boylstons. There will be several changes in the local nine. Dam pitching for Plymouth last Saturday struck out 15 men.

Miss Elsie Stoddard who has served the public so satisfactorily in the Braintree post office severs her connections there today and Miss Eva Moir takes her place.

Mr. and Mrs. Arza H. Keith and Warren B. Keith attended the twelfth annual family reunion of the Torrey family held at Easton on Thursday. Warren B. Keith was elected vice president of the association for the ensuing year.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Watkins, Miss Amy Watkins, Mrs. A. C. Joyce and daughter Lucille have returned from a few weeks' outing at Houghs Neck.

Lydia Savory Gammons, a well known resident of this town for several years, died at the home of her son, I. Wendell Gammons last Wednesday evening, after an illness of nearly a year. The deceased was well liked by those who knew her, and had the love and respectful kindness of two sons and a daughter, who with numerous other relatives mourn her departure. The funeral services were held Friday noon from her late residence and the interment was at Mount Auburn cemetery in Cambridge. A beautiful assortment of floral tributes manifested to a slight extent the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Officer James R. Qualey put in twenty-four hours of strenuous labor beginning Saturday evening August 6, at six o'clock. He was first called upon to grapple for the body of Mr Rizzi, who was drowned Saturday at Rosedale lake while in swimming. After seven hours of constant dragging and three hours waiting for the arrival of an undertaker Mr. Qualey returned to his home. Sunday afternoon he rescued a valuable dog from drowning off Weymouth shore Sunday evening about 9.30 o'clock Mr. Qualey was aroused from his sleep to help get a man out from under a trolley car. The man had his feet injured and was cared for by local doctors assisted by the officer.

Together with all the flats adjoining and appurtenant to the parcel above described.

The two foregoing parcels are two of the three parcels described in Certificate of Title No. 108, issued by the Registry District of Norfolk County, Massachusetts, dated January 13, 1904, and recorded in Norfolk County Registry District Court of Land Registration, Book I, page 108, the second of the parcels described in said certificate having been released from said mortgage or deed of trust. Reference is made to said certificate and to the plans filed therewith for further description of said parcels. Said two parcels above described comprise the premises decribed as parcels numbered 2 to 6 inclusive in said mortgage or deed of trust of December 6, 1902, parcel numbered 1 in said mortgage being the parcel released as above stated.

Parcel No. 3. A certain parcel of land, situated on the easterly side of Commercial street in Braintree in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing on land now or late of John B. Allen on said Commercial street, and running northerly on said street to land now or late of Joshua Wilkins; thence turning and running easterly on land of said Wilkins by a stone wall to a junction of said stone wall with another stone wall; thence turning and running southerly by land formerly of Barnabas T. Loring to land of said Allen by said last mentioned wall; thence turning and running first westerly, then southerly, then westerly, then southerly, then westerly all on land now or late of the said Allen by stone walls to the point of beginning, and containing twenty (20) acres more or less.

Parcel No. 4. Also a certain parcel of land situated on the westerly side of said Commercial street in said Braintree and opposite the last described tract and bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing on land now or late of Robert Dickey on said Commercial street and running southerly on said Commercial street to Adams street; thence turning and running northwesterly on said Adams street to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the Fore River Ship & Engine Co., by deed dated January 7, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running northwesterly and bounded southwesterly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Co., three hundred fifty-three (353) feet; thence turning and running easterly and bounded northerly by said land now or late of Dickey to said Commercial street at the point of beginning. The two last described parcels of land are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by Francis M. Edwards, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said deeds, Book 965, page 134.

Parcel No. 5. Also a certain parcel of land situated in Braintree, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the southerly corner thereof on Elm street, at land conveyed by Birney C. Parsons to George E. Bruorton, by deed dated November 3, 1903, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 960, page 507, and running northwesterly along the said premises conveyed by said Parsons as aforesaid, seven hundred forty-two (742) feet, more or less, to land now or late of Mrs. Austin White; thence running northeasterly along said land now or late of said White, one hundred twenty-two (122) feet, more or less, to an angle; thence running southeasterly and bounded northeasterly by said land of White, about one hundred twelve (112) feet to an angle; thence turning and running northeasterly and bounded northwesterly by said land of White, about eighty (80) feet to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running southerly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company, about six hundred and sixty (660) feet, to said Elm street; thence turning and running along said Elm street to the point of beginning.

Parcel No. 6. Also a certain parcel of land situated in said Braintree, bounded northeasterly by said Commercial street; southeasterly by a private way formerly Elm street, which private way leads from said Elm street to said Commercial street; westerly by land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; northwesterly by land now or formerly of said White. The two parcels last above described are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by said Birney C. Parsons, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 136.

Parcel No. 7. A certain piece or parcel of land situated on the northeasterly side of Howard avenue, in that part of said Quincy known as Quincy Neck bounded northwesterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of George J. Sargent, five hundred and seventy-one (571) feet, northeasterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of heirs of Noah Bosworth, one hundred and forty and four-tenths (140.4) feet, southeasterly by the land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of Malchionda, five hundred and sixty-one (561) feet, and southwesterly by Howard avenue, one hundred and forty-one (141) feet, being premises formerly of Noah Bosworth, deceased.

Parcel No. 8. All the line of railroad of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, extending from and including the yard of said Company in said Quincy to the line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in said Braintree, together with the land appurtenant and adjacent thereto belonging to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, and all rights and easements appurtenant thereto or used in connection therewith, and particularly the rights granted to the Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Kerby Stevens and Frederick H. Allen by deeds dated respectively December 31, 1903, and January 15, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 25, 1904, —subject, however, to the rights granted by said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to said Kerby Stevens by deed dated December 31, 1903, recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 26, 1904.

A portion of the premises to be conveyed is subject to a mortgage from Charles W. Pike to Albert H. Davenport dated November 14, 1902, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 934 page 545.

The conveyance will also be made subject to an easement granted by the Fore River Ship and Engine Company to the Old Colony Street Railway Company by deed dated January 30, 1904, to erect, operate and maintain upon certain terms, conditions, reservations and exceptions a pole line for the transmission of electricity and for telephones for the private use of said Railway Company along the route described as follows:—

Beginning at the South Shore Branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in Braintree, Massachusetts, thence extending northwesterly over land conveyed to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Sidney Coolidge by deed dated January 7th, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 965, page 137, to Adams street; thence crossing said Adams street and continuing northwesterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Elm street; thence crossing said Elm street and continuing northerly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Commercial street; thence crossing said Commercial street and continuing northeasterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to land now or formerly of one Patch.

The following parcel, which has been released from the lien of said mortgage or deed of trust, by instrument of release dated June 4, 1904, will be excepted from the conveyance:—

A certain parcel beginning on Commercial street at land now or late of John W. Ratcliffe and running westerly on said land one hundred and eight [108] feet to a stake on the margin of Factory Pond so called; thence turning and running northerly and northwesterly on a curved line along the margin of said pond four hundred and five [405] feet more or less to a stake on the margin of said pond situated twenty-five [25] feet from the centre line of the Fore River Railroad as now laid out; thence turning and running northeasterly eighty-six feet three inches [86 ft. 3 in.] to a stake on Adams street situated ninety-four [94] feet more or less from the center line of said railroad where it crosses the southerly side of Adams street; thence turning and running southeasterly on Adams street to Commercial street and southerly on Commercial street a total distance of four hundred ninety feet four inches [490 ft. 4 in.] to the point of beginning.

The conveyance will include, in addition to the property, rights, privileges and franchises above described, any property, rights, privileges and franchises not herein described which may at the time of sale be covered by said orginal mortgage or deed of trust of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company or any indenture to the Adams Trust Company supplemental thereto. The conveyance to the purchaser will be made without covenants, express or implied. Article XIII of said mortgage or deed of trust provides that said Fore River Ship & Engine Company will, upon request of the purchaser at foreclosure sale, make, execute and deliver to said purchaser a good and sufficient deed or deeds to confirm the title in said purchaser.

The said property will be sold as an entirety to the highest bidder, subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments and other liens, if any. No bid will be received from any person who shall not first deposit with the auctioneer, as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, the sum of Twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. Deposits so received from any unsuccessful bidders will be returned to them when the property shall be struck off, and the deposit so received from any successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price of the property sold. On the acceptance of any bid the purchaser shall forthwith pay to the auctioneer in addition to the amount of the deposit qualifying him to bid as above provided, the sum of Twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. The purchaser shall within ten days from the date of sale pay to the Adams Trust Company as Trustee, on account of the purchase price, an additional sum sufficient to make his total payments equal to (50) per cent. of such purchase price, and the balance of the purchase price shall be paid and the property transferred on or before the expiration of thirty days from date of sale. In case any bidder shall fail to make good his bid upon its acceptance, or shall fail after its acceptance to make the further payments hereinbefore required, then his right to receive and purchase the property shall at the option of the said Trust Company at once cease, and said Trust Company shall have the right to proceed at once to re-sell the property, and all sums deposited or paid by him shall be forfeited and shall be applied to the payment of the expenses and charges in connection with the re-sale and toward making good any deficiency, loss or damage resulting from such failure and re-sale, whether arising from the delay, from the fact that the second sale is made at a less price than the first, or from any other cause, and any balance remaining shall be repaid to the defaulting bidder or purchaser. The purchaser may in making payment of the purchase money, deliver to the Trustee any of the bonds or coupons secured by said mortgage or deed of trust, said bonds or coupons to be computed at a sum equal to that which would be payable out of the net proceeds of said sale (if made for money) to the purchaser as the holder of the bonds and coupons so delivered for his share or proportion of such net proceeds.

Further information may be had on application to the undersigned or its counsel.

ADAMS TRUST COMPANY,

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

"BEYOND" AT CHICKERING HALL.

On Sept. 29th a remarkable drama of the soul entitled "Beyond" will be presented at Chickering Hall, Boston. It is the work of a famous American author whose name for the present is withheld, and it will undoubtedly prove one of the most novel and original productions of the season. "Beyond" is a drama of spiritual life. Several of its scenes are laid in space—that beautiful region beyond—where amid the drifting clouds the poet Edgar Allan Poe meets his loved Lenore. The subject is one that has been treated with the greatest delicacy, and the most exquisite imagery has been employed. "Beyond" will be presented at Chickering Hall on a most elaborate scale, with a large company, magnificent scenic equipment, special lighting effects, etc. The engagement will continue for a number of weeks, with matinees Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

BOSTON THEATRE.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer," the great New England drama, which has continued for the past two seasons one of the most successful attractions before the public and has steadily maintained its place at the head of the list of all rural dramas, will soon make its annual visit to the Boston theatre where all its Boston engagements have been so auspiciously played. In fact it opens the season at this theatre on Saturday night Sept. 3, and will continue the attraction there all the following week with an extra matinee on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 5, and the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees as well as the usual evening performances.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Special arrangements have been made for the celebration of G. A. R. week at Keith's. The principal feature of the vaudeville bill will be a spectacular drilling act by a score of young men calling themselves "Boys in Blue," which has never been seen in Boston before. In addition to the fancy drill movements, there is singing and a great wall scaling finish. Other numbers for the week of Aug. 15 will be Clara Ballerini, the noted trapese performer; Carlia and Otto, German dialect comediene; Falardo, "The "The instrumental man;" Toldeo and Price, eccentric acrobats; the Celubruks, Russian national dancers, and Lyster and Cook, xylophone players and equilibrists. Many of these entertainers have never before been at Keith's. The Fadettes woman's orchestra will play a special program of national airs, and in the biograph will be motion pictures showing scenes at previous G. A. R. encampments.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

A play sure to appeal to the men of the G. A. R., Harry P. Mawson's "A Fair Rebel" has been selected as the Castle Square Theatre attraction for next week. The scenes depicted are those made familiar to the men of both armies in the Civil War toward its close and the action of the play will recall very vividly the experiences in and about Richmond on both sides of the line. The characters are strongly drawn, the situations are well planned and there is sufficient of comedy to lighten the more serious side of the play and supply the needed contrasts. Some very realistic effects will be shown in the scene in Libby prison. The usual distribution of souvenir boxes of choice chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinee.

Sewer Connections.

The following estates were connected with the public sewer last week.

J. E. Hanson, Revere road.
Peter Delorey, Broadway.
Colonial Dames, Butler road.
Warren S. Arnold, Mechanic street.
Paul Morrill, East Elm avenue.

TODAY'S COURT.

Abner Morse was fined $15 for speeding an automobile at the Blue Hills reservation.

Agnes Smith was arraigned for breaking and entering and larceny at Quincy. Case continued until next Tuesday.

The liquors seized from Benjamin C. Tirrell and Helen W. Edwards at Weymouth were forfeited.

NATION'S HEROES

Formal Opening of Grand Army Conclave at Boston

NUMEROUS ATTRACTIONS

Generous and Pleasing Program For Entertainment of Veterans, While the Gaily Decorated City Extends Warm Greetings

Boston, Aug. 15.—The national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, with its several affiliated bodies, which opened in Boston today, is expected by those who have directed the arrangements to be one of the largest and most gratifying in the recent history of G. A. R. conclaves. Such a success is anticipated for many reasons, in spite of the thinning ranks of the Grand Army, but chiefly because the city of Boston, with its abundance of historical associations and because it occupies an unique place among the world's cities, offers an added attractiveness to the thousands of people interested in the movements of the Grand Army veterans.

In connection with the meetings of the Grand Army there will be held the annual gatherings of the National Woman's Relief Corps, the National Daughters of Veterans, the National Sons of Veterans, the National Ladies' Aid society, auxillary to the Sons of Veterans, the National Ladies of the G. A. R., the National Army Nurses' association, the National Association of Naval Veterans, and the National Association of ex-Prisoners of War.

The meetings and reunions of these various organizations will extend to Saturday. The feature of the entire week will be the parade of Grand Army men tomorrow, when, it is expected, veterans variously numbered from 20,000 to 40,000 will march. Another parade of great interest was that which marked the opening of encampment week. This parade consisted of about 1000 Sons of Veterans of Massachusetts, the members of the Associations of the ex-Prisoners of War, Mexican War Veterans, the State Naval Brigade, the League of Spanish War Veterans, marines and jackies from the United States warships now in the harbor and several regimental associations. The total number which marched was about 5000.

This evening at Hotel Vendome the Woman's Relief Corps hold a reception in honor of Commander-in-Chief Black of the G. A. R. and all the members of the latter organization. In the evening also will be held a campfire by the Union ex-Prisoners of War. Tomorrow evening will come the mammoth campfire of the Grand Army in Mechanics' building. Colonel Olin will preside, and arrangements have been made to receive 10,000 people.

The chief interest surrounding the meeting of the Grand Army is that on the question of the choice of commander-in-chief for the ensuing year. For this office there are already several prominent candidates, including General Blackmar of Massachusetts, Colonel Shots of New York and Colonel Bakewell, also of the department of New York.

Other features of the encampment will be the launching of the United States training ship Cumberland on Wednesday at Charlestown, in the presence of distinguished officials, including Secretary of the Navy Morton; the carnival illumination of the Charles river at Waltham on Wednesday evening; an automobile pilgrimage to Lexington and Concord on Thursday, and an electrical parade commemorative of representative incidents in national history to be held on Thursday evening. Receptions, reunions, campfires and excursions to points made famous in history will occupy the remainder of the encampment week.

The city is extensively and beautifully decorated in honor of the occasion and the Boston common and public gardens bear electrical illuminations of unusual brilliancy and effectiveness.

FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Goblin Won in Her Class—Sail-off Necessary in Class A.

A whole sail shifting breeze greeted the Yachts of the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday for the third championship race. As a result of the race it will be necessary to hold another race to decide the championship in class A, as the Pocahontas, Neptune and Harolde have each secured a leg.

The sail off in this class will be held Saturday.

The three boats in the class, the Pocahontas Harolde, and Neptune got away in the above order, and held the same relative position throughout the race. The Harolde got first place however on time allowance.

There were but two boats in Class B, the Goblin and Sheila. It was a close race between these boats until the run home when the Goblin worked ahead and won the race and championship in her class.

The summary.

CALSS A.

Name and Owner.	Actual time h m s	Corrected time h m s
Harolde, A. B. Robbins,	1:27:54	1:06:01
Pocahontas, Dr. F. C. Merrill,	1:24:41	1:07:32
Neptune, F. C. Hallett,	1:40:07	1:17:40

Yacht Recovered—Two Arrested.

Inspector McKay had a lively race on Saturday after a boat thief, and succeeded not only in capturing the thief but he recovered the yacht as well.

The yacht, the 25 foot Mingo, owned by Dr. F. A. Locke of the Squantum club, was stolen from her moorings last Wednesday.

The matter was reported to the police and Saturday afternoon Inspector McKay while at Houghs Neck saw her. Securing the gasoline launch of Capt. W. H. Shaw, and accompanied by Janitor Pray of the Quincy Yacht club, they put out toward the Mingo.

As soon as the launch drew near those on the yacht threw the helm over and started away before the wind. The launch soon drew alongside, however, and Inspector McKay placed the occupants under arrest.

They proved to be Charles B. Locke, aged 20, an adopted son of the owner, and Alfred R. Barstow, aged 18, of Wollaston.

Young Locke is well known to the police, who have had occasion to place him under arrest on several occasions. The young men were arraigned in court.

The members of the church of the Immaculate Conception of East Weymouth held their annual picnic at New Dowers Landing on Saturday. About 1000 were present.

Yacht Capsized.

The yacht Jamaica Plain was capsized off Squantum Sunday afternoon, and the occupants Michael McManus and James Murphy had narrow escapes from drowning.

They were in the water some time before their plight became known. Their cries were however, heard by George Goff and Charles Stevenson, two campers at Dorchester, who put out in a boat and succeeded in rescuing the two men after a hard struggle. They were brought ashore at Squantum where they were resuscitated. Later they were removed to their homes. They were in the water an hour.

Emcampment Field Day.

About 200 members of the Odd Fellows emcampments from Quincy, Weymouth and Brockton were present Saturday at the annual field day which was held at Nantasket Point. Of this number fully fifty went from Quincy who went in a special car that left City Square at 1.15.

During the afternoon there was a series of sports of various kinds. In the early evening a fish dinner was served at the hotel, and the evening was spent in enjoying the various forms of amusements provided at the Point.

C. A. R. HOLIDAY.

Banks Join With the Quincy Merchants.

General Suspension of Business Tomorrow.

Giving Everybody a Chance to Witness Grand Army Parade.

The Quincy merchants were quick to respond to the suggestion of the Daily Ledger that Tuesday, Aug 16, be observed in Quincy, as well as Boston, as a holiday. Credit, however is due George H. Wilson who circulated a petition.

Several additions have been made to the list published Saturday of merchants who will close, including the banks, and City Hall, so it will be seen that the holiday will be general.

City Hall will be closed all day Tuesday and business in all departments will be suspended.

The provision stores in city square will close at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

These places of business will be closed all day:

We the undersigned, agree to close our stores Tuesday, August 16—Grand Army day:

Watch and Chain Presented.

About sixty of the many friends of Miss Levina Samuelson gave her a surprise party Saturday evening at her home on Cranch street and a very enjoyable time resulted. During the evening Ragnar Wallin gave several recitations which were received with appreciative applause. There were also songs, games of various kinds and refreshments were served.

During the evening Miss Samuelson was presented with a gold watch and chain, the presentation speech being made by Rev. John A. Bernhard. The watch which was a very handsome affair was furnished by Sandberg Bros. The committee in charge were, Miss Anna Carlson, Ida Samuelson and Anton Peterson.

"GO DO YOUR DUTY."

Dying Words of Francis L. Souther the First to Fall.

In the Quincy Patriot of June 22, 1861, will be found a tribute to Francis L. Souther of Quincy, who was killed at the battle of Big Bethel, Va., June 10, 1861. It was on April 16, of that year that President Lincoln made his first call for troops and Mr. Souther, at the age of 24 years, responded promptly with Co. H. of the Fourth Massachusetts regiment. Franklin Curtis was captain of the company, the late Edward A. Spear the first lieutenant, and Benjamin F. Meservey the second lieutenant, and Quincy young men made up the company. The regiment was under command of Abner B. Packard of Quincy, who recently passed away.

The tribute is from the pen of Judge James E. Tirrell recently deceased, the father of F. A. Tirrell, Esq., and the dying words of Francis L. Souther should be placed with those of heroes:

His country calls; he hastens to obey—
Girds on his armour, marches on his way;
Quits home and friends his duty to perform,
Leaves cooling showers to face the leaden storm.
"My country and my freedom" is his cry;
"For them I'll fight and for them will I die."
He goes to battle in his nation's cause,
To re-establish violated laws—
He meets the foe, the guns are made to bear,
And leaden hail comes whizzing through the air.
But still undaunted foremost in the ranks,
He presses on and gains the rebels' banks,—
Mounts up the parapet one among the first,
And fronts the battle when it rages worst,
On see him rush, resolved the foe to take,
Though blundering chieftains make a sad mistake;
Twice speaks his steel, twice flies the ball of death;
Two traitors must have ceased to draw their breath.
He turns again his rifle to prepare,
But lo! the shot is struck, and death is there;
He sink, he falls! his comrades lend their aid—
Hear what he says: "I die where I am laid;
"Go do your duty, be faithful to your trust;
"Let me lie here to slumber with the dust."
Thus fought, thus die he—soldier to the last.
His deeds are done and numbered with the past.
Hark! springs a whisper from the spot of earth
Wet by his blood—hear as it gushes forth;
What word is that? Lo! what that solemn sound:
"Go do your duty," rising from the ground.
Long speak that voice and reach the soldier's ear,
And give them courage unalloyed with fear,
Sleep, noble Souther! for thy name shall live,
And to the nation fresher vigor give—
Enrolled among the bravest of our time,
That record page shall with sweet lustre shine,
And teach the leader by that blazing leaf,
That oft a soldier's braver than the chief.
What though a little time before us all—
It was God's will and thine own lot to fall
We soon shall follow, tis Nature's general law
Flesh is but dust, and life is but a straw,
We breathe a little longer to adore,
And praise thy deeds, then fall to rise no more.
Yes, Souther, sleep! thy spirit shall arise
Forth from thy clay to decorate the skies;
Thy laurels won, thy struggles all are o'er—
Go to thy God—Your country claims no more.

A Little Hero.

Annie Haynes, aged 9 years, with other children were playing about Brackett's wharf Saturday afternoon. Annie had hold of one of the derrick ropes when her hand slipped and she fell into the water.

Her playmates screamed with fright when they saw her go down and all ran away but Rose Mead, aged 11 years, of 114 Brackett street. Lying down and bracing herself by her toes on a block of granite she grabbed Annie by the hair as she was going down the second time. She was not strong enough to pull the drowning girl out of the water, but she hung to her hair and screamed for help.

The engineer at the electric light station heard her cries and rushing out soon rescued both girls.

The little Mead girl certainly proved herself a hero, as but for her quick action the Haynes girl would have been drowned.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Too much good humor under oppression has always been put down as a trait of the American public. The way we stand in cars, hang on straps, and grant valuable privileges to corporations who give us nothing but indifference in return, has long excited the wonder of observers. Occasionally a traveller thinks this patience an admirable trait. More often, and more justly, it is deemed a a weakness to be supine under oppression. The strike question, however, is rather more complicated than the case of ordinary abuse of the public by corporations or individuals. The public sees that the unions taking their history as a whole, have uplifted and educated laboring classes, and it does not see how they could have accomplished so much had they not used, as an occasional weapon, the right to strike. The unions are frequently in the wrong. The corporations almost always are. That is to say, the great corporations whose troubles with their employees affect the general convenience mostly exist in a defiance of the law. As the beef trouble happened to come in summer, when we can live on spinach and stewed gooseberries, it was taken by the public with rather astonishing good humor. Every one of these grossly inconvenient strikes, however, sets people in general to thinking about the ways of preventing similar annoyances, and brings nearer the day when we, the people, shall invent a scheme, in regard to the necessities of life, which shall keep both labor and capital from causing us so much annoyance. Whoever is elected President in November, we imagine his Attorney-General will welcome any real evidence of what we all believe about the Beef Trust. Those combinations which control necessities must and will be either suppressed or regulated. This is not to imply anything about the relative merits and faults of the latest among the strikes which cause general public inconvenience. It is merely to foresee a time when neither the wish nor the troubles of one small group of packers will be able to harass a whole nation.—Colliers Weekly.

FRESH REVERSE FOR RUSSIA

Big Cruiser of Vladivostok Squadron Sunk by Japs

CREW'S FATE UNKNOWN

Caught In Strait of Korea by Fleet Under Kamimura--Action Which Will Doubtless Give Japs a Clear Field For Operations Against Port Arthur, Where Crippled Russian Vessels Are Bottled Up--Russia's Available Fleet Now Limited to Four Cruisers

Tokio, Aug. 15.—Vice Admiral Kamimura encountered the Russian Vladivostok squadron at dawn Sunday north of Tsu island in the Strait of Korea and attacked the enemy at once. The battle lasted for five hours and resulted in a complete Japanese victory. The Russian cruiser Rurik was sunk and the cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi fled to the northward after having sustained serious damage.

Vice Admiral Kamimura cables the navy department that the injuries inflicted upon his vessels were slight.

The fate of the crew of the Rurik is not known. It is presumed that many of them were killed or drowned. The strength of the fleet under Vice Admiral Kamimura is not known, but it is presumed that he had the Adsuma, Idsumo, Iwate, Takashiho and other light cruisers.

Tokio is joyous over the news, as it gives Japan mastery of the sea and restores commerce.

Underneath the jollity of the populace lies a feeling of deep satisfaction and gratification at the disposal of a desperately serious problem of the war.

The Russian squadron which confronted Admiral Togo refused battle. It was stronger than Togo's squadron in battleships and armored cruisers and had it elected to fight the result might have been altered the fortunes of war. The strength of the squadron which opposed Togo compelled him to draw vessels from the squadron under Kamimura and this left the Japanese navy powerless to operate against the Russian Vladivostok squadron and unable to prevent the raids of these vessels.

The raid conducted by the Vladivostok squadron in July was extremely expensive to Japan, and not only was retaliation tempting, but it was demanded by commercial interests. The navy, however, grimly refused to make a diversion and stuck to Pork Arthur. It was confident that the harbor soon would be untenable for the Russian warships, that it would eventually get a fair fight in the open sea away from the Russian land batteries and that the Japanese would win. These calculations of the navy were correct, and the Russians, with the chances even, have been hopelessly defeated.

Vice Admiral Kamimura, after months of weary and patient waiting, finally got his chance off Tsu island. He sunk the Russian cruiser Rurik and sent the cruisers Gromobol and Rossia fleeing back from the fight.

Japanese guns dominate the dockyards at Port Arthur and in view of this fact it would seem to be impossible again to make seaworthy or fightable the Russian battleships which have returned to Port Arthur. It is probable that the Russian battleship Czarevitch will disarm at Tsingchou.

The best possible naval force that Russia can now concentrate at Vladivostok is four cruisers.

Gloom at St Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—Not since the beginning of the war between Japan and Russia has anything so obviously affected Russian spirits as the gradual revelation of the extent of the Port Arthur squadron's reverse. The details of Rear Admiral Withoft's fatal sortie last week are not known to the general public.

Aside from belated telegrams from Liao Yang and Anshanshan no actual news from the front has been received. There is a persistent rumor that Port Arthur has fallen, but it cannot be confirmed.

There is a general belief, which is borne out by the latest dispatches, that the situation at Port Arthur is a desperate one.

Captain Matousevitch's report makes it clear that the Port Arthur squadron fought what was probably the greatest battle of ironclads since steel replaced wood in naval construction. The effort of the Russians to fight their way through the Japanese would probably have been successful had it not been for the disaster to the battleship Czarevitch, which compelled the squadron to fight a second battle, ending in the dispersal of the Russian fleet in the darkness.

The awful mortality among the officers of the Czarevitch is due to the fact that Admiral Withoft and most of his officers were gathered on the bridge during the action in order to set an example to and encourage the men, instead of remaining in comparative safety in the protection of the conning tower. A Japanese shell burst beneath the bridge, wrecking that part of the ship and killing or wounding every officer on duty thereabouts.

A Protest From Russia

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—By command of the czar, Foreign Minister Lawsdorff has instructed M. Neildoff, the Russian ambassador at Paris, to request that France, on behalf of Russia, shall lodge a strong protest with the French minister at Tokio, M. Harmand, against what is described as an outrageous violation of Chinese neutrality and of universally recognized principles of international law involved in the Japanese attack on the Russian boat destroyer Ryeshitelni, in a neutral harbor.

The foreign officers have also been notified of the Russian declaration and the Russian minister at Pekin, Paul Lessar, is charged to protest to the Chinese with reference to the serious consequences of the violation of neutrality which she permitted.

Germany's Notice to Russians

Berlin, Aug. 15.—The foreign office declares that if the Russian ships which put into Tsingchou, at the entrance of Kiaochou bay, the German concession on the Shantung peninsula, do not make repairs and leave that port within the time allotted them they will be detained there for the rest of the war. The commanders of the Russian vessels have been notified to that effect. The repairs to the ships must be made under strict surveillance by the German authorities, as a guarantee that the work shall be confined to the making of the vessels seaworthy.

Could Be Easily Adjusted

London, Aug. 15.—Should Russia protest against the seizure of the Ryeshitelni France will act as an intermediary, in accordance with the agreement by which she is charged with the care of Russian interests in Japan during the war, but her attitude will depend entirely on that of the mikado's government, which it is impossible to foresee. For instance, should Japan throw the blame for the affair upon a naval officer, apologize and give up the Ryeshitelni, the matter would simply be dropped.

Port Arthur Doomed

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—A dispatch from Mukden states that the Japanese Port Arthur army has been largely reinforced and has taken up position in two large bodies, one on the heights between Lungwungtao and Pigeon bay and the other on the hills near Louisa bay. Guns have also been placed on the heights east of the Wolf hills.

Chinese Ultimatum to Destroyer

Shanghai, Aug. 15.—The 48 hours granted the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi expired at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At that hour she had not disarmed. The taotl of Shanghai has repeated his demand that the vessel leave or disarm. The probabilities are that she will disarm.

Eighty-Seven Massacred

London, Aug. 15.—The Tokio correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, in a dispatch dated Aug. 14, says: A Nemuro (Japan) telegram states that Russian soldiers at Kamchatka massacred 87 of the crew of the Japanese schooner Teichi.

Leaving War Zone Behind

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—A dispatch from Harbin says that Viceroy Alexieff has passed through that place on his way to Vladivostok.

Rurik of Enormous Power

London, Aug. 15.—Russia's latest naval disaster has a peculiar interest for Englishmen, as it was apprehension caused by the enormous power of the cruisers Rurik and Rossia of the Vladivostok squadron, which led the British government to build the monster cruisers Terrible and Powerful. The latest details, showing that the fighting between Togo's fleet and the Port Arthur fleet began at a distance of about four miles, are held to prove the necessity for the possession of big ironclads. The fleets appear never to have approached each other closer than a distance of 3800 yards.

Has a Criminal Record

Boston, Aug. 15.—Joseph P. Durgin, aged 26, was taken into custody at Cambridge last night, charged with obtaining money under false pretences. On the police records he figures as an old offender, has been arrested several times, and has served sentence in the house of correction. Durgin would enter offices in the guise of an insurance agent, make out fraudulent policies, and use the money thereby obtained to his own advantage.

Band Pledged to Murder

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 15.—A special to The Chronicle says: Will Cato, arrested as a principal in the murder of the entire Hodges family at Statesboro, has confessed to the existence of an organized negro band whose object is the killing and robbing of white people. It is called the "Before Day Club" and holds nightly meetings in isolated places.

Two Men Killed by Train

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 15.—Bodies of two unknown men were found on the railroad track near Grand street crossing. One body was cut in two at the waist. The other had head and chest crushed. Both were of men apparently about 50 years of age and were poorly dressed.

POISON AND KNIFE

Murderer Takes His Own Life After Killing a Woman

STABBED HER AT BOSTON

Culmination of Quarrel Over Money, After Which Slayer Fled to Methuen, Where Both Had Lived, and Killed Himself

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 15.—Weakened by the loss of blood from self-inflicted knife wounds, and poisoned by paris green taken in a determined effort to end his life, William E. Clark, 60 years old, who murdered Mrs. Ada Richardson in Boston on Saturday, died at the Lawrence general hospital. Heroic measures were taken to save the man, but the poison had eaten so far that antidotes were of no avail.

The murder of Mrs. Richardson by Clark, both of whom have lived in Methuen, three miles from here, is regarded by the police as one of the most brutal committed in Massachusetts in recent years. Mrs. Richardson was stabbed to death in a lodging house in Boston, from which the assailant escaped to Methuen, where he was found dying by the officers, crouching in the underbrush near his father's home.

Mrs. Richardson was the wife of John B. Richardson, a prominent farmer of Methuen. As a result of domestic troubles the couple separated in July. Clark formerly worked for Richardson and it is stated that since the separation of the Richardsons he was often seen in the company of the farmer's wife.

Friday night Clark and Mrs. Richardson engaged a room in a Boston lodging house. Early in the evening they had an altercation over money, in which Clark is said to have threatened the woman with a revolver. Quiet was restored, but later the neighborhood was awakened by loud screams.

Mrs. Richardson was found on the floor of the chamber with a knife wound in her breast. A trail of blood led from the house down the street. Indications pointed to Clark as the murderer, and the fact that $74 in money which Mrs. Richardson had with her was missing, led to the belief that the motive for the crime was robbery.

Saturday afternoon Clark was found in the garden of his home in Methuen. He was lying on the ground suffering from knife wounds and poison. At the hospital physicians expressed the opinion that the man had stabbed himself before leaving Boston, so great a quantity of blood had been lost, and that he had taken paris green on the way here.

The murderer made no ante-mortem statement. Clark is survived by a wife and two children, who are supported by the town of Methuen. Mrs. Richardson was about 50 years of age.

From Warship to Coal Barge

Boston, Aug. 15.—The British coast defense ship Hotspur has arrived here in tow from Bermuda, she having outlived her usefulness. She has been sold to a Boston firm, which will remove her upper works and then sell the hull for a coal barge. The Hotspur, at the time of launching in 1870, was the second most powerful of the 15 coast defenders on the list of armored ships of Great Britain.

Claim to Have Ample Help

New York, Aug. 15.—No cattle were killed yesterday at either of the so-called beef trust plants, the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company and the United Dressed Beef company, although officials of both companies maintain that they have a sufficient force of men in the places of the strikers to kill up to their normal capacity.

Hard Times at Fall River

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 15.—The fourth week of the textile strike was ushered in with no appreciable change in the situation. The relief stations have been closed until further orders from the Textile council, because $500 over the amount received has been expended to date.

Chest Crushed by Beer Barrel

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 15.—William Malonson, aged 30, while attending an outing at Cape pond, was carrying a half barrel of beer on his shoulder, when he stumbled over a rock and fell. The barrel fell on his chest and crushed it so severely that he died soon afterward.

Two Perished In Fire

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Michael Callagan, aged 53, a former race horse trainer, and Thomas Eagan, aged 20, a racing stable attache, were burned to death by an explosion of gasoline, which caused a fire that destroyed a cafe near the running park.

New Baby Chief of Cossacks

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—An official bulletin issued from the Peterhof palace says that the czarina and the heir to the throne are progressing favorably. The czarevitch has been gazetted as the ataman (or chief) of all the Cossack forces.

Twenty Drowned In Shipwreck

London, Aug. 15.—The British bark Inverkip, Melbourne for Queenstown, was sunk, and 20 persons were drowned as the result of a collision off Fastnet Rock, Ireland, with the British ship Loch Garron from the Clyde.

TURKEY TOES THE MARK

Has at Last Yielded to Demands of the United States

Constantinople, Aug. 15.—After prolonged pourparlers and considerable haggling on the part of the Turks, a satisfactory solution of the American school question has been arrived at. This matter, which is the most important of the American demands, was settled by extending to American schools the same treatment as that accorded to schools under the protection of other powers.

A settlement of other matters affecting American interests in Turkey, of secondary importance, has also been effected, and Minister Leishman has telegraphed to Rear Admiral Jewell, in command of the United States squadron sent to Smyrna, instructing him to salute the batteries on land and depart.

The sitting of the council of ministers at which the settlement was agreed upon was a long one. The delay in the settlement is believed to have been caused by the intervention of the palace functionaries, whose policy, in order to retain the sultan's favor, consists of combating the rights and privileges of foreign subjects.

Feared "Fire From Heaven"

Wilmington, N. C., Aug. 15.—Alarmed by the foolish prophesy of a negro from Newbern, who predicted that Wilmington would be totally destroyed by fire from Heaven on Aug. 15, hundreds of negroes have left the city to escape what they firmly believe will be the total destruction of the city with its inhabitants. Housekeepers are practically without servants and two of the larger lumber mills had to close down today for want of hands. The negro fanatic proclaims himself "Prince George III, Ruler of the Universe."

The Republican Text Book

Washington, Aug. 15.—Tariff, prosperity, labor, wages and prices, trusts, the Panama canal, Cuba and Cuban reciprocity, expansion and its results, the investigations of the postal and land frauds and punishments of offenders, rural free delivery, irrigation, the record of the Republican party and the record of Theodore Roosevelt, are the leading subjects discussed by the Republican campaign text book of 1904, which is just about to be issued.

Old Home Week In Pine Tree State

Portland, Me., Aug. 15.—This week is nominally known as "Old Home Week" throughout Maine, but little preparation has been made to have the observance of the festivity general. Former Maine residents are returning in considerable numbers to visit the old homes, but few of the towns have arranged for any public demonstration. Rockland will celebrate by commemorating the city's semi-centennial.

The Packing House Strike

Chicago, Aug. 15.—On the outcome of a conference which may be held today the present chances of a settlement of the stockyards strike depends. The nature of this reported conference is very indefinite. It is asserted positively by some of the labor leaders that a conference with the packers will be held, but the packers will not affirm or deny that such is the case.

To Make No Further Contest

New Haven, Aug. 15.—Counsel for William J. Bryan in his appeal to the sureme court from the decision of the superior court excluding the Bennett sealed letter, which appeal was lost, as the court found no error in the ruling, say that no further steps will be taken by Bryan in this direction to secure the $50,000 mentioned in the letter.

Parker In the Mountains

Winnisook Lodge, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Alton B. Parker is resting at the Winnisook club, 2700 feet above sea level, at the foot of Slide mountain, which is the highest point in the Catskills. Winnisook Lodge is nine miles from the nearest telegraph and 12 miles from the nearest telephone station and reached by a steep mountain road.

Britain's New Possession

Kingstown, B. W. I., Aug. 15.—The British cruiser Tribune landed a party at Aves, or Birds island, 127 miles west of the north end of the island of Dominica, and annexed it as a British possession. Guns were hauled through the surf and landed, the British flag was hoisted and a royal salute was fired.

Missing Man's Body Found

Naugatuck, Conn., Aug. 15.—The body of Peter Mahan, 75 years old, who had been missing from his home here since Friday night, was found in a raceway in less than four feet of water. Mahan probably fell into the raceway Friday night and was drowned.

Dismembered by a Train

Thomaston, Conn., Aug. 15.—Fragments of a body of a well dressed man were found lying along the tracks a mile from the railroad station at this place. His head and both arms were cut off and the trunk of his body was crushed. There is no clue to his identity.

Sympathy With the Rebels

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 15.—Paraguayan insurgent vessels have passed Angostura, where they served out arms. Military officers and deputies are escaping to join the revolutionists. The government declares its determination to suppress the revolutionary movement.

Cholera Near Russian Frontier

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—The Official Messenger announces the closing of the land frontier of Trans-Caspian territory, owing to the prevalence of cholera in Persia and Afghanistan.

GREAT COAL MINE FIRE

Extraordinary Effort to Extinguish One In Pennsylvania.

SCIENTIFIO METHODS ADOPTED.

A Mixture of Culm and Water to Be Used For the Quenching of a Fire That Has Been Burning an Anthracite Coal Mine For the Past Fifty Years.

A systematic effort to extinguish the greatest mine fire in the anthracite coal region was recently commenced by a coal company which owns the Greenwood mine near Tamaqua, Pa., says the Wilkesbarre correspondent of the New York Post. The mine has been on fire for the past fifty years, and in all that time has not been worked. It still contains, so the mining experts calculate, millions of tons of fine coal, chiefly in the Mammoth vein, which at this portion of the region is from thirty to sixty feet thick, and it is for this wealth of coal that the company has started a fight which it is estimated will cost $1,000,000 and will take two years to win. Preparations to fight the fire have been under way for a year, following a careful survey of the workings, the extent of the fire and the possibility of putting it out. All previous efforts have been confined to a spasmodic flooding of the burning portion, which has not been effective.

The mining officials have discovered that the fire is raging in the loose coal above the water level, that the great pillars of the Mammoth vein are still standing undamaged and that all the lower veins are intact, the millions of gallons of water which have from time to time been poured into the mine having saved the coal despite the fact that it had no other effect upon the fire than confining it to a certain portion of the mine.

The fight will be conducted from the mountain top above the highest levels of the workings, and not far from the spot where it is believed the fire started fifty years ago, when some timbers were ignited by a miner's lamp or the ignition of a gas feeder.

A mixture of culm and water will be the fire fighting agent. This not only smothers the fire wherever it reaches it, but hardens into a mass almost as solid as coal, and forms a pillar which prevents the workings caving. It will have the valuable effect in this case of extinguishing the fire and filling up the fire eaten workings so that the adjoining pillars, which have supported these workings, may be removed. The company will thus gain great quantities of coal which could not otherwise be touched.

Four 100 horsepower boilers have been erected on the banks of the Schuylkill river and will operate two mammoth duplex pumps, which will pour into the mine 1,728,000 gallons of water every day. This water will be carried 1,600 feet in ten inch pipes from the river to the top of the mountain. There it will be turned into big troughs and mixed with immense quantities of the culm, which will be hauled by train from the Hauto culm banks six miles away. The mixed culm and water will then be run down deep shoots into the burning workings.

At the same time, at a number of points over the fire, bore holes will be drilled from the surface. These will not only serve to locate the fire, but will also draw off the gases formed by the burning coal, which have been in such volume that they have held the water back from the fire.

As one working after another is flushed with the culm and the fire extinguished the long chutes down which the culm and water are washed will be moved to another working, and the fire will in this manner be slowly but surely smothered. At the same time barriers will be built in the mine to prevent the fire spreading to untouched portions. These barriers have been built from time to time, and many of them are still serviceable.

When the fire is all out and the mine again ready to be worked the company will erect one of the largest breakers in the region, and the breaker and mine will give employment to over a thousand men and boys.

Promise of Big Chestnut Crop.

"Next fall will see the biggest chestnut crop ever made," said H. J. McGuffin, who travels over the country inspecting the chestnut trees. He is a hat drummer, but chestnuts are his favorite of all the nuts which grow in the forests, says the Louisville Courier Journal. "My home is in New York state, and I have traveled over it in a buggy during the past few weeks," he said. "The chestnut trees are loaded with burrs, and I never saw such a fine chance for a magnificent yield of nuts. I am foolishly fond of chestnuts and have been since my boyhood. Every year I buy a large quantity, and toward the end of the winter it is a race between me and the worms to see which will get the last one of the lot."

Weird Sun Veils.

Young women of the summer colony at Newport, R. I., have introduced a new effect on the tennis courts at the Casino, says the New York Journal. It is a veil very like those worn by Turkish women, covering the lower part of the face, with holes through which to look. This veil is designed to prevent tan and freckles, and it serves its purpose very well, although there are some who maintain that it prevents free breathing and as a consequence is not conducive to endurance or to health.

British Destroyer Sunk In Collision

London, Aug. 15.—The British torpedo boat destroyer Decoy sank off the Scilly islands as the result of a collision with another destroyer. The crew was saved.

The Decoy was a vessel of 4200 indicated horse power, 265 tons displacement and was capable of making 27 knots an hour. She was equipped with three torpedo tubes and one 12-pounder and three 6-pounder quick-firing guns and carried a complement of 50 men.

Edison Governess Kills Herself

Orange, N. J., Aug. 15.—Miss Ethel K. Pardoe, 25 years old, who was employed by Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, wife of the inventor, as a governess for the Edison children, committed suicide by turning on the gas. Friends of Miss Pardoe say she worried much, owing to anonymous letters received by the Edisons containing threats to kidnap the children. Miss Pardoe was the daughter of a clergyman.

Threat of Tile Layers

New York, Aug. 15.—Replying to the open shop ultimatum issued by the Building Trades Employers' association, the Tile Layers' union has issued a counter ultimatum saying that if the lockout is not raised on the members of that union by Aug. 17 the union will not return to work at any future time for a lower scale of wage than $5.50 a day. The present schedule is $5 a day.

Simpson's Persuasive Way

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 15.—At two sessions of the Christian Alliance camp meeting Rev. Dr. A. D. Simpson of New York secured pledges for foreign missions aggregating $44,500, the amounts ranging from 50 cents upward. One pledge was for $5000 and there were many others for large amounts. The names of the donors were not made public.

Democrats Open Headquarters

New York, Aug. 15.—Chairman Taggart opened headquarters of the national Democratic committee this morning. That the national chairman means business is indicated by his instructions yesterday to the employes of the committee. "Report for duty Monday morning at 7 o'clock," he said, and when they smiled, added: "Its 7, and that doesn't mean 9."

Mrs Maybrick Coming to America

London, Aug. 15.—Mrs. Florence Maybrick is on board the steamer Vaderland, from Antwerp for New York, under the name of Miss Rose Ingram. She is accompanied by her attorney, Mr. Hayden, who arranged the details of her departure. Mrs. Maybrick's mother, Baroness de Roques, intends to follow her daughter shortly.

Woman Burned to Death

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 15.—The accidental overturning of a kerosene lamp by Mrs. Lizzie Leahy caused her death at her home shortly after midnight. The house was considerably damaged by fire. Nearly a year ago Mrs. Leahy tipped over a lamp in a similar manner and barely escaped death at that time.

Ferocious Rat Attacked Baby

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 15.—Dorris Shallcross, aged 2, while playing on the lawn in front of her parents' house at Ashton, was savagely attacked by a large, ferocious rat. The child's screams attaracted the parents, but the little girl was dangerously bitten before the rodent made off.

Wrecked Fishermen Rescued

North Sydney, N. S., Aug. 15.—Schooner Helen Stewart arrived here with the crew of the fishing schooner Marie Paul, which foundered on the St. Pierre banks. The crew took to their dories just before the vessel sank and were picked up by the Helen Stewart.

Miss Estella Cannon of Spear street will be entertained this week by the Misses Underwood at their summer cottage at Marblehead.

Mrs. Sarah A. Knight died suddenly on Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Newell O. Parker of Belmont street, at the advanced age of 79 years.

Quincy Police are on the lookout for two slick individuals who stole a horse and wagon with goods in Boston on Saturday, and were supposed to have come to Quincy to sell the goods.

Robert Mavers and youngest son of Bennington street sailed August 11 on the S. S. Republic, for the old country, where they will join Mrs. Mavers who has been absent in Scotland the past three months.

Miss Ella Petterson and sister and the Misses Nutting of Brewer's corner, have returned from a month's rest at Bartletts Island, Maine. They went on the ill fated "City of Rockland," but returned by cars. Their story of the accident and experience is interesting.

A Sunday Attraction.

Were you among the thousands who visited Boston on Sunday? The Common and Public Gardens were the special attractions, but many went to see the decorations, and there were crowds everywhere. It was almost impossible to see the floral badges in the Public Garden, so great was the crowd about them at all times.

After 7.30 the Public Gardens, the Soldiers' monument and the frog ponds were very prettily lighted by hundred, of small electric lights, and it was like a fairyland. A flag suspended over the Common was lighted mysteriously to many, and the various corps badges on poles were encircled with red, white and blue light. Don't miss these illuminations, which will continue a few nights.

☞ Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

SOUTH QUINCYS

Now Claim the Championship of Quincy.

Defeated Merrymounts, 15 to 6.

Other Victories by Copeland Club, Atlantics and Norfolk Downs.

The South Quincys and Mer rymounts met Saturday at Merrymount Park and the South Quincy team easily outclassed the Merrymounts. A large crowd gathered from all parts of the city. It was a good game up to the seventh inning when the South Quincys started in to bat the ball, scoring three runs in the seventh inning, five in the eighth and two in the ninth. They hit Kolson very hard in these last three innings.

The features of the game were the fine pitching by Patterson, he striking out 11 men; the hitting of Drake, Donaher, Mullane, Birnie and J. Dunn; and the two running catches of J. Dunn in right field.

The South Quincys become the champions of Quincy by defeating the Merrymounts.

Mullane surprised them all by making a home run, hitting the ball into the road.

Rubber Game.

The Copeland Club added another victory to their long string by defeating the St. Marys in the "rubber game" for the championship of West Quincy at the Ward Four playgrounds on Saturday afternoon.

The Copelands started in by scoring two runs the first inning and in the fourth scored four runs and batted Burke out of the box.

St. Marys found Desmond in the sixth and scored five runs, but he steadied down and had them well in hand the rest of the game.

The features were the fielding of McTiernan, Egan, Galvin, Elcock, Duggan and Berry, and the batting of Reardon, Palucca and Morrill. Desmond pitched a strong game, as well as McLaughlin while he was up.

Whitewash Administered.

For four innings the game on the Ward Six playground on Saturday was close, but then the Atlantics began to pile up runs and continued to shut out the Suffolk A. C. It was a good coat of whitewash which Hawkins administered striking out 15. All the put outs by the home team were by three men, Murphy the catcher, Leech at first and Brennan one at centre field.

One Drink Cost Over $900

Boston, Aug. 15.—John J. Irwin, a member of George H. Thomas post 17, G. A. R., of St. Louis, who came here to attend the national encampment, says that soon after he reached the city Sunday morning he asked a stranger to guide him to some place where he could get a drink. He had one drink with the stranger, after which his senses left him and he did not regain consciousness until 5 o'clock last night. When he recovered possession of his faculties he was wandering aimlessly about the streets. His pocketbook, containing $386 and drafts amounting to about $550, was missing. Irwin was formerly a captain in the United States navy.

Fate of a Cuban Giant

Liverpool, O., Aug. 15.—Charles Howard, one of the original colored Cuban Giants, was almost instantly killed by Lottie Skiles, who was rooming at Howard's house. According to the woman's story, Howard struck her in the face and then started for a revolver. She reached the weapon first and shot him through the head.

Disappointment and Suicide

New Haven, Aug. 15.—Veronica Horton, a pretty girl of 16, committed suicide by taking a dose of carbolic acid soon after she returned from church. It is believed that a love affair was the cause of her taking her life.

A Winthrop item in the Herald says: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Magee of Quincy are visiting Mr. Edward Magee of this town. Mr. Thomas Magee, although more than 80 years old, intends to march with the G. A. R. veterans next week. He was in several rebel prisons during the rebellion.

QUINCYS WIN.

The Great Foot Ball Game With Barre.

The Two Teams Well Matched.

Visitors, However, Were Unable to Score a Point.

One of the largest crowds of the season turned out to see the foot ball game between the Quincy foot ball club and the Barre Rangers of Barre, Vermont, and they saw one of the best games ever played in this city.

Both teams marched from Clan McGregor hall, headed by the Quincy City Band, and the Barre players felt greatly pleased at the fine reception which they were tendered by the people of Quincy.

It is generally the custom, when an important match is arranged, for the home team to get some prominent citizen to start the game by kicking off the ball. The Quincys secured one of our prominent city officials in the person of Peter J. Williams, the popular fire chief, and he kicked off the ball in a manner which showed that he has not forgotten how to deliver a kick on the right place.

The Quincy team forced matters from the start, and had it not been for the magnificent playing of James Robertson, the Barre goal tender, the Quincys would have scored repeatedly.

The Vermonters made several attempts to score, but goal tender Connelly made some fine saves for the Quincys. He showed that honors were about even in the line of goal keeping.

At the finish of the game the score stood two goals to nothing in favor of Quincys. Wm. Connelly and Robert Robertson did the scoring.

Both teams put up a splendid game, the visitors having the best of it in combination. The features were the stops made by both goal tenders and the great plays made by Forbes at back for Barre. Wm. Connelly and John Gauld were the stars in Quincy's forward line, and Alfred Malcolm showed that he is easily one of the best of Quincy's young players.

The managers of both teams intend to make these games an annual affair, if possible, and it will be for the best interests of the game that they succeed in their efforts to that end.

Sudden Illness.

Fred Harrington of 149 Quincy street was one of the spectators at the game of ball at Merrymount park on Saturday afternoon. While watching the game he was taken suddenly ill. He was attended by a physician on the field. Mayor Bryant, who was present, immediately telephoned for the police ambulance which removed the sick man his wife and children to their home.

TODAY'S COURT.

Emily Owens was sent to woman's reformatory at Sherborn for drunkenness at Quincy.

Charles B. Locke and Albert R. Barstow were arraigned for taking a boat of F. A. Locke at Quincy, without permission. Locke was fined $25. Barstow's case was placed on file.

John A. Sears was fined $5 for speeding an automobile at Milton.

MARCHING HOSTS

Twenty-Six Thousand Veterans In Parade at Boston

A MILLION SPECTATORS

Many Persons Overcome by Prostration, One Old Soldier Dying--Ten Thousand Old Soldiers Gathered at Campfiire

Boston, Aug. 17.—If anything were needed to prove that the Grand Army of the Republic is still in fact a mighty host it was to be found when, with over a million civilians looking on, 26,000 survivors of the Union forces of the Civil war, assembled here from all sections of the United States, marched through the streets of Boston. Five and one-half hours were required for the parade to pass a given point.

It was a difficult problem for the old soldiers—one of the hardest battles ever they had entered to stand and walk on the hot, crowded streets—but they bore it as true veterans and heroes. Almost three-score of them dropped from the ranks from exhaustion and prostration, but they were tenderly cared for at the field and civic hospitals.

The death of one soldier marred an otherwise happy day. He was Colonel John P. Pryon, a member of John A. Dix post, 135, of New York, who died from heart failure, induced by exhaustion. At least 350 spectators fainted during the parade, and many persons were slightly injured and had dresses torn in the crush of the crowds.

The spectacle of the marching soldiers was one calculated to thrill as well as to hold in moving interest. Everywhere the army was received with applause, tempered always with a noticeable attitude of respect and reverence. As the columns of blue swept up Beacon hill they were reviewed from the state house by Governor Bates, who was accompanied by distinguished personages.

At city hall Mayor Collins reviewed the parade, having as his guests the mayors of a dozen metropolitan cities. Then, at the end of the route, Commander-in-Chief Black of the G. A. R. finally inspected the many thousands of his comrades. Several former Confederate officers occupied places in the stand.

The pre-eminently picturesque feature of the parade was the "Living Flag," as presented by 2000 children dressed variously in white, red and blue, and seated in one great body so that an excellent living representation of the flag was created. Every soldier of the marching army raised his hat as he passed this picture, and the children joined in unison in "Dixie" and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Several regimental reunions and various receptions, including that of the Daughters of Veterans to the national officers, marked the rest of the day.

More than 10,000 men who wore the Union blue during the perilous days of the Civil war gathered at the campfire in Mechanics building last night to join in singing the old war songs, renewing war-time friendships and listening to eloquent and patriotic addresses. The hall was profusely decorated for the occasion, hundreds of American flags and thousands of yards of bunting being draped from the ceiling and galleries. The seals of the city and the state, the emblem of the Grand Army of the Republic, and portraits of the great Union generals were prominent in the decoration scheme. Two brass field guns occupied a conspicuous position near the front of the platform.

Promptly at 8 o'clock Secretary of State Olin, the presiding officer, ascended the platform, followed by Governor Bates and staff and Mayor Collins. This party was followed by the department of Massachusetts Grand Army chorus, which received an ovation. The program consisted of 34 numbers, of which the speeches were but a small part, musical and military numbers composing the greater part of the evening's exercises.

The climax of the evening was reached in the early part of the program when the ceremony known as the "Trooping of the Colors," an event unique at Grand Army campfires, was performed. The bugle call "To the Colors" was sounded from the platform, and in response 70 veterans, each bearing a stand of colors, marched from the rear of the auditorium up the centre aisle to the platfrom. When all the colors had been massed Miss Adah Hussey, a contralto sololst, sang "The Star Spangled Banner," the audience joining in the chorus, while the colors were waved to and fro. The scene was impressive and inspiring. The pent-up enthusiasm of the veterans broke loose and the volume of cheers that resounded through the hall was deafening.

Following the "Trooping of the Colors" bugle calls and drum signals were given, and then Colonel Olin introduced Governor Bates. His address was devoted to the lessons of patriotism taught by the great parade. He declared that what impressed him most as he reviewed the marching thousands was the spirit of the veterans; the spirit, he said, which would cause them to once more offer their services should the nation be in peril. The governor welcomed the Grand Army to Massachusetts, but he would never say to them "farewell," for they are in the hearts of the people, and there shall they remain.

Mayor Collins and Commander-in-Chief Black spoke briefly. The mayor said that the Union veterans needed no welcome from him on behalf of the city after the demonstration in their honor on the streets. The remarks of General Black were in the nature of a congratulatory greeting to his former companions in arms.

The campfire closed with the singing of "America," every man in the great hall rising to his feet and entering with enthusiasm in the rendering of the national anthem.

One of the most significant of the many reunions of the week was that of the First Maine heavy artillery at Faneuil hall this morning. The First Maine has the distinction of having lost more men in the aggregate than any other of the 2047 Union regiments in the Civil war and of having lost more men in one engagement than any other. A monument at Petersburg stands on the spot where, in the siege of that city, 850 men went into an engagement and in 10 minutes had lost 604 of their number.

Davis Notified of Nomination

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 17.—Henry G. Davis was formally notified at 1 o'clock today that he is the Democratic nominee for vice president of the United States. Representative Williams of Mississippi, chairman of the notification committee of the national Democratic convention, made the announcement in a speech requiring an hour to deliver. Mr. Davis, in accepting the nomination, discussed the political situation briefly. The ceremonies took place in a natural amphitheatre on the lawn in front of White Sulphur Springs hotel.

King's Dinner to Emperor

Marienbad, Aug. 17.—King Edward last night gave a dinner to Emperor Francis Joseph at the Hotel Wejmar. During the dinner the electric lights were suddenly extinguished, causing consternation. Candles were substituted for the electric lights, which, however, were restored in five minutes. In responding to the toasts proposed at the dinner the emperor and king gave expression to their deep personal friendship. No allusions of a political nature were made.

Pima Indians Need Aid

Washington, Aug. 17.—The poor condition of the Pima Indians of the Gila river reservation in Arizona was the subject of a conference at the White House, as a result of which the president has directed a fresh investigation regarding the Indians where crops are affected by the diversion from them of the waters of the Gila river. The president has given assurances of his personal interest in the matter to a committee of the Presbyterian board.

Sensational Story Denied

Washington, Aug. 17.—General Nord never threatened to repeat the massacre of foreigners in Hayti, according to Minister Powell, who has the denial from the president's own lips. The minister made this sensational report the basis of special inquiry, the result of which he has communicated to the state department.

Consul Insulted Canadian Flag

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—The Canadian government has lodged a formal complaint with the British authorities regarding the indignity offered to the flag of the Dominion by a British consular officer in a South American port. The flag was torn and trampled upon and the consul said he knew nothing of a Canadian flag.

Spellbinders For New England

New York, Aug. 17.—Josiah Quincy of Boston was at Democratic headquarters and the condition in the New England states was under discussion. The determination to make a spirited campaign in Maine was not only approved, but it was also thought desirable to send available speakers into Vermont.

Rice Production Increasing

Washington, Aug. 17.—A preliminary report to the department of agriculture shows the total acreage of rice in the United States this season to be about 643,400 acres. The rice acreage of the country has increased 83 percent within the last five years.

QUINCY POST

Well Represented in the Big Parade.

Nearly 10,000 from This City See Parade.

Drum Corps and Boys Brigade Escort Paul Revere Post.

Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., turned out unusually strong for the parade in Boston. There were over 70 in line Tuesday morning, when they marched proudly from their headquarters to the depot to take the 8.46 train.

They were escorted by the Braintree Fife and Drum Corps of 25 men, and also by the Boys' Brigade of Atlantic. The drum corps with their lively music inspired the veterans and quickened their step. The Boys Brigade by their manœuvres showed that they are well trained and have the military spirit.

Each veteran was decorated with a pretty button-hole bouquet, the gift of Miss Hattie Pierce, which were greatly appreciated. Miss Pierce personally pinned on the bouquets.

In the ranks were:

William Warner, commander
Thomas Ring, S. V. commander
George Phillips, J. V. commander
Franklin Curtis, adjutant Andrew W. Gardner
James W. Pierce
Henry Chubbuck

The mascot of Paul Revere Post was Arthur Manning.

Business in and about City Square was generally suspended for the day. Some of the stores kept open until 9 o'clock, but after that the only business places to keep open were the drug stores, one market, the Mt. Wollaston bank and the post office. The post office would have been closed part of the day had all the banks closed, but as one bank was open and some of the granite sheds, the office was kept open as usual.

Most everybody owning a flag displayed it. The Savings bank building was the only building decorated to any extent. This building looked very handsome with its flags and streamers of red, white and blue.

Most everybody went to Boston to see the great parade. They started early and it was well they did, for all of the morning trains were anywhere from fifteen to thirty minutes late.

It was a great day for Boston. Over 25,000 were in the line of march, which was nearly five hours in passing a given point. It is estimated that over a million people were along the line of march, and they were very demonstrative in their applause of the veterans.

Both the electric and steam railroads did an enormous business between Quincy and Boston on Tuesday. Extra cars were run on the line between Quincy and Neponset and thousands used this method of reaching Boston. Extra trains were also run on the New York and New Haven. Two or three extra inward trains were run express in the morning, and others during the early evening. It was also necessary to run extra outward trains during the late afternoon and evening.

Agent Coffin of the Quincy station reports that his office sold on Tuesday 1200 single tickets to Boston, one hundred 25-ride tickets and thirty-five 5-ride tickets. Besides these there were hundreds of others who visited Boston who used ticket books purchased at other times as well as those who paid cash fares on the trains.

ANOTHER "COSEY."

The New Launch of Tom Crane to Take Her Dip This Week.

"Tom" Crane, one of the popular street railway men, expects to put his new launch into the water this week, at the foot of River street. Since January when off duty he has been at work on her in the shop at his father's residence on Washington street, and those who have seen it pronounce it an up-to-date craft.

It is Mr. Crane's first attempt at boat building, but George Crane built the Cosey several years ago, and the new launch is also named "Cosey." It is 30 feet, 9 inches over all; 8 feet, 4 inches beam and draws 2 feet, 6 inches. Her keel, timbers and wash board are of oak, but cypress is used generally.

She was equipped with a 10-horse 2 cylinder motor by Frank Kemp. The cabin is roomy, and there is an eight-foot standing room. The Cosey is built for pleasure and comfort, but is expected to develop some speed. She is a fine looking craft.

Attended the Campfire.

Albert G. Coffin, Jr., and Samuel DeForrest, two Quincy boys, had the distinction of being the only two boys present Tuesday evening at the Monster campfire in the Mechanics building, Boston.

The two boys were together all day and when evening came went to the Mechanics building. Three lines of guards had to be passed before they could get into the building. First there was a line of policemen, then an outer line of Grand Army men, and inside the hall there was a second line of Grand Army men.

The boys wanted to go to the camp fire and by the aid of a veteran they were able to pass the lines and get into the inner circle.

It was a scene the like of which they will probably never witness again.

Electrical Pageant.

Beautiful beyond compare will be the Grand Army electrical pageant in Boston tomorrow evening. The floats represent 16 memorable epochs in the history of the country, each scenically presented through the medium of tableaux, with effective arrangements of over 10,000 electric lights and all gliding gracefully over the surface car tracks of the elevated railroad.

TODAY'S COURT.

Humphrey T. Lynch was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued until Sept. 24.

The continued case of Agnes Smith, for breaking and entering at Quincy was called and the case dismissed

Harold Baker was arraigned for speeding an automobile at the Blue Hills. Case continued until Aug. 23.

John C. Phillips, Robert Britton and Charles A. Thompson were fined $13 each, for speeding automobiles in the Blue Hills reservation.

Names Wanted.

Kindly send to the Daily Ledger promptly the names of your G. A. R. guests, and other visitors.

That Quincy is a healthy city is borne out by the fact that not a case of contagious disease has been reported to the Board of Health since July 18. This speaks well for a city of 30,000 population. There have been very few deaths since Aug. 1.

GRAND CARNIVAL.

Three Days' Festivities at Houghs Neck Opened.

Children Parade and Hold Sports.

Music and Fireworks Tonight---Other Attractions.

The three days' midsummer carnival at Houghs Neck commenced today with ideal weather conditions.

The first day is devoted exclusively to children and they are having a grand time.

Mrs. Harriet Connor is chairman of the day, and with a corps of lady assistants is kept busy.

The festivities of the day opened with a grand parade of children. It formed on Sea street near the fire station, and marched over the plains to the beach, where it was dismissed. A drum corps headed the parade and several hundred children of all sizes were in line.

Some rode in improvised carriages while others walked. Some wore masks and fancy costumes, and some did not. However, all had a good time.

After the parade, tickets entitling the holder to ice cream and cake were distributed. These were served by the committee at the Shakespere Inn.

This afternoon there will be a series of sports for the children. Tonight there will be a band concert and fireworks.

Tomorrow there will be sports of various kinds and band concerts afternoon and evening. There will also be an antique and horrible parade in the evening.

On Friday there will be more sports and band concerts afternoon and evening. In the evening there will also be a general illumination of the cottages.

Seriously Hurt.

J. Wellington Field met with a serious accident on Tuesday at Charlestown. He left Quincy with a load of paving stones which he was unloading. He stood on the rear of the wagon with his foot on one of the irons that holds the tailboard in position when it gave way and he fell to the ground. He received a scalp wound, and a fracture of one of his ribs. He was taken to the relief station in the police ambulance and later brought to his home in Quincy.

Another Rescue.

Henry L. Leet, 15 years old, of 81 Brackett street proved a hero Monday afternoon. While swiming at Brackett Wharf he saved Antonio Riggrishio, 20 years, an Italian, from drowning. He was going down the second time. Swimming out to him Leet caught hold of him and swam for shore. The Italian clung on to him and almost pulled him down. A man who was near helped both out.

UNDER PROTECTION.

Drift of Opinion.

That there are many artificial means to happiness none would deny; culture, health, work, affection, faith, all tend toward a cheerful frame of mind. But also a certain genial acquiescence in one's own insignificance goes a long way toward the making of content.—Harper's Weekly.

"Spend all the time you can in the open air!" That's what the doctors say now to the patients, with more emphasis than ever before. The study by official experts of the best methods of securing wholesome ventilation and sanitation in all places of assemblage, and also in cars and stages of every sort, is making encouraging headway. Physicians are now enthusiastic for the fresh air treatment rather than the use of drugs for many ailments. "Out in the open!" is the present day motto, and this the season for its operation to the fullest extent possible.—Bangor Commercial.

CRISIS IS REACHED

Emperor of Japan Demands Surrender of Port Arthur

NON-COMBATANTS SAFE

Will Be Released If Fortress Is Handed Over to Japs, Who Appear to Have Occupied Important Land Positions

Tokio, Aug. 17.—The emperor's order to release the non-combatants at Port Arthur, coupled with a demand for the surrender of the fortress, was delivered yesterday. An answer is expected today.

Anxiety Not Relieved

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—Public anxiety regarding the fate of the ships of Rear Admiral Withoft's squadron remaining unaccounted for is still unrelieved. The admiralty neither confirms nor denies the report that a majority of the squadron returned to Port Arthur, although it does not fail to point out that only the most desperate situation after the sea fight could have compelled the vessels to return for refuge to that port.

Unwilling Acknowledgement

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—The report of the sinking of the armored cruiser Rurik is known to be true in official circles and the public has been prepared for a definite announcement by the publication of a report that she has been grievously damaged. The authorities, out of consideration for the families of the officers and sailors, decided to withhold an official announcement until after they have received an official report upon the return of the cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi to Vladivostok, where they should have arrived by this time. The opinion is growing that the heavy losses sustained by the Port Arthur fleet may completely alter the plans regarding the Baltic squadron, a division of which is cruising in the gulf ready to sail.

Japs Have Upper Hand

Chefoo, Aug. 17.—Yesterday's sortie of the Russian warships from Port Arthur is regarded as a confirmation of previous reports that the Japanese have occupied an important land position, the fire from which compelled the Russian vessels to leave the harbor. It is not certain that they returned to their former anchorage after the sortie.

Junks which left Port Arthur Aug. 13 report that heavy fighting was continuing.

Russia Wants Destroyer Returned

London, Aug. 17.—The Pekin correspondent of The Times says the note of the Russian government demands that China shall regain possession of the torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni and degrade Admiral Sah, commanding at Chefoo. The correspondent says that no communication has yet been received by the Chinese foreign office either from France or Germany in connection with the Ryeshitelni affair.

Russians Evidently Short of Food

Shanghai, Aug. 17.—The men wounded on board the Russian cruiser Askold were almost absolutely starving when they were brought from the ship to a hospital here. They are now doing well. The Japanese consul here demands of the Chinese authorities that the Askold disarm. The Chinese attitude on this matter is characterized by their usual indecision.

Nothing New From Manchuria

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—There are no developments in the situation in Manchuria, except the receipt of a report by the general staff of the continuance of rains and reports of the general exodus of the Chinese inhabitants, who are fleeing northward from Liao Yang in anticipation of the coming military operations.

Anchored Until War Is Over

Tsingtau, Aug. 17.—Governor Truppel states that the Russian ships will not be permitted to leave the harbor until after the conclusion of the war. A Japanese flag lieutenant made an important inspection of the Russian ships yesterday.

Roads In Bad Condition

Mukden, Aug. 17.—There has been a steady downpour of rain for two days and the roads are becoming heavy. No Japanese movement has been reported southeast of this city, but the Japanese are reported to be working around to the westward of Mukden.

Jap Losses In Naval Battle

Tokio, Aug. 17.—According to an official report, the Japanese losses in the battle between Vice Admiral Kamimura's squadron and the Vladivostok cruisers, in which the Russian cruiser Rurik was sunk, were 10 officers and 100 men killed or wounded.

Russians Between Two Fires

London, Aug. 17.—A dispatch to the Central News from Tokio says that a big oil warehouse at Port Arthur is blazing furiously and that the position of the besieged is such that the Japanese are urging them to surrender.

Eluded Japanese Vigilance

London, Aug. 17.—The Yokohama correspondent of The Daily Mail says that the cruiser Novik of the Port Arthur squadron has been sighted off the Straits of Van Diemen, steering for Vladivostok.

IN A GRAND REUNION

Suggestion That Wearers of Blue and Gray Meet at Washington

Boston, Aug. 17.—As a result of the former visit of the party of Confederates to the G. A. R. encampment as the guests of Kingsley post, a grand reunion in Washington of the soldiers who wore the blue and those who wore the gray is among the possibilities of the near future. Colonel Sampson of Dallas, one of the visitors, put forth the idea with the declaration that such an event, in his opinion, would receive the cordial support of the people of the south. Such a reunion, if held, would be unparalleled in the history of the world's warfare.

"The people of the south, so far as I can judge," said Colonel Simpson, "would welcome such a reunion. The war has been over nearly 40 years, the old feeling has passed away, our boys and the boys who fought under Grant have fought side by side against the common foe, and it is only a step further to have one great reunion of the two great armies."

Reduced Fares on Steamships

Boston, Aug. 17.—A new and far-reaching phase is given to the trans-Atlantic steamship rate war by the Cunard company, which has made a cut in the east bound cabin rates. By the cut the minimum first-cabin rates east on steamships Campania and Lucania are reduced to $60 from $100, and the second-cabin rates to $40. The minimum first-cabin rates on all other passenger steamers of the line from New York and from this port are placed at $50, and the second-cabin rates at $30, by the cut, a reduction of $30 in the first-cabin fare and $12½ in the second.

Trying to Enforce Lockout

Hartford, Aug. 17.—The Master Masons' association has brought suit against Pietro Leoni, a member, for $5000 alleged damages in failing to lock out his men. Leoni was fined $2000 by the association and he refused to pay. A similar suit has been brought against Theodore Newton, another member, for $5000, for alleged violation of an agreement to abide by a majority vote on the question of a lockout, Newton having his men at work in spite of the lockout declared against the building trades.

A Bogus Insurance Agent

Boston, Aug. 17.—A year in the house of correction is the sentence imposed upon Joseph P. Durgin by Judge Wentworth for fraudulent solicitation of life insurance. His method was to solicit insurance business for a concern which does not exist, or go to people whose policies had been allowed to lapse, telling them that for a small sum he would make a renewal of their papers. He found many victims among the poor people.

Fifty Years a City

Rockland, Me., Aug. 17.—The semi-centennial anniversary celebration of the incorporation of the city of Rockland and the organization of the first city government is in progress. A large cannon, mounted on two granite bases, was presented in behalf of the Union Veterans' union to the city. Semi-centennial exercises, with an address of welcome by Mayor Rhodes and a historical address, were the chief features.

No More Grocery Checks

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 17.—That the stations which had been established for the relief of needy cotton mill operatives will be closed was the conclusion reached at a protracted meeting of the Textile council. Distribution of food and produce which may be donated from time to time will be continued, but no grocery checks will be distributed.

Government Tug Badly Damaged

Boston, Aug. 17.—The government tug Iwana and tug Murrell collided last evening near Lewis wharf. Both boats were badly injured, but the Iwana apparently had the worst of the collision and it will cost considerable to repair her. The collision seems to have been caused by a misunderstanding of signals by the captain of the Murrell.

Ready For the Campaign

Boston, Aug. 17.—Secretary of the Treasury Shaw arrived here today on the way to Squirrel Island, Me., for a brief visit to his family. Late this week he will start on a campaign tour and will make speeches in Montana, Washington, Oregon, California and probably in Utah and Colorado.

Victory For Piece Workers

Whitman, Mass., Aug. 17.—The trouble at the Regal Shoe company's factory here over the introduction of time registering, which caused a shut-down, has been adjusted, and the factory has resumed. The piece workers, who objected to registering, need not register hereafter.

Joe Jefferson's Sickness

Buzzards Bay, Mass., Aug. 17.—Joseph Jefferson, who has been indisposed through an attack of indigestion, is very much improved, according to Dr. Fitz, who had been called from Boston to attend the actor. Dr. Fitz says there is not the slightest cause for alarm.

Boy Shot Through the Heart

Portland, Me., Aug. 17.—As a result of carelessness in the handling of a revolver by some playmates, Edwin Thomas, 13 years old, was shot through the heart and killed.

Turfmen In Boating Accident

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Tod Sloan, the jockey, and two other turfmen, Charles F. Dwyer and Victor Williams, narrowly escaped drowning at Saratoga lake. Their sailboat was capsized by a squall and they were rescued a mile from shore.

CITY BREVITIES.

Timely Protest.

Editors of the Quincy Ledger:

I want to second the timely and urgent protest made by "Atlantic" in last week's issue. It should arouse a determination in Quincy to banish from its borders "the gross immoral practices and lawlessness seen at Squantum Head."

I earnestly hope, and doubt not, Mayor Bryant will exert his influence with the Boston authorities to have fair Squantum made a respectable resort for all to visit.

Your correspondent, "Atlantic," should receive the thanks of all lovers of law and order for calling public attention to this matter. R.

Difficult Digestion

That is dyspepsia.
It makes life miserable.
Its sufferers eat not because they want to, —but simply because they must.
They know they are irritable and fretful; but they cannot be otherwise.
They complain of a bad taste in the mouth, a tenderness at the pit of the stomach, an uneasy feeling of puffy fulness, headache, heartburn and what not.
The effectual remedy, proved by permanent cures of thousands of severe cases, is

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

PATRIOTIC UTTERANCES

Old Soldiers Find Plenty to Occupy Their Attention at Boston Encampment--The Survivors of Three Wars, Ex-Prisoners and Bluejackets In Fine Parade

Boston, Aug. 16.—A reunion of comrades of the states of the Union, an exchange of happy recollections and a fraternal mingling of Confederates and Unionists marked the opening in this city of the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. In the day a picturesque parade of the Union ex-prisoners of war, bluejackets from the United States warships and others marked the opening of the great G. A. R. convention, together with its numerous subsidary organizations, including the Women's Relief Corps, the Ladies of the G. A. R. and the Sons and Daughters of Veterans.

In the night, in historic Faneuil hall, a score of former Confederate officers gathered around the banquet board as the guests of Edward W. Kingsley post of Boston, as did also Lafayette post of New York, and here were annunciated firmly and convincingly the declarations that the north and south are strongly and inseparably welded into one nation, with the past strife forgotten forever.

At the Faneuil hall dinner Captain Gay, ex-Confederate officer of Atlanta, was the principal speaker. He said in part:

"I do not feel that I am asked to rejoice with you in the triumph of your arms in the Civil war and the defeat of the cause for which every true Confederate soldier was ready to sacrifice his life, but we do rejoice with you that the principles for which the south contended in the Union and out of it survived the terrible shock of war and apparent defeat, and today we may hold these principles in common as essential to perpetuity of our form of government where the rights of all are guaranteed and the weakness of one becomes the strength of all in an 'indissoluble union of indestructable states.'

"Accepting in good faith the terms of surrender, the men of the south returned to their devastated homes, and dispite the gloom o. waste, and want, and poverty, they girded their loins for the conflict of progress and peace, and here we are, that you may rejoice with us that our countrymen of the south have met, and are meeting, the issues of the living present in a manner worthy of their record in war."

Continuing, Captain Gay called attention to the great material progress in the south and referred also to the fact that the sons of the south were not laggards in the Spanish war. In closing he prayed that the day be not far distant when it will not be necessary to display blood-stained and tattered banners as evidence of greatness and glory.

In the striking pageant of the day marched survivors of three wars, the Mexican war, the Civil war, represented by the Union ex-prisoners, and the Spanish war, as commemorated by the League of Spanish War Veterans. The parade, composed of about 6000 men, was reviewed by Mayor Collins at City hall and Governor Bates, Senator Lodge and Former Secretary of the Navy Long at the state house. At the Faneuil hall dinner Governor Bates gave the welcome of the commonwealth, and several Confederate officers declared for the spirit of unity between the north and south.

Another meeting of the evening was the campfire at Tremont temple held by the Union ex-prisoners of war, with prominent speakers, while the reception of the Women's Relief Corps at the Hotel Vendome to the G. A. R. was a notable function.

The campfire of the National Association of Union ex-Prisoners of War was held in Tremont temple last night in connection with the 32nd national encampment of the association. The auditorium of the temple was beautifully decorated with bunting and laurel. Music by organ and band preceded the opening of the campfire. Patriotic airs and old war melodies were played, the veterans joining in the refrain in one mighty chorus.

Colonel Walker of Pittsburg, national commander of the association, opened the evening's exercises in a brief address. He announced that Governor Pennypacker and General Stewart of Pennsylvania and Governor Bliss of Michigan, who had intended addressing the campfire, were unable to be present.

Captain Read, U. S. N., the presiding officer of the evening, recounted some of his experiences during an eight months' confinement in a Confederate prison pen, and he declared that the men who died miserably in military prisons were as heroic and did as glorious a work for their country as did those who charged the enemy in battle. Lieutenant Governor Guild also made an address.

Judge W. H. H. Emmons, chairman of the Boston police commission, received an ovation when he was introduced. The applause was so enthusiastic and prolonged that he was unable to proceed for several minutes. Judge Emmons' remarks were devoted wholly to reminiscenses of his service with General Sheridan in the Shenandoah valley.

General Samuel Chamberlain of Barre Plains, Mass., a veteran of the Mexican war as well as the Civil war, and J. C. Ferguson of Keokuk, Ia., national chaplain of the ex-Prisoners' association, spoke interestingly of incidents of their campaign.

Governor Bates referred to the many celebrations and reunions which had occurred during the day and said that he had postponed his visits in order that he might hear to the last the lesson in patriotism taught by the men who had suffered and starved in Libby, Andersonville and Belle Isle.

The national officers of the Women's Relief Corps gave a reception to Commander-in-Chief Black and other national officers of the Grand Army and friends in the parlors of Hotel Vendome last evening. There were many present, and the affair was one of great brilliancy. At the same time and place the Massachusetts W. R. C. received members of the Grand Army and friends. Miss Clara Barton, former president of the Red Cross society, was among those who received at both functions and practically the same guests were received.

Bruorton, by deed dated November 3, 1903, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 960, page 507, and running northwesterly along the said premises conveyed by said Parsons as aforesaid, seven hundred forty-two (742) feet, more or less, to land now or late of Mrs. Austin White; thence running northeasterly along said land now or late of said White, one hundred twenty-two (122) feet, more or less, to an angle; thence running southeasterly and bounded northeast rly by said land of White, about one hundred twelve (112) feet to an angle; thence turning and running northeasterly and bounded northwesterly by said land of White, about eighty (80) feet to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running southerly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company, about six hundred and sixty (660) feet, to said Elm street; thence turning and running along said Elm street to the point of beginning.

Parcel No. 6. Also a certain parcel of land situated in said Braintree, bounded northeasterly by said Commercial street; southeasterly by a private way formerly Elm street, which private way leads from said Elm street to said Commercial street; westerly by land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; northwesterly by land now or formerly of said White. The two parcels last above described are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by said Birney C. Parsons, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 955, page 136.

Parcel No. 7. A certain piece or parcel of land situated on the northeasterly side of Howard avenue, in that part of said Quincy known as Quincy Neck, bounded northwesterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of George J. Sargent, five hundred and seventy-one (571) feet, northeasterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of heirs of Noah Bosworth, one hundred and forty and four-tenths (140.4) feet, southeasterly by the land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of Malchionda, five hundred and sixty-one (561) feet, and southwesterly by Howard avenue, one hundred and forty-one (141) feet, being premises formerly of Noah Bosworth, deceased.

Parcel No. 8. All the line of railroad of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, extending from and including the yard of said Company in said Quincy to the line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in said Braintree, together with the land appurtenant and adjacent thereto belonging to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, and all rights and easements appurtenant thereto or used in connection therewith, and particularly the rights granted to the Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Kerby Stevens and Frederick H. Allen by deeds dated respectively December 31, 1903, and January 15, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 25, 1904, —subject, however, to the rights granted by said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to said Kerby Stevens by deed dated December 31, 1903, recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 26, 1904.

A portion of the premises to be conveyed is subject to a mortgage from Charles W. Pike to Albert H. Davenport dated November 14, 1902, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 934 page 545.

The conveyance will also be made subject to an easement granted by the Fore River Ship and Engine Company to the Old Colony Street Railway Company by deed dated January 30, 1904, to erect, operate and maintain upon certain terms, conditions, reservations and exceptions a pole line for the transmission of electricity and for telephones for the private use of said Railway Company along the route described as follows:—

Beginning at the South Shore Branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in Braintree, Massachusetts, thence extending northwesterly over land conveyed to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Sidney Coolidge by deed dated January 7th, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 965, page 137, to Adams street; thence crossing said Adams street and continuing northwesterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Elm street; thence crossing said Elm street and continuing northerly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Commercial street; thence crossing said Commercial street and continuing northeasterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to land now or formerly of one Patch.

The following parcel, which has been released from the lien of said mortgage or deed of trust, by instrument of release dated June 4, 1904, will be excepted from the conveyance:—

A certain parcel beginning on Commercial street at land now or late of John W. Ratcliffe and running westerly on said land one hundred and eight [108] feet to a stake on the margin of Factory Pond so called; thence turning and running northerly and northwesterly on a curved line along the margin of said pond four hundred and five [405] feet more or less to a stake on the margin of said pond situated twenty-five [25] feet from the centre line of the Fore River Railroad as now laid out; thence turning and running northeasterly eighty-six feet three inches [86 ft. 3 in.] to a stake on Adams street situated ninety-four [94] feet more or less from the center line of said railroad where it crosses the southerly side of Adams street; thence turning and running southeasterly on Adams street to Commercial street and southerly on Commercial street a total distance of four hundred ninety feet four inches [490 ft. 4 in.] to the point of beginning.

The conveyance will include, in addition to the property, rights, privileges and franchises above described, any property, rights, privileges and franchises not herein described which may at the time of sale be covered by said orginal mortgage or deed of trust of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company or any indenture to the Adams Trust Company supplemental thereto. The conveyance to the purchaser will be made without covenants, express or implied. Article XIII of said mortgage or deed of trust provides that said Fore River Ship & Engine Company will, upon request of the purchaser at foreclosure sale, make, execute and deliver to said purchaser a good and sufficient deed or deeds to confirm the title in said purchaser.

The said property will be sold as an entirety to the highest bidder, subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments and other liens, if any. No bid will be received from any person who shall not first deposit with the auctioneer, as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, the sum of Twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. Deposits so received from any unsuccessful bidders will be returned to them when the property shall be struck off, and the deposit so received from any successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price of the property sold. On the acceptance of any bid the purchaser shall forthwith pay to the auctioneer in addition to the amount of the deposit qualifying him to bid as above provided, the sum of Twenty five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. The purchaser shall within ten days from the date of sale pay to the Adams Trust Company as Trustee, on account of the purchase price, an additional sum sufficient to make his total payments equal to (30) per cent. of such purchase price, and the balance of the purchase price shall be paid and the property transferred on or before the expiration of thirty days from date of sale. In case any bidder shall fail to make good his bid upon its acceptance, or shall fail after its acceptance to make the further payments hereinbefore required, then his right to receive and purchase the property shall at the option of the said Trust Company at once cease, and said Trust Company shall have the right to proceed at once to re-sell the property, and all sums deposited or paid by him shall be forfeited and shall be applied to the payment of the expenses and charges in connection with the re-sale and toward making good any deficiency, loss or damage resulting from such failure and re-sale, whether arising from the delay, from the fact that the second sale is made at a less price than the first, or from any other cause, and any balance remaining shall be repaid to the defaulting bidder or purchaser. The purchaser may in making payment of the purchase money, deliver to the Trustee any of the bonds or coupons secured by said mortgage or deed of trust, said bonds or coupons to be computed at a sum equal to that which would be payable out of the net proceeds of said sale (if made for money) to the purchaser as the holder of the bonds and coupons so delivered for his share or proportion of such net proceeds.

Further information may be had on application to the undersigned or its counsel.

Old Line Companies Lose Patrons

Cleveland, Aug. 17.—Cleveland men largely interested in traction lines and electric light plants have incorporated two mutual insurance enterprises, one to carry the insurance of electric lighting plants and traction power stations and the other the insurance on all property under the control of traction companies. Alleged unbearable restrictions and exorbitant premiums of the old line insurance companies is given as the cause for the formation of the new companies.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR

Steam or Hot Water Heaters

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

BURNED AT STAKE

Fate of Two of a Band of Negro Murderers

GUARD OVERPOWERED

Mob Found That Rifles Were Unloaded and Speedily Got Prisoners, Following Which a Terrible Scene Was Enacted

Statesboro, Ga., Aug. 17.—With clothing saturated with kerosene, writhing in agony and screaming to Heaven for the mercy that the mob would not show, Paul Reed and Will Cato, negroes, two of the principals in the murder and burning of Henry Hodges and wife and three of their children six miles from Statesboro, three weeks ago, were burned at the stake yesterday afternoon.

A determined mob charged on the courthouse, overpowered the military guard, secured Cato and Reed, who had been found guilty after a legal trial and sentenced to be hanged, took them two miles from Statesboro and there burned them alive.

Prominent men, among them Rev. Mr. Hodges, brother of the murdered men, addressed the crowd at the courthouse and begged them to disperse. Sheriff Kendrick was among these. He cautioned the crowd against violence and pleaded with them to leave and allow the law to take its course, but without avail.

Presently some 25 men crowded around the guards outside the courthouse and soon had caught two of them, wrested their rifles from them and thrown open the breech blocks. The weapons were empty. That was what the crowd wanted to ascertain. The troops had been given orders not to load their rifles. The captured soldiers were held prisoners. The same policy was followed with others of the soldiers. Man after man was relieved of his rifle after a struggle.

The small guard about the prisoners inside withdrew into the room and closed the door. The mob crashed against it and the prisoners were at their mercy, all resistance having been beaten down. Cato, Reed, Handy Bell and the other prisoners charged with the Hodges murders cowered before the crowd. They dragged Cato and Reed out, but released Bell into the hands of the few soldiers left there as soon as they learned that he was not Reed, for whom they had mistaken him.

Reed was taken down one stairway with a rope about his neck and Cato down the other, both pleading for their lives. The doomed men were dragged, the crowd shouting and cheering, along the roadway leading to the Hodges homestead, where the five members of the family had been murdered and burned. That was their destination.

The heat was so intense that the crowd wearied when two miles of the six-mile route had been traversed and the crowd halted. The two negroes were made to seat themselves on a log. They were told they had but a short time to live and that they should confess.

Reed was the first to speak. He confessed, implicating other negroes. He denied, however, that he had taken an active part in the murder. Cato answered incoherently.

Cato begged to be shot or hanged, saying that he had had no part in the crime. A member of the mob made a speech recounting the horrors of the crime. This inflamed the crowd to the burning pitch. To a stump 12 feet high the men were chained with their backs to the stump. Then a wagonload of pine wood was piled around the men and 10 gallons of kerosene was thrown over them.

A photographer was present and the crowd was cleared back that he might get several views of the men bound to the stake and ready for the burning.

Then followed an awful scene. Frenzied cheers rent the air as men, almost crazed with hatred of the victims, saw the flames envelop them. Just as the match was applied to the pyre one of those in front asked Reed if he wanted to tell the truth before he died.

"Yes sir. I killed Mr. and Mrs. Hodges," he replied.

"Who killed the children?" he was asked.

"Handy Bell," came the response, as the flames leaped upwards and further questioning was impossible in the wild tumult. As the flames touched Reed's naked, oil-soaked skin he twisted his head around in an endeavor to choke himself and avoid the fearful torture. Only once did he complain. He said: "Lord, have mercy."

Cato screamed in agony and begged to be shot. For only about three minutes was he visible to the crowd before the great pile of faggots made a wall of flame which hid him from view. He was the first to become unconscious and was perhaps the first to die. As his head swung to and fro some of the more excited members of the party commenced throwing light wood knots at it. As soon as it was seen that the men were dead the crowd commenced dispersing. A large number remained behind, however, piling on more fuel until both bodies were consumed except the trunks. Others employed themselves in beating out the fire, which commenced spreading along the dry streaks of pine needles.

President Tells Veterans How Filipinos May Prosper

DELEGATES GET TO WORK

Commander Black Discusses Immigration and Pensions In His Address--Renewed Pledges of Friendship Between the North and the South

Boston, Aug. 18.—The real business of the Grand Army of the Republic, which is holding its annual encampment in this city, began with the convention of the organization and the conventions of other affiliated orders and societies. The majority of the former wearers of the Union blue spent the day and evening in renewing their army friendships, fighting their battles over again, and in enjoying the many attractions offered for their entertainment.

In the afternoon thousands of them journeyed to the navy yard at Charlestown to witness the launching of the training ship cumberland. Others spent the day in visiting Faneuil Hall, Bunker Hill, the Old South and Old North churches, the burial ground on Copp's Hill, the Old Granary burying ground, and other spots rich in historic associations.

A water carnival on the Charles river at Waltham was the chief attraction of the evening, and the electric and steam railway lines between between this city and Waltham were taxed to the limit to accommodate the great throngs of sightseers.

Between 1300 and 1400 delegates were present when the annual convention of the Grand Army of the Republic was called to order in Symphony hall. The feature of the proceedings was the reading of a letter from President Roosevelt expressing regrets at his inability to attend the encampment. In his letter the president referred to the acquisitions of the Philippines and declared that "it is only under the American flag that the people of the islands can preserve the public order, the individual freedom and national wellbeing. The work which has thus been done will not be undone, for the nation remains true to the memory of your own great deeds."

John C. Black delivered the annual address of the commander-in-chief and the reports of the adjutant general and quartermaster general were circulated. The business transacted was principally of a routine nature.

In his annual address, Commander-in Chief Black took occasion to refer to the question of immigration. He declared that the Grand Army of the Republic owed it to those who flocked to the shores of America to let them know how high should be the character and how ample the preparation of those who seek the privilege of blood-bought franchises, and how complete should be the responsibility of those in public places to the American requirements for citizenship and officialism.

On the subject of pensions the commander urged that further attempts be made to crystallize into statute law the provisions of the executive order, promulgated by the commissioner of pensions in March of this year, which calls for the pensioning of veterans who have passed the age of 62 years, shall be considered disabled one-half in ability to perform manual labor and shall be entitled to a pension ranging from $6 to $12 a month.

Veterans of the Union and Confederate armies assembled at the Revere house at the reunion of the 38th Massachusetts regiment. The special guests were the ex-Confederate officers who have been guests of the Kingsley post during the week. They were General Eshleman, General Behan and Colonel Blakeley of New Orleans, General Castleman of Louisville, Captain Timberlake of Louisville, Judge Gallowway and Colonel Finley of Memphis, Captain Gay of Atlanta, Major Buford of Nashville and Cyrus B. Watson of North Carolina.

There was an hour or more devoted to the exchange of greetings, after which the company, 250 in all, marched to the banquet hall. It was in the after-dinner speeches that the new bond of brotherhood was made apparent. The visitors from the south were heartily cheered during their speeches, and they in turn applauded at some reference to their part in the conflict, as voiced by a member of the northern army. The names of Grant and Lee were referred to with equal tenderness, and cheers at the mentions of these leaders were of equal volume.

At the annual convention of the National Women's Relief Corps Mrs. Fanny E. Minot of Manchester, N. H., was elected national president on the first ballot.

There were two candidates for the office of senior vice president, Mrs. Mary N. Fair of South Dakota and Mrs. Julia Sines of Illinois, Mrs. Fair being elected on the second ballot.

Birthday Anniversary of the Late Charles Francis Adams Recalls Labors of the Noted Family.

Today, August the 18th, is the anniversary of the birth of Charles Francis Adams, who was born in Boston Aug. 18, 1807, but made his residence in Quincy. He died on Nov. 21, 1886, after an eventful life. The Globe in a recent issue commented on his life as follows:

Nowhere in American history do we find a parallel to the political careers of the Adamses of Massachusetts. John Adams was the second President of the United States, and had been minister to England; John Quincy Adams, his son, was the sixth President of the United States, and had been minister to England; and Charles Francis Adams, son of John Quincy, though he never reached the presidency, was a candidate for that office, and held later the high and difficult post of minister to England.

It has been pointed out that the series of double coincidences in the Adams family between missions to England and treaties with that power is curious. First John Adams is a minister, just after his share in the treaty that concluded the revolutionary war; then his son John Quincy, just after the treaty that concluded the war of 1812; and then his grandson, Charles Francis, is minister during the civil war and afterward takes part in the treaty that disposed of the Alabama question.

Of the three Adamses, each of whom acted as minister to England, perhaps it is not unfair to say that the last rendered the greatest service to his country. For John Adams, the first minister to England, was presented at the court of George III after American independence had been won, and John Quincy Adams went there when the treaty of peace between the United States and Great Britain, after the war of 1812 had been completed; but Charles Francis Adams represented this country in England during all the perilous uncertainty of the civil war, and to the vigor of his personality, the strength of his character and the candor of his relations with the British government may be ascribed in a great measure whatever degree of success our diplomacy abroad enjoyed in that crisis.

Charles Francis Adams had all the characteristics and talents of his father and grandfather. Like them, he was intensely patriotic, and like them he pursued his ends with dogged determination and little or no attempt at concealment, while his demeanor was often haughty and defiant.

His career in England from 1861 to 1863 must be cited among the foremost triumphs of American diplomacy. Nothing escaped his vigilance, and he abated no jot of heart or hope in his constant defense of his country's interests. He had to contend with the veiled sympathy of Lord Russell with the confederate cause, and to spend most of his time in protest against British violations of the laws of neutrality, but he could not fail in securing the respect of those with whom he dealt, and through him respect for the nation he represented.

He had traveled with his father when John Quincy Adams was minister to Russia and to England and at an English boarding school where he was educated, he first practised the duty of defending his country. He entered politics on his return, and when he was 41 was nominated for vice president on the ticket with Martin Van Buren by the free soilers, who founded the republican party. Before his appointment as minister to England, he had served in congress as a republican.

Hugh De Payens commandery of Melrose will start tomorrow, and will include A. W. Stetson; De Molay commandery of Boston, August 21, to include Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Morse; and the Grand commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island later in the week. Miss C. S. Bliss goes with a Rhode Island commandery.

Champagne to be Used.

A Washington dispatch to the Herald says: Believing that a bottle of champagne shattered on the prow of a warship will impair neither its fighting qualities nor the morals of the nation, Acting Secretary Darling of the navy department has denied the petition of the Connecticut Christian Endeavor and temperance unions that the battleship Connecticut, soon to be launched at the New York navy yard be christened only with spring water.

Diabolical Work.

Someone, evidently anxious to cause an accident, removed the iron grating, of the catch basin in the middle of Hancock street, opposite Woodbine street, early this morning, leaving the basin open for some horse to walk into. Motorman Abbott of the early Neponset car discovered what had been done. He stopped his car and replaced the grating.

PRIZE WINNERS

At the Grand Carnival at Houghs Neck.

More Sports and Music Today.

An Antique and Horrible Parade This Evening.

There was a good attendance at the carnival at Houghs Neck Wednesday, but not as many probably as there will be today and tomorrow. During the afternoon there was a series of sports for the children which resulted as follows:

100 yard dash, for boys under 14 years, won by Ernest Gumpwright; Paul Case, second; Joseph Cullen, third.

Potato race, won by Joseph Cullen; James Cotter, second; Joseph Timety, third.

Pie eating contest, won by James Cotter; William Connell, second; Joseph Ryan, third.

Tub race, won by George Tessier; Edward Ryan, second.

Swimming race, won by Edward Ryan.

The committee also awarded a prize to George Tessier who appeared in the parade as a wandering minstrel.

In the evening there was a band concert and a display of fireworks.

The program for today will include field sports, band concerts afternoon and evening, and an antique and horrible parade tonight.

The Working Boys' band of Boston will give the concerts today both afternoon and evening.

The street railway is running extra cars and giving good service.

Veteran Called Home.

The Globe reports Anthony W. Montcalm of Weymouth to have died Wednesday as the result of exhaustion following the G. A. R. parade in Boston.

As a member of Reynolds post 58 he marched in the procession. He returned tired out, but showed no other signs of illness. He was found dead in bed in the morning.

Mr. Montcalm was 78 years old and was a member of Co. G, 16th Mass., during the war. Several children survive.

TODAY'S COURT.

John J. Hann was sent to the house of correction for thirty days for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Edward E. Baxter and Patrick Haggerty were fined $3 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Dennis Lee was sent to the State farm for drunkenness at Milton.

James M. Murdock was fined $15 for speeding an automobile on the Blue Hills reservation.

R. A. Cartwright was arraigned for uttering threats at Weymouth. Case continued until Sept. 22.

Augustus Buyer was arraigned for disturbing the peace at Quincy. A plea of nolo contendere was accepted, and a fine of $3 imposed.

Albert Nottage and John D. Dempsey were arraigned for malicious mischief at Holbrook. Cases continued until Sept. 8.

The continued case of Carmi P. Gardner, for larceny at Quincy, was heard. He was found not guilty and was discharged.

Battleship Race.

The battleship Louisiana, built at a private yard will be launched ahead of the Connecticut, a sister ship built at the Brooklyn navy yard.

ADAMS CHAPTER

Guests on the Warships Massachusetts and Hartford.

The members of Adams chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, and the Junior Society, visited the warships in Boston harbor on Wednesday under very favorable circumstances. Through the solicitation of Mrs. Titus, the regent, they were the guests of Commander Eaton of the Battleship Massachusetts, who sent a launch to Driscoll's wharf for them at 10 A. M. The regular hours for visitors were from 1 to 5 P. M., so the Quincy party escaped the crowd, and were shown every attention.

It was a busy day for Commander Eaton, because Secretary Morton of the navy was hourly expected in the harbor, and both were to attend the launching of the Cumberland at the Navy yard; but he received the ladies courteously, extended to them the freedom of his quarters, and placed them in charge of officers on the battleship, who escorted them over the ship and explained everything.

They visited the mess room and saw food prepared; had explained to them the workings of the big guns, the torpedoes and the mines, the ice making plant, etc., visited the turret, the bridge, the library, and most every part of the ship, both below deck and above deck. It was good fortune of the party to be on the Massachusetts when the Dolphin with Secretary Morton was sighted, and a salute was fired from each ship when the Dolphin passed and steamed to the Navy yard.

While on the Massachusetts, the party received an invitation to visit the training ship Hartford. Arriving there at the noon hour, they saw the boys at dinner. No style was put on for the boys on the lower deck and their diet was simple; but those on the next deck had a table cloth and more variety, while the officers had a well appointed table with all the fixings.

They were escorted all over the ship. The process of loading a big gun was explained in detail. Every courtesy was shown.

From the Hartford the party was taken in the ship's launch to the Navy yard, and were given an advantageous position to see the launching of the Cumberland.

In the party were: Mrs. N. V. Titus, regent; Mrs. Frank F. Prescott, Mrs. William Porter, Mrs. Henry Belcher, Mrs. Frank Brewer, Mrs. P. C. H. Braley, Mrs. F. C. Granger, Mrs. C. T. Granger, Miss Mary L. Hinkley, Miss Mary Houghton, Mrs. George T. Magee, Mrs. Francis G. Mayo, Miss Harriet B. Pierce, Mrs. Osborne Rogers, Mrs. C. B. Tilton, Mrs. Susan J. Wilde. Mrs. Charles Wilson, Miss Mildred Rogers, Miss Irma Tilton, Miss Louise Hinkley and Master Henry Prescott.

Popular With Atlantic People.

Bridgton, Maine, and vicinity, seem to have been particularly attractive to Quincy people the present season. At the Bridgton House, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Coe, Miss Alice Coe, Miss Emilie Gassett and Dr. R. B. Porter were registered.

A progressive whist party was given Saturday evening, the 6th, in which all the guests of the house participated, and Miss Gassett was fortunate enough to win the first prize for ladies. Last Saturday a second party was given when Mrs. Coe secured the first lady's prize, and Dr. Porter the first gentleman's prize. The guests thought that whist must be quite a popular game for Quincy people.

At North Bridgton, Mr. and Mrs. Cherrington and Miss Sadie Melzard of Atlantic are spending two or three weeks at the Songo House.

Rev. Mr. Crathern of South Braintree preached a the Congregational church, Bridgton, Maine, last Sunday and Miss Alice Coe of Atlantic was the soloist.

Granite Shipments.

Returns from the shipment of granite from the railroad terminals for the month of July show the total amount of granite shipped by rail to have been 15,007,480 pounds. This is an increase of 2,903,625 pounds over the previous month. Of the amount shipped, 8,164,965 pounds were forwarded from West Quincy; 4,561,985 pounds from South Quincy, and 1,780,530 pounds over the Quarry railroad.

Names Wanted.

Kindly send to the Daily Ledger promptly the names of your G. A. R. guests, and other visitors.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased his gold production from $53,000,000 to $74,000,000, an increase of $21,000,000.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The festivities of G. A. R. week are saddened by the unfavorable news from the bedside of Senator Hoar. The senior Massachusetts senator has long been held in high esteem not only by his constituents but by the nation at large, and he has done much to maintain the prestige of the old Bay State.

Some papers in Germany think President Roosevelt's demonstration against Turkey was for the purpose of catching the "missionary vote." Undoubtedly—there are 2,000,000 missionaries in America anxious to go in and convert Turkey. But thus far shotted cannon have been found the most effective when dealing with the son of the Prophet.

The third battle of Bull Run, which is to be fought next September, will cost $1,500,000. Already troops are on the march from Fort Ethan Allen in Vermont. They will have a 700-mile tramp. One thousand horses will be taken to the field; there will be thirty eight ambulances; and six escort wagons. The boys all over the Union are enthusiastic at the prospect of fighting on the same field where their fathers fought and bled more than forty years ago. It is expected that a vast crowd of spectators will witness the mock carnage.

It is truly a great week for the Grand Army and the people of greater Boston in general. Wide open hospitality has been extended to the veterans and the attractions over lap one another. Boston is beautifully decorated by day and night. The parade was one of the grandest ever held. The river carnival at Waltham was incomparable. The auto parade will be a novelty. The electrical pageant tonight will be something beautiful and grand. But many veterans will appreciate the excursions on the salt water the best. The attractions are numerous.

Drift of Opinion.

☞President Roosevelt is shy on newspaper support in New York city, and the Sun's accession is hardly a reliable help. The Sun is a very effective newspaper fighter in opposition. But it friendliness is apt to be tainted with a mischievous flippancy or a deadly treachery. It tortured Grant, put Hayes in the pillory, killed Hancock and persecuted Cleveland. We believe it tolerated Arthur and sneered at Harrison. It never really liked any one but Tilden and McKinley. It has camped on Roosevelt's trail for three years and now it has torpedoed Parker. What it may do defies anything but omniscience. If its support involves also the support of Mr. Morgan, the balance between good and bad effect will be pretty even.—Waterbury American.

GEORGIA'S SHAME

Continuance of Violence Without the Usual Reasons

MOB LAW IS SOVEREIGN

Floggings of Such Frequent Occurrence as to Attract No Attention--Deliberate Plan to Dispose of Certain Negroes

Statesboro, Ga., Aug. 18.—"We shall have trouble with the negroes here just as long as they can't behave," was the remark of a leading citizen of Statesboro, as he commented on the terrible scenes of Tuesday. That he was not mistaken was shown by the developments of yesterday. One negro found dead by the roadside five miles east of the town, his body pierced by two Winchester bullets; two negroes, one of the "old-time darkies" and his son, 17 years old, shot in their cabin by unknown marauders; half a dozen cases of flogging, which are of nightly occurrence, too frequent to excite more than passing notice—such was the history of the day.

The scene of excitement has shifted from this city to the rich agricultural region surrounding it. At Riggs Mill, six miles from here, several well-to-do white planters met yesterday afternoon and deliberately planned how to rid their neighborhood of obnoxious negroes. Individual negroes were marked for lashings and last night part of the program was carried out. Two victims, a black man and a black woman, were marked at Register, 10 miles from here. Their offenses are alleged disrespectful protests against the white supremacy here.

This is the condition in this section. It is not a race war, for violence comes all from one side. It is a determined effort on the part of a large class of citizens to rid the community of a class of blacks that is said to have made life unsafe here. Men of property and family make no secret of their intentions or of their approval of such plans. If the lash will not quell the undesirable population or cause them to leave, sterner measures will follow, say the leaders, and will continue until the section is purged.

These facts were made clear to a newspaper man in a drive of more than 20 miles through the country and they were as plainly stated to him in this city.

A calmer review of Tuesday's happenings than was possible that night among the citizens of Statesboro brings some expression of regret at the violence, while many say it was "all right." The general opinion is that a determined stand by the officers in command of the handful of troops would have prevented the burning of the two negroes.

It is stated that the Statesboro militia have prepared their resignations for the governor.

Alabama Negro Lynched

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 18.—Rufus Lesseur, a negro, was shot to death by a mob outside the calaboose of Thomaston. He had been loafing around the place several days and had committed two robberies.

More Naturalization Frauds

New York, Aug. 18.—When Haber J. Aflak, a wealthy Syrian merchant of Hayti, was arrested in connection with the alleged naturalization frauds upon which the United States officials in this city have been at work some time, it was announced that a widespread traffic in fraudulent naturalization papers issued by Connecticut courts had been brought to light. Hundreds of citizens of Hayti are said to be involved in the alleged frauds.

To Stump In New England

Washington, Aug. 18.—Secretary Wilson will leave tomorrow night for Vermont, where he will make a number of speeches in the campaign preceding the special election there. His speech-making itinerary in Vermont will occpy until Sept. 1 and he will then go to Maine, to participate in the campaign there. Secretary Taft will make a speech at Montpelier, Vt., on the 26th inst. and one at Portland, Me., on the 30th inst.

Supposed Dead Comrade Appeared

Boston, Aug. 18.—At the reunion of the First Maine heavy artillery Benjamin C. Frost of Minnesota, who has been on the rolls for 15 years as dead, walked in on his comrades and announced that a mistake had been made regarding him in the army records. Business was suspended, so great was the surprise of the veterans, and it was some minutes before the newly arrived one was able to get to a seat.

Parker May Go on Stumping Tour

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Nearly every delegation arriving at Rosemount from the west urges Judge Parker to go on a stumping tour during the campaign and visit all doubtful states and so much pressure has been brought to bear upon him that he has promised to give the invitations serious consideration.

Fire Results From Drouth

Vienna, Aug. 18.—Disastrous conflagrations are occurring in Hungary in consequence of the prolonged drouth. Hundreds of houses have been destroyed by fire in various villages during the past week, in which from 15 to 20 persons have been burned to death.

FRAUD ORDER ISSUED

North American Trust Barred From Mail Services

Boston, Aug. 18.—Notice was received at the Boston postoffice that a permanent fraud order has been issued by the postoffice department against the North American Trust which, until the arrest of its officials in Boston, was operating here and in several other cities of Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. The fraud order is issued against all the offices of the trust, so that it cannot be reached by mail at any of its former addresses.

The trust made every effort to prevent the issuance of this order. Acting under its privilege it sent an attorney from Boston to Washington to defend its business, but he failed to convince the postmaster general that the business was of such a character as to entitle it to the use of the United States mail service. The stop order which was issued prior to the arrest of Barry, Webster and Record, temporarily stopping the delivery of any mail to the company, was therefore made permanent. This breaks up the business of the concern completely.

Sanft Held For Grand Jury

Boston, Aug. 18.—Conceding that the government has evidence enough to hold him, Dr. Frank Sanft, the alleged counterfeiter, waived examination when arraigned before Commissioner Fiske, and he was held for the grand jury. Bail was fixed at the same amount, $10,000, under which he has been held since his first arraignment. No bondsmen have come forward to give securities for his release and he went back to jail. Sanft is charged with counterfeiting and passing $2 notes. More than 5000 such bills were found by the police in his home, together with paraphernalia supposed to have been used in the manufacture of these bills.

An Alleged Straw Bondsman

Malden, Mass., Aug. 18.—John E. Staples was arrested at his office here, on a charge of perjury, by a Boston police inspector. The complaint alleges that Staples appeared before a bail commissioner and gave bail for Edward Bradley, a pickpocket. He claimed then to be the owner of a house and land worth $2700, assessed for $2200. Bradley subsequently defaulted and the ensuing inquiries did not substantiate the statements on which the bail bond was granted. Staples' bail was placed at $5000, which was not secured. Staples was an alderman and has for years been active in the politics of the city.

Serious Collision of Trolleys

Peabody, Mass., Aug. 18.—Five people were injured, one probably fatally, in a head-on collision between trolley cars near the line dividing Lynnfield and Peabody, at 12:15 o'clock this morning. The accident occurred on a single tracked road and was due to a misunderstanding of orders. The worst injured is Harold Smith, 25 years old, who sustained severe injuries to back and internal injuries.

Trying to Purify Old Orchard

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 18.—Charles E. Butler and Henry Roberts have been re-arrested, charged with infractions of the Sunday laws. They are both promoters of amusements against the operation of which on Sunday a crusade is being made. In the cases of Nathan Walfe and W. M. White, charged with similar offenses, Walfe was discharged because of a defective warrant and White was found not guilty.

Launch of the Cumberland

Boston, Aug. 18.—"I name thee Cumberland," said Miss Pauline Morton, daughter of the secretary of the navy, as she smashed a bottle of champagne upon the prow of the new United States steam training ship as it gracefully glided into the water at the Charlestown navy yard yesterday afternoon. The 20,000 spectators sent up cheer after cheer.

Indicted For Trolley Disaster

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 18.—The grand jury has returned indictments for manslaughter against W. A. Dunn and E. I. Balcom, motorman and conductor, respectively, of the east bound car in the Boston and Worcester railway collision at Westboro Aug. 1, which resulted in two deaths. Dunn and Balcom are out on bail.

Asylum Barn Destroyed by Fire

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 18.—A large brick barn adjoining the Taunton insane asylum was destroyed by fire early this morning. The loss may reach $15,000. Although attendants succeeded in saving many cattle in the barn, five horses, eight cows and four oxen were burned to death. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Killed by False Teeth

Rutland, Vt., Aug. 18.—William C. Dixon, who swallowed a set of false teeth in a paroxysm of coughing, died last evening, the physicians being unable to dislodge the teeth from the throat. Dixon suffered great agony, and desperate efforts were made to dislodge the obstruction.

Senator Hoar on Death Bed

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 18.—Senator Hoar rested quietly last night under the influence of opiates. The senator's mind is perfectly clear, but it is only a question of hours before death ensues.

Feathers on a Hen.

A New York concern had a unique guessing contest in which the contestants were required to estimate the number of feathers on a hen. Many estimates in the hundreds of thousands were received, several in the millions, the highest estimate being 600,060,017. The correct answer was found to be 8120.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Stone of Bromfield, Maine, are guests of their son Councilman Eugene R. Stone. Mr. Stone came with the Maine veterans, being a past commander of Daniel A. Bean post.

A CURIOUS PHENOMENON.

The Singular Noises at Nakous, on the Red Sea.

A singular phenomenon occurs on the borders of the Red sea at a place called Nakous, where intermittent underground sounds have been heard for an unknown number of centuries. It is situated at about half a mile distant from the shore, whence a long reach of sand ascends rapidly to a height of 300 feet. This reach is about 80 feet wide and resembles an amphitheater, being walled by low rocks. The sounds coming up from the ground at this place recur at intervals of about an hour. They at first resemble a low murmur, but ere long there is heard a loud knocking somewhat like the strokes of a bell and which at the end of about five minutes becomes so strong as to agitate the sand.

The explanation of this curious phenomenon given by the Arabs is that there is a convent under the ground here, and that these sounds are those of the bell which the monks ring for prayers. So they call it Nakous, which means a bell. The Arabs affirm that the noise so frightens their camels when they hear it as to render them furious. Philosophers attribute the sound to suppressed volcanic action—probably to the bubbling of gas or vapors underground.—Newcastle (England) Chronicle.

THE BARN DOOR SKATE.

A Landlubber's Description of This Peculiar Fish.

The barn door skate beggar's description. I never could tell whether he was looking at me with his eyes or his breathe holes. He is a bottom fish and flat like a flounder. He has a triangular body, the apex of which forms the snout; opposite his snout are his tail and a few extra pieces of his overcoat, which kind nature has tagged on to him in case he gets torn and has to be mended. His tail is embellished with a few spines—this I know for a fact.

He has a couple of eyes a little way back of his snout, and right back of these are a couple of holes that extend completely through him. These holes connect with his lungs, or whatever he uses to breathe with, and have an uncomfortable way of looking at you at the same time as his eyes.

He has a mouth, too, but it is on the under side of him and convenient for business. It is a funny thing, with spines on the lips, and when you pull the lower jaw the upper jaw moves with it—a sort of automatic trap, not unlike what you can see in any ten cent restaurant. This is a landlubber's description, but it is enough.—Country Life In America.

Republican Extravagance the Chief One, Says Davis

PRAISES THE PLATFOPM

Says Gold Standard Is Established and Has Kind Words For Head of Ticket--Sees Triumph Under Reunited Party

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 18.—Henry G. Davis was yesterday afternoon formally notified of, and formally accepted, his nomination by the Democratic party for vice president of the United States. The ceremonies took place in the open air in the grounds of Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs hotel, and were marked by simplicity in every detail.

Mr. Davis was escorted to the platform by Representative Williams of Mississippi, who delivered the notification address. It took Mr. Davis 10 minutes to read his formal acceptance, but he prefaced this with a heart-to-heart talk of like duration to the several thousand friends and neighbors who were gathered under the trees as his audience.

Mr. Williams pleased his hearers by laying down to Mr. Davis in the rules of conduct to govern his official career, each rule based on some characteristic. He made a brilliant satirical address showing the progress of the nation, with incidental sharp, but delicate, attacks upon the Republican party.

Mr. Davis did not follow his manuscript closely, though he held it in his hand. He did not miss a paragraph, but expressed the substance of some more briefly and in some cases in full. He mentioned the name of Parker and the response was instantaneous.

Mr. Davis said that the platform was formed and unanimously passed by the convention "and I am here today to stand upon it and in November go to victory."

Mr. Davis, in the course of his speech, said: "I heartily endorse the platform upon which I have been nominated, and with the convention and its nominee for president, regard the present monetary standard of value as irrevocably established.

"Four years ago factories, mills, mines and furnaces were in active operation, unable to supply the demand, but now many are closed, and those that are open are being operated with reduced force on short hours. Then wages were high, labor was scarce and there was work for all. Now work is scarce, many wage-earners unemployed and wages reduced. The apprehension which now prevails in business circles and the present unsatisfactory industrial conditions of the country seem to demand a political change.

"In the language of our platform, 'the rights of labor are certainly no less vested, no less sacred and no less inalienable than the rights of capital.' The time is opportune to emphasize the truth of this utterance. The most sacred right of property is the right to possess and own one's self and the labor of one's own hands—capital itself being but stored-up labor. For years I worked in the ranks as a wage earner, and I know what it is to earn my living by the sweat of my brow.

"The receipts of the government for the year ending June 30, 1902, the first fiscal year of the present administration, showed a surplus over expenditures of $91,000,000, but for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, instead of a surplus there was a deficit of $41,000,000. From the 1st of July, 1904, to Aug. 10, or for about a month and a third of the present fiscal year, the expenditures of the government have exceeded the receipts by $21,715,000. There could be no stronger evidence of the extravagance into which the Republican party has fallen, and no more potent argument in behalf of a change to the party whose tenets have always embraced prudence and economy in administering the people's affairs."

Of the head of the ticket Mr. Davis had this to say: "He is a man of courage, yet prudent; of high ideals, yet without pretence; of the most wholesome respect for the constitution and the majesty of the laws under it, and a sacred regard for their limitations; of the keenest sense of justice, which would rebel against compounding a wrong to any individual or to a nation; positive in conviction, yet of few words; strong in mental and moral attributes, and yet withal modest and reserved; possessed of a sturdy constitution and magnificent manhood, and yet temperate in his actions and dignified in his demeanor.

"With a candidate whose personality appeals to the good sense and sound judgment of the American people, a platform whose principles are for the greatest good to the greatest number, and a reunited party earnest for the restoration of good and economical government, we should succeed and the principles of Democracy again triumph. I beg my countrymen, as they value they liberty, to guard with great care the sacred right of local self-government, and to watch with a jealous eye the tendency of the times to centralize power in the hands of the few."

December Wheat Touches $1.10

Chicago, Aug. 18.—September wheat sold at 1.09 on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, 3 7-8@4 cents over Tuesday's close. December advanced 5 cents to 1.10. These prices are far above all previous records. Intense excitement attended the trading.

RUSSIANS HEMMED IN

Port Arthur Must Soon Surrender or Be Taken by Japs

Chefoo, Aug. 18.—According to news received here, the Japanese line has been drawn still closer around beleaguered Port Arthur. The right wing has penetrated to the vicinity of Pigeon Bay, while the centre has moved forward from Paling Ching, which is south of Shushiyen and two miles north of the town. Chinese are authority for the above outline of the new Japanese positions.

Passengers on board the steamer Decima, which anchored off Port Arthur Tuesday, witnessed the bombardment from Pigeon Bay. The Japanese shells were visible during their whole course. They circled comet-like to the town and their explosions were marked by great splashes of fire which shot up into the sky. The bombardment from this and other points began at midnight and lasted until morning. The Russians did not reply to the Japanese fire.

Russians Refuse to Surrender

Tokio, Aug. 18.—It is reported that the Port Arthur garrison has refused to surrender and is disinclined to send out non-combatants.

Faith In American Power

London, Aug. 18.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Morning Post says: It is reported that a Japanese squadron is coming here in consequence of the failure as yet to comply with the Japanese demand that the Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi be disarmed or quit the port.

Commenting on the foregoing, The Morning Post says it thinks the Japanese are not in a mood to stand much nonsense and points out that there are now 18 foreign men-of-war at Shanghai, eight of which are American. "If it comes to a scrimmage," says The Post, "it will be the duty of these men-of-war to keep the peace and force the taotai to do his duty. A gentle hint from the American admiral will doubtless have a quieting effect."

Chinese Admiral Feels Humiliated

London, Aug. 18.—The correspondent of The Standard at Tien Tsin says that Admiral Sah has tendered his resignation and offered himself for punishment on account of his inability to prevent the Japanese capturing the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni.

Safe at Vladivostok

Vladivostok, Aug. 18.—The cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi of the Vladivostok squadron have returned here.

Four Killed In Trolley Smashup

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Four people were killed, another fatally hurt and 23 severely injured in a collision here between an express train and a train of three trolley cars bound for the Hawthorne race track. Motorman Ryan remained at his post to the last and was fatally hurt, his skull being fractured. To people who came to aid him while he lay on the ground he said that the brakes would not work. Immediately after saying this Ryan became unconscious.

Firemen Showed Great Courage

New York, Aug. 18.—Twenty-two firemen were overcome by smoke last night in a fire in the engraving and printing establishment of W. H. Cookfaire. Ambulance physicians attended them as they were carried out of the burning building and only two had to be taken to a hospital. As soon as a man was revived sufficiently he returned to work and several were carried out unconscious a second time. The fire loss is $5000.

Odell Charges Fraud

New York, Aug. 18.—Governor Odell, in his suit for the recovery of money lost in the United States Shipbuilding company, charges in his complaint that of the $6,000,000 in cash that was supposed to go to the owners of the constituent plants when they sold out to the combination $2,346,000 was wrongfully and fraudulently obtained by the defendants as their secret profit.

Kidnapping Headed Off

Pittsburg, Aug. 18.—An unknown Italian who, it is alleged, attempted to kidnap Helen White, 5 years old, narrowly escaped lynching in Allegheny and was only saved from serious injury by the arrival of the police. The Italian first gave the little girl peanuts and candy and was starting away with her in his arms when he was discovered.

Appeal From Meat Strikers

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Every union workmen and woman in the country is to be asked to contribute to the support of the packing house strikers. President Donnelly of the butcher workmen says that an appeal has been sent to all the labor unions in the United States asking them to help provide funds.

Railroad Shops Reduce Wages

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 18.—Printed notices announcing a reduction of 10 percent in wages have been posted in the shops of the Rogers Locomotive works. Twelve hundred men are affected.

A Congo Free State Rebellion

Brussels, Aug. 18.—It is reported here that a rebellion has broken out in the Mongalla river district of the Congo Free State and that troops have been sent there.

Case of Alleged Extortion

New York, Aug. 18.—The most sensational incident in the great building trades lockout and strike, which has thrown nearly 25,000 workmen into idleness, came when Philip Weinsimer, president and organizer of the Building Trades Alliance, was placed under arrest on a charge of extortion. George J. Essig, a plumber, charged that he paid Weinselmer $1000 so that work could be resumed upon an apartment house on Riverside drive. The case was put over, bail being fixed at $1500. Sureties were offered and he was released.

Will Be Christened With Wine

Washington, Aug. 18.—Despite the protest of the Christian Endeavor societies of Connecticut the traditional bottle of wine will be broken across the prow of the battleship Connecticut when she is launched at the New York navy yard next month. The Endeavorers asked that the ship be christened with pure spring water.

Paraguayan Revolution Spreading

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 18.—Refugees from Asuncion, the capital of Paraguay, declare that all business has been suspended, the streets are deserted and only the patriots are visible. The revolution is spreading and it is believed that the government will not offer serious resistance to any attack on the capital.

Jail Officials Overpowered

Lockport, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Anthony Brunner, James Finley and Joseph Quin threw red pepper into Deputy Sheriff Gardner's eyes in the jail here and then beat him into insensibility. They took his gun and keys and then overpowered Deputy Hamlin in the front office and escaped.

Unknown Man's Sudden Death

Portland, Me., Aug. 18.—A man in whose pocket was found a number of cards inscribed "Dr. Nott, 554 Madison avenue," boarded a train at Kennebunk and was prostrated by a shock on the way to Portland and died in a short time. Nothing is known of the deceased here.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney at their summer home, Ellsworth, Me. The boy is a grandchild of Secretary of State Hay on his mother's side and of the late William C. Whitney, former secretary of the navy, on his father's side.

The marriage of Emerance De Sallier du Pin, daughter of Count Hermal de Sallier du Pin, of Watertown, to Thomas H. Kelly of New York, millionaire papal chamberlain and prince of the Holy Roman empire, was solemnized at Clayton, N. Y.

For Treasurer and Receiver-General.

As the term of Hon. E. S. Bradford as State Treasurer will expire by Constitutional limitation in January, 1905, and he cannot be his own successor, the friends of Hon. Elisha T. Harvell of Rockland will present his name to the Republican State Convention next October as a candidate for the office.

Senator Harvell is a successful business man who, thrown upon his own resources at an early age, by ability and industry, solely through conservative, never by speculative, methods, has won an honorable reputation in the business world.

He is President of the Rockland Welting Company, of the Rockland Elastic Webbing Company, a Director in the Hingham Mutual Fire Insurance Company, for the last twenty years, President of the Rockland Savings Bank, and a Director in the Rockland National Bank, positions which have given him a broad and varied business experience and special familiarity with all forms of advantageous and prudent investments and the purchase and sale of securities.

He is now serving his fourth term as a member of the General Court. During this service he has filled the important position of House Chairman of the Joint Committee on Banks and Banking. Promoted to the Senate, where he is now completing his third consecutive year, he was continued on that committee and is now serving his second term as Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means. So many years of active work upon these two committees, in themselves provide excellent equipment and preparation for the duties of State Treasurer. Some of the best of our State Treasurers have been promoted to that office from the position of Chairman of the Senate Committee on Ways and Means, the latest instance being that of the present efficient State Treasurer.

During the Civil war he served two terms of enlistment; is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, of which he has been for the past three years Assistant Quartermaster General; and is also a Trustee of the Soldiers' Home.

He comes from a County which has been represented upon the State ticket but twice during the last thirty-five years. Nevertiless, his friends present his name not because of the location of his residence, not because of his membership in various organizations, not because of his army record—though Massachusetts is not forgetful of her boys who wore the blue—but because of his eminent fitness by reason of his well-known business ability and legislative experience to perform successfully and with credit, the duties of the office of Treasurer and Receiver-General of the Commonwealth.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $50,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

Better apply TODAY for information regarding Prudential policies to

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

A section of the sewer is being built on Pleasant street.

George Hight of Atlantic has gone to Greene, Maine, on a fishing expedition.

Several Quincy people are attending today the Alden family reunion at Plymouth.

Dr. James Todd, formerly pastor of the Water Street church, was in town this week.

George Weston of Providence, R. I., formerly of Quincy, is in town visiting old friends.

A small store building is being erected on the corner of Water street and Presidents avenue.

Secretary Duncan of the National Granite Cutters' Union is moving in his office furnishings today.

Miss Elizabeth Ruxton of Whitwell street has returned from a three weeks' visit with friends in Richmond, Maine.

Today is the last day the warships in the harbor will be open to the public. Tomorrow they will leave for New York.

Mrs. Launcelot Quinn and infant son of Bigelow street are guests at the parental home in Springfield for a few weeks.

Dr. Joseph Lord, one of the veterans from New York city, is visiting relatives in this city. His wife was a Quincy Arnold.

Warren B. Stetson of Middleboro, a delegate to the G. A. R. Encampment is visiting his sister, Mrs. H. O. Studley of Washington street while attending the meetings in Boston.

Mrs. Ellen Maguire of Lynn, a sister of Mrs. Henry Coram of West Quincy, died on Wednesday, aged about 80 years. She left several sons and daughters and grandchildren.

Members of the Quincy Pine Tree club are interested in the Maine old home week which is being celebrated throughout the state this week. There are many in Quincy who claim Maine as their birthplace and doubtless quite a number are attending the reunions.

One of the largest parties of the season attended the regular Saturday evening dance at the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday evening. The new club house is very attractive these warm evenings, and the house is none too large to accommodate the present membership.

Several Atlantic citizens have been entertaining visiting Grand Army men. A trio were guests of Mr. Weaver of Billings street. Mr. Russell of Billings street has a relative from Ohio, and J. H. Churchill is entertaining his father from Worcester, who was in the old Massachusetts 5th.

Miss Lillian Glidden has returned from her visit at Middleboro.

The launch "Thistle" took a small party to Houghs Neck Wednesday evening.

Fred H. Smith of Butler road is entertaining his father of Aroostook county, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weaver of Kansas City, Mo., are the guests of Fred E. Drake of Upland road.

The Goblin, Roy Lothrop owner, and a party of friends started Saturday for a cruise along the North shore.

Hudson Austin, a G. A. R. veteran of Coventry, Conn., was in Quincy on Wednesday, and visited some of his old acquaintances.

The entire front of the store of the Quincy Sporting Goods, was handsomely trimmed on G. A. R. day with an abundance of flags, streamers, etc.

Raymond T. Hendricks of Jacksonville, Fla., is the guest of Henry P. Kittredge. Mr. Hendricks is connected with the State bank of Florida.

The annual ladies' day of the Squantum Yacht club on Saturday will include a review and sail, refreshments and dancing and an illumination of the club house.

Joseph Harris of Elm street is entertaining Mrs. Emerson of Tampa, Fla. Mrs. Emerson formerly resided in Quincy, but has not been here before for twenty years.

MILTON.

The Milton school committee and residents desire very much to retain Mr. Meade as principal of the High school, and have voted to increase his salary $100 if he will remain, which would make his salary $2,300. Some weeks ago Mr. Mead was offered the principalship of the Utica, New York, Free Academy. It is understood that the salary there is $2,500, with an increase of $200 each year for several years.

Miss Mildred Fuller has returned from Concord, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cross have returned from Orleans.

Services in the new church of the Mission of Our Saviour will be held Sunday for the first time. There will be a communion service at 8 A. M., and an evening service at 7.30 o'clock.

George Clements, driver of Hose 2, and Mrs. Clements, have gone to Derry, N. H., for two weeks.

Thomas Hope and family have returned from Scotland.

A granolithic sidewalk is being built in front of the East Milton Congregational church.

It is understood that E. J. Tinker's store, which has been closed this week owing to financial difficulties, will be reopened again next week.

Mrs. Ernest J. Libby and family have returned from a visit to Orleans.

A barn on the Slater estate was burned Friday morning, Aug. 12. The fire was probably caused by the heating of new hay.

Sail-Off Saturday.

The race between the Pocahontas, Neptune and Harolde to settle the tie for the club championship in their class, will be sailed Saturday. One of the largest crowds of the season is sure to be present, and it has been intimated that if a certain boat wins, her owner will provide a luuch for the club. Before this race the Regatta committee has arranged for a tender race, open to club members only.

Former Mayor Hurley Fined

Salem, Mass., Aug. 18.—Former Mayor John F. Hurley, whose administration was marked by numerous reforms, some of them of a radical nature, was adjudged guilty of violating the liquor laws and was fined $75. Hurley entered an appeal, and was held in $500 for the superior court.

—The average daily attendance at the Worlds Fair at St. Louis for the first twelve days of August was over 100,000, the total being 1,268,018. The grand total to Aug. 13 was 6,925,595.

CARE OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Work of Government Laboratory at Washington.

MOSQUITO SLICING BY MACHINERY

Vera Cruz Variety Cut Up In Search For Yellow Fever Germ—Six Thousand Guinea Pigs Used Annually In Establishing Standards of Serums and Toxics.

By an act of congress passed in 1902 to regulate the sale of vaccine virus and antitoxine serum all dealers in these articles who are engaged in interstate traffic are compelled to get a license from the secretary of the treasury, and that official, before giving the license, must see that the products are up to the standard, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Post.

This law accounts for no small part of the work of the recently erected laboratory of the public health and marine hospital service on the grounds of the old naval observatory at Washington overlooking the Potomac. To get and to retain the license the virus and toxics must be submitted to regular examinations through samples selected at random by this bureau of the treasury, over which Dr. Walter Wyman presides. This bureau also sent an expert to Europe to examine the serum which is sent from abroad.

Once at the laboratory all the samples are planted in the proper culture media, and the organisms that grow are examined as to number and kind, and also for their effect on animal life. The laboratory also ascertains whether a given antitoxic has as much immunizing value as it claims to have on the label, thus establishing certain standards of strength of great value to the careful practitioner.

But this is only one of many interesting things that the new laboratory is doing. It has a little machine for slicing mosquitoes preparatory to their examination under the microscope. An ordinary Vera Cruz mosquito, which is the kind now under scrutiny, is cut into about twenty-five slices; these slices are arranged on glass slides for examination under a powerful microscope as a part of the search after the germ that causes yellow fever. An examination is now in progress of the little organism that causes the "sleeping sickness" of the west coast of Africa. This, so far as known, affects as yet only the natives, but it is sufficiently serious to invite the attention of foreign scientists.

The manufacturers of diphtheria antitoxic have had to get their standard serum from Germany. This laboratory is now preparing to supply the serum in a form suitable for distribution among manufacturers and research workers. Everybody in the United States will eventually get a serum the standard of which will be in the United States; whenever the manufacturers put out a vial of the article practitioners can know its strength in exact units. In the development of these standards many guinea pigs are utilized; they are injected with the diphtheritic toxic and then with the antitoxic until the exact strength of one necessary to neutralize the other has been ascertained.

In fact, the basement of the new laboratory looks almost like a zoological park, with its cages of mice, rabbits and guinea pigs under observation. Cards in front of each compartment record faithfully the history of the case. Scales for weighing the animals are at hand. They are all treated humanely, so that the antivivisectionist have no fault to find. No operation is ever performed on an animal unless it is under an anaesthetic. They are all well fed, but, like Dr. Wiley's poison squad at the department of agriculture, find their food dosed with the drug under examination in its different degrees of strength in order to test various possible effects. This is an important service the animals perform as well as in the production of antitoxic. To raise its own specimens the laboratory maintains an extensive establishment. It is estimated that it will take 6,000 guinea pigs a year, besides many rabbits and mice, for the legitimate operations of the laboratory.

The zoological division has been investigating the hook worm, besides doing much general work. All the drugs used in the public health and marine hospital service, which has 60,000 patients a year, are examined in the pharmacological division. This branch of the laboratory is also on the lookout for new alkaloidal principles in drugs and is constantly studying the effects of new drugs upon animals. This is chiefly research work. Of late some of the most important experiments have been made with quinine compounds, and although the results are not quite ready for presentation, the prospect is that some important discoveries may be announced. The aim was to secure a compound which would kill the micro organisms that quinine is so effective in attacking, but one which would be without the ordinary disagreeable effects of that drug. Experiments have gone far enough to show a quinine derivative, which is a great deal more effective on these micro organisms, but not so injurious to warm blooded animals. The tests have not yet been applied to human beings, but the poisonous qualities of the compound have been pretty well ascertained. It takes twice as much of the new quinine to kill a mouse as of ordinary quinine, while the micro organism, which is known to cause malaria, is more effective.

Another interesting series of experiments has had to do with the action of alcohol in the treatment of snake bites and certain forms of fever.

ODD BURIAL CUSTOMS.

Some Strange Observances Among Australian Tribes.

There are some queer customs observed by the native Australians, their modes of disposing of the dead being noticeable and varied. When a mother loses a favorite child she carries the dead body about with her in a box or casing of bark until decomposition forces her to dispose of it either by burial or fire.

In the case of some prominent person of the tribe dying his nearest relatives cut off his hands and keep them as sacred remembrances, only parting with them after the odor from the dead members has become unendurable. Then they are thrown into a stream, hidden in a hollow tree or burned.

Women are held in such contempt among the Australian tribes that often they receive no burial at all, and it is a rare thing to see one mourned for by family and friends. But at the funeral of a man or boy the lamentations are loud and long, the female mourners being the most demonstrative.

With some of the tribes the practice of throwing the bodies of the dead over the branches of trees and leaving them for nature to dispose of is observed.

SLUGGISH RIVERS.

The Volga Falls Only About Three Inches Per Mile.

Considering its length the Volga is the most sluggish river. In 2,325 miles it falls only 665 feet, or slightly over three inches per mile, while at one point about the middle of its course the bed is fully fifty feet below sea level. Thus all the water to that height above the bottom must be still, save when stirred by floods.

The Volga also is singular among great rivers in having no mountainous course. It rises among marshes and lakes, and is so sluggish even then that a dam has been erected, which makes it navigable from its sixty-fifth mile onward. Almost within the historic period it must have been an offshoot from the Caspian, which then stretched far into the interior of Russia, drying up into a series of river connected lakes. The Volga has taken the place of these, along with many of their characteristics, including a general sluggishness.

The Scheldt is proverbially a slow river and is practically lost in a maze of canals, but its fall from source to sea is about fourteen inches in its total length of 249 miles.

THE NAME BLACKGUARD.

It Was Originally Applied to Link Boys and Servants.

The earliest record of the term blackguard is in the churchwarden's account of St. Mary-at-Hill, London, where, under date 1532, is, "Item, received for iiij Torches of the Black Guard iiijd." This and the following old lines seem to show that the name was then applied to linkboys:

Her Cupid is a blackguard boy
That rubs his link full in your face.

The name was also given to menial servants in the king's kitchen. In the "Calendar of State Papers" is the following entry: "Aug. 17, 1535, Sir William Fitzwilliam to Mr. Secretary Cromwell—Refusal of the workmen to work for less than sixpence a day. Two of the ringleaders had been for some of the time blackguards of the king's kitchen." These "blackguards" were responsible for all cooking utensils and coals.

According to Miss Strickland, the historian, the scullions of the royal kitchen were for many centuries clad in black and were called the blackguards of England.

Loud Voiced Africans.

The timbre of the voices among central Africans is usually good—deep and strong in the men, very melodious and sweet in the women. One notable peculiarity about the people is the forced key in which they always carry on conversation. The ordinary quiet tones of civilized speech are scarcely ever heard among them. They literally shout, and, such being their habit, it is a matter of indifference to them whether the person to whom they are speaking is close by or twenty yards away. "They are most tireless chatterers," says a traveler. "I doubt whether any other people in the world talk so much or laugh so much. Their laughter is particularly healthy, natural and unrestrained, a most exhilarating sound."

The Roman Forum.

There were many forums in Rome, but the oldest and most famous was not created like a building at a certain time. The Forum Romanum was originally the lowlands between the Palatine, Capitoline and Quirinal hills, used as a meeting place for barter and politics by the tribes living on the hills named and on other hills near by. The development of this crude trading place and neutral ground into the Roman forum of later times was very gradual and irregular.

Time's Changes.

"Is the story you have written a historic novel?"

"No," answered the litterateur in hard luck. "It's a modern novel now. But I guess it will be historic before I get it published."—Washington Star.

RICH BOOTY ON SEAS.

American Goods For Japan and Russia Worth $10,500,000.

CONTRABAND LIABLE TO SEIZURE

Food Supplies, Medicines, Rifles and Other Articles Shipped by American Firms Are on the Way to the Belligerents In the Far East—Greater Part For Japan.

America at this moment has upon the high seas, consigned to Japan, $7,000,000 in goods which, in part or in whole, are liable to seizure as contraband of war. Consigned to Russia, merchants of the United States have at sea goods of like nature and of about half the value of those en route for Japan, says the New York Herald.

Although it is supposed that a considerable business is done in munitions of war, the experience of the trade has been so ample that the lesson of secrecy has been well learned. Notwithstanding it is known that the armies of several nations have been equipped with American arms, the export records of this country do not show that any arms ever left our ports.

The Russian government has been informed that 100 packages of sewing machines shipped by the steamship Empress of India from Vancouver on July 25 are in fact rifles from a Connecticut arms factory. A shipment of this size, however, is regarded only as a sample lot, but it has taken a tortuous and what would appear to be an expensive route. Being brought to New Haven it was sent in a schooner to Hartford, whence it was rebilled and sent by rail to Buffalo. It was then reshipped to Duluth by water, rebilled there to Fargo, rebilled again to Dominion City, Manitoba, where it reached the Canadian Pacific railroad. It finally was delivered in a warehouse in Vancouver. There it was rebilled and the packages remarked and put on board ship for its actual destination.

The trade on the Pacific is chiefly with Japan and concerns articles, the use of which for war purposes scarcely can be denied. It includes grain, flour, mules, chemicals, machinery, railway supplies, leather, electric appliances, and, in small quantities, firearms. The locks and magazines of the rifles went in one ship, the stocks and barrels in another, and each was billed as machinery. But they were consigned to the same house in Yokohama.

A medical supply house in New Brunswick is busy night and day filling orders for silk and catgut ligatures, which are packed under a distinctive label. Another medical supply house of Philadelphia, whose preparations are chiefly compressed in tablets, has supplied great quantities of its goods. They were sent largely to England for reshipment.

Another firm of manufacturing chemists of Philadelphia whose preparations are standard the world over has furnished enormous quantities of sulphate of quinine. One shipment of this article is 1,000 pounds gross. Among the important items appearing in these invoices are 374 packages of surgical instruments worth about $200 a set, shipped on the Mesaba July 23. Also 300 cases of antiseptic bandages and 100 packages of antiseptic sponges, via Tilbury docks, the departure port of the Peninsular and Oriental ships from London.

The greatest stores of this class of goods going to the east issues, however, from a Detroit drug house, which has branches in Australia and agencies in all the east. All the visible supply of camphor in this country has been taken up for shipment to the east, and much of it is on its way.

In New York city a Broad street house is intrusted with the confidential business of the Russian government, and it extends its supervision over this country and Canada, and through its many agencies keeps trace of every foreign shipment that looks suspicious.

IMITATORS OF IGORROTES.

Jealous Exhibitors In Scant Attire Feasted on Sausage.

Failing to rival the Igorrotes in popularity and ignored by the visitors to the Louisiana Purchase exposition, who hurry to the "dog eaters" for their first view, several world's fair exhibitors, together with some St. Louis men about town and visiting manufacturers, recently gave an Igorrote breakfast at the Missouri Athletic club, at which the lack of clothing was peculiarly Igorrotish and the food was Americanized dog sausage, says a St. Louis special to the New York World.

The breakfast was in the Turkish bath department of the club. After coming from a swim in the pool a dozen towel clad men sat at a table and consumed sausages, beer and cocktails until their taste for the untrammeled life of the savage had been satisfied.

How Ta-ra-ra Boom Fooled Russians.

A landed proprietor of the government of Ufa, Russia, tells this story, says the New York Globe: "A typical German trickster arrived at our village of Anastasevka on April 12 and announced that the first Japanese prisoner was coming along in an iron box and that if the mir (communal council) voted a sum of 2 rubles the peasant would be allowed to hear him squeal for mercy and afterward sing his national war song. The mir apparently voted the money, for the performance was in full progress outside of the state public house when I arrived. On a table in the roadway was a small box, from a trumpet affixed to which issued in good but squeaky English the famous 'Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay.'"

THE STOWAWAY

[Original.]

I was sitting in the office of the Anchor Shipbuilding company, where I am one of the managers, when I received a call from a stylishly dressed lady.

"You are Mr. Trevor?"

"I am."

"I am Miss Bancroft. You are building a yacht for my father."

"Tracy Bancroft? You are right."

"Here is a note from my father requesting you to make a change in the yacht," and she produced instructions to put in a safe capable of holding a cubic foot of valuables. Miss Bancroft then proceeded to instruct me what stateroom to put it in, after which she left the office. Two months later the yacht was ready for a trial trip, and I so notified Mr. Bancroft. He appointed a day for the trip, but when it arrived sent his daughter, writing that he was ill and unable to go himself. Miss Bancroft brought a man to represent her father in determining if the yacht came up to contract, but I could not see that he knew anything about shipbuilding. However, the vessel was accepted and ordered made ready for continued use during the season that was about to open. I concluded to go on her for awhile to make sure there was no weak spot, or if one became apparent to correct it if possible before it had done any damage.

The party consisted of Mr. Bancroft, who was carried aboard the yacht; Miss Bancroft and Martin Hurlbut, the owner's representative on the trial trip. Mr. Bancroft went directly to his stateroom and stayed there, Miss Bancroft gave all instructions and Mr. Hurlbut said he had come aboard to watch the vessel's action. We started from New York on the morning of the 10th of June, bound for Portland, Me.

We hadn't been an hour out on old ocean's heaving bosom before some of the crew came aft dragging a boy dressed in rags whom they had found stowed away under one of the forecastle bunks. He was taken before the captain, who asked him why he had stowed away on a vessel intending to cruise along the coast and from which he could be readily put ashore. The boy replied that he had made every effort to get work and had failed. He hoped if he was found on a yacht that had started on a trip he would have a chance of being retained. There was something very unusual in this youthful stowaway, something that excited both my curiosity and sympathy. I told the captain that I would take the lad into my service, and he was turned over to me. When we passed New London we put into the harbor, and I took Billy Brown—the name the boy gave—ashore and got him a sailor suit, including a pea jacket, in which he looked as rosy and as pretty as a fancy picture of a sailor boy.

Well, we reached Portland, where, since I had found everything all right, I proposed to take a train back to New York. The night before we went into port I was alone on deck, sitting in a wicker chair under the moonlight, when Billy came to me.

"I have heard you're going ashore tomorrow, sir," he said.

"Yes, Billy. Do you want to go back to New York with me? If you do I'll keep you in my service."

"No, sir. I want you to stay aboard the yacht."

This remarkable suggestion quite appalled me.

"Why so, Billy?"

"Will you keep my secret?"

"Your secret? What secret?"

"You won't betray me?"

"Speak out, boy. What do you mean?"

He came up close to me and whispered in my ear: "I'm not a boy; I'm a girl. I'm Mr. Bancroft's daughter. This woman isn't his daughter at all. She's his housekeeper. Her name's Farnsworth, and that's Hurlbut's name. This is a plan to get father off somewhere, make away with him and get his property. At least that is what I think it is. I'm supposed to be at school in Massachusetts. I went there before this Mrs. Farnsworth came to my father, and she has never seen me before. One of our old servants who took care of me when I was a baby wrote me that something was wrong, but that Mrs. Farnsworth was a desperate woman, and I'd better be careful what I did. I went to New York, where I met the servant who posted me and learned that the yacht was about to sail. Then I concluded to play stowaway. I couldn't think of anything else to do."

I was thunderstruck. If it hadn't been for the remembrance of the order for the safe, which it now occurred to me was in the supposed Miss Bancroft's stateroom, I might not have believed the story. I ran it all over in my brain and felt sure the stowaway was telling me the truth. Why not? How could he substantiate such a falsehood?

"You're a brave girl," I said, rising and taking off my cap respectfully, "and you have saved your father and your inheritance. Say nothing. When we get into port tomorrow I shall send you with a note to the police. That will end the matter."

The plan was a success. The conspirators were arrested, and in the safe were found all the family jewels, $20,000 in money and a will recently executed by Mr. Bancroft, who was an imbecile, having left half his property (they did not dare take it all) to his housekeeper for her devotion. But for his daughter's pluck he would have "met with an accident" on the voyage, resulting fatally.

The real Miss Bancroft did not return to school. Eventually she became Mrs. Trevor.

GRAND ARMY HEAD

General Blackmar of Massachusetts Succeeds Black

CHOICE BY ACCLAMATION

Next Year's Encampment Will Be at Denver--Automobile Excursion and Elaborate Electrical Parade Enjoyed by Vets

Boston, Aug. 19.—General W. W. Blackmar of Massachusetts was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, in succession to General John C. Black. The choice was made by acclamation, the other candidates withdrawing their names in favor of the Bay State veteran, who was assured of sufficient support to insure election had the issue been put to the test of a vote. The Massachusetts department highly appreciates the honor which has been done one of its foremost leaders.

GENERAL W. W. BLACKMAR.

The other national officers elected were: Senior vice-commander-in-chief, John R. King, Washington; junior vice commander, George W. Patten, Chattanooga; surgeon general, Dr. Warren R. King, Indiana; chaplain-in-chief, Rev. J. H. Bradford, Washington.

Later General Blackmar made the following appointments: Adjutant general, John E. Gilman, Boston; quartermaster general and custodian of the records, J. H. Holcomb, Pennsylvania; assistant adjutant general, E. B. Stillings, Massachusetts.

Another notable event was Denver's success in securing the national encampment of 1905.

The convention was adjourned sine die shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Resolutions were passed declaring that any modification of the voting franchise should be along the lines of "intelligence and fitness, and not along lines of race and color," and disapproving of the admission of Sons of Veterans to secret G. A. R. meetings.

Mrs. Mary T. Hager of Chicago was elected national president of the Ladies of the G. A. R. All the other branch organizations were in session.

Last night the Womens' Relief Corps held a campfire in Mechanics Building.

For the delegates to the national encampment yesterday afternoon was devoted to an automobile excursion to Lexington and Concord. The parade of motor cars was by far the largest ever seen in this section of the country, several hundred owners of power vehicles having tendered the use of their machines to the committee for the enjoyment of the accredited delegates of the Grand Army. So great was the number of cars in line that the excursion had to be divided, one section going to Lexington over the historic route followed by Paul Revere and returning by the way the british marched to Concord and back again, and the other reversing the route.

For the thousands of veterans who are here informally, and for whom no provision could be made on the automobile excursion, there was excellant opportunity for individual sight-seeing. This was improved to the utmost, as the frequent presence of knots of veterans in the down-town section witnessed. Regimental reunions and dinners, at which the comrades of 40 years ago renewed old friendships and exchanged reminiscences of war times, were also a feature of the day.

Last night's electrical pageant, given in honor of the Grand Army of the Republic, was among the most interesting of the week's entertainments. It moved through the streets in the upper part of the city and as the streets through which the floats passed were among the widest in Boston there was ample opportunity for thousands to witness the display.

The parade symbolized the progress of the nation. Events in the history of the country from its birth up to the present time were illustrated by the illuminated floats. Each float brought into prominence the particular epoch it was designed to portray. The keynote of the pageant was patriotism. In all there were 16 tableaux cars. Each one of these was beautifully decorated with a number of electric lights. What appealed to the veterans the most was the float typifying "The Reunion in 1865." The idea portrayed no North, no South, but one united country. On the float were figures representing Lincoln, Grant and Lee, standing hand in hand above a majestic national shield flanked on both sides by American eagles.

12-Year Old Championship.

The American Boys of South Quincy defeated the Laurels of Wollaston, at Merrymount Park, Wednesday afternoon by a score of 13 to 2. MANY SPORTS.

The Attraction at Houghs Neck Carnival.

A Grand Parade Last Evening.

Concerts by the Working Boys' Band of Boston.

There was a much larger crowd at Houghs Neck on Thursday than on the opening day of the carnival. The Working Boys' Home band was present during the day and gave concerts in the afternoon and evening.

In the afternoon there were a series of field sports for boys and girls.

The first event was a game of ball between the Houghs Neck and Great Hill teams, for a purse of $5. The game was won by the former team by a score of 6 to 5.

The other sports resulted as follows, prizes of $1 and 50 cents being awarded the winners:

100-yard dash, — W. Delaney first; Edward Ryan second.

Three-legged race,—Frank Jones and P. A'Hearn first; Fred Lewis and Charles Donovan second.

Broad jump, — George Fallon first; James Elcock second.

100-yard swimming race, — Edward Ryan first; Charles Donovan second.

50-yard swimming race,—Albert May first; Edward Ryan second.

Greased pole,—J. McKenna first; M. A. Davis second.

Tub race, — George Tessier. One prize only was given for the event.

During the morning there was a series of sports for girls, two prizes being given in each race. These races were in charge of Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Lesens, Mrs. Stackpole, Miss Norteman and Miss Keliher. These races were held on the Great Hill House lawn and resulted as follows:

Running Race for girls between 9 and 11 years,—won by Stella Kenedy, prize sterling silver bracelet; second prize, caddy bag and hat pins, to Inez Lowther.

Running Race for girls between 12 and 15 years,—won by Elsie Nelson, prize a sterling silver bracelet; second prize, caddy bag and hat pins, to Azalia Slaunwrite.

Potato race won by Etta Braley, prize a bread and milk set; second prize, a fan on a chain of beads, to Gladys Allen.

The peanut race which was very amusing was won by Lillian Reynolds; the prize being a handsome souvenir cup and saucer; the second prize, a souvenir paper weight, was won by Nellie Swears.

The candle blow for girls from nine to eleven was won by Annie Fallon; the prize being a china candle stick; the second prize, a fan on a bead chain was won by Marion Hastings.

The candle blow for girls from 11 to 15 years, was won by Margaret Stall, who was given a wrist bag; and the second prize, a fan on a bead chain, went to Marjorie Taber.

Bean bag throw, won by Elsie Nelson, prize a bread and milk set; second, a souvenir dish, to Edith French.

Ring contest, won by May Mead, prize a wrist bag; and second prize a souvenir tray, to Theresa Corteau.

The young misses were very much pleased with the prizes awarded.

Capt. Tilley, Capt. Kneeland and Capt. Harvey placed their motor launches at the disposal of the committee, and the girls were given a delightful sail in the harbor.

The largest crowd was present in the evening. Many came down early so as to witness the parade, but it was not until later that the large crowd came.

The parade formed on Sea street near Bell street and moved at 7.30.

The marshals, who were on horseback in fancy costumes, were William Scott, Fred McInnis and John Dyer.

First came the band and following were a number of features. These included boys in costume in carriages, the old Granite engine gaily decorated with bunting drawn by one of the clubs, boys dressed as girls and blacked up, and the Lake View Club, the members of which were dressed in costumes that would be hard to describe. The club had a drum corps of its own, and in the front rank was a color bearer who carried a twenty foot pole, from the top of which floated the American flag.

The parade marched through several of the streets.

After dark there was a display of fireworks on Sea street, opposite Bell street. Quite a number of the cottages were illuminated. It is thought that tonight the illumination will be more general.

LIVELY BLAZE.

Barn Connected with a House Got a Good Start.

The alarm from Box 27 at 4.50 Thursday afternoon called the department to a lively blaze on Elm place in a barn occupied by Elmer W. Newcomb and connected with his house. When the department arrived the building was burning fiercely, and the flames and smoke were pouring from it in such volumes that it looked as though the building would be destroyed.

Well directed streams of water, however, soon put the blaze out, but not before the interior of the building had been badly burned. Chief Williams estimates the loss at $300. The fire is thought to have been caused by children playing with matches.

From 30 to 40 pigeons lost their lives, but otherwise there was very little in the barn. The estate is owned by the heirs of the late Joseph G. Brackett.

CAPT. BLANCHARD.

A Civil War Veteran Who is 81 Today.

Raised a Company in Two Days.

A Manufacturer of Shoes for Many Years.

Captain Ira Blanchard, one of the pioneer shoe manufacturers of New England, is 81 years old today, and is celebrating the event in an informal manner at his home on Baxter street.

Capt. Blanchard was born in Abington, Aug. 19, 1823. He is a son of Daniel and Ruth Hunt Blanchard, and is one of a family of eleven. He received his education in the public schools of Abington, after which he learned the shoe trade, at which he worked for two years, when upon the death of his father he removed to East Abington, now the town of Rockland, with his brother Daniel. They worked at the shoe trade there until 1847, when Ira went into business for himself.

In 1850 he formed a partnership with his brother Leonard. This partnership continued until the war broke out in 1861.

He with Col. W. B. White and the late Maj. E. P. Reed raised a military company in two days' time. Gov. Andrew appointed him captain of the company, which was later known as G company of the 12th regiment.

The following Sunday Capt. Blanchard visited Boston and heard Fletcher Webster offer to raise a regiment for the state. The next day Capt. Blanchard offered him his company. The offer was accepted and inside of a week the regiment was raised and was known as the 12th regiment.

A few days later the regiment was sent to Fort Warren, where it remained a year. It was then sent to Maryland and became a part of the Army of the Potomac. Captain Blanchard received an honorable discharge July 24, 1862.

He returned to Rockland and continued the manufacture of shoes until 1865, when he received the contract for the labor of the shoe department of the house of correction at South Boston. The following year he also received the contract for the labor of the shoe department of the State Prison at Charlestown, during the time Gideon Hayes and Samuel B. Chamberlain were the wardens.

His contracts there extended over a period of ten years, after which he went to Boston, and continued the business of manufacturing shoes until 1891, when he retired from business.

He came to Quincy in 1896, and has made his home in this city since that time.

He was married Oct. 31, 1844, to Elizabeth S. Pratt of Abington, what is now Rockland. Mrs. Blanchard died in 1897.

Capt. Blanchard was one of the charter members of the Co. G, 12th Regiment association, and has been its vice president ever since its organization. Maj. E. P. Reed was president of the association, and upon his death the association voted never to fill the vacancy, so that Capt. Blanchard is virtually the head of the association. At every reunion of the company there is a vacant chair at the head of the table for Maj. Reed.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Fox was sent to the State Farm for drunkenness at Randolph.

William Bucham was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Minot H. Bates was fined $15 for speeding an automobile on the Blue Hills reservation.

Charles A. Gardner of Quincy was arraigned for neglecting to confine a dog when notified. Case continued until Aug. 26.

F. J. Volkmman was arraigned for non-support at Milton. Case continued until Oct. 6.

P. Mannex was arraigned for assault at Cohasset. Satisfaction was acknowledged, and he was discharged upon payment of costs amounting to $3.71.

—A reproduction of Liberty Bell, carved out of golden creamery butter, is displayed in the dairy section of New York's exhibit in the Palace of Agriculture. Exact measurement of the bell was made by Charles Brown, the famous butter sculptor, and the butter bell was carved in accordance with them. Every feature of Liberty Bell is faithfully reproduced even to the crack and the historic inscriptions.

—Hingham's tax rate is $15.60 per $1,000, or $1.20 less than last year.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased the sale of his public lands from $1,005,000 to $8,926,000, a cash gain of $7,921,000 in one year, besides creating more homes and farms for his family.

UNDER PROTECTION.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The ex-prisoners of war can be forgiven if they found it more difficult than the average veteran of the civil war to greet their whilom enemies with an absolutely glad hand. They may rightly be expected to forgive, but it is doubtful if any of them are able to forget and complete forgiving without forgeting is something that humans do not very often accomplish.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞It appears from figures recently published that medicine is the most remunerative of all the professions; that is, in 10 years after graduation. The average yearly income of Bowdoin's graduates in this profession, after that lapse of time, is shown to be $4687, and law comes close on its heels with $4577. For all practical purposes they earn the same, while the ministry drops to the low figure of $1559. If the income of the men who make medicines could be shown, the above figures would look diminutive.—Lynn Item.

☞The claim that this is a "white man's country" or a "white man's government" is a denial of the Declaration of Independence, a challenge of the constitution. The supreme court has affirmed the right of the several states to prescribe the conditions of suffrage to their citizens, provided only that the right to vote shall not be denied on account of "race, color or previous condition of servitude." If any southern state shall undertake to maintain an intelligent man's government or a thrifty man's government, it has the same right to do so that Massachusetts and other northern states have exercised. But all the states are alike forbidden by the constitution and by the very genius of our institutions from making the accident of color a test of equal citizenship.—New York World.

☞We are not disposed to take too pessimistic a view of existing conditions as to business "graft." There has been, we believe, a wonderful development in the past two years in the direction of higher standards of commercial morality. It is certain that such frauds as characterized the recent period of promotion have been pretty well labelled by public opinion, and that there has been a general toning up of the moral sense of the commercial community. Moreover, it will be found on examination that most of them can be best remedied by a system of comprehensive publicity, and the movement for publicity is steadily growing in strength and scope. We have largely removed the evil of rebates, and we have to a considerable extent improved the methods of obtaining credit so as to prevent fraud. What is most needed now is the creation of a stern public opinion which shall make bribery by corporations so odious as to be impossible.—Wall Street Journal.

CHINA DRAGGED IN

Japan's Seizure of Ryeshitelni Raises Neutrality Question

WILL HOLD DESTROYER

Powers May Condone Action In Cheefoo Harbor In Preference to Overhauling Russia's Peculiar Relations With Pekin

London, Aug. 19.—Japan's official notice to Britain that the Russian destroyer Ryeshitelni will not be surrendered is likely to bring up very sharply the relations of both belligerents to China. Japan's expression of satisfaction with the action of Germany in regard to the Czarevitch seems to show that her quarrel is not with the strict rule of international law, but with a neutral, China, who is either unwilling or unable to enforce its neutrality against Russia.

Japan's contention raises questions of fact with regard to Russia's behavior in China. Whether the Japanese statements correctly represent the facts is still to be discovered. If the powers enter on a discussion of the matter, they must consider what will be their course if Japan's charges against Russia are supported. In that event Japan would have a clear right to enforce reparation by China. Would that be a smaller peril to Chinese "entity and integrity" than the Chefoo seizure, and which would the powers prefer to permit? It becomes tolerably evident that the question involves badly tangled issues of fact and policy.

Reports from Paris and Washington point to something like a let-alone course that will condone Japan's action as perhaps less perilous to the general peace, in spite of its irregularity, than too particular an overhauling of Russia's peculiar relations with the Pekin government.

Beyond representing to China the importance of preserving the neutrality of her territory Great Britain has taken no action in regard to the Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi, now at Shanghai. The question of the disposition of these ships is looked upon as peculiarly a matter which concerns Japan, Russia and China.

LOST 20,000 MEN

Japan's Sacrifice For Gaining Positions at Port Arthur

Chefoo, Aug. 19.—A battle of huge proportions raged around Port Arthur Aug. 14 and 15 and was resumed Aug. 17. The Japanese, it is reported, sacrificed 20,000 more men, but gained important advantages in the matter of position. The above news was brought here by junks, one of which left Port Arthur last night and was blown rapidly to Chefoo by a gale.

On the night of the 15th the battle lulled somewhat, when the Japanese sent the terms of surrender to Lieutenant General Stoessel. The terms provided that the garrison should march out with the honors of war and join General Kuropatkin; that all civilians be brought to a place designated by the Japanese admiral; that the Russian warships in the harbor, numbering seven, namely, the battleships Retvizan, Sevastopol, Pobieda, Peresviet, Pollava, the armored cruiser Bayan and the protected cruiser Pallada, and 12 or more torpedo boat destroyers and four gunboats be surrendered to the Japanese.

Lieutenant General Stoessel is alleged to have received the terms with a hurst of wonderful profanity, his habitual taciturnity deserting him. He strode the floor until he became calmer and then remarked that if the Japanese proposition was a joke it was in bad taste.

Japs Will Seize Russian Boats

Shanghai, Aug. 19.—M. Odagira, the Japanese consul general, has notified the taotai of Shanghai that a Japanese fleet is coming to seize the Russian cruiser Askold and the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi. There is no uneasiness here, although the situation is thought to be acute. The foreign consuls are determined to preserve the neutrality of the port.

Czarevitch Rendered Harmless

Tsineau, Aug. 19.—All the ammunition of the Russian battleship Czarevitch and three torpedo boat destroyers has been removed and stored in a German magazine. The work of dismantling the guns of the Russian vessels has been completed. The terms of parole imposed upon the Russians necessitates their remaining here until the end of the war.

Rescued From the Rurik

Tokio, Aug. 19.—The following is a revised list of the survivors of the Russian cruiser Rurik, which was sunk Aug. 14: 20 officers, four of whom were wounded; 67 non-commissioned officers, 16 of whom were wounded; 525 sailors, 150 of whom were wounded. The total number of men rescued is 612.

Cruisers Badly Battered

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—Admiral Jessen reports from Vladivostok that the cruiser Rossia sustained 11 holes at her water line and the Gromoboi had six in their fight with the Japanese on Aug. 14. Both cruisers lost more than half their officers and the losses among the men totalled 25 percent.

HOPE FOR RECOVERY

Realized, However, That Senator Hoar Is Close to Death

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 19.—Senator Hoar remains about the same, sleeping quietly and talking little, but clear and rational and entirely comfortable. His heart is still at times very weak, but on the whole he has perhaps held his own. Dr. Folsom, head of the Boston city hospital, is at the bedside, as is Dr. Gilman.

Every possible chance for the prolongation of the senator's life and ultimate recovery is being sought. The prolongation of life during the last two days has given his family some slight hope.

Affectionate inquiries as to Mr. Hoar's condition have been received from President Roosevelt, Senators Fairbanks, McComas and Whitmore, ex-Governor Long, Lieutenant Governor Guild and a large number of the senator's friends in public and private life. Rockwood Hoar says that while his father is still a very sick man, there is hope for recovery.

The Fall River Strike Fund

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 19.—The committee of five to have full control of the strike fund organized last night. The force of men who have been collecting funds will be increased from 35 to 50 members. The funds collected from organized labor will be employed for the relief of strikers who belong to labor unions, while one-third of all funds collected from outside sources will also go to the union men and the remainder will be used for the relief of strikers who are not affiliated with any labor union.

Incendiarism Is Suspected

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 19.—Firebugs have caused a reign of terror in this city because of several serious fires, all supposedly incendiary, of the week, with but an interval of a day. Events which have come to light point out that the fire at the state insane hospital was of incendiary origin. Information is in possession of the police that shortly before the fire broke out two men were seen scaling a fence of the institution.

Father and Son Missing

Westbrook, Conn., Aug. 19.—W. C. Stillman of Meriden and his son went to Pine Orchard on a train and started back in a rowboat for Westbrook. Captain Kelsey came across the overturned boat of Stillman last evening. A coat which was identified as Stillman's was found near the boat, but no trace of either Stillman or his son could be found.

Boom For Potato Farming

Bangor, Me., Aug. 19.—The Penobscot Starch Manufacturing company has been formed here to manufacture potato starch, and it is proposed to at once erect a factory at Newport. The farmers of Penobscot county have lately gone into potato raising on an extensive plan, encouraged by the great success of the Aroostook county farmers.

Supposed Incendiary Fire

Boston, Aug. 19.—Despite heroic attempts of firemen and others, eight horses were burned to death and another so badly burned that it probably will have to be shot, in a $10,000 spectacular and supposed incendiary fire that destroyed the barn and workshops of the W. A. Murtfeldt Asphalt Paving company, South Boston.

Failure of Boston Brokers

Boston, Aug. 19.—W. Franklin Burnham & Co., bankers, 19 Congress street, have assigned to George M. Tilson. No statement of assets and liabilities has been prepared as yet. Tilson states that the failure was caused by failures in New York. The firm was formed May 1 and is composed of W. Franklin Burnham and R. P. Chase.

Witnessed Uncanny Feast

Portland, Me., Aug. 19.—Mark Dyer, a fisherman, reports that while fishing about 15 miles off the cape he saw an enormous shark eating what he supposed to be the body of a man. Owing to the enormous size of the shark Dyer made no attempt to approach very closely.

Collector Beaten and Robbed

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 19.—Spencer Clark, employed by a life insurance company as a collector, was beaten unconscious and robbed of $50 near the outskirts of the town by two Italians. He was found lying in the road two hours later. There is no clue.

Race Track's Third Fire

Fort Erie, Ont., Aug. 19.—Several barns at the Fort Erie race track were destroyed by fire last night. The blaze is believed to have been of incendiary origin. Two incendiary fires occurred during the summer meet at the track. The loss from last night's fire is estimated at $20,000.

Labor Leader Indicted

New York, Aug. 19.—The grand jury handed down an indictment for extortion against Philip Weinseimer, the leader of the strike of Building Trades Alliance. Weinseimer is charged with extorting $1000 from George Essig, a plumber.

Further Cut In Steel Prices

Pittsburg, Aug. 19.—The Pittsburg Steel company has met the cut in prices ordered by the American Steel and Wire company and practically made an additional reduction in quoting the straight price to retailers in carload lots.

Greeks Killed by Earthquakes

Athens, Aug. 19.—Earthquakes have caused serious damages to several villages in the island of Samos (in the Greek archipelago). Some of the inhabitants were killed.

L. D. Ray of Augusta, Maine, came to Boston with the G. A. R. veterans and attended the reunion of the 11th Maine regiment. He was a compositor in the Patriot office about fifteen years ago, and made a friendly call at the office on Wednesday.

"Kidnapped" Boy Turns Up

New York, Aug. 19.—Antonio Mannino, the 10-year-old Brooklyn boy, who was thought to have been kidnapped by members of the Italian Black Hand society, was found early this morning, three blocks from his home, by his uncle, Salvatore Mannino. The boy's story to the police was not clear, and in several particulars he contradicted himself. The uncle, who is unable to speak English, was arrested and charged with abduction. The boy's father refused to make any complaint against him.

For Preservation of Forests

Washington, Aug. 19.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson announces that as a result of his recent trip west plans are in progress looking to the establishment of a wireless telegraph system of fire alarms in the various forest reserves under the control of the government. The idea is to construct an automatic service which will give the alarm when contact is made with the flames or excessive heat.

Quintuple Murderer Electrocuted

Columbus, O., Aug. 19.—Alfred A. Knapp, convicted of the murder of his wife and who confessed to five murders, was electrocuted in the penitentiary early this morning. Knapp, who weakened when he found his last hope for life had gone and expressed a fear that he would have to be carried to the death chair, regained his nerve and met his fate with little show of fear or emotion.

Bloodhounds After Murderer

Meggetto, S. C., Aug. 19.—Allen P. Heathington, 18 years old, was shot and killed by a negro named Sam Brown while Heathington was remonstrating with Brown about some work. The whole county is being scoured by posses and the negro's capture is hourly expected. Bloodhounds are on the trail.

Distinguished Visitors Coming

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR

Steam or Hot Water Heaters

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

WATSON ACCEPTS

Willing to Be Elected President by the People's Party

THINKS REPUBLICANS BAD

Not to Be Compared, However, With Wickedness of the Democracy, Upon Which He Pours Vials of Wrath

New York, Aug. 19.—Thomas E. Watson of Georgia, the Peoples party candidate for president, and Thomas H. Tibbles of Nebraska, the candidate for vice president, were formally notified of their nomination here last night at Cooper Union. Judge Samuel W. Williams of Indiana made the speech officially notifying the candidates of their selection. When Mr. Watson arose to speak the cheering continued nearly four minutes. Mr. Watson, in his speech of acceptance, said in part:

Tonight I ask you to take this simple question home to your hearts and your consciences: Which is the party, and who is the candidate, that proclaims the principles of Thomas Jefferson, and goes forth to fight for the great mass of the American people? Is it the Republican party? How can any sane man answer, yes. In form and in spirit it is Hamiltonian. In purpose and in practice it is Hamiltonian. Every corporate interest on the continent knows that it has a champion in the Republican party. Every beneficiary of special privilege knows that he has a welcome in the Republican party. Every trust, levying its tribute upon the million homes of the people of this land, feels secure in the organized power of the Republican party.

I have no words of abuse for Theodore Roosevelt. I believe him to be a brave, honest, conscientious man. I give him full credit for having a splendid courage of conviction, but inasmuch as he stands for those governmental principles, which, in my judgment, are hurrying this republic into a sordid despotism of wealth, I will combat him and his principles as long as there is breath in my body.

How is it with the Democratic party? Our political history has never seen a situation so ludicrous as that which the national Democracy now holds. I can understand how the citizen can work for the Republican party and vote its ticket with enthusiastic zeal.

The Republican party has a creed, is willing to fight for it, is willing to cling to it in defeat, and continue to struggle for it until victory comes again. But why any human being should, in the year 1904, vote the national Democratic ticket is something that passes my comprehension. What principle of Democracy does it stand for? What does it propose to do for the people, different from what the Republicans are doing? To what point is it directing its line of march, except to the Republican camp? Surrounded by the Wall street magnates who had financed his campaign for two years, Judge Parker bided his time till the perils of the two-thirds rule were passed; and when it was too late for the convention to retrace its steps—for even the Democratic bosses require more than 15 minutes to turn completely around in—he cracks the Wall street whip over the heads of his leaders, and with prompt obedience the great Democratic legions were made to furl their flags and reverse their line of march.

The mass of the Democratic party feel outraged at the way in which their leaders have sold them to Wall street. I do not believe that the 6,500,000 men who followed Bryan, with cheers on their lips and warm convictions in their hearts, can now be delivered like cattle to the Clevelandites who knifed the ticket or bolted it in 1896. I believe that the great majority of the men who voted for Bryan are men of conviction; I cannot but hope they will realize that I am fighting their battle now.

The Peoples party says that the great American public should own its public roads. We say that as long as private corporations use for private gain those franchises which are of a public nature and which were granted to them for public purposes there can never be any escape from the tyranny of the corporation. Their power is too vast to be resisted.

We are in favor of an income tax. Planting ourselves squarely upon the ground occupied by Thomas Jefferson, we say that the larger the income the larger should be the rate of taxation on that income, to the end that vast accumulations should be discouraged, and that the wealth of the country should always be in a process of distribution.

Upon the money question we have always stood for the quantitative theory; have always opposed national banks, and have said that the creation of money was a governmental function which should never be surrendered; should never be delegated to any class of citizens, but should always be held by the government as one of the great attributes of sovereignty.

For myself, I do not believe that the present tyranny of the corporation, the monopoly, and the autocracy of wealth can endure forever. Some day the American people will rise in their resistless majesty and drive the usurpers from the places they have seized. Some day popular sovereignty will come again and put its foes to rout as it did in the time of Jefferson; as it did in the time of Jackson.

MOB LAW SUPREME

Georgia Lynchers Declare Themselves Safe From Indictment

Statesboro, Ga., Aug. 19.—Sheriff Kendrick denies the assertion of Captain Hitch and other soldiers that deputy sheriffs aided in overpowering the troops and that Kendrick pointed out the prisoners to the mob on the occasion of the lynching here. The sheriff says that the man who seized the captain merely resembled one of the deputies.

One well known business man, who admits his leadership of the mob, and who admits he had a part in the burning of the negroes, says that the plans to kill the two negroes at the end of the trial, regardless of what the verdict might be, were formulated the day before the trial. Excepting that it was not previously determined that burning should be the method, the plans, he declared, were carried out exactly as made.

The same citizen said that no grand jury would indict and that no juror in that county would find guilty any men who had taken part in the lynching. Judge Daly, presiding at the trial of the negroes, said he could not say what action, if any, will be taken to apprehend those who had a part in the work.

Practical Training For Middies

Washington, Aug. 19.—For the first time since the training school for the officers of the United States navy was established at Annapolis the entire class of midshipmen now on a practice cruise is to be brought to Washington aboard ship for instruction in the construction of the big guns and mechanical mountings at the Washington navy yard and a thorough inspection of the naval proving grounds at Indian Harbor.

Money Will Play Usual Part

New York, Aug. 19.—Demands for money for use in all doubtful states have been a feature of this as well as all other political campaigns. Little has been done in the way of subscriptions up to the present time, due largely to the fact that men who usually are expected to help make up campaign purses are either at their summer homes or in Europe.

Fat Canadian Commissions

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—The selection of the government commission that will have charge of the construction of the section of the new Canadian transcontinental line from Winnipeg to Moncton, N. B., has been completed. Chairman Wade's salary will be $8000 per annum; that of his four fellow commissioners $7000, and that of the chief engineer $6000.

Decision Against Nan Patterson

New York, Aug. 19.—Judge Newburger denied the motion of counsel for "Nan" Patterson, asking for the discharge of the actress indicted for the murder of Caesar Young, on her own recognizance. As a result of this decision the prisoner will be obliged to stay in the tombs until her case is called to trial, which will probably be in October.

Not Creditable to Strikers

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Because they wanted to study the strike situation, two Harvard students, William Pastor, and Blaine Evans, ran into a crowd of strikers and were nearly killed. They were carrying small packages that looked like luncheon boxes and therefore were mistaken for strike breakers.

Preparing For Canal Work

Washington, Aug. 19.—At the headquarters of the Panama commission in this city large requisitions from the isthmus for dynamite and powder for blasting purposes are being filled. To meet the demand for printing required in connection with the enterprise, a full printing outfit has been authorized.

Lloyds Losses by War

London, Aug. 19.—The Times asserts that instead of $5,000,000 alleged to have been dropped in war losses by underwriters at Lloyds, the losses will not exceed $250,000, on which considerable salvage is anticipated from the Russian government, "if the British government does its duty."

Train Attacked by Strikers

Zeigler, Ills., Aug. 19.—Two wounded guards are in the hospital here, one shot in the neck, wrist and hand, and the other hit in the side, as a result of a battle with the striking miners. A special train carrying 26 miners and nine guards was attacked by the strikers.

Denmark Loses a Torpedo Boat

Copenhagen, Aug. 19.—While the Danish training squadron was engaged in maneuvering the torpedo boat Haversten was sunk in collision with the torpedo boat Storen. The crew of the Haversten were rescued. The Storen was only slightly injured.

To Attend Royal Christening

London, Aug. 19.—Prince Louis of Battenburg has left London for Marienbad, where he will be personally charged by King Edward with the mission of representing Great Britain at the christening of the heir to the Russian throne, on Aug. 23.

Murder Without Known Cause

Bloomington, Ills., Aug. 19.—Dr. S. L. Chapin, a prominent physician of Saybrook, was shot and fatally wounded last night by a man named Wilkinson, who lay in wait for him. The motive is unknown.

The Weather Forecast

Estimated to contain 85,000 square feet of land.

Together with all the flats adjoining and appurtenant to the parcel above described.

The two foregoing parcels are two of the three parcels described in Certificate of Title No. 108, issued by the Registry District of Norfolk County, Massachusetts, dated January 13, 1904, and recorded in Norfolk County Registry District Court of Land Registration, Book 1, page 108, the second of the parcels described in said certificate having been released from said mortgage or deed of trust. Reference is made to said certificate and to the plans filed therewith for further description of said parcels. Said two parcels above described comprise the premises decribed as parcels numbered 2 to 6 inclusive in said mortgage or deed of trust of December 6, 1902, parcel numbered 1 in said mortgage being the parcel released as above stated.

Parcel No. 3. A certain parcel of land, situated on the easterly side of Commercial street in Braintree in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing on land now or late of John B. Allen on said Commercial street, and running northerly on said street to land now or late of Joshua Wilkins; thence turning and running easterly on land of said Wilkins by a stone wall to a junction of said stone wall with another stone wall; thence turning and running southerly by land formerly of Barnabas T. Loring to land of said Allen by said last mentioned wall; thence turning and running first westerly, then southerly, then westerly, then southerly, then westerly all on land now or late of the said Allen by stone walls to the point of beginning, and containing twenty (20) acres more or less.

Parcel No. 4. Also a certain parcel of land situated on the westerly side of said Commercial street in said Braintree and opposite the last described tract and bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing on land now or late of Robert Dickey on said Commercial street and running southerly on said Commercial street to Adams street; thence turning and running northwesterly on said Adams street to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the Fore River Ship & Engine Co., by deed dated January 7, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running northwesterly and bounded southwesterly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Co., three hundred fifty-three (353) feet; thence turning and running easterly and bounded northerly by said land now or late of Dickey to said Commercial street at the point of beginning. The two last described parcels of land are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by Francis M. Edwards, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said deeds, Book 965, page 134.

Parcel No. 5. Also a certain parcel of land situated in Braintree, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the southerly corner thereof on Elm street, at land conveyed by Birney C. Parsons to George E. Brnorton, by deed dated November 3, 1903, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 960, page 507, and running northwesterly along the said premises conveyed by said Parsons as aforesaid, seven hundred forty-two (742) feet, more or less, to land now or late of Mrs. Austin White; thence running northeasterly along said land now or late of said White, one hundred twenty-two (122) feet, more or less, to an angle; thence running southeasterly and bounded northeasterly by said land of White, about one hundred twelve (112) feet to an angle; thence turning and running northeasterly and bounded northwesterly by said land of White, about eighty (80) feet to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running southerly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company, about six hundred and sixty (660) feet, to said Elm street; thence turning and running along said Elm street to the point of beginning.

Parcel No. 6. Also a certain parcel of land situated in said Braintree, bounded northeasterly by said Commercial street; southeasterly by a private way formerly Elm street, which private way leads from said Elm street to said Commercial street; westerly by land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; northwesterly by land now or formerly of said White. The two parcels last above described are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by said Birney C. Parsons, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 136.

Parcel No. 7. A certain piece or parcel of land situated on the northeasterly side of Howard avenue, in that part of said Quincy known as Quincy Neck bounded northwesterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of George J. Sargent, five hundred and seventy-one (571) feet, northeasterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of heirs of Noah Bosworth, one hundred and forty and four-tenths (140.4) feet, southeasterly by the land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of Malchionda, five hundred and sixty-one (561) feet, and southwesterly by Howard avenue, one hundred and forty-one (141) feet, being premises formerly of Noah Bosworth, deceased.

Parcel No. 8. All the line of railroad of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, extending from and including the yard of said Company in said Quincy to the line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in said Braintree, together with the land appurtenant and adjacent thereto belonging to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, and all rights and easements appurtenant thereto or used in connection therewith, and particularly the rights granted to the Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Kerby Stevens and Frederick H. Allen by deeds dated respectively December 31, 1903, and January 15, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 25, 1904, —subject, however, to the rights granted by said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to said Kerby Stevens by deed dated December 31, 1903, recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 26, 1904.

A portion of the premises to be conveyed is subject to a mortgage from Charles W. Pike to Albert H. Davenport dated November 14, 1902, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 934 page 545.

The conveyance will also be made subject to an easement granted by the Fore River Ship and Engine Company to the Old Colony Street Railway Company by deed dated January 30, 1904, to erect, operate and maintain upon certain terms, conditions, reservations and exceptions a pole line for the transmission of electricity and for telephones for the private use of said Railway Company along the route described as follows:—

Beginning at the South Shore Branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in Braintree, Massachusetts, thence extending northwesterly over land conveyed to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Sidney Coolidge by deed dated January 7th, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 965, page 137, to Adams street; thence crossing said Adams street and continuing northwesterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Elm street; thence crossing said Elm street and continuing northerly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Commercial street; thence crossing said Commercial street and continuing northeasterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to land now or formerly of one Patch.

The following parcel, which has been released from the lien of said mortgage or deed of trust, by instrument of release dated June 4, 1904, will be excepted from the conveyance:—

A certain parcel beginning on Commercial street at land now or late of John W. Ratcliffe and running westerly on said land one hundred and eight [108] feet to a stake on the margin of Factory Pond so called; thence turning and running northerly and northwesterly on a curved line along the margin of said pond four hundred and five [405] feet more or less to a stake on the margin of said pond situated twenty-five [25] feet from the centre line of the Fore River Railroad as now laid out; thence turning and running northeasterly eighty-six feet three inches [86 ft. 3 in.] to a stake on Adams street situated ninety-four [94] feet more or less from the center line of said railroad where it crosses the southerly side of Adams street; thence turning and running southeasterly on Adams street to Commercial street and southerly on Commercial street a total distance of four hundred ninety feet four inches [490 ft. 4 in.] to the point of beginning.

The conveyance will include, in addition to the property, rights, privileges and franchises above described, any property, rights, privileges and franchises not herein described which may at the time of sale be covered by said orginal mortgage or deed of trust of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company or any indenture to the Adams Trust Company supplemental thereto. The conveyance to the purchaser will be made without covenants, express or implied. Article XIII of said mortgage or deed of trust provides that said Fore River Ship & Engine Company will, upon request of the purchaser at foreclosure sale, make, execute and deliver to said purchaser a good and sufficient deed or deeds to confirm the title in said purchaser.

The said property will be sold as an entirety to the highest bidder, subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments and other liens, if any. No bid will be received from any person who shall not first deposit with the auctioneer, as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, the sum of Twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. Deposits so received from any unsuccessful bidders will be returned to them when the property shall be struck off, and the deposit so received from any successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price of the property sold. On the acceptance of any bid the purchaser shall forthwith pay to the auctioneer in addition to the amount of the deposit qualifying him to bid as above provided, the sum of Twenty five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. The purchaser shall within ten days from the date of sale pay to the Adams Trust Company as Trustee, on account of the purchase price, an additional sum sufficient to make his total payments equal to (50) per cent. of such purchase price, and the balance of the purchase price shall be paid and the property transferred on or before the expiration of thirty days from date of sale. In case any bidder shall fail to make good his bid upon its acceptance, or shall fail after its acceptance to make the further payments hereinbefore required, then his right to receive and purchase the property shall at the option of the said Trust Company at once cease, and said Trust Company shall have the right to proceed at once to re-sell the property, and all sums deposited or paid by him shall be forfeited and shall be applied to the payment of the expenses and charges in connection with the re-sale and toward making good any deficiency, loss or damage resulting from such failure and re-sale, whether arising from the delay, from the fact that the second sale is made at a less price than the first, or from any other cause, and any balance remaining shall be repaid to the defaulting bidder or purchaser. The purchaser may in making payment of the purchase money, deliver to the Trustee any of the bonds or coupons secured by said mortgage or deed of trust, said bonds or coupons to be computed at a sum equal to that which would be payable out of the net proceeds of said sale (if made for money) to the purchaser as the holder of the bonds and coupons so delivered for his share or proportion of such net proceeds.

Further information may be had on application to the undersigned or its counsel.

ADAMS TRUST COMPANY,
(50 Congress Street, Boston,) Trustee under and present holder of said mortgage or Deed of Trust by Sheriff's Sale.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

NORFOLK ss. Quincy, July 5, 1904.

SEIZED on execution and will be sold at public auction on MONDAY, the twenty-second day of August, 1904, at 9 o'clock A. M., at my residence, No. 163 Franklin street, Quincy, said County, all the right, title and interest which Andrew A. Meyer of Quincy had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the eighth day of March, 1904, at two o'clock and thirty minutes P. M., (being the time the same was attached on mesne process), also had on the fifth day of July, A. D. 1904, at two o'clock and forty-five minutes P. M, (being the time the same was seized on execution) in and to the following described real estate, to wit:

A certain parcel of land in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, with the buildings and improvements thereon, being in part the premises conveyed to Peter P. Veale by Napoleon B. Furnald, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 793, page 304, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a stone bound on Sea Street, at the northeast corner of land now or formerly of Charles P. Brown; thence running in a westerly direction one hundred (100) feet more or less to a post at the northwest corner of said land of Brown; thence turning and running in a southerly direction twenty-three (23) feet more or less to the northeast corner of land now or late of Shaw; thence turning and running in a northwesterly direction along the edge of the upland, six hundred and ninety (690) feet more or less to an old post; thence in a northeasterly direction across the flats, four hundred and twenty (420) feet more or less to a post on to land of James Mears; thence in an easterly direction along the land of said Mears, three hundred and twenty-three (323) feet more or less to a post; thence in a southerly direction along the land of said Mears, three hundred and ninety (390) feet more or less to a stone bound at end of wall on the flats; thence in the same direction along the land of said Mears, two hundred and fourteen (214) feet more or less to a passageway running to land above described, ten (10) feet wide; thence along land now or late of Boyd, eighty-nine (89) feet more or less to a post; and thence turning and running in an easterly direction six (6) feet more or less to the point of beginning on said Sea Street.

And also a certain parcel of land with the buildings and improvements thereon, being the premises conveyed to Peter P. Veale by William Boyd, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 798, page 306, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a stake on Sea Street, at the northeast corner of land formerly owned by William Croncher, and southeast corner of land hereby conveyed; thence running northeasterly on line of Sea Street, to a stake, there measuring about ninety-five (95) feet. Said stake is on line of Sea Street, on the southerly side of a dritt way, ten feet wide; thence turning and running in a westerly direction on said drift way, to a stake about seventy-nine (79) feet; said stake is on the easterly line of land formerly owned by William Croncher; thence turning and running in a southerly direction about eighty (80) feet to a stake in line of fence; thence turning and running easterly about four and a half feet to the point of beginning in said Sea Street.

Also another parcel of land conveyed by James Mears to said William Boyd, dated November 11, 1889, bounded and described as follows: Northerly on land formerly owned by James Mears, thence measuring about eighty-one (81) feet; westerly on land formerly owned by William Croncher, there measuring about eighty-eight (88) feet; southerly on a drift way ten (10) feet wide, there measuring about eighty-eight (88) feet and about twenty-six feet on Sea Street; and easterly on land formerly owned by Martin French, or Arthur H. Dunham, about eighty-eight (88) feet.

Said real estate heretofore described constitutes all the premises shown on plan of H. T. Whitman, dated December, 1897, and recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, Plan Book 20, Plan 934, and is the same conveyed to Andrew Meyer by the Collector of Taxes for the City of Quincy, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 919, page 195, 196 and said tax title is still standing in name of Andrew Meyer.

Also certain real estate being the same of which Estelle M. Meyer died seized, see case No. 37,426 in the Norfolk Probate Court, conveyed to Charles M. Moore, by deed recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, book 933, page 562, consisting of a cottage house and 7750 square feet of land on Sea Avenue, Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, being lot thirty-one (31) on the plan of the Mears estate, recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, plan book 9, plan 375, said real estate being bounded and described as follows: Northerly by lot thirty on said plan, one hundred six and fifty one-hundredths (106.50) feet; westerly on Sea Avenue, seventy-five (75) feet; southerly on lot 32 on said plan, one hundred (100) feet; easterly on land of heirs of James Mears, seventy-five and six tenths (75.6) feet; containing 7750 square feet.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Henry Glidden is home from the West for a brief visit.

Miss May Tower has returned from a pleasant visit at Saugus, Mass.

Mr. Frank Manuel will entertain his father from Provincetown over Sunday.

Rev. W. B. Barr will return from Northfield to preach at his church on Sunday, both morning and evening.

Master Raymond Davis, of Philadelphia, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Davis of Arlington street.

Capt. Demoret, a member of the New York post of the G. A. R., is visiting Mr. J. W. Ferguson of Charles street.

John J. Henry and Bertram C. Henry, of Wollaston, left Wednesday for two weeks' outing in Provincetown, Mass.

Mr. Charles E. Calaine of Lincoln Post, Newark, New Jersey, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Loud on Wednesday.

The street railway is replacing some of its poles in City Square that had become rotten. Poles are also being located in new positions.

F. T. Berry and family have moved from Prospect avenue to Brook street. Their former residence will be occupied by the owner, Mrs. Charles Lee.

Lucky the firemen were not at a muster at Houghs Neck on Thursday, one of the features proposed for the carnival. They had the real thing at home.

Hundreds of Quincy people went to Boston Thursday evening to witness the electrical pageant. It was a magnificent sight, but such a crowd.

Everyone is invited and urged to send news items and personals for publication in the Daily Ledger, but please let the editor know from whom the favor comes.

At the reunion of the Second Regimental association, held in Boston on Tuesday, letter carrier Frank P. Loud was elected treasurer for the 34th consecutive year.

The Massachusetts Highway Commission has asked for proposals for the State Highway on Randolph avenue, between the Randolph line and the Milton line.

Eliphus Weston Arnold died at his home at Weymouth Heights, Thursday morning after an illness of several weeks. He leaves a widow; also a grandson, Ernest W. Arnold of Wollaston. He was seventy-eight years of age.

Fred Schoonmaker, a popular draughtsman at the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., leaves on Saturday evening for New York where he has accepted a more lucrative position with Messrs. Millard and McLean, naval architects. He will be stationed as inspector at the Burlee Dry Dock Company's shipyard, Port Richmond, Staten Island. Mr. Schoonmaker's many friends will hear of his departure with regret.

A HAPPY REUNION.

Dave Barry Meets His War Chum of Forty Years Ago.

There was a joyful reunion at West Quincy on Thursday of two old comrades of Co. B, 7th Rhode Island regiment, when David J. Barry of the police department, and John Carroll of Wheeling, W. V., met for the first time for years.

When the war broke out, Dave was full of fight, and he wanted a chance to "lick the Rebs" so bad that he could not sleep nights. One day he joined a company of the 9th regiment, and he was happy. His happiness soon disappeared, however, for he was under age and his parents refused to give their consent to his enlisting, and he had to return home.

His patriotic spirit was not so easily downed, however, and the next thing his parents knew Dave was among the missing. He had run away to Rhode Island where he enlisted in Co. B of the 7th. He served his country faithfully during the war and at its close received an honorable discharge.

In the same company was one John Carroll. The two became chums, and fought many a battle shoulder to shoulder, and toasted their shins over the same campfire. The war over, the chums separated and they had not seen each other until Thursday.

Comrade Carroll who now lives in Wheeling, W. V., came on to the encampment and learning that his old friend Dave lived in Quincy came out to find him, which he did. Both have changed since the war days, and they did not recognize each other. A few words, however, were all that was necessary, and two hands were clasped in a warm embrace.

Many a battle was fought all over again as the two old comrades sat under the trees at Dave's home that afternoon.

Suiting Action to Word.

Mr. Staylate—So your sister keeps you well supplied with pocket money?

Tommy—Yes.

Mr. Staylate—I presume you have to do something in return?

Tommy (yawning)—Oh, yes. I have to come in and yawn when visitors are staying too late.

Korean State Robes.

State robes for the Korean emperor are of a rich yellow hue and are embroidered with many cabalistic signs. There are no ushers and no court functionaries at the palace and there is little or no display. The servants wear garments and headdresses of red calico. This court livery is simple to make and cheap to buy.

Ancient Innkeepers.

The innkeepers' business was practiced in Rome at the time of Christ. There were then over 700 registered inns in the capital. Each had a registered sign, which no other innkeeper was permitted to copy.

Bronze Statues.

Solid bronze statues were cast in the fourth century before Christ by a Greek founder named Lysippus.

Power of a Pumpkin.

In testing the lifting power of growing plants and vegetables—an experiment made under the auspices of the United States department of agriculture—it was found that common pumpkins could lift a weight of two and a half tons.

Your Umbrella.

When you are on the street and wish to carry an umbrella under your arm, carry it with the handle behind you, so that the lance end will point downward in front of you.

☞ There is a good bargain offered in real estate today. A nearly new house with modern improvements will be sold low, as the owner is going west. Here is a chance for a young couple with a few hundred dollars to get a good home which will not cost them as much as to pay rent.

—Lemon syrup: Squeeze the juice from 12 lemons, add to it the grated yellow rind of six, and allow it to stand over night. In the morning take six pounds of loaf sugar and add to it just enough water to make it into a thick syrup, let it boil until rich and thick, then set aside until cool. Strain in the lemon juice, pressing the oil from the grated rind. Bottle and cock tightly. Add one or two tablespoonfuls to each glass of iced water.

LOST IN THE WOODS.

In Such a Case Fear Is One's Most Dangerous Enemy.

Every woodman—yes, every Indian—gets lost at some time—that is, loses his bearings and has difficulty in getting to camp. As a matter of fact, the wild birds and beasts will sometimes get lost, although they are wonderfully equipped for finding their way home.

The worst thing a person lost in the woods can do is to get frightened. The truly dangerous enemy is not the cold or the hunger so much as the fear. It is fear that robs the wanderer of his judgment and of his limb power; it is fear that turns the passing experience into a final tragedy. Only keep cool, and all will be well.

A man of little experience usually sets out at a run when he is lost. He wishes to travel twice as fast as usual, and of course that merely wears him out and sends him farther astray. If he sits down calmly he will not only spare himself, but will help his friends to find him, and this he can do by shouting at intervals and, above all, by getting on as high and open a place as possible and there making two smoke fires, the recognized signal, "I am lost."—Ernest Thompson Seton in Country Life In America.

ECLIPSE FORECASTS.

The First One Was Made by Thales to the Egyptians.

The eclipse of May 28, 585 B. C. (total in the east of Asia Minor), is the first that can be fixed with certainty. The prediction of it by Thales to the Ionians brought him lasting fame and excited among the Hellenes the love of science. Its occurrence during a great battle ended a five years' war between the Medes and the Lydians and led to a permanent peace.

The Chinese boast of a series of eclipses recorded in their annals extending over 3,858 years. But these are of very doubtful character. The Egyptians said they had accurately observed 373 eclipses of the sun and 832 of the moon before the time of Alexander the Great, who died 323 B. C.

An eclipse observed at Nineveh, June 15, 763 B. C., is recorded on an Assyrian tablet now in the British museum. A lunar eclipse, occurring at 8:40 p. m., March 19, 721 B. C., was observed, according to Ptolemy, with much accuracy at Babylon. Each central eclipse visible in our time is one of an unbroken series, extending from the earliest historic times to the present and recurring at regular intervals.

THE FIRST ENVELOPES.

They Were Used In a Private Penny Post In Paris.

The first mention of envelopes occurs in 1653, when M. de Valayer set up, under royal patronage, a private penny post in Paris, and boxes were placed at street corners for the reception of letters wrapped in post paid envelopes.

The earliest uses of the word in English were by Bishop Burnet in 1714 and Dean Swift in 1726. That the "little bags called envelopes," as Rowland Hill described them, were nothing but a revival and were in use as a covering for postal purposes long before 1840, when his postal reform was established, is evident from the following: Under date July 21, 1627, Secretary Conway gives an account of his "opening a letter in the presence of the king, which contained a blank sheet." Lamb mentions them in 1825, and in "Harry Lorrequer," published by Charles Lever in 1837, we find, "The waiter entered with a small note in an envelope."

The early covers were probably rude enough, as machine made envelopes were unknown before 1840, and the "lick of the gum" did not make its appearance till the succeeding year.

The Armenians.

The Armenians are one of the most ancient races in the world. Their country is mentioned by Xenophon and Ezekiel and in the cuneiform inscriptions of Babylon and Assyria. All the nations that surrounded them have passed away, but they remain, though their country has been harried with fire and sword for centuries. The speaker ascribed the permanence of the Armenian race to the virtue of their women and the exceptional purity and stability of their family life. Even in their heathen days polygamy was unknown to them. They have been a Christian nation for more than 1,500 years and have undergone perpetual persecution for their faith from the surrounding oriental peoples.

Route of the Bobolink.

The amount of traveling done by some of our birds is astonishing. Dr. Cooke says that the common night hawk spends the summer in Alaska and the winter in Patagonia. The bobolink, which is the reedbird of the middle states and the ricebird of the south, winters on the waving pampas of southern Brazil. It covers 700 miles from Cuba to the South American coast in a single flight, following a track not popular with other birds, which might be called the bobolink route.—Saturday Evening Post.

A Novel Way .....To Fame

[Original.]

Miles Barnicourt, an American youth of a timid nature, but a vivid imagination, with which he was fond of picturing himself as a cowboy, bank robber or duelist, after finishing his education went abroad for a trip. He told his friend before leaving that he was glad to go to a country where gentlemen settled their differences in a gentlemanly way. If he was not properly treated while abroad he could get redress without resorting to a police court.

This meant that he would pick a quarrel with some person before he returned, and he did. One evening at a cafe he noticed a very modest looking man dining alone. Barnicourt in endeavoring to make known his wants to the French waiter called forth a smile from the gentleman mentioned. It occurred to the young aspirant for dueling honors that this would be a good opportunity to show his grit. In broken French he asked the man what he was laughing at, making a mixture of verbs, nouns and participles that called forth a second smile, more pronounced than the first. Whereupon Barnicourt seized a glass, doused the stranger with the wine it contained and then produced his card. The stranger removed the wine from his face with his napkin, then drew his card and presented it to the American, at the same time saying in very fair English: "A friend of mine will call upon you at 11 o'clock tonight. I trust you will be at home." Barnicourt said that he would, and the stranger went on with his dinner.

Barnicourt took the card to an American, Charles Maubray, a permanent resident of Paris, to whom he had brought a letter of introduction. He was narrating the episode when his friend exclaimed:

"Great heavens, man! You've insulted Jacques Verdier, the most noted duelist in Paris."

Barnicourt paled. Maubray asked him if he were expert with the pistol, the sword, indeed any weapon which they might choose for the combat. But Barnicourt declared that he could only use the pistol and that fairly well.

"This won't do," said Maubray. "You can't fight Verdier; he would make mince meat of you in no time. But how in the world am I to get you out of it? My friend Perkins, from whom you brought me your letter, would never forgive me if I let you get killed."

"Can't I apologize?" faltered Barnicourt.

"Apologize! And have it known tomorrow in all the clubs of Paris that an American—a friend of mine—insulted a man and apologized because he feared to die. Never!"

Barnicourt turned several shades whiter than before, and Maubray, telling him to remain till his return, went to Barnicourt's lodgings to receive the challenge. At 11:30 he returned and said it was to be pistols, near Versailles, the next morning at 6 o'clock.

Maubray went out, and Barnicourt did not see him again till 4 o'clock, when he drove up to the house in a carriage in company with a young doctor. Barnicourt's legs would scarcely carry him to the carriage, and once there he lay back on the cushion like a corpse, while the doctor gave Maubray an account of Verdier's last duel, at which he (the doctor) was present, and how Verdier had killed his man. Barnicourt moaned, and the two men looked at him as much as to say, "He's going to show the white feather." When they reached the ground and alighted Maubray whispered to Barnicourt: "Courage. They are there, as I hoped. Keep up your pluck."

This stiffened the drooping man, and they proceeded to join the others. Three men were in earnest conversation with Verdier. Verdier was endeavoring evidently to convince them that he was in no danger, for he was heard to say, "They are not duelists in America, and I can pierce a five franc piece at a hundred yards."

"What is that?" interrupted Maubray. "No duelists in America? That's in the north. My principal comes from the south, where the revolver is as common as a house key."

This had the effect to cause the strangers to renew their protestations. Verdier seemed very much troubled.

"You should help me, Mr. Maubray," he said, "instead of standing in my way. I owe these gentlemen altogether some 12,000 francs, and they having in some way got wind of this affair insist on payment before I expose my life. Bah! What risk do I run?"

"These gentlemen are the best judges of that," replied Maubray carelessly. "I can only say to you, M. Verdier, that if you expect an easy conquest over my principal you are mistaken. The revolver has been his plaything since childhood."

This brought on more protestations from the strangers and hot words from Verdier. Finally Maubray said:

"This is an unnecessary affair. May we not settle it? Why, M. Verdier, did you laugh at my principal?"

"His French was absurd."

"Was that all? A simple statement to that effect will lead my principal to excuse your laughing. He does not pretend to speak French."

"Go and ask him?" requested the three creditors.

Verdier neither assented nor dissented. Maubray brought back a conciliatory message, and it was agreed that the affair should be called off. All returned to Paris, and the next day there was great curiousity to see the American who had gone out with M. Jacques Verdier and returned unhurt.

The Social Realm.

There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,
There is society where none intrudes
By the deep sea, and music in its roar:
I love not man the less, but nature more,
From these our interviews, in which I steal
From all I may be, or have been before,
To mingle with the universe, and feel
What I can ne'er express, yet cannot all conceal.
—Byron.

BOSTON ENRICHED

By a Million and a Half Dollars by the Grand Army of the Republic.

The Boston Journal says that the Grand Army of the Republic, its friends and those who came to the city to join in the celebration during encampment week spent nearly $2,000,000. The city of Boston spent $25,000; the State, $50,000, and private parties nearly $200,000 more for the entertainment of the visitors, so that, although Boston has given the veterans one of the grandest receptions in the history of G. A. R. reunions, it is the gainer by something over $1,500,000. It appears almost impossible to appreciate the great amount of money that changed hands during the past week.

To the steam railroads alone over $1,500,000 was paid by the people coming to the city day after day to see the different features of the celebration; to the Boston Elevated railroad very nearly a quarter of a million dollars was paid by the crowd to be taken about the city. On a single day the trolley cars and the elevated carried 1,600,000 passengers.

The cost of living of the great army of strangers which invaded Boston was a quarter of a million dollars, and that, according to some of the restaurant keepers and hotel men, is a low estimate. Had it not been for the fact that a great number of the people who came to the city doubled up in their rooms at the hotels, and took most inexpensive rooms at that, the amount would have been doubled.

Had every visitor who stayed in the city for six days put up at a boarding house or a hotel the amount would have been more than tripled. As it was, several thousand were quartered in Mechanics' Building and in the different armories about the city. For these the G. A. R. paid, but the expense was slight compared to the regular price of living.

The money spent in the city during the past week included the $50,000 appropriation by the State, which was used in the decoration of the State buildings, the building of grand stands here and in Waltham and the entertainment of some of the visitors. Some of the money was turned over to the G. A. R. to help out that organization in its expense account.

The city appropriated $25,000 for the reception, part of which was used for the decoration of the municipal buildings, the erection of stands, and the rest was turned over to the G. A. R. for the aid of the soldiers.

The stands erected about the city cost on an average $2000 apiece. They were made of the very best lumber procurable and were as safe as could be made. There were ten in the city, and the State's and city's money was used to a great extent in erecting them. At Waltham there were two stands erected by the Grand Army for the water carnival, and this added $4,000 more to the grand total. The private stands about the city, the money spent on visitors in private houses amounted easily to $50,000, with the electrical display in the Public Gardens and on Commonwealth avenue added $25,000 more to the amount spent for spectacular entertainment.

A conservative estimate of the private houses decorated in some manner or other places the number at over 2500 and the cost to the owners was not far from $40,000.

The big stores in the center of the city made immense displays, and the cost of them was something enormous. Thousands of silk flags were used and hundreds of thousands of yards of bunting. In many cases it will be used again, but the estimate placed on the cost of putting up the decorations and of painting the pictures and other signs applicable to this occasion alone is $30,000.

Arnold---Perry.

A pretty wedding took place last evening, Aug. 19, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin Perry, Park street, Braintree, when their eldest daughter Bertha Marion was united in marriage to John Emerson Arnold, son of George H. Arnold of this town.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. R. Griffin of All Souls church. Miss Helen V. Drinkwater was maid of honor and John M. Cates of Yale university was best man.

There were two bridesmaids Miss Edna J. Thompson of Norfolk, Mass., and Miss Sara S. Perry, a sister of the bride. Miss Agnes S. Thompson played the wedding march. The bride was given away by her brother Mr. Franklin S. Perry. The house was handsomely decorated with golden rod, ferns, and potted plants. Only near relatives were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold will be at home to their many friends, November 18, at their home on Arnold street.

CLOSING DAY

Of the Grand Carnival at Houghs Neck.

Result of Yesterday's Field Sports.

Concerts by the Working Boys' Band of Boston.

The three days' midsummer carnival, under the auspices of the Houghs Neck Improvement Association, closed Friday. The attendance that day was not as large as on the previous day. As a whole the carnival can not be said to have been a great success.

The result of this year's affair should be a convincing argument that a three days' carnival can never be a success. It has been tried for several years and each year has seen it grow less popular. One day with a good array of attractions would bring a large crowd and put more money into the pockets of the storekeepers than three days such as this week.

The attractions yesterday opened in the morning with a game of ball between the Lakeview and Majestic nines. The former won by a score of 8 to 6. There was a series of other sports during the day which resulted as follows:

100-yard dash,—William Flynn first; William McCarthy second.

Hop, step and jump,—William Flynn first; Edward Donavan second.

Shot put,—John J. Dacey first; Charles McGee second.

Three-legged race,—William Flynn and William McCarthy first; Henry McClaren and Maurice Connelly second.

100-yard swimming race,—Charles Rafferty first; John O'Brien second; John Feeney third.

50-yard swimming race,—Edward Ryan first; Thomas McGurn second.

[illegible] first; [illegible] and [illegible] first; [illegible] and [illegible] second.

Tub race,—George Tessien first; Arthur Shaw second.

There was also a series of sports for girls which resulted as follows.

Running race, girls 9 to 11 years,—Mary Mahoney first; Freda Bernhardt second.

Running race, girls 12 to 15 years,—Eunice Cullen first; Annie Everson second.

Potato race,—Lillian Ryan first; Annie Everson second.

The Working Boys' Home band gave concerts during the afternoon, and in the evening there was a display of fireworks.

Public Library.

There has lately been added to the Library, as a gift from one of our citizens, a work on Japan and China, their history, arts and literature, published by the J. B. Millet Co. of Boston, in twelve volumes, in what is termed its "Oriental Series."

In view of the epoch-making struggle now going on in the Far East, this work has an interest and value above the large number of books upon Japan brought out at this season, many of them hastily prepared for the purpose of making them available for a market occasioned by the war. Its author, Capt. Francis Brinkley, has lived most of the time for the past thirty years in Japan, occupying the position of editor of a prominent newspaper there, and being in close touch with the leading people of the country. His work was in process of publication before the war broke out, hence there are no hasty speculations concerning future events, but both as regards China and Japan, conditions are stated in a manner to permit the reader to form conclusions of his own. And it seems no better basis of judgment could be found than that afforded by Capt. Brinkley's work. He thoroughly appreciates the merits of the Japanese and the Chinese, both individually and collectively, and is by no means blind to the defects which are to be found in the citizens of both nations.

It therefore seems that our citizens of intelligence could find no better work to which to devote their attention at this time than the books of Capt. Brinkley's series, thus showing their appreciation of and finding pleasure in the Library's valuable gift. These volumes have been produced in exceedingly attractive form, the many beautiful illustrations thoroughly in keeping with the letter text. It is an Artists' edition limited to five hundred numbered and registered copies of which this is number 246.

Small but Disastrous Tornado Strikes North St Louis

THREE PERSONS KILLED

Three Score Injured In Rush of Wind Which Crossed the River and Struck Illinois Towns--Property Loss of $100,000

St. Louis, Aug. 20.—A tornado of small proportions, but of maximum fury, swept down upon the residence portion of North St. Louis, resulting in the death of three persons, injury to probably 50, and damage to property amounting to $100,000.

A shower had passed over St. Louis, but there had been no rain at North St. Louis. The sky had cleared and the atmosphere had become very murky and hot, when citizens in North St. Louis noticed a dark cloud approaching from the southwest. Suddenly, and without the slightest premonition, an arm seemed to shoot to the ground like a gigantic cable, twisting and turning. The end touched ground at Nineteenth and Angelrodt streets with incredible swiftness and force, swept east along Angelrodt street for 10 blocks, then turned north and swept three blocks along Broadway, when it jumped eight blocks northeast to the foot of Breman street and the river, when considerable property at the river was destroyed.

The tornado then jumped to about the middle of the river, and encountered a ferryboat, which was turned and tossed about, but was not sunk. Leaving the ferryboat, the tornado once more jumped and struck the Illinois shore near Madison, where it demolished several dwellings, including the Leiderkranz hall, and blew down a portion of the Madison Cooper works, killing John Ellington. Severe damage was done also to buildings in Venice, where two people were killed and 10 injured, and Granite City, which adjoins Madison, where a number of persons were also injured.

So quickly did the tornado sweep through North St. Louis that the citizens could scarcely comprehend what had happened and in the stillness that followed the wind cries were heard on all sides, as terror-stricken persons ran about the streets. Not a telegraph, telephone or trolley pole was left standing along the streets swept by the storm.

A Broadway trolley car containing 11 passengers was suddenly buried under six telegraph poles, which crashed into the top and wrecked the car. The passengers had a remarkable escape from injury and only the motorman received slight bruises. The roof and one-half of the top story of Sommers Bros.' tailor manufacturing establishment were blown away.

Not the slightest damage was done at the World's Fair grounds. The exposition is situated five miles from the seat of the tornado and the wind was not felt.

Strike Breakers From New York

Cleveland, Aug. 20.—The first effort of the manufacturers to break the cloakmakers' strike commenced when 50 non-union cloakmakers arrived from New York. They were followed by a crowd of strikers and sympathizers numbering 2000. Stones were hurled and a riot call was turned in. It is claimed that 29 of the 50 were won over by the union men. The other 21 were taken into a cloak factory, where they are being guarded by police.

Held Up by Standard Oil

[illegible] Aug. 20.—George Rice of [illegible], has commenced suit here for $[illegible],000 damages against the [illegible] company for the ruining of [illegible] business by the defendant company, which, Rice charges, succeeded in taking away from him 4000 customers, an oil refining plant worth $750,000, and a business worth $50,000 a year. This suit is brought under the interstate act of 1890.

Soldiers' Heads Struck Bridge

Raleigh, Aug. 20.—Four soldiers of the militia company of Durham, while returning from the National Guard encampment, were sitting on top of a railroad coach. They had been drinking and had just thrown away a bottle when their heads struck a bridge and two were killed instantly. A third was seriously injured and the other slightly.

Bath Ship Badly Damaged

Rio Janeiro, Aug. 20.—The American four-masted ship Roanoke of Bath, Me., New York for Sydney and Melbourne, was in collision with the British steamer Llangibby, and was badly damaged. The latter vessel put in Bahia and the Roanoke is proceeding to this port.

Mill Manager Kills Himself

Atlanta, Aug. 20.—W. J. Montgomery, vice president and general manager of the Georgia Cotton Mill company, shot and killed himself here last evening. He was sitting in his private office and had just been conversing with his office force, who had left him.

Granite State Old Home Week

Concord, N. H., Aug. 20.—New Hampshire's Old Home week opened today. There will be more than 125 observances this year. Every county in the state is represented in the list of coming celebrations and every section will participate.

Princess Chimay's New Husband

London, Aug. 20.—Princess Chimay, formerly Miss Clara Ward of Michigan, was married in the registry office, in London, to Guglielmo Ricardo, a railway porter. Before the ceremony the princess, in the presence of witnesses, gave Rigo, the violinist, $3000, upon the receipt of which he signed a paper resigning all claims upon her. During the wedding the princess kept wetting her fingers at her lips and plastering down Ricardo's scalp lock and otherwise fondling him. After the ceremony was over the newly married couple left immediately for Paris on their honeymoon.

Devery's Latest Venture

New York, Aug. 20.—"Big Bill" Devery has opened a tavern of his own at Rockaway beach and calls it "The Pump." "Sure, I've opened a hotel," Devery said as he walked up and down the floor. "When I saw the business was good enough for Bishop Potter to go in, I decided I'd open one myself. Mine ain't no 'subway tavern.' Mine is on the level, like me. My customers will get their water in a glass labelled 'water,' and not in bottles or barrels ready mixed with their booze."

Three Bandits Garroted

Havana, Aug. 20.—The supreme court confirmed the death sentence imposed on three negroes convicted of highway robbery and murder at Guara and they were garroted this morning. Crecencio O'Farrill, chief of the gang, was also sentenced to death, but escaped from the hospital to which he had been taken while suffering from sickness. He is now at large and reported to be marauding with a new gang of bandits.

Hippodromes For Big Cities

New York, Aug. 20.—The hippodrome that is being built in this city, while it will be the first of the kind in the country, will not be the only one. It is the intent of the promoters to erect similar hippodrome buildings in the 10 principle cities of the United States. The hippodrome is a radical venture in the amusement line in this country and affords many advantages in presenting a permanent circus.

New Jersey's Good Investment

Washington, Aug. 20.—By a decision of Comptroller Tracewell, the state of New Jersey will be a beneficiary to the extent of $702,250. It was shown that the state expended that amount for interest on bonds issued by the state in aid of the government during the Civil war. The auditor having charge of the claim decided that the amount due was $497,833. Tracewell, in revising the claim, added $222,418.

Kootenay Forests Ablaze

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 20.—Forest fires are burning in East Kootenay. The flames are drawing closer to Michael and threatening to sweep the whole town. Trains are ready to take away the inhabitants.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The official call for the meeting of the 12th national irrigation congress, to be held at El Paso, Tex., Nov. 15 to 18, has been issued.

The Cuban government has acceded to the request of Mexico for the extradition of Soler Parodi, charged with the theft of jewels. This is the first extradition granted by the Cuban government.

The funeral of Mrs. Davis, wife of the governor of the Panama canal zone, was conducted at St. Matthew's church at Washington, after which burial services were held at Arlington, where the remains were interred.

Damage to the extent of $15,000 was caused by a fire which originated from an explosion of chemicals in the drug store of John B. Frawley at Bangor, Me. The occupants of the store were obliged to run for their lives.

SCHLEY'S OWN STORY.

Battle of Santiago as Described by the Admiral.

THE QUESTION OF RESPONSIBILITY

He Refers to the Battle of the Nile, In Which History Gives Laurels to Nelson, Not to Jervis—Denies That the Texas Was Endangered by the Brooklyn.

The Saturday Evening Post, under the title "The Fight Off Santiago," gives a personal account of the destruction of the Spanish fleet off Santiago on July 3, 1898, from the pen of Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley.

Admiral Schley writes as follows in regard to the credit for the success of the operations:

"At about 8:45 a. m. of July 3, 1898, the flag orderly of the Brooklyn reported that a signal had been made from the New York to 'disregard movements of the commander in chief' and that the flagship had gone eastward at high speed; also that the Massachusetts had withdrawn from the blockade during the middle watch (12 to 4 a. m.) and had gone eastward. Where either ship had gone or for what purpose had not been vouchsafed to the commander of the second squadron, whose flag, thus left on the blockading lines, in accordance with the naval regulations, constituted the commander of the second squadron the senior officer present in command.

"The regulations of the navy settle that beyond any doubt by fixing the responsibility of such officer when the service exigencies impose such duties upon him. The unwritten customs for centuries for governing or for controlling such matters have been gathered into a written code for the service guidance. The theory upon which all military organization is based, whether a squad or a squadron, is that no element of such organization can ever be left without a responsible commander, and no military exigency can occur in war when such a force is ever left without some one in control. The dates of commission held by officers are for the purpose of fixing this very question. The different gradations in the noncommissioned ranks are but the continuation of the line of command in case the ravages of battle remove one after another in the commissioned grades. There must be some one upon whom the responsibility of success or defeat can be imposed.

"From a confidential document under the title, 'Executive C, Third Session, Fifty-fifth Congress,' a communication by Mr. Long respecting 'advancements in the navy,' it is seen that the commander in chief's movements to Siboney on that morning were under orders from the department to meet General Shafter. This order, then, furnishes an explanation of the commander in chief's signal and subsequent movements eastward on July 3, 1898, and supplies, too, evidence of temporary assignment to a new duty, taking him on shore to the headquarters of the army. It fixes incontestably also the status of the commander of the second squadron as senior officer present in command before Santiago after Sampson's withdrawal."

After referring to Nelson's victory at Aboukir bay in 1798, when his command was a division of Sir John Jervis's fleet, he continues:

"From that day to this no military man has ever claimed that the glory of Aboukir bay, or, as better known, the battle of the Nile, was in any respect shared by the grand and great Jervis, who was Nelson's commander in chief. It made no difference then, and it makes none today, whether a commander in chief be eleven miles or eleven hundred miles away from the scene of an action in which he did not participate. History will always grant the guerdon of victory to that commander who fights and wins the battle. If the battle here related had miscarried, or if, through mismanagement, Cervera or any of his ships had escaped that day, there would have been no difficulty whatever about who was in command or who would have had to bear the censure. It is as certain in that event that there would have been no effort to prove that the New York was within signal distance, no claim that it was a captains' battle, nor any other of the sophistries that were invented in the aftermath of controversy about this great victory.

"No instance is recalled where great success was won in battle when every participant was not anxious to share in the glory, but no instance is remembered where any subordinate ever desired to share with his superior the odium of defeat. Santiago alone would be unique as one of the world's great battles won without anybody being in command. If defeat had occurred, the commander of the second squadron would have had to take his medicine just the same.

"While the squadron's strength was thus reduced, we know today from contributions of the Spanish officers, published afterward by the office of naval intelligence and therefore official, that Captain Concas made a reconnoissance at the mouth of the harbor on the morning of the battle in order to learn the disposition of the American fleet. The absence of the New York and Massachusetts must have impressed him as giving Cervera the most opportune moment he had had for the sortie he made at 9:35 a. m. on July 3, 1898, when the Spanish squadron, regardless of the torpedoes in the channel, was discovered filing out."

Admiral Schley, in writing of the details of the fight, says of the course of his flagship, the Brooklyn:

"The Brooklyn was steering a course diametrically opposite to that steered by the Spanish fleet, and it was apparent that the original plan, to rush in upon the enemy as his squadron was emerging from the channel and sink it, had failed. The Spanish squadron had practically broken through and passed the battleship line, thereby creating a new situation in the fight and one that had to be met at once to prevent its escape. A new disposition, therefore, had to be made instantly in order to meet the new condition after the failure of the first plan. Cook, under his general instructions, had perceived the situation and gave the order, 'Hard aport,' anticipating by a few seconds a similar order by the commander of the second squadron. Flag Lieutenant Sears was ordered to hoist signal, 'Follow the flag,' which Clark saw, obeyed and repeated.

"The Brooklyn swung rapidly and continuously around to the westward through a little more than half her tactical diameter, to west-southwest, the full tactical diameter being the diameter of the circle she would have turned through if she had returned to the course, northeast by north, from which she was started. The order to port the helm was not given by the commander of the second squadron, though it was the proper military maneuver under the circumstances. It met with his approval and saved the day beyond any doubt. But, observing that the Brooklyn's bow was swinging rapidly to starboard, the inquiry was made of Captain Cook whether the 'helm was hard aport.' The proximity of the Brooklyn at the time of the turn to the second ship, afterward recognized as the Vizcaya, is remembered distinctly from the fact that a number of men were running on her decks between the superstructure and her forward turret and that daylight was observed by the naked eye between their legs as they ran.

"There was no colloquy of any kind or of any character with any one at the time about the turn, and none would have been permitted with any officer. This was one of many fictions that grew up, among others, six or eight months after the fight. Among them was the Texas incident. That ship was never for a moment in the least danger from the Brooklyn. During the turn her distance was never nearer than 500 or 600 yards from the Brooklyn. Some testimony before the court of inquiry, in 1901, placed her at much greater distance. During the turn the starboard side of the Texas was never seen from the Brooklyn at all."

After completing the account of the pursuit of the Spanish ships he goes on to say:

"The fight having ended at 1:15 P. M., a natural interest in the vessels following prompted a survey of the horizon with glasses. The masts of two ships and the smoke only of a third were descried away on the horizon. Later the first two were discovered to be the Texas and the Vixen. The third, whose smoke was visible, proved to be the New York, which arrived on the scene at 2:23 P. M., one hour and eight minutes after the battle ended. If the New York was making at the time the speed of seventeen knots, as Captain Chadwick reported in his letter dated July 29, 1898, to the commander in chief at Guantanamo, then at the time of the Colon's surrender she could not have been nearer than about nineteen miles, too far to be within seeing distance and too far away to be anywhere within signal distance when this great battle ended.

"The grand result of the day was that the Brooklyn and the Oregon won a renown which cannot be 'impugned by disappointment or mitigated by jealousy or contemned by envy as long as justice holds empire in the reason of our countrymen.'

"As the New York was approaching the final scene of the tragedy signal was made from the Brooklyn, 'We have gained a great victory; details will be communicated.' This signal was kept flying quite half an hour before it was answered by the New York, but the omission was thought to arise from the fact that the New York was at too great a distance to read it. When it finally was answered, however, it was in the form of an order, 'Report your casualties.' It is to be regretted that no word of congratulation, so much valued by men and officers on such occasions, issued from the flagship. Notwithstanding this, at 2:15 p. m., while the New York was still some two miles away, another signal was made from the Brooklyn, 'This is a great day for our country.' This signal was merely acknowledged with an answering pennant, but no answer otherwise was made.

"At 2:23 p. m. the New York arrived and steamed into a position between the Brooklyn and the Colon. Cook had been detained for some time on board the Colon in arranging the surrender. When this was concluded he was returning as the New York arrived and was ordered on board that ship to make a report. As Cook's orders were given by the commander of the second squadron, it would have relieved the official records of an error if the latter officer had been able to say that no orders had been given by him that the Spanish officers in surrendering unconditionally should retain their effects. It would have given the opportunity to state that the Oregon did not take a 'front position in the chase.' The Oregon's services on the day of battle were superb. Her position was always close to the Brooklyn from beginning to end, but she was at no time ahead. Clark's testimony at the inquiry, three years afterward, is conclusive upon this point and settles for all time the Oregon's position as well as the part taken by the two ships in the result of the day's battle.

"As soon as Cook returned from the New York the commander of the second squadron went in the same boat to the New York to report, as custom-

GUARDSMAN KILLED

State Soldiers Attacked by Regulars In an Ohio Town

IS UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Provost Guard Sent to Round Up Men Who Had Overstayed Leaves Met With Pistol Fire, Which Was Returned

Athens, O., Aug. 20.—Regular army soldiers, said to be members of a cavalry troop of the first brigade at Camp Armitage, near this city, where state militia maneuvers are being held, attended by two detachments of regular cavalry, last night attacked members of a provost guard composed of members of company D, Ohio National Guard, and one man was killed and three wounded, all being National Guardsmen. The regulars escaped without any casualties as far as is known.

The guardsman killed was Corporal Clark, whose home is at Warren, where the company is located. He was 21 years old and a machinist by occupation. The wounded are: Watson H. Ohl, struck on head by a rifle; Albert Heald, private, shot in left leg; Sergeant Blessing, struck on left hip.

The regulars, who used pistols, scattered for camp and none of them have been apprehended. Fifteen minutes after the shooting General Dick, in command of the National Guardsmen and the regular army officers, had declared the town under martial law and hundreds of regulars were rushed into the city and are now patrolling the streets to prevent further trouble.

As gathered from soldiers in camp, it seems that nearly all the provost guards, sent to town to gather in soldiers who have overstayed their leaves, have been National Guardsmen, and the regulars became possessed of the idea that the provosts were discriminating against them in favor of the guardsmen, arresting the former and allowing the latter to go free.

Regulars assembled in Athens last night in force and the provost guard from company D met a number of them in front of the sheriff's residence near the courthouse. The provost guards clubbed their rifles and then, they claim, the regulars commenced to shoot. They returned the fire and more than 100 shots in all were fired. The battle ended when the regulars ran for camp after the killing.

No further trouble is anticipated, as only regulars are now patrolling the streets of Athens.

Police Doubt His Story

London, Aug. 20.—A man giving the name of Franz Schneider has surrendered himself to the Birmingham police, accusing himself of stealing papers "from a person at Southampton believed to be F. K. Loomis." The man's story is being investigated by the police, but the latter attach no credence thereto, it being pointed out that Loomis is not believed to have reached Southampton and that no papers are reported to be missing.

Labor Troubles Hinder Trade

New York, Aug. 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that confidence in continued improvement of trade has been somewhat unsettled by sensational events in the wheat market and the lack of harmony between labor and capital. Some disappointment is also felt by those who counted upon an early resumption of activity in building operations and other industries hampered by labor controversies.

Escape of Six Prisoners

Camden, N. J., Aug. 20.—In an attempted general jail delivery in the Camden county jail six prisoners escaped from the institution and are still at large. The bars in the front window were filed off. Among those who escaped is Alfred Harvey, a negro, who was nearly lynched on Thursday because of an attempted assault on a little white girl.

Cunneen's Friends In Evidence

Buffalo, Aug. 20.—An address to the members of the bar of the state of New York, requesting their co-operation in nominating and electing John Cunneen, the present attorney general and a Democrat, associate judge of the court of appeals, has been published. It is signed by about 300 lawyers, of whom about 70 are Republicans.

Horse Slasher at Work

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 20.—When Edward Moore went to his stable he found that his horse, a valuable animal, had been mutilated and lost considerable blood. Upwards of a dozen horses have recently been cut and slashed in this city and Central Falls, with no clue to the perpetrator of the crimes.

Nine Killed by Cloudburst

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 20.—A cloudburst at Globe, A. T., resulted in several deaths and the destruction of much property. Wires to the section affected are down, but one report says nine persons were drowned. The Southern Pacific shops were demolished.

Slaughter Instead of Bride

Algiers, Aug. 20.—Eighty-three horsemen sent by the Moorish pretender, Bu Hamara, to Chief Amada of the Beni Buzzagora tribe, to ask his daughter in marriage, were treacherously murdered by the chief.

HOAR GROWS WEAKER

Unable to Maintain the Rally Which Came Unexpectedly

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 20.—Senator Hoar is resting quietly. He was given a very little opiate to insure rest. The trouble in his left lung has not spread. The senator's condition is very serious. He has been informed of the multitude of messages of sympathy and is deeply moved by them. No one now sees him except the members of his family.

The rally in Senator Hoar's condition which came unexpectedly Thursday night has not continued, and it can hardly be said that he has even held his own. Again the gravest fears are felt for the patient. He is steadily growing weaker.

Senator Hoar is now suffering from congestion of the left lung, due to impaired heart action. This, in the opinion of the physicians, lessens his chance of improvement, and is regarded as a bad omen.

Big Apple Crop Promised

Boston, Aug. 20.—The Boston Chamber of Commerce reports that a canvass of Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts points to a crop of apples somewhat larger than last year. The excess is notable in Massachusetts and parts of New Hampshire. Quality generally promises to be superior to that of last season. Reports from Canada indicate that the crop will be heavy. As a summary the crop is slightly heavier in quantity than last year, and on the whole of much better quality.

Arrests Abroad Are Expected

Boston, Aug. 20.—Sensational developments are expected to take place within a short time in the present investigation in Europe of the undervaluation cases connected with the Boston customs house which is being made by former First Assistant United States District Attorney Casey and Special Treasury Agent Clayton. From the present standing of the case several arrests are expected to take place in foreign countries as a result of the work of these two agents of this government.

Counterfeit Tens at Nashua

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 20.—During the past two weeks there have been passed in this city several counterfeit $10 bills on the Hackensack National bank of New Jersey. The discovery of the counterfeits was made when the money was taken to the banks for deposit. The bills are poorly printed and the lines are seen to be blurred at different points when carefully examined by an expert. They would readily pass in a business transaction, however, when not carefully inspected.

Mills Must Start Together

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 20.—It is stated here that the mills will make no effort in any way to start up until after Labor day. Before any exact date is fixed it is stated there will be a meeting of the Manufacturers' association and all the mills will open their gates at the same time. There will be no one or two mills started up if the help should be willing to go in. Either all of the mills will run or all will be stopped.

Taunton Man Held as Firebug

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 20.—On the charge of setting fire to a building owned by John J. Nichols, on Aug. 16, resulting in the destruction of a stable and a laundry and the death of 16 valuable horses, Thomas F. Nichols, a local liquor dealer, waived examination in the district court. He was held for the grand jury in $5000. The fire caused a loss of over $40,000.

Boston-Haverhill Trolley Line

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 20.—The board of aldermen last night granted a franchise to the Haverhill and Boxford Street Railway company. The proposed railway, when completed, will be the connecting link of the trolley line between Boston and Haverhill. The road will be double tracked and the running time to Boston will be one hour and a half.

Struck and Killed by Train

Milford, Conn., Aug. 20.—James McQuade of Manchester, N. H., was found lying along the railroad tracks near Woodmont last evening and was later brought here. He said he was struck by a train. His condition was so serious that he was sent to the Bridgeport hospital, where he died.

Failure of Vermont Bank

St. Albans, Vt., Aug. 20.—The People's National bank of Swanton is not open for business, its finances having been found to be in an unsafe condition. The failure of the bank is due to the inability to collect on a number of notes which were due, and which were held as collateral by the institution.

Child Blew Her Own Brains Out

Boston, Aug. 20.—Attracted by the gleam of a revolver while rummaging through her mother's workbasket in search of scraps with which to make a rag doll, Lena di Blassi, 5 years old, picked it up, and while examining it blew her brains out last evening.

Bad Boys at Liberty

Portland, Me., Aug. 20.— Of 11 inmates of the state school for boys who escaped early yesterday only two have been captured. The break was made by removing the lower half of a dormitory window and jumping 20 feet to the ground.

Held For Safe Blowing

Farmington, Me., Aug. 20.—James Grant and Philip Richards, charged with entering the Maine Central freight office and blowing open the safe, were held for the supreme court. Both entered a plea of not guilty.

The Proper Age For Marriage

By Governor EDWIN WARFIELD Of Maryland

MY ADVICE TO GIRLS IS NOT TO MARRY TOO EARLY. IF ASKED THE AGE WHEN GIRLS SHOULD MARRY I SHOULD SAY FROM TWENTY-FOUR TO TWENTY-SIX.

Marriage for the purpose of settling a daughter in life is, as a rule, a failure and an unhappy one. No parent, and especially no true and loving mother, will wish to push her daughter into matrimony before she is fully matured and fitted for the grave responsibilities of married life. Girls just out of school are not equipped for the ordinary household duties of wives and for the cares and trials of motherhood.

THE GIRL WHO MARRIES TOO EARLY MISSES MANY OF THE PLEASURES OF LIFE. She is doomed to spend her youthful days in the trying and taxing cares of motherhood and household duties.

Such marriages are unfortunate. They are entered into without due consideration and frequently before the husband has fully established his business ability and the earning capacity that will enable him to provide for the increasing wants of married life. GIRLS SHOULD BE TAUGHT THAT THERE IS MORE IN LIFE THAN GETTING MARRIED; that when they leave school they owe some service to their parents, and that they should spend some of their days in making the lives of their fathers and mothers easier and brighter.

THE SAME ADVICE PERTAINS TO YOUNG MEN. I have known cases where young men, because they married too soon and before they had established themselves in permanent positions, were compelled to give up good opportunities for advancement because family ties and environments kept them down to one locality. The realization of the mistake of marrying too early has discouraged many a young man, blasted his future, brought disappointment to himself and deprivation and suffering to his family.

I BELIEVE IN MARRIAGE AND WOULD LIKE TO SEE EVERY MAN AND WOMAN MATED IN CONGENIAL COMPANIONSHIP FOR LIFE, BUT I AM OPPOSED TO EARLY AND THOUGHTLESS MARRIAGES.

The Man Is a Fool Who Lives In the Past

By Senator CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW

WE PASS THIS WAY BUT ONCE. We cannot retrace our steps to any preceding milestone. Every time the clock strikes it is both the announcement of the hour upon which we are entering and the knell of the one which is gone. EACH NIGHT MEMORY BALANCES THE BOOKS AND WE KNOW BEFORE WE SLEEP WHETHER THE RESULT IS ON THE RIGHT OR ON THE WRONG SIDE OF OUR ACCOUNT.

The older we grow the more we realize that life is worth the living. We think too little of the fun there is in it. WE ARE TOO PARSIMONIOUS OF LAUGHTER. We do not appreciate as we ought the man or the woman who can make us forget while we are amused. We cannot help the past and that man is a fool who lives in it. TODAY IS A BETTER DAY THAN YESTERDAY!

The secrets of happiness and longevity, in my judgment, are to cherish and cultivate cheerful, hopeful and buoyant spirits. If you haven't them, create them. Enjoy things as they are. The raggedest person I ever saw was a Turkish peasant standing in the field, clothed in bits of old carpet. But the combination of color made him a thing of beauty, if not a joy forever.

LET US NEVER LOSE OUR FAITH IN HUMAN NATURE, NO MATTER HOW OFTEN WE ARE DECEIVED. DO NOT LET THE DECEPTIONS DESTROY CONFIDENCE IN THE REAL, HONEST GOODNESS, GENEROSITY, HUMANITY AND FRIENDSHIP THAT EXIST IN THE WORLD. THEY ARE OVERWHELMINGLY IN THE MAJORITY.

When Wives Should Be Wage Earners

By Dr. SIMON N. PATTEN, Professor of Political Economy, University of Pennsylvania

THE whole social problem would be solved were the wife to become an income producer. Of course, I refer to the young married couples, where each before marriage is earning between $10 and $12 a week. I BELIEVE THAT EACH SHOULD CONTINUE A WAGE EARNER until the husband's income increases to at least $20, when the wife can add more to the utility of his money by withdrawing from the wage-producing class.

As the income from the man increases from $10 to $20 a week, that of the woman remains stationary at $10, and then, giving herself up to the home, they both can get better and more pleasure out of the husband's income. The social pressure on the woman is to force her from the employed classes. But from my point of view I SEE NO OBJECTION TO THE WIFE WORKING as long as it is to the better utilization of the income of the husband.

TO MY MIND, FROM AN ECONOMIC AND MORAL VIEWPOINT, IT IS DESIRABLE THAT PERSONS OF SMALL MONEY EARNING CAPACITY SHOULD BE MARRIED, PROVIDED BOTH CONTINUE WAGE EARNERS. MARRIAGE UNDER THESE CONDITIONS MERELY MEANS A MORAL, ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL UPLIFTING.

UNCLE SAM.

The tax rate of Cambridge is also $1 higher than last year—$17.90.

Some funny people out in Nebraska want to give the electoral vote to Roosevelt and send Bryan to the Senate. There is no doubt about Roosevelt—the question is how to get Bryan into the Senate.

Men of all parties and all shades of opinion are praising President Roosevelt for his letter to the U. S. Attorney General of Alabama, to put a stop to the removal of Federal office holders for partisan reasons. The letter is worthy of high praise for it has the true ring. The President will make no political speeches this year. He follows the example of McKinley in 1900. The rule is a good one, for it is hardly dignified for the President of all the people to indulge in partisan speech-making.

The Commercial Intelligence, London, says that under a system of high tariffs Portuguese industries have increased considerably within the last few years, particularly the production of coarse woolen and unbleached cotton goods, glass and butter. The introduction of motor cars is also rapidly developing in that country. It is being discovered in England, too, that a high tariff, like the Republican tariff in the United States, makes a country prosperous.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Girls have been introduced into the cutting room of a Beverly factory, where a strike has been recently inaugurated. The experiment has been tried in Cincinnati and other western shoe manufacturing centres with a degree of success, but we imagine that New England sentiment will balk considerably at the introduction of women into this part of the shoemaking industry. It is generally considered to be a man's work, or, at least, to be entitled to a man's pay.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞Before the St. Louis Exposition all previous World's Fairs pale into insignificance. It is upon a scale the magnificence and grandeur of which cannot be grasped in a few days. Grandly conceived and wonderfully executed, it has fulfilled every prophesy made concerning it and has gone beyond the most sanguine expectations of the men who are behind it.—Baltimore Sun.

☞Mayor Collins of Boston last week found two chances to write vetoes that Governor Bates had skipped, and improved both of them with skill and judgment. The city council, as is the wont of city councils, had accepted two legislative acts, both of which were calculated to take money out of the city treasury without making any return to the public good. Mayor Collins talks about them both in an eminently common-sense way, which ought to impress even a common council given to spending money without thinking.—New Bedford Standard.

☞Two small children, a boy and a girl, stood for an hour outside the police station in Lowell, hand in hand, while the court dragged its way through a long list of drunk cases. They watched the heavy doors. After a long time the patrol wagon backed up and the prisoners, battered and unwholesome, were hurried out and into the wagon. The little girl's lips quivered, but as the last prisoner was seated she gained control of herself. "Goodby, father," she shouted. And the Black Maria rolled rapidly down the street. That is the worst side of the penalty that comes to the man who does not keep a check on his appetite or his temper or who is heedless or callous to what is right and what is wrong. It is not he alone that pays the cost. The pain and suffering fall on the innocent—on his parents, his wife, his children, his friends. It blots the sunshine out of their lives and clouds them with shame. How many men, if they stopped to think of this, would deliberately do wrong? The realization comes too late. In an hour they make blots on their lives that leave an everlasting stain, and go to the police court, the jail, or the State prison, not unloved or unforgiven by the wife and little ones but leaving them to bear a burden of shame that is like unto a crown of thorns. Does anyone envy the thoughts that surged in that Lowell man's rum-befogged brain when his child cried out, from her aching little heart, "Goodby, father?"—Brockton Enterprise.

Mrs. Mary R. Emslie.

It is with sorrow that we announce the death of Mrs. Mary Robertson Emslie, of No. 30 Garfield Road, this city, the suddenness of which came as a shock to her many friends.

She was a woman of much ability, and one who endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact.

None will miss her more than her associates in the United Order of the Golden Star, of which she has been a loyal and active member since its organization.

Her funeral occurred on Thursday, the 18th, and amongst the many flowers, was noticeably a very handsome piece from the members of the Golden Star, made by Mr. Patterson, the Commander of the Commandery.

On the evening of that day, Mr. Emslie was visited by William Patterson of Wollaston, the Commander of Quincy Commandery, to which the deceased belonged, and handed him a check for $1000, the amount for which the deceased lady was insured.

This Fraternal Order has its headquarters at No. 27 School street, Boston, and its membership is confined to Massachusetts. It has made a practice of paying its death claims on an average of three days from the death of the member. In many cases the claim being paid not later than the day of the funeral of the deceased member.

A main purpose of the Order is to secure immediate payments, in order that the beneficiaries if needing, may have funds available for immediate use. The Order is growing rapidly, and is in a most prosperous condition. For applications and further information, you are respectfully referred to Worthington Smith, 113 Upland Road, Quincy, who will be glad to give all information relative to the organization.

World's Fair Trains.

Three through trains which make fast time are run between Boston and St. Louis daily via Boston & Albany R. R. They leave at convenient hours and arrive at convenient hours, and one can be on the road one night or two nights as he pleases.

One express leaves Boston at 10.45 A. M. and arrives in St. Louis at 5 P. M. the next day.

Another express leaves Boston at 2 P. M. and arrives in St. Louis at 9.45 P. M. the next night.

The third express leaves Boston at 8 P. M. and arrives at St. Louis at 7.30 A. M. on the second day.

One can start on a Saturday evening; if time is limited; reach St. Louis at 7.30 Monday morning; have six days at the World's Fair, and start for home Saturday evening, reaching Boston on Monday morning.

American Boys 12, Adams A. C. 6.

The American Boys of South Quincy, defeated the Adams A. C. of Quincy Point, on Friday afternoon, by a score of 12 to 6.

Jenkins captured all flys that came into left field, Spargo covered the Initial bag in good shape and Abernatti at third proved very effective for the American Boys, while Saunders in the box and Curtain at third, did fine work for the losers. The game was won in the fifth by bunching of hits and good sprinting on the bases, showing that base ball science is not lacking in this 12 year old team who have now won 19 out of 20 games played this season.

NAVAL MAGAZINE.

Several Storehouses to be Erected in Weymouth and Hingham.

The plans for the great naval magazine at Weymouth Back River have been completed, and the land necessary will be purchased or condemned. District Attorney Moulton will have charge of any condemnation proceedings that may be necessary.

It is not the aim of the U. S. officers, however, to carry out any hasty evictions of people from their homes. Time will be given to all to find homes elsewhere, before the magazines are built.

The plans are so designed as to make any general explosion, such as the Iona, Id., disaster, absolutely impossible. That resources of science and the utmost human care will be combined to make the safety absolute, so far as the surrounding homes are concerned.

The tract to be taken by the government will embrace the 770 acres, or more than a mile square, on Weymouth Back River, near North Weymouth. Capt. Selfridge, U. S. N., has been in this section, recently, examining the ground, preparatory to the government's occupation of the tract.

From the plans, it is plain that no less than 10 storehouses or buildings of that character will be put up. This will allow a safe storage of a large amount of smokeless powder and fixed ammunition.

Rules will be strictly enforced as to the storage of the great explosive shells, not more than 3 10-in., or 4 8-in or 5 6-in., shells being allowed in a row. This will allow even for an explosion of a shell with probably no dangerous results outside, but there is no likelihood of a shell exploding in storage.

As for the smokeless powder, rules are to be enforced, making constant chemical tests compulsory, to find the first signs of decomposition. All powder will be tested at least four times a year.

In addition, probably, to the chemical tests, the powder will be watched at other times. Decaying powder gives off an unmistakable odor. This is easily detected. Condemned powder, brought from war vessels, will all be tested before being allowed in storage.

In case any of the powder shows signs of breaking up, it will be taken to some remote spot, where an explosion will harm nobody. So that so far as the powder is concerned, the people of this section are absolutely secure.]

Still further, it has been found that no explosion is dangerous over 1000 feet distance. So all the buildings will be placed that far apart from one another. Also they will be put in ravines, where the surrounding hills will break the force of any possible explosion.

Probably the chief danger will come at the small shop where, as naval regulations demand, the shells loaded with high explosives will be broken up. It is possible that an explosion may come there. It did in just such a case at Iona, Id.

But while such an explosion cannot be prevented, a rule will be made that only one shell be kept at a time, in that place. That, with the isolation of the shop, will be all that can be done.

Capt. Selfridge, a high authority on explosives, says that under such conditions, the location of the great depot at Weymouth Back River is no more dangerous than the location of a flour mill or a country store at that location would be.

Other naval officers who know of the plans for the U. S. explosives depot take the same view very positively. They hope that the government plans for the station can be carried out without any opposition.

In addition, the establishment of the station will relieve other sections, like Chelsea and Everett, where explosives are now kept under far more dangerous conditions. Even if any opposition should be worked up, therefore, by real estate speculators, it is certain that the U. S. naval station for explosives will be established.

The Fall River Strike.

There is a growing dissatisfaction among the operators of the mills at Fall River and many are anxious to return to work. There has been much suffering among those having large families. Relief to the non-union men has not been satisfactory, and they are ready it is said to go back to work as soon as possible. The mill treasurers are not yet ready to say how soon they will open the gates. They want to be sure of the situation first.

It looks very much, however, as if they could have the bulk of their operatives back, whenever the latter are wanted.

A Veteran's Visit.

Mr. Samuel P. Wheeler of Hardwick, Vt., who came to the G. A. R. Encampment, has been the guest of Mr. William A. McCormick the past week.

Mr. Wheeler spent his boyhood days in West Quincy, and enjoyed meeting his friends whom he had not seen for fourteen years.

CITY BREVITIES.

Autumn begins Sept. 23

This is the 233d day of 1904.

Three weeks more of the school vacation.

Labor day two weeks from next Monday.

The sun will rise after five o'clock next week.

Officers Broberg Cahill and Curtain go on their vacations this week.

Miss Eliezabeth Seller of Woburn is visiting her brother at Quincy Point.

Today's storm puts a damper on the outdoor events scheduled for this afternoon.

Mrs. Richard Vinton of Norfolk Downs has been visiting friends in Brockton.

Mrs. Fanny Sampson of Washington street has been called to the home of her daughter who is ill.

Congratulations to Mr. Mrs. H. B. Seller of Pray street a little daughter entered their home Friday morning.

The many young friends in this city of Mrs. Walter Gardner will be sorry to learn that she has been seriously ill.

Adolph S. Sanberg and Oscar Sandberg entertained friends at the Great Hill house during the carnival at Houghs Neck this week.

Mr. Pickens of the American Missionary Association will address the audience at the Washington street Congregational church at 7.30 Sunday evening.

The County Commissioners have awarded the contract for providing and setting the steel furniture and other fittings in the new registry building to the Berger Manufacturing Company of Ohio for $41,690. They were the lowest bidders.

$10,000 for Wellesley College.

By the will of Amos W. Stetson of Braintree, filed at the Probate office, Dedham, yesterday, the Wellesley College receives a bequest of $10,000. The income of $7,500 of this amount is to be used to maintain a free scholarship to be known as the Union Church scholarship. The income of the remaining $2,500 is to be devoted to the repair of picture frames and the purchase of new frames for pictures in the college art building.

Eight oil paintings are also given to the college, to add to the Stetson collection there.

North American Trust Co.

President J. M. Barry, F. C. Webster and C. A. Record, the principals in the North American Trust case, with a formidable array of legal talent and a half a cart load of books and office impediments, were again before Commissioner Fiske on Thursday. It appeared from evidence that the company had no capital, but paid dividends from money paid in.

The trust received in cash on account of the purchase fund between April 9 and June 24, $6,474. The total disbursement for the same period was $5,860, leaving a cash balance of $614 on hand June 24. The face value of contracts written between the two dates as shown by the books was $785,100, $296,100 being for personal contracts, and the remainder for real estate.

It seems that too severe a punishment cannot be given to men engaged in cheating the poor out of their funds. It looks as though many thousands of persons had been victimized by this trust company.

G. A. R. at Shipyard.

The Grand Army men have been privileged at the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company this week, and a large number of visiting veterans have inspected the yard, and witnessed the construction of battleships.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR
Steam or Hot Water Heaters
you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

BOLD ROBBERY.

Dorchester Residence Robbed of $5,800 Early Last Evening.

Thieves ransacked the home of Victor Walmer, 9 Bradshaw street, Dorchester, and took away $5800 which was in a desk in an upper chamber.

Mr. Walmer was about to meet some financial obligations and had the money for this purpose.

Mrs. Walmer is away, and her husband left the place at 6 P. M. and returned at about 8 P. M.

The burglars had broken into the house during his absence, rifled a desk which contained the money and had taken his wife's jewel case, containing watches and gems amounting in value to many hundreds of dollars, and had ransacked the house from top to bottom, carrying off everything portable and of any value, leaving no clue behind.

The burglars had effected an entrance through a rear window, and had evidently carefully planned their work, as they showed a familiarity with the premises which seems to indicate that the work was done by somebody in the neighborhood.

This is the third break in the vicinity within a short time, and there is much disquietude among the residents, not only because of the amount of money taken, but also because of the secrecy with which the thieves surrounded their movements.

—A liquor case was tried recently at Nantucket in the Superior Court before Judge Schofield, and a novel feature of the matter was that there were thirteen jurymen who heard the evidence, the miscount not being noticed until just before the jury was to go to its room, when the presiding justice took a long look at them and then queried of the clerk how many jurors were engaged on the case. The clerk counted and then answered "Thirteen." The last one drawn on the panel was dropped and the remainder completed the case. The hoodoo attached to 13, however, got in its work, for the defendant was convicted and find $50. Old court officials declare this to have been the first time in the history of Massachusetts courts that a jury was ever composed of a baker's dozen.—O. C. Memorial.

There is no signboard on the road to success and no label on life's best chances. To find them is the secret of the few.

BRAINTREE.

Charles Smart of Washington street was unable to work the latter part of the week, having his foot crushed by a falling piece of iron at the Fore River Engine works, Wednesday afternoon.

Hartley L. White spent Thursday and Friday in Braintree renewing the acquaintances of his townspeople. He has returned to the city of Franklin, N. H., where White & Wetherbee are engineering a sewerage system.

Mr. E. T. Jordling of Middle street was removed Tuesday to the Homœopathic hospital in Boston and Wednesday operated upon. His right leg was cut off above the knee. Mr. Jordling injured his knee over two years ago and since that time has been a great sufferer.

Mr. A. F. Donnell of Braintree was prominent in the electrical parade at Boston Thursday evening. He represented Neptune.

Mr. W. G. Dustin of Illinois, who has been elected commander in chief of the S. of V., is a cousin to Mrs. C. E. French of Braintree.

George Keiswetter has taken a position as night watchman at the Fore River Engine works.

While viewing the G. A. R. parade we noticed one of our town musicians, Mr. William Cuff in the front row of the Lynn Cadet band playing the slide trombone.

Harlow Waite has been touring the surrounding towns in his automobile during his vacation and spent several days at Hyannisport recently.

Dr. F. W. Brett and wife left Monday for an extended trip through the West to California. The doctor will be in Braintree again by Sept 20, ready to attend to his many patients.

Antietam Camp, S. of V., was represented by Joseph Sawyer and Chaplain H. H. Marston they having the honor of caring the Penn. battle flag.

The Braintree Public Library was opened Wednesday after having been closed for two weeks.

The high school graduating class of 1902 met with Miss Catherine Cummings of Pond street, Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hathaway, Mrs. Mary Brett, Miss Carolyn Foster and Miss Helen Hathaway visited Miss Edith Brett at Winthrop Highlands, Sunday.

Miss Julia Schraut who has successfully undergone an operation for appendicitis at the Boothby hospital, returned to her home Thursday.

Mrs. Minnie A. Cook, Mrs. Alice Hayden, Miss Bessie Holbrook, Mrs. C. H. Rice, Mrs. Ethel Hayden, Mrs. Maria Hollis and Mrs. Abbie Hayden have been attending the national convention of L. A. S. to S. of V. at Gilbert hall, Tremont temple the past week.

Mrs. L. W. Thayer of Tremont street attended the Relief Corps meeting connected with the G. A. R. celebration in Boston last Wednesday. The day was pleasantly spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Butler of Avon, John Butler of New York, and Charles Butler Jr. of Stoughton, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Louis Butler of Pond street.

Mrs. George Stanley and two daughters of Whitman are guests of Mrs. William Bailey of Franklin street. Mrs. Bailey has also been entertaining her grandfather, Mr. Charles Thayer of South Hanover, who is 93 years old but appears to enjoy very good health.

Wilbur Morrell has recently purchased the George Bird estate on Standish avenue.

Mr. Oscar Hubbard and family have returned from an extended visit to his parents in Ashby. While there Mr. Hubbard had the misfortune to lose his pet dog "Geff." by poisoning.

Charles H. Howe of Ipswich, formerly of Braintree and a veteran of the Civil war, spent Tuesday with his sister in law Mrs. Clara Howe.

—In telling of the kinds of men who are not wanted in the world, Jacob, Riis tells a story of President Roosevelt. When Roosevelt's class was leaving college a professor asked one man what he intended to do. "Oh, there's not much use in trying to do anything in particular," the young man replied. Whereupon Roosevelt got up, and, walking to the professor, pounded his fist upon the table and exclaimed: Professor, that man ought to be knocked in the head!" And so he ought," said Mr. Riis: The indifferent man is not wanted.

—Twelve hundred pennies are on exhibition in the Palace of Liberal Arts at the World's Fair. They are very neatly arranged in the form of a cent, with the Indians' head outlined in the coins, but the most interesting thing about the coins is that 900 of them bear the same date, 1877. Pennies of this date are very rare, and the collection is the largest known collection of rare coins of one date in America. The exhibit is property of Henry Hammelman, of Buffalo.

A MODEL OF CAUTION.

Yet an Innocent Remark Was the Cause of His Death.

The father of Gueau de Reverseaux had been a distinguished lawyer, and through his influence he held important offices under the government. When the revolution began he gave up his office at La Rochelle and retired to Chartres.

From the time that the revolution began Gueau de Reverseaux devoted his attention exclusively to preserving his own safety. He wrote no letters. He would receive no letters. He saw no visitors and paid no visits. He spoke to no person and allowed no one to come near him. It would have been impossible to be more prudent than he was.

However, he wanted some sheds built on his farm near Chartres and ventured to consult a carpenter. The carpenter told him that he could not undertake the work immediately, as Gueau de Reverseaux wished, because most of his workmen were drafted to join the army at once.

Gueau de Reverseaux replied: "The workmen need not go. They can send substitutes."

This remark was heard by the workmen, but only the first phrase made any impression on them. They reported everywhere that M. Gueau de Reverseaux, who must be good authority, had said that they need not go. The news went to headquarters that Gueau de Reverseaux declared that the drafted workmen need not obey the government. This was considered to be conspiracy, and he was condemned to death and executed.

A BID FOR SILENCE.

Five Million Dollars Was the Sum Offered and Rejected.

Immediately it became known to the Tweed ring that the proofs of its guilt were in possession of the Times an effort was made to buy them. A carefully verified report of this attempt was published in Harper's Weekly for Feb. 22, 1890:

"A tenant in the same building (the Times building) sent for Mr. Jones to come to his office, as he wished to see him on an important matter. Mr. Jones went to the lawyer's office and, being ushered into a private room, was confronted by Comptroller Connolly.

"'I don't want to see this man,' said Mr. Jones, and he turned to go.

"'For God's sake,' exclaimed Connolly, 'let me say one word to you!'

"At this appeal Mr. Jones stopped. Connolly then made him a proposition to forego the publication of the documents he had in his possession and offered him the enormous sum of $5,000,000 to do this. As Connolly waited for the answer, Mr. Jones said:

"'I don't think the devil will ever make a higher bid for me than that.'

"Connolly began to plead and drew a graphic picture of what one could do with $5,000,000. He ended by saying:

"'Why, with that sum you can go to Europe and live like a prince.'

"'Yes,' said Mr. Jones, 'but I should know that I was a rascal. I cannot consider your offer or any offer not to publish the facts in my possession.'"

—From "Thomas Nast" in Pearson's.

The Frolicsome Scallop.

The scallop takes life less seriously and servilely than his cousins, the clams and oysters. The oyster can't move from his place; the clam can, but rarely does. The scallop is as free as a bird almost to the end of his days. Then, again, the scallop has temperament. He exhibits the frolicsomeness of childhood, as higher animals do. We see little scallops by tens and dozens darting swiftly here and there in the water by a quick opening and shutting of the two valves of their shells. They are as graceful as a flock of snowbirds and as vivacious. Capture one, lay it on the sand, and it snaps its valves, impatient of the interruption, if we interpret the signs aright. It is altogether happy if put back in the pool.—Country Life In America.

Her Case Exactly.

It is related of a clergyman who was the happy father of a charming and beautiful daughter that one day while preparing his Sunday discourse he was suddenly called from his desk on a mission of mercy. The sentence at which he left off was this: "I never see a young man of splendid physique and the promise of a glorious manhood almost realized but my heart is filled with rapture and delight."

His daughter, happening to enter the study, saw the sermon and read the words.

Sitting down, she wrote underneath, "Them's my sentiments, papa, exactly."

Dr. Fuller's Memory.

Among those who have performed great feats of memory may be mentioned Dr. Fuller, author of the "Worthies of England." He could repeat another man's sermon after hearing it once and could repeat 500 words in an unknown language after hearing them twice. He one day attempted to walk from Temple Bar to the farthest end of Cheapside and to repeat on his return every sign on either side of the way in the order of their occurrence, and he did it easily.—London Mail.

Comforting.

It is very comforting to a man who is just recovering from a lingering illness and has managed to crawl out on a warm, sunshiny day to get air to have a neighbor come along and shout cheerily: "Hello! Been away, haven't you? Had a good time? You are looking well!"

Many a tongue shakes out its master's undoing.—Shakespeare.

TELLING OF HIS BATTLES

[Original.]

My fiancee's father had a passion for a secluded country life and every summer took his family to a place he had built as far as possible from any one. There we were to be married in June. I took everything I needed with me except a razor, for I could never shave myself without leaving sundry gashes, and one doesn't wish to appear with a hacked face on a day when he would look his best. But on arriving at Elmwood I was horrified to discover that there was no barber there.

On the morning of my wedding day I awoke with a stubble face entirely unfitted for the occasion. After breakfast I questioned the servants and found that five miles distant lived a man who at times barbered the farmers. He was a German by the name of Manteufel, and had served in the civil war, having reached the noncommissioned grade of sergeant. I rode out on horseback in search of Manteufel, and while inquiring the way to his farm it seemed to me that my informants looked at me with curiosity not unmixed with awe. Upon asking a boy if there was anything remarkable about the veteran he said that a saber wound he had received in the head had somewhat unsettled his brain. People dreaded to get him to talking about his battles, because he usually became very excited in describing them.

When I came to Manteufel's farm I knew I had reached my destination, for on the little porch sat a soldierly looking man with fierce gray mustaches, smoking his pipe. I asked him if he would shave me. He hesitated, spoke to some one within the house, then said that he would. I dismounted, and as I entered the gate a scared looking little girl in a blue sunbonnet went out of it and hurried down the road.

I was invited into a small room where Manteufel had improvised a barber's chair and stretched myself upon it. Manteufel was very deliberate in everything he did, and it seemed to me that he was thinking about something besides shaving me. He spent some time examining a couple of razors, then selecting one of them began to strop it leisurely. After he had done so for some time, I began to wonder why he was so long about it, especially as he seemed to be stropping his feelings at the same time.

There is no time when a man is more keenly sensitive to unimportant happenings than just before his wedding. As I sat there watching the ex-sergeant putting an edge on the blade he was to hold in such close proximity to my throat I began to wish myself out and away. There was not a sound in the house save the razor beating against the strop. It occurred to me that if the ex-sergeant should get to dreaming of his battles the wound in his head might lead him to fancy he stood over a fallen Confederate who must be dispatched at once. Being nervous, I committed a blunder, touching on what I should have avoided.

"Sergeant," I said, and stopped, seeing my mistake.

"Ach; you know I was a soldier. How you know that?"

"I didn't know it. I"—

"A soldier once a soldier is always a soldier. I fights mit Sigel, I fights mit Meade, I fights mit Grant."

I had applied the match to the inflammable fuel, and must listen to more horrors than I had ever heard before in all my life put together. In illustrating how he had severed a Confederate head from the body with a saber he used the razor, imitating the hit and draw motion necessary to do a good job of cutting. In a back stroke with which he had saved himself from an enemy in rear, while fencing with one in front, he knocked over a lamp, scattering it in small bits on the floor. Then, describing how he had on a dark night crawled upon and sabered a sleeping picket, he crawled up to me, razor in hand, his eyes gleaming—my hair standing on end—his nostrils dilated, every muscle of his body on the alert.

A man just before his wedding is not only, as I said, keenly alive to unimportant happenings, but under such a strain as this especially mindful that a tragedy at such a time is doubly horrible. My mind darted back and forth between a groom standing beside his blushing bride, receiving congratulations, and that same groom lying in a barber's chair with his throat cut from ear to ear. If I had only dared to rise and say that I would not be shaved after all!

"But vat I remember best," he went on, "vas the charge we made on a Confederate battery in the Wilderness. I and my company—captain and lieutenants all killed—I in command led the way. I lost my saber, seized a bayonet and plunged it into the heart of a gunner, the hot blood spurting"—

In came the little girl I had seen going out, crying as if her heart would break. The warrior collapsed, took the child in his arms and tried to comfort her.

"What is it, little one?" he asked tenderly.

"Oh, grandpa, I was chased!"

"Chased, my child; by what?"

"A sheep."

He kissed her again and again till she was quite comforted, then asked:

"Did you get the shaving brush?"

The child dived into a pocket in her dress and drew forth what he had sent her for.

"I vas sorry to keep you vaiting so long," said the sergeant in the same soft tone he had used to the girl, "but I had no brush." Then he proceeded to shave me.

RUSSIA'S ANXIETY

Fully Realizes the Desperate Situation at Port Arthur

ORDERS TO THE FLEET

If Final Sortie Proves Impossible When the Worst Comes the Ships Will Be Wrecked In a Manner Absolutely Irreparable

St. Petersburg, Aug. 20.—Acute anxiety prevails regarding the situation at Port Arthur on account of the desperate character of the fighting reported there, though the war office does not seem to believe that the danger of the fall of the fortress is so imminent as is generally asserted. According to advices received by the war office, there is still an ample supply of ammunition and provisions there. While it is realized that the Japanese probably outnumber the defenders six or seven fold, the great strength of the fortifications, it is believed, will do much to make up for the disparity in numbers.

Upon one point there is absolute unanimity here—namely, that if the fortress falls the fleet will not fall into the hands of the Japanese. On this point the admiralty's instructions are of the most imperative character. Vice Admiral Ouktomsky has been ordered, should the worst come, to sally forth for a death struggle, and there is no question here but that these instructions will be carried out both in letter and spirit. But, if for any reason a final sortie proves to be impossible, the admiral is to destroy his snips and to make certain that the wreckage shall be absolutely irreparable.

In the meantime, the Baltic squadron, including the new battleship Orel, is standing off Cronstadt with steam up. It is popularly expected that the squadron will sail at any hour, and it is quite true that it is ready for almost immediate departure, but regarding the question of sailing there is a difference of opinion among the naval authorities.

Cause For Japanese Impatience

Tokio, Aug. 20.—The Japanese are growing impatient at the delay in the decision of the status of the Russian cruiser Askold at Shanghai. The Askold has docked and is refitting and evidently intends to endeavor to rejoin the Russian fleet and resume its place in the naval campaign. This is declared to be an open violation of neutrality, which the Chinese government evidently is powerless to prevent. Many Japanese openly urge the dispatch of a squadron to Shanghai to seize and remove the Askold.

The government is particularly desirous of respecting the neutrality of Shanghai, but it is unwilling to suffer the Askold to escape. It is possible that a Japanese squadron will go up to Shanghai and require that the Askold be disarmed, leaving her thereafter in the possession of the Chinese.

Heavy Losses In Assaults

London, Aug. 20.—Reports from Chefoo of the Japanese losses in the assaults on Port Arthur are probably exaggerated, but must be true, when they say that the slaughter of the attackers has been exceedingly heavy. Port Arthur's defenses and the temper of her garrison made that result inevitable. Nanshan showed the prodigal bravery of the Japanese, and it has all along been plain that the capture of the southern fortress would be dearly bought.

The Russian admiralty has received an official report that five battleships and two cruisers of Admiral Withoft's squadron are at Port Arthur. This is the first definite news of the Port Arthur vessels, hitherto unreported since the battle of Aug. 10.

Japs May Make Demonstration

Shanghai, Aug. 20.—Despite the taotai's decision to allow the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi and the cruiser Askold to remain in port for what would be considered a reasonable length of time to make repairs, the Japanese consul general made three demands yesterday that the vessels either leave port or disarm. The ships are carefully guarded by customs officials and lighters are waiting to coal the Askold. Semi-official reports state that the Japanese fleet will make a demonstration outside the harbor on Tuesday. The damage to the Askold is greater than anticipated and cannot be repaired under three weeks.

Russians Making Final Stand

Chefoo, Aug. 20.—Chinese who embarked from Liaoti promontory report the continuance of heavy fighting. They say the Japanese have occupied Pigeon bay and are within striking distance of Liaoti forts, which, however, are still occupied by the Russians. According to the Chinese the Russians at Port Arthur are making their final stand.

Army Congratulates Czar

St. Petersburg, Aug. 20.—Grand Duke Boris, who is on the way to St. Petersburg from the far east, is bringing a letter on behalf of General Kuropatkin and his army, congratulating the czar on the birth of an heir to the throne.

Curtailment In English Mills

Manchester, Eng., Aug. 20.—The spinners of long staple cotton, at a meeting here, adopted a resolution providing for the reduction of working hours to 40 a week.

ADIEU TO BOSTON

Grand Army Encampment of 1904 a Thing of the Past

Boston, Aug. 20.—The 38th annual national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic was practically brought to a close by the departure of several thousand veterans from the city and by the adjournment of the conventions of the various organizations which are branches of the G. A. R. William E. Dustin of Dwight, Ills., was elected commander-in-chief of the National Sons of Veterans by acclamation, and George B. Geis of San Francisco was chosen senior vice-commander-in-chief. It was voted to hold the next annual convention at Gettysburg, Pa.

Ida E. Warren of Worcester, Mass., was elected national president of the Daughters of Veterans. The organization voted down a proposition to change its name to the Daughters of the Rebellion.

The G. A. R. delegates went on a harbor excursion to Nahant, while those of the Women's Relief Corps participated in an outing to Revere beach.

A reception by the Daughters of the Revolution to the wife of Commander-in-Chief Black of the G. A. R.; to the wife of Governor Bates, and to the wife of Mayor Collins, all of the G. A. R. honorary committee, and a reception by the Daughters of Veterans at Medford were other features of the day's program.

Strong Guard For Trainmen

Zeigler, Ills., Aug. 20.—A rapid-fire gun here mounted on a steel gondola and manned by four gunners, doubly armed with revolvers and magazine rifles, with a company of 25 Zeigler guards, was sent out as escort to frightened trainmen who refused to go through Christopher without sufficient protection. The train returned bringing 26 non-union mine workers. The train met with no armed opposition from strikers.

Record Exonerated

Boston, Aug. 20.—Commissioner Fiske acquitted Charles A. Record, who was charged with having made a fraudulent use of the United States mail service. Record was arrested in connection with the North American Trust, recently closed up by the United States authorities. Facts developed during the trial have exonerated Record. The case against Barry and Webster will be continued next Wednesday.

Lipton Not Discouraged

London, Aug. 20.—Sir Thomas Lipton is paying a visit to the Clyde for the purpose, it is believed, of arranging for the design and construction of a fourth Shamrock. Sir Thomas says the yacht designers seem to think that the change in the rules of measurement made in New York will give a British boat a better chance of lifting the cup, but his own preference is to keep pegging away on the former lines.

Great Jump In Wheat

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Rains on wheat fields ready for the reaper shot prices here up over 5 cents a bushel to figures not heretofore reached in this year's trading. Wheat for September delivery went to 1.10½ a bushel, an advance of 3 1-8c. December went to 1.12½, or 4c over the previous close, and May touched 1.14 7-8, a jump of 5 1-4c. The close was strong at about a cent under top figures of the day.

Bank President Spalding Free

Chicago, Aug. 20.—C. W. Spalding, the former bank president, who was convicted and sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment for embezzlement, was discharged from the penitentiary by order of Judge Dunne, based upon a technicality in the original indictment. Spalding has already served several years of his sentence.

A Point Against Packers

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Corporation Counsel Tolman has given to Mayor Harrison an opinion declaring the packers at the stockyards have no legal right to house men in their packing houses. The opinion was given in response to the request of the mayor, who was informed that the packers were boarding men contrary to law.

Double Tragedy at Band Concert

Sullivan, Ind., Aug. 20.—Brinton Creager last night shot and instantly killed his wife and then committed suicide. The double tragedy occurred in the public square during a band concert. Domestic trouble caused a separation and the wife's refusal to return home is said to have led to the shooting.

Chemist Blew Himself Up

Chicago, Aug. 20.—George L. Englis, an amateur chemist, while endeavoring to make a photographic flashlight powder, brought about an explosion that fatally injured him, severely hurt his wife, and destroyed his residence, which he had lately erected at a cost of $12,000.

Revenue Laws Violated

Torrington, Conn., Aug. 20.—Frederick Macseta was arrested here, charged with selling cigars upon the boxes of which no revenue stamp had been affixed. The police raided Macseta's place for violation of the license laws and discovered the cigars.

Former New Haven Man Killed

Atlanta, Aug. 20.—Edwin Purrington, aged 65, a native of New Haven, was instantly killed by a train of coal cars at the Union railroad station here. Purrington has been in Atlanta about 10 years.

ANECDOTES OF VEST.

How Missouri's Ex-Senator Won a Jack Pot.

AN INSTANCE OF HIS READY WIT

Used It With Crushing Effect When Interrupted In a Speech—How the Senator Lost His Teeth—A Gallant Impromptu Speech at a Fourth of July Celebration.

Years ago the late ex-United States Senator George G. Vest when a young man occasionally indulged in the fascinating game called draw poker, a game which we know is thoroughly understood in all its details in Clinton county Mo., more especially Lathrop. Well once on a time Vest had tried a case in a little county seat and received a large fee for clearing his man, says the Lathrop Monitor. So much money in the hands of the young lawyer was as tempting to the denizens as a cool watermelon to a hungry negro. The result was a game of poker was got up. The boys intended to fleece Vest and of course stacked the cards. They had no place to play in but a little shed that had no floor but some fresh dry wheat straw. It was a five handed game, and a dry goods box served as a table. It happened to be a jack pot, and Vest opened it on three queens. The cards being fixed, the other fellows had better hands and of course raised before the draw. Vest stood the raise and drew two cards. As luck would have it, he got the other queen.

The betting commenced and grew exceedingly warm. They would raise the young lawyer, and he would see them and go a little better. An outsider who stood in with the gang looked over Vest's shoulder and saw what a formidable hand he had. He held up four fingers, shook his head and in other ways tried to warn his friends, but to no purpose. He saw that Vest would break the crowd, so he lit a match and set the straw floor on fire and told them to run for dear life. That cool head which served him so well in after years and which never let him become rattled did not desert him then. With one hand he raked in the boodle, with the other he exhibited his lovely queens, and as he went out of the door, with his coat tail on fire, he said:

"Let her burn; the pot is mine!"

A Missouri paper revives an anecdote illustrating Senator Vest's readiness of wit and sarcasm. On one occasion, some years ago, the doughty senator used his gift with crushing effect on a man who interrupted him while he was making a speech in the Johnson county courthouse at Warrensburg, Mo., the home of his colleague, Senator Cockrell.

The room was packed. Vest was speaking in a particularly happy vein when a Warrensburg editor who did not like him arose and asked him a question. It was courteously answered, and the editor followed it up with another and another. To the surprise of most of his hearers, Senator Vest kept his temper and continued to reply courteously.

Finally the editor asked a long and very involved question. The senator listened to it with the same attention as he had given to those that preceded it, but just as he seemed ready to reply, "and while," says Frank Frayne, who tells the story, "the audience was perfectly quiet, awaiting Vest's answer, a little yellow bench legged cur came jumping up the aisle immediately in front of the judge's stand, barking furiously at him. As quick as a flash Vest turned and, pointing his finger at the dog, said: 'One at a time, sir. You are out of your turn. Wait till I get through with the other one, then I will reply to you.'"

According to the Saturday Evening Post, Mr. Vest had artificial teeth and was not at all ashamed of them; on the contrary, the relief that he left after he had all his natural ones taken out, many years ago, made him rather proud of the false ones. One day, soon after the artificial set was fitted, he started on horseback for a country town, ten miles or so from his home in Missouri, where he had to argue an important law case. It was a cold, bleak day in November, but he tried to forget the discomfort of his ride by thinking over the case and rehearsing his speech.

About half way to his destination he had to ford a stream, as no bridge had then been built, and was getting along finely, when suddenly his horse stepped off a ledge into deep water and had to swim for it. Mr. Vest did not lose his seat, but in the excitement of the moment he did lose his teeth.

As he was then only a short distance from the other bank he urged his horse on and soon landed. But what to do without his teeth? It was a case of no teeth no speech. So he tied his horse to a tree, removed his clothing and dived to the bottom of that almost ice cold stream until he found his teeth. He had to dive six times, but he got them at last—and won his case.

A large throng had assembled one Fourth of July to listen to an oration by Senator Vest, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Applause hearty and frequent encouraged the senator. While the multitude was breathlessly waiting for the conclusion of a beautiful exposition of the government's grandeur in ennobling the individual a loud shriek was heard.

A father had been holding a baby boy on his shoulder. To quiet the restless lad he had given him a stick of candy. Playfully the boy had thrust his candy into the chiffon on a girl's hat. He was now endeavoring to disentangle the sweetmeat from the fluffy headgear. In the struggle the hat was torn from the young woman's head; hence the shriek. Senator Vest was sorry for the girl, but he poured oil upon the troubled waters and brought blushes to the maiden's cheeks when he said gallantly:

"The removal of so pretty a hat has exposed a far prettier head of hair. Why, I know of some women whose hair would have followed the candy too."

While Senator Vest was speaking in the senate one day Senator Allison told this story about him, says the Kansas City Star:

"Vest was a member of the Confederate congress in the civil war. Some of his constituents alleged that, being an ablebodied man, it would be just as well if he took a gun and went out and did some fighting instead of loafing around Richmond making laws.

"Vest acquiesced. He got a gun and went to war. His first engagement was a little affair in which the Confederates were whipped. They started to retreat, Vest well up to the front. He met a man from his own town in Missouri. 'Say, Jim,' said Vest, 'when you go back home tell those folks you have seen me in a battle.'

"'All right,' replied Jim, starting away.

"'And, say, Jim,' shouted Vest after him, 'while you're about it, you might tell them that no other human being will ever see me in another.'"

AUTOMOBILE TIRE KILLER.

Indiana Man's Device to Compel Autoists to Observe Speed Limit.

For the past year automobilists from east and west have smiled grimly under their helmets as their machines struck the asphalt pavement, nearly two miles long, in Mishawaka, Ind., and they have opened wide the valves to make up there what had been lost elsewhere in time, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Soon these drivers of horseless carriages will come to grief, however. A Mishawaka man has designed a steel blade which will be laid in the asphalt. The one edge is keen as a razor, and the contrivance will work by lever. One will be located west of the office of the chief of police and the other east. From headquarters by means of a cable the double blades of each "tire killer" will be drawn together. Being built like wedges, this will bring the razor edge about two inches above the surface of the asphalt, and they are to be perfectly rigid in a steel frame placed upon concrete. No machine will be able to cross the knife without wrecking both tires.

A means for gauging speed has been arranged, and whenever an auto is exceeding the rate fixed by city ordinance the steel blades in the asphalt will be raised in time to work havoc with the tires of the reckless automobilist.

PRAISE FOR CHICAGO GIRLS.

Gown Importer Says They Have Finest Figures In the World.

"The girls of Chicago have the finest figures that are to be found in the world."

This is the statement of A. C. Pearson of New York, who yearly visits Paris and the other capitals of Europe in search of stunning gowns and models who can display them to advantage, says a Chicago dispatch to the New York Journal.

"It's all a mistake, this notion that the women of the foreign capitals can set off a gown better than an American girl," said Mr. Pearson. "Formerly we went to Paris for our models. We were under the impression that it required a Paris model to show the best effects of French gowns. Now we import the gowns and have them displayed by the girls of this country. It's a combination that cannot be beat."

Mr. Pearson made his discovery while he was selecting ten models from a hundred applicants to pose in the Dressmakers' association show, and he had a small riot on his hands before he finished. The girls blocked the pavement and stairway, and scores of young men hovered in the vicinity.

WOMAN ON A WARSHIP.

Japanese Priest's Surprise at Seeing One on a Russian Vessel.

A Japanese priest who was on board the transport Sado Maru, says the London Mail, and saw the Russian cruisers sink the Hitachi Maru states:

"We observed a column of white smoke rising from the Hitachi Maru, which shortly afterward disappeared. Before the transport sank a woman appeared on the deck of one of the Russian warships, which I think was the Rurik. She stood against the ship's rail and waved a handkerchief, smiling and chatting as the Hitachi went down. She was evidently pleased at the destruction of the vessel for her country's sake.

"We were furious with indignation at the behavior of this woman and feared that she would repeat it when the Sado Maru went down. We all felt very angry and wished we could curse her to death with our dying breath if we had to die. We were astonished at the sight of a woman on a warship."

Blue Light to Soothe Pain.

A new anaesthetic for use in dental surgery has been discovered, a report from Geneva says, by Professor Redard and Professor Emery. Experiments to learn the effects of colored lights upon the nerves revealed that blue light is extraordinarily soothing, says a London dispatch to the New York Journal. A patient was put in a dark room, and his eyes were exposed to a sixteen candle blue light for three minutes. This caused him to lose the sense of pain, and the tooth was then painlessly extracted without the after effects of ether or chloroform.

Are You In the Rush and Bustle?
While we join in the rush and bustle of this busy world, overtaxing our energies and racking our systems, many of us are morally culpable of reckless disregard of bodily strength and fitness. Then perhaps the health breaks down, and we seem doomed to long periods of pain and depression. Our whole life is darkened.

J.F.SHEPPARD & SONS

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

An Order of the Court

By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1902, by Charles W. Hooke

A DOT of red which seemed to be pasted like a wafer on the black darkness at the southern end of the veranda bore witness that my landlord was enjoying his single hour of leisure in all the twenty-four—between 11 o'clock and midnight. The sight was gratifying. I had feared that the chill of the evening might have driven him to some inaccessible warm corner of the house and that I should miss the pleasure of taking a yarn of his to bed with me.

Prudently pausing at the foot of the steps, I lighted a cigar of my own in order to escape smoking one of his, and then I took a seat beside him and tilted my chair against the clapboards.

"When you were marshal of Circle City," said I and left the rest to him.

He chuckled softly, and then there was a silence while he pretended to be waiting for an inspiration. In reality he had prepared his story, as I knew as soon as he began to speak. Even a genius like Peter Conley will trip over his introduction unless he has thought it out in advance.

"When I was marshal of Circle City," said he, "there was a real estate gang that ran the whole town, and a crooked old billygoat named George Warren ran the gang. One day Sam Cleve, who was Warren's most confidential agent, came to me and said that he wanted me to look up a young fellow that had dropped into town a couple of days before and was stopping at the Gladstone hotel.

"'We suspect that he's a lawyer from Topeka,' said Cleve, 'and that he's got legal papers to serve on Mr. Warren in the Creamer case.'

"I put a couple of my men on the hunt, and they reported in the course of the afternoon that the tip was straight. The man at the Gladstone was Byron Willett of Topeka, and he had brought an order of court that was intended to stop Warren in a mighty important matter.

"When I had heard the facts I strolled around to Warren's house and found one of the old man's most trusted servants sitting under a tree in the front yard with a Winchester across his knees. He wasn't very cordial even to me, and you can bet that no stranger could have so much as leaned against the gatepost without getting perforated.

"Warren himself was stowed away in the room where he usually lay low when a process server was on his trail, and he seemed to be particularly sore about this present affair.

"'Jim Creamer is trying to stop me from putting up a gas house opposite his property,' said he. 'The yellow dog is bound to hold on to it, and he's got an injunction from some fool judge in Topeka. Now, we've got to have that piece of real estate, and we've got to have it at our own terms. It ought to be understood in this town that I fix the value of property, and I've let Jim Creamer know what his figure is. It's $6,500, and that settles the matter.'

"At a fair valuation Creamer's property was worth about $20,000, but Warren had him surrounded and could put up all kinds of objectionable buildings on the adjacent lots.

"Pretty tough, you'll say; but that was no business of mine. Warren had put me and the party into office, and another election was coming along.

HE WAS SITTING WITH A WINCHESTER ACROSS HIS KNEES.

"'Well, Mr. Warren,' says I, 'what do you want me to do about it?'

"'You get that document away from Willett,' says he, 'and you do it without violence. I don't want this man laid up. I've got a notion that I'd like to have a talk with him before he goes back to Topeka. They say he's the slickest young lawyer in the state, and it's likely we may want him. Our operations are spreading out, and we can use good men in various parts of the state. Now, it's up to you, Conley,' says he in conclusion. 'I want to see this cuss personally, and you've got to make him safe.'

"I says, 'All right, Mr. Warren,' and then I went back to the central police station to think it over.

"Within a few minutes I got a note from Warren in which he said that he'd made up his mind to have a talk with Willett the next afternoon at 4 o'clock. 'I've sent him word to that effect,' runs the note, 'and you must get his papers away from him before that time.'

"Later I got another note which said that Willett had refused to go to Warren's house for fear he'd be handled rough and that Warren was going to call at the hotel. This gave me a good idea of Willett as a prudent and farseeing man, and it also showed me how set Warren was on having the interview.

"You'll say right away that this complicated the job because Warren might be served with the papers while on the way to the hotel by some pal of Willett's. But that was easily enough managed. Between 12 and 1 o'clock that night Warren went down to the Gladstone, going in by the way of the kitchen and up the back stairs to the room that had been engaged for him.

"Between that time and daybreak I had one of my men crawl into Willett's room from the fire escape and mouse around a bit, but he didn't find anything and mighty near got shot. So the matter stood square the next morning, with no advantage on either side.

"THE DOOR OPENED, AND IN WALKED WILLETT."

"About 9 o'clock Willett started out for a walk, as he always did, and I and three of my men immediately began a hunt. We had been in the room next to his and had bored some holes through the partition so that we could see if he hid the document anywhere or went to look at it in its hiding place. Nothing of that kind had happened, but I had formed a few dim suspicions. While the man was dressing I made up my mind that the document was in his coat pocket, and when he was eating breakfast—which he ordered up—I noticed that he was busy sealing up a lot of letters which he had written the night before. Now about that time he made some rather slick motions, and it was a question whether he hadn't taken the document out of his pocket and put it into one of the letters, which were all in big envelopes. I didn't see him do it, but I had a feeling about it. If those were straight letters and not fakes, why didn't he take them out to the mail instead of leaving them in the basket on the table?

"When we got into his room, I went for those letters the first thing, while my men divided the place into sections and began the most almighty particular hunt that anybody ever saw. I opened the letters, one by one, very carefully, because if the document was there I wanted to get it in such a way that he wouldn't know it was gone. The job of opening and closing the letters took me nearly an hour, and the document wasn't there after all. My men hadn't found any signs of it, but they hadn't half finished, for you must understand that it was a big room with a lot of stuff in it, and we were dealing with it a piece at a time, as a man handles a pack of cards when he suspects that they're marked.

"In the midst of it the door opened, and in walked Willett, which was a great surprise to us, for we had set a lookout and had arranged a plan to stop him, though, as a matter of fact, we didn't expect him back, and so I suppose our sentinel went and took a drink and the gentleman from Topeka slipped by.

"'Well, upon my soul!' says he, reaching for his gun. 'What are you all doing here?'

"'Mr. Willett,' says I, tapping my badge, 'this is our lawful duty, and, though painful, we must do it. I'm the city marshal, so there's no occasion for you to draw iron. Ten silver spoons have been missed in this house, and one of the dining room help is suspected. For the sake of that poor girl's good name,' says I, 'we've got to make a search.'

"'Ten silver grandmothers!' yelis Willett. 'We'll see about this!' And he began to give me quite some language of one kind and another, especially after he noticed that I'd been fooling with his letters. 'The proprietor,' says he, 'won't stand for this.'

"'You go ask him,' I suggested.

"John Fynes, who ran the Gladstone, knew that Warren and his gang were back of the game, though he didn't know just what the game was. However, as Warren owned the hotel property and held a mortgage on the body and soul of Fynes, the exact nature of the business didn't cut much of a figure.

"Willett stalked away to see Fynes, and he didn't come back. What story the landlord threw into him I don't know, but it was good. Willett left the house in a tearing rage, and a couple of my men shadowed him. By and by one of them came back and reported to me that the gentleman from Topeka had called on a girl—a right nice girl he said she was—who was visiting some relatives in our city.

"'It seems he's engaged to her,' says my man.

"Meanwhile we'd taken that room all to pieces and put it together again, but it hadn't done us any good. It seemed likely to me that Willett had the paper on him. Of course we'd thought that probable from the start and had made our arrangements accordingly. As he was on his way back to the hotel about half past 2 my men arrested him on suspicion of being implicated in the matter of the spoons, and they took him to the station house, where he was searched from crown to heel. But he didn't have the paper.

"Well, of course that made the game clear. Willett had given the court order to somebody else, perhaps to the girl or one of her relatives, who was to call at the room after Warren got in there and serve the document on him. So I said to Warren: 'It's all right. My men will arrest anybody that comes on to this floor during your interview, and I'll be right outside the door as a last line of defense.'

"This was after we'd released Willett with our apologies for suspecting him in the affair of the spoons. One of my men walked on each side of him all the way from the station to the hotel.

"It was past 4 o'clock when he arrived, so mad that his face was a picture of premeditated murder. In fact, he tried to hit me as he went by me into his room, but I was under orders and avoided violence.

"Warren was on hand promptly, and, after a word of praise and another of caution addressed to me at the door, he went along in.

"I was feeling pretty chipper. It was a moral sure thing that Willett didn't have a harmful document on his clothes and a double sure thing that it wasn't in the room. Moreover, I had arranged so that it couldn't get in by any possible way.

"In about a minute Warren came to the door and called me in. 'You've got him crazy!' he whispers. 'It's all right.'

"So it was. And I meant that it should stay that way. Calling me into the room looked like a trick of Willett's, and therefore I set my back against the door and had a gun very handy.

"'Marshal,' says Willett, 'you've been making some serious accusations against me, and now it's my turn. I charge you with stealing a letter from my table.'

"'Not guilty,' says I. And then, 'Do you happen to know how many there were?'

"'Ten,' says he.

"I had thought he'd add one and try to stick me for the eleventh which had never existed.

"'There's but nine now,' says he and began to count 'em.

"By jimmyneddy, there were eleven, and before we could stir he'd ripped

SERVING WARREN WITH THE INJUNCTION.

the last one open and had served Warren with the injunction that was inside it.

"'You think you're pretty smart,' said he to me, 'but you're a back number. What you don't know would be a liberal education. I fixed those letters up for you. I knew you'd get into my room and hunt high and low. I knew you'd open the letters first. So I gave you time to do it and seal 'em all up, and then I came back here with another just like 'em in my sleeve. While I was chinning with you I dropped the letter into the basket where you'd already searched. Savey? Now you can go back to your cage.'

"'Mr. Willett,' says Warren, 'I'm surprised that a lawyer of the bar of our state should descend to such disgraceful trickery, and in order that you may not be tempted again I'm going to hire you to work for an honest man—me.'

"'You can't bribe me to be false to my client, Mr. Creamer,' says Willett firmly. 'But in any other little matter of business,' says he, 'I'm a practicing attorney and the man for your money.'"

Going Fishing.

If you're waking in the morning, call me early, mother, dear,
For Peanut Fink and Spider Brown and Bricktop will be here,
And we know where the fishes swim and where the shade is cool
And where's a dandy diving place beside the swimming pool.

I've brung the kindlings in, mother, you wanted me to chop;
I've filled the wood box till the wood is spilling o'er the top;
I've curried all the horses, as my father bade me do;
I've milked the cows and slopped the pigs and fed the chickens too.

I've weeded out the onion bed and banked the celery,
And I've transplanted cabbage plants and propped the apple tree,
And I've salted all the sheep and fixed the chicken coop,
And run all the errands, mother, till I felt my spirits droop.

So, if you're waking early, call me early, mother, dear,
For I know where the graylings play and where the pools are clear,
And I've dug all the worms I want and cut an alder pole,
And corks will bob tomorrow morn in that old fishing hole.

Dodging the Dangers of Heredity.

Mrs. Simpson has a profound belief in the doctrine of heredity—as she understood it. Mrs. Simpson is colored. She washes for a living. A few years ago her husband passed away, not by death or divorce, but by the simple process of abandonment. He left her to support a little daughter, who is a bright child.

"What is your little girl's name?" asked one of Mrs. Simpson's patrons the other day.

"Helen," replied Susan.

"Oh, indeed? Named after some of your relatives?"

"Waal, no. I kinder liked the name mahself. But dat ain't what I called her fust."

"No?"

"No. Fust she was chris'ened Anna Cornelia, after a pusson what was a partic'lar friend ob mine at dat time, but me an' dat pusson had trouble after dat, an', anyhow, she tuk to drink, so I jes' changed dat chile's name, fear she might inherit it."

Long Felt Want.

"I'm about to put a preparation on the market," said the hustling barber, "that will catch the geezers who are afflicted with the front row habit and incidentally make my bank balance obese."

"What is it?" asked the victim in the padded chair.

"It's a polish," explained the knight of the razor, "that will make a bald head look like new."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Real Genius.

Jigsmith—That fellow Piker is certainly a clever, ingenious chap, isn't he?

Browning—Why, I never heard of his doing anything remarkable.

Jigsmith—That's just it. He manages in some way to get along without doing anything.—Savannah News.

Some Omissions.

"Does he advertise all the comforts of home?" inquired Mr. Tiredout.

"No," replied Mrs. Tiredout, "the advertisement simply says, 'No mothers-in-law, cross cooks or crying babies.'"

"We'll go," asserted Mr. Tiredout emphatically.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Got Out of It Easy.

Mrs. Justwed—Fred, dear, all last night you were crying in your sleep, "Give me a highball, give me a highball!"

Mr. Justwed—Guess I was dreaming I was—er—er—playing baseball.

Time No Object.

Hostess—But when you got so far north that the nights were three months long it must have been inexpressibly dreary. How did you put in your time?

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Five gangs of men are hard at work installing the new heating and ventilating plant at the Willard school. The work will probably be completed by Sept. 20.

Mrs. Lois K. Wales of Quincy has made an additional gift of $2000 to the Brockton hospital to cover the cost of the Welcome H. Wales Memorial ward in excess of the first estimate.

The employes of the sewer department are holding their annual outing today at Germantown. The storm may interfear with the outdoor sports but there will be plenty doing under cover.

Conductor Thomas Mulcahey reports that the 11.13 P. M. out of Boston Thursday night for Campello carried 873 passengers in ten cars. A special of ten cars followed at 11.15 equally as well loaded.

ALCOHOLIC CRIMINALS.

The Dreamy Mental State That Leads to Murder or Suicide.

In a paper on the criminal responsibility of the alcoholic the medical officer of Pentonville prison said that "no one becomes mad when drunk who is wholly sane when sober."

Referring to the dreamy mental state of morbid drunkenness, the doctor said that what ordinarily happened was that after many years of intoxication the individual acquired a peculiar susceptibility to alcohol, so that relatively small doses led to more or less lengthy dream states, in which the patient might seem to speak and act pretty coherently, though in reality he was in a sort of somnambulistic state and knew nothing at all afterward of what he had done or had only a hazy recollection of it. In one of these phases he will probably murder his family or attempt suicide.

The admission of morbid drunkenness as a condition excluding full responsibility was especially desirable in that it would further the trend of public opinion to adopt preventive measures against the criminal alcoholic. When, therefore, the chronic alcoholic had once shown the disposition to dream states with impulsive tendencies, especially homicidal or suicidal, he ought to be dealt with on the same footing as the impulsive epileptic—immune from ordinary punishment, but unfit for ordinary freedom.—London Globe.

STAINED GLASS.

What Old Makers Got by Accident We Now Get by Design.

There are no lost secrets in the art of making stained glass, though at one time the art itself was in abeyance, so that when Winston, with the aid of Messrs. Powell & Sons, sought to revive it they found that much of its tradition had died out.

Modern science proved equal to the task of solving the mystery. It was soon discovered that the artistic merit of old glass was due to its chemically imperfect composition, for it was irregular in thickness and color and also striated and flecked with air bubbles. The light coming through it was therefore broken up and deflected, as if by an infinite number of tiny prisms, and hence came its lustrous richness of tone in comparison with the crudity of chemically perfect material. What the old makers got by accident the modern get by design.

Old glass has one advantage due to its age and its lack of uniformity. Some particles, being more alkaline than the rest, have been washed out of it by the rains of ages, and it has been left on the weather side rough and "fritted;" hence have come more prisms, more refraction and softer, mellower colors.—London Standard.

Took the First Tow.

John H. Hamline of Chicago was one of the foremost advocates of civil service reform in that city, says the Outlook, and was instrumental in securing the passage of the law that established the merit system there. Although the mayor who appointed the first civil service commission was notoriously hostile to the measure and planned to render it useless, Mr. Hamline did not hesitate to accept a place on it.

"How can you compromise with the opposition," he was asked, "by getting on a commission like that, which will have no power?"

"When I am going anywhere," he replied, "I do not wait for a star. I hitch my cart to anything which happens to be going my way."

It is worthy of note that, having climbed aboard his cart, he managed, to the mayor's amazement, to keep it straight in the path of municipal reform and made the law effective despite all opposition.

Expert Fire Fighters.

Taking high rank as a genuine exhibition of a genuine and dangerous vocation, in the Pike, at the St. Louis fair, is "Hale's Firefighters," which none should miss. The concession covers perhaps two acres and consists of a fully-equipped protection station—horses, steam fire engines, hook and ladder wagons, chimical engines and a full force of trained fire-fighters under the direction of George C. Hale, the chief of the Kansas City (Mo.) Fire Department.

The exhibit is an actual part of the fire protection service of the World's Fair, and might be called on at any time to go out on the grounds and perform its duty. The roof of the enclosure is nearly 100 feet high and at one side are seats for over a thousand people. The opening in front of the audience is 300 feet in size, and on the opposite side is erected a building six stories high.

After a lecture explaining the show a gong is sounded and a procession passes around the opening, consisting of three engines with steam up, chemical engines, hook-and-ladders, firemen on foot, etc. This over, several demonstrations of skill are given. William Willis, of Illinois, runs fifty feet and makes a coupling with three full turns in four and one-half seconds. The honestness of the lightning-act is fully demonstrated by Mr. Hale himself to the satisfaction of the audience.

Another demonstration is this: The gong is sounded with the horses in their stalls and the fireman in bed 250 feet away; in twenty-five seconds they hitch up to a combination hose-and-ladder wagon, run 250 feet and, lay 150 feet of hose attached to a real hydrant and are pouring real water on a supposedly burning building. Again the gong sounds and in twenty-one seconds the wagon is on hand and the men with their scaling ladders are at the top of the six-story building.

But the grandest demonstration of all is when the place is darkened and silence reigns; then inside the six-story building across the way appears real fire, and not until it gains good headway is the gong sounded, the men in bed as before and the horses in their stalls. In a few seconds the horses come flying down the street with their outfit, and at the same moment women and children begin appearing at the open windows of the burning building in their night clothes, screaming for help. The din is terrible, but the firemen work as before, for this time it is business. The scalding ladders are again brought into requisition and soon the first man reaches the top window, anchors his life-line and drops it to the ground. Then he turns, seizes a screaming woman in one arm, grasps the line with the other, and drops to the ground in safety. Others do the same at different windows, returning up the ladders and down the life-line.

All in all the Hale Firefighters give one of the most interesting and exciting exhibitions in the Pike.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Prof. Burton is back from Europe and has brought along with him his famous acrobatic, comedy and high jumping dogs, a bit of information that will have deep interest for the juveniles patrons of Keith's, as the Prof. is announced to exhibit his animals afternoon and evenings, during the week of Ang. 22. Edwin Stevens, the noted "legitimate" comedian, who scored such a success last seasou, returns with his delightful monologue, "A Night Out," and among other entertainers of note are the following: William H. Pasco and Helen Mar Wilcox, in a melodramatic playlet, entitled "Love and War," Harry Brown, one of the best of the "real coon" singing comedians in the varieties; Potter and Hartwell hand-to-hand balancers and general acrobats; Dixon and Holmes, two of the best character singers seen in vaudeville for several seasons, and Fitzgerald brothers and Miss Roma, skilful novelty club jugglers. The Fadette will change their musical program, and all the pictures in the biograph will be renewed. Henry E. Dixie is underlined for the week of Aug. 29.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

That very much discussed drama from the pen of Hall Caine, "The Eternal City," will be the opening attraction at the Majestic Theatre next Monday night, Aug. 22. The Majestic will be under the management of Stair and Wilbur and will this season book nothing but the very highest class attractions. It will take its place among the theatres which never charge less than $1.50 for the best orchestra seats and the management purpose to give nothing but the cream of attractions playing at these prices. "The Eternal City," with the full musical setting written for it by Mascagni, composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana," will undoubtedly prove a worthy attraction for the opening. Liebler and Company have given the play a superb setting and present Edward Morgan as a star in the role of David Rossi. Mr. Morgan's work as John Storm in "The Christian" and as Sidney Carton in "The Only Way" entitle him to the most respectful attention as a star.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

At the Castle Square Theatre next week the attraction will be Henry Hamilton's modern play "Harvest, or Wedded and Parted," which had its original American production at Wallack's Theatre, New York in 1886. It is in a prologue and three acts, the scenes, being laid in North Wales and Ireland. The story deals with the matrimonial experiences of Noel Musgrave who, finding that by an error the marriage he supposed to have been in Scotland, occurred on the English side of the border, takes advantage of this even to desert the woman who supposed herself to be his wife and enter into a marriage of greater financial promise. The plot is well worked out and the play has a distinctive literary flavor.

TREMONT THEATRE.

Great interest naturally centres in the announcement that "The Sho-Gun," the newest of light operas to be brought out by Henry W. Savage, will follow "Woodland" at the Tremont Theatre, Boston. The engagement of "The Sho-Gun" begins on next Monday evening, Aug. 22. The first eastern production of this new opera is of particular importance for the reason that it represents the first combined work of two men who have achieved unlimited success in the light opera field during the last few years. The author of the piece is George Ade, who has given the American stage such distinct hits as "Peggy from Paris," "The Sultan of Sulu," and "The County Chairman." The composer is Gustav Luders. Mr. Luders enjoys the distinction of having composed as many, if not more, popular songs than any other producer of light opera music. His name stands for such captivating scores as "The Burgomaster," "King Dodo," "The Prince of Pilsen" and "Woodland." Taking into consideration the past achievements of both the author and composer of "The Sho-Gun," as well as the number of successful productions made by Henry W. Savage, the public has a right to expect something exceedingly good in this new piece. The opera was produced in Chicago last spring, and enjoyed a long and prosperous run at the Studebaker Theatre. The story of the piece deals with an American promoter named William Henry Spangle, who has gained a fortune through the manufacture and promotion of a commodity known as "Spangle's Goo Goo Chewing Gum." In order that he may break into society, he starts on a tour of the world to dig up a title or some titled ancestors. He lands in the Island of Ka-choo, located in the Sea of Japan, between Japan and Korea, during the absence of the Sho-Gun, proceeds to violate many sacred traditions of the Korean people, and is made a prisoner in the forbidden city. While confined there he organizes the Sho-Gun's forces in a typically Morgan fashion. He promotes trusts, makes inroads into the royal treasury to float ethereal companies, makes love to the royal widow, and generally Americanizes everything that has been Korean. The Sho-Gun is sent for, and returns to find his kingdom completely disrupted. He condemns the American to death, but his executioners refuse to act because Spangle is the walking delegate of their recently formed union, and declines to be put out of the way by non-union labor. A compromise is finally effected whereby the Sho-Gun agrees to deliver his title to the American for a financial consideration. Spangle, having gained the title, marries the royal widow and starts back to Iowa. The many amusing situations growing out of these unique complications give the author unlimited scope for the introduction of much pointed satire bearing upon American weaknesses. All of the characters in the new piece are Koreans, with the exception of the American promoter. The atmosphere of the opera is essentially Oriental. The scenery and costumes are exact reproductions of photographs taken in Korea by Burton Holmes, the lecturer.

Time Table.

The doubling of the size of the local time table of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co., takes many of our citizens back more than forty years, when said local time table was a simple affair, and referred to wholly to the Old Colony Railroad Co., a name that was revered in Southeastern Massachusetts.

It is only recently that the size was doubled, because it was necessary to meet requirements, as the subject matter shows, and now consists of 71 pages, of the closest reading and figures, of the greatest importance to the travelling public.

Whoever reads its pages for reference or information, find it a marvelous document in more ways than one. The N. Y., N. H. & Hartford Railroad is one of the most important systems in the country, covering as it does, nearly three of the six New England States; its local traffic is the largest in the United States; its limited trains are of the fastest and equally as well patronized as any in the country; its freighting finds the towns and cities all along the line from Boston and New York, whether coming by rail or by the palatial steamers of the Fall River Line.

But the man who makes the time table for this system, which the towns and cities have created, must be thorough in his knowledge of the road so as to be able to figure out running time without making mistakes, must have a marvelous mind for construction of tables and the manipulation of figures. We have traveled some our short period of existence, but no road presents such a local time time table as the N. Y., N. H. & H. Another factor in the preparation of this time table, is the printing, which shows the hand of a master exercising the greatest patience and ability in its execution. It is the work of the Rand-Avery Supply Co. the only house in Boston that can perform the work.

To one reading the local time table as issued by them monthly, information of the greatest importance is presented of the chief towns and cities of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, to New York city, the metropolis of the states. In detail are all these things presented, which shows the magnitude of the affair, and the information that can be found therein. If you would understand it, you must learn to read it. Its magnitude is what makes it hard to understand, because many patrons do not know the way, and cannot tell when they are right; but the man who seeks for information and knows the way, he can read it like an open book.

The alphabetical list contains the names of six hundred stations scattered on the line of this road with its branches and connections, and embracing the most civilized, enlightened, educated and cultured people of any section of the Union. Wealth and influence cuts quite a figure as seen in the palatial homes, and in business life. The summer time table reveals the great business of this road.—Randolph Register.

The following unique wedding notice is going the rounds, variously credited: "The bride was born of honest but well meaning parents and could walk alone at six months, at ten she could run real fast, and has never slackened her gait. She has many friends—most of them dead ones. The happy couple took a bridal trip to Westly, and will be at home with the old man until they are kicked out."

Weymouth Fair.

The 40th annual exhibition and fair of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial society will be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, September 21, 22 and 23. The fair will be bigger and larger than ever this year and the list of attractions will be one of unusual excellence.—Weymouth Gazette.

—A valuable scientific find has been made in New Jersey, where a slab of stone bearing the impress of the feet of some prehistoric animal has been brought to light from 80 feet below the surface. The footprints are three-toed, about three inches long and resemble bird tracks. There is also a trail left by the heavy tail of the animal, and two parallel lines which may have been made by wings. They are thought to be the tracks of a pterodactys, a kind of reptile bird.

—The tax rate of Cambridge this year is $17.90 per $1000, an increase of $1 over last year.

House Furnishings On Easy Payments.

But few Co-operative or savings banks would be in existence today if people couldn't deposit a little each week or month from their earnings.

But few of the homes of the working people today would be furnished in the comfortable and attractive manner they are if people couldn't pay a little each week or month from their earnings towards the furnishings.

Our co-operative plan encourages economy, makes attractive and comfortable homes with apparently no effort.

You can open an account with us at once, a a little each week, that's all, and you can have anything you wish for your home from a Piano down.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR

Steam or Hot Water Heaters

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

A DEADLY TORNADO

Sweeps Down Mississippi Valley and Strikes Twin Cities

TWELVE LIVES ARE LOST

Buildings Demolished and Trees Uprooted In Path of Storm--St Paul's Wholesale Business District Suffers Badly

St. Paul, Aug. 22.—Death to 12 persons, injuries to many others and destruction to property both private and public, estimated in round numbers at $1,000,000, resulted from a furious gale which tore down the valley of the Mississippi Saturday night from a point somewhere near the confluence of the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers near Fort Snelling. At about that point the fury of the elements seemingly divided and with a roar descended on the Twin Cities and their environs.

Beginning at a point below Fort Snelling, there is the first known evidence that the storm struck with damaging effect. It came from the southwest and uprooted trees and demolished buildings in its pathway to St. Paul.

It tore off two spans of the High bridge as completely as if they had been unbolted from the rest of the structure and carted away by workmen. The bridge connected with the high bluffs at West St. Paul and is 180 feet above the river. This mass of steel was carried to the flats below, where flying steel girders and heavy planks fell on several small frame houses and crushed them completely. None of the occupants was hurt, they having seen the storm coming and taken refuge in the caves in the hillside.

The storm tore along the flats, uprooting trees on Harriet island, and then struck this city at the Wabasha street bridge.

Underneath the debris of the Tivoli theatre were found, when the storm had passed, the mangled bodies of Lorin Hokinson, one of the employes in the concert hall, and George Kwento, one of the audience.

The storm then rushed on to the northeast, over the wholesale district, and where the greatest destruction to property was wrought. After causing havoc in St. Paul, the tornado swept onward to Minneapolis and its suburbs. Here, however, the destruction of property was not so great, although telephone and telegraph wires were torn down in great numbers. For hours the Twin Cities were cut off from any communication with the outside world.

Storm Strikes Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 22.—A severe wind and electrical storm passed over the city last evening, doing much damage in the suburbs. Several small fires were started by the lightning and the downpour of rain was so heavy that many basements were flooded and much property damaged. Northwest of the city hundreds of acres of corn were beaten down by the wind and rain and much of it will be lost.

Four Killed In Minnesota

Glencoe, Minn., Aug. 22.—A tornado struck this district, killing four persons and destroying thousands of acres of grain and many barns, houses and sheds. The storm extended over many counties. As telegraph and telephone wires are down in all directions it is impossible to get particulars as to the amount of the total damage done in this section.

Heavy Rainfall In New Brunswick

St. John, Aug. 22.—For 11 hours St. John and parts of the province were deluged by rain. The downfall was 8.80 inches, the heaviest ever recorded here in such a brief time. The streets are gullied and there is a washout on the New Brunswick Southern railway. At Mispec several culverts were washed out and a bridge was swept from its supports and carried into the Bay of Fundy.

The Paraguayan Revolution

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 22.—An artillery engagement has been fought between the San Jocomino battery of the Paraguayan army and a body of revolutionists, in which the latter succeeded in dislodging the guns of the government force. The losses on either side are not stated. The insurgents have established a provisional government, with the capital 112 miles from Asuncion.

Typhoid Patients Recovering

Trieste, Aug. 22.—The cruiser Mayflower has sailed with the majority of the officers and sailors of the battleship Kearsarge, who were left in the hospital here for treatment for typhoid fever when Rear Admiral Jewell's squadron sailed. There are only seven Americans now in the hospital. Their complete recovery is expected in a few days.

Big Rally of Union Men

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 22.—A monster labor rally under the auspices of the Central Labor unions of this city, Haverhill and Nashua, was held at Canobie Lake park. A collection was taken up for the Fall River strikers which netted $108.87.

George Frisbie Hoar.

The loss of Senator Hoar will fall upon the Commonwealth and people of Massachusetts as a sad and serious blow. For a period of thirty-six years, Mr. Hoar has represented his State in Congress, since 1877 in the Senate, a length of service in that august body unequalled by any of his predecessors. He has come to be identified nationally with the existence of the authority of our State, and by his fellow citizens here he has so long been held in admiring regard, approaching reverence, for his great learning, his integrity and his humanity, that we know not where to turn for one to take his place.

There is a very warm feeling for

SENATOR GEORGE F. HOAR.

George Frisbie Hoar in the hearts of the people of Massachusetts. He stands for a good many of the ideals of New England character. A scholar of recognized rank, a politician without guile, a public official whose integrity is as clear as the sunlight, and a partisan who holds his conscience superior to party—a man as pure in public life as he is in his private relations.

Mr. Hoar entered the public service to serve, not to make money. A few years ago he told the simple story of his experience. "Before I came to Congress," he said, "I had built up a law practice that brought me an income of $20,000 a year, and I had every reason to believe that the practice would grow to $50,000. I had saved from my income about $100,000, and I I believed I could keep my practice and still attend to my duties in Congress. After more than 30 years in the public service, I find myself at 75 with my law practice gone and the accumulations of my young days dissipated." What an honorable record of the poor but great member of the "millionaires' club!"—Boston Courier.

SATURDAYS STORM.

Heavy Wind Does but Little Damage in Quincy.

An unusually heavy wind storm passed over Quincy Saturday afternoon and evening but as far as known no particular damage was done other than to rob the trees of their nearly ripe fruit.

The rain which commenced early in the morning was very badly needed and it is impossible to estimate the great amount of good that it did.

In the afternoon the rain ceased and then came the wind. It was from a southwesterly quarter and as the afternoon wore away it increased in violence and blew a gale.

Awnings flopped and trees shook and the ground was covered with broken limbs of trees and half ripe fruit. Late in the evening the wind died down.

Heavy Travel.

Travel on the street cars Sunday was unusually heavy especially on the line to Nantasket beach. People began to move early in the morning and every car out of Neponset went loaded. Along toward noon it was necessary to double up and cars were run every few minutes. Cars out of City square also went loaded. On the Houghs Neck line, fifteen minute time was maintained and it was necessary on some trips to run two and three cars. As night drew on the tide of travel turned toward Neponset and every car going in that direction went loaded until late in the evening.

Brackett's Chances Good.

All the chances should favor Sen. Brackett of Milton, even though he is after an extra term. Powers of Hyde Park stands almost in the position of being a perennial candidate, and the familiarity which he enjoys promises to be fatal. Nevin of Weymouth is a different proposition, but Brackett feels that he stands a very fair show of carrying his own. One of the safeguards of his campaign is that his place is all tied up in a county campaign, and he will thus get support from people who, while they may not like him, find that their ends are best served by having him continue for another year at least. —Practical Politics.

GALE OF WIND.

Greets Quincy Club in its race Saturday.

The few yachts that participated in the Quincy Yacht club race Saturday afternoon did not lack for wind. There was plenty and some to spare.

The wind was strong from the southwest at the start and developed into a gale before the finish. This necessitated the yachts sailing close reefed.

There were six starters in class A. The Marvel got away first but was soon disabled and surrendered her lead to the Canicum, who held it throughout the race.

The Moondyne was also disabled and had to withdraw.

In the 21-foot class there were but two starts the Omeme and Usona. The Omeme was disabled early in the race and withdrew. The Usona rather than go over the course alone also withdrew.

The summary:

LADIES' DAY.

Squantum Yacht Club Holds its Annual Event.

Stormy weather and a high wind interferred somewhat with the annual ladies' day of the Squantum yacht club. The plans were for a review and sail in the harbor, but the conditions were so unfavorable that it was impossible to carry out this part of the program. The guests of the club, however, were entertained most royally in the club house. From 2 to 3 o'clock there was a reception during which Peters' orchestra rendered some entrancing music. At 4 o'clock refreshments were served.

In the evening the club house was brilliantly illuminated with hundreds of electric lights and there was dancing until 11 o'clock. Those in charge of the dance were C. E. Munroe, John E. Burke, A. L. Hill, Chester Collins and A. H. Hollis.

The committee of arrangements were Commodore Bryant, J. W. Hill, C. E. Gill, Carl Anderson, C. E. Munroe and E. J. Patterson.

A Slight Fire.

The alarm from Box 75 at 8.15 Saturday night was for a slight fire in the house of David Silverman, at 126 Sumner street. The fire was caused by the overturning of a lamp which set fire to the carpet. The damage was slight.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased the profits on his coinage, bullion deposits and assays from $2,897,000 to $8,254,000 a clear gain of $5,357,000 in one year, or one-fifth of the interest on his public debt.

UNDER PROTECTION.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The Minneapolis Tribune thinks "if the big fairs are really a blessing for the public, the public ought to be willing to pay liberally for them." But that is a rather doubtful "if," and growing more doubtful with each succeeding year. Even the legislatures which grant the bounty out of the taxpayers' funds are not over-anxious to participate and a deal of log-rolling that isn't wholly a representation of public benefit has to be done in order to achieve success.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞Prof. Loeb in Berlin, is experimenting with the rattlesnake venom as a cure for leprosy and he thinks he has hit upon the specific for one of the most loathsome diseases that human flesh is heir to. Should he succeed in demonstrating that the snake poison will cure this plague, rattlesnakes would at once become commercially valuable. The market value of the poison is about $15 per drachm. Prof. Loeb gets his rattlesnake venom from a man in Colorado, who keeps snakes as pets.

☞The denial by Hon. Henry G. Davis that he had anything to do with the issuance of an injunction against strikers by Judge Jackson, of West Virginia, will be accepted as final. Whether the charge was made by the Republicans for the purpose of discrediting him among the workingmen, or was used as a peg on which to hang his record as "having been one of them," is one of the secrets of political history that will probably never be disclosed. Mr. Davis has had an honorable career, and is entitled to the respect and consideration of all parties. The question of an injunction in West Virginia will neither elect or defeat him. The issues of the country are broader than that, and if he goes down to defeat it will be as one of the leaders of the national Democracy, and not as a meddler in state affairs.—Lynn Item.

☞There is a tie-up of the building trades of the city of Hartford because of a difference of 75 cents between a mason and one of the contractors in this city, the mason claiming pay from the time he quit his job an demanded his pay until the minute when his employer handed it to him, an hour or so having elapsed. Full pay for the time he had actually worked was offered him, but was refused, and the bricklayers and finally all the allied trades were brought on strike to sustain the demand. Now a general lockout has resulted and the battle is to be waged to the finish for the supremacy. There is no principle at stake nor any question of wages or hours or conditions of labor affecting the workingmen generally. It was simply one man's play for his "rights" for which purpose he disregarded the "rights" of every other man concerned in the building trades, as well as those dependent upon these trades for comfort and convenience.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

MOBS REIGN AGAIN

Renewal of Disturbances In the Cripple Creek District

FIFTEEN MEN DEPORTED

Three of Them Are Attorneys and All Had Shown Friendship Toward Federation of Miners --Destruction of Union Store

Cripple Creek, Col., Aug. 22.—No secret is made here of the fact that the deportation of Attorneys Eugene Engley, Frank J. Hangs and J. C. Cole and 12 other men from this district Saturday night was planned by members of the Mine Owners' association and Citizens' Alliance and was carried out under their direction.

The El Paso, Vindicator, Findley and other large mines were closed down when the day shift stopped work and the miners of both day and night shifts were requested to assemble in Cripple Creek, as trouble was brewing. A report had been in circulation that several hundred deported union men were returning to the camp in a body and it had been determined to drive them away again should they come. This report proved to be groundless.

However, other work had been laid out for the 2000 or more miners who swarmed into town and, acting under orders given by leading citizens, they proceeded to "round up" the federation attorneys, employes of the Inter-Mountain Mercantile company's store and others who have openly expressed sympathy with the Federation of Miners and escorted them beyond the city limits.

During the proceedings the sheriff of Teller county and the mayor and city marshal of Cripple Creek were out of town. Under Sheriff Parsons and Deputy Underwood attempted to control the mob, but were easily overpowered. Many of the deputies who have been regularly employed in the district since the riots early in June, it is alleged, were active as leaders of the mob.

City Marshal Crowder arrived from Victor while the looting of the Inter-Mountain Mercantile company's store was in progress and essayed in vain to stop the destruction of property. The store is completely wrecked and the entire stock of groceries, valued at several thousand dollars, destroyed or stolen.

Sheriff Bell arrived from Denver after the mob had finished its work and took measures for the protection of the prisoners in jail. He said that he had no intention of asking the governor to send troops to the district. He had advised President Moyer and Secretary Haywood of the Western Federation of Miners, he said, not to carry out their announced purpose of sending the deported miners back to this camp, as he would be powerless to protect them.

Counterfeits Fooled Bankers

Atlanta, Aug. 22.—Secret service officers have arrested three men here, charged with counterfeiting. The prisoners are Clarence Rebb and Oscar McMichael, employes of a local printing house, and J. M. Little. The counterfeit is of the $10 "Buffalo" bill. It is of excellent workmanship and has caught a number of firms in this city, one banking firm having two of the bills. The officers recovered $6700 of the money.

In the Lynching Belt

Cordova, Ala., Aug. 22.—Town Marshal McNelson was killed and his slayer, a negro named Avery, a short time thereafter was taken from a calaboose by a mob and put to death with stones and pistols. McNelson had gone to the home of the negro to collect a fine, when he was shot. A brother of the negro lynched made threats against members of the mob and now is being pursued. He also may be lynched.

Religious Services Start Week

Concord, N. H., Aug. 22.—Union religious services in practically all the towns and cities of the Granite State marked the beginning of Old Home week celebrations. Since the first formal observances of Old Home week in New Hampshire not one of all the varied features has become so fixed as that of holding union religious services on the Sunday beginning Old Home week.

Despondent Over Loss of Fortune

Salt Lake City, Aug. 22.—Broken in fortune and without hope of retrievement, J. R. Bassett, an old mining promoter, who had relatives at Concord, Mass., committed suicide by taking poison. Bassett wrote minute directions for the disposal of his body. He wanted it shipped to Denver and there cremated. The Royal Arcanum, he said, would pay the expenses.

To Investigate Military Mixup

Washington, Aug. 22.—The secretary of war has directed General Bates to make a full and complete investigation of the clash between the soldiers of the regular army and the members of the militia in camp near Athens, O., when Corporal Clark was killed and three other members of the National Guard were injured.

Thoughtful King of Italy

Mexico City, Aug. 22.—The King of Italy has sent to the Italian colony in this city $2000 towards the support of an Italian hospital here. The gift was unsolicited.

NO CONCESSIONS

Test of Strength of Fall River Strikers May Come Soon

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 22.—The fifth week of the strike of more than 26,000 cotton mill employes has begun and the situation remains unchanged, both manufacturers and operatives maintaining their positions stubbornly and refusing to make any concessions.

The Seaconnet mill gates may be opened next Monday, although no formal decision to that effect has as yet been reached. The opening of the gates of the Seaconnet mill will be watched with great interest by both manufacturers and operatives, as such an event will practically decide the question whether the non-union strikers will return to work under the reduced wage schedule or will remain out with the strikers who are affiliated with labor organizations. The mill owners believe that if an opportunity is offered to return to work enough non-union men to operate at least one mill will apply for positions. The union strikers are of the opinion that the non-union men will continue to share in the relief fund and therefore will not return to work under the reduction.

Child Saved Many Lives

Boston, Aug. 22.—Miriam Cline, 11 years old, Patrolmen Curtis and Hankey and Fireman Woods saved the members of six families from death in a burning apartment house at 139 Leverett street. As it was, no one was injured, for the little girl, upon discovering the fire, ran through the burning building crying the alarm, and the fireman and policemen carried the people out of the building through the flames and the blinding smoke. Firemen found the Cline girl on the top floor of the building, where she had gone to warn the inmates. She was overcome by smoke.

Exciting Railroad Runaway

Adams, Mass., Aug. 22.—While a car laden with coal was being switched in the northern part of the town, the brake chain broke and the heavy car started off on a down grade. It rolled down through the centre of this town at a speed of 35 miles an hour. After a wild run of nearly two miles the car crashed into a freight train which was coming from the opposite direction. The freight engineer and fireman jumped and escaped injury. The car was demolished and the freight engine badly damaged and the track ripped up.

An Automobile Smashup

Berlin, Conn., Aug. 22.—While going down the steep hill between this town and Kensington at a high rate of speed, a big automobile in which were three Hartford men and a chauffeur, was wrecked, and two of the occupants, Edward Hale and N. D. Bernard, are suffering from serious injuries. A tire burst and the machine swerved toward the trolley tracks, which were well above the ground at that place. The automobile was thrown up in the air several feet and turned over on its side after striking a telegraph pole.

End of the Monohansett

Salem, Mass., Aug. 22.—Steamer Monohansett, which was General Grant's dispatch boat during the Civil war, and which has rested upon the jagged rocks near Misery island since Aug. 4, had been stripped of everything of value. A Gloucester man who purchased her for what junk he could get applied the match to the steamer and soon she was one mass of flames.

Aged and Wealthy Man Drowned

Stoneham, Mass., Aug. 22.—Henry H. Safford, 69 years old, a wealthy citizen of Hudson, temporarily at the New England sanitarium in this town, was drowned in Spot pond. Whether the fatality was a suicide or an accident is not known. His family believe he fell into the pond while perhaps suffering from dizziness.

Two Charged With Arson

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 22.—Deforest Robinson and Fred E. Lynde were arrested last night, charged with arson. Robinson admitted setting fire to the buildings of Wallace Russell in Auburn last week and implicated Lynde, who, he said, was with him. Lynde was found in Raymond, where he had gone with his wife.

No Lives Were Lost

New Haven, Aug. 22.—Towing companies which had a large number of tugs with tows out on the sound during Saturday's storm report that all have been accounted for and that reports of numerous wrecks are unfounded. Only three barges in all were lost. All were coal-laden. In no instance was a life lost.

Had Brief Spell of Freedom

Thomaston, Me., Aug. 22.—Francis Howard, a prisoner from Cumberland county, who was sentenced to a term of six years for assault with intent to kill, escaped from the state prison at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. A posse was at once organized and Howard was recaptured yesterday afternoon.

Thousand Operatives Laid Off

Clinton, Mass., Aug. 22.—The Lancaster mills today begun a curtailment in production for an indefinite period because of the condition of the market. Fifteen hundred looms are stopped and 1000 operatives, about one half the total number employed in the mills, are without work.

Charged With Forgery

Meriden, Conn., Aug. 22.—Antonio Maurizio, aged 25, was arrested in this city on the charge of forgery, alleged to have been committed in Pittsburg. Maurizio has been here three days and will return to Pennsylvania without papers.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It is said that 'tis love that makes the world go round, but money chases it pretty fast too.

Some people always wear an air of meekness on the same principle that others hedge on a bet.

It is said that it takes two to make a quarrel, but one person has been known to make a dozen.

The surest way of always knowing just how you stand financially is to spend a dollar as soon as you get it.

A bachelor's idea of a married woman is a female at the head of the stairs with a club in her hand at 2 o'clock in the morning.

There are people in this world who would dearly love to be liberal if it did not cost anything.

As soon as a little girl is able to talk she begins giving lessons in propriety to the boys about her.

It does not take a woman half as long to spend her money as it takes her to make up her mind what shall be the color scheme of the expenditure.

It is hard to tell whether the original purpose for which sofa pillows were intended was simply to look prim and uncomfortable or to serve to get men into trouble by making the mistake of using them.

The Vacant Lot Nine.

The vacant lot nine is out for gore,
So any old nine that thinks
It's able against them to win the score
Can meet them in thirty winks.
For in and out curves and fancy twirls
With all of the points down fine
That call for applause from the pretty girls,
Just call on the vacant lot nine.

Their uniforms may not be cut to fit
Or trimmed with the patent pads,
Spiked shoes, breastplate and a ten pound mitt
And all of the latest fads,
But on the maneuvers of the play
The wrinkles they have down fine,
So if you are sensitive don't get gay
With the militant back lot nine.

The rules that govern larger fields
They rigidly enforce.
Their umpire never bends nor yields
To some great higher source.
With aggregations of their size
They wish for games to sign,
Quite confident they are the prize
Will go to the vacant lot nine.

Is It a Fiction?

Leap year is half gone, and still there are lots of good, intelligent girls amply able to support a man who haven't mentioned the subject of matrimony to a single man.

Funny how the girls overlook this opportunity of a lifetime!

To hear man talk as he sits around in a small group with his fellows one might think that the girls were dying slow and painful deaths to marry him, but when the same man gets alone with a girl and has his little piece all ready to say, something sticks in his throat and he changes the subject and begins to talk about the weather.

If man finds this task so much harder than eating cherries or cutting coupons, why should he expect poor, weak woman to back him up in a corner and beg of him to marry her just because it is leap year?

If he does and waits around with that expectation, he will probably be sitting all alone in his den, still waiting, when leap year is ended and it is his turn to do the heavy asking.

Insured for $2,000,000
L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in
The Prudential Insurance Co.
for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.
Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.
Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.
Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."
Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.
These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.
Better apply TODAY for information regarding Prudential policies to

United States Boat Gets Between Jap and Russian Ships

SHANGHAI IS EXCITED

Action Probably Taken Because American Property Was Threatened -- Russians Lose Cruiser Novik, One of Her Most Famous Vessels

Shanghai, Aug. 22.—Shanghai was thrown into a fever of excitement yesterday afternoon by the arrival of a Japanese torpedo boat which was sighted coming in from the south at 4:30 o'clock. She passed Woonsung at full speed and started up the River Ju for Shanghai.

The United States torpedo boat destroyer Chauncey slipped her cable and followed the Japanese destroyer. The Japanese boat was cleared for action. She anchored off the Cosmopolitan dock, where the Russian cruiser Askold is undergoing repairs. The Chauncey came to anchor practically between the dock and the Japanese destroyer.

There are at present no Chinese men-of-war in this port, but the taotai has telegraphed that a Chinese cruiser will be sent immediately. The Russian consul general here flatly refused to disarm the Askold and the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi, or to order them to leave the harbor.

The taotai has notified American Consul Goodnow, who is dean of the consular body, that China cannot protect the foreign settlements. He contends that Russia ignores the orders issued by China and that China has not the means of making her obey them.

Consul Goodnow has called a meeting of the consular body to take joint action for the protection of foreign inhabitants. The Askold has docked adjacent to the warehouses here of the Stardard Oil company, which are valued at over $1,000,000. The Standard Oil company has demanded protection for its property from Consul Goodnow.

The dock where the Askold lies is owned by British interests. On one side of this dock is German and Dutch property and on the other side American property.

There are eight American, one German, two British and four French warships here.

Must Have Had Good Reason

London, Aug. 22.—The intervention of the American squadron at Shanghai in the Japanese operations against the Russian cruiser Askold created considerable surprise in official and diplomatic circles here. The Japanese legation was at first inclined to believe that the report that the United States torpedo boat destroyer Chauncey steamed into a position between the Japanese torpedo boat and the Russian cruiser was a "Shanghai fake," as it had understood that the American government would not object to offensive action against Russian warships in case of their failure to observe the Chinese neutrality.

An official of the legation said: "If the report is not untrue, the American commander must have had good reason for his action, such as the protection of American interests which would have been endangered by flying shells.

"Japan has been very reluctant to send ships into the harbor, for she recognized the international character of Shanghai and that the laws of neutrality demanded that China should order the Askold and the Grozovoi to dismantle or leave the port, and that she having given the order and the Russian ships having refused, it was then incumbent on Japan to act, thereby protecting Chinese neutrality and at the same time exerting her rights as a belligerent.

"It would never have done to permit Russian ships to remain in a Chinese port, deliberately and avowedly violating the neutrality of the country. Whatever reason actuated the American commander, if he really did as is reported, it is certain that no complications will follow."

It is believed at the Japanese legation that if the American commander intervened to preserve Chinese neutrality the American government will take measures to enforce it.

The foreign office has asserted from the time of the arrival of the Askold and Grozovoi at Snanghai that it was not the business of Great Britain to interfere, but it was China's duty to observe strict neutrality and it has gone so far as to urge her to adopt this policy. In the opinion of British officials, if the Russian ships fail to dismantle they must take the consequences. At the same time international interests cannot be permitted to suffer as the result of misdirected fire in case of a battle; and it is said that the British consul general will probably be instructed to support the American consul general in urgent representations to the taotai that he shall take measures to compel respect for China's neutrality.

Cincinnati and Frolic at Cheefoo

Chefoo, Aug. 22.—With the exception of Chinese vessels, the United States cruiser Cincinnati and the United States gunboat Frolic, are the only warships at present in this port. They are ready to send men on shore at a moment's notice should occasion arise. The fear of trouble, however, is remote.

RESORT TO SLUGGING

Poor Tactics Adopted by Truckmen's Union at Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Captain Clancy of the stockyards police station announces that a man who had been arrested with a number of others for beating a non-union man employed in the stockyards has confessed to him that local union No. 213 of the Truckmen's union had unanimously voted to adopt "slugging" methods in connection with the stockyards strike and that the 600 members of the organization had been divided into squads by Business Agent Devins. The duty of these squads, according to the confession Captain Clancy says he obtained from his prisoner, was to drag non-union men from street cars and beat them.

Alexander Brozosky, a non-union man, was dragged from an Ashland avenue car, severely beaten, robbed of his shoes and left half dead in the gutter. The police arrested four men on a charge of being implicated in the assault. After being taken to the station one of the men, Christian Byron, according to Captain Clancy, told him the story given above. In addition he declared that when he and his companions boarded the car Brozosky was pointed out to them by the conductor. They dragged him from the car and beat him.

The Same Old Sultan

London, Aug. 22.—The Constantinople correspondent of The Standard considers that the diplomatic triumph of the United States in the matter of that government's demands upon Turkey rests upon a slender foundation. The council of ministers thrice recommended yielding to the American demands, but the sultan absolutely declined to agree to this step. This attitude is emphasized, says the correspondent, by the fact that the sultan did not receive Minister Leishman in audience after Friday's conference, as it had been expected he would do.

Why the Doctor Skipped

Little Rock, Aug. 22.—Dr. R. G. Lightle, who was supposed to have been burned in his barn at Scarcy, May 22, and on whose death insurance companies paid $19,000 on policies, has returned to Scarcy and surrendered to a deputy sheriff. Lightle says he left suddenly because he had a corpse in his barn for dissection and when the building burned he feared he might be arrested for grave robbery. Mrs. Lightle has returned $15,500 of the insurance money.

Riotous Hebrews In Gotham

New York, Aug. 22.—Several of the large delivery wagons of the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company were surrounded by crowds of angry Hebrews on the lower East Side Saturday night and the drivers were roughly handled in spite of the efforts of mounted policemen to keep the crowds back. The reserves were called out on two occasions to disperse riotous Hebrews. The attacks on the wagons were frequent and serious.

Fake Labor Exchanges

Washington, Aug. 22.—The isthmian canal commission has issued a warning to the laboring people of the country against so-called "labor exchanges," which are holding out promises of employment on the Panama canal and exacting a fee of a dollar or two from each applicant. The isthmian canal commission will give no countenance to such scheme of sharpers.

The Minnesota at New York

New York, Aug. 22.—Coming direct from the yards of her builders at New London, Conn., steamer Minnesota, the largest American built vessel afloat, and, in point of tonnage, ranking fourth largest vessel in the world, arrived off this port last night. She flies the flag of the Great Northern Steamship company of New York.

Lumber Schooner Went Down

Five Island, Me., Aug. 22.—Schooner Henrietta Simmons of Portland, bound from Bath to Newport with lumber, went ashore on Turnip island during a storm. After pounding a hole in her stern she drifted to MacMahon island, where she sank. The crew had no difficulty in getting ashore.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Walter Gillette 38, was drowned in the Connecticut river at Hartford. He was fixing a line in the stern of a boat and fell overboard.

George Christianson, 21, was drowned while bathing in the Nonesuch river at Scarboro, Me.

An unknown man walking on the railroad tracks at Revere, Mass., was struck and instantly killed by a train. He was apparently about 38 years old. There was nothing on the body by which to identify him.

Frederick Benson, a locomotive engineer, was probably fatally injured by striking his head against a signal as his train was approaching Hawleyville, Conn.

The Wilmington chair shop and three residences at Wilmington, Vt., were burned, causing a loss of $32,500. The blaze originated in the chair factory from an unknown cause.

Mrs. Alpheus Hardy of Boston, one of the oldest summer residents of Bar Harbor, Me., died there after a brief illness, aged 87 years. Her husband built the first summer cottage at Bar Harbor over 40 years ago.

Rivers and lakes in the Adirondacks and northeastern New York are much swollen by the unusually heavy rain which continued incessantly for 16 hours.

Amos Beckford, 76, a former member of the Massachusetts legislature, died at his home at Lynn. He spent his entire life in that city and for many years engaged in the furniture business.

NOVIK KNOCKED OUT

Russian Cruiser Sunk After a Running Fight With Japs

Tokio, Aug. 22.—After a severe engagement with the protected cruisers Chitose and Tsushima, the greyhounds of the Japanese navy, the fleet Russian cruiser Novik has been vanquished. The fight occurred yesterday. After it the Novik, in a sinking condition, was run ashore in Korsakovsky harbor, on the island of Sakhalien.

The details of the fight are not known here, but it is evident that the Chitose and Tsushima caught up with the Novik Saturday and that a running fight ensued. The contest was resumed and terminated early Sunday morning.

Captain Sukeichiro Takahashi, who is in command of the Chitose, reported the engagement in a brief telegram, which reached the navy department here yesterday afternoon. He says he first attacked the Russian cruiser Saturday afternoon and that on Sunday morning he inflicted heavy damage upon her. The Novik nearly sank, but she was beached at Korsakovsk.

The Novik was the most famous vessel in the Port Arthur fleet. She was in every engagement and was fought with such daring that even the Japanese admired her exploits.

A Report From Stoessel

St. Petersburg, Aug. 22.—Emperor Nicholas has received the following message from Lieutenant General Stoessel, commander of the military forces at Port Arthur, dated Aug. 16:

"This morning a representative of the Japanese army, Major Yamaoka, presented himself at our advanced posts with a letter signed by General Nogi and Admiral Togo demanding the surrender of the fortress. The proposal was, of course, rejected.

"I have the happiness to report that the troops are in excellent condition and that they fight heroically."

Looks Bad For Japs

London, Aug. 22.—There is the keenest anxiety here for news of the progress of the siege of Port Arthur, but it is difficult to extract reliable details out of the voluminous stories from the refugees at Chefoo. The reiterated reports of Japanese reverses arrive through Russian as well as Chinese sources and the complete silence in Tokio on this subject is interpreted as showing that the Japanese are experiencing unexpected difficulties.

Russia Still Holds Port Arthur

St. Petersburg, Aug. 22.—The latest reports from Port Arthur indicate that the garrison there is holding out with wonderful tenacity in the face of persistent desperate assaults. The only question is how long any body of troops can withstand such awful punishment and whether the garrison in the fortress can outlast the Japanese ammunition and men.

Japs Captured a Fort

Chefoo, Aug. 22.—The Japanese have swept the Russians from Pigeon bay and captured the northernmost fort of the western line of inner defenses at Port Arthur. The Russian artillery prevents the Japanese from occupying the fort on Pigeon bay.

Senator Hoar's End Draws Near

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 22.—Senator Hoar is steadily sinking. He has occasional rallies, but each one finds him weaker than the preceding one. He scarcely takes any nourishment. At one time last night there was a report that he might not live till morning, but he revived a little and then dropped to sleep.

Peace For a While

Corinto, Nicaragua, Aug. 22.—The conference between President Escalon of Salvador, President Bonilla of Honduras and President Zelaya of Nicaragua came to a close here last night. The three presidents signed an agreement to maintain peace in the republics of Central America.

President Roosevelt's Sunday

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 22.—President Roosevelt passed Sunday very quietly at Sagamore Hill with the members of his family. No guests were received formally, although during the afternoon and evening a few relatives and friends called to pay their respects.

Great Dynamite Explosion

Nevada, Mo., Aug. 22.—Two persons were killed and three injured, two perhaps fatally, at Minden, by an explosion. Fifteen cases of dynamite were piled on the Missouri Pacific depot platform, which was struck by a freight engine. The depot was completely demolished.

It will be fair in New England, except showers in the northwest portion.

A Realistic Affair

[Original.]

Luther Upton had his own notions about the treatment of those who for the first time acted criminally. One day he left a twenty dollar bill on his desk, went into another room for ten minutes, and returning missed the bill. Calling his chief clerk, Frank Shepherd, into his office, he said to him:

"Mr. Shepherd, a twenty dollar bill has been taken from my desk at a time when no time but the clerks was present. Please tell them for me that if the one who took it will return it he will not be prosecuted nor even lose his position. He will remain on probation."

Shepherd went away and the next morning confessed that he was himself the thief. He laid a twenty dollar bill on his employer's desk, received a kindly but impressive lecture and withdrew. That night he wrote a note to Beatrice Chaffee, to whom he had recently become betrothed, telling her of the incident and offering to release her from the engagement.

Let us take a back step in our story. Shepherd had proposed, waited a day for an answer, working himself into a fever lest he be refused, and at last received an affirmative reply. We hear a great deal of the inconsistencies of women; the inconsistencies of men are usually concealed. Frank Shepherd experienced a very severe case of masculine inconsistency. The day after his acceptance he sank into a state of melancholy. Whether this came from reaction, an overburdening sense of the obligations he was assuming or something of both, mingled with a great deal more, it is impossible to say; nevertheless he would have given worlds if he had not been accepted.

Beatrice Chaffee made no reply to her lover's confession for several days; then she wrote him that she was much influenced by what his employer had done—in fact, found herself in much the same position as Mr. Upton. She felt that she ought to give him a chance to redeem himself, and she had decided to do so. If he would come to her in two years with a record clean from the time of his first sin she would give her answer a second time. Meanwhile they were not to have anything to do with each other, and he was to be free to marry any one else.

One inconsistency is liable to lead to another. First, Shepherd had been in terror lest the girl would refuse him; second, plunged into gloom because she had accepted him; third, being free, he was plunged into new gloom because he was free. What distressed him beyond measure was that he was a confessed thief and must wait two years to learn if he would be taken again into favor.

One day his employer called him into his office and said to him:

"Shepherd, you didn't take that twenty dollar bill you confessed to have stolen."

"Why do you say so?"

"Something about your way of confession made me suspect that you were doing so to shield some one else. I left a marked bill on my desk, had the room watched by a detective and caught the thief."

Shepherd was silent.

"The lady to whom you were engaged came to see me about the matter, wondering if you did not have some motive in making a confession of having stolen what you did not steal. I have proved now that you did so to shield the real thief, your cousin, Mark Leonard."

Shepherd started.

"I have sent for you to say that Leonard will be treated with the same leniency I have shown you, and that you are not only exonerated from all blame, but stand far higher in my estimation than ever."

After a pause Shepherd asked Upton if he had informed Miss Chaffee as to these late developments, and received the response that he had left that pleasure to the man most concerned. Shepherd thanked him and was about to withdraw when he turned and said:

"I would like to have you inform Miss Chaffee that I am not the real thief, but say nothing as to the motive for my confession."

Upton promised to do so at once.

There had come a crisis in Frank Shepherd's life. Emotional people run risks that other people are free from, but so long as there is an undercurrent of principle there is always a day of grace for them. All Shepherd had to do to be restored to favor was to let the matter stand on his employer's interpretation. Strangely enough, to do so was no temptation for him. He had preferred to be considered a thief to standing in the position of a man who had one day begged a girl to marry him and the next day asked her to release him. Now that he really wanted the girl he scorned to take her under the false supposition that he had acted to screen his cousin. This is what he did. He wrote Beatrice Chaffee the following note, which reached her simultaneously with Upton's letter to her informing her that her lover was not a thief:

I had no sooner learned that you had consented to marry me than I was subject to a terrible reaction in which there entered many elements of doubt. When I was told that the money had been stolen I confessed in order that you should break our engagement. Events have since shown me that I shall be a wreck without you.

To this he received the following reply:

You are forgiven. I experienced a similar reaction myself.

"Frank," said Beatrice after they had met and gone over the whole matter thoroughly, "I wonder if the goody goody, heroic, noble people pictured in novels really exist?"

"Don't know," replied her lover. "We're not that kind, anyway."

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The attention of the Police Force is called to the communication of Mr. Hall, in our columns today. There is a gang of foreign element in the vicinity of the Canal that need the careful attention of the police. They do not seem to be afraid to rob houses, stores, orchards, or anything they take a notion; and it does seem as though the police should take some cognizance of it.

There is a large hole in the sidewalk on Mechanic street, near Elm street, which should be immediately attended to. Two persons, a lady and a boy recently stepped into it. The lady was considerably shook up.

DIED.

O'BRIEN—In Quincy, Aug. 21, Mr. Thomas O'Brien of Forest avenue, West Quincy, aged 47 years.

For the Daily Ledger.

Police Protection Needed.

Isn't it about time the police force woke up to the fact that the corner of Canal and Washington streets is a pretty hard place? I have suffered at the hands of a band of ruffians for the past five years.

Last night my place of business was visited by them and ransacked from one end to the other. It is a common occurrence to find your windows broken during the night, and the next morning to have the rogues come around and laugh at you. They have no fear of the law.

In the many times that I have suffered loss from this gang of outlaws, not once have they been punished. I want the people of Quincy to know what a dangerous locality it is. It is hardly safe after 8 o'clock for a lady to pass the street. A. F. Hall.

For the Daily Ledger.

More Vandalism.

Two more breaks at the corner of Washington and Canal streets. One on Saturday night and one on Sunday night. What protection is it to private property to have policeman ride up and down upon the electric cars?

Every Saturday night, and perhaps other nights, the officer gets upon the last car down, 11.50, and rides the whole length of his beat leaving property upon the whole line at the mercy of roughs and drunks.

If the street railroad company want special protection let them provide it.

A Sufferer.

A Wireless Electric Typewriter.

Wonders will never cease and from the marvellous discoveries of this age of the world we may indeed wonder what will be the next invention which will beat all former records. The latest invention in the typewriter line is that which is termed the wireless electric typewriter operated by a new kind of electric wave, discovered by the Danish electrician Paulsen, who is credited with having brought out this wireless typewriter, which the New York Tribune discusses as not an incredible feat, although not likely to prove exceptionally useful.

It is said that he has been able to operate the keyboard of a typewriter at a distance without any visible connection between it and the instrument at hand. It is added that he has also discovered a new kind of "electric wave," whose existence has been suspected but which has never until now been revealed. According to a Copenhagen dispatch, the man made use of this mysterious agency to produce the reported result.

The story possesses one feature which lends it credibility. Paulsen himself is an ingenious and reputable inventor. He is best known as the author of apparatus for recording a telephone message automatically when the person for whom the latter is designed is away. —Gloucester Times.

Collision.

A collision occurred on the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad near the reconstructed Broadway extension bridge shortly after 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. That nobody was killed or injured is considered remarkable by witnesses and railroad officials, as the 4.06 outward-bound Plymouth train was traveling at a good rate of speed when it came into collision with a locomotive that was taking five empty cars into the South station.

Some in the smoking car had seen the danger ahead and they leaped in all directions as the two locomotives met. From the coaches came the screams of terror-stricken women, some of whom used windows as avenues of escape in preference to making their exit through the doors.

The Plymouth train, which was on the Whitman branch, pulled out of the South station at 4.06 and was going through South Boston when the locomotive with the five empty cars was seen coming toward the switch.

The locomotives met with considerable force. Throngs were attracted to the scene and hundreds of persons viewed the wrecked engines from the new bridge overhead. It was nearly a quarter of an hour before the engineers and firemen were able to stop the shrieking noise produced by the escaping stream.

The locomotive that was drawing the empty cars into the terminal had its front end badly battered. The other did not fare quite so badly. The front platform of the smoker was demolished, while its sides were scraped and battered.

Being Cleaned.

The old town clock on the First church which has marked the time of day for years to the thousands who pass through City Square is stopped. The clock has been in the habit of going on a strike every sixty minutes. At these times the cheery notes of the bell has been heard for a long distance and has become to be a welcome sound.

A clock like mortals sometimes gets tired and then it stops. That is what has happened now. C. F. Pettengill, the jeweller, who has charge of the works, has the dismantled clock in his back store where it will be given a thorough cleaning.

It is about twelve years since it has been cleaned, and as it had been bothering somewhat it was decided that it would be a good thing to clean it. It will be some days before it will again mark time and in the meantime people will realize how much they can miss it.

—Miss Kate Carl, an English artist, who has been commissioned to paint a portrait of Tsi An, Empress of China, describes her as "a shrewd, tempestuous old lady, with the soul of a tigress in the skin of a woman." She is up every morning before 3 o'clock and receives reports from her ministers an an hour later. By 5 o'clock she is ready to give the artist a sitting. Her Majesty, now 70 years old, is quite vain of her hands, which are really very pretty.

—Although the police of Dorchester worked yesterday on the Wolmer $5800 robbery case, no arrests were made, nor did any new developments in the case appear. The police are said to have a prominent Dorchester man under suspicion, and there were also stories of two suspicious looking men seen walking near the Wolmer house.

—A bulletin issued at 6 o'clock last night by Senator Hoar's son, says: "The senator is resting comfortably and has been rather more comfortable this afternoon. Has taken a little more nourishment today than yesterday. The situation, on the whole, is practically unchanged."

G. A. R. REUNIONS.

Meetings of Comrades After a Separation of Over Forty Years.

Every encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, says the Boston Herald, has its unexpected meetings of comrades who have not seen each other since the civil war. One of the most striking of these occurred in a School street restaurant in Boston at the recent encampment. Colonel C. O. Jennison of Greenville, Mich., who was first lieutenant of Company D, Fourth New Hampshire volunteers, was eating his dinner when another veteran, sitting opposite, said, "Well, comrade, what regiment were you in?"

Colonel Jennison answered and then asked the stranger who his first lieutenant was. The man replied, "A fellow of the name of Jennison." "Well, I am he," responded the colonel. And the two men then shook hands for the first time in forty-two years. The other party to this pleasant encounter was S. A. Putnam of Hyannis.

A group of veterans wearing the red diamond badge outlined by gold cord on their hats were standing on Tremont street when an old fellow wearing the same badge "butted in" and said, "Hello, Orrinton!" to one of the distinguished ex-prisoners of war.

Deputy Superintendent of Police Orrinton M. Hanscom—for that was the man the old soldier spoke to—turned around and said: "Hello; who are you? You don't know me."

"Oh, yes, I do," said the old one. "You are Orrinton Hanscom. You used to be the drummer boy of Company K, Seventeenth Maine, First division, Third corps. I was your lieutenant, and I have not seen you since our regiment was mustered out at Arlington, Washington, on June 4, 1865, after the war was all over. That's thirty-nine years ago."

"Oh, yes; you are right," said Deputy Hanscom. "I know you now. You are Lieutenant Robert H. Mathes."

Then they shook hands and had a talk, swapped canteens and went to police headquarters, where Deputy Hanscom began to entertain his former officer, who now belongs to Brooklyn post No. 368, G. A. R., of Cleveland, O.

DAVIS IN BUSINESS.

Sample of the Vice Presidential Nominee's Sagacity.

Walter Crowder of West Virginia tells a number of good stories about the business sagacity of ex-Senator Henry G. Davis, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, says the Kansas City Journal. Here is one:

"About thirty years ago he wanted to buy some coal lands without letting the owner know he wanted them. The owner wanted to sell without letting Davis know he wanted to. It took the two a long time to get together, so excessively cautious were they. Finally, however, they met and came abruptly to the scratch.

"'How much?' asked Davis.

"'A cool million and not a cent less,' the other replied.

"'Give you $150,000,' said Davis, 'and not a cent more.'

"In less than two hours Davis got the property for $400,000 and made a splendid bargain. After everything was settled and the money paid over Davis said:

"'Why did you ask me $1,000,000 for that land?' The seller replied:

"'Because I thought you'd be foo enough to give it. Why did you offer me $150,000?'

"'Because I thought you'd be fool enough to take it.' They laughed, winked, shook hands and have been close friends ever since."

CANES FOR WOMEN.

Bejeweled Walking Sticks the Fad In Newport.

Society has taken to the jeweled cane. Just why no one seems to know, but walking sticks with jewels are now the fad in Newport, says the New York Evening World.

It may be that the Coney Island custom of every one coming home with a cane is responsible for it, but the Coney Island cane would scarcely shine alongside the Newport article, which in a way closely resembles the walking stick so often seen in the hands of the British officer at Aldershot.

The cane proper is a little bamboo affair not more than two feet in length and is tipped with a silver or gold ferrule. It is carried by the women, and it is the handle that costs the money. Some of the sticks are studded with diamonds until they are so heavy with stones and the settings that they are almost weighty enough for a weapon.

Others have various gems in them, and the society leaders in Newport displaying their canes is one of the sights. It is a fad that will last until the rhinestones and cut glass are used as substitutes.

A People With Tails.

A German traveler claims to have discovered in the forests of Borneo a people who still wear the tail of our primitive ancestors. He does not write from hearsay. He has seen the tail, says the London Chronicle. It belonged to a child about six years old, sprung from the tribe of Poenans. As nobody could speak the Poenan tongue, the youngster could not be questioned, but there was his tail, sure enough, not very long, but flexible, hairless and about the thickness of one's little finger. The Poenans are reported to be very simple, honest folk, with a child-like system of barter. They deposit in public places the goods they wish to exchange, and a few days later they find there the equivalents they desire. Nobody dreams of stealing. This is almost as remarkable as the vestige of the ancestral tail.

Stupid Employe.

Thousands of lives of East Boston people were put in jeopardy last night by the carelessness or ignorance of an employe at the gas company's works, who shut off the entire gas supply of East Boston, thereby extinguishing the lights in hundreds of homes and buildings, and a few minutes later turned it on again, full pressure, causing many rooms in buildings to fill with gas.

At midnight the entire police force of East Boston was going from house to house, awakening the residents and informing them of the mistake, telling them of the great danger of asphyxiation.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR

Steam or Hot Water Heaters

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $50,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

NO INTERVENTION

Japan Not Likely to Menace Our Interests at Shanghai

ADMIRAL STIRLING'S ACT

It Is Entirely Discretionary, as He Has No Special Orders as to China's Neutrality--Consuls at Shanghai Refer Delicate Matter to Pekin

Washington, Aug. 23.—The United States intends no forcible action to prevent Japanese violations of China's neutrality. Navy department officials declare that the American admiral at Shanghai has no orders to resist Japan. The statement that the United States destroyer Chauncey's errand in Shanghai harbor had nothing to do with the Russian ships dissipates for the moment a prospectively troublesome situation. American interests at Shanghai will certainly be protected.

It is asserted positively at the navy department that the American fleet at Shanghai is not charged with the protection of the Chinese neutrality by any special instructions. The officials here are convinced that the Japanese have no intention of violating Chinese neutrality, and furthermore that they would not jeopardize the immensely valuable foreign interests in Shanghai by making the harbor a naval battleground. No instructions have been sent to Admiral Stirling to interfere with the action of Japanese vessels.

Admiral Stirling is reported as saying that the action of the destroyer Chauncey at Shanghai did not concern the Russian ships; that the trip of the Chauncey from Woo Sung to Shanghai was to carry dispatches.

REFERRED TO PEKIN

Consuls at Shanghai Think China Should Take Prompt Action

Shanghai, Aug. 23.—John Goodnow, the American consul general, presided at the meeting of the foreign consuls held here. All foreign countries with consulates here were represented. M. Odagiri, the Japanese consul, and M. Kleinmenoff, the Russian consul, were in attendance.

M. Odagiri left a sick bed to attend the meeting. He made a vigorous protest against the presence of the Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovol in Shanghai harbor, and declared that China had failed in her duties as a neutral power. He asserted that the Japanese had the right to take the independent step of entering the harbor and seizing the two vessels. The attitude of Odagiri was warlike and uncompromising.

M. Kleinmenoff protested against the entering of the harbor by a Japanese torpedo boat destroyer and insisted upon the right of the two Russian warships in question to remain and repair damages.

A suggestion to refer the entire matter to Pekin was adopted. In the meantime the work on the Askold is to cease for 48 hours, and no further steps are to be taken by the consuls, who will await instructions from their respective governments. It was unanimously decided by the consuls that China cannot shirk her responsibility as a neutral state by handing this matter over to the consuls for adjustment.

Disappointment at St Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Aug. 23.—The news that the navy department at Washington absolutely denied that the United States warships at Shanghai had received instructions to assist in the protection of the neutrality of China or to in any way interfere with the Japanese warships, put something of a damper on the feeling of satisfaction with which the earlier reports had been received.

Nevertheless, the question relating to the cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovol is expected to be adjusted as soon as China and Japan come to an agreement, and the ships will be disarmed, the admiralty having decided that it would be suicidal to send them out against the superior force of the Japanese lying in wait.

Terrible Results of Siege

Liao Yang, Aug. 23.—The Japanese losses since the siege began have been 28,000. The explosion of one mine wiped out 500. A volcano of stones dismembered the bodies of the soldiers, while the sky was lit up with a purple glare and the mud walls of the Chinese village were thrown down by the shock. After this fight General Stoessel collected 20,000 Japanese rifles.

Port Arthur Bombardment

Chefoo, Aug. 23.—According to Chinese reports the Japanese bombarded Port Arthur from 6 o'clock Sunday morning until 1 o'clock in the afternoon, pouring in a heavy fire, but that the Russians succeeded in silencing the Japanese batteries. The Japanese fleet was not engaged, having put further out to sea.

☞ Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

CITY COUNCIL.

A Special Meeting Necessary to Draw Jurors.

A special meeting of the City Council will probably be called for some evening this week or the first of next. When the Council adjourned last month it was until Sept. 6. It will be necessary to meet before that time however, to draw jurors.

The Mayor must also make his appointment of election officers before Aug. 31. While this could be done without calling a special meeting of the City Council by filing them with the clerk of the Council, they will probably be sent to the Council at its special meeting.

Port Arthur Russians' Tomb

London, Aug. 23.—No further war news has reached London. According to the Moscow correspondent of The Morning Post Lieutenant General Stoessel concluded a telegram to an intimate friend there with the words: "Farewell forever. Port Arthur will be my tomb."

To The Massachusetts Highway Commission.

GENTLEMEN: Respectfully represents your petitioner, the OLD COLONY STREET RAILWAY COMPANY, that said company is a corporation acting under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and under a franchise granted by the Board of Aldermen of the City of Quincy.

That said Company desires to relocate a portion of its track on the way in said City of Quincy, locally known as Randolph Avenue, which has recently been taken charge of as a State Highway by your Board, and to change the grade of said track where necessary to conform to the grade of the highway adopted by your Board.

The changes in line desired consist particularly in moving the track from the westerly side to the easterly side of the highway between Station 0 and Station 16, and in making a straightening in the line between station 25 plus 20 and station 29 plus 40; said stations being shown on plans on file in the office of your Board.

Your petitioner therefore asks that said company may be permitted to make the changes in line and grade above mentioned, and that your Board will issue such orders or decrees in the matter as it may deem necessary.

Dated at Boston this 18th day of August, 1904.
OLD COLONY STREET RAILWAY CO.,
ROBERT S. GOFF, Vice President.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
Before the Massachusetts Highway Commission,
August 18, 1904.

ORDER OF NOTICE.

Upon the foregoing petition it is ordered that eleven o'clock, A. M., the seventh day of September, 1904, and the office of the Massachusetts Highway Commission, 20 Pemberton Square, Boston, Mass., be fixed as the time and place at which the Massachusetts Highway Commission will consider the foregoing petition, and that notice be given to the said Old Colony Street Railway Company, and to all parties interested, that said Commission will consider such petition at the time and place aforesaid, by serving upon the President of the said company, at least fourteen days before the said seventh day of September, 1904, a true and attested copy of the foregoing petition, with this order thereon; and also by publishing in the Quincy Ledger, a newspaper published in the City of Quincy, County of Norfolk, a true and attested copy of said petition, with this order thereon, at least fourteen days before the said seventh day of September, 1904, that said company and all parties interested may then and there show cause, if any, why said petition should not be granted.

ATTEST: A. B. FLETCHER, Secretary.

A true copy of petition and order of notice thereon.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate.

BY Virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed, given by William P. Gallagher to the Eastern Clay Goods Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, dated July 6, 1903, and recorded in the Registry of Deeds for the County of Norfolk, Book 952, Page 637, will be sold at public auction, on the premises hereinafter described on or near Wesson Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage, and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, on WEDNESDAY, the twenty-first day of September, 1904, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, and therein described substantially as follows:

A certain parcel of land situate in that part of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, known as West Quincy, being a portion of that tract of land lying easterly of the intersection of Willard and West streets, being lots numbered thirty-three (33), thirty-five (35), thirty-seven (37) and thirty-nine (39), as shown on a plan by Whitman, Breck & Co., Surveyors, dated May, 1886, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 588, Page 146; each of said lots is sixty (60) feet wide and one hundred seventy-six and three-tenths (176 3-10) feet long and contains each ten thousand five hundred and seventy-eight (10,578) square feet of land. Being the same premises conveyed to said William P. Gallagher, by deed of Warren W. Adams and Carrie W. Ames, dated September 11, 1901, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 904, Page 525.

Said premises will be sold subject to taxes for the year 1904, and also subject to a prior mortgage of five hundred (500) dollars and accrued interest.

One Hundred (100) dollars will be required to be paid in cash by the purchaser at the time and place of sale; balance in ten days from day of sale at office of Eastern Clay Goods Company, 65 Oliver Street, Boston, Mass.

TRANSFER FRAUDS

On Old Colony and Boston & Northern Systems.

Several Conductors Under Arrest.

Officials Begin War to Stop Trading of Transfers.

Fred W. McGowan and Bert F. Burrell, two of the conductors of the Old Colony street railway, arrested Monday by the State Police for trading transfers were arraigned in court this morning for larceny. The defendants were represented by J. W. McAnarney who asked for a continuance. The court continued the cases until next week Thursday. Each was held in $300 bonds until that date.

The officials of the Old Colony and Boston and Northern street railways began Monday to make war against the conductors, to put a stop to the system of trading transfers, as well as upon passengers who deliver to conductors transfers they do not care to use.

The result of the first day in this crusade has encouraged the companies. Four conductors were arrested by state officers and was arraigned this morning in the local municipal court. The charge against the men was larceny.

The conductors are: Alexander Crockett of Wakefield, a conductor on the Boston & Northern, and Fred McGowan and Burt Burrell of Quincy and Joseph Murphy of Brockton, conductors on the Old Colony.

Crockett was arrested by officer George Dunham of the state police. The other three men were arrested yesterday by state officer Scott.

Three of the four men are said to have confessed.

The companies have been losing thousands of dollars during the past few years through abuse of the transfer privilege. When a dishonest conductor has been discovered the companies have contented themselves with discharging him. The leakages have grown so great, however, that it was determined to prosecute offenders, and yesterday was the day decided upon for the opening of the campaign.

The companies contemplate not only strict warfare on conductors who indulge in swapping transfers, but on passengers who deliver over the transfers they do not care to use to conductors, who turn them in at the end of the day in place of the cash fares they have taken.

Only a few months ago the Boston & Northern made war on certain conductors and others for forging transfer checks. For the first time in this or any other state, convictions were secured for this particular offence. The convictions had the effect of stopping the forgery, but the Boston & Northern found that all leakage had not been stopped. The company compared notes with the Old Colony, and it was found that further investigation into the intricacies of operation was necessary. Nor was this leakage confined to the two companies which comprise the so-called Massachusetts electrics companies, which cover practically the eastern part of the state, the companies operating in 88 cities and towns.

The district attorneys of the Middlesex and the Norfolk-Plymouth districts were appealed to and, believing the matter to be one which seriously affected the public interests, heartily cooperated in the work. The public had to stand for the losses. In fact, as the officials of the company are frank to admit, a curtailment of the free transfer privileges was contemplated when the alleged criminal acts of certain conductors were discovered. Dist. Attys. Sanderson and French got the state police to work on the case in conjunction with the inspectors of the companies.

So careful were the conductors in their operations that it took some time to work up the evidence necessary to proceed on.

The "swapping" system may be briefly explained as follows: The conductor on cars which run from A to B issues free transfers on cars which run from B to C. So the conductor on the car which runs from C to B gives free transfers good from B to A. The conductor of the A to B car gives the conductor of the B to C car a number of transfers, in some cases in blocks of 20, which the latter turns in at night in place of cash fares received by him. The compliment is returned, of course.

At the last session of the legislature the question of the abuse of the free transfer privilege was raised, and the general court passed a very strong act, which reads as follows:

Section 1—All street railway companies shall cause to be printed on the transfer tickets issued by them to passengers the conditions under which such tickets may be used.

Section 2—Whoever uses a transfer ticket in violation of any such condition, or whoever uses or attempts to use a transfer ticket not issued to him, or whosoever, for value, disposes of or attempts to dispose of a transfer ticket issued to him to any other person, or whoever for value delivers or attempts to deliver a transfer ticket not issued to him to any person, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $50 or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding 30 days."

Conductor Crockett was arrested by state officer Dunham at 9.30 yesterday morning in Wakefield, where he was summoned to the company's office to be confronted by officer Dunham. After a brief interview with Crockett the latter was placed under arrest. He will be arraigned this morning before Judge Bruce in the Malden court.

At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon McGowan and Burrell, who have been on the Braintree and Weymouth line, were arrested by state officer Scott at the Quincy office of the Old Colony. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon officer Scott arrested conductor Murphy in the Brockton office of the company. He will appear before Judge Reed in the Brockton court this morning also.

The arrested men are all young. None of them has been with his respective company more than two years. With the exception of Crockett, it is understood, they are unmarried. As far as has appeared, all have borne good reputations up to the time of their arrests.

With regard to confessions said to have been obtained, a representative and official of the company said last evening:

"Three of the four men have confessed their wrong-doing to the state police. There are other conductors whom we will shortly arrest and prosecute. Some passengers also, who have been using their transfers contrary to law, will be held up. Of course this work is very distasteful to us, but it is in the public's interest as much as in our own. The district attorneys recognized this when they agreed to cooperate and enlisted the support of the state police."

QUICK WORK.

Town Clock in Working Order Again.

It was expected Monday morning when the old town clock was dismantled by C. F. Pettengill to undergo a thorough cleaning, that several days if not weeks would be required to do the job.

The ability of Mr. Pettengill's force of workmen, however, was under estimated. When he decided to clean the machinery Tom and Eddie were assigned the job. They put on their overalls, rolled up their sleeves and went at it. There is nothing slow about these two skilled workmen and they were able to accomplish in a few hours what would ordinarily require as many days. The result was that before night the clock was again marking the passing time and the bell cheerily striking the hours.

—Harry Cassin, a lad of sixteen, employed as a runner by the First National Bank of Louisville, was given by mistake a package of $50,000 the other day instead of $5,000. Being an honest lad he immediately returned the package, and being questioned why he returned the money said: "It was a very natural mistake. It did not occur to me that there was anything remarkable in the experience, and I immediately returned the bills to their proper owner."

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Mayor Collins of Boston has just vetoed two orders recently passed by both branches of the city government to authorize the city of Boston to pension members of the police signal service, and to make payments to the widows of deceased employees. The mayor, as in previous cases, has stated in a clear and convincing way, his objection to approving the bills. He is making an enviable record by treating such matters with uncommonly good business judgment. It might be supposed that matters that have passed the the legislature and both branches of city goverment, would be worth while adopting, but Mayor Collins did not think so in these two cases, and most people will probably agree with him.—Banker and Tradesman.

☞ Beginning September 1, every theatre and every hall in Massachusetts used for public assemblies that will accommodate 400 or more persons must have a license granted by the chief of the district police, and such license will not be granted until an inspection has developed that everything is in condition satisfactory to the state inspector and in compliance with the law relating to the matter which was passed last winter. The chief of the district police is required to have an inspection of each theatre and hall thus licensed, made once a month, at least, except in in certain cases where the time may be six months, and the inspector is required to place a conspicuous notice near the entrance of the hall or theatre after each inspection, stating that it was inspected on the date named. —Spencer Leader.

☞ The deficit of the post office department for the fiscal year will, according to a preliminary estimate, be in the neighborhood of $8,000,000. The extension of the free rural delivery system is held accountable for the bulk of the deficit, which is the largest loss, with a few exceptions, for any single year since 1860. Yet there are people who would have the government go into the business of distributing parcels all over the country in the same way that it distributes the mails. It would seem to be a good idea to let the post office department get established on something like a paying basis before branching out into a new field for which there is little demand from the public and which obviously would mean a larger deficit than is shown now.—Banker and Trademen.

THE LYNCHING FEVER

It Evidently Has Strong Hold on the People of Georgia

NEGRO BURNED AT STAKE

Affair Took Place In Center of of Town After Victim Had Been Riddled With Bullets, Following His Confession of a Most Horrible Crime

Cedartown, Ga., Aug. 23.—Jim Glover, a negro, was shot to death last night near the home of a white girl he had assaulted and his body dragged a distance of about a mile into this city and burned at the stake on the public square. A mob estimated at 500 composed the shooting and burning party.

The crime for which the negro was punished was that of committing criminal assault upon Levia Reeves, the 13-year-old daughter of a farmer. After the girl protected the negro from the attack of a large dog owned by her father, he followed her to the pasture, where she was taking a cow, caught her, choked her into insensibility and left her bleeding and unconscious in a cornfield. This occurred early yesterday morning.

Bloodhounds were on the negro's track all day and he was captured some distafice away late in the afternoon and carried to the home of the girl, who identified him as her assailant.

In the meantime a crowd of fully 500 persons had gathered and summary justice was meted out to the negro as soon as it was learned that the young girl had identified him. The negro confessed his guilt. Immediately the crowd took him away from the posse which had captured him and his body was riddled with bullets.

The crowd continued to gather and when the march back to the town with the dead body began fully 1000 persons had joined the procession. By the time the crowd reached Cedartown several hundred more had been added to the crowd. About 2000 persons witnessed the burning as best they could in the bright moonlight on the most conspicuous place on Main street.

The town is in a fever of excitement, but it is thought no trouble will follow.

Plan to Prevent Lynchings

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 23.—Acting Governor Cunningham has offered rewards for members of the mobs which have participated in three recent lynchings in the state, $150 for the first conviction in each case, and $100 for the next two.

Made Plates For Counterfeiters

St. Louis, Aug. 23.—William W. Wynne of Atlanta, who was arrested here on the request of the Atlanta police authorities, has confessed to having made the plates used in one of the most extensive issues of counterfeit money of recent years. Wynne made the plates, but probably had nothing further to do with the issuance of the counterfeits. He said he received $300 for making one set of plates.

Britain May Lose Gunboat

St. Johns, Aug. 23.—The British gunboat Columbine, one of the vessels of the squadron patrolling the Newfoundland fisheries, struck on a rock in Green bay, and it is feared that she will become a total wreck. The gunboat Fantome left here last night for the purpose of trying to re-float the Columbine and, if that should be found impossible, save her gear.

Cyclone In South Dakota

Watertown, S. D., Aug. 23.—A severe wind storm swept over a region in Hamlin county, killing two and injuring 30 persons, four probably fatally. At Willow Lakes every building was damaged. Three churches, a schoolhouse, elevators and livery barns are lying in heaps of ruins. The loss to farmers by damage to their crops will be heavy.

Railroad Retrenchment

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 23.—The Pennsylvania Railroad company has made the most sweeping reduction in the time of the men employed that has taken place since the panic of 1893. One shift in the machine shops will work Mondays and Wednesdays and the other Tuesdays and Thursdays. The remainder of the week the shops will be closed down entirely.

Porto Rican Teachers Home

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 23.—Transports Sumner and Kilpatrick arrived here with the Porto Rican teachers who for the past two months have been visiting educational institutions in the United States. The teachers express warm praise of the treatment accorded them in the United States. The voyage was uneventful.

Well Supplied With Counterfeits

Campbellton, N. B., Aug. 23.—A man named Cleveland was arrested here on the charge of passing a counterfeit $5 Mexican bill on an inter-Colonial train. There was found in the lining of his clothing 194 $5 counterfeit Mexican bills, besides a large sum of Canadian money.

Vacation For 3000 Operatives

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 23.—The Nashua Manufacturing company, manufacturers of cotton drilling, has ordered a shutdown in its mills for two weeks in order to make repairs. About 3000 operatives will be idle.

STUMPING HAS BEGUN

Vermonters Hear Words of Praise For Republican Party

Manchester, Vt., Aug. 23.—The Republican presidential campaign in Bennington county opened with a rally here last night. Robert T. Lincoln, former minister to England, endeavored to show how closely the gubernatorial election in Vermont was watched by the entire country and how the vote polled at that time would be taken as an index of the votes that will be cast later at the presidential election. Secretary of Agriculture Wilson reviewed the past history and the present purpose of the Republican party and discussed the Philippine question and the tariff. Referring to the statements made that American manufactured articles are sold cheaper abroad than they are at home the secretary said that he had received letters from manufacturers of agricultural machinery in this country informing him that their products were sold cheaper in the United States than they were abroad. Secretary Wilson closed his address with a resume of the work done by the department of agriculture.

Brief addresses were made by Senator Proctor and William P. Dillingham.

Talked of Campaign Finances

New York, Aug. 23.—Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island called at Republican national headquarters and had a long conference with Chairman Cortelyou regarding the finances of the campaign, Mr. Aldrich being in closer touch with business interests than most of the prominent Republicans. The senator expressed the opinion that the Republican business men of the country would be opposed to a change of administration at this time.

Taggart Is Optimistic

New York, Aug. 23.—When the Democratic national executive committee meeting adjourned late yesterday, Chairman Taggart announced that the reports that had been received were very encouraging. "I feel forced to say," he added, "that the conditions in New York, both state and city, are most satisfactory."

Carlisle at Parker's Disposal

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Former Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle passed last night at Rosemount. Judge Parker says that Carlisle had come at his request to talk over various things pertaining to the campaign. Carlisle does not know whether he will take an active part in the campaign, but is at the disposal of Parker.

Lodge a Guest at Sagamore

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Senator Lodge arrived here last night at 11:30 o'clock to confer with the president on the general political situation. Among the topics they will consider is the president's letter of acceptance. Senator Lodge came direct from Boston and expects to return to New England this afternoon.

Root Won't Be a Candidate

New York, Aug. 23.—Referring to the statement that Senator Platt had received a letter from Elihu Root which removed him from further consideration as a candidate for governor, Chairman Odell says that it coincides with his own information and confirms what Root had written and said to him.

Steel Trust Starts Idle Plants

Pittsburg, Aug. 23.—The United States Steel company has issued orders for the resumption of several of its furnaces at South Sharon, which means that 3000 men will be put to work immediately. These plants have been closed for months, owing to a lack of orders. The American Steel and Wire plant, at this place, a constituent concern, will also resume operations, after a shutdown of six months.

A Public Penance Proviso

St. Petersburg, Aug. 23.—The rigor of the divorce laws, which formerly did not allow a husband or wife guilty of adultery to marry again, except after seven years' irreproachable conduct, has been modified by making the period two years in case the offenders agree to do public penance according to the direction of their bishops.

Russia Breaks Her Word

London, Aug. 23.—The news that the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk is again stopping British vessels leads the London newspapers to question the value of the assurances given by the Russian government that the St. Petersburg and the Smolensk would no longer be utilized as cruisers.

Flood Destroys Fifty Homes

Silver City, N. M., Aug. 23.—This city was swept by a flood after a severe cloudburst in the mountains above. No loss of life has been reported, but 50 homes were washed away. Seven railroad bridges between Silver City and White Waters are out.

Packers Will Run Open Shops

New York, Aug. 23.—The local beef packing houses have declared their independence of union labor in a statement in which they declare: "We are going ahead on an open shop basis and will pay no more attention to the unions which have struck."

Got Bullet In the Back

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Private Costello of the Ninth infantry threw a quantity of pepper in the sentry's eyes at the post here and attempted to escape. The sentry fired, the bullet taking effect in the back. Costello will die.

New Treatment of Consumption.

United States Consul-General Guenther, at Frankfort, sends to the state department an interesting report of a lecture by Prof. Jacob, first physician of the Hospital "Charite" of Berlin, explaining a new mode of treating consumption of the lungs which he has adopted. He started with the idea that the remedies in use do not reach the location of the disease, and he conceived the idea of introducing medicaments directly into the lungs. Of course, this has been attempted by means of inhalation, but his means was different. Through experiments on animals he became convinced that injection of medicine into the lungs was practicable. His method, he says, is simple, and can be undertaken by any physician who is familiar with the use of the throat mirror. He first makes the trachea and larynx insensible by cocaine or anesthesine; then a thin rubber tube is introduced into the lungs, through which the medicine is injected, the whole process lasting, perhaps, ten minutes. He has treated but five patients, but these so successfully that he expects a general adoption of the method. The most efficient remedy is the well known tuberculin of Prof. Koch, and the next in efficiency is creosote. He reports that he has succeeded in making tuberculosi bacilli disappear completely in from four to eight weeks. Through this method he asserts that a safe diagnosis can be made of consumption of the lungs, which has not heretofore been possible. The hypodermic injection of tuberculin might show that the patient suffers from tuberculosis, yet the seat of the malady was not revealed. He calls his new method "lung infusion."—Boston Herald.

Naked Humanity at the Fair.

The Igorots have more free newspaper advertising than any other people on the grounds, says Frederick Starr in the World today. Representatives of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have been distributed over their eating of dog. Curious that the killing of a few dogs for these poor people should arouse these sensitive souls so much more than the wholesale killing of lambs and pigs for ourselves! As between dogmeat and pig a wise man might hesitate, but eventually decide for Igorot custom.

An outcry has also been raised regarding Igorot nakedness. Surely any one who can see aught but beauty in these shapely bodies and fine brown skins, or whose appreciation of that beauty is disturbed by any evil thought needs an immediate application of honi soit qui mal y pense. As they are, with their dog-eating and their "nakedness," the Igorots are an interesting object lesson in human life and culture; "dressed" they would lose greatly in scientific value, would suffer keenly and might even die. It is to be hoped that no false modesty will be allowed to interfere with this interesting display.—Boston Herald.

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

House Furnishings On Easy Payments.

But few Co-operative or savings banks would be in existence today if people couldn't deposit a little each week or month from their earnings.

But few of the homes of the working people today would be furnished in the comfortable and attractive manner they are if people couldn't pay a little each week or month from their earnings towards the furnishings.

Our co-operative plan encourages economy, makes attractive and comfortable homes with apparently no effort.

You can open an account with us at once, a little each week, that's all, and you can have anything you wish for your home from a Piano down.

A NEW GALVESTON

Great City Arises In Place of One Destroyed by Flood

DEDICATION OF SEA WALL

Two Granite Monuments Unveiled In Commemoration of the Event--Up-to-Date Port and Railroad Center

Galveston, Aug. 23.—The completion of the Galveston sea wall, the greatest structure of its kind in the world, was celebrated by running excursions from different parts of the state to Galveston. Governor Lanham made an eulogistic address, commenting on the remarkable work which has been accomplished here, Galveston being now in a position to seek advantage from the unique position of the city as an up-to-date American port and the railroad centre nearest the new Panama canal, and the natural outlet for the commerce of nearly one half the United States.

The sea wall was completed the last of July. Two granite monuments erected at the foot of Tremont street to commemorate the completion of the wall were unveiled yesterday. The wall is 17,593 feet long, 16 feet wide at the base, 5 feet wide at the top, and stands 17 feet above mean low tide, with a granite rip-rap apron extending 27 feet out on the gulf side. The contract price of the wall was $1,198,118. The actual construction of the wall proper consumed one year, four months and 17 days.

The grade of the city is now to be raised to slope gradually from the top of the sea wall. This will necessitate a raising of the grade from one to 15 feet, according to location. For this purpose the state has donated all state taxes collected in Galveston county for a period of 18 years. Bonds to the amount of $1,500,000 are to be issued for this purpose.

A contract has been let for the grade raising work. Under the terms of the contract a canal is to be dug on the inside of the sea wall which will permit hopper dredges, loaded with sand taken from the channel in the bay, to come in and discharge the filling to the required depth. This work is now under way. The last session of congress provided for an extension of the Galveston county sea wall to protect Fort Crockett, for a distance of 4000 feet to the westward. This will extend the wall to Fifty-fifth street, so that the city of Galveston on the gulf side will be protected by sea wall the full extent of its corporate limits.

Peabody's View of It

Denver, Aug. 23.—"I do not regard the disturbance in the Cripple Creek region as serious," said Governor Peabody. "It was just a case of trouble between the people in the district and some outsiders who wanted to come in. Persons of a third party got into trouble by butting in where they should not, and they were told to leave the region. No one has apealed to me for protection. I do not anticipate any request from the authorities and without such a request I have no power in the region."

Held by Bandits For Ransom

Roswell, N. M., Aug. 23.—John Eiland, a wealthy sheep owner and vice president of the Bank of Portales, Portales, N. M., has fallen into the hands of brigands in Old Mexico, where he went on business. The bandits demand a heavy ransom and unless arrangements are made at once to pay the ransom they say he will be tortured and killed. Mrs. Eiland has wired the United States consul at the City of Mexico to use his efforts to secure the release of her husband.

Forged Check For $50

Portland, Me., Aug. 23.—Harry Veine and Fred H. Wile of Berlin, N. H., were arrested here, charged with forging a check for $50 drawn in favor of Frank Benjamin at Berlin. The men confessed that they took a letter from the postoffice addressed to Benjamin, signed his name to a check contained therein and drew the money on it.

A Slump In Wheat

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Under heavy realizing sales the wheat market broke sensationally, after having surged to new heights. The finish was respectively 5-8 and 1 5-8 below final quotations of Saturday. Advices from Winnipeg that the wheat crop reports from there were grossly exaggerated seemed to find heed.

The Packing House "Bunkers"

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Chicago meat packers have asked for an injunction preventing the city of Chicago from interfering with the housing of employes in stockyards plants during the continuance of the butchers' strike. Arguments before Judge Brentano are unfinished.

Life Sentence For Mrs Botkin

San Francisco, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Cordelia Botkin was sentenced by Judge Cook to life imprisonment in the state prison at San Quentin for the murder of Mrs. John P. Dunning in Dover, Del., by means of poisoned candy mailed from this city.

Explosion In Coal Mine

Shamokin, Pa., Aug. 23.—In an explosion of gas in a slope of the Buck Ridge Coal company four miners were horribly burned, two fatally.

A Polygamist's Admission

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Charles H. Williams, with four wives now living, "to the best of his knowledge," has given himself up to the police. "In 1859 I married Lida Chalfant in Kentucky," he said. "We had five children. In 1867 I left my family. In 1870 I married Adeline Wood in Greenfield, Ills. There were two children. In 1874 or 1875 I married Mamie Clay in Salem, Ills. I married a girl, whose name I do not remember in Duquoin, Ills., in 1894 and lived with her one month. June 8, 1897, I married Victoria D. Peefee in Chicago."

Would Not Bend the Knee

New York, Aug. 23.—Steamer Trinidad brought from Bermuda eight former Boer prisoners who refused to sign the oath of allegiance to the British government and accept passage with a lease hold farm in South Africa. They were released and are now working their way home to South Africa. They paid their own passages on the Trinidad.

Employers Reject Arbitration

Cleveland, Aug. 23.—The Civic Federation attempted to settle the cloakmakers' strike by arbitration, but the manufacturers declined to hold a conference on the ground that so far as they were concerned there was nothing to arbitrate. They express a willingness to meet their employes, but not as members of the union.

A Non-Union Glass Shop

Pittsburg, Aug. 23.—The Charleroix plant of the Macbeth-Evans Glass company, which recently severed connections with the American Flint Glass Workers' association, has partially resumed operation on a non-union basis. About 16 old skilled employes reported for duty. The plant employs 306 hands.

Jeffries Favored In Betting

San Francisco, Aug. 23.—Jeffries and Munroe are now putting on the finishing touches for their fight next Friday night. Betting on the fight has begun. Jeffries opened at 10 to 4 as favorite. No large wagers have yet been placed.

Highwayman Got Away With $1900

Richville, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Bert Belmont, manager of the McAllister flour and feed mills here, was attacked by three men, sandbagged and relieved of $1900 in currency near his home last night. His assailants escaped.

THEY LABOR AS ONE

SUCCESS OF THE EVANGELISTS TORREY AND ALEXANDER.

Dr. Torrey's Eloquence In Preaching the Gospel and Mr. Alexander's Singing Make a Strong Appeal to Their Auditors.

After their winter's campaign in Great Britain and Ireland the American evangelists, Dr. R. A. Torrey and Charles M. Alexander, are enjoying a rest preparatory to another evangelistic tour. Great success attended the work of these revivalists abroad. In some sense they may be said to be the successors of Moody and Sankey, whose evangelistic labors made their names household words in millions of homes all over the world. When the late Dwight L. Moody established the Bible Training Institute in Chicago he looked around for a man imbued with his own ideas of Christian work to whom he could intrust its direction and oversight. He found such a man in Dr. Torrey, who since that time has been responsible for the conduct of the institute and under whom it has prospered even beyond the hopes of its founder. Dr. Torrey was born in Hoboken, N. J., in 1856. His father was a leading business man and politician, and young Torrey received all the advantages that wealth can afford. He attended Yale college and Yale Theological seminary, graduating from the latter in 1878. In the same year he was ordained to the ministry of the Congregational church. After a pastorate in Ohio he went to Germany to pursue his studies and obtain the widened experience which travel affords. On his return to America he was called to the pastorate of the Open Door church, Minneapolis. Mr. Moody's request that he join him in his work came a few years later, and his home has since been Chicago, though he has traveled in England, Ireland, Scotland, Australia, New Zealand, China, Japan and India, preaching and teaching. Besides being superintendent of the Moody Bible Training institute he is pastor of the Chicago Avenue church, known also as the "Moody church." He is the author of several books.

Dr. Torrey's co-laborer in evangelistic work, Mr. Alexander, is a native of Tennessee and was educated at Maryville college. Being blessed with a fine baritone voice and a great love of music, he determined to devote his life to singing in connection with revival work and with this end in view took a course of study at the Moody Bible institute. He assisted the well known evangelist, M. B. Williams, and in 1901 joined Dr. Torrey in conducting services in Melbourne, Australia. The work of the two men has been inseparable since that time. Mr. Alexander has great power over an audience. His solos often move to tears, and his abilities as a musical conductor seem to bring out the very best vocal capacities of the audience before him. Mr. Alexander is assisted in his vocation by his wife, who is a deeply religious woman and as much a lover of music as himself. She is an accomplished organist and violinist. Mrs. Alexander is the daughter of the late Richard Cadbury of Birmingham, England, a wealthy cocoa manufacturer, who was known throughout the United Kingdom for the munificence of his gifts to charitable and religious enterprises.

Seriously Shot Her Father

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 23.—Miss Mary A. Botham is under arrest, charged with shooting her father, Joseph Botham. Botham was seriously hurt and may possibly die. It is claimed that Botham went home in an intoxicated condition and created a disturbance. His daughter seized a revolver and fired one shot at her father. The weapon was loaded with six blank cartridges and one ball cartridge. The girl asserts that she intended to discharge one of the blank shells for the purpose of frightening her father.

Charge Against a Politician

Boston, Aug. 23.—Former Representative James H. McInerney, a prominent Democratic politician, and chairman of the ward 19 committee, was arrested, charged with destruction of an application for naturalization made out in the name of "James H. McInerney," it having been sent to him, it is said, in error. Bail in $3000 was given to ensure his appearance at the hearing. Late last night McInerney was seen at his home, and when asked about the case stated that he did not know a thing about it.

Held on Murder Charge

New Haven, Aug. 23.—John T. Glennon, 24 years old, was arrested last night on the charge of murder in the first degree and is held without bail. Thomas Norris disappeared last Wednesday. His body was found in the sound Friday, and the coroner stated last night that he believed Norris was strangled while in a fight and that he was subsequently thrown overboard. Glennon was with Norris at the time and disappeared for two days.

Shot Six Boys by Mistake

West Springfield, Mass., Aug. 23.—Annoyed by the intrusions of youths of the neighborhood who have entered her garden in search of stray baseballs, Mrs. Theresa Sine discharged a gun loaded with buckshot at two young men and, missing them, hit six small boys who happened to be in the vicinity. None of the wounds will prove serious. Mrs. Sine was arrested.

Perhaps Fatally Hurt by Auto

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 23.—An automobile owned and operated by Frank F. Cheney of this city, while passing the corner of Paige and Bridge streets last night, struck Annie J. Koziot, 12 years old. She was caught in the chain brake and sustained three broken ribs and internal injuries from which she may die. The child was dragged 30 yards before the machine was stopped.

Union Coffins For Unionists

Boston, Aug. 23.—Boston Woodworkers' union 24, at its meeting last night, issued a request to organized labor that trade unionists demand the union label on coffins used for the burial of members of their unions and for members of their families. It is argued by the woodworkers that coffins should, like other woodwork, be made under union conditions.

Floating Non-Union Hotel

New Haven, Aug. 23.—Steamer C. H. Northam, which was brought here to house the men employed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad who took the places of the striking boilermakers, has sailed for New York, where she will be turned over to a beef company to be used as a hotel for the men brought to New York to break the strike.

Two Young Women Drowned

Portland, Me., Aug. 23.—Miss Amy Clark, 19, and Miss Clara Smith, 22, both of Gray, were drowned while bathing in Sebago pond. Miss Smith was seized with cramps and Miss Clark went to the assistance of her friend. Miss Clark was a member of the sophomore class at Bates college. Miss Smith was a graduate of Pennell institute.

Disease In Spring Water

Boston, Aug. 23.—The board of health reports that there are 21 cases of typhoid fever in the Mattapan district. The epidemic is believed to be due to the use of spring water in Mattapan square.

Vitality Keeping Hoar Alive

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 23.—Senator Hoar continues to grow weaker, and nothing but his remarkable vitality is keeping him alive.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Dr. H. C. Hallowell has returned from a short visit to Maine.

Parents have begun to think about getting children ready for school.

Miss M. Jennie Davies of Granite street is enjoying a week's vacation.

Clifton Baker of Safford street is spending his vacation at Penniquid, Me.

Commissioner Knowlton is busy making some needed repairs to the school buildings.

Mrs. George Cole of Berlin street is entertaining his sister-in-law, Mrs. Mitchell this week.

James Parker of the claim department of the Old Colony street railway is having his vacation.

Twenty members of Paul Revere W. R. C. attended the G. A. R. convention at Boston, last week.

Mr. Harold Soule of Hingham has been the guest of Mr. Fred Thayer of Willow street for a few days.

Mrs. George Damon of Roxbury is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. R. D. Hall of Stanton street.

Mrs. Charles Copeland and children of Phillips street returned Saturday from a two weeks' visit at Bellows Falls, Vt.

Mrs. Mark Myatt and children of Baxter street have returned from a six weeks' visit pleasantly spent at Hoxbury, N. S.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Fox of Franklin street have been entertaining the past week Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Durkee of Chelsea, Vt.

Misses Addie and Florence Holton of Edwards street left last night by boat for Southport, Maine, where they will sojourn for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Page of Wollaston and Mr. and Mrs. Warren F. Page of Colorado, are spending a few days at Kennebunkport, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren F. Page of Leadville, Colorado, but formerly of Quincy, are visiting relatives here. Mr. Page is slowly recovering from the effects of a serious illness, and his many friends hope that the change of air and scenery will prove very beneficial to him.

Mrs. Mary A. Fox, president of Paul Revere W. R. C. and her assistants, as well as the members of the corps, wish to extend thanks through the press, to those who contributed and help them to secure new flags for their banner bearers, which was used at the G. A. R. convention last week. Such deeds of kindness will long be remembered.

The tax collector sold 46 parcels of real estate at auction Monday for taxes of 1903.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fraser of Beach street will start next Sunday for a two weeks' trip to Alton Bay, N. H.

Mrs. Marjorie McArthur of Revere Beach is stopping with her sister, Mrs. George Fraser, Beach street, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nash and daughter Louise of Arlington street, Wollaston, have gone to Bethlehem, N. H.

Ex-councilman Harry W. Reed has returned from his camping trip in the lake region. His family will remain a few weeks longer.

Mrs. Ada Browne and daughter Evelyn of Brooklyn, N. Y., are visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles C. Mueller of Washington street, Quincy Point.

"Well done good and faithful servants,"—but try it again. The hole mentioned in the Ledger yesterday, is side of the fence owned by William H. Hodges and occupied by Miss Curtis—not the one filled this morning.

A Brave Man.

No one can look in the face of death with such calmness as Senator Hoar unless he possesses the supreme quality of courage.

This quality, indeed, it is that brings long life, that enables the physical powers to surmount difficulties and overthrow assaults which would crush a less self-contained spirit. And the forecast of Dr. Gilman, that Mr. Hoar may again be seen upon the floor of the Senate at Washington, is undoubtedly based upon the marvellous self-content of his patient.

May his prediction be fulfilled! Such is the prayer of every man of Massachusetts, of the country from East to West and North to South.

We fear, of course. The whole tenor of the reports from the homestead in Worcester has been depressing. They have accepted the fact that the end is in sight; that it is only a question of days, of hours.

But against this we have to set the wonderful vitality, the marvellous, cheerful mental activity of the sufferer. To him the world still exists in all its glorious realities. He sits at the window and absorbs the woodland beauties of his surroundings. He talks with his attendants cheerfully, jocosely, in the humorous vein which is his most delightfully.

There is no decadence here, no poltroonery. Condemned to death by the faculty and by his family, Senator Hoar looks the future bravely in the face, without bravado, amiably and fearlessly.

May he live long to look back upon this experience of the entrance upon the shadow of death and the emergence therefrom.—Boston Post.

For the Daily Ledger.

Not so Bad as Drawn.

I noticed in yesterday's issue an article from A. F. Hall, stating that it was unsafe for ladies to pass at the corner of Washington and Canal streets after eight o'clock any evening. I must take exceptions to that as I have been around that corner most every evening for the past five years, and have never seen or known of a lady being insulted or molested. In justice to the officer that has been upon that beat I write this. A. Keating.

Live Stock Show.

The World's fair live stock show opened yesterday, to continue till Nov. 4. It is one of the principal features of the exposition. The scope of this enterprise, which ranges from cattle and horses to Belgian hares, exceeds that of any other live stock show. The total valuation of the prizes is $400,000.

Every prominent breeder in America is represented. The governments of France, Germany and Belgium also have arranged splendid exhibits. The livestock buildings cover over 200 acres. The forum, where the judging will take place, is 250 by 500 feet and has a seating capacity of 11,000.

Sayonaro.

The Japanese word of parting is not "So long" or "See you later," but "Sayonaro"—"if it must be so."

Swarming Bees.

Bees swarm because they become too crowded in one hive. When the bees feel that they are crowded too much they create a new queen, and she leads a new colony off to get a start for themselves.

DAYLIGHT BURGLARY

House on Massachusetts Avenue Entered Monday.

Monday afternoon parties passing near Massachusetts avenue, Quincy, thought that they saw parties in the house of Robert McSweeney. Knowing that the family were away at that time, word was telephoned to the police. Inspectors McKay and Bradley went to investigate. The family had returned at that hour, and the only thing that they missed was a $5 bill. Everything else was in place and nothing had apparently been disturbed. It was thought that a door leading to the cellar from the outside had been opened, and that entrance was gained by that method.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edward J. Devine was arraigned for drunkenness at Randolph. Case continued until Sept. 24.

Walter P. Beven was arraigned for vagrancy at Quincy. Case continued until Wednesday.

Charles P. Putnam was arraigned for speeding an automobile at the Blue Hills reservation. Case continued until Aug. 31.

Fred W. McGowan and Bert F. Burrell of Weymouth were arraigned for larceny from the Old Colony Street railway. They were held in $300 each until Sept. 1.

Booker T. Washington, Jr., was fined $15 for speeding a motor cycle at the Blue Hills reservation.

Harold Baker was fined $15 for speeding an automobile on the Blue Hills reservation.

Michael Walsh was arraigned for using profane language on the public streets of Quincy. He was fined $5.

—Judge and Mrs. Parker and a party of family guests went to Kingston in the Rosemount launch on Sunday and attended divine worship, as usual, at the Mission Church of the Holy Cross. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. Edward Cooper of Hackensack, N. Y., preached, and Judge Parker acted as one of the ushers and passed the collection plate. The church was nearly filled, the congregation including many strangers attracted by the expectation of seeing the Democratic presidential candidate.

—Passengers riding now on the trolley cars between Hartford and Springfield can see for miles handsome fields of tobacco, said to be worth $300 per acre. A better crop has never been raised.

YACHT CAPSIZED.

Three of the Five Occupants Drowned.

The catboat Vision of Houghs Neck was capsized Monday afternoon near Boston light and three of her party of five were drowned.

The Vision which had been hired for the day by Carl Umlandt of Cambridgeport left Houghs Neck early Monday morning and took his party aboard at City Point shortly after 9 o'clock. In the party with Umlandt were Carl Lunderquest, Mary Ancerson, Rolf Jacobson and Harriet Ancerson, all of Cambridgeport.

The party embarked on the boat and after a sail about the inner harbor, they landed on Outer Brewster, where they had lunch.

They had just left Outer Brewster at 3.30 P. M. and were standing a short distance off shore when a little gust of wind came up and took off Umlandt's hat, which was soon left several yards astern. Umlandt, who was steering, and having a little difficulty in the choppy sea, paid little attention to his loss.

"It is bad luck to lose a hat overboard," said Mary Ancerson. "It is much better to have a black cat run in front of you, and unless you pick up that hat we will meet with some serious accident."

Umlandt, who had his hands full managing the little boat, did not want to go back. The sails were all set, and the wind, which was south southwest, was very fresh. However, he allowed himself to be persuaded, and he tacked about until he was near the hat.

As he passed a little to the leeward, and the little catboat was running by the hat, all of his passengers ran to the rail and tried to reach it. The boat keeled over, and as the gunwale was forced under another fresh puff of wind caught her and she capsized.

She went down almost instantly, and the five persons on board tried to get in the little tender which was dragging behind. This soon capsized and sank, leaving them floating on the top of the water.

Umlandt, who was the only swimmer in the party, made for the two girls instantly. He supported them and tried to swim for the shore with his heavy burden. Lunderquest and young Jacobson, after a desperate struggle, went down.

When the accident occurred the William H. Cross, which was just returning from the Georges with a fare of fish, was standing in about 3-4 of a mile away from the little catboat. The crew had noticed her and her evolutions. Suddenly a shout went up from Percy Nickerson that the little craft had capsized.

Capt. Chetwood put his schooner about and she made a flying rush for the drowning persons. A little steamer which was nearly a mile away could have saved all of the party had they seen the disaster, but they kept right on their course outward.

As the schooner reached the spot where the disaster had taken place, Umlandt, Miss Ancerson and Lunderquest were the only persons to be seen. A dory which had been prepared was immediately launched and Capt. Chetwood, with Nickerson and Devine, picked up the survivors.

Umlandt had just let go of Harriet Ancerson and was swimming feebly toward the shore. The girl with head below the surface was unconscious when picked up. Linderquest was floating on top of the water with head below the surface, quite dead.

The dead and the living were carried aboard the Cross, where the crew immediately got to work upon Miss Ancerson, who was apparently dying. Umlandt was soon revived, but the girl did not seem to answer to the heroic treatment.

A Big Shrinkage.

Comparative receipts of livestock during July at five western markets, as reported to the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics, show the extent to which this branch of domestic commerce has been affected by the packing house strikes. Comparing July of this year with July of last year, there has been a decrease of over 1,000,000 head of live stock, or from 2,620,046 head in 1903 to 1,554,451 head in 1904 at the five markets of Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis and St. Joseph.

Typhoid Fever—21 Cases.

There are twenty-one cases of typhoid fever in Mattapan, each of which has been traced by the Board of Health to the drinking of supposed spring water in Mattapan square.

The first two cases were reported about two weeks ago. Inspectors were at once sent to Dorchester, discovered the source of infection and took strict measures to prevent its spread. In spite of their efforts nineteen more cases have broken out, but the authorities think that no more will develop, as the period of incubation, two weeks, has passed.

It seems that the spring, from which many people drank, was in reality water pumped out from a trench sewer which Italian workmen were building on River street. Not only had workmen partaken of this water, but many others. Analysis of the water showed that it had been contaminated with sewerage.

Early Action In Tuberculosis.

The whole secret of success in the treatment of tuberculosis is to so increase the resistance of the patient as to bring about the arrest of the tuberculosis process and to prevent secondary infection. Early recognition and proper management in the beginning of the disease are the chief elements of cure. If the family physician encourages the hopeful patient to believe that "it is only a bad cold" and that it "will wear off," or when warm weather comes he will be "all right," he not only seals the patient's doom, but fails to take advantage of the opportunity presented today for the cure of consumption.—Suggestion.

The Demand Was Granted.

A certain city in England sent a deputation to Charles II., who was very ill, soliciting some favor. The orator, without any mercy to the sick man, made a long, tedious discourse. "Have you anything more to say?" asked the merry monarch impatiently. "Nothing," replied the orator, "except that if you do not grant our request I am instructed to recite my speech over again." Charles ordered that all his demands should be freely and instantaneously complied with.

An Exposure.

"Johnny," said the teacher, "a lie can be acted as well as told. Now, if your father was to put sand in his sugar and sell it he would be acting a lie and doing very wrong."

"That's what mother told him," said Johnny impetuously, "but he said he didn't care."—London Tit-Bits.

The Original MacIntosh.

"MacIntosh boasts a good deal about his family, doesn't he?" "Yes; I think he claims that the head of his family was the original MacIntosh that Noah had with him during that rainy season."—Philadelphia Press.

Was She Willing?

"I wish that we could be married," he said. "But, candidly, I am not earning salt."

"Well," faltered the beautiful girl, p-perhaps we could do without salt."

His Mistake.

He—She doesn't like me. I attempted to kiss her once.

She—How foolish of you! Why didn't you attempt to kiss her twice?

SPORTING NOTES.

Wrestling seems to be supplanting boxing in popularity in England.

Hopper, 2:17¼, the McKinney trotter, is touted as a sure 2:10 performer.

Ed Andrews, the well known western New York trainer, now has a public stable.

Charley Nichols of the St. Louis Nationals says the "raise" ball is the hardest curve for a twirler to deliver.

The Cleveland American league ball players are among the tallest and heaviest men in Ban Johnson's organization.

Will Caton was the leading money winning driver in Russia during the last season, having over $25,000 to his credit.

The Gentlemen's Driving and Riding club of Denver claims to be the largest driving club in the world in point of membership.

A. C. Pennock of Cleveland is racing the trotting gelding Thorn Boy, 2:17¼, by Strong Boy, 2:11¼, on the Ohio half mile tracks.

Japanese swordsmen exercise with a large bamboo stick which they wield with both hands. Their heads are protected by a clumsy basketlike hood.

Scott Quinton, who deserted the harness horses several years ago for the runners, is in the training business again and is racing Bessie Brown, 2:12¾, by Wiggins.

THE WRITERS.

Joel Chandler Harris is back in the literary harness again.

The veteran Norwegian author Jonas Lie intends to leave Paris, where he has lived for many years, and abide for the future in Norway.

Maude Roosevelt, the president's cousin, is contributing much magazine literature this summer, and is about to issue a new novel of New York's hustling life.

Mrs. Maxwell, whom novel readers remember as "M. E. Braddon" and who wrote "Lady Audley's Secret," to say nothing of sixty or more other examples of fiction, lives in the summer at Richmond, near London. She is fond of entertaining.

Pierre Loti, the noted French author, will make a third attempt to turn Shakespeare's "King Lear" into the French language. On account of the difficulty and previous unsatisfactory efforts to translate Shakespeare into French the literary people of that country have never valued the English dramatist highly.

CURIOUS CULLINGS.

New Orleans is fighting white ants for a pastime, and it is said that the insects are fast devouring some of the wooden houses.

A Nebraska man thrust his trousers, containing $3,000, out of a sleeping car window, thinking he was putting them into the hammock of his berth, and didn't discover his loss until the next morning.

A carpet needle nearly three inches long has been extracted from the body of Mrs. Herman Scheuer of Meriden, Conn. The instrument had traveled in ten years from her left knee to a spot near her heart.

Odd names have been given to bouncing boy twins born to Mr. and Mrs. John D. Conley of York, Pa. The firstborn was named Enough by the apprehensive father. Enough's brother will have to answer to the somewhat humiliating appellation of Last.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

Six first class young Methodist ministers are needed for work in Montana. The salary offered is $500 or $600 per year.

It is stated on good authority that during the past seventeen years below Fourteenth street, New York, seventeen Protestant churches have moved out and 250,000 people have moved in.

Bishop Grafton of the Episcopal church, who founded the Sisterhood of the Holy Nativity in 1882, has announced that he will remove the mother house from Providence, R. I., to Fond du Lac, Wis.

The Rev. E. H. Eckel, rector of an Episcopal church in Williamsport, Pa., and who is likely to become the bishop of that diocese, will not tolerate women who attend services clad in low cut gowns, short sleeves and wearing no hats.

ANIMAL ODDITIES.

The penguin's wings are useful only under water.

The Maldive archipelago crab uses live sea anemones as weapons and as traps to secure food.

The spider can spin threads throughout life. It has the ability of producing different kinds of silk, according to the object for which it is needed.

Reptiles and amphibians are strongly attracted by water. They go straight toward it, even when they are at distances so great that they could not divine its presence by any of the senses known to us.

COLLEGE AND SCHOOL.

The oldest university in the world is El-Azhar, in Cairo, Egypt, founded A. D. 975.

Chicago will have six movable schoolhouses next fall to take care of the city's shifting population.

Dr. Ernest Warren Porter has been unanimously elected president of the University of Washington.

Professor Howard J. Banker of the Southwestern Normal school of Pennsylvania has been elected professor of biology in De Pauw university, at Greencastle, Ind.

Mrs Maybrick Had an Uneventful Journey Homeward

SHOWN GREAT COURTESY

Government Officials Aided Her In Every Way Possible--About to Proceed In Her Suit For Valuable Lands

New York, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Florence C. Maybrick, recently released from prison in England, and who arrived on the steamer Vaderland, from Antwerp, had expected to leave the ship at quarantine, but the plans went awry and she remained on board until the Vaderland docked. She was accompanied by Mr. Hayden, her attorney.

The immigration authorities made no attempt to question Mrs. Maybrick and the customs officers did all in their power to expedite the taking of her declaration and the passing of her baggage. The departure of the party from the ship proved somewhat of an ordeal, owing to a large crowd of the curious, and it took strenuous efforts of two detectives to get it to the carriages. The crowd, however, was very orderly and made no demonstration.

Mrs. Maybrick left the pier with Mr. Hayden. What the curious crowd saw was a slight, short woman, with a thin, worn face and a mass of brown hair. The simple gown of small black and white pattern of silk fitted her closely and was fastened at the waist with a wide black belt. The only bit of color in her costume was a heliotrope ribbon and a flower of the same hue in her hat. She was unveiled and smiled at the staring crowd.

During the voyage across Mrs. Maybrick appeared a few times at meals and in the cabin, but remained most of the time in her cabin. She was met at the dock by a few close friends and was driven directly to a hotel and after a brief rest will make a trip to the Catskills before her contemplated journey south.

Mr. Hayden acknowledged that Mrs. Maybrick was about to proceed in her suit for lands in Virginia and other states which are said to be valuable, but declined to refer to the answer to the suit in which it is alleged that Mrs. Maybrick has no claim to the property and that the bringing of the suit was a trick to hasten the woman's release. Mr. Hayden said:

"On behalf of Mrs. Maybrick, her mother and her counsel and friends, I wish for her to express generally and specifically her gratitude for the efforts which have been made in her behalf. Mrs. Maybrick left Truro in Cornwall on July 20 and through the courtesy and assistance of the English government and the United States, she was enabled to reach her home in Rouen without annoyance. On Aug. 11 Mrs. Maybrick left Rouen. She went to Paris and and from there to Brussels and thence to Antwerp, where she took passage on the Vaderland for New York, which sailed on Aug. 13. I myself booked her under the name of "Miss Rose Ingraham," though it appears on the passenger list as "Mrs."

"Ingraham is the name of her uncle, Rev. John P. Ingraham of the first Presbyterian church at St. Louis. Mrs. Maybrick went on board at Antwerp and until the last few days there were but a small number of those on board who knew her as Mrs. Maybrick. I made the captain of the steamship aware of the situation and he did his best to ensure having rest and secrecy."

American Vessels Seized

Digby, N. S., Aug. 24.—Gloucester fishing schooner Two Forty has been seized at Westport by the customs collector for having unlawfully landed goods at Woods Harbor last November. The vessel is held pending the decision of the minister of customs. The American schooner S. T. Willard was also seized at Pubnico for violation of the customs regulations of Canada and is held pending the necessary deposit.

Awful Find of Police Sergeant

Chicago, Aug. 24.—A young man, 22 years old, was killed by a train here last night and a patrol wagon in charge of Police Sergeant Reilley was sent to convey the remains to the morgue. The police were forced to gather the body up bit by bit. The head was finally picked up by Sergeant O'Reilly, who, on bringing it to the light of a lantern, found that it was the head of his own son.

Paraguayans Reported Defeated

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 24.—There are persistent rumors that a long engagement has been fought between the Paraguayan revolutionists and government troops, resulting in the defeat of the latter and the capture of 400 men. There is an utter absence of definite news regarding the progress of the revolution.

ALMOST A MURDER

John H. Murray While Violently Insane

Attempts to Kill His Wife.

Prompt Work of Police Prevents a Murder at 103 School Street.

John H. Murray, aged 53, a blacksmith employed at the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., became violently insane at his home at 103 School street this morning and but for the prompt work of the police would have murdered his wife.

It was about 1.45 o'clock this morning when Officer Boutin, while standing on the corner of Franklin and School streets, heard what appeared to be cries for help. The sound came from the direction of the police station. He started toward where the sounds came. He had no difficulty in tracing the sounds to Murray's house which is situated near the railroad bridge and but a short distance from the police station.

As he drew near the house the cries for help became louder. The officer looked into the window and the sight that met his gaze almost took his breath away.

Lying on the bed was a woman dressed in her night garments. Seated upon her was a man. One hand was on the woman's throat evidently trying to stifle her cries while in his right hand which was raised aloft as if about to strike, was a bottle.

The man was shouting at the top of his voice: "I'll kill you," "I'll kill you."

The woman was struggling to free herself and was crying for help. Her strength was nearly exhausted and she could make but feeble resistance.

All of this the officer saw at a glance and realizing that prompt action was necessary he started for the front door. As he reached the door he was joined by Officers Johnson and Matthews. The door was fastened but a few well directed kicks forced it open.

Once inside they found that the door leading to the room where the frightful scene was being enacted was fastened with a half inch rope. This barrier was quickly overcome and the three officers grabbed the man who they now realized was insane.

A violent struggle ensued but they finally got him to the police station. Here another struggle begun and it required combined efforts of the officers to get the man into a padded cell.

Mrs. Murray's throat was black and blue and badly swollen and she was also somewhat bruised during her desperate struggle for life.

This morning Murray was examined by Dr. Welch and Dr. Hallowell who pronounced him insane, and Judge Avery ordered him committed to Taunton, where he was later taken.

The unfortunate man has showed traces of not being just right mentally since the first of July.

Why Do Men Go Wrong?

It is scarcely possible to pick up a paper without coming across an account of some one holding a position of trust who has proved false to his charge and has become a defaulter. In a discussion by presidents of surety companies in a financial paper, the cause for the numerous defalcations are pretty generally agreed upon. Gambling may be set down as the principal cause, though the means varies in different cities and sections of the country. In New York betting on horse races is set down as the first cause, with speculation in stocks as the second cause. In the south card playing does the most harm, horse racing cutting almost no figure. Intemperance is set down as a general cause everywhere. In Boston "indulging in hobbies" is a prolific cause of defalcation. One fidelity company of Boston attributes the greater number of defalcations to large amounts of money spent upon women.

☞ The Kennebec Journal finds that the Japanese are very American in a direction not hitherto discovered by the general public, and that is in the matter of divorce. In 1902 Japan had 349,489 marriages and 113,498 divorces. Evidently the fighting spirit in that country is not confined to the army and navy.

CHAS. L. TUCKER.

Indicted of Killing Miss Mabel Page of Weston.

The Globe says, only one man stood between Charles L. Tucker and liberty in June. One grand juryman's opinion of the evidence has kept Tucker in the East Cambridge jail since June 6. The vote of one member of the grand jury of Middlesex county caused the return of an indictment charging Tucker with the murder of Miss Mabel Page at Weston, March 31, upon which indictment he is to be tried Sept. 26.

Of the 23 members of the grand jury who heard the evidence against Tucker only 12 voted in favor of an indictment, 11 men believed him innocent and voted against an indictment. The opinion of none of the minority had to be changed, as indictments are returned by a vote of a majority, even if that majority is but one.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ These low transatlantic steamer rates excite unutterable longings to go across—New Bedford Standard.

☞ No wicked midways or gambling games, the State board of agriculture says, will be tolerated at State fairs this year.

☞ In order to meet the deficit incurred during the Democratic administration of Mr. Cleveland's second term it was necessary to borrow in a time of profound peace, $250,000,000 adding that amount to the permanent debt of this country. Under subsequent Republican administrations there has been no deficit and no bonds have been issued to meet current expenditures.—Milford Journal.

☞ The captain of the militia company which was recently sent to Statesboro, Ga., to avert the threatened lynching, says that he is tired of such poltroon tactics as he was forced to follow there, and declares that his men were there without cartridges and with instructions not to use their bayonets on the crowd or to cause bloodshed. This would seem to put the responsibility for the outrage against law and order upon someone higher in authority in the militia than the commander of the company, and it would be interesting to know who gave the orders, beyond the written message sent from the governor to the captain.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ Blessed be the peacemakers. That is scriptural authority, and it is as applicable to the political field. Lieut. Gov. Curtis Guild, Jr., therefore seems to have a pretty fair title to a place in the kingdom of heaven, for he has apparently patched up the peace between Col. Albert Clarke of the Home Market club and Eugene Foss and the rest of the rank reciprocity men. The lieutenant-governor proposes a joint convention of representatives of the business organizations of the two countries to discuss the possibilities of trade arrangements and to recommend a basis for a reciprocity agreement which would be suggested to the tariff-making bodies. As a definite start towards reciprocity it is a greater possibility than anything which can be hoped for from the political end.—Haverhill Gazette.

ASKING FOR FACTS

Washington Wants to Know Exact Situation at Shanghai

CHINA IN A TIGHT PLACE

Fears Both Belligerents and Hesitates as to Which She Will Conciliate -- Intervention by Powers Might Finally Become Exceedingly Troublesome

Washington, Aug. 24.—Aware of the acuteness of the situation at Shanghai, Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has cabled Rear Admiral Sterling, commander-in-chief of the American Asiatic fleet now at Shanghai, directing him to keep the department promptly informed of every development in the situation. No word from Admiral Sterling has yet been received.

Acting Secretary of State Adee has cabled Minister Conger at Pekin a request that he report as soon as possible the facts concerning the situation at Shanghai. A similar request also has been addressed to Consul General Goodnow at Shanghai and Consul General Fowler at Chefoo.

The situation at Shanghai, so far as known here, shows no advance toward settlement beyond a tolerably plain disposition on the part of all the powers to avoid forcible action unless that can be made concurrent. The international law involved is tolerably simple. If the Russian warships are making repairs beyond restoring seaworthiness, they are violating China's neutrality. It is not known that they are doing this, but Japan evidently fears such action. If they were to make such unlawful repairs, and then escape, China would be answerable to Japan. If Japan should seize the Russian ships, China would be answerable to Russia. The powers would have no right, under international law, to prevent reprisals by either Japan or Russia under the circumstances assumed.

China, however, is in fear of both belligerents, and hesitates whether to conciliate Japan or Russia. Physical damage to their interests at Shanghai can be made good by the powers, under international law, by reprisals through force or diplomacy against the offender or offenders. If, then, it is assumed that either China, Japan or Russia will violate the strict rule involved, the question of the powers is entirely a practical one. Is the violation such as to endanger the degree of China's integrity which the powers have agreed to respect? If it does endanger China, then the powers must consider how far they will go to prevent or punish it.

A mere glance at the conflicting interests involved in the present status of China will show how exceedingly troublesome intervention might finally become. If Japan's proposed course, when carried out, should end with a seizure of the Russian ships at Shanghai, it is unlikely that the powers would do more than to counsel China to be firmer next time, and to express their regrets. It is so much to the advantage of each of the chief three actors, however, not to introduce new troubles into the Chinese question, that a peaceful settlement of the matter is highly probable. It may be noted as a curious, but not practically essential fact, that forcible intervention at Shanghai by the powers would itself be a technical offense against China's neutrality.

Taotai's Order Unheeded

Shanghai, Aug. 24.—The final time limit allowed by the taotai of Shanghai for the Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi to disarm has passed without compliance with his order. The taotai has requested Mr. Warren, the British consul general, to order that the repairs to the Askold be stopped. The British consul general has taken no action as yet. A Japanese fleet is outside the harbor awaiting developments.

Certain prominent American firms made a request upon American Consul General Goodnow for the protection of cargoes and wharves near the Askold. This request was forwarded by Mr. Goodnow to Rear Admiral Sterling, who has the matter under consideration. No uneasiness is felt by the foreign residents of Shanghai, but the Chinese are excited.

Ill Luck Pursues Russia

Tokio, Aug. 24.—Admiral Kataoka reports that as the Russian battleship Sevastopol was emerging from Port Arthur yesterday she struck a mine, after which she was seen to be listed to starboard. She was towed back into the harbor.

All on Account of Heir to Throne

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—Emperor Nicholas' manifesto on the birth of an heir to the throne abolishes corporal punishment among the rural classes and for first offenses among the sea and land forces; remits arrears owing to the state for the purchases of land and other direct imposts; sets apart $1,500,000 from the state funds for the purpose of forming an inalienable fund for the benefit of landless people of Finland; grants amnesty to those Finlanders who have emigrated without authorization; remits the fines imposed upon the communes of Finland which refused to submit to military conscription in 1902 and 1903, and also remits the fines imposed upon the Jewish communes in the cases of Jews avoiding military service. The manifesto provides for an all-round reduction in sentences for common law offenses, while a general amnesty is accorded in the case of all political offenses with the exception of those in which murder has been done.

Gloom at St Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—With all Russia hanging breathlessly on the fate of Port Arthur, even such a national event as the christening of the czarevitch is robbed of much of the prominence which would otherwise be accorded to it, and St. Petersburg is silent, with no sign of festivity.

LODGE'S PREDICTION

Size of Republican Plurality the Question In New England

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Senator Lodge left yesterday afternoon for Boston. Before his departure he said: "Republicans throughout the country are presenting a solid front for the president. I do not find anywhere a single Republican who is expecting to support and vote for Judge Parker. Some gold Democrats who voted for McKinley in 1896 and 1900 have returned to their party. They, of course, will support Judge Parker. On the contrary, I know many Democrats who will support Mr. Roosevelt. He will get a large personal vote, for the president is the kind of a man who appeals strongly to every American. Among first voters and among young men generally he will poll a tremendous vote. I feel entirely confident of the general result.

"In New England, that part of the country in which I am best acquainted and with the political trend of which I am most familiar, it is, in my judgment, only a question of the size of the Republican plurality. Perhaps we shall not have a duplication of the immense majority received by McKinley, but even that would not surprise me."

Murphy-McCarren Feud Ended

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Plans for the national campaign were laid before Judge Parker by DeLancey Nicoll, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, who called at Rosemount by invitation. Judge Parker was enthusiastic over the campaign work. The report carried to Rosemount by Nicoll indicated the close of the Murphy-McCarren feud in greater New York. He said that the appointment of Dowling as a member of the state executive committee and the head of a bureau of organization which will have charge of the city campaign is satisfactory to Murphy, leader of Tammany hall, who will do his utmost for the success of the national ticket.

Smuggled Goods on Transport

San Francisco, Aug. 24.—Extensive violations of the customs laws have been unearthed here by British custom inspectors who searched the United States naval transport Solace and made 41 seizures, amounting in value to several thousand dollars, including cigars, silks, embroideries, decorated porcelain and Japanese curios. Among the persons to whom dutiable goods were addressed are a number of United States naval officers.

Leander Killed on Bicycle Track

Paris, Aug. 24.—George Leander, the American bicyclist, died here from injuries sustained in a terrible fall as the result of running into a motor cycle which was pacing a race in which an attempt was being made to break the record for one hour. There were three cyclists in the race. At the time of the accident Leander was traveling at a pace of 57 miles an hour and was more than a lap ahead when he was thrown over the handle bars of his machine and fell on his head.

Destroyed by Fire at Sea

Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 24.—Captain McKeen, two sons and crew of six of the schooner Adele Thackara arrived in this port on the schooner J. E. Jordan, from New York. The Thackara was burned at sea Sunday. The fire started in the hold of the vessel, which was loaded with tankage, and was caused by a spontaneous combustion. The vessel was a total loss. The crew escaped in the yawl boat and were picked up by the Jordan.

Old Footlight Favorite Dead

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Rosina Watkins, a retired comedienne and a great favorite in the stock company days of a generation ago, died at the Edwin Forrest home here, aged 76. She was born in England and starred in Great Britain and this country. She was a sister of D. T. Shaw, author of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," and was the mother of Amy Lee, the actress.

To Shut Out Impure Food

Washington, Aug. 24.—A chemical laboratory for the examination of imported food products will be opened in New York by the department of agriculture Sept. 5. Five expert chemists will be installed. This is the first of a number of port laboratories to be established to prevent impure food, the product of foreign countries, entering the United States.

Double Murder and Suicide

New York, Aug. 24.—George Boyce, his wife and their 6-months-old baby were found dead last night in apartments in a tenement house here. All three had been shot to death. A revolver lay on the floor near the body of the man and the police believe that the man killed his wife and child and then himself.

F. H. Crane & Sons are to erect a large hay shed on Liberty street.

Adams street, on the east side from Hancock street, is being resurfaced.

Miss Edith Penley of the Consolidated store has gone to Auburn, Me., on a vacation trip.

Benj. F. Thomas, formerly a clerk at Boynton & Russell's, is to open a fish market on Brook street, Wollaston.

Wendell G. Corthell has presented the Merrymount club with an elegantly bound set of encyclopedias.

The recent alterations to the old Baxter building on the corner of Franklin and Water streets are a great improvement.

John O. Hall, Jr., who has accepted the principalship of the High school at Millbury, has commenced to move his household effects to that town.

Colorado Mining Labor Troubles.

The editorial attitude of the Mining Magazine, of New York, to the recent labor upheaval in Colorado is regarded as a comprehensive and conservative statement. The Magazine sums up the situation in these words:

To say that there is blame on both sides is trite, but to fairly distribute the blame is difficult to one who has personal familiarity with the situation and the circumstances which have led up to it. If for the sake of argument it be granted that the defeat of the eight-hour amendment was by sharp practice rather than by open conflict, and was poor politics, the fact remains that this was an incident rather than a cause. The contest with the Western Federation of Miners was inevitable and the time only was uncertain. Such a state of terrorism as has prevailed in the San Juan for some years could not be allowed to go on, much less to extend itself. It is also true that the ordinary processes of law had failed to stamp out the evil, and the choice remaining was between the rule of the vigilance committee and martial law. The latter has its disadvantages. The way of soldiers are not those of peace, but the legality of Martial Law has been settled by the courts and ought not to be questioned. . . . To class the Western Federation of Miners with the decent, law-abiding labor unions of the more settled States merely indicates ignorance or a hopeless confusion of ideas, and Mr. Gompers' fiery defense of an aggregation expelled from the American Federation of Labor for nonpayment of dues, and which has abused and vilified him in terms no less severe than those applied to the veriest oppressor of labor, is at once amusing and pathetic. It illustrates how many sins the word union may be stretched to cover, and how prone labor leaders are to permit sympathy to warp judgment.

Oatmeal and Apples.

Well cooked oatmeal, eaten with a raw apple, is claimed to be an ideal diet for humanity, and a person can keep strong and healthy on this at the smallest possible outlay.

Babylonian Bricks.

Some of the bricks found in Babylon indicate by the stamps upon their surface an age of at least 5,000 years. The art of brickmaking was well developed at that time, for no bricks are better made than these.

Reptiles.

Reptiles seek the light, but independently of heat. In winter they often leave comfortable and warm retreats to seek the sunlight.

What Toads Eat.

In one toad's stomach have been found 77 thousand leg worms, in another 37 tent caterpillars, in another's 63 gypsy moth caterpillars and in yet another's 65 army worms. Thirty large caterpillars have been fed to a toad in less than three hours.

Insanitary Persia.

Persians dump their household refuse into deep cesspools dug inside of the house. These cesspools have no outlet and help to account for that country being the hotbed of cholera.

Cherubini.

Cherubini copied all his own scores, and that with such care that the manuscript looks as though printed. He even copied all the orchestral parts, for, as he said, "there is always something to be learned in copying music."

Rheumatism

What is the use of telling the rheumatic that he feels as if his joints were being dislocated?

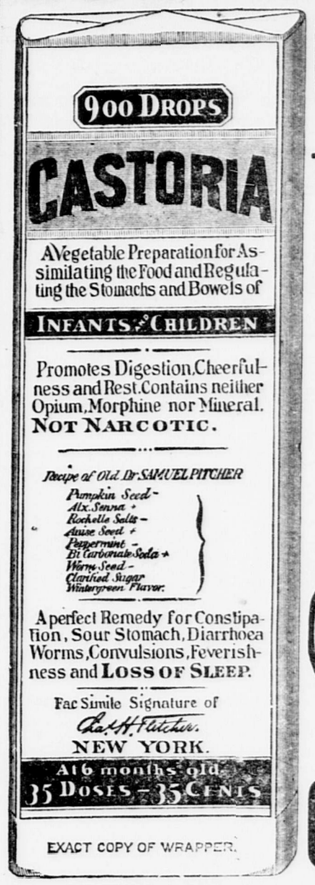

He knows that his sufferings are very much like the tortures of the rack.

What he wants to know is what will permanently cure his disease.

That, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, is

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It promptly neutralizes the acid in the blood on which the disease depends, completely eliminates it, and strengthens the system against its return. Try Hood's.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR
Steam or Hot Water Heaters
you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

Prominent Washington Man Petitioned Into Bankruptcy

UNIVERSITY IS INVOLVED

Treasurer Waggaman Gave Catholic Institution Deed of Trust on His Property Amounting to $876,000--Banks Seek to Have It Set Aside

Washington, Aug. 24.—A sensation was caused in financial and real estate circles in this city when it became known that a petition in bankruptcy had been filed by three of the leading national banks of the city against Thomas E. Waggaman, a prominent real estate and insurance agent of this city, and treasurer of the Catholic university. The petition also seeks to set aside a deed of trust recorded on Monday on Waggaman's property for approximately $876,000 in favor of the Catholic university, on the ground that it is void, as being an attempt by an insolvent debtor to prefer one of his creditors.

The petitioning banks were the Second National bank, the National Metropolitan bank and the National Bank of Washington, each of which alleged it held over and unpaid paper of Waggaman's, the total amount exceeding $40,000.

It is probable that the proceedings are the beginning of considerable litigation. Waggaman had been in the real estate business here since 1878, and was reported generally to be a man of large means. He was the possessor of the finest private art gallery in the city, and some comment was caused several months ago when a brief announcement appeared in the papers to the effect that his art works had been turned over to the Catholic university. At the time it was explained that it was as a matter of convenience, but it is stated now that security to the university for the money had to do with the matter.

Beside handling the moneys of the university, Waggaman controlled large amounts of money belonging to other persons in this city and elsewhere and it is stated that to some extent, at least, Waggaman's personal notes were given as security to those whose money he controlled. For some years he has been engaged in extensive operations in the suburbs of Washington and has had much capital tied up thereby.

It is understood that some time ago the authorities of the Catholic university became dissatisfied with the manner in which the funds of the institution in Waggaman's hands were invested and secured, and after negotiations between them a new arrangement was effected. This new arrangement was embodied in the settlement of which the deed of trust was a part.

The deed of trust was dated July 23 and it is understood that the delay in recording it was occasioned by the terms of the adjustment with Waggaman. A spirit of uneasiness respecting Waggaman's financial condition is said to have prevailed in some circles for a few days and it was hinted by one in a position to know the circumstances that, apprehending the possibility of bankruptcy proceedings, it was decided by those representing the university to have the deed recorded. The friends of the university say they think that it will lose nothing if the deed of trust recorded can be sustained against the general creditors of Waggaman.

Not a Coastwise Port

San Francisco, Aug. 24.—Collector of Customs Stratton has received word from Washington to the effect that, until otherwise ordered, foreign vessels will be allowed to do business between Ancon, Panama, and ports of the United States. Being within the Panama canal zone, merchants and importers assumed that Ancon would be regarded as a coastwise port. The action of the Washington authorities practically leaves Ancon in the condition of a foreign port.

Hunting Weinseimer's Record

New York, Aug. 24.—The books of local No. 2 of the Journeymen Plumbers and Gas Fitters' union, of which Philip Weinseimer is president, were taken to the district attorney's office for the purpose of inspection. Acting District Attorney Rand, it is said, will use certain information gleaned from the books in preparing the case against Weinseimer, who is charged with extortion.

Teamsters Tired of Strike

Chicago, Aug. 24.—The members of the Teamsters' union, who have been on strike for several weeks in the effort to aid the striking butchers at the stockyards, last night decided that the teamsters as a body would refuse to give any further assistance to the strikers. The question of remaining on strike was left to the vote of the various local unions.

Newfoundlanders Stirred Up

St. Johns, Aug. 24.—Bitter feeling has been aroused here over the action of Canada in deciding to establish a custom house in Hamilton inlet, Labrador, which Newfoundland claims as her territory by reason of her occupation of it for the past 100 years. The government will protest strongly to the British government against the alleged encroachment.

Constable's Liberality Unappreciated

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Postmaster General Payne has been served with a summons to appear in a court in this city as a witness in a case against Senator Depew. Payne, according to Constable Simmons, declares that he will ignore the summons. "Not only did he say that," declared Simmons, "but when I offered him 50 cents, and even added 10 cents for mileage, he threw the money in my face." S. G. Bradrock of this city declares that he has been defrauded by a concern with which, he asserts, Depew had been connected in 1892. The constable has been trying to serve a summons on Payne ever since and located him here yesterday.

To Capture or Destroy Guerillas

Manila, Aug. 24.—The forces under Dato Ali, on the island of Mindanao, have adopted guerilla tactics in fighting the American soldiers. To counteract this departure General Wood has organized four crack fighting companies of 100 men each, which are to operate independently and conduct a vigorous campaign for the capture or destruction of the enemy.

Non-Union Men Leaving Packers

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Non-union laborers hired by the packers after the strike began are said to be deserting because of a decrease in wages from $2.15 a day to $1.75 a day, the rate complained of by the strikers. The packers apparently consider subsistence and lodging sufficient premium for the strike breakers engaged at unskilled labor.

Three Oil Concerns In Receivership

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 24.—The Muncie Trust company has been appointed re-Gas company, the Gopher Oil company and the Laroca Oil company, having a combined capital stock of $1,250,000, on complaint that the companies are insolvent and unable to pay their debts.

Italy Suffers From Storms

Rome, Aug. 24.—Terrific storms continue throughout the peninsula and great damage has already resulted in the south. Thirty houses have been destroyed and 12 deaths are reported. At Sorrento the famous monastery of St. Paul was seriously damaged.

Miners and Operators Agree

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 24.—The 800 miners at the Barnum colliery at Pittston, who have been out on strike for two weeks, have returned to work, a conference with the company officials having reached a conclusion satisfactory to both sides.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Professor Antonio Drasche, a member of the Austrian sanitary council, celebrated for his investigations in the disease of cholera, is dead.

James E. O'Connor, who for many years was an assistant in handling Yale crews, died at New Haven of appendicitis.

Miss Bessie Johnson, daughter of Mayor Johnson of Cleveland, has signed to take a part in the forthcoming production of "Brother Jack," in which Annie Russell will star this season.

The national board of directors of the Knights of Columbus voted to hold the October meeting on Columbus day at the St. Louis exposition.

Dr. Edmund James, president of Northwestern university, was unanimously elected president of the University of Illinois.

SKULL FRACTURED

Tardy Discovery In Case of a Man Who Died From Assault

Providence, Aug. 24.—Following the death of Captain Odell Clock, an autopsy on whose body disclosed a fractured skull, search is being made for Patrick H. Pendergast of this city, who was arraigned here about a week ago for assault upon Clock and who was released upon payment of a $20 fine. Clock's injuries were not believed dangerous at that time.

Captain Clock came to Providence from Boston on Aug. 9. He is believed to have left his ship in Boston and during the day is said to have drank considerable liquor. Finally he met Pendergast and the two hired a carriage and went driving. The next morning Clock appeared at a police station, and said that he had been assaulted and robbed, giving a description of his assailant, who was his companion of the night before. About $30 and several checks, he said, had been taken. Several days later Pendergast was arrested, but escaped with the payment of a fine for simple assault, as Clock wished to avoid notoriety.

Clock was taken to a hospital for treatment of bruises about the head, but was taken seriously ill Monday night and died yesterday, when it was discovered that he had a fractured skull, and the police were notified. Pendergast was at the time of his arrest a railroad brakeman, but lost his position at that time.

Negro Wielded an Axe

Boston, Aug. 24.—A dispute over a game of cards between members of the crew of the schooner Eleanor A. Percy, lying off Castle island flats, resulted last night in Edward Murray, a negro, being in a hospital with his hand nearly severed from his body by a hatchet in the hands of William Phillips, 19, also a negro, and the arrest of the latter on the charge of assault with intent to kill. The other members of the crew are held as witnesses.

Police Give Botham Bad Record

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 24.—Joseph Botham, who was shot by his 18-year-old daughter, Alice, after he had abused the girl and his wife, is dead. Botham had a bad record, the police say. He was 71 years of age. The daughter was arraigned in the district court, charged with manslaughter. She entered a plea of not guilty, and a continuance was granted until next Monday. She was released on $500 bonds.

Met Death by Electrocution

Brunswick, Me., Aug. 24.—Ananlas Barrett, 21 years old, of Somerville, Mass., employed by the Brunswick and Topsham water district, was formerly a sailor, and last night he joked with his cousin about climbing a pole that stood near the water works. Barrett climbed to the top of the pole when his arm came in contact with a feed wire of the electric railway and Barrett fell to the ground dead.

More Escapes From Ethan Allen

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 24.—Six privates who were serving short sentences for minor offenses at Fort Ethan Allen escaped from the temporary quarters that are being used while the guardhouse is undergoing repairs, and have eluded capture. They cut a passageway through the wooden partition of the building and escaped by crawling under the floor.

Clear View For 130 Miles

Summit, Mount Washington, N. H., Aug. 24.—Yesterday was the finest day of the season here, with the view in all directions unsurpassed. The Adirondacks, 130 miles distant, were visible at sunset. Among the 200 excursionists to the summit were Lieutenant Robert E. Peary and wife and daughter.

Incendiary Fire Burns Horses

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 24.—Four horses were fatally burned last night in an incendiary fire in the barns of the Lowell Packing and Provision company and the Standard Bottling works. This is the fourth fire which has occurred in this section of the city within a short time.

$60,000 Fire In Freight House

Boston, Aug. 24.—One section of a freight house on the Fitchburg division, Boston and Maine railroad, situated in the freight yards between Charlestown and Somerville, and used for the storage of hay and lumber, was burned last night, causing a loss of about $60,000.

Relief Station to Reopen

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 24.—At the meeting of the Textile council the treasurer reported that there is about $3000 in the treasury, which is enough to warrant the opening of relief stations next Monday and keep them open two weeks.

Senator Hoar's Condition

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 24.—Senator Hoar had a very comfortable day yesterday and, while there is no substantial change, his pulse is more regular and his throat causes him less trouble. He passed a good night.

Estimated to contain 85,000 square feet of land.

Together with all the flats adjoining and appurtenant to the parcel above described.

The two foregoing parcels are two of the three parcels described in Certificate of Title No. 108, issued by the Registry District of Norfolk County, Massachusetts, dated January 13, 1904, and recorded in Norfolk County Registry District Court of Land Registration, Book I, page 108, the second of the parcels described in said certificate having been released from said mortgage or deed of trust. Reference is made to said certificate and to the plans filed therewith for further description of said parcels. Said two parcels above described comprise the premises decribed as parcels numbered 2 to 6 inclusive in said mortgage or deed of trust of December 6, 1902, parcel numbered 1 in said mortgage being the parcel released as above stated.

Parcel No. 3. A certain parcel of land, situated on the easterly side of Commercial street in Braintree in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing on land now or late of John B. Allen on said Commercial street, and running northerly on said street to land now or late of Joshua Wilkins; thence turning and running easterly on land of said Wilkins by a stone wall to a junction of said stone wall with another stone wall; thence turning and running southerly by land formerly of Barnabas T. Loring to land of said Allen by said last mentioned wall; thence turning and running first westerly, then southerly, then westerly, then southerly, then westerly all on land now or late of the said Allen by stone walls to the point of beginning, and containing twenty (20) acres more or less.

Parcel No. 4. Also a certain parcel of land situated on the westerly side of said Commercial street in said Braintree and opposite the last described tract and bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing on land now or late of Robert Dickey on said Commercial street and running southerly on said Commercial street to Adams street; thence turning and running northwesterly on said Adams street to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the Fore River Ship & Engine Co., by deed dated January 7, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running northwesterly and bounded southwesterly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Co., three hundred fifty-three (353) feet; thence turning and running easterly and bounded northerly by said land now or late of Dickey to said Commercial street at the point of beginning. The two last described parcels of land are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by Francis M. Edwards, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said deeds, Book 965, page 134.

Parcel No. 5. Also a certain parcel of land situated in Braintree, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the southerly corner thereof on Elm street, at land conveyed by Birney C. Parsons to George E. Bruorton, by deed dated November 3, 1903, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 960, page 507, and running northwesterly along the said premises conveyed by said Parsons as aforesaid, seven hundred forty-two (742) feet, more or less, to land now or late of Mrs. Austin White; thence running northeasterly along said land now or late of said White, one hundred twenty-two (122) feet, more or less, to an angle; thence running southeasterly and bounded northeasterly by said land of White, about one hundred twelve (112) feet to an angle; thence turning and running northeasterly and bounded northwesterly by said land of White, about eighty (80) feet to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running southerly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company, about six hundred and sixty (660) feet, to said Elm street; thence turning and running along said Elm street to the point of beginning.

Parcel No. 6. Also a certain parcel of land situated in said Braintree, bounded northeasterly by said Commercial street; southeasterly by a private way formerly Elm street, which private way leads from said Elm street to said Commercial street; westerly by land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; northwesterly by land now or formerly of said White. The two parcels last above described are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by said Birney C. Parsons, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 955, page 136.

Parcel No. 7. A certain piece or parcel of land situated on the northeasterly side of Howard avenue, in that part of said Quincy known as Quincy Neck, bounded northwesterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of George J. Sargent, five hundred and seventy-one (571) feet, northeasterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of heirs of Noah Bosworth, one hundred and forty and four-tenths (140.4) feet, southeasterly by the land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of Malchionda, five hundred and sixty-one (561) feet, and southwesterly by Howard avenue, one hundred and forty-one (141) feet, being premises formerly of Noah Bosworth, deceased.

Parcel No. 8. All the line of railroad of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, extending from and including the yard of said Company in said Quincy to the line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in said Braintree, together with the land appurtenant and adjacent thereto belonging to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, and all rights and easements appurtenant thereto or used in connection therewith, and particularly the rights granted to the Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Kerby Stevens and Frederick H. Allen by deeds dated respectively December 31, 1903, and January 15, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 25, 1904, —subject, however, to the rights granted by said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to said Kerby Stevens by deed dated December 31, 1903, recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 26, 1904.

A portion of the premises to be conveyed is subject to a mortgage from Charles W. Pike to Albert H. Davenport dated November 14, 1902, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 934 page 545.

The conveyance will also be made subject to an easement granted by the Fore River Ship and Engine Company to the Old Colony Street Railway Company by deed dated January 30, 1904, to erect, operate and maintain upon certain terms, conditions, reservations and exceptions a pole line for the transmission of electricity and for telephones for the private use of said Railway Company along the route described as follows:—

Beginning at the South Shore Branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in Braintree, Massachusetts, thence extending northwesterly over land conveyed to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Sidney Coolidge by deed dated January 7th, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 965, page 137, to Adams street; thence crossing said Adams street and continuing northwesterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Elm street; thence crossing said Elm street and continuing northerly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Commercial street; thence crossing said Commercial street and continuing northeasterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to land now or formerly of one Patch.

The following parcel, which has been released from the lien of said mortgage or deed of trust, by instrument of release dated June 4, 1904, will be excepted from the conveyance:—

A certain parcel beginning on Commercial street at land now or late of John W. Ratcliffe and running westerly on said land one hundred and eight [108] feet to a stake on the margin of Factory Pond so called; thence turning and running northerly and northwesterly on a curved line along the margin of said pond four hundred and five [405] feet more or less to a stake on the margin of said pond situated twenty-five [25] feet from the centre line of the Fore River Railroad as now laid out; thence turning and running northeasterly eighty-six feet three inches [86 ft. 3 in.] to a stake on Adams street situated ninety-four [94] feet more or less from the center line of said railroad where it crosses the southerly side of Adams street; thence turning and running southeasterly on Adams street to Commercial street and southerly on Commercial street a total distance of four hundred ninety feet four inches [490 ft. 4 in.] to the point of beginning.

The conveyance will include, in addition to the property, rights, privileges and franchises above described, any property, rights, privileges and franchises not herein described which may at the time of sale be covered by said orginal mortgage or deed of trust of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company or any indenture to the Adams Trust Company supplemental thereto. The conveyance to the purchaser will be made without covenants, express or implied. Article XIII of said mortgage or deed of trust provides that said Fore River Ship & Engine Company will, upon request of the purchaser at foreclosure sale, make, execute and deliver to said purchaser a good and sufficient deed or deeds to confirm the title in said purchaser.

The said property will be sold as an entirety to the highest bidder, subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments and other liens, if any. No bid will be received from any person who shall not first deposit with the auctioneer, as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, the sum of Twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. Deposits so received from any unsuccessful bidders will be returned to them when the property shall be struck off, and the deposit so received from any successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price of the property sold. On the acceptance of any bid the purchaser shall forthwith pay to the auctioneer in addition to the amount of the deposit qualifying him to bid as above provided, the sum of Twenty five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. The purchaser shall within ten days from the date of sale pay to the Adams Trust Company as

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Miss Elsie Jones has returned from a lengthy visit in Maine.

Many Quincy horsemen are attending the races at Readville this week.

Dr. Francis Abele has returned from the veterinary convention at St. Louis.

Morris Litchfield of Wollaston is ushering, evenings, at the Castle Square theatre.

Miss Mary Spaulding of Ayer, Mass., is visiting Miss Louise Waterman of Wollaston.

Miss Elizabeth Seller has returned to her home in Woburn after a brief visit at the Point.

An entertainment and dance was held at the Quincy Yacht club house Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Foster of Pray street, who has been seriously ill, died at her home Tuesday noon.

Charlotte, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Perry of South street, is seriously ill.

Mrs. Forrest Mills and sister, Miss Craig of Arlington street, have returned from Marlowe, Mass.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith of Arlington street is spending a few days with Mrs. George Keith of Hull.

John P. S. Churchill, clerk of the district court, returned this morning from two weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Mary Wilson and sister of Hyde Park is spending a few days at her former residence on Beach street.

Contractor P. J. Williams is moving the parsonage of the Water street Presbyterian church, preparatory to its being enlarged.

F. W. Crooker, formerly of Quincy, is president of the Fitzwilliam, N. H., old home week association which celebrated on Tuesday.

The heavy explosions heard in the harbor Tuesday was caused by dynamite which was used to try and recover the body of the girl drowned Monday.

Firemen's Muster.

Quincy is well represented today at the gathering of red shirts in Taunton at the firemen's muster. Over 40 handtubs are present to contest for the prizes offered. This morning there was a grand parade with Battery F of the First Heavy Artillery acting as escort.

Four prizes are offered, namely: $200, $150, $100 and $50.

The winner of the first prize also keeps the silver torch for one year. The torch is now held by the Marblehead tub. The Conqueror and Actives of Weymouth, and Cochato of Braintree are among those present.

—Rudolph Seyler, a New York capitalist, has obtained from Brazil the concession of more than 20,000 square miles of land in the State Maranhao, extending more than one hundred miles along the ocean and back three hundred from the coast. There is now quite a rush of American capital to Brazil. A Western syndicate has gone down there to mine for gold, and a Chicago syndicate is locating on the river Jeguitin hauhua where there are diamonds as well as gold. Representatives of a New York syndicate are investigating the region along the river Minasgerais. A New Zealand syndicate has also recently gone to Brazil.

Yachting Party.

A very successful yachting party was carried out by several Quincy Point and Dorchester young people last Sunday.

The start was made from the Baker Yacht Basin Co.'s pier and headed for Nantasket Point where a landing was made, and all enjoyed a splendid luncheon which was furnished by the young ladies.

After enjoying the several amusement enterprises which abound at the Point, we all went aboard and started on our journey homeward.

We had a fine sail, as everything favored us, and at last rounded up at Harvey's pier, Houghs Neck.

Old "Cy Perkins," one of Quincy Point's well known young men, furnished the fun, not only for the party, but everyone with whom he came in contact. His droll remarks and actions were very characteristic of an old hayseed, and from now on he goes under the name of "Cy."

The skipper to whom full command was given was a Quincy Point young man, and he carried out his part of the program in such a manner as would do credit to any resident of "P" town.

Cy. Perkins,
Member of "Bingville Bugle."

The Rev. J. H. Whittaker.

We learn that the Rev. J. H. Whittaker so many years the pastor of the Memorial Congregational church of Atlantic has been this week elected to the pastorage of the Congregational church in Manchester-by-the-Sea. He will occupy the pulpit made vacant by the resignation of Rev. Walter H. Ashley.

Mr. Whittaker's many friends not in Atlantic only, but in all parts of Quincy will be most happy to learn of his good fortune and though his loss has been much felt in this community we congratulate the people of Manchester in having with them a man of Mr. Whittaker's sterling qualities. He preached in Atlantic seven years and for the past few months has been in Buffalo. He a graduate of Boston University school of Theology and of the University of Grenoble in France.

Immense Travel.

Steamer Ivernia from Liverpool and Queenstown is expected to arrive at Boston today with 2,300 immigrants. One of the largest cargoes of human freight that was ever consigned to the port of Boston.

At the very low steerage rate of $7.75 from Philadelphia to Liverpool, which the American line is advertising, the steamship company must carry the passenger at a heavy loss.

The passenger pays $7.75 to the agent of the line and the agent pockets $2 of this as his commission. The United States government demands a head tax of $2 for every immigrant and the steamship line pays this out of the $5.50 remaining. So for $3.50 the steamship line carries the steerage passenger a distance of 3000 miles, lodges him for nine days and furnishes him with twenty-seven meals.

THE ENGLISH PRIMATE.

Dr. Davidson, First Archbishop of Canterbury to Visit America.

The visit to this country of the archbishop of Canterbury, the Right Hon. and Most Rev. Dr. Randall Thomas Davidson, is an altogether unprecedented event. Never before has an occupant of the chair of Augustine and Thomas a Becket set foot in America. The visit is of additional interest and significance because of Dr. Davidson's personality and the motive of his visit. The trip which the English primate has undertaken is not simply a pleasure excursion, nor is its principal motive the acquiring of a better knowledge of America. The archbishop comes to this country primarily by way of courteous return of the visit of American bishops to the Lambeth conferences. But the visit is said to have a deeper significance than this. He is ardently desirous of closer union of the moral forces of the world, and he hopes to contribute something toward this result by his visit. He is a broad minded man and is democratic in his ways despite the ceremonious functions he is called on to observe.

Dr. Davidson is the ninety-fifth archbishop of Canterbury. He comes of an old Scottish family and was born in Edinburgh in 1848. He was educated at Oxford and in 1877 became chaplain and private secretary to the then archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Tait. This led to his marrying the archbishop's daughter, Edith, a beautiful and cultured woman who is an ideal mistress of Lambeth palace and noted for her charities. Dr. Davidson won a reputation as a hardworking bishop during his incumbency of the see of Rochester. He became archbishop of Canterbury in 1903.

GENERAL W. W. BLACKMAR.

New Commander In Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The new commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, Wilmon Whilldin Blackmar of Boston, was born at Bristol, Bucks county, Pa., in 1841. His family removed to Boston when he was a boy. He was fitting for college at the Phillips academy, Exeter, N. H., when the civil war broke out, and the young man lost no time in enlisting in the Union army. He was in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania cavalry and reached the rank of orderly sergeant of his company and was then commissioned a lieutenant and transferred to the First West Virginia veteran cavalry. On the field of Five Forks he carried the colors across a deep gully under heavy fire, and his brigade rallied around them and won the fight. He was promoted to the rank of captain for this act and was awarded a medal of honor by congress. He served as adjutant general of his brigade.

At the close of the war General Blackmar took up the study of law and graduated from the Harvard Law school. For ten years he was judge advocate general on the staff of the governor of Massachusetts, he has been post commander and judge advocate of the department of Massachusetts, G. A. R., and is junior vice commander of the Loyal Legion (Massachusetts) commandery. In 1900 he was a presidential elector on the Republican ticket. He was married in 1880 to Miss Helen R. Brewer.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR

Steam or Hot Water Heaters

you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

TO DISARM SHIPS

Voluntary Action by Russia Disposes of Muddle

DAMAGE TO THE DIANA

Would Take So Long to Make Repairs That Neutrality of France Might Be Questioned--Reports of Capture of Antse Fort at Port Arthur Not Verified, but May Be True

London, Aug. 25.—The correspondent of The Times at Shanghai, in a dispatch dated Aug. 24, 11:35 p. m., says that orders from Emperor Nicholas have been conveyed to Captain Reitzenstein commanding him forthwith to disarm the cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi and that "the flags on both vessels were lowered at 7 o'clock tonight."

The report that Russia is about to disarm voluntarily the Askold and Grozovoi at Shanghai, and the Diana at Saigon, receives point from the statement that the Diana is seriously damaged. It is intimated that the long time necessary to make her seaworthy suggests the raising of questions as to the neutrality of France, which the latter does not care to encounter. The dispatch indicates a very probable solution of the present difficulty. London evidently expects a peaceful and speedy settlement of the dispute.

The absence of dispatches from the far east leads to the belief, expressed editorially in the London newspapers, that important events are impending.

Reports of the capture of the Antse fort at Port Arthur are not verified. Chinese employed in war service under Stoessel's troops might well know the facts, and if they reached Chefoo might report the facts truthfully. There is no evidence, however, that these reports are trustworthy; all that can be said is that they are not improbable.

The Antse and Etse forts, with their dependent works, constitute what is known as the sector of Port Arthur's defenses. Their capture would probably make possible the taking of the Keekwan forts, comprising the second sector, to the eastward. The difficulty of extending the breach would depend partly upon how far the works on Golden hill command the rear of the second sector; this is not known, apparently, outside of Port Arthur.

The statement that two Japanese cruisers have silenced the forts east of Golden hill would, if true, show an entirely new display of effectiveness. The general impotence of warships in an attack on land fortifications is notorious, and is good ground for questioning the report. Such use of his warships is also contrary to Togo's practice of preserving his heavy ships. If the bombardment occurred, it is probable that any slackening of fire from the Russian forts was due to saving of ammunition or to a successful attack from the land side.

The Tsingtau report that Port Arthur was captured becomes more than ever improbable in the continued absence of confirmation. Correction of the report that Kuroki's troops had occupied Anshanshan leaves the situation about Liao Yang apparently much as it has been for three weeks past.

Long Death List Imminent

Tokio, Aug. 25.—The final assault on Port Arthur is imminent. Hundreds of Japanese guns continue to pour a destructive fire into the city and harbor, along the lines of forts and entrenchments, preparatory for the infantry assault. A number of Russian forts and batteries continue to be vigorous. The death roll will be heavily increased before they are captured.

Sevastopol Struck a Mine

Tokio, Aug. 25.—Further details of the disabling of the Russian battleship Sevastopol show that on Tuesday afternoon, while engaged in shelling the Japanese land forces from a position outside of Port Arthur, the battleship struck a mine and was disabled by the explosion. She was towed into Port Arthur by a tug.

Christening of the Czarevitch

St. Petersburg, Aug. 25.—The czarevitch was christened with great pomp. The baby was so shrouded in filmy lace, dainty flannels and a purple silk overmantle that it was almost impossible to distinguish the form as the metropolitan of St. Petersburg anointed its hands, breast and forehead with the mystical holy oil. But when the moment came to complete the immersion in the warm water of the font, the royal infant showed its humanity by a lusty yell, which was greeted with a murmur of approval as being a sign of luck and good augury for the future.

Many Trying to Leave Russia

Berlin, Aug. 25.—The number of Russian fugitives from military service entering Germany on their way to the United States and Great Britain increases daily and the German police authorities detain many and deliver them to the Russian frontier posts. The fugitives usually buy false passports, entitling them to leave Russia, but many risk their lives in escaping across the frontier, notwithstanding the vigilance of the frontier guards.

Gone to Sharon Springs.

Mr. N. B. Furnald was seventy-five years old yesterday, and is quite smart for one of his age. He is troubled some with rheumatism, and has gone to Sharon Springs, N. Y., with his son, Henry, for a few weeks. He thinks the water and baths at the springs help him.

Col. Drinkwater's Record.

Col. A. C. Drinkwater of Braintree is very proud of his old regiment, the 1st Maine cavalry. "By order of the secretary of war," said Col. Drinkwater, "the flag of the 1st Maine cavalry bears the names of three more battles than that of any other volunteer regiment in the civil war. It was one of the famous fighting regiments of the war, and its achievements on the battle fields of the rebellion were known to the military experts of Europe at that time."

It is not generally known that Col. Drinkwater was an inmate of Andersonville prison for five months, but he is among those brave, chivalrous spirits who do not think it necessary to keep the public informed of that fact or to join an association to keep alive the memories of those unhappy days.—Practical Politics.

END NOT YET.

Street Railway Company Pushing Matter of Transfer Frauds.

Supt. John T. Conway of the Old Colony street railway says that there are no new developments in the transfer frauds, but that the end was not yet. He further stated that the company had been robbed for some time in that manner, but that the officials had endeavored to put a stop to the custom by warning the men. In some instances some had been discharged. The swapping still continued, and it was determined to use drastic measures, and make an example of the next men caught. The arrests made by State Officers Scott and Dunham followed.

A dispatch from Boston states that over 100 conductors are under surveillance at the present time, and more arrests are expected as soon as State Police Officers Dunham and Scott collect sufficient evidence.

Inasmuch as 20 transfers make a dollar and 200 passengers are required to give the company a dollar profit, it is estimated that the company suffered losses of thousands of dollars.

Brockton Tubs Win.

The New England Veterans' League muster at Taunton on Wednesday was attended by 34 tubs. Only one, the Active of Weymouth, failed to appear. The attendance from Quincy was small.

At ten o'clock the companies with engines, bands and drum corps paraded through the main streets of the city and passed in review of Gov. Bates at the City hotel and thence to the fair ground.

The Enterprise and Hancock of Brockton, secured first and second prizes; Nonantum of Newton, third; Gen. Taylor of Everett, fourth.

It is estimated that 20,000 people witnessed the parade and about 5,000 attended the muster.

The boats participating in the run are: Claytonia, Commodore S. P. Wiley; Pocahontas, Vice Commodore F. C. Merrill; Romance, Capt. Frank Burgess; Goblin, Capt. Roy Lothrop; Brant, Capt. Joseph Fenno; Memento, Capt. Frank C. Dawes; Graylin, Capt. Fred Goss.

Hay—Shay.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Shay of Beach street, Wollaston, Wednesday evening, August 24th, when Miss Alda Orietta Shay was united in marriage to Mr. Theodore C. Hay, of Lynn.

The bride was attended by Miss Georgia Hay, a sister of the groom, as maid of honor, and Miss Daisy Wilson, of Dorchester, as bridesmaid. The best man was Mr. Charles Radd, of Boston; and the officiating clergyman was Rev. Albert Hart of Brockton.

The bride's gown was white French net trimmed with lace. She wore the bridal veil, and carried a bouquet of bride roses. There were many presents among which was a beautiful gold clock, presented by Mr. Richard McKay, of the Andrew J. Lloyd Company of Boston. After receiving the congratulations of their friends, the bridal couple left for a short tour, including a visit to the summer home of the groom, near Augusta, Me. Mr. and Mrs. Hay will reside in Wollaston, at the corner of Beach and Hancock streets.

Japanese Jottings.

The ingenuity of the farming in Japan may be inferred from the fact that the 45,000,000 inhabitants live almost entirely on the production of a cultivated area about one-third the size of Illinois.

The family of a dead Japanese soldier gets, roughly speaking, one-third the pay of his rank. This would give the widow of a private $1.25 a month; of a first lieutenant, $6.25; of a captain, $8.33, and to the widow of a colonel, $20 a month.

The Japanese Red Cross society is able to supply through its various branches 3,000 female nurses and 2,000 male nurses. Female nurses are not sent to the front, but undertake duty in Japan in the military and Red Cross hospitals in various parts of the country.

Base Ball.

In an uninteresting game at Ward Three playground on Wednesday afternoon, the Golden Rod club of West Quincy were defeated by the American Boys of South Quincy by a score of 6 to 4.

Michael's pitching was very effective, allowing the Golden Rods only 3 hits; their 4 runs being made on errors by Spargo, A. Morehouse and a wild throw by Abernitti. Donahue and O'Neil excelled for the losers and by snappy playing caught four of the Americans between the bases.

The Atlantic A. A. will play the Wellingtons at Dorchester on Saturday.

The Atlantic team has secured a strong battery and a good game is expected.

A large number of rooters will accompany the team, as they are enthusiastic over the prospects of beating the Wellingtons, who have not lost a game this year on their own grounds.

The batteries will be: Smith and Snow, for Wellingtons; Butler and Jackson, for Atlantics.

☞The latest bulletin of the Chicago board of health says that "no such healthful summer as this of 1904 appears in the history of the city." So the beef strike has done some good, after all.—Boston Record.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

There have been many visiting granite dealers from the west in town this month. They left quite a few orders.

We are having very fine weather. Everybody seems to enjoy it, even those at the mountains and the shore. All praise His goodness.

Dr. C. H. Reed of Westboro, claims his recent invention of a fender for trolley cars will prevent objects on the tracks getting under the car wheels. Let us hope so.

The H. P. Hood milk farm advertise by the real article in driving through the streets of Boston two Jersey heifers yoked to a tip cart filled with huge cans such as the company use to distribute the rich milk to their stores.

Excursion trains on the New York New Haven and Hartford Railroad are being well patronized. The excursion train from Hartford left Boston on its return the 23d at evening, with its eleven cars filled. Apparently all the passengers having seats however.

These beautiful August days and evenings are bringing many people to Atlantic and Squantum, there they seem to appreciate the attractiveness of the resorts, and wonder that greater selection is not given to them by the people of inland towns for objective points in a trolley trip.

The English press express surprise at the promptness with which American battle ships appear in the waters of Morocco, Turkey, or China, when any trouble is brewing. They have an idea that America is a great ways off, and that Republics proverbially act slowly. Both of these notions are mistakes. The Great Republic is very much alive, and her possessions extend half way around the globe.

President Roosevelt can see no good reason why mechanics employed in the Washington Navy Yard, who have half a day off on Saturday, should not be paid for that half day as well as clerks who are in the employ of the Government. At all events he has induced the comptroller of the Treasury to take his view of the matter and now people who work with their lands and brains in the District of Columbia will be treated on the same footing as those who work with their brains.

It is generally admitted that this year New York is a doubtful state, and the political fight will be as hot there as in any state in the Union. It has not yet been decided who will be the candidate for governor for either party, but it is understood that Mr. Root positively declines to run. Col. Lamont says the nomination has not yet been offered to him. Whoever runs for governor, neither party will surrender the state without a desperate effort to hold it. It is the Port Arthur of the situation.

The stupendous work of decorating Boston's buildings, etc., for the recent encampment of the G. A. R., manifest by the early commencement is further shown by the fact that the tired men of the New England Decorating Company and similar concerns from Providence, New York and Philadelphia, have just taken down the last of their beautiful American flags and bunting of red, white and blue festoons, and climbing into the vehicles containing the rolls and scrolls, have fallen asleep while the drivers whirled away to depots and store houses.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The American flag was never more universally respected than it is now or the power of the republic more sensibly felt everywhere. Why change? —Boston Record.

☞ Opening the World's fair on Sunday at half the regular rates doubtless takes off half the wickedness of doing business on that day.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ A rather astonishing reminder of the way the west grows up was furnished when an Oklahoma banker bid against the New York banking houses for the Philippine loan and won the contest.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ Candidate Davis leads the cotillion, carrying a Japanese lantern. He swings his partner in the dance with ease and grace; and he hopes to as easily and as gracefully swing his partner on the ticket.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ In view of the heavy losses accruing to street railway corporations through frauds and dishonesty in the transfer system, is it any wonder that the companies demur at adopting the scheme? People who consider themselves honest and who would resent a charge that they were theives and swindlers have no hesitation in defrauding a railway corporation out of their fares, and even fell justified in bragging of their shrewdness. They seem to think that the Lord will smile approvingly on this species of dishonesty.—Waltham Free Press.

☞ An ingenious author asserts that the length of a man's life may be determined by the number of pulsations he has strength to perform. Thus, allowing 70 years for the common age of man and 60 pulses in a minute for the common measure of pulses in a temperate person, the number of pulsations in his whole life would amount to 2,207,529,000; but if, by intemperance, he forces the blood into a more rapid motion, so as to give 75 pulses in a minute, the number of pulses would be completed in 50 years; consequently his life would be reduced 20 years.—Lynn Item.

☞ The eclipse event announced in some of our exchanges to take place Aug. 30, has been postponed until September 9, as it will be found very expensive and inconvenient to get up a total or even a partial eclipse without the aid of the moon. The moon will be between the Earth September 9, and can be of service in getting up an eclipse. August 30, the moon will have an engagement in another part of the heavens and cannot take part in such an affair. Therefore the eclipse cannot come off on the date announced, but has been postponed ten days to Sept. 9.—Gloucester Times.

☞ There seems to be a decided shock experienced because it is discovered that naturalization papers have been fraudulently obtained in New York for the use of aliens who found American citizenship of some tangible value to them in a foreign country. Of course such proceedings are a crime against the laws and deserve to be punished, for such bogus citizenship is apt to involve the country in trouble. But really how serious is the offense compared with that which provides naturalization papers fraudulently for aliens who are to remain here in this country, an offense which is probably committed in every large city in the country, and at which the politicians of both parties are inclined to wink if the votes secured are on their side?—Haverhill Gazette.

PLANS OF PACKERS

Want Federal Troops to Aid Them at South Omaha

COMPLAIN ABOUT COURTS

Claim That They Have Been Denied Justice by Local Judges and Will Take All Strike Cases to Federal Courts

Omaha, Aug. 25.—T. J. Mahoney, one of the attorneys for South Omaha packing interests, states that efforts are being made on the part of his clients and their associates to have federal troops stationed about Omaha and along the railroads leading to Omaha, over which the packers are running, morning and evening, a chartered train for the accommodation of their present workmen, and to take all strike cases to the federal courts.

The packers' representatives claim this course has been determined for several reasons, on of which is that they cannot get justice in South Omaha.

Washington, Aug. 25.—In the absence of any official intimation that the aid of the federal government is to be evoked at Omaha in behalf of the packing interests, the responsible officials of the administration in Washington prefer not to discuss what course might be followed if such a request comes, except that it would depend altogether on the showing that might be made.

It is pointed out very clearly by them, however, that a request for federal assistance of the character referred to must come from the legislature of the state or from the governor. In that event the matter would be promptly taken up for consideration.

An exception to this might be permitted in the event that the marshal of a court was unable to enforce any order that might be obtained as a result of steps taken by the packing interests, in which case that official could call on the department of justice for whatever assistance he might need to put the mandate of the court into execution.

May Be Two Labor Parades

New York, Aug. 25.—Philip Weinseimer, who is under indictment on charges of extortion, has consented to lead the Labor day parade next month. Efforts are being made, however, by opponents of Weinseimer to organize a separate parade. Last year's parade was led by Sam Parks, who has since died in Sing Sing prison, where he was serving a sentence for a charge similar to that on which Weinseimer has been indicted.

End of Hartford Strike

Hartford, Aug. 25.—The strike of the building trades in this city, which has been on for over two weeks, was settled late last night, but on what terms the master masons and members of the bricklayers and plasterers' unions refuse to state. The strike was the result of the demand of a workman who put in a bill for time alleged to have been lost while waiting for his pay envelope.

Aldermen as Peacemakers

Chicago, Aug. 25.—The city authorities are to make a second effort to settle the stockyards strike. At a meeting of the city council last night a resolution was passed empowering Mayor Harrison to appoint a committee of 11 aldermen who are to make it their business to bring about a settlement. The committee was appointed by the mayor.

Maritime Interests Prostrated

Marseilles, Aug. 25.—The strike of sailors and dock laborers here, which has continued intermittently for two years, has now become acute. About 18,000 workers of all grades refuse to load, unload or operate ships. The 16 companies carrying on the principal commerce of the Mediterranean formally decided that it was useless to continue their service and have begun the withdrawal of all merchant ships.

Unions With Big Bank Accounts

Washington, Aug. 25.—The state department has received a report on the trades unions in German from Consul General Guenther at Frankfort. The largest fund on hand is that of the Printers' union, about $1,000,000. Next comes the Masons' union with about $420,000.

Man Killed In Labor Riot

Havana, Aug. 25.—In a collision between 300 wharf laborers and strikers one man was killed and three were wounded.

At Least One Wreck

St. Johns, Aug. 25.—Schooner Selina has been lost off Labrador. Four of the crew went down with the vessel. It is feared that there have been other disasters in those waters, as a heavy gale has been sweeping the coast for the past week.

To Remain With Parent Body

Portland, Me., Aug. 25.—The national council of the Daughters of Liberty has concluded its sessions here. It was voted not to break away from the United Order of American Mechanics.

ANIMALS MUTILATED

Two Cities Offer Rewards For Capture of Vicious Slasher

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 25.—Mayor Higgins and the board of aldermen of this city last night offered a reward of $500 for the capture of such information as will lead to the capture of the persons or person who have been mutilating valuable horses and dogs in this city. Mayor Humes and the board of aldermen of Central Falls, R. I., a neighboring city, have offered a reward of $250 for a similar purpose.

The entire community has been aroused over the fiendish acts of some unknown person or persons, and there is not a stable in either city that is not now guarded day and night for the protection of the stock. Nine horses and two dogs have recently been found horribly slashed with a knife or some sharp instrument. A fast trotting horse belonging to Edward Moore was found with its hind legs hobbled and its rear quarters fearfully mutilated. Two horses have died.

The police have no clue and it is hoped the rewards offered may lead some one to give information. Maxmillian Bordeau was arrested in Central Falls for mutilating a dog, which was found dead in his boarding place, and sentenced to 11 months' imprisonment. Since Bordeau has been in jail there has been no further cutting of dogs, but the fiendish work upon the horses has continued.

Girl Fooled With Revolver

New York, Aug. 25.—Pasquale Aquino, 16 years old, while walking on a street here, was shot and instantly killed by Sadie Montford, 15 years old. The girl had picked up a revolver and was standing before a window to examine it when she accidentally pulled the trigger and the bullet struck Aquino, passing through his brain. The girl was arrested and fainted three times on the way to the police station. She was released on $1000 bail.

Dead at Age of 125

Washington, Ga., Aug. 25.—Caesar Booker, believed to be 125 years old, died here last evening. He came to Georgia 90 years ago as a slave from Virginia. His memory of events of over a century ago was good and indubitably correct. Not a house of the present Washington was built when Booker was purchased by a Wilkes county farmer. Caesar leaves six children, the oldest of whom lives near Thomson, Ga., and is 96 years old.

Barry Held For Grand Jury

Boston, Aug. 25.—John Barry, manager of the defunct North American Trust, is held for the next term of the grand jury. His mother went security for him in the sum of $2000. Francis C. Webster, the cashier of the trust, was dismissed, at the request of Assistant United States District Attorney Garland. Barry is held on the charge of using the United States mails in the operation of a fraudulent scheme similar to a lottery.

Pension Statistics

Washington, Aug. 25.—The annual report of Pension Commissioner Ware, covering the fiscal year ended June 30, 1904, shows that during the year the costs of maintaining the pension system has been $14,712,787. The appropriation for this purpose was $146,419,296. During the year 47,374 persons were added to the pension rolls and 49,157 persioners were dropped. The total number of pensioners on the rolls is 994,762.

Crack Shots From New York

Fort Riley, Kan., Aug. 25.—The first event of the national rifle competition, the national team match, closed with the New York National Guard team having the highest score for the three days' shooting. The navy team was in second place, army infantry third, army cavalry fourth and marine corps fifth. The District of Columbia National Guard team was sixth.

Lawton Drops Out

Atlanta, Aug. 25.—Colonel Lawton has resigned as president and member of the court of inquiry appointed to investigate the conduct of the state militia in the Statesboro trouble, and Lieutenant Colonel Brooks has been appointed in his stead by Governor Terrell. Lawton gave ill-health as the reason for his resignation.

Atlantic an Easy Winner

Newport, R. I., Aug. 25.—Wilson Marshall's three-masted schooner Atlantic, one of the largest sailing yachts afloat, was the winner of the Brenton's Reef cup race, defeating her two competitors, the Resolute by 9h. 19m. 32s. and the Endymion by 16h. 30m. 52s. The Atlantic covered the 264 miles in 40h. 39m. 21s.

Stole $1100 on Bogus Telegrams

Atlanta, Aug. 25.—J. T. Laney, aged 19, formerly receiving clerk of the Western Union Telegraph company, at Dallas, was arrested here on a telegram from the company in Dallas. Laney admitted that he and a confederate, whose name he gave as Black, had stolen $1100 on bogus telegrams.

Raisin Trust Formed

New York, Aug. 25.—It is learned in the wholesale grocery market that a combination of all the leading raisin seeding concerns on the Pacific coast has been formed to control the output and regulate prices. The combination has a capital stock of $1,000,000.

Foreigners Flee From Paraguay

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 25.—The panic at Ascunsion, capital of Paraguay, is indescribable. Foreigners in all parts of the country are leaving, under the protection of the diplomatic corps. The belief is growing that the government must yield.

CITY BREVITIES.

Master Freddie Baker is enjoying his vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Bird of School street are visiting friends in Brockton and Bridgewater.

Several of the yachts of the Wollaston Yacht club are participating in a run to Plymouth.

William Corcoran of the Central Fire station, who was recently kicked by a horse is able to be about on crutches.

Among the recent patents granted was one to Arthur Whittier of Wollaston, a conductor for electric railways.

Mrs. William Ross and daughter of Independence avenue are spending their vacation in Middleboro where Mr. Ross will join them later on.

D. Edward McDonald who was seriously injured by being kicked by a horse at the Quincy Beef Co.'s stable is on the rapid road to recovery. He expects to come home from the hospital Monday.

WEDDING PRESENTS.

Linen Is Something That Is Always Sure to Be Appreciated.

A writer in the House Beautiful has many sensible things to say on the subject of wedding presents. Every married woman remembers a number of absolutely useless or worse than useless presents sent her by her well meaning friends. One bride recently received no less than eight clocks. Her modest little apartment boasting only six rooms, kitchen included, she had to put away some of them, and this is embarrassing when the donors call. In the articles mentioned it is wisely suggested that some account be taken of the plans of the prospective bride. If she is not going to keep house refrain from sending her cut glass and china. Furniture will be a nuisance in a boarding house. Make the gift a personal one. A bit of old jewelry, a piece of lace, books, etc.; Russian brass jars, candlesticks or a samovar is sure to be appreciated. There are many delightful bits of porcelain to be had. If silver is sent, better let it be knives and forks, for the simple reason that nearly every one else will send spoons. Best of all, choose odd pieces, little pitchers and sugar bowls, tea caddies, strainers, nut and bonbon dishes. Avoid sending pictures unless you know the taste of the recipients. Linen is sure to be appreciated. No bride ever has too much.

BEAUTY DON'TS.

Don't walk five miles one day and stay at home all the next.

Don't shut your bedroom window. Fresh air is necessary for health.

Don't eat your meals quickly. This causes indigestion and a red nose.

Don't wash your face in hot water. This encourages superfluous hair.

Don't read till midnight. One hour's sleep before 12 is worth five afterward.

Don't get in the habit of always smiling. It brings wrinkles round the mouth and eyes.

Don't expect physic and tonics to keep you well if you neglect the laws of health and hygiene.

Don't dry your face in a hurry. A quick, anyhow rub coarsens the skin and injures its beauty.

Don't experiment on your skin with different creams and powders. Find good ones and stick to them.

Children's Noses.

One of the most prominent physicians in town has been giving me a bit of homely advice for the benefit of mothers.

"If children were taught to blow their noses properly," says he, "the work ear specialists have to do would be reduced by half at least. Next to learning how to gargle the knowledge of how to blow the nose without injuring the ears is the most important thing a child can be taught. The violent blowing of the nose when a child has a cold is very likely to strain the drums of the ears and to set up painful troubles which frequently result in permanent deafness. Every child and every grown person, too, for that matter, should be taught to blow one nostril at a time only. In this way the ear drum is not endangered. It isn't an elegant thing to include in the infant curriculum, but the child who learns it will be spared a great deal of pain and will be far less likely to have its hearing impaired."—Washington Post.

Laundry Logic.

There are many substances which may be added to starch to help produce a luster. Among these substances are sugar, salt, borax, spermaceti and paraffin wax. I have found paraffin wax and salt very good. Make the starch in this manner: Mix one tablespoonful of starch with four tablespoonfuls of cold water and pour on this three quarts of boiling water. Boil for twenty minutes, then add one teaspoonful of salt and paraffin wax half the size of a nutmeg. Stir until the wax is dissolved, then cool and strain through cheesecloth. Have the table linen wrung dry and work well in the starch. Pass through the wringer and dry in the sun. When dry make very damp and roll in a damp cloth.—Ladies' Home Journal.

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

Seaconnet Mills at Fall River Will Stand by Agreement

NO BREAK BY OWNERS

Renewal of Speculation In Cotton and Reports of Disheartening Condition of Trade Strengthens Determination to Keep Mills Closed

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 25.—The discussion about the probable starting of the Seaconnet mills has been brought to an end. The directors have decided that it would be better for the Seaconnet mills to follow the policy of the majority and not try to open until the executive committee of the Manufacturers' association deemed such a movement prudent for all the mills. Mr. Cunneen, the agent, has fallen in with their suggestion and will not try to start alone.

With this element of doubt removed, the officers of the Cotton Manufacturers' association are firmer today than they have ever been in the belief that there will be no break in the ranks of the signers to the wage agreement. The renewal of speculation in cotton has further added to the difficulties in the way of the manufacturers who might care to run and today the feeling in favor of keeping the mills closed is stronger than it has been at any time since the strike began.

Treasurers who have just returned from New York report a disheartening condition of trade there insofar as the local mills are concerned. Jobbers say the depression has now reached the retailers of goods throughout the country and they are buying only in the most conservative way, save in the cases where special drives are being made to unload stocks which have been unprofitable to the manufacturer.

The printers report a little better trade, but not enough better to warrant them reopening their plants to run in full. These treasurers say they do not look for anything like a demand above the normal trading of months past until well beyond the middle of September, and they are fearful that the cotton speculation will ruin even that hope.

Law Must Be Respected

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Postmaster General Payne may possibly be arrested here. Justice Hurley says that if it is shown to him that Payne had, as reported, treated one of the court subpoaenas with scorn and refused service from Constable Simon, an attachment will be issued for his arrest on the charge of contempt of court. Payne is wanted in court as a witness in the suit instituted by S. G. Brabrock against Senator Depew because of Depew's supposed connection with a publishing company which figures in Brabrock's case.

Sensational Story Denied

Rome, Aug. 25.—The statement circulated in the United States that 200 tourists had a narrow escape from death while climbing Mount St. Bernard and that rescuers were led to them by dogs probably had its origin in the fact that about 100 tourists were in the St. Bernard monastery when heavy snow began to fall and they considered it prudent to remain there. They received the most cordial treatment from the monks and were at no time in danger.

Suit Against Mercantile Agency

New York, Aug. 25.—Thomas N. McCauley, formerly president of the International Mercantile agency, has brought suit against the International Mercantile agency for $54,220.60 and interest at the legal rate from Dec. 26, 1903, and a writ of attachment was issued by Justice Davis and served on Treasurer Sterling. The suit is brought to recover money which McCauley claims that he advanced to the company while he was its president.

Fatal Result of Card Game

Boston, Aug. 25.—Edward Murray, the sailor who was assaulted with a hatchet by William Phillips, a fellow-seaman on board the schooner Eleanor A. Percy, as the result of a quarrel over a game of cards, died at a hospital here. The charge against Phillips will probably be changed to manslaughter.

Unknown Man Found Dead

Webster, Mass., Aug. 25.—The body of a man apparently about 45 years old, 5 feet 9 inches in height, weight about 160 pounds, was found in some bushes on the outskirts of this town. It had lain where found apparently about four weeks. There was no mark of violence.

Columbine Again Afloat

St. Johns, Aug. 25.—The British gunboat Columbine, one of the vessels of the squadron patrolling the Newfoundland fisheries, which struck on a rock in Green bay, has been re-floated and will be brought here and docked for repairs. The vessel sustained serious damage.

Fire Followed Probable Collision

Portland, Me., Aug. 25.—Steamer North Star, from New York, reports that at noon yesterday she passed schooner Samos, abandoned and on fire, burned nearly to the water's edge and broken spars attached, showing that a collision had probably taken place.

"FINAL WORD SPOKEN"

Root Is Positively Out of the New York Gubernatorial Race

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 25.—"My final word has been spoken. That I am to be considered in any sense in connection with the New York governorship is out of the question." Elihu Root made this statement to a representative of the press last night.

Accompanying Chairman Cortelyou, Mr. Root came to consider with the president the latter's letter of acceptance of the nomination and to discuss with him various matters relating to the national campaign. New York politics will naturally be considered during the visit of Mr. Roosevelt's campaign manager and his trusted friend, but assurance is given that no determination will be reached regarding the candidate for the gubernatorial or any other nomination. While it is known that the conference is important, it is not deemed desirable that its details should be made public.

Chairman Cortelyou expressed satisfaction at the progress being made in the campaign work, but said he had nothing at this time for publication.

Cannon on Political Outlook

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Speaker Cannon is in consultation with the leaders at Republican headquarters. Speaking of the political outlook, he said: "Our main effort will be to get the vote out. In Vermont, for instance, the only question is whether the majority will be 20,000 or 35,000." Being asked about the outlook for the house of representatives he replied that the indications are for a closer vote there than on the electoral ticket. He expressed the opinion that the labor complications would not affect the situation.

Parker Ticket Endorsed

New York, Aug. 25.—Chairman Taggart received a dispatch from Senator Newlands of Nevada saying that the Democrats of that state had endorsed Parker and Davis and nominated a strong state ticket.

CONDITION IMPROVED

Immediate Danger In Senator Hoar's Sickness Is Averted

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 25.—The bulletin last night from the home of Senator Hoar was as follows:

"Senator Hoar has had a more comfortable day. The throat and lungs are not causing trouble. He has taken a little more nourishment. There is prospect of a good night."

Dr. Gilman, Senator Hoar's physician, issued soon afterwards the following medical survey of the case:

"The condition of the lungs which caused alarm has improved materially during the last three days and immediate danger has apparently been averted. Changes in the heart and other important organs have been marked for some years, and these changes, together with the exhaustion following a long and severe attack of lumbago, made recovery uncertain."

Bridal Couple In Runaway

Wakefield, Mass., Aug. 25.—Rice and tin cans showered on bride and groom while in a hack en route for a train to bear them away on their honeymoon resulted in a runaway accident late last evening which may prove fatal to Coachman Bisbee, who has a fractured skull and fractured right leg, sustained by being thrown from his seat. Both Mr. and Mrs. Eaton were inside the vehicle during the run of nearly a mile. Before the animals were stopped Mrs. Eaton became hysterical from fright. The honeymoon has been postponed, as Mrs. Eaton is under a doctor's care.

Consuela S Took Big Stake

Readville, Mass., Aug. 25.—Consuela S won the Massachusetts stake, the richest event on the harness turf this year, in five fiercely contested heats on the track here. The stake was for trotters eligible to the 2:10 class last April, and was valued at $15,000. Consuela S won the three final heats after the first had been captured by George G and the second had gone to Dr. Strong. The talent picked Dr. Strong to win, making him an almost even favorite against the whole field of 12 horses.

Launch Sunk and Woman Drowned

Boston, Aug. 25.—The 35-foot naphtha launch Catherine, containing Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wing of New York city and Albert W. Barnes of Everett, was run down and sunk in the harbor last evening by the East Boston ferryboat Hugh O'Brien, and Mrs. Wing was drowned. The two men were considerably cut by the splinters from the launch and narrowly escaped death, but were rescued by the crew of a tugboat.

Fatal Elevator Accident

Boston, Aug. 25.—Patrick Mulvaney, employed at the public library, had been running the elevator last evening during the regular man's absence at supper, and upon the latter's return attempted to explain some trouble with the mechanism. He partially entered the elevator when it descended rapidly, carrying him against the wall with fatal result. He was 50 years old.

Found Shot In Woods

Barre, Vt., Aug. 25.—Edward J Badger was found lying in the woods with a bullet wound in his left side He is not expected to recover. He had told his wife that he was going out hunting, but the only firearm he took was a 38-calibre revolver. The wound in his side was caused by a bullet from a 38-calibre revolver and the shooting is unexplained.

Three Banks In Liquidation

Warren, R. I., Aug. 25.—Three of the five national banks of this town, which, it was announced some weeks since, have come under the control of the Industrial Trust company of Providence, have gone into voluntary liquidation. The banks taking this action are the National Warren, the National Hope and the First National.

Submarine Eluded Squadron

Newport, R. I., Aug. 25.—There was a sham battle attack in Narragansett bay between the ships of the north Atlantic training squadron and the submarine torpedo boat Shark, in which the latter succeeded in reaching the flagship Minneapolis without being detected. Had it been actual warfare the big vessel would have been sunk.

Big Robbery at Old Orchard

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 25.—Watches, rings and other jewelry to the value of $4000 were stolen from the rooms of the Misses Mabel and Ruby Shaw and Misses Ellen and Annabel Holt, all of Ithaca, N. Y., and guests at the Dawson house. The police are looking for a recent guest of the hotel.

Blackmar a Guest at Reunion

Weirs, N. H., Aug. 25.—Grand Army day at the reunion of the New Hampshire Veterans' association drew 5000 people here. General Blackmar, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., was welcomed by a salute of 17 guns. The campfire was presided over by Commander Kent.

Paymaster Has Disappeared

Webster, Mass., Aug. 25.—Carl R. Dietrich, many years paymaster in the Slater woolen mills, left Webster a week ago without notifying his friends or employers. He had been suffering from nervous trouble. Dietrich is 57 years old. There is no trouble with his accounts.

Aged Man Minus a Foot

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 25.—Person Noyes of Lowell, aged 75, while attempting to board a Lowell bound car here last evening fell under the wheels and his left foot was crushed. He was removed to a hospital, where the foot was amputated.

Fifty Years' Change

[Original.]

In 1848 Professor Carl Gottlieb of the University of Bonn was engaged upon different methods for an indefinite prolongation of life in a comatose state. There was at the time a student in the university, an American, Madison Curtice, who assisted the professor in these experiments. Curtice never returned to America; indeed he disappeared completely from the world.

After Professor Gottlieb's death his descendants continued to occupy his chair and the paternal mansion as well. In the cellar of the mansion was a door marked, "Open in 1898." When that date came round Professor Herman Gottlieb, a grandson of Carl Gottlieb, was in possession of both the chair and the house. He opened the door, found an oblong box, took out a mummy and proceeded, under written instructions long kept in the family, to resuscitate it. This is all that ever leaked out about the matter, and the Gottliebs never would acknowledge any truth in it at all.

One summer evening in 1898 a young man arrived at an American city and made his way to his former home. He found it a beer saloon. With a sigh he sank into a chair at one of the tables and called for a mug of ale. When the proprietor handed it to him the young man begged him to bring one for himself. This he did and the stranger questioned him.

"Did you ever hear of the Curtice family, once leaders in this place?"

"Nein."

"Who are leaders now?"

"De pig men?"

"Yes, the leaders."

"Mike Finegan is de piggest?"

"Mike Finegan? Our family butcher was Mike Finegan."

"Yah. De grandfader vas a butcher. He vent to Kansas and killed hogs, a pig lot of hogs. Dat made him a ferry pig man. Von vat kills twenty hogs is not much. Von vat kills 200,000 hogs is a pig man."

The stranger, wondering, sipped in silence.

"De Finegans are pig people now," continued the proprietor. "Udder people can't touch 'em. Got blenty country places, yachts und such dings."

An hour later the stranger appeared before the palatial residence of the Finegans in the center of a great private park. Dinner had just been finished and several men in evening dress were smoking on the piazza. A group of women were sitting near. The stranger mounted the steps, hat in hand, and addressed the men.

"Sirs," he said, "after many years' absence I have returned to my native land. When I left here my father, Munroe Curtice, occupied the position which is now occupied by your family—the Finegans. I would fain take my position in society and humbly crave the boon of an introduction. I can assure you of my respectability by stating that I am related to two presidents, my father having been named for one, I for another."

The ladies held fans before their faces to conceal their smiles. One of the gentlemen invited the stranger to take a seat on the veranda.

"You must excuse me," he said, "for not remembering your family since they have not been known here since I came into the world. You must have been born abroad or you would know that marked changes have come over this country. It now requires wealth to keep up a position."

"I have all that a bachelor of good family requires. Though my paternal estates have been lost to me, half a century ago a small sum was invested for me in Germany and it now produces $3,500 a year."

There was an audible titter from the ladies. The gentlemen turned their heads away.

"The incomes of the bachelors of our acquaintance," said the host, "vary from $20,000 to $10,000,000 a year."

The stranger looked disconcerted.

"May I ask," he said presently, "if any of the old families are now leaders in society?"

"We are as old as any. You must know that the leaders of the time you speak were not so influential as those who lead today. At that time few if any noble foreign alliances had been made. Now there are many. My sister is Duchess of Donemonegal."

Again Mr. Curtice was thrown "flat-a-back." He was too well bred to show his astonishment and pushed on to avoid doing so.

"Perhaps I misunderstand the customs of these times," he said. "Half a century ago a Curtice had but to mention his name and all doors were opened to him, or where he needed introduction it was given to him. Desiring to see something of those who have taken the places of the leaders of that day, I would humbly beg you to present me. First I would pay my respects to your lady."

At this the women arose and went into the house, screening their faces as they did so.

"The term lady," said the host, "is now used in America for saleswomen and laundresses. In society we are men and women, at least to each other. But you must excuse me, sir. We are to have a few friends to play bridge whist with us this evening, and I must leave you. Happy to have seen you and regret my inability to serve you."

The gentlemen all rose and went into the house, leaving the astonished Mr. Curtice a picture of confusion.

That night, in a chamber over the beer saloon that had been visited by the stranger on his arrival, his dead body was found. He had begun a letter headed, "In my own room," but had only written a few words. Since he was unknown he was buried in the potter's field.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. Thyng of Steadman avenue is entertaining her sister.

Mr. Sam Kingsbury returned home Wednesday, from Chicago.

There was quite a brisk grass fire on the shore of Town river on Wednesday.

Quincy labor organizations are arranging to take part in the parade on Labor day.

Charles Crane left this morning for the cape. He made the trip on the electric cars.

Mrs. Lucinda Thayer of Union street, Braintree, is the guest of her sister Mrs. Jonathan Paine, Baxter street.

Mr. and Mrs. James Donovan and family, formerly of Quincy, have gone for a two weeks' visit to New York.

The breaking down of an express team on Hancock street Wednesday evening delayed cars fifteen minutes.

Mrs. Mary J. Milford of Kent street has gone to St. Louis for two months to visit her brother and friends and also to see the World's Fair.

The Misses Helen E. Reardon, Sadie Monahan and Elizabeth Riley, three popular West Quincy young ladies, leave today for a few weeks' visit at York Beach, Maine.

North Andover has accepted the offer of Hon. Moses T. Stevens to furnish the site for a public library to cost less than $20,000. An offer recently made by Andrew Carnegie was rejected.

—The meagre police force of Winchester seem powerless to prevent the lawless acts of the band of yeggmen which, since Aug. 8, has been guilty of 16 different breaks, at the rate of one break a day in that town, and the police reluctantly admit that not the slightest clue has yet come to their hands that throws any light on the identity of the bold robbers.

TODAY'S COURT.

Hanow Carlow was fined $5 for speeding an automobile at Milton.

John Carney was sent to the State farm for being a tramp at Braintree.

Joseph O'Connor was sent to the House of Correction for thirty days for drunkenness at Randolph.

Frank Galvin, Charles Carlson and Frank Anderson were arraigned for assault on Louis Warshaw at Quincy. Cases continued until next Thursday.

Frederic E. Nicols was fined $5 for speeding an automobile at Milton.

BRAINTREE.

Miss Elsie Stoddard who has just resigned her position in the post office, is enjoying a vacation in Maine.

Muriel Cobb has been visiting Mrs. Frank Roberts, at her Summer Cottage, Sea View.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Young and son Standish of Vine street returned Saturday, from a week's stay at Green Harbor.

Miss Agnes Wills celebrated her twenty-second birthday by taking a trip to Kennebunkport, Maine. She was accompanied by Miss L. C. Hollis of Washington street, they expect to be away two weeks.

George Kingsbury, N. Jackson Kingsbury, and Miss Grace, returned Wednesday from Tamworth, N. H.

Miss Ada Cobb left town Monday, for Ogunquit, Maine, where she expects to meet Miss Helen Hewes, and spend her two weeks' vacation.

W. C. Harding returned Tuesday from his two weeks' trip to Sharon, Conn., and Longmeadow. The Misses Thomas who had charge of his house on Hollis avenue during his absence, returned the same day to their home on Stedman avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Corthell have gone to Haine's Falls, N. Y.

Rev. F. W. Burrows and wife have been entertaining friends from Washington.

Mrs. Tristam Newell of Hollis avenue has gone to Hyannis for a short visit.

Harry Young of East Bridgewater has been spending a few days with his brother, Mr. G. S. Young.

Fight for Life on Submarine.

A story of a battle for life, 120 feet under the sea, in a submarine boat last Monday, reached Newport from the torpedo station yesterday.

Lieutenant Charles P. Nelson, U. S. N., and Lieutenant Lloyd Shapley, U. S. N., and a crew of eight men had the thrilling experience in the submarine boat Porpoise.

The Porpoise went out for drill and general maneuvres Monday afternoon and when she reached the scene of the tests she was submerged for a trip 20 feet below the surface.

The crew closed the valves to let sufficient water into the trimming tanks, but for some reason the boat kept on sinking until she had reached a depth of 120 feet and lay on the bottom.

The work of blowing out the tanks to raise her was begun, and although the tanks were emptied the boat failed to rise.

Other exhaust valves were opened, but the heavy pressure of water burst them and the situation became critical.

Moreover there was a leak at the torpedo tube forward and about the bilges of the boat, and for half and hour the men worked the hand pumps.

Great was their effort and steady were their nerves under the trying and dangerous, condition, and their labor told, for after a while the Porpoise began to rise and was soon afloat.—Boston Post.

The First Clock.

The first piece of genuine mechanism the modern world saw was the invention of a Moor.

Culebra.

Culebra, the island twenty-five miles west of Porto Rico which has been strongly fortified by the United States, commands the Anegada passage, which is used by all European commerce with the isthmus of Panama, more effectually than Gibraltar commands the entrance to the Mediterranean.

The Sun.

If the sun were hollow it could hold 500,000 globes the size of our earth, and an eye capable of viewing 10,000 square miles an hour would require fifty-five years to see all its surface.

Mice That Waltz.

Japanese waltzing mice are amusing little creatures. The waltzing consists of a rapid revolving motion, something like that of a dog trying to catch its own tail. Occasionally they perform in pairs, turning with great rapidity. The habit exhibits itself in the young soon after they begin to run about.

Eau de Cologne.

When the originator of the genuine eau de cologne died, aged eighty, he gave his secret to his nephew and heir. Since 1709 only ten persons have seen the recipe, which is kept in a box treble locked.

A Real Lake of Fire.

The greatest natural wonder of Hawaii, if not in the entire world, is Lake Dana, or Dana lake, a body of molten lava ten miles in circumference. To the sightseer the surface of this wonderful lake appears as if it were a sea of redhot water dashing against the cliffs which surround it on all sides to a height averaging 100 feet.

MILTON.

Rev. Theodore I. Reese has received a call to St. Stephens church at Lynn. Milton people of all denominations express the wish that he remain in Milton.

E. J. Tinker's store, which has been closed for a week owing to financial difficulties, is to be reopened next week.

Paul Babcock of New Orleans has been in town this week.

The family of Josiah Babcock have gone to West Ossipee, N. H., where they will be joined later by Mr. Babcock.

The Congregational and Baptist churches which have been closed for the summer will resume services the first Sunday in September.

Mr. and Mrs. George Skinner have the sympathy of their friends, in the loss of their young son, who died last Saturday.

Services in the new church of the Mission of Our Saviour were held for the first time last Sunday. They were conducted by the rector Rev. T. I. Reese, assisted by Rev. H. Evan Cotton formerly of Quincy. All of the services were very largely attended.

Paul Richardson has gone to Kittery Point, Me.

The School Committee have received word from Emery L. Mead that he has decided not to withdraw his resignation as master of the High school. The Committee are now considering a number of applications for the position.

The ladies of the Milton Relief Corps contributed twenty loaves of cake for the Grand Army reception last week.

EAST BRAINTREE.

A lawn social was held on the lawn of the M. E. church on Tuesday evening and in spite of the coolness of the evening, proved a financial success.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Hussey are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hussey of New York City.

Mr. Leon and Miss Grace Collins returned Sunday from their two weeks' vacation spent in Vermont.

Louis F. Bates has purchased the boat house owned by C. O. Miller.

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $20,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

SEEING THE FAIR IN DETAIL

Mosquito Display From Jersey—Classified Among the Fishes—Jersey Has Spent Thousands Upon a Pest That Is Universal and Generously Tips Off the World With Her Knowledge—The Riches of Haiti — Island Seeking American Capital—A Nation of Good People, Says Commissioner Romaine.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE BY MARK BENNITT.]

The mosquito never had such honor since the world began as he has now at the world's fair. In the great Palace of Foresty, Fish and Game, amid the profoundest of exhibits and most stately neighbors, the Jersey mosquito may proudly say, "Here I am—one o' ye, gol dern ye." Of course he belongs to the Electricity building, in the exhibits of electric buzzers, or in the Palace of Liberal Arts, among the surgical instruments. Chief Smith might claim him in the Palace of Transportation in the airship section.

But, no. Dr. Bean has him in Forestry, Fish and Game—first, I suppose, because he is a fish immediately after hatching and then a game bird for veranda sitters who are dexterous with the palm of the hand in bringing him down in the dark.

The great state of N. J. had long been N. G. in some parts as a place of residence. The Jersey mosquito had become an intolerable curse, known far and wide on account of size, industry and strenuousness generally. Therefore Jersey makes this exhaustive mosquito exhibit as an advertisement of her enterprise in combating a pest that she could not conceal.

Mr. Mosquito is here in bottles some hundreds in number. He is impaled on pins numbered and otherwise labeled till he looks like the trophy display in a village of head hunters. On other shelves and in other cases and bottles we are shown all the kinds of fish, bugs and beetles they have in Jersey to eat mosquito larvae. A dismembered mosquito is magnified and spread over a space as large as the side of a newspaper, every part numbered and named till he looks as magnificent and important as the diagram of a man, his mere victim.

Still another case contains a salt marsh in miniature showing how pools of water gather in low places when it rains and furnish breeding places for myriads of mosquitoes. Photographs show experiments with castor beans as a preventive of mosquitoes near dwellings, but which proved to be but homes for more mosquitoes.

The scientific results are that mosquitoes do not breed in ponds where there are fish or beetles or other bugs to eat the larvae; that the country must be so drained; that there can be no pools or other stagnant water to furnish breeding places. Even the pitcher plant of the lowlands or tomato cans in the back alley or anything that will hold water for a few days, rain barrels and cisterns, are prolific of the pest. New Jersey has therefore done the world a service, and her display is full of interest and worthy of examination. By the methods proposed Jersey hopes to overcome the mosquito pest in ten years.

How little we know of Haiti, but three days' run from New York by fast steamer, yet a land unknown to most of us! We read her story in her several exhibits at the world's fair, but it is more interesting if you can have M. Romaine tell it to you with his brilliant digressions and enthusiastic emphasis. Ask a few questions in the Haitian exhibits in the Palace of Forestry, and you will spend an hour listening to his fascinating narrative. Haiti is but one-third of the great island as to territory, but three-fourths of it as to population. Half as large as Missouri, Haiti is the Pearl of the Antilles. The name is Indian or Caribbean, and its meaning is "rough land" or "mountains." But Haiti has valleys and table lands, mountain slopes and river deltas that yield so bountifully that many times her present population might thrive if her lands were all cultivated.

What Haiti seeks is American capital to develop her copper, iron, platinum and other deposits of useful minerals. Her vast forests of mahogany and other cabinet woods still await the coming of enterprising people to claim them and market their riches.

"We came late to the fair," said M. Romaine, the Haitian commissioner, "and were denied the space we sought, so that what you see is very little of what we might display.

"There's a bit of cloth that took a first prize at the Columbian exposition. It is hand woven and most skillfully done. While we sell to France almost our entire coffee crop, we buy our supplies from America. We use your flour, soap, hardware, cloth—all the staples, in fact. We want to see a closer commercial relationship with the people of the United States. At this moment I can point to $2,000,000 worth of copper ore above ground but twenty-five miles from the seacoast. You can blast it down, smelt it and market the product at a profit of 100 per cent. Beneath this outcropping are ores sufficient for years of mining. What more can capital hope for?

"The people of Haiti are poor, and labor is cheap. Nature has been most bountiful, and it takes very little effort to gain a livelihood, but it is a young nation, now celebrating her first centennial.

"Our president is Nord Alexis, eighty-four years old, virile as a sapling, for he has spent his life in the saddle and is one of the finest specimens of humanity. He is a great farmer as well as statesman. This coffee here is from his plantation. There is his name on the label.

"Did you see this case of laces, embroidery and other needlework? This was all done by the orphan girls who are the wards of the Sisters of St. Joseph. The Rev. Mother Gustochie is the head of the order, living at Port au Prince and having branches throughout the island.

"So you see the government of Haiti has at heart the welfare of its people, even though mistakes have been made that have been costly. The people of Haiti are very good people indeed. If you are a traveler and stop at the wayside home to ask for a drink, you will have the cleanest glass, the whitest napkin and the most polite treatment. There are no robberies. The mail carriers, though having thousands of dollars in their care, are never molested, even in the most wild and remote parts of the country.

"This year's crop of coffee is 80,000,000 pounds, as compared with 65,000,000 pounds ordinarily. The French government says it is the best coffee in the world for its soldiers. The possibilities in Haiti for fruit growing are equal to those of Cuba. Pineapples, oranges and bananas may be grown with great ease and success. The forests have been but little developed. Opposite Port au Prince is an island as large as Martinique, the interior of which has never been explored. Upon this island alone are millions of dollars' worth of cabinet woods. Who wants them? Every civilized country surely has a market for them. Here are samples of the woods, all very beautiful. Haiti invites the investor with assurances of her favor and protection."

PARKER AS A LIFE SAVER.

How Presidential Candidate Aided In Saving a Drowning Man.

Charles M. Stafford, who was United States marshal in Brooklyn during the first administration of ex-President Cleveland, has presented ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, the Democratic presidential nominee, in a new role, that of a life saver. The rescue, in which David B. Hill took a prominent part, took place at Mr. Stafford's summer home at Oak Bluffs, Mass., several years ago, says the New York Herald.

Judge Parker and his party visited Mr. Stafford at the Oak Bluffs club at the time, and they all went in bathing. In the party was a well known Albany physician whose name Mr. Stafford would not give, and while the rest of the party were on the beach he was swimming out a considerable distance. The physician gave a cry, and the men on the beach saw him sink.

Judge Parker at once plunged into the surf and with long, vigorous strokes reached the doctor just as he was sinking for the second time. Mr. Hill followed him, but when the judge reached the man he was unconscious. The judge swung the inanimate body over his shoulder and started for the shore. Mr. Hill came to the rescue and assisted Judge Parker in taking the doctor to the beach, where he was soon resuscitated.

Chairs Worm Eaten to Order.

The vast industry maintained at Paris to pawn off fake curios and antiquities on unsuspecting Croesuses has hit upon a new plan, says the Chicago Tribune. "Ticks," or wood fretters, required to give pseudo antique furniture an air of old age, are now "cultivated" in large droves on potatoes. Formerly they were hard to obtain, but now there are millions of the vermin. The fakirs let loose the wood fretters on the imitation furniture before it is painted or varnished. They are allowed to "work" for about six weeks. If they worked longer the chair, sofa or table would fall into dust. After six weeks the worms are killed by a discharge of X rays. Only then the piece of furniture is painted and upholstered and ready for the antique market.

Large College For China.

Within a few weeks active work will begin in China upon what is undoubtedly destined to be the largest college in that country devoted to broad educational principles in the English language and in accordance with the most modern high school and college methods. This institution is the Canton Christian college.

The Excelsior of Kuropatkin.

The shades of night were falling fast
When through Manchuria there passed
A general with flashing eye,
Who bore this banner proudly high:
"Eatemupski."

A few days passed, again he strode
With fierce demeanor up the road.
Another banner now he bore,
Changed somewhat from the one before:
"Waitabitski."

The weeks rolled on, again he came
And bore a banner, much the same,
On which was written this design,
Before his awesome battle line:
"Notyetski."

More weeks elapsed, and on the track
He rode, now forward and now back.
A waiting world watched eagerly,
But this was all that they could see:
"Afterawhileski."

More months elapsed, but still no sign
Of battle from that dreadful line,
And now before his army vast
This banner he nailed proudly fast:
"Tomorrowski."

A year had gone, no battle yet.
The world came almost to forget
The doughty general, but he Changed signs with regularity:
"Nextweekski."

But every day before his fine
And awe inspiring battle line
He rode, with saber in his hand,
And valiantly gave this command:
"Backupski."

At last this grim and dreadful man
Grew busy, and a message ran
To the home folks, who freely shed
Their bitter tears, the while they read:
"Gonebumpski."
—J. W. Foley in New York Times.

Certain Treatment She Would Not Overlook

A YOUNG man who is staying at a Long Island seaside resort was early in July introduced to two pretty western girls, sisters. He promptly fell in love with the younger, and she received his attentions favorably. One afternoon the young man was lying in a hammock on the hotel piazza when he heard loud cries for help coming from the beach. Throwing off his coat, he rushed down and saw the two girls struggling in the deep water at the end of the pier.

A moment later he had taken off his shoes and was swimming toward the young ladies. He reached the elder girl first and dragged her without much difficulty to a ladder on the pier. Then he turned to rescue the other, who had already sunk for the second time. When she again came to the surface she threw her arms wildly around the young man's neck and almost strangled him.

For a moment it seemed to him that they would certainly drown together. Her hands were tightly clutching his throat and he could not get them loose, but he determined to save her life at any cost. So, doubling up his fist, he struck the girl a heavy blow in the face. Still she held on. He struck her a second blow, and she lost consciousness. Then he seized her and bore her to the shore motionless. It took half an hour's hard work to bring her back to life, but the doctor who came to the rescue said there was no danger of serious consequences. All she needed was a few days' rest.

Every morning the young man who had rescued her sent a bouquet to her room. Finally she appeared on the hotel veranda, her head covered with a veil. He went forward to speak to her, but was stopped by her sister.

"Can I not say just a half dozen words to her?" pleaded the young man.

"No; Alice can't forgive you," she said. "It may have been necessary to tear her hands loose from your throat and even strike her, but she thinks you might have been careful enough not to have blackened both her eyes."—New York Press.

NEW TRIAL.

Judgment in Frederick E. Betts Case Reversed.

Was Under Sentence of Seven Years.

Charged With Fraudulently Using Mails in Brokerage Business.

Frederick E. Betts of Quincy who was under a seven-year sentence of the United States district court for fraudulently using the mails in his brokerage schemes, is to have a new trial. The judgment of the district court has been reversed by the United States Court of Appeals and the case remanded to the U. S. district court for further proceedings.

Betts brought suit on a writ of error, embodying two principles: That the admission of copied letter of said F. M. Fisher, creditor, after notice had been given to produce the originals, which Fisher declined to do; and, secondly, that when the jury was empannelled Betts claimed that he was entitled to three challenges on each indictment. He made three challenges and attempted to make a fourth when Judge Lowell refused to allow it, saying that he was only allowed three challenges on all the indictments.

The case was argued in the United States circuit court of appeals in June. Judge Holmes of the United States supreme court and Justices Putnam and Aldrich were present. The decision as given reverses the former judgment.

The majority opinion, after discussing the case at length, says:

"We are satisfied that good reasons compel us to sustain the position that the plaintiff in error was entitled to three peremptory challenges on each indictment. While, therefore, we have questioned the proceedings in the United States district court on other propositions, yet we believe that the decision we ourselves have made will render unnecessary any possible future application to us with reference thereto; we rest our conclusions on the fact that the district court only allowed the plaintiff in error one set of challenges."

Justice Aldrich, in dissent, said: "The several indictments against one and the same defendant relating to one and the same charge, though technically presenting different causes, because of the different mailing of the same circulars, were properly tried together under the order of court, and being so tried, became in every practical, substantial and essential sense one case involving one trial. This being so, one peremptory challenge was all the defendant was entitled to."

Both Old Parties Attacked

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 26.—The Populists state convention met here and chose a full electoral ticket. The platform says that the Republicans, in injecting the race issue into the campaign, have ascended to the heights of imbecility, and that Judge Parker, in his letter of thanks to the negro leagues of New York, has put himself on a par with Roosevelt on the negro question.

Weinseimer Pleads Not Guilty

New York, Aug. 26.—Phillip Weinseimer, president of the Building Trades Alliance, under indictment on a charge of extortion, entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment. His counsel made three separate motions for dismissal and delay, all of which were overruled by Judge Newburger. Weinseimer was released on $2000 bonds.

Wiltrax to Have New Trial

Chicago, Aug. 26.—John Wiltrax, convicted, largely through the testimony of his own son, of murdering a boy, has been granted a new trial. The case interested a wealthy Chicago business man who believed that the police had terrorized Wiltrax's son into testifying against him.

High Position For Marlborough

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—The report is revived here that the Duke of Marlborough may be appointed governor general of Canada. The duke has been training at the colonial office and he stands in high favor with the present administration at Westminster.

Serious Trolley Collision

Passaic, N. J., Aug. 26.—Fourteen persons were hurt in a head-on collision between two trolley cars here last night. One of the motormen overran a switch. Six of the passengers were taken to hospitals.

Baltic Fleet on a Cruise

St. Petersburg, Aug. 26.—It is announced that the Baltic fleet, with the exception of the new battleship Orel, has left Cronstadt on a 10 days' cruise.

ANNUAL REUNION.

Branches of Powell Family Tree Gather in East Milton.

The twenty-fourth annual reunion of the Powell family was held Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William I. Powell on Granite avenue, East Milton.

There was an interesting program, including a historical and genealogical address by Jacob W. Powell of Clinton, in which the ancestry of the Powell family was traced to the early days of the American revolution. There was an original poem by John D. Powell, Jr., of Boston, violin solos by Mrs. G. Henry Powell of Canton, piano solos by Benjamin F. Powell of Boston, songs by Mrs. Albert F. Powell of Milton, Ulysses G. Powell of Boston, recitations by Misses Ida May and Leonessa Powell of Milton and an address by G. Henry Powell of Canton.

Dinner was served at 1:30, to which the following sat down: Mr. and Mrs. John D. N. R. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob W. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. G. Henry Powell, Mrs. Mary J. Reddick, Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Powell, Benjamin F. Powell, Misses Ida May and Leonessa Powell and Mrs. Mary E. Hobson.

HOUGHS NECK.

People at this resort have begun to think about returning to their winter homes. Some families have already gone but the great bulk will remain over until after Labor day.

There is quite a demand for cottages and the real estate agents say everything is taken. As fast as one family moves out another moves in, so that it is necessary to engage a cottage some weeks ahead.

Things are rather quiet at the beach during the day but it is lively enough evenings. There are twenty or more clubs quartered at the beach and they make things hum after dark.

The three days' carnival last week is generally looked upon as a failure and it is probable the last time an attempt will be made to run a three-day affair.

The doctors and lawyers of Brockton held their anual outing at the beach Tuesday. Head quarters were established at Norteman's. The professional gentlemen had a hot time of it.

Mrs. P. F. Mannex and family of Roxbury are in the Woodbine cottage on Winthrop street.

A new road is being built from Sea street across the sewer to Rock Island.

SOUTH BRAINTREE.

Mrs. W. N. Howes, Mrs. E. L. Wales Mrs. E. W. Gerry and Miss Bessie Howes of Dennis enjoyed a trip to Provincetown, Tuesday.

Miss Pearl McCall of Roxbury is the guest of Miss Ora Simonds of Tremont street.

The department in Braintree of the Quincy Tallow Co. has recently purchased a handsome grey horse.

On Monday, Mrs. Howe of Holbrook avenue entertained her niece, Mrs. Arthur Quincy of Athol.

The engagement of Bernard Lesley Simonds of Tremont street and Minnie Alice Whitney daughter of Mrs. Mary Rand of Fountain street, is announced.

Frank Walker the popular first baseman of our ball team, is reported to be confined to his home with a serious attack of malarial fever.

Frank Pratt of Central avenue is unable to attend to his usual duties on account of rheumatism.

The Butcher boys and the Cochato boys combined forces and took the Cochato tub to the league muster at Taunton last Wednesday.

Mrs. C. M. Lothrop, Mrs. E. Porter, Mrs. B. C. Saulpaugh and Mrs. A. Hobart are visiting friends in Elizabeth, N. J.

Mrs. Nellie Dearborn and Mrs. George Cobb enjoyed a delightful outing at Onset last Sunday.

Notice.

Mrs. J. E. Bagley, widow of the late Rev. James E. Bagley, formerly of our city but now living in one of the most beautiful and interesting parts of N. France, where the climate is exquisitely mild but balmy, would like three or four children or young people to spend the coming eight or nine months in her family. The house is modern, near the sea, and has tennis courts and large garden; French and German spoken entirely. Terms moderate.

STATE HIGHWAY.

Contract Awarded for Randolph Avenue to Melrose Contractor.

[Special to the Daily Ledger.]

Boston, Aug. 25.—Bids were opened this noon by the State Highway Commission for the construction of three sections of state highway. One of these was for the construction of such highway on Randolph avenue in the Metropolitan Park reservation from the Milton line to the Randolph line. The contract was awarded to R. F. Hudson of Melrose, the lowest bidder, and it must be finished by November 1. The distance to be covered by the new road is about a mile and a quarter. The bidders and bids were as follows:

John A. Gaffey of Medford, $10,381.19; R. F. Hudson of Melrose, $9,768.06; Lane Quarry Company of Hingham, $10,057.39; H. Gore & Co. of Boston, $12,489.99; Ferranti & Maguire of Worcester, $9,988.84; Fred E. Ellis of Melrose, $11,671.39; W. A. Keith of Brockton, $10,280.19; John F. Lynch of Dorchester, $10,198.91; Luigi C. Carchia of Boston, $15,430.41.

Some of the specifications of the contract are these: there are to be 3,200 cubic yards of excavation; 2,100 yards of material for filling in order to bring the road to grade, must be borrowed from some other place; there are 500 cubic yards of ledge excavation; there are 33 cubic yards of masonry with concrete cement; there are 10,833 square yards of shaping for broken stone; 216 feet of 12-inch vitrified clay pipe; 22 feet of 10-inch vitrified clay pipe, and 20 feet of 8-inch vitrified clay pipe; there are 1,300 feet of guard rail; 100 feet of side drains; 19 stone bounds; 10 catch basins and 700 square yards of cobble stone gutter.

It will be noticed that the bids have the extreme variation of from $9,768.06 to $15,430.41. The last, put in by an Italian contractor, is said at the office of the commission to have been the man's first bid. He put in two bids for comparatively small items which were more than double the price which they could have been put in well for. This brought up his total so high that it queered him at once for getting the contract. The Italians are coming in to get this class of business. There is a firm in Worcester which, judging by names, consists of an Italian and an Irishman, and they get many of these contracts. Their names are Ferranti and Maguire. Rule.

CONFLAGRATION.

Fire Destroys Three Holbrook Buildings This Noon.

[Special to the Quincy Daily Ledger.]

The old Thomas White box manufactory, Daley's hotel and the dwelling house of W. Simmons at Holbrook were destroyed by fire this noon. The fire started from a naptha explosion in the box manufactory.

At one time it looked as though the whole business section of the town would be destroyed and aid was summoned from Brockton, Randolph and Braintree. The fire was under control at 1 o'clock.

Information Bureau.

It was on a Houghs Neck car. The party was a middle aged woman who appeared to be a revised edition of an encyclopædia. With her were some other ladies and children. As the car rolled along toward Quincy the lady pointed out the places of interest for the benefit of her friends.

The sewer that runs parallel with Sea street near the willows was pointed out as a boulevard for pleasure driving. The Adams farm as the place where they raised the cabbages, potatoes and turnips for the Adams family to use in the winter. One of the little girls ventured to remarks that they raised corn also. She was promptly squelched with the reply, no nothing but cabbages, potatoes and turnips.

The electric light plant was pointed out as the gas house where they made the stuff burned in the electric lights; and the Quincy poor farm building was said to be the summer residence of a rich Boston man. The party changed cars in City square for Boston and they were lost sight of.

—A bulletin issued by Senator Hoar's son Thursday afternoon read as follows: "The senator's chances appear to be getting better. He has passed that acute stage he has been in for the past week, and although he is still a weak and sick man his condition does not warrant the belief that he is to pass away. It will be several days, however, before we can fully determine what the result will be."

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR
Steam or Hot Water Heaters
you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

In his letter of Aug 16th to the grand Army in Boston the President foreshadowed his policy regarding the Filipinos. He said: "Under the lead of your comrades the Philippine Islands were won for the cause of civilization, of civil liberty, and of peace and justice." This is all any reasonable people can ask for, and with these will come prosperity and contentment.

The State Department announces that the Government has not invited any of the crowned heads of the Old World to visit the St. Louis exposition. The reason is that Congress neglected to make an appropriation for their entertainment. If one should happen to come over, however, he will be made welcome, and the President will take him rough riding on horse back, rain or shine.

The great fair at St. Louis is doing very well, and if no calamity befalls it, the money advanced by the United States is likely to be repaid. Already nearly two millions of dollars have been refunded to the Treasury which leaves $2,600,000 more to be paid. The people of Europe appear to take a deeper interest in the fair than those of this country. It was the Emperor of Germany who advised some of his wealthy American hosts to return to the United States, and visit St. Louis. He hoped they would look at some of the art treasures contributed by Germany, and possibly purchase a few.

Drift of Opinion.

☞It seems to us the persistent attempts of Boston firemen to get one day off in five, without a corresponding, reduction in pay, are entirely wrong in principle and are liable to lead other men to consider the positions so much in the nature of sinecures that the tenure of the present holders would be very insecure if the desire became a law. Men who are working for a municipal government do not seem to be satisfied to render a fair equivalent for the money they receive, but are constantly scheming to get more pay and do less work. Our own city could be run just as well on salaries of two-thirds what is being paid.—Waltham Free Press.

☞The summary of the telephone business published by the census bureau, presents facts which are a surprise to even the most intelligent people. Here is a business which was unknown in the childhood of persons now entering their professional career, which today embraces a capital of nearly half a billion; handled 5,000,000,000 messages last year, gives employment to 65,000 persons and to which is devoted $85,000,000 a year as gross revenue, half as much as is expended by the public for sustaining the postal service. This is only one item of changes which are in progress in this generation.—Gloucester Times.

Attacks on Port Arthur Brought Heavy Loss to Japanese

RUSSIA IS ENCOURAGED

Admits, However, That Balance of Sea Power In Far East Is Thoroughly Upset--Japan, on the Other Hand, Anticipates Early Fall of Port Arthur

St. Petersburg, Aug. 26.—The latest information from the front is summed up in a press dispatch from Chefoo showing that the Japanese in the assaults on Port Arthur Aug. 21 and 22 were again repulsed with heavy losses.

Despite the assertion made in Tokio that all the attacks so far on the fortress have been merely preliminary to a grand infantry assault, the feeling grows here that the ferocity of the repeated attacks and defeats must be gradually dissipating the energy of the besiegers and that the Japanese may find after all that "they have broken their teeth on the stones of Port Arthur."

Nothing can be ascertained here regarding the reports from Tokio of the sinking of two Russian torpedo boat destroyers at Port Arthur.

The fact that the Port Arthur squadron is already so crippled and scattered has greatly reduced its importance as a tactical factor in the eyes of the authorities here. Accounts of the misfortune to the battleship Sevastopol and of the sinking of the cruiser Novik are allowed to be extensively printed, and it appears that the balance of sea power in the east is thoroughly upset pending the arrival of the Baltic squadron in Oriental waters.

Lieutenant General Sakharoff, commander of the eastern army, telegraphs that the rains have ceased and that fine weather has set in, but that the roads are still impassable. The excessive heat of midday has caused a recurrence of dysentery.

Japan Is Optimistic

London, Aug. 26.—Japanese assaults on Port Arthur during Sunday and Monday are reported to have been repulsed with heavy loss, the estimate of 13,000 casualties apparently applying to these two days. In curious contrast to this news, which is inherently credible enough, comes word that the people of Tokio are decorating the city in anticipation of the early fall of Port Arthur. In view of the severe censorship in Japan, the issuance of this report may be taken to mean that the Tokio government feels assured of a near victory.

Admiral Kataoka confirms the report that the Kasuga and Nisshni silenced some of the Russian forts east of Golden hill. This suggests that the defenses were either damaged, or short of ammunition before the ships opened fire, as no attack has hitherto shown any signs of effectiveness. The action points to the existence of a serious breach in the eastern defenses of the town.

Japs In Strong Position

Chefoo, Aug. 26.—Golden hill, White Marble mountain and Liaoti mountain, according to Chinese advices, are now the only main forts securely held by the Russians at Port Arthur. Others are occupied by them, but they are subjected to an artillery fire which renders their tenure uncertain. Fort No. 5, which has frequently been reported taken by the Japanese and retaken by the Russians again, is declared to be in the hands of the Japanese.

Warships Out of Commission

Shanghai, Aug. 26.—The Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi have gone out of commission, but the work of repairing them is being continued. There was no formal ceremony when the vessels went out of commission. A simple announcement was made by the commanders of the two warships that the vessels would remain remain in port until the war is over. The work of dismantling them begun today.

Forces Facing Kuropatkin

Liao Yang, Aug. 26.—At the Russian headquarters here, General Kuroki's army is estimated at 100,000 men, General Nodzu's force at 70,000 and General Oku's at 40,000. This is exclusive of two divisions, of about 30,000 men, moving up on the right bank of the Liao river.

British Collier Searched

London, Aug. 26.—News has reached England that the Russian auxiliary cruiser Ural stopped and examined the British collier Pencalenick on Aug. 12. The Pencalenick was bound from Cardiff for Malta with coal for the British navy.

Sorry For Loss of Novik

Vladivostok, Aug. 26.—The full report of the sinking of the Russian cruiser Novik was received with the greatest sorrow in all circles here. The cruiser had proved herself one of the ablest ships of the Port Arthur squadron.

Russian Wounded Numbers 5000

Chefoo, Aug. 26.—A junk which left Port Arthur Aug. 22 reports that the Russian wounded at that place numbered 5000 and that the Japanese occupy the heights near Chaochanko.

GIANT YEGG CAUGHT

Boston Police Think They Have Made an Important Capture

Boston, Aug. 26.—Armed to the teeth with vicious knives, a hatchet and a revolver, William Brown, an unkempt, gaunt, gigantic man, alleged to be a first-class specimen of yegg, was captured in a West End pawnshop yesterday after a thrilling struggle on the part of Inspectors Rooney and Wolf, and locked up while many of his supposed crimes are being probed.

Rooney and Wolf had been assigned to the district to watch for a man answering Brown's description, as he was suspected of many breaks. They had made the rounds several times, but were unable to find trace of their man until after 4 o'clock, when they saw him enter the pawnshop.

He had a big bundle under his arm, and as he entered the store's narrow portal he bent his six feet three, disclosing a smaller parcel. Rooney and Wolf were close behind him.

"Who are you, and where did you get that stuff?" demanded Rooney.

"I'm William Brown, and a friend gave them to me; why?" was the surly response.

Rooney and Wolf immediately grappled with the man and as his coat brushed aside there was revealed a leathern belt, containing in its sheaths a big razor, a dirk, a dagger of generous proportions, a wicked looking army revolver and a heavy hatchet with a keen edge.

Brown, a powerful chap, immediately showed fight and was handcuffed only after a great struggle.

Soon the wagon came and Brown was taken to station 3. Then the bundles were examined, and greatly to the surprise of the officers, the supposed loot was found to be unusually attractive valuables.

Fatal Result of Saloon Fight

Providence, Aug 25.—From injuries received in a barroom fight Wednesday night, Frank McDermott, aged 30, died last evening. McDermott believed he would recover and refused to give the name of the man who had fought with him. The deceased and his assailant, a tall, heavily built man, are said to have fought over cards and during the struggle McDermott was knocked down, whereupon his assailant is alleged to have jumped upon him, injuring him internally.

An Alleged Incendiary

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 26.—Henry J. Adams, 55 years old, a former clerk in the Salvation Army Industrial home, was arrested, charged with setting fire to the building, in which Joseph Zink, an itinerant tailor, was suffocated. Zink was a lodger in the army barracks and evidently succumbed while asleep. William Ferguson, another lodger, who has two artificial limbs, reached a second-story window and dropped out, being probably fatally hurt. The fire loss is $3000.

Serious Conflagration Prevented

South Norwalk, Conn., Aug. 26.—Fire in the pumping house of the Standard Oil company broke out last evening, destroying the building and doing $2000 damage. At the docks of the company were an oil tug and steamer with 61,000 gallons of oil. The flames were swept directly at the two boats, but the crews, by quick action, succeeded in getting both tug and steamer away from the heat and flames. The cause of the fire is not known.

Bullet Through His Temple

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 26.—The body of Albert Perkins of Springfield, Mass., was discovered in a field here last night. Death had resulted from an apparently self-inflicted bullet wound in the right temple. Perkins was for 20 years superintendent of the Springfield Knitting company, from which position he retired because of ill-health.

Schooner Turned Turtle

Eastport, Me., Aug. 26.—Schooner Mary F. Pike, from New York, reports having passed within 40 feet of a 150-ton schooner, bottom up, 18 miles southwest by south from Moosapee light. The schooner was evidently light, her mainmast was broken off and rudder gone. Those on board the Pike could not see the name of the schooner.

For Reduction of Armament

Boston, Aug. 26.—It is announced that Secretary of State Hay will make an attempt to be present and make at least one address at the international peace congress which opens in this city Oct. 3. It is thought he will discuss the subject of the reduction of armaments, for which the international peace congress is working.

Looking For Abandoned Vessel

Boston, Aug. 26.—Tug Peter B. Bradley has left here in search of the schooner Samos, which was abandoned Monday about 30 miles off Cape Ann in a waterlogged condition and dismasted. If the wreck is located it will be towed here and the lumber discharged.

Stabbing Resulted Fatally

Providence, Aug. 26.—From stab wounds in the stomach, alleged to have been inflicted by Tomasso La Ninfa, an 18-year-old Italian, on a street corner, Joseph McGirr, aged 20, is dead. La Ninfa is held under $8000 bail. He is said to have admitted the crime to the police.

No Marked Improvement

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 26.—Senator Hoar has taken considerable nourishment, but there is no marked improvement in his condition.

No Labels on Bread

St. Louis, Aug. 26.—The bakers' convention voted to abolish, for hygienic reasons, the practice of pasting labels on loaves of bread.

CITY BREVITIES.

Although it was a hot day Thursday there was a cool breeze that freshened into quite a gale in the early evening.

Next week will see the army of school teachers, who have been away for the summer months, returning to Quincy.

Mrs. Geo. Robertson and her daughter Miss Flora Vincent, of Barre, Vt., has been visiting Mrs. Stewart McKenzie of Granite street.

Objecting to a Parcels Post.

The Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers' union at a recent meeting held at South Braintree, unanimously passed resolutions protesting against any and all parcel posts schemes. Taking for granted that the establishment of a parcels post will be to the direct injury of the smaller merchants, as is probable, and a detriment to every community, as is not so clear, the union goes on to state six reasons why it opposes the parcels post schemes, in the following language:

"First. They are sought by interests identified or allied with great mail order houses that sell no goods in the city where located, but depend upon shipments elsewhere.

"Second. The passage of such bills would result in an increased annual deficit of many millions in the post offices which must be met from the general revenue; this would be in all respects equivalent to an enormous subsidy to an already prosperous line of business and to the disadvantage of the individual retailer. In other words, it is class legislation pure and simple.

"Third. The rates proposed in the bills now pending in congress are in some instances so unreasonably low, as to give the privilege of shipping goods long distances by mail, at less than goods are now carried by freight.

Fourth. The bills are modeled on laws in force in European countries where the entire distances are approximately 14 to 200 times less than in the United States.

"Fifth. The bills aid the mail order houses to the disadvantage of the smaller houses, which would lead to a centralization of trade in a line directly to the detriment of the general welfare of the country.

"Sixth. The general public would not be benefited by the passage of these bills, as it would encourage an artificial and unnatural method of distributing goods from large distant centres in separate packages to each purchaser; this would diminish the shipment in bulk lots to points convenient to consumers, there to be broken into lots to meet the needs of the individual purchaser; the ordinary methods of commerce as it exists, including in their separate functions the wholesale and retail branches of trade, would be disarranged if not entirely obliterated."

A Missing Big Bill.

Nearly fifteen years ago a man entered the First National bank of Denver and walked into the office of David H. Moffatt, the president of the bank. He had a bottle in his hand that he said contained nitroglycerin and threatened to blow up the bank unless he was given a large sum of money. Mr. Moffatt sent for the money, and among the bills was one of $10,000 denomination. Recently the government called in all the $10,000 bills, and the one given by Mr. Moffatt is the only one that has not been presented for redemption. No trace of the man who got the money was ever found.

They are attended by pimples, boils, the itching tetter, salt rheum, and other cutaneous eruptions; by feelings of weakness, languor, general debility and what not.
They cause more suffering than anything else.
Health, Strength, Peace and Pleasure require their expulsion, and this is positively effected, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, by

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

BRITISH SHIPPING

Balfour Assures Owners That It Will Be Protected

RUSSIA TO KEEP PLEDGE

Her Volunteer Fleet Will Be Hunted Up by British Cruisers and Notified to Keep Aloof From Neutral Vessels

London, Aug. 26.—Prime Minister Balfour announced last evening that the British government had ordered two cruisers from the squadron at Cape of Good Hope, without delay, to locate the Russian volunteer fleet steamers Smolensk and St. Petersburg and to convey to them the orders of the Russian government that they must not further interfere with neutral shipping. The premier stated that this action was taken at the request of the Russian government.

This extraordinary statement was made when the premier received a deputation of the London Chamber of Commerce, which was appointed at a meeting held earlier in the day by the China and East India section of the chamber. Those in attendance included representative shipowners and others interested in trade in the far east. This resolution was passed at the meeting:

"This meeting of members of the London Chamber of Commerce, concerned in trade with the far east, views with grave apprehension the continued uncertainty of the position of British trade and shipping with regard to what constitutes contraband of war as interpreted by the Russian government. The meeting trusts that his majesty's government will take such immediate and effective steps as will afford all reasonable protection of British shipping and ensure to it the same degree of immunity from vexous stoppages and examinations as is apparently enjoyed by shipping of other nationalities."

At the same time the meeting prepared a letter addressed to Lord Lansdowne, in which it was stated that the continuance of the present situation was having a disastrous effect on shipping and was causing irreparable damage to the whole course of trade with Japan and the far east.

The letter further said that the commercial community would welcome any measures, however stringent, that might be necessary to place British commerce on the same footing with that of other non-belligerent countries in the treatment of "so-called" contraband of war.

Prior to receiving the deputation Mr. Balfour had been busily engaged in connection with the question which had been raised with regard to British shipping. After giving a number of private interviews, he held an important meeting at the foreign office to which representatives of the intelligence department of the war office, the admiralty, the foreign office and the board of trade were summoned.

The premier afterwards received the deputation from the Chamber of Commerce, which was headed by William Keswick, M. P., (a member of the firm of Jardine & Co., China merchants, and also a member of the legislative council of Hong Kong) who stated the object of the deputation had in view and presented the resolution and the letter.

Mr. Balfour said that before making a general statement he desired to hear evidence tending to show preferential treatment by Russia, which was a most important phase of the situation and concerning which the government had no conclusive information, and to learn of any concrete examples of differential treatment by Russian officers and Russian prize courts, which, he said, would be carefully considered.

Members of the deputation quoted the cases of the American steamer Arabia and the British steamer Calchas. The former was allowed to proceed, while the latter was still at Vladivostok, and the members pointed out that both cases were equal, so far as the nature of the cargoes was concerned. The cases of the British steamer Malacca and the German steamer Sacandia were also quoted. Each of these vessels had ammunition on board, but the Scandia was allowed to proceed. The deputation next referred to the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander and the German steamer Thea by the Vladivostok squadron and pointed out that compensation had been paid in the case of the Thea, while it had not been even promised in that of the Knight Commander. Members of the deputation also stated that it was notorious that shipments of contraband of war had been made from Antwerp and Hamburg, while insurance rates from those and from French ports were much lower than from English ports, in the ratio of 5 shillings to 20 shillings.

The premier, in his reply, said the questions must be considered separately and in the light of different conditions. He said he hoped therefore, in view of the action by the Russian government, that they might really consider the episodes connected with the volunteer fleet as now entirely ended. "Most assuredly," said the premier, "should the volunteer fleet steamers attempt further captures, which I do not think they will, no such captures would be recognized by us or by the Russian government."

IN TORNADO'S PATH

Four Merrymakers Killed and Many Are Severely Injured

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 26.—A tornado swept through Chautauqua county late yesterday afternoon. Five thousand people were at Parkhurst's grove attending the Stockton town picnic, and were directly in the path of the storm. Four persons were killed and several were injured.

The storm came up suddenly. Trees in the grove were struck by lightning, many of them were blown down and the rain fell in torrents. The people who took refuge under the trees at the first signs of the storm were caught by the falling branches and either killed or injured. Many horses were killed in the same manner. Some of the animals stampeded, trampling upon the injured people who were lying upon the ground.

The buildings in the vicinity were blown down and others were unroofed. Hundreds of forest and fruit trees were blown down and corn and oat fields were laid waste, entailing a loss of thousands of dollars.

Travelling Under Difficulties

Albuquerque, N. M., Aug. 26.—After moving east 250 miles to detour by way of New Mexico, the west-bound overland Santa Fe trains that were stalled in Arizona for several days, owing to washouts, have met another washout at this end and passengers will again be delayed. There are many sick among the women and children passengers who have been on the trains for a week. Ten cars of United States mail are on the delayed trains.

Liberty and Justice For All

Rome, Aug. 26.—In reply to a question by the pope regarding the condition of Catholicism in America, Cardinal Satolli explained that the Catholic church in America has not any official relations with the state, but is in such a condition that it does not envy the position of the church in countries where official relations exist. To this statement the pope replied: "Because in the United States there is true liberty and justice for all."

Governor Wells Defeated

Salt Lake City, Aug. 26.—After a bitter fight, John C. Cutler was nominated for governor by the Republican state convention on the second ballot. The fight for the governorship was between Governor Wells, now serving his second term in that office; J. H. Hammond, present secretary of state, and John C. Cutler, a merchant. Hammond withdrew after the first ballot. The second ballot stood: Cutler, 239; Wells, 221.

The Cripple Creek Tangle

Cripple Creek, Col., Aug. 26.—Caplases have been placed in the hands of Sheriff Bell for 28 prominent citizens of the Cripple Creek district against whom informations have been filed by the deputy district attorney. The charges are conspiracy and assault to kill; conspiracy and false imprisonment, and conspiracy, malicious mischief and larceny in connection with the deportations last Saturday.

Planned to Rob Bookies

Chicago, Aug. 26.—By the explosion of some dynamite caps, and in the panic that followed it, three persons were injured at the Hawthorne racetrack. It is supposed that the caps were thrown on the floor of the betting ring with the idea of creating a panic, during which the cash boxes of the bookmakers might be robbed. An attempt was made to rob one bookmaker, but it failed.

Myn and Two Sisters Drowned

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 26.—By the capsizing of a sailboat three young people were drowned in Oquaga lake. Those drowned were Robert Canfield and Misses Amelia and Alice Cramer, sisters. Seven young people went out in a sailboat. When near the middle of the lake the boat was capsized. The occupants of a naphtha launch rescued four of the persons.

Murphy Visits Headquarters

New York, Aug. 26.—There was a buzz of excitement at the Hoffman House last night caused by the appearance of Charles F. Murphy. It was his first visit to the Democratic state headquarters and was an event which the leaders pointed out as indicating the restoration of harmony.

Inquiry Not Yet Begun

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 26.—The court of inquiry appointed by Governor Terrell for the purpose of investigating the recent actions of the military at Statesboro, when two negroes were burned at the stake by a mob, convened here, but almost immediately adjourned, owing to the absence of one of the members of the court.

Big Fight Comes Off Tonight

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—Both Jeffries and Munroe are ready for the sound of the gong tonight. Each one expresses himself fit and confident of winning. The odds remain in the neighborhood of 100 to 35 in favor of Jeffries.

Trial of Strikers Begun

Omaha, Aug. 26.—The trials of 88 strikers, charged with violating an injunction of the federal court issued against the South Omaha packing house employes now on strike, has begun in the federal court. Only a few witnesses have been called.

Cloakmakers Lose Strike

Cleveland, Aug. 26.—The cloakmakers' strike in this city is practically at an end. The workers are going back to the shops in large numbers. By tomorrow it is expected that the full number of employes will have returned. The employers state that they have granted none of the demands of the workers.

Cold Weather In Italy

Rome, Aug. 26.—Heavy storms, accompanied by rain, continue throughout the peninsula, materially lowering the temperature. In Rome the thermometer has registered a fall during the last two days of from 9° to 68 degrees in the shade. Snow is falling not only in the Alps, but also in the Lombardy plains.

Killed Woman and Self

New York, Aug. 26.—William Harmon shot and killed Miss Elleen Wood in a lodging house in Brooklyn last night and then shot himself in the breast and leaped through a second-story window to the street, fracturing his skull, dying later.

Bookkeeper an Alleged Forger

New York, Aug. 26.—Louis Bense, bookkeeper for Pendas & Alvarez, cigar manufacturers, was locked up last night, charged with forging checks to the amount of $25,000. He is 28 years old, a Frenchman, and single.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Captain H. A. Duffy, aged 65, for 21 years a prominent granite manufacturer, dropped dead of heart failure at Barre, Vt. He was a captain of infantry during the Civil war.

Representative athletes from the German empire arrived at New York on the steamship Deutschland, en route to St. Louis, where they will compete in the Olympic games.

Dr. W. A. Pryor, son of former Supreme Court Justice Roger A. Pryor, died at New York as the result of overwork. Dr. Pryor was one of the most noted gynecologists in America.

Captain Swift of the general board has applied for command of the battleship Maine and probably will be assigned to that vessel.

Brierton, by deed dated November 3, 1903, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 960, page 507, and running northwesterly along the said premises conveyed by said Parsons as aforesaid, seven hundred forty-two (742) feet, more or less, to land now or late of Mrs. Austin White; thence running northeasterly along said land now or late of said White, one hundred twenty-two (122) feet, more or less, to an angle; thence running southeasterly and bounded northeasterly by said land of White, about eighty (80) feet to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running southerly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company, about six hundred and sixty (660) feet, to said Elm street; thence turning and running along said Elm street to the point of beginning.

Parcel No. 6. Also a certain parcel of land situated in said Braintree, bounded northeasterly by said Commercial street; southeasterly by a private way formerly Elm street, which private way leads from said Elm street to said Commercial street; westerly by land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; northwesterly by land now or formerly of said White. The two parcels last above described are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by said Birney C. Parsons, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 136.

Parcel No. 7. A certain piece or parcel of land situated on the northeasterly side of Howard avenue, in that part of said Quincy known as Quincy Neck, bounded northwesterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of George J. Sargent, five hundred and seventy-one (571) feet, northeasterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of heirs of Noah Bosworth, one hundred and forty and four-tenths (140.4) feet, southeasterly by the land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of Malchionda, five hundred and sixty-one (561) feet, and southwesterly by Howard avenue, one hundred and forty-one (141) feet, being premises formerly of Noah Bosworth, deceased.

Parcel No. 8. All the line of railroad of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, extending from and including the yard of said Company in said Quincy to the line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in said Braintree, together with the land appurtenant and adjacent thereto belonging to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, and all rights and easements appurtenant thereto or used in connection therewith, and particularly the rights granted to the Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Kerby Stevens and Frederick H. Allen by deeds dated respectively December 31, 1903, and January 15, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 25, 1904, —subject, however, to the rights granted by said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to said Kerby Stevens by deed dated December 31, 1903, recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 26, 1904.

A portion of the premises to be conveyed is subject to a mortgage from Charles W. Pike to Albert H. Davenport dated November 14, 1902, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 934 page 545.

The conveyance will also be made subject to an easement granted by the Fore River Ship and Engine Company to the Old Colony Street Railway Company by deed dated January 30, 1904, to erect, operate and maintain upon certain terms, conditions, reservations and exceptions a pole line for the transmission of electricity and for telephones for the private use of said Railway Company along the route described as follows:—

Beginning at the South Shore Branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in Braintree, Massachusetts, thence extending northwesterly over land conveyed to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Sidney Coolidge by deed dated January 7th, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 965, page 137, to Adams street; thence crossing said Adams street and continuing northwesterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Elm street; thence crossing said Elm street and continuing northerly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Commercial street; thence crossing said Commercial street and continuing northeasterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to land now or formerly of one Patch.

The following parcel, which has been released from the lien of said mortgage or deed of trust, by instrument of release dated June 4, 1904, will be excepted from the conveyance:—

A certain parcel beginning on Commercial street at land now or late of John W. Ratcliffe and running westerly on said land one hundred and eight [108] feet to a stake on the margin of Factory Pond so called; thence turning and running northerly and northwesterly on a curved line along the margin of said pond four hundred and five [405] feet more or less to a stake on the margin of said pond situated twenty-five [25] feet from the centre line of the Fore River Railroad as now laid out; thence turning and running northeasterly eighty-six feet three inches [86 ft. 3 in.] to a stake on Adams street situated ninety-four [94] feet more or less from the center line of said railroad where it crosses the southerly side of Adams street; thence turning and running southeasterly on Adams street to Commercial street and southerly on Commercial street a total distance of four hundred ninety feet four inches [490 ft. 4 in.] to the point of beginning.

The conveyance will include, in addition to the property, rights, privileges and franchises above described, any property, rights, privileges and franchises not herein described which may at the time of sale be covered by said orginal mortgage or deed of trust of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company or any indenture to the Adams Trust Company supplemental thereto. The conveyance to the purchaser will be made without covenants, express or implied. Article XIII of said mortgage or deed of trust provides that said Fore River Ship & Engine Company will, upon request of the purchaser at foreclosure sale, make, execute and deliver to said purchaser a good and sufficient deed or deeds to confirm the title in said purchaser.

The said property will be sold as an entirety to the highest bidder, subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments and other liens, if any. No bid will be received from any person who shall not first deposit with the auctioneer, as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, the sum of Twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. Deposits so received from any unsuccessful bidders will be returned to them when the property shall be struck off, and the deposit so received from any successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price of the property sold. On the acceptance of any bid the purchaser shall forthwith pay to the auctioneer in addition to the amount of the deposit qualifying him to bid as above provided, the sum of Twenty five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. The purchaser shall within ten days from the date of sale pay to the Adams Trust Company as Trustee, on account of the purchase price, an additional sum sufficient to make his total payments equal to (50) per cent. of such purchase price, and the balance of the purchase price shall be paid and the property transferred on or before the expiration of thirty days from date of sale. In case any bidder shall fail to make good his bid upon its acceptance, or shall fail after its acceptance to make the further payments herein before required, then his right to receive and purchase the property shall at the option of the said Trust Company at once cease, and said Trust Company shall have the right to proceed at once to re-sell the property, and all sums deposited or paid by him shall be forfeited and shall be applied to the payment of the expenses and charges in connection with the re-sale and toward making good any deficiency, loss or damage resulting from such failure and re-sale, whether arising from the delay, from the fact that the second sale is made at a less price than the first, or from any other cause, and any balance remaining shall be repaid to the defaulting bidder or purchaser. The purchaser may in making payment of the purchase money, deliver to the Trustee any of the bonds or coupons secured by said mortgage or deed of trust, said bonds or coupons to be computed at a sum equal to that which would be payable out of the net proceeds of said sale (if made for money) to the purchaser as the holder of the bonds and coupons so delivered for his share or proportion of such net proceeds.

Further information may be had on application to the undersigned or its counsel.

Mortgagee's Sale.

BY Virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Thomas Smith (sometimes written Thomas W. Smith) to William S. Williams, dated August 31st, 1888, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, libro 610, folio 456, and also recorded with Town of Quincy Records, libro 10, folio 545, for breach of the conditions contained in said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction, upon the premises described in said mortgage, on SATURDAY, September 10th, A. D. 1904, at two o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises and goods and chattels described or held under said mortgage, viz:

"A certain lot of land situated in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and bounded and described as follows: Northerly on Water street, three hundred sixty-three and one-half (363 1-2) feet; easterly by land of John McKenzie, one hundred three (103) feet; southerly by land of Jeremiah Nightingale by a curved line, three hundred seventy-two (372) feet; westerly by land of said Nightingale, one hundred twenty-five (125) feet, excepting however a private passage way across said premises in a nearly direct line from Water street, running southerly eighty (80) feet, more or less, to land of said Nightingale; being eleven (11) feet wide and being one hundred eighty-seven (187) feet from the westerly bound of said premises; being the same premises conveyed to said grantor and James Murdock by said Nightingale by two deeds, one dated March 10, 1880, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 518, fol. 68, the other dated August 1, 1881, and recorded Lib. 530, fol. 429. Also the new polishing shop with additions, and barn thereon. Also all the machinery, tools, and implements, contained therein or attached thereto, consisting principally of one steam boiler, one steam engine, shafting, pulleys, belting, twelve (12) polishing machines, derricks. Also one horse and wagon in use."

Said premises, goods and chattels will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, tax titles and assessments whatsoever.

Three hundred dollars will be required to be paid down by purchaser at said sale. Further terms at the sale.

COLD STORAGE CLASS

Dr. Wiley's Plan to Investigate Chilled Food Diet.

TEST TO CONTINUE NINE MONTHS

Chickens, Beef, Fish, Vegetables and Fruit Subjected to Refrigeration Will Constitute Fare For Squad of Twelve Young Men—Nine-year-old Turkey May Be Served.

The food experiments that have been in process for the past two years at the department of agriculture will soon pass into another stage of the general inquiry, says the Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the chief chemist of the department, has concluded his determination of the effect on the human system of boracic preservatives in various foods and has now arranged to take up a study of the use of cold storage foods.

The experiment is one that presents possibly more difficulty than those which have preceded it. Twelve young men, most of them college graduates, athletic, healthy and studious, will form the class that is to sit at the hygienic table to be maintained in the chemical laboratory of the department. Each person takes an obligation to obey or honor the rules laid down for the experiment and not to eat any food but that provided in the experiment, and not to drink water without reporting the amount. The agreement also absolves the government from any responsibility for sickness or other evil consequences to follow as a result of the experiment.

In the tests as to boracic preservatives in food the borax was administered in capsules, the quantity being varied and increased to suit the premises of the experiment from day to day. Thus the appetite was not in any way disturbed at the time of taking the food. The amounts of borax were made to correspond to the amounts found by chemical analysis to be contained in the foods under test. With foods preserved in cold storage the capsule is out of the question. The appetite will enter as a most important factor, governing the amount of food taken into the system and thus influencing the effect on the health.

As far as possible artificial foods will be eliminated. For instance, butter is supplied free from coloring matter and from salt. Experts examine the milk and cream used, and it must contain no preservatives of any kind. Vegetables are those of the season or those kept in cold storage. Fruits must be those of the season or those preserved without antiseptics. Cold storage beef, chickens, ducks, turkeys, broilers, eggs, fish, oysters, clams, fruit and vegetables of all kinds will be on the bill of fare.

These articles will be kept in a cold storage plant to be provided at Washington, although arrangements have been considered for cold storage of foods in New York and Philadelphia. Foods from various parts of the country will be tested. Chicago's food industries will be especially studied in the course of the test, and some determinations made as to the character of cold storage products that have to be kept in transit several days before reaching the consumer.

A search will be made for beef and poultry that have been kept in cold storage for an unprecedented length of time. There is a turkey in Washington that has been on ice for nine years, and Dr. Wiley is negotiating for it and will serve it to his class if its purchase does not make too large inroads in his appropriation. The test is going to be a hard one for the "subjects." Their first meal will be a fine one, but after that they will face mysteries that would daunt the stoutest palate. During the tests fresh foods will be served, and then the same foods will be put away in cold storage and kept for different periods before serving again. For instance, a quarter of beef will furnish steaks at the beginning of the month and then be kept until thirty or sixty days or a year later and then tried. Expert chemists will pass on every morsel of food consumed by the class. Dr. Geddings of the public health service will be in attendance on the class from day to day. Experts in blood examinations will be employed, and chemical analysis will be applied to every phase of effect of the foods used on the systems of the young men. This involves an interminable amount of work which is of the greatest importance in the determination of results.

One of the interesting features of the tests will be the requirement from each member of the class that he should describe the taste of the foods taken, and he will be urged to eat heartily, as an unsuspecting consumer of such foods would in the ordinary conditions of life.

A Japanese Comment.

The beautiful Baroness Hayashi, the wife of the Japanese ambassador to London, attended recently a dinner party where a Frenchman held the table spellbound for an hour by an extraordinary dissertation on Japan, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. He described the Japanese mode of bathing, the Japanese dress, the Japanese religion and form of marriage proposal, the geisha's manner of making up her lips and eyes and nails—in a word, the most intimate secrets of Japan were exposed and minutely described by this Frenchman. He departed early. He had made a great success. After he was gone a young stockbroker said in a reverent tone: "What a wonderful man! He seems to know something about everything." "Except Japan," commented the Baroness Hayashi quietly.

GIRL HERO.

Rescues Drowning Man at North Weymouth.

Harry Smith employed at the summer residence of Joseph C. Morse at Rose Cliff, North Weymouth, was rescued from drowning Thursday by Miss Ernestine Atwood, a 16-year-old Melrose girl who is spending her summer at Rose cliff.

Smith started to swim to a float some distance from the shore when his strength gave out and he sank from exhaustion. Miss Atwood heard his cries and running to the float by a gangway built from the shore, dived for Smith and brought him to the surface, when her brother, Roy Atwood, assisted in bringing Smith ashore, where he was resusciated after considerable hard work.

Plymouth Races.

Several yachts of the Quincy and Wollaston clubs participated in the Y. R. A. open race at Plymouth, Thursday; all of which raced in the first handicap class. The Pocahontas of Wollaston secured first prize. The Usona of the Quincy club third prize.

There was an unusually stiff breeze and the Moondyne and Memento withdrew early in the race. The local yachts entered were Pocahontas, Usona, Thelema, Goblin, Hustler, Marvel, Moondyne and Memento. Today the yachts are racing at Duxbury. The summary of the Quincy boats was as fellows.

Thompson—Chase.

Samuel D. Thompson, a teacher at the Quincy High school was united in marriage on Wednesday evening to Miss Miriam B. Chase of Bangor, Me. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride; Rev. Elmer F. Pember of the Universalist church officiating.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Evelyn Chase and the groom by Mr. Edward Palmer of Boston. A large party of friends witnessed the ceremony which was followed by a brilliant reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside in Quincy.

Who Knows Him.

The police department has received a letter from H. T. Kearsey a solicitor at Great Grimsby seeking information as to the present whereabouts of Enoch or John Stones who was last heard from in Quincy in 1871. At that time he was about 30 years of age.

The letter states that Stone has been employed in Boston as a coachman for Col. Hutchings. That a letter received from Stone in 1871 stated that he had left Col. Hutchings and gone to Quincy where he had found employment with "a great railroad man." Nothing has been heard from him since that time.

The great railroad man referred to in the letter was probably Charles Francis Adams now of Lincoln.

Rev. Fr. S. M. Donovan, Order Franciscan Monks, a son of the late Dr. S. M. Donovan who was ordained at Rome, July 25, will celebrate Solemn High Mass at St. John's church, Sunday at 10.30.

—The wedding of Charles Eaton and Miss May Nelson of Wakefield on Wednesday evening ended in a runaway accident caused by a practical joke. The bride and groom and driver had a narrow escape from death, and the driver was so badly injured that he will be confined to his room for some time. The din of tin cans tied to the wheels frightened the horses and they broke into a run. Bisbee was thrown from his seat, his leg was broken, and he received an ugly gash in the back of his head.

—A crusade against tramps by the Boston & Maine officials, who have instructed their train crews to arrest all ridestealers, promptly followed by a sentence of the victims to the state farm under the new law which makes frieght train jumping prima facie evidence of a tramp, is an effective way to help break up these "yeggmen's" doings.

Cities are Extravagant.

Mrs. Harriet Hyatt Mayer, an eminent sculptor and daughter of the late Prof. Hyatt of Cambridge, has aroused the citizens of Gloucester by a circular to voters. She called attention to the city's debt of $1,720,518.81, to the exorbitant tax of $18.80, and then asked, 'Where are our good roads and improvements?' I declared that there is extravagance and dishonesty here. Some of the statements in the circular are:

"There are still honest men among the city fathers, fighting with commendable persistency for good and efficient government; give them your encouragement and hearty support."

"Gloucester is sinking into bankruptcy."

"What are you going to do about it?"

"We intend to work steadily and have come to stay; to use common sense rather than enthusiasm and to publish facts only.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $50,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $50,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

HER LITTLE SCHEME

By CYRUS DERICKSON

Copyright, 1904, by C. B. Lewis

"See here, James," said the old real estate dealer after he had listened to what young James Brighton had to say, "we can sum this thing up in a nutshell. You and my daughter Rose think you love each other, and you want to get married. Granted that it is a match made in heaven, you haven't a hundred dollars to your name. You are ambitious and willing, but that doesn't pay house rent nor buy mutton chops. I have no fault to find with you as a man, but until you have made headway in the world it will be useless to hope for my consent. Make a start—get $5,000 ahead—get prospects, and then come to me."

"But, sir," pleaded the young man as his face went white, "Rose and I are engaged."

"Then you are not as honorable a man as I thought you."

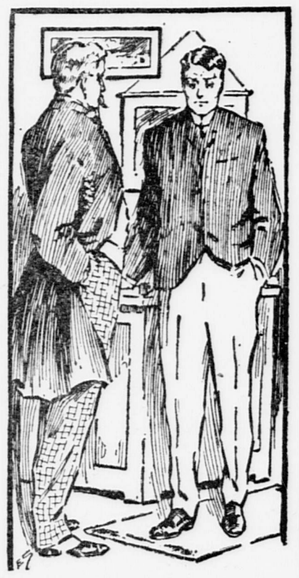

"But we love each other as no two people"—

"Bosh! If you love Rose as you say you do, get money to keep her from starving after you are married. As near as I can make out, you are depending upon me even to pay for the license. Love is all right in its way, and I would have my daughter marry no one who did not regard her as the only woman on earth, but love has got to be fed on beefsteak and potatoes to make it last. Married people have also got to have houses and furniture. Your income, James—may I ask what it is?"

"Twenty dollars a week, sir—but I have"—

"Expectations, of course. Well, expectations won't satisfy the coal man or the landlord."

James Brighton's face turned from a dead white to a vivid red. That he was a fine young man everybody admitted; that he was industrious and trustworthy his employers asserted; that he would some day have a reasonable share of wealth was almost to be calculated upon, but as a matter of fact he hadn't stopped to balance his love for Rose Henderson against so much for weekly expenses from week to week. It did look as if he was depending on the "old man," and as soon as he realized it his natural independence of spirit forced him to say:

"YOU ARE DEPENDING UPON ME EVEN TO PAY FOR THE LICENSE."

"You are right, Mr. Henderson. While Rose and I are engaged to be married, I promise you that we will take no further steps in that direction until I have accumulated at least $5,000. Thank you for your kind words, sir, and good day to you."

"He either means it or he has a trick up his sleeve," mused the old man after his would be son-in-law had departed. "At any rate, I'll keep an eye on him."

James Brighton had been doubtful of the result, but Rose not at all. She believed her sweetheart had only to ask for her hand to receive it with the father's blessing. For a few minutes after hearing the answer she was stunned. Then she quietly asked:

"Do you mean that we shall wait until you have somehow managed to save $5,000?"

"I told your father so."

"And how long will that take?"

"Well, I'm saving at the rate of $7 per week at present. Next year I hope to make it $10."

"And it will take you perhaps ten years?"

"Call it seven or eight."

They looked into each other's eyes for a long minute, and the girl hoped to hear him speak of an elopement or a secret marriage. Seven or eight years was an eternity. The young man was an ardent wooer, but he was also a man of strong principles, and he did not utter the words she waited for.

"And we will wait?" she finally whispered.

"I shall," he replied.

"And I"—

She didn't finish. He saw her eyes flash and her jaw set, and he wondered if she had a temper of her own after all. He had scarcely made his departure when she was walking her room with clinched hands. It was two hours before she sat down to reason things out. She was still reasoning at midnight, and it was two hours later before her plans were all completed. At breakfast table there were no signs of anger or disappointment or a broken heart, and the father winked at his plate and whispered to himself:

"Rose's either the best of daughters and ought to have a diamond ring for this, or she has some little scheme to spring on me. Very innocent girl, Rose is, but she'll bear watching."

He should have watched her that very day instead of making a journey of twenty miles and back to see a certain piece of real estate. While he was tramping over the broad acres of a farm and inspecting buildings she was talking with a lawyer whose reputation was generally referred to as "shady" and hunting up a quiet boarding house in the suburbs. When the father reached home it was to find the house in charge of an old servant and to learn that the young mistress had been absent all day. This was something so unusual that he was at once alarmed, and as night came he could hardly sit still. The night passed without a word from her, and he was making ready to call for the assistance of the police when a note from Rose was shoved under the front door by a boy who rang the bell and ran away. The note read that she had been kidnaped and was being held for $7,000 ransom. If the money was sent to a certain place she would be set at liberty at once. If not—well—

"I'll see 'em hanged first!" roared the father as he rose to the occasion. "She's been kidnaped by James Brighton, of course, but I'll have him behind the bars within an hour!"

The police found James Brighton easily enough, but he soon satisfied them that he had no hand in the affair. Naturally he was even more concerned than the father. He advised "no compromise," and for four days the police had charge of the case and worked every string they could grasp. Second and third notes were received from Rose. She was being well treated, but the money must be paid or the kidnapers would become desperate. Day and night the father and the lover hunted in company, but the bold fellows had covered their tracks too well. When the police acknowledged themselves beaten the ransom money was forwarded, and three hours later Rose was home. Never mind the tale she told. Suffice it to say that it was well told and hung together like a chain. It was two evenings later that she smilingly queried of James:

"Didn't you have an aunt die about a month ago?"

"Yes; a dear old soul."

"Didn't she leave you $5,000?"

"Bless me, but she hadn't $5,000 to"—

"Oh, but she had. If she didn't leave you this $5,000 I don't know how else you could have got it. I believe there was some understanding with father, eh?"

"Y-e-s, but—but"—

"Well, you've got $5,000, and—and"—

And they had been married three months when the astute old Mr. Henderson stopped on the street one day to give his leg a mighty slap and exclaim:

"What an old fool I am! It was Rose who had a little scheme to work, and by the jumping Joe she worked it!"

Hindoos as Fighters.

A native officer of India writes of the native soldiers: "The Sikhs or reformed Hindoos have all the qualities of the best fighters, and the Indians as well as their fellow subjects in Europe have indeed reason to be proud of them. There are two other castes in the Punjab also noted for their fighting qualities, the Jats and the Dogras. Another great fighting race in the Punjab inhabiting the northwestern part are commonly known as the Pathans. They are now Mohammedans by faith. The Gurkhas of Nepal, the only independent state in India, though generally below average height, have proved themselves the most indomitable, brave and hardy hill fighters. European officers attached to Gurkha regiments love their men and are proud of them. Their free and easy manners, abstemious habits, cheerful disposition, bravery in the field of war or of sport help to raise them in the estimation of all who come in contact with them. They are of Hindoo origin."

"Relics" of Waterloo.

The last time Victor Hugo went to Waterloo he saw some Belgian bumpkins discharging old firelocks at the walls of a freshly whitewashed farmhouse—La Ferme du Caillou, if I remember rightly. As he saw no target he asked why they did this. An elderly man of prosperous appearance, with a broad grin showing gaps in the teeth, said, "It is for the tourists."

"How for the tourists?"

"You see, the premises began to look out of repair and the house untidy. I had fresh plaster and whitewash put on. We are now making bullet marks to show the excursionists whom the old sergeants take round," and then, grinning more broadly: "You are a Frenchman and do not believe in relics. The English gape at them and buy them as fast as we can have them manufactured and write about them in notebooks."—London Truth.

Goethe's Burning Eyes.

Thackeray in one of his letters gives this description of Goethe, whom he saw at Weimar: "He was habited in a long gray or drab redingote, with a white neck cloth and a red ribbon in his buttonhole. He kept his hands behind his back, just as in Rauch's statuette. His complexion was very bright, clear and rosy, his eyes extraordinarily dark, piercing and brilliant. I felt quite afraid before them and recollect comparing them to the eyes of the hero of a certain romance called 'Melnoth the Wanderer,' which used to alarm us boys thirty years ago—eyes of an individual who had made a bargain with a certain person, and at extreme old age retained these eyes in all their awful splendor."

House Furnishings On Easy Payments.

But few Co-operative or savings banks would be in existence today if people couldn't deposit a little each week or month from their earnings.

But few of the homes of the working people today would be furnished in the comfortable and attractive manner they are if people couldn't pay a little each week or month from their earnings towards the furnishings.

Our co-operative plan encourages economy, makes attractive and comfortable homes with apparently no effort.

You can open an account with us at once, a a little each week, that's all, and you can have anything you wish for your home from a Piano down.

Ledger Learns Something About Missing John Stone.

The story in Friday's Ledger asking for information about Enoch or John Stone, who was said to have lived in Quincy about 1871, met the eye of Eugene W. O'Connor who immediately remembered the man and is able to furnish some facts about him.

Mr. O'Connor says that the man's name was John Enoch Stone, and that he came to Quincy about 1871 and entered the employ of the late Peter Butler, as a coachman. Mr. Butler at that time was largely interested in railroads.

Stone remained in the Butler family about three years. He then moved to Eagleston square, Boston, and found employment as a conductor on the street cars. He remained there several years. After leaving the railroad Mr. O'Connor lost sight of him and knows nothing of his whereabouts since that time.

Just previous to Stone leaving the employ of Mr. Butler, or just after, he married Annie Murray, who was also employed by the Butler family as a parlor maid. They had several children to Mr. O'Connor's knowledge so that some of the family are probably now around Boston.

Open launches, under thirty feet,—First prize, $10; second, $5.

[illegible] feet,—First prize, $10; second, $5.

Lobster power boats,—First prize, $10; second, $5.

Gee—Cain.

A very pretty home wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Laurens Maynard, corner of Washington and Union streets, South Braintree, at 10 o'clock, on Wednesday morning, August 24. The bride, Miss Angelina Parker Cain of Providence, R. I., is a sister to Mrs. Maynard and daughter of the late Stephen Cain, Jr., of East Weymouth. The bridegroom, Mr. James Gee of Arkwright, R. I., is well known in business circles in Providence, and New York, having been for many years superintendent of the Interlakers mills, and in full charge of the technical end of the largest manufactury of book cloth in the United States.

The ceremony was private, no invitations being issued, and only the immediate family of the bride being present. The two little nieces of the bride, Dorothy and Allegra attended as bridesmaids, and the ceremony was performed by Dr. William Gallagher. After a wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Gee left on the noon train for an extended wedding journey. On their return, they will reside at Arkwright, R. I.

Last Night's Fire.

The alarm from Box 25 at 6.43 last evening was for a fire in the office end of the old McKenzie & Paterson sheds on Canal street. The fire which was probably of incendiary origin started in the office but was discovered by a neighbor before it had made much headway. The damage was trifling. These buildings have been set on fire several times and should be torn down before someone succeeds in burning it.

An Extended Trip.

Today George A. Farquhar of 19 Centre street, Quincy, and W. H. Matherson of Braintree, start on an extended tour through the Canadian Northwest, by way of Montreal and Winnepeg. It is their intention to travel through British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, California, New Mexico and Texas.

Quarry Accident.

Luegi Palozzi, the ten-year-old son of Nicolas Palozzi of Water street, was severely injured this morning. He with other boys was playing in the old McKenzie & Paterson dump at the quarries when he fell upon the rocks. His face was cut and he was bruised about the body. He was removed to the City Hospital in the police ambulance.

NO RECEIVER.

Understanding Reached as to Fore River Company.

Foreclosure Sale to Take Place as Advertised.

Hearing in the Supreme Court on Petition of Federal Trust Co.

A hearing was held yesterday before Judge Morton, of the Supreme Judicial Court, on the application of the Federal Trust Company for an injunction to restrain the foreclosure sale of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company. The Federal Trust Company asserts that it was an underwriter for $50,000 of the bonds and that it took up its subscription. It claims that there have been other bonds illegally issued over and above the amount of the mortgage at first filed. It prays for the appointment of a receiver of the company, for an injunction restraining the foreclosure sale; for the Court to take possession of the property of the company and conduct the foreclosure sale; for an injunction restraining Francis R. Hart, of the Old Colony Trust Company, from interfering with the sale in any way.

Charles F. Choate, Jr., brings the petition and arrayed in opposition are some of the best lawyers in the State. It is alleged by the Federal Trust Company that on or about Oct. 22, 1902, the Fore River Ship & Engine Company being desirous of selling bonds to the amount of $1,000,000 or $1,250,000, a syndicate was formed and that the plaintiff subscribed to these bonds to the amount of $50,000

Dec. 6, 1902, it is set forth, the Ship and Engine Company executed to the deed of trust, whereby the Fore River company conveyed to the Adams company as trustee for the holders of the bonds secured by mortgage, all the real and personal property, rights, franchise, privileges, etc., then comprising, and which might thereafter comprise the manufacturing plant of the company, together with all buildings, etc.

It is further alleged that a majority of the said bonds are now held by persons who desire to secure the property for a new organization, and that a foreclosure sale has been advertised for Sept. 7. It is set forth by the plaintiff that by fair sale of the property the proceeds would be sufficient to pay the bonds in full, but that sufficient notice has not been given.

It is prayed that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the property and assets, and that it may be declared that the lyien of the said mortgage of trust deed applies to all future acquired property, and that the agreement with Francis R. Hart made on Dec. 6, 1902, be declared invalid and of no effect against the mortgage; that the mortgage be foreclosed under the direction of the court, and that the proceeds of said mortgage property be applied to the payment pro rata of the bonds secured thereby; that the Fore River company be enjoined from disposing of its property; and that the issue of 356 non-controvertible bonds be declared invalid and not entitled to the benefit or security of the mortgage of Dec. 6, 1902, and that the same be ordered delivered up by Hart for cancellation.

Among the witnesses, some of whom were on the stand were Gordon Abbott, T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., and Francis R. Hart of the Old Colony Trust Company, Sidney Coolidge and Arthur Adams of the Adams Trust Company.

This suit is similar in many respects to the suit of the State Street Trust Company against the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., which was settled out of court.

After hearing some of the evidence for the petitioner the hearing was suspended with the understanding that no receiver is to be appointed, and the sale is to take place on Sept. 7 as advertised. Certain matters are to be referred to a master, but these do not affect the proposed sale of the property. The matter of drawing a decree was left to counsel.

C. F. Choate and J. E. Cotter for the Federal Trust Co.; J. R. Dunbar for F. R. Hart; Ropes, Gray & Gorham for the Adams Trust Co.; Gaston, Snow & Saltonstall for Gordon Abbott and other bond-holders; R. F. Sturgis for the Fore River Co.

The weather predictions are fair for today and tomorrow, but many would be pleased to have a good shower.

ABUSES IN PRISON

Dr Galvin Says Revolt Will Come Unless the Grand Jury Acts

Boston, Aug. 27.—Some 500 persons attended a mass meeting in Faneuil hall last night and heard Dr. George W. Galvin and other speakers assail the administration of the penal and insane institutions in this state. Dr. Galvin for some months past has been asking for an investigation of the institutions. Letters were read from convicts in the state prison and also from an inmate of the women's insane hospital. In these letters stories of general abuses and cruelty were recited. Levi Brigham, a convict recently pardoned by Justice Morton of the state supreme court, also testified to the alleged abuses existing at the state farm at Bridgewater and at the state prison.

Dr. Galvin charged that the inmates of the penal and insane institutions were subjected to extreme cruelty, particularly those who had been put in solitary confinement. He recently placed evidence of alleged cruelty before the grand jury, and, in referring to this, he said that if the grand jury did not consider the evidence he had collected he was in a position to announce that on a certain date there would be a general revolt of the inmates of the state prison and one other penal institution in the state, the name of which he withheld.

Possibly a Brace of Yeggs

Plaistow, N. H., Aug. 27.—The police of this town captured two men, evidently tramps, whom they accuse of having shot John Kelley, a farmer, while ransacking his house. Kelley is suffering from a severe wound in the neck and his condition is considered serious. The two men were armed with 38-calibre revolvers, fully loaded. They gave their names as John Greenwood and James Johnson. Both were taken before Kelley and identified, after which they were arraigned, held without bail and lodged in the Exeter jail.

Passed Yacht In Distress

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Aug. 27.—An unknown sloop yacht in distress, with one man lost overboard, was passed about midnight in Pollock Rip slue by schooner John Douglass, from Bangor. A gale was blowing at the time, although the night was very clear with a bright moon. Those on the yacht asked to be towed to the Vineyard, but the Douglass was unable to render any assistance. The sloop appeared to be unmanagable.

Delmar Trots In 3:02 1-4

Readville, Mass., Aug. 27.—Major Delmar and Prince Alert had more than old time to race against in their journey against records, and they came out second best, for a zipping southwest breeze sweeping down the stretch conquered them. In spite of this, Major Delmar equalled the record of 2:02 1-4 made by Cresceus and himself, and Prince Alert put in a mile in 1:59 3-4, just a half-second away from the mark.

Chase For Alleged "Peeper"

Somerville, Mass., Aug. 27.—A daring eavesdroper badly frightened several women and caused considerable excitement here last evening. A young man who claims to be from Roxbury was arrested at 10 o'clock, after a long and exciting chase, and he will be arraigned in the local police court as the alleged "peeper." He has been identified by one of the women who were scared and annoyed by his actions.

ENDORSED BY TAFT

Sees Good In Every Official Act of President Roosevelt

AFFAIRS IN PHILIPPINES

Natives Will Be Given Independence When They Are Prepared, but It Cannot Now Safely Be Promised

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 27.—Secretary of War Taft opened the Republican campaign here with a speech calculated to defend the administration from attacks on all sides. He first reviewed the work of McKinley's administration in carrying through the Spanish war and in securing the gold standard. Then, turning to the present, he declared that the Republican party stands for what it stood in 1896 and 1900, while the Democratic platform and the Democratic candidate for president disagree; in a word, he said, the Democrats represent "organized incapacity."

President Roosevelt, he declared, is not a tyrant, but a leader, a patriot, than whom no one is more desirous of avoiding war. Moreover, he said, Roosevelt is still true to high ideals of public service, favoring clean methods and opposing corruption and the spoils system; and, as to the pension order, while it was not made by the president, it was approved by him and he assumes the responsibility for it. Mr. Taft ridiculed the charge that the president usurped the functions of congress in the Panama matter; nor is there any foundation, he asserted, for the criticism that the United States had instigated the Panama revolution.

In the matter of the coal strike, the secretary said, President Roosevelt acted not only as chief executive interested in the welfare of the country, but also as a public-spirited citizen, and for what he did he is entitled to the gratitude of the people. Again, it was the president himself who directed Mr. Knox to bring suit against the Northern Securities company, said Taft, and altogether the president's course in regard to trusts has been even and impartial.

Secretary Taft's remarks on the Philippine problem were substantially a review of the conditions that have existed since Dewey's victory. The speaker pointed out how civil government was established; how the school system was inaugurated, and then how the gold standard was introduced and a postoffice department organized. He also referred to other improvements which the government has undertaken, all with the object, he asserted, to "develop those beautiful gems of the Pacific as they should be developed, and to make their people a worthy nation of the world." As to the future policy Mr. Taft declared:

"The Republicans hope that the time may come when they may be safely granted independence, and think that it will come, but the reason why they are not in favor of promising that is because such a promise will greatly mislead the Filipino people and greatly complicate the situation in the Philippine islands with respect to the success of the present government there and its orderly continuance. No promise can be made to the Filipinos except that we will grant them independence when they are fit for complete self-government. The demagogues and the men of violence in the islands—the former leaders of the insurrection—will be glad to have an opportunity to charge this government with a breach of faith. We have been studiously careful to promise the Philippine islands nothing but what we could carry out."

Trade Conditions Irregular

New York, Aug. 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Trade has improved somewhat, chiefly because of better crop prospects and the fact that last week's variations in prices of steel products failed to demoralize that industry. The industrial atmosphere is still disturbed by labor controversies, however. Dispatches from leading cities indicate irregular conditions.

Stockyards Strike Goes On

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The conferences of the aldermanic committee appointed to attempt a settlement of the stockyards strike resulted in nothing. There is no present prospect that they will accomplish anything in the future and the chances of an agreement between the packers and the strikers appear very meagre.

Whipped and Jailed by Women

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 27.—Charged with insulting three courageous women, Ogden Wheatall was captured and beaten with two buggy whips and then taken to jail. Wheatall is accused of having insulted the women as they drove by him near the city.

Didn't Find the Samos

Boston, Aug. 27.—Tug Peter B. Bradley returned to port after an unsuccessful attempt to find and save the abandoned schooner Samos, which was deserted by its crew of six men and one woman, last Monday, when the craft was in danger of sinking.

Hoar's Heart Action Weaker

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 27.—The following bulletin was issued from the home of Senator Hoar: "The action of his heart has been weaker, but he is more comfortable."

WOMAN'S WORLD

MRS. FRONA EUNICE WAIT.

A Temperance Woman Who Is a Famous Wine Tester.

To be a professional wine taster and yet a strong advocate and follower of the strictest temperance principles, to take wine into the mouth all day long and day after day and yet rarely swallow it, this is the paradox which Mrs. Frona Eunice Wait of California has presented steadily for a period of ten years.

Mrs. Wait, who is one of four famous professional wine tasters in the world, was originally a newspaper woman and slipped into the work of critically tasting the wine which she had always before held in abhorrence, if not contempt, quite by accident. Visiting near some vineyards, she was asked to write a book about wines and wine making. Pleading her entire ignorance of the subject as a reason for the refusal which she did not wish to seem ungracious, she was surprised by an opportunity to spend six months in the vineyards studying the matter and on terms so advantageous that she hesitated to persist in her refusal. By the time the period of study had expired and the book had been written she was recognized authority upon wines and wine flavors. The work of professional wine tasting came gradually to her after that.

As to the effect the persistent and long continued wine tasting has upon her health, she declares that it has none, for the simple reason that she hardly ever swallows the wine.

"How does this peculiar business of mine affect my temperance principles?" she repeated when this question was propounded to her. "Why, not at all. I seldom swallow the wine, as I have said. I am so strict a believer in the temperance principles that I never take even tea or coffee, and in the rare cases in which I feel in duty bound to allow a little wine to slip down my throat it is just as a doctor might sample a drug merely in order to be able to make an intelligent judgment concerning it."—Boston Globe.

Gather Force.

If you are misunderstood look within yourself and ascertain whether your outward appearance and expression are true to your inner self or desire. It may be your own fault that your manner and expression misrepresent your purpose. If you cannot dress as well as the company you are in, do not allow your clothes to suppress your inner pride and dignity. It is then when it is most natural to feel the stings of sensitiveness and embarrassment, especially when your soul feels and knows you would have it otherwise. Financial circumstances have a powerful effect upon the proud and sensitive soul and body that would have only the perfect and beautiful if it could. Let me urge you at such times to charge your mind to introspection and to gather all the moral force within yourself, as if to fill your whole body with a divine dignity, which you possess if you will but use it. Do this with a determination that you can and must be recognized, even though outward appearances are against you and misrepresent your worthy desires. Force your individuality through the body as if you were filling a bag full to the brim, and you will at that instant feel a power take possession of you and a courage that immediately illuminates itself to all in your presence.

You will feel yourself standing more erect, more firm, and your real self and purpose will emanate from you just as the light shines through the globe of a lamp. You can light your life fluids and turn them on or off, just as you can the light of the lamp.—Household.

Saving Steps.

"Jennie, I wish you would sew a button on my vest, please, and there is a rip in my coat sleeve, too, that needs mending," said John West as he laid the garments in question over a chair preparatory for retiring for the night.

"Very well," answered Mrs. West in a tired voice. "I will have to go downstairs after needle and thread."

"I am sorry to trouble you so; but, my dear, I should think you would keep such things up here, when you know how often they are needed," said Mr. West, which was indeed a very wise remark.

Just try, tired mothers, the plan of keeping a few needles and a spool each of black and white thread in each room, and then teach your boys as well as girls to sew on loose or missing buttons and sew up small rents in their clothes, instead of running to tired mother every time.

Of course the weekly mending will still fall to "mother," but if this plan is tried it will save many steps and much valuable time for the busy housewife, besides teaching the children to be neat and tidy, a habit which, if learned while young, will be of great benefit to them when they grow up and perhaps have homes and children of their own.—Housekeeper.

Improving the Feet.

If one has long, flat feet, a good way to disguise the defect is to place a bow on the instep of slippers and ties. In the case of ties it is very hard to keep the bow in place, and, besides, untying it every time the shoe is removed rumples the ribbons. This difficulty may be overcome by making two parallel slits about half an inch long, a quarter of an inch apart, in the center of the tongue of each tie. Insert a ribbon and make a bow, tacking it on the underside. The tie may then be laced or unlaced without disturbing the bow. Be careful not to have the bow too large, as that fault would only offset the object of hiding a physical defect by calling attention to the wearer's lack of good taste in affecting an exaggeration of style.

Nursery Windows.

Correct ventilation should be had from the top of the windows either by means of a wheel introduced into the upper window pane or by the construction of a transom, say six inches or more deep, which shall extend quite across the window and which may be let down from the top, making a V shaped opening, and not opened from the bottom like an inverted V. The latter would direct a current of air upon the heads of the occupants; the former would make an injurious draft impossible. The windows, where the position of these may be selected, should be at least four feet from the floor. Where lower they should be provided with bars or strong wire lattice or screens.—Harper's.

Care of the Mouth.

To keep the mouth cleansed and free from injurious acids and bad tastes rinse several times a day with a mouthful or two of baking soda dissolved in water. This should not be a strong solution. A teaspoonful dissolved in a pint of water is the correct proportion. This may be kept in a closed vessel and used as occasion requires. A conscientious use of this excellent cure will not only keep the teeth from decaying so rapidly, but will tend to harden the gums and prevent irritation around defective teeth.

Parisian Mothers.

"Parisian mothers take their children about with them to a far greater extent than did English parents until quite recently," said an observant woman, "and the result seems to be wholly satisfactory. The little girls grow up as perfect little women of the world and are not plunged into an unknown sea when they come 'out.' Thus they do not have to waste one or two seasons in learning how to enjoy themselves and hold their own in the fashionable swim."

Thin Women.

Lean and lanky ladies should avoid pickles and very salty foods. They should take a dessertspoonful of olive oil before each meal and should sip a big tumblerful of hot milk at night. A raw egg taken in a little wine before breakfast is also good. Plenty of bread and butter, cereals, potatoes. Moderate exercise, plenty of sleep, no fretting—this is a great trio for making adipose tissue.

Rest For Kettles.

I once had burned a nice white porcelain lined kettle so badly that it seemed ruined, and after washing it was set away. Two weeks later I investigated and found that all the burned layer came off in washing without the least difficulty. Since then I rest all granite as well as porcelain ware when burned, with good results.—Exchange.

An Ironing Hint.

When necessary to iron a rough dry garment at once try this method: Dampen, roll tight, wrap in a cloth and then in paper and put into the oven while the irons are heating. Evaporation will cause it to be thoroughly dampened in time, but care must be taken that the oven is not hot enough to burn the goods.

For Firm Flesh.

It is a fortunate thing that the best remedies are the simplest, though women are more likely to refuse these and try those no better and harder to prepare. If one's body is flabby it may be made firm by slapping with a folded towel dipped in cold water.

If you break the gall bag in drawing poultry soak the bird half an hour in cold water in which a little soda has been dissolved, and the bitter taste will disappear.

Two umbrella ribs tied at one end, the other ends run through a cork to form a fork, make a fine long fork to toast bread on.

The knife should be held perpendicularly when cutting warm cake or corn bread.

Rub a greasy sink with kerosene, then wash with hot suds.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR
Steam or Hot Water Heaters
you can maintain a Florida temperature in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace.

We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

BRIGGSY

.....By.....

ROBERT C. V. MEYERS

Copyright, 1903, by Robert C. V. Meyers

NEVER in his life had Briggsy felt queerer than when he saw Carter pick up the little grayish "wad" that had dropped from the "old man's" pocket as he drew out his bundle of keys in passing rapidly through the workshop. It was quicker than a flash. The "old man" was just taking a long step over a big splash of oil on the floor, and he didn't get his foot down on the other side of it before the money was in Carter's pocket and Carter was at work again as if nothing had happened.

A chill went up Briggsy's spine, and then he burst into perspiration all over. It was as if he had done the thing himself.

But this couldn't be the end of it. The "old man" would certainly miss his money the quicker because he always walked with his hands in his pockets. It was a wonder that he didn't miss it before he got out of the room, yet Briggsy saw the door close behind him.

"He'll be back; he'll be back in a minute," thought Briggsy. "And then what'll I do? If it was anybody but Cart! It would kill his sister. I couldn't give away Mamie's brother. Not me!"

The thought of Mamie suggested an interesting possibility, and as the minutes passed and the "old man" did not come back Briggsy had time to consider the matter. The gist of it was that Carter had not taken this money for himself, but for his sister.

Mamie was lame. She couldn't walk a step alone. But the doctor who had looked out for her case more or less since she was hurt had said that with the aid of a certain complicated machine to support her back she could walk pretty well. The machine cost $50, and that was a good deal of money to earn. Briggsy had sometimes thought of borrowing it, but never of stealing it.

Then he fell to thinking of Mamie as he was accustomed to see her evening after evening at her window as he and Cart reached home, smiling and making believe she liked to sit there forever sewing at the work for which she was paid such starvation prices, though, as she said, the work was not over fine and probably worth not much more than she received for it. That was the way with Mamie, always looking on the bright side and encouraging her brother, who was often gloomy and blamed himself for the accident which had injured her spine.

For Carter a year before, thinking to have some fun with Briggsy, whose room adjoined the tiny flat inhabited by Cart and his sister, tied a string across the stairs for tripping purposes. Mamie tripped instead of Briggsy and afterward spent months in bed, only supplementing that inactivity by sitting at her window later on, her limbs powerless.

Briggsy wondered if she were not sometimes as gloomy as Cart when nobody was by and she sewing there alone and seeing no end to her helplessness. And now there might be a chance for her to walk. And yet—

He bent over his work and filed and polished with feverish energy. When the day's duties were over he waited for Carter, for they usually went home together. Carter had a frown on his face, such a frown as settled there when he was in his "bluest" mood. They walked along in silence.

Mamie's going to get that thing that'll help her to move about," Carter all at once broke out.

"It costs $50, don't it?" asked Briggsy.

"Suppose it does!" snarled Carter. "I've got the money."

Briggsy nodded.

"I've saved up for a year," Carter went on. "I've done without—oh, everything. She's got to walk, I tell you. The doctor says she must go out in the sun and air, and how can she do it without that machine? I'm going to get that machine tonight."

So they came to the store of surgical affairs, in the window of which were displayed odd looking bandages and steels designed to assist nature when the human frame had lost some of its machinery or was deficient in normal activity.

At the door Briggsy put his hand on his friend's arm.

"Cart," he said, "do you think Mamie 'll like you for doing this?"

Carter shook off the hand.

"Don't she want to walk?" he demanded. "There's nobody but her and me, and suppose something 'd happen to me and she'd be left by herself? Could she go on sitting up there alone and nobody to do anything for her? Ain't we alone in the world—father and mother both dead?"

Thus they went into the store, and in a few minutes more they were on their way to Mamie.

To see her white face light up when she spied them from her window, to hear her exclamation when Carter showed her what he had for her!

"Oh, Tom!" she said. "And you've saved for a year to get it!" She pulled his face down to hers. "I never told you, but I've wanted to walk so much. And now I'll learn all over again. And maybe I can go and find better paying work, for if you'd get sick or be laid off at the factory what should we do with the little I earn? Oh, Tom, what a dear fellow you are!"

But Carter was gloomier than ever.

"Now," he said, "I'll go and get Mrs. Willett to help you put the apparatus on. It's perfectly simple. You see, this bandage is on top at the back, and this stay comes down behind."

Briggsy left them and went to his own room, though he did not get his supper, as he should have done. He sat down and thought. Soon he heard Mamie laughing with glee and could hear her making her first attempt at walking, clumsily, heavily, but taking a step nevertheless.

"Yes," said Briggsy, pounding his hand on the table; "I'll do it." It was a firm resolution, and yet it did not enable him to make preparations for his supper. Instead for some time he sat there in the dark and never once raised his head.

Then all at once he heard a strange clamping sound outside his door. And there was Mamie, Cart's arm around her, positively standing upright.

"I thought I'd pay you a call," she said. "It's just grand! I'll learn to walk in no time. And then what holidays we'll have! We'll go to the country and see the trees and the birds or downtown to look at the parades. I'll soon learn, only I'm a bit nervous just now. And, Mr. George Briggs, I've come to invite you to take supper with us. We'll celebrate the day."

Of course Briggsy went.

"I'll get some cakes," said Carter and disappeared.

She was lively all the evening, so lively that it was a wonder her brother remained gloomy and at last said he had forgotten something and must go out. Briggsy also left the room.

"Going with me?" Carter asked. "I'm not feeling very well, and a walk 'll help me."

Briggsy said he believed he'd go to his own room.

"Go if you want to," growled Carter and went down the stairs.

Briggsy had a hard night of it. He scarcely slept at all. Once he said: "Anybody 'll believe it was me. I'm only a charity child. I'll do it."

In the morning he had no desire for breakfast. He did not wait for Carter, but went off alone an hour too early to go to work. He walked the streets till the factory whistle sounded and then went to the room where he and Carter and ten other men worked together.

Briggsy was the last to arrive, and the door had scarcely closed upon him when it opened to admit the "old man." His name was Hallett, and he was a fine old fellow, very well liked by the employees. He was of stout build, with a round, smooth, boyish face, and he had scanty gray hair which stood up in little tufts. It was said that these tufts stiffened like the hair on a cat's back when he was angry. On this particular morning they were in a strange tangle, as if he had been rubbing them in some dire strait of perplexity, and his manner was characterized by embarrassment.

"Er—gentlemen," he began, "there's a matter I want to speak to you about this morning." He paused and stretched his collar with his fingers as if it choked him. "To make a long story short," he continued, with a great effort, "I dropped some money in this room yesterday afternoon. Now, don't say a word. I'm not mistaken about it. I wish I were. The money was dropped right here—five ten dollar bills in a roll. The room has been searched, and the money's gone. Somebody's got it. Now, I don't want to be harsh. I know the temptation. Perhaps the man who found it didn't know it was mine. We'll say he didn't know where it came from. He just found it and put it into his pocket.

"Well, what shall we do about it? If he keeps it any longer he'll be a thief, and he'll be putting eleven honest men under unjust suspicion. He ought to give it back for the honor of his fellow workmen. And I say this: If he brings it back today that'll be the end of the matter." Then the old man went out.

There was a brief silence, and then Carter said in a low voice so charged with guilt that Briggsy looked around in wonder at the men who seemed to have no ears:

"It's a mistake. He never dropped it here."

This remark met with scant approval. It was the general opinion that the "old man" knew what he was talking about.

Just after the whistle blew one of the men called out: "If any man or boy here knows anything about that money let him be decent and own up and not let the rest of us bear the brunt of it. He'd better, for the 'old man's' got fire in his eyes, and the detectives will do the rest."

The detectives! Briggsy had not thought of them. He credited them with unfailing ability to unearth anything. It would never do to let them get in their work. And that man had said, "Let the guilty one own up!" The resolution of last night when he had pounded the table and said he would "do it" rose before him. But to brand himself like that! And yet there was no time to lose. If the detectives were called in which of the employees might be accused?

The result of Briggsy's meditations upon this matter was the conviction that he must do something, and do it mighty soon, yet the afternoon kept slipping away. Briggsy had a scared eye on Carter most of the time, and he tried to keep the other one on the door, through which he momentarily expected to see the detective of his imagination appear with handcuffs for the guilty. No such calamity occurred, and the time to quit work arrived at last.

Briggsy sneaked out of the room first, and he felt that every eye was on him. The grimly humorous fancy came to him that some of these men "would think themselves mighty smart" before long. His legs felt like pieces of string, but they carried him to the door of Hallett's private office. He knocked and was admitted.

Hallett sat in his accustomed place, and nobody else was present except a strange man, rather shabby and of a sad countenance, who was leaning on the edge of the big roll top desk. Briggsy eyed the stranger with alarm, suspecting his profession.

"Well," said Hallett, "what is it? Speak up!"

Briggsy took his courage in both hands.

"It's about the money," said he.

"So I supposed," remarked Hallett.

"Could—could a feller pay it back?" Briggsy began.

Hallett looked at him curiously.

"Why, certainly," said he. "That's what I told you all this morning."

"I mean slow," gasped Briggsy. "Terribly slow—say a—a dollar a week."

Hallett glanced suddenly up at the man who was leaning on the desk. The stranger took the hint and spoke up promptly:

"I'll tell you what, my boy," said he, "you ain't made up your mind. That's what's the matter with you. You don't know what you want to say. And my suggestion to you is that you go out and take a walk and think it over. I'll have a talk with you by and by."

"I'm ready," Briggsy began.

"No, you ain't," said the man. "You ain't ready, and neither am I. Go out and take a walk."

And Briggsy went.

In his room that evening he hardened his heart to bear the brand of shame. Nobody came near him. He judged that Mamie was not in her room. She must have learned to walk already, and her brother had gone out with her. She would have a good time, and Briggsy was glad of it, and as this agreeable thought came to temper the bitterness of his reflections he felt conscious of a drowsiness which was exceedingly merciful, and so he fell asleep, fully dressed, upon his bed.

He awoke refreshed and with a better courage in the early morning, and after a bite of breakfast he walked toward the factory with a strong and increasing resolution. He saw nothing of the detective nor of Mr. Hallett. He had vaguely expected that they would be waiting for him at the factory gate. One or two men looked at him peculiarly, but he encountered no unusual incident until he was inside the factory, when a man from the office met him and told him to go to Mr. Hallett's private room. This summons was like the closing of prison gates behind him, but he obeyed it readily.

He had decided to make no further offer to return the money piecemeal. He would earn it some day. That was all he knew about the matter. People were permitted to earn a little money in prison, he had heard. Anyhow, he would do his best. The money was spent. It couldn't be got back even if Carter were found out.

In the office were Mr. Hallett and the detective. One might have supposed that they hadn't moved since Briggsy was there last, their attitudes being precisely as he remembered them.

"Well, Briggs," said Hallett, "have you brought the money?"

"No," replied the boy. "I haven't brought it, and I can't bring it. It's gone. But you'll get it some day. That I'll swear to."

"Briggs," said the "old man" sternly, "you didn't take that money, but you know who did."

Briggsy drew himself up to his full height, which was a little more than five feet. He slapped himself on the chest.

"I'm the man," said he. "Lock me up."

Hallett looked at him for some seconds, smiling.

"We've found out where the money went," he said.

Briggsy turned faint.

"Don't you believe it!" he said. "You just listen to me, and I'll"—

"It went to buy a piece of apparatus for Miss Mamie Carter, a very bright, nice, honest little girl, as I see her," said Hallett. "She called on me last evening."

"She—called—on—you!"

"Yes," said Hallett. "She came with her brother. He was there by her request—distinctly by her request."

"You see," continued the "old man," "our little friend, our poor little friend who is lame, happened to hear about some money being lost, and, being of the feminine gender, she jumped to a conclusion. So she had it out with her brother, and the upshot of it was that he brought her to me with the walking machine in her hands, for, of course, she couldn't wear it after she'd found out how she'd come by it.

"Well," continued Hallett, after a pause, "that was a sight to draw tears from our friend here"—he jerked his thumb at the detective—"who doesn't weep often, as I'm well convinced. Miss Mamie was afraid the man who sold the machine wouldn't take it back and pay full price, but she was going to earn the difference herself. Now, it just struck me suddenly as she was making this proposal that she could earn the money easier if she had the harness to wear, so I begged her to keep it. And then her brother and I got down to business and settled our little affair upon some such basis as you proposed yesterday afternoon. So there'll be no trouble.

"And now, Briggs, a word to you. Don't try to palm yourself off for a thief again. You look too honest. You couldn't fool—why, you couldn't even fool a detective. He saw through you in a minute. Go back to work now, and we'll say no more about it. You did wrong. It's always wrong to shield a criminal or to help a misguided man to walk in the way of the transgressor. But, confound you, Briggs, I rather like you for it."

The Hay Feverite.

OH, a sorrowful sight
Is the hay feverite
Who is now up against his bad season.
He's a picture of woe,
And his actions well show
That for sorrow there's plenty of reason.

Often down his sad face
Do the scalding tears race
From the eyes that show much inflammation,
And his nose is so red
That he notes with much dread,
It's the center of wide observation.

He is painfully hoarse,
And his tones are all coarse,
And there's mixture of rasping and wheezing.
Every minute or two
He lets loose an "Atchoo!"
For much time he is spending in sneezing.

Oft he sadly will say
That he's plagued night and day
And that flesh by the pounds he is losing.
Daylight rest he can't take,
And at night he's awake
While all others are peacefully snoozing.

Oft he hoarsely assures
Us he's tried all the cures,
But in vain, for he found nothing doing.
So his woes he must bear,
With no peace anywhere,
While the fever its course is pursuing.

Yes, a sorrowful wight
Is the hay feverite,
And his troubles are surely heartrending.
But there's nothing to do;
He must just worry through,
And our sympathy we are extending.
—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Then There Was a Coldness.

Marie—Just think of the nerve of the fellow to propose to me!

Helen—Nerve? Why, it was absolute recklessness!

"Too Mean For Anything."

"Papa is just too mean for anything," said the girl in blue bitterly.

"What's the matter?" asked the girl in gray.

"Well, of course you heard of my marriage?"

"Oh, yes, of course. Wasn't that just lovely?"

"No, it wasn't," returned the girl in blue sharply.

"Why, I thought it was," said the girl in gray in surprise. "I heard that you eloped."

"We did."

"And that your father was chasing all over the country for you."

"Well, he wasn't. He acted just as mean as he could about it."

"What did he do?"

"He didn't do anything. I thought he'd make an awful fuss and get the story in all the papers, and then people would have talked about our romance, and we'd have been somebody. But he didn't make any fuss about it at all."

"That was strange," said the girl in gray.

"It was more than strange; it was downright mean. It just spoiled all the effect of the elopement. And that wasn't the meanest part of it either."

"What else did he do?"

"When we came back and tried to get up a little something dramatic by walking into the parlor and announcing that we were man and wife, he spoiled it all by just looking up from his paper and saying, 'Well, that lets me out of the cost of a wedding, doesn't it?' Why, I was so disappointed that I almost cried."
—Chicago Post.

Plainly Stated.

"Am I to understand," said the candidate, "that nothing will induce you to work for me?"

The professional politician looked at him reproachfully and replied:

"I am surprised at you. A man of your experience ought to know, sir, that nothing will not induce me to do anything for anybody."—Washington Star.

Not Like Other Girls.

"My daughter is very spiritual. She kept up her church work through all the hot weather."

"What kind of church work?"

"She went to the seashore and came home engaged to a clergyman."—Chicago Record.

Her Absence Explained.

The Toucan—And where is your wife now?

The Parrot—Oh, she's trimming a hat for a society woman.

Been Tried Before.

"What is this telegraphy without wires?"

"Well, when I was young they called it 'making eyes at the girls.'"—Chicago Record-Herald.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

It is announced that the Government Commission respecting the inspection of steamboats, as a result of the Slocum horror in New York, will recommend some very drastic legislation regarding the construction and handling of passenger steamboats on American waters. The old wooden ships will have to go; iron hulks, metal hatches, bulkheads for watertight and fire-proof compartments, licenses for all employed on the boats, etc., will be some of the new legislation recommended.

The Panama Commission is very busy with preliminary work in connection with the big canal. It is now sending to the Isthmus large quantities of dynamite for blasting purposes; and it will also establish a printing office in the Zone. The Government has decided to build a large naval station and dry dock at Panama. It is intended to make it the largest and most efficient on the western coast of this hemisphere. This is in anticipation, of course, of the day when the United State will control the commerce of the Pacific ocean, and be the paramount power in Asia. The Commission will not be able to control the Panama railroad until next April. After that time it is expected the carrying trade from this country to the Isthmus will be thrown open to competition. At present there is but little material to transport.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Mrs. Atherton, the novelist, says that people who live for art should never marry. But there is some art in managing husbands.—Lynn Item.

☞There will be no strike in the anthracite regions, all differences having been referred to Judge Gray for interpretation of past rulings and complete settlement. There is no element in the country that cannot rejoice over the fact.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞Nature has a strange way of doing the most wonderful things. Out of the oozy earth, the mud and the rain of early spring, come the most delicate flowers. Their white, leaves come up out of the dirt as unsullied and pure as if they had bloomed in the garden of Paradise.—Lynn Item.

☞The inevitable result of continued and persistent labor agitation is manifesting itself now in Chicago—no less than three manufacturing plants are seeking locations elsewhere. Repeated disturbances of that kind, beyond what manufacturers could stand, have driven hundreds of thousands of dollars in business away from Massachusetts. But what does the "walking delegate" care for that?—Waltham Free Press.

☞A fact which may have considerable significance in connection with the divorce problem has just been brought out in the English official records or judicial statistics for 1892, namely that out of 1050 suits in that year for dissolution of the marriage tie, 415 or nearly half, were cases where there had been no children by the marriage. That children form a strong tie to bind parents together is a fact of common knowledge, but that childless marriages in themselves tend to the divorce court seems a fair inference from these statistics and is certainly worthy of consideration. —Gloucester Times.

☞DeWyokhoff, the Chicago lawyer, who has paid $5000 for the hulk of the battleship Maine, says it will cost several hundred thousand dollars to raise it. He will build around it a gigantic tub of piles, then pump out all the water, leaving the ship in this dry dock. The ship originally cost $5,000,000, and he expects to find the machinery, which cost $735,000; the Harveyized steel armor, 180 feet long and twelve inches thick, with a value of $500 a ton; steel bulkheads six inches thick, steel turrets equipped with ten-inch guns, and two other batteries.—Gloucester Times.

☞Massachusetts towns and cities are now feeling the effects of the Iroquois theatre in Chicago in the application of more stringent rules for the prevention of panics, to their theatres and public halls.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞Governor Cunningham of Alabama goes as far as any man can go in his promises to prevent or punish lynchings. Now he must make good in practice, or be classed with the army of weaklings, glib at promise and backward in performance.—New Bedford Standard.

☞The Catholic Transcript notes that the vote of the Catholic church in this country is becoming divided and that no longer Catholicism and Democracy are synonymous. Why should they be, more than Methodism and Democracy or any similar combination. They don't fit in this country.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞Certainly the "Potter cocktail" was bound to come, and the bishop is henceforth enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen with a large piece of ice, a hooker of tom gin, a bit of lemon, just a dash of raspberry and a generous spray of soda. His speech at the Subway Tavern did it, accomplishing a recognition that few of his critics will ever achieve.—New Bedford Standard.

☞The Southern Ute Indians refuse to treat on the proposition for the purchase of the cliff dwellers' ruins in the Mesa Verde country, for the purpose of converting the section into a national park, because, as they say, the government has rarely kept the promises which have been made to them. In ordinary life such a reason is generally considered sufficient as an excuse for declining to do business.—New Bedford Standard.

☞Marshall Field is taxed for $40,000,000 in Chicago, of which his real estate assessment is $30,000,000, and personal assessment $10,000,000. This is, we believe, the largest amount on which any living American millionaire pays taxes. There are undoubtedly men who have more. But they swear off or dodge the tax payment. That is one thing which has made Mr. Field so widely honored the country over. He is recognized as a man who lives right up to his obligations under the law.—Record.

ANNUAL OUTING.

Night Teleghone Operators at Houghs Neck.

The night operators of the Boston district exchanges of the New England Telegraph and Telephone Co. held an outing yesterday at Houghs Neck. There was about fifty in the party. Headquarters were established at Notermans where dinner was served. In the afternoon there was a game of ball between the suburbans, captained by A. M. Driscoll, chief operator of the Quincy exchange and the Bostons. The suburban boys won by a score of 6 to 0.

The Morning Fire.

The alarm from Box 43 at 11.18 this noon was for a fire in a small building on Copeland street. The building was one that was formerly used as a shoe store and was partly destroyed by fire some time ago. Recently it had been used as a stable by Cain's express. There was a quantity of bundle hay in the building and is thought that the fire was caused by children playing with matches. The loss will not exceed $10.

Crop Report.

In its crop report for August, which will appear about Sept. 1, the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture will include the following summary of crop conditions, compiled from a careful study of the reports of about 150 correspondents.

Indian corn is still reported as somewhat backward and uneven, but is earing out well and unless killing frosts come at an unusually early date should mature a good crop. Were it not for the somewhat uneven stand, caused by poor germination of the seed, and in some cases damage from excessive moisture during the growing season, the crop would be an unusually heavy one. Corn planted for the silo promises an unusually heavy yield.

Frequent rains have kept rowen growing well and if it were not that the first crop on many fields was secured unusually late the yield of rowen would be one of the heaviest ever secured. As it is more than an average crop is assured. Cutting has begun in some sections, particularly where the first crop was secured early, but is by no means general as yet.

Late potatoes are somewhat backward, and but few were harvested at the time of making returns, not enough to predict with certainty as to the crop. The vines are generally reported as heavy, but some fears are expressed that tubers will be few in the hill and the crop not as large as previously indicated. Blight had appeared in western and central sections of the State, though not generally, and there were a few complaints of rot. In the counties of Bristol, Plymouth and Barnstable blight is reported to be general, with numerous complaints of rot. Should these diseases develop as indicated only a light crop can be looked for in these counties.

There is little change in the acreage of tobacco from the past few years. At the time of making returns cutting was beginning and by the close of the month the bulk of the crop will be secured. It is reported to be a heavy crop, with a broad, fine leaf, very free from insect damage, and in short, one of the finest crops ever secured at the time of going to the barns.

The frequent rains have kept pastures green and growing in almost all sections and seldom have they been reported in such good condition at this season of the year.

Apples will hardly give a crop up to the average of the "apple year," as it is in most sections, but the quality of the fruit promises to be excellent. Pears are giving only a light crop, less perhaps than has been previously indicated. Plums have generally yielded well, particularly the Japanese varieties. Peaches are almost a failure, few sections reporting even fair yields. Grapes promise a fair to good crop if frost does not come earlier than usual. Cranberries suffered from late spring frosts, and from hail and insect damage, and promise but a light crop in the sections of principal production.

Oats are a very good crop, but there are some reports of damage from rains at time of harvesting. Barley is little raised except as a forage crop, to feed green or for the silo. As forage crops both oats and barley have done unusually well.

This report, which will also contain an article by Prof. F. A. Waugh of the Massachusetts Agricultural College on "Harvesting and Marketing Apples," may be obtained by application to J. Lewis Ellsworth, secretary State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those wishing to receive these bulletins regularly may have their names placed on the permanent mailing list.

—The "ministerial dead line" has no terrors for a Congregationalist brother of whom The Advocate speaks: "Greenland in New Hampshire, has no 'icy mountains,' but its Congregational church has had one pastor for more than sixty years, and the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Edward Robie, has had no other charge. A parishioner who had 'sat under him,' as we Methodists say, for forty years was recently asked his opinion of Dr. Robie's preaching. He said it grew better every year. Dr. Robie evidently intends to keep up his reputation, for it is announced that at the age of eighty-three he is spending his vacation in Cambridge, attending the Summer School of Divinity."—Universalist Leader.

—One of the most remarkable forms of clock in the world is a clock fan manufactured by a Swiss jeweler. The clock consists of 12 leaves hinged like an ordinary fan. The number of the hour is marked from 1 to 12 at the end of each of these leaves. The fan timepiece starts at 6 o'clock and expands regularly for 12 hours, when it suddenly closes up and starts all over again. The half hour is indicated by the leaf of the fan being only half extended.

—The great field of crystallized salt at Salton, Cal., in the middle of the Colorado desert, is 264 feet below the level of the sea and is more than 1000 acres in extent. Its surface is as white as snow, and when the sun is shining its brilliance is too dazzling for the eye. The field is constantly supplied by the many salt springs in the adjacent foothills.

ST. SWITHIN'S DAY.

The Venerable Superstition That Is Associated With July 15.

St. Swithin's day falls on July 15, and in England there is a superstition that if it rains on that date the succeeding forty days will be wet, and if, on the contrary, St. Swithin's day be fair then the succeeding twoscore days will likewise be pleasant. The superstition is venerable, for one old historian remarks that "St. Swithin, a holy bishop of Winchester, about the year 860 was called the weeping St. Swithin, for that about his feast Praesepe and Aselli, rainy constellations, arise cosmically and commonly cause rain."

Another version of the story is that the good bishop left orders at his death that he should be buried in the open churchyard and not in the chancel. The monks, however, disobeyed the wishes of their dead and laid him to rest on July 15 within the minster, whereupon rain fell heavily and continually till on the fortieth day the offending priests became alarmed and hastened to fulfill their dead bishop's request.

Statistics furnished by the officials at Greenwich observatory discredit the accuracy of the whole tale. The figures for one period of twenty years go to show that the greater number of rainy days after St. Swithin's day followed a dry July 15.

A PAINTER'S ARTIFICE.

The Secret of the Color In One of Turner's Pictures.

The late Mr. Horsley, R. A., has recorded that at one time he studied almost daily one of Turner's finest water colors, called "The Snowdon Range," admiring especially the tender warmth of the light clouds encircling the moon. He tried all sorts of glasses to see if he could discover how the particular glow was gained, but without success.

Chance revealed the secret. The picture began to buckle from its mount, and its owner, Sir Seymour Haden, put it into the hands of a noted expert to be remounted. When he had successfully removed it from its old mount the expert sent for the owner to show him what he had discovered. A circle of orange vermilion had been plastered on the back with an ivory palette knife where the artist wanted the effect and then worked off sufficiently far through the pores of the previously wetted paper to give the show of color, while retaining the smooth surface, without a trace of workmanship on the right side.

This may have led Mr. Horsley himself to use, as he did, brilliant orange as the foundation for a white muslin dress.

OPEN AIR STATE JAIL.

Primitive Place of Confinement In Montenegro.

The open air state jail of Cettinje, Montenegro, is unique in Europe. This primitive place of confinement is situated in the principal public square of the Montenegrin capital. Persons guilty of such minor offenses as assault or petty thefts are sentenced to imprisonment in the open air jail. The prisoners are allowed to roam about the square at will, the mere fact that they have been deprived of their weapons being considered appropriate punishment. At night the prisoners are removed to a room in the town hall, where they have far more comfortable quarters than they would have at home. The thought of escaping from their open air jail seldom occurs to them, and even if it did there is no place where they could find refuge. The Montenegrins are, above all, men of honor, and were a prisoner to escape the population of Cettinje would soon be at the heels of the fugitive guilty of having broken his promise not to attempt to escape.—New York Tribune.

A Clock Without Works.

In the courtyard of the palace of Versailles is a clock with one hand, called L'Horloge de la Mort du Roi. It contains no works, but consists merely of a face in the form of a sun, surrounded by rays. On the death of a king the hand is set to the moment of his demise and remains unaltered till his successor has joined him in the grave. This custom originated under Louis XIII. and continued till the revolution. It was revived on the death of Louis XVIII., and the hand still continues fixed on the precise moment of that monarch's death.

Appearance a Protection.

"Appearances are deceitful" is an old saying, which was illustrated by an old lady in one of our banks a few days ago.

She drew out a sum very near the $1,000 mark. The banker kindly asked her if she did not wish an escort to her destination in order to insure protection for the large amount. Looking calmly at the banker, she replied, "Why, nobody would think I had more than $1.25!"—Rumford Falls Times.

Visitor (to particular friend, who has had several new dresses laid on the bed to choose from)—I do wish you would tell me the name of the woman you sell your things to. I've got a lot of old gowns like these that I want to get rid of.—Punch.

Sympathy.

"Boss," began the beggar, "won't yer help a poor"—

"See here," interrupted Goodheart, "I gave you some money last week."

"Well, gee whiz! Ain't yer earned any more since?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

When a man fools his wife and is ashamed of it, it is not so serious, but when he thinks he has a right to fool her, that is serious.—Atchison Globe.

CITY BREVITIES.

Special meeting of the City Council next Monday.

Nice autumnal weather we are enjoying at this time.

Thomas J. Dunphy has retuned from a two weeks' vacation.

Quite a lot of the lumber for the new Y. M. C. A. building has arrived.

There was a slight frost noticed this morning in some places in Quincy.

Herman Gammons of Bridgewater, a recent graduate of Harvard, has accepted a position as assistant at the High school.

It is said that a Quincy Point young man is about to open a small store on Washington street, near the Thomas hammock factory.

Mr. Arthur Parker, employed at the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., leaves tonight for his home in Philadelphia, where he will spend his vacation.

James W. Murray, the day officer in City Square, was taken ill this morning and had to be sent home. Officer Murray has been having trouble with his stomach for the past few days and today's illness was caused by that.

Capt. Bert Pitts of the schooner yacht Ituna, together with Messrs. Thayer and Schumacher, returned last night after a continued cruise along the South Shore. With the full moon and a fair breeze blowing from the north the party enjoyed themselves immensely.

GRIGNON SENTENCED

Alleged Hugger Sent to Concord Reformatory.

Fred Grignon, the young Wollaston man who it was alleged was the party who was chacing unprotected females on Newport avenue some time ago was sent to the reformatory at Concord by Judge Avery this morning for an indefinite period. There were three complaints against the young man all alleging assault. The cases were called in court some weeks ago at which time they were heard and continued until this morning for judgment. The court found him guilty upon all three complaints. Two were placed on file and he was sentenced upon the third which was for assault on Ida Mannister.

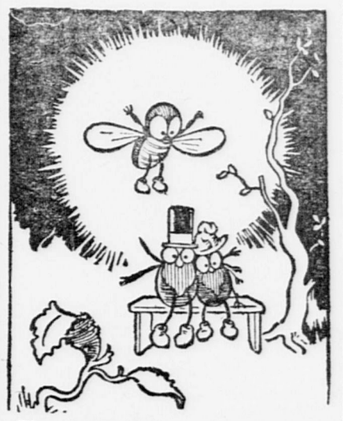

Surprise Party.

Walter S. Nicol of 15 Centre street was tendered a surprise party last evening; about thirty-five of his young friends were present. During the early part of the evening Miss Florrie Farquhar, in behalf of his friends presented him with a beautiful chased ring, after which games and music was enjoyed; also refreshments. All left at a late hour wishing Walter many returns of the evening.

Among those present were: Misses Lillie Berry, Ethel Schools, Helen Schools, Florrie Farquhar, Annie Peterson, Minnie Frazer, Gertie Frazer, Marion Frazer, Sidney Alquist, Jennie Boutilier, Emeline O'Brien, Marguerite O'Brien, May Galvin, Masters Archie Allen, Frank Boutilier, George Boutilier, Harry Boutilier, George Corcoran, James King, Robert King, Leo Milford, Arthur Rennie, Frankie O'Brien, Fred O'Brien, Robert Farquhar and many others.

—A stalk of meadow grass, grown in the Frog pond meadow, is exhibited at Hopkinton, N. H. It lacks an inch of nine feet in length.

Very Annoying.

Fly Lover—Bother that miserable firefly! I wish he'd go away!

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

Large Gathering of Party Leaders at Nantasket Point.

A grand ratification meeting of the Boston Republican club is being held today at Nantasket. It will undoubtedly be the biggest gathering of party leaders in this vicinity for years. Twenty-three clubs will participate. This afternoon there was a series of sports which will conclude with a ball game between the Young Men's Republican club of Ward 20 and the Boston Y. M. C. A. Dinner was served about 3 o'clock. The speaking takes place at 6 o'clock tonight with ex-Senator Barry of Ward 20 as presiding officer.

The speakers will be Senator Lodge, Lieut. Gov. Guild and Chairman Bolton of the Republican City Committee.

Among the invited guests are Congressman Tirrell of Natick, ex-Mayor Curtis of Boston, ex-representative Murray of Roxbury, G. N. Swallow and Senator Bemis of Foxboro.

Pictorial Postal Cards.

In Australia, a country where things are cared for by the government to a much greater extent than in this country, the post office department is to take up the supplying of pictorial postal cards. An offer has just been made of prizes of $50, $25 and $15, for three series of twelve designs intended for use throughout the commonwealth. These designs are to consist entirely of Australian subjects, and the cards will be used in the same manner as the pictorial or souvenir cards which are now so popular in this country. We presume that the extensive use of the pictorial postal card is largely a passing fancy of the hour, but if it were not, and were certain to be permanent, we doubt if the post office department would do half as well with it as is done by private enterprise. Australia is evidently going to be furnished with thirty-six different cards for the whole country. In the United States as many as that are often supplied for one town, and hardly a place large enough to call for souvenir postal cards furnishes less than half a dozen. Beside, under the stimulus of competition and the demands of customers, there is continually a lively endeavor to furnish new and more attractive subjects. And these are produced in far less time than any government management could produce them, while if they are unpopular they speedily disappear from the market. As much of the charm of a pictorial postal card consists in its freshness and novelty, a system which furnishes them at short notice is desirable. It is true that many of the souvenir cards which are sold in this country are not of a high order of art. Among the colored ones, especially, there are many rank offenders. But there are also many that are in excellent taste, and most of those which are plainly printed from half-tone plates are good. They make pleasant and satisfactory reminders of the remembrance of friends who are journeying, even if they tend to bring letter-writing more and more into disuse. The pictorial postal card serves a useful purpose; but its manufacture would better be left untrammelled by any governmental interference except such as is necessary to ensure propriety and to facilitate its transmission through the mails.—New Bedford Standard.

Elongated Palates.

It is not an uncommon thing to suffer for an elongated palate, which causes great discomfort in various ways. It is inflamed by cold and then aggravates a persistent cough. It brings a sense of oppression in one's breathing, and it is sure to make itself felt in long continued talking. Doctors are generally loath to touch it. Perhaps the most quickly efficacious treatment recommended by them is gargling with alum water just before brushing the teeth. This has been known to work a radical bettering of the distress.—Pearson's.

Jumping.

Long and high jumping alike give elasticity of movement to the person with sluggish, heavy gait. The high jump should be practiced over a piece of cotton fixed to two poles or other supports. This cannot possibly occasion a fall. A piece of white paper run on the cotton near the center will be easily distinguishable. The student unused to jumping should begin with a nominal height, say twelve inches, increasing this as advance is made in proficiency.

"What a homely shirt!"

"Yes. My wife picked it out."

"Why, man, haven't you any taste yourself?"

"Not for a quarrel with my wife."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The nights this week have been decidedly fallish.

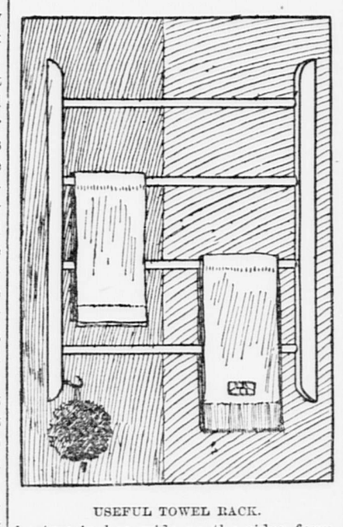

How to Make It So That It Will Turn Out Moist and Tender.

A moist and tender angel cake is one of the best things in all the art of cookery. Too many housekeepers make this cake tough, dry and flavorless. An excellent recipe is as follows: Take the whites of nine large eggs. Add to them a pinch of salt and whip them lightly until they are partly stiff, then add half a teaspoonful of cream of tartar and whip them until very stiff. Fold in carefully one and one-fourth cups of granulated sugar that has been sifted three times. Sift one cupful of the best pastry flour seven times (if you want a perfect cake), and fold it into the sugar and whipped eggs lightly. Last of all add a teaspoonful of vanilla. Turn the cake into a large, unbuttered pan. Bake in a moderate oven from thirty-five to fifty minutes. Never open the oven door until you think the cake is done, as it falls very easily. On taking it from the oven turn it upside down in such a way that a current of air will pass under it until it is cold. When cold loosen the cake from the sides of the pan and lift it out. It should be so delicately baked that this will not be difficult. If you intend to ice it cover it with a soft uncooked icing made of powdered sugar, white of egg and a very little vanilla. Angel cake is generally better for being kept a day before serving. If it is a little tough place it in a stone jar and cover with a plate. Let it stand for two or three days in this way and it will become tender.

TOWEL RACK.

One You Can Make to Fit the Corner of the Bathroom.

A useful towel rack for a corner of the bathroom is made from four round sticks, or dowels, three-fourths of an inch in diameter and from twelve to twenty inches long, according to the room or space there may be in the corner to accommodate it. A pine or whitewood stick two inches square is sawed through its length to produce two triangular sticks, which should be about thirty inches long. These will be two inches wide on the sides forming the right angle, and the widest of the three sides is to fit against the wall. With a knife and small plane round off the top and bottom of each stick, and at corresponding spaces bore holes in each stick with a three-fourths of an inch bit to receive the ends of the dowels. No matter what length the dowels are cut, if the holes are bored straight the sides or angle strips will lie flat on the sides of the wall, as shown in the illustration, which is a view looking down upon the rack from a position directly over it. The ends of the dowels should be wet with glue, and a slim nail or screw passed through the stick and into the dowels will give additional strength. All the dowels should be sandpapered smooth and the woodwork given three or four thin coats of enamel paint in white or any desired shade.

A New Danger In Corsets.

Writing to the Lancet, Dr. R. C. Lucas adds a new count to the indictment against the corset—namely, that under certain circumstances it may be responsible for cancer. Three cases have come under the doctor's notice in which cancer in women started at a point where the edge of the corset crosses the edge of the big muscle of the chest. In describing two of them he says: "It occurred on the right side in each case, and in women whose occupations led them to undue use of the right arm, and in consequence to excessive friction of the upper edge of the corset. The friction of the corset at this spot is therefore the cause of a cancerous process developing in this situation, and to express this fact I have given it the name of corset cancer."

For the Kitchen.

A high wooden stool and a small three legged one are of great use in a kitchen. The former is a help to a tired person, who can often do as much when sitting at the kitchen table as when standing. A small stool is useful in many ways. Not only can one rest one's feet on it, but in reaching high shelves one often needs a stool to stand on. It is also convenient as a seat when one stoops down to arrange foods in a refrigerator and as a basket holder when one hangs out or irons clothes.

Arranging Flowers.

To make flowers stand up nicely in a vase get a piece of ordinary wire netting, roll it up into a ball and put it at the bottom of the vase. Stick the stalks into the netting, and the flowers will remain in the position you place them in, yet without the least appearance of stiffness.

The Work That Must Be Done by a Successful Editor.

The poor editor who should be so fatuous as to depend for the contents of his magazine on the driftwood that came in to him would soon be replaced or his magazine would needs go out of business. Not only has the day gone by when editors sat in easy chairs and majestically sifted wheat from chaff in the piles of stuff sent prayerfully to them, but gone, too, is the day when an editor could sit in his office and plan a good magazine out of his inner consciousness. A good magazine today represents the skillful collaboration of several bright, keen men, or men and women, and its makeup is a nice medium between what the editors have reason to think their subscribers want and what they have reason to think their contributors can do best.

It is an important part of good editing nowadays to keep in as close touch as possible with the greatest possible number and variety of persons who write. It is part of an editor's business to keep well informed on all the new books and all his contemporaries among the periodicals—to know (better, perhaps, than the man himself knows) what kind or kinds of work any given man can best do and to have the knowledge filed away in his memory for ready reference. It is part of his business, too, to see and talk with, whenever he can, not only the persons who are trying to write for him, but all persons whose situation in life is at all interesting in a way which ought some day to make them valuable to him.—Clara E. Laughlin in Reader.

SPORTING RIGHTS.

Only Source of Income of Many Titled English Families.

Were it not for the enormous sums paid for fishing and shooting rights many people of ancient names and goodly title would, in the most literal sense, have no means of livelihood whatever, and only the other day one of the best known property agents of the west end of London drew up for the writer a list of a dozen people mixing in society of an exclusive kind, every penny of whose income is derived from the letting of sporting rights.

Nearly all the money thus expended has been made in commerce, and the agent referred to above showed documentary evidence proving that there are lots of men who do not mind paying as much as £100 for every deer, £3 for every trout and £20 every salmon they kill, plus the sport of killing them. One of the most remarkable features of this letting is the fact that only about one in every hundred of the owners of ancient sporting rights ever enjoys his privileges as a sportsman. He either prefers or is compelled to part with such privileges, and those who take advantage of them are nearly all people in business.

This renting of fishing and sporting has even extended down to comparatively humble people in the provinces. Many a small Yorkshire farmer is being kept, and well kept, not by his farming, but by the letting of some comparatively insignificant sporting right.—London Tit-Bits.

Holmes' Inspiration.

There is hardly room for doubt that Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes was encouraged to write his "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" by reading "Table Talk"—being "The Discourses of John Selden, Esq., or His Sence of Various Matters of Weight and High Consequence Relating Especially to Religion and State." The work belongs to 1634-54 and treats of such topics as articles, baptism, Bible, bishops, books, ceremony, Christmas, clergy, confession, conscience, creed, duel, epitaph, faith and works, gentlemen, holy days, idolatry, Jews, juggling, king, law, lectures, liturgy, marriage, money, oaths, oracles, poetry, popery, presbytery, proverbs, religion, sacraments, trade, truth, university, wit and women. For the thousandth time, "Nothing new under the sun!"—New York Press.

Good Watch Stands Hard Knocks.

"The knocks a good watch may be subjected to and yet come out uninjured are most remarkable," said the jeweler as he attached his glass to one eye and peered into the workings of a timepiece. "This watch is supposed to have fallen a distance of more than a hundred feet, and I can detect not the slightest disorder. A few days ago a countryman brought a watch to me which he wished examined. He had lost it in a field, and it had lain out there, exposed to the elements, for six weeks, part of the time being submerged in water. It was in perfect condition, not even a speck of rust in the case."—Columbus Dispatch.

Animals' Love of Sweets.

This love of sweets is very common in our animal neighbors, from the bee to the horse. If you want to please a horse try giving him two or three lumps of sugar. Not only the bees, but the wasps, flies, butterflies and indeed nearly all insects, are conspicuously attracted to sweets, and it is this sweet tooth which leads the insect to visit flowers and thus help them to produce seeds.—St. Nicholas.

Thought.

"But you can't make a machine that will think."

"No," replied the inventor, "and I wouldn't if I could—if I thought it would think as some people do."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A bad memory often enables us to remember the things we should forget.

The Fall River Mills.

The discussion about the probable starting of the Seaconnet mills has been brought to an end. The directors have decided that it would be better for the Seaconnet mills to follow the policy of the majority and not try to open until the executive committee of the Manufacturers' association deemed such a movement prudent for all the mills. Mr. Cunneen, the agent, has fallen in with their suggestions and will not try to start alone.

With this element of doubt removed, the officers of the Cotton Manufacturers' association are firmer today than they have ever been in the belief that there will be no break in the ranks of the signers to the wage agreement. The renewal of speculation in cotton has further added to the difficulties in the way of the manufacturers who might care to run and today the feeling in favor of keeping the mills closed is stronger than it has been at any time since the strike began.

TODAY'S COURT.

Geo. L. Reed was fined $5 for speeding an automobile at Milton.

Albert M. Brown was fined $25, Frank W. Lee $15, Albert P. Irving $10, and Henry M. Loomer $15, for speeding automobiles in the Blue Hills reservation.

Daniel Sawyer was arraigned for speeding an automobile at the Blue Hills reservation. Case continued until Sept. 14.

The three cases against Fred Grignon for assault at Quincy came up on continuance. On the complaint of Ida Mannister he was found guilty and sent to the Concord reformatory. He was found guilty on the other complaints and they were placed on file.

Munroe's Pugilistic Star Set Rather Hurriedly

JEFFRIES STILL CHAMPION

Man From the Mines Received Finishing Touches In Less Than Five Minutes After Contest Begun--He Is Rewarded With Hoots From the Crowd

San Francisco, Aug. 27.—Like the veriest anateur in the prize ring Jack Munroe of Butte, Mont., went down and out before Champion James Jeffries last night in the second round. Munroe made such an extremely sorry showing that the great throng in Mechanics pavilion roundly hooted him as he protested to Referee Graney against the decision that had been given in favor of Jeffries.

JAMES J. JEFFRIES.

The two giants had not been in the ring two minutes when it was foreseen that the aspirations of Munroe would be quickly disposed of. The miner was scared and awkward and Jeffries in the first round had him twice on the canvas taking the count.

Jeffries directed his bombardment against the stomach of his opponent and each shot was followed by a blow on the jaw that sent Munroe to his knees. Jeffries went back to his corner after the opening round with a sneer and a laugh on his swarthy face, while Munroe's seconds busied themselves with smelling salts and restoratives.

When the two came together for the second round the laugh on the champion's visage changed to a look of determination that boded ill to the miner. Forty-five seconds after the gong sounded Munroe was lying on the floor, a bloody, bruised mass of humanity, with Jeffries standing over him, ready, if necessary, to put the quietus on the championship ambitions of his adversary. The miner was too dazed to rise to his feet and the time-keepers counted him out, but the Californian did not understand that the victory was already his, nor could Munroe realize that his pugilistic star had so early set, and the two men, in a moment or two, were facing one another and Jeffries landed a terrific blow on the jaw of his staggering opponent.

It was at this time that Graney came forward and ordered Jeffries away, telling him that the fight had ended in his favor. Munroe tottered to his corner with blood streaming from his face and fell into his chair dazed and helpless.

His seconds immediately began working on him to revive him and when he came to a realization that the fight had gone against him, he rose and, going over to Referee Graney, began to protest. The huge crowd understood his protesting and a mighty volume of jeering and hissing evidenced the sentiment of the spectators.

From the time the bell rang for the commencement of the battle to the time that the count of ten had been uttered against Munroe, only 4 3-4 minutes had elapsed. The fight demonstrated, if nothing else, that the world has yet to produce a pugilist who will displace James Jeffries as champion of the world.

Estimates of the number in attendance at the contest range from 7000 to 9000 and it is believed that the gate receipts will approximate $35,000.

The miner's showing was a disappointment to those who had the confidence that he would at least repeat in some degree his performance in Butte when Jeffries failed to put him out in four rounds. The fight by rounds:

Round 1—Both advanced slowly to the centre and indulged in light sparring. Munroe was the first to lead with a left that was short. Jeffries danced around his opponent, drew him into a clinch and missed a right for the body. Jeffries was chewing gum and smiling. Jeffries sent Munroe to the floor with a left hook to the jaw. Munroe was up quickly, but the champion drove a straight right to the head and followed it with a left swing to the stomach. Jeffries followed his advantage, forcing Munroe to the ropes with right and left to the body. A well directed left to the jaw sent Munroe to the ropes for eight seconds. He arose, but again was floored with a similar blow. Jeffries started a vicious right on the jaw, but the bell rang and the champion stayed its progress. Munroe did not land a blow and looked nearly out as his seconds showed him to his corner.

Round 2—They went to a clinch. Munroe received a left swing to the mouth that made him spit blood. He bored in, but Jeffries was unrelenting, smashing him all over the body with lefts and rights and floored the miner again. Blood flowed from Munroe's face and ears. Then a terrific left to the face rendered the miner helpless. He sank slowly to the floor and attempted to rise. Jeffries was waiting for him, but before the champion could land on his helpless victim Referee Graney grabbed him and declared Jeffries the winner.

Vermont's Petrified Man

Rutland, Vt., Aug. 27.—Professor Richardson of Dartmouth college, who has examined the petrified body at Washington, Vt., declares it to be hundreds of years old. From the position of the body, when found, he said the man must have been murdered. When taken from the ground the body was almost as soft as clay, but as soon as it dried it hardened. It weighs about 350 pounds now and is 5 feet 9 inches in height.

What Should the Young Man Do to Succeed?

By THOMAS N. HART, Former Mayor of Boston

THE question of what a young man should do, what means he should take, in order that he may achieve success in life, DEPENDS ENTIRELY UPON THE YOUNG MAN HIMSELF.

The young man who wants to succeed, who is willing to take measures that will make him successful, is a success from the very first. In every establishment where a number of people are employed you will find that a certain number of the young men or boys who come in immediately make themselves useful, so useful, in fact, that they find that people cannot get along very well without them.

THESE ARE THE BOYS OR YOUNG MEN WHO ARE NOT CONSTANTLY LOOKING AT THE CLOCK TO SEE HOW SOON THEY CAN GET THE SHUTTERS UP AND GET HOME AND OUT TO "FUN," AS THEY CALL IT. WHEN THE YOUNG MAN'S ATTENTION IS DIVIDED BETWEEN CLOCK AND DUTY, THE CLOCK GAINS NOTHING BUT TIME, AND DUTY IS NOT DONE.

No, the young man who succeeds is he who is looking all the time to see if there is not something that he can do to make business go a little better than at the present time. And success, it seems to me, means that whole story through life from beginning to end.

If, on the contrary, the young man is not thus striving to do his best, if he is not endeavoring to find ways to make himself more and more useful to his employers or his superiors, then, the chances are, he remains a hewer of wood and a drawer of water all his life. And HE HONESTLY THINKS THAT THE FATES ARE AGAINST HIM, WHEN, AS WE CAN PLAINLY SEE, THERE IS NOTHING AGAINST HIM EXCEPT HIS OWN NEGLIGENCE.

But there is a good deal to be done by the young man besides merely attending to business in the store or factory or wherever he may be employed. One of the important things he should do is to select good books to read for a half hour each day. The right kind of books and a serious intention of learning will make him, at thirty, A FIRST RATE SCHOLAR, IF SUCH HE DESIRES TO BE.

Again, every day of his life he should make it in his way to talk with men of affairs. Let him get an idea from such men, and let him come to realize the fact that every morning when he arises he knows a little more than he knew on the previous morning.

THIS SCHEME OR PLAN OR PROGRAMME CARRIED OUT FOR BUT A FEW YEARS, AND THE SUCCESS OF THE YOUNG MAN OR BOY IS ASSURED. FROM THESE GENERAL RULES THE AMBITIOUS YOUNG MAN OR BOY CAN BUILD A PLAN OF HIS OWN. BUT THEY SHOULD BE A PART OF IT.

When Human Brotherhood Will Be Established

By the Rev. Dr. LYMAN ABBOTT, Editor of the Outlook

THE COURSE OF HISTORY HAS BEEN TOWARD SOCIALISM.

There was barter when one man found another could do better than he himself something which he desired. Then followed trade, commerce, manufactories. Later came the discovery that steam, electricity, powers of nature, God given, could do the drudgery if they could only be applied.

The moment these discoveries were made there came the demand for organization of capital or of that which man was able to save by his industry after satisfying the demands for the necessaries of life. As soon as manufactories are established you must organize hours of labor and conditions under which that labor is performed.

ORGANIZATION IS A RESULT OF CIVILIZATION. THE DAILY PAPERS ARE CONSTANTLY DISCUSSING THE QUESTION, "SHALL LABOR BE ORGANIZED?" AND THE QUESTION IS REALLY, "SHALL LABOR HAVE SOMETHING TO SAY ABOUT IT?"

I believe in democracy, I believe in my fellow man, in God as the father of all. Men must have something to say about their own destiny and their own lives. WE CANNOT HAVE A COUNTRY WHERE ALL THE QUESTIONS ARE SETTLED DEMOCRATICALLY AND THE LABOR QUESTION SETTLED AUTOCRATICALLY. We tried the autocratic system to labor in the south and the average age of the negro was seven years.

Wherever the organization is necessary there the voice of labor is heard. Organized capital and organized labor are developments of the century we cannot get rid of. The organization of capital and the organization of labor must be voluntary. Wherever there is a blow at the individual there is a blow at all organized labor and all freedom of industry.

THERE IS AT PRESENT A MOVEMENT TOWARD THE EQUITABLE DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH. THE LABORER HAS CONFIDENCE IN HIS BROTHER LABORER, THE CAPITALIST IN HIS BROTHER CAPITALIST. WHEN EACH IS WILLING TO STEP OVER THE BARRIERS AND HAVE CONFIDENCE IN EACH OTHER, THEN WILL BE ESTABLISHED A BROTHERHOOD OF THE HUMAN RACE.

The Characteristic That Succeeds

By JAMES B. DILL, Lawyer, "The Father of Trusts"

ALTHOUGH combination is the fashion today, the only successful combination is the combination under the leadership of strong men. THE NEARER YOU GET TO THE TOP OF ANY COMBINATION OF MEN, MONEY OR INFLUENCE YOU WILL FIND THAT THE MEN IN CONTROL ARE INDIVIDUALLY CHARACTERISTIC. THEY MAY BE DIFFERENT, BUT THEY ARE STRONG IN INDIVIDUALISM.

GREAT BATTLE ON

Japs Expected to Succeed In Assault Upon Liaoyang

RUSSIAN LINE ATTACKED

Kuropatkin Sends Report of Fighting on Wednesday and Thursday, Indicating a Fierce Conflict Between the Armies

Liao Yang, Aug. 27.—According to the best information obtainable, the Japanese are preparing for a desperate attack upon Liao Yang, in which, the Chinese say, they are confident of success. Siege guns have been sent from Yinkow to Tatchekiao, intended for use against General Kuropatkin's positions.

A curious indication at these positions of the methodical preparation for a big battle is the fact that 10,000 wooden boxes, in which it is intended to place the ashes of the killed who are to be cremated on the battlefield, have been deliverd in the neighborhood of Liao Yang, and that 800 Chinese have been engaged to burn the bodies of those who may be killed.

Report From Kuropatkin

St. Petersburg, Aug. 27.—Emperor Nicholas has received the following dispatch, under date of Aug. 25, from General Kuropatkin:

"On Aug. 24 a Japanese battalion delivered an attack in the valley of Sundakhya. The Japanese advance was checked at 3 p. m. by a Russian company, five men of which were wounded. The same day two Russian companies successfully resisted the advance of the enemy in superior force at Sunoinpu, where the Japanese suspended operations when our reinforcements arrived. The Russian losses were one officer wounded and 53 men killed or wounded.

"On the evening of Aug. 24 the Japanese, having repulsed our outposts, occupied the heights to the southeast of Liandiansian and proceeded to construct earthworks and entrenchments on the heights.

"At 5:45 a. m., Aug. 25, one of the enemy's batteries opened fire on the village of Fofyntsa. A Russian battery returned the fire successfully, compelling the Japanese gunners to take to cover.

"Since the morning of Aug. 25 a force of the enemy consisting of one brigade of infantry, with four batteries, has marched through the Sundakhya valley and repulsed two companies of our troops. In advancing down the valley one company of the Japanese advance guard came under the fire of our battery and was forced to retire.

"On the morning of Aug. 25 the enemy placed in position two batteries in front of Liandiansian and bombarded our advance post position. After a brisk exchange of fire the enemy's infantry appeared from Erbakhe. In the artillery duel which ensued at this point our batteries silenced the Japanese guns.

"About 11 o'clock in the morning our advance post was ordered to retire on the main position and the Japanese infantry occupied the wooded heights west of Kaminsa. Towards noon Japanese guns were observed near Erbakhe. Four batteries were seen to be concentrated between Kaminsa and Katissa.

"About 2 o'clock in the afternoon a Japanese mountain battery which was advancing along a ridge towards Tassintun was held up by the fire of our guns and was prevented from occupying the position held by another battery, which was silenced after suffering heavy loss.

"At 3 in the afternoon large bodies of the enemy were observed constructing entrenchments on the heights south of Sanpu, and at 4 o'clock a Japanese mountain battery appeared on the heights west of Kaminsa, but was obliged to retire. At 5 p. m. a Japanese force of at least two divisions of infantry was advancing against the Russian positions at Liandiansian.

"Further reports of the engagement have not yet been received."

Cannot Make Direct Attack

Paris, Aug. 27.—The Tokio correspondent of The Matin declares that the Japanese minister of war has confidentially informed his colleagues that there is no hope of taking Port Arthur by direct assault and that long operations will be necessary. Therefore, the minister had ordered Field Marshal Oyama to avoid attacks entailing heavy losses. This, the correspondent says, has been concealed from the public.

To Be Disarmed Next Week

Shanghai, Aug. 27.—The work of disarming the Russian warships Askold and Grozovoi will begin on Monday. The Japanese declare that there will not be a repetition of the Ryeshitelni incident at Chefoo.

Christians Fleeing From Massacre

London, Aug. 27.—The Tien tsin correspondent of The Standard says that placards have been discovered at Tsinanfu (in the province of Shantung, urging the massacre of "foreign devils after the seventh moon" and that the native Christians are fleeing.

Another British Boat Held Up

London, Aug. 27.—The correspondent of The Morning Leader at Lisbon says that the British steamer Lisbon, which has arrived there, reports that she was stopped by a Russian cruiser in the Bay of Biscay.

KEMPF GOES TO LAW

Sensational Complaint Further Tangles Wisconsin Politics

Milwaukee, Aug. 27.—Further complications have arisen in Wisconsin Republican state politics because of an action begun by State Treasurer Kempf to restrain the La Follette state central committee from removing Kempf's name from the list of nominations on the state ticket dominated by the La Follette faction.

It is practically charged that the resignation of Kempf from the La Follette ticket was obtained through representations designed to move Kempf to do that which he would not voluntarily have done. It is alleged that Kempf was told that papers for his arrest on the charge of embezzlement had been prepared and that, unless he gave a letter of resignation, he would not even be given a chance to go to Milwaukee to obtain money to make good the $3500 shortage, but would be arrested at once in Madison.

According to Kempf's story his resignation was obtained by Chairman Connor of the La Follette state central committee. Accompanying the complaint in the action is an order by Judge Halsey restraining Chairman Connor and Secretary Cochens of the La Follette state central committee from certifying any other nomination than John J. Kempf for state treasurer. Secretary of State Houser is also restrained from placing on the La Follette ticket any other name than that of Kempf for state treasurer.

Weinseimer Indicted Again

New York, Aug. 27.—A second indictment was handed down by the grand jury against Philip Weinseimer, president of the Building Trades Alliance, charging extortion. The complainant is Charles Tucker, a plumbing contractor, who charges that while doing the plumbing work in the Brooklyn Young Men's Christian Association building Weinseimer "shook him down" for $400 on threat to call a strike. The money, it is charged, was paid by check made payable to Weinseimer. Weinseimer was held in $1000 bail on the charge, a hearing having been set for Sept. 6.

Littauer Visits the President

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 27.—President Roosevelt had as his guest last night Lucius N. Littauer, representative from the Twenty-fifth district of New York. The district represented by Littauer was the only Republican district in New York which failed to endorse Roosevelt for the presidential nomination, although its delegates subsequently supported him in the convention. Mr. Littauer said that his visit to the president was purely a personal matter.

Rich Men's Sons In Trouble

St. Louis, Aug. 27.—Paul Harper, 15 years old, son of the president of Chicago university; Fred Taylor, 17, son of a New York broker, and Fred Gates, 17, and Frank Gates, 15, sons of the business manager for John D. Rockefeller, were arrested at the World's Fair on charges of disturbing the peace and destroying property. It is claimed that the boys broke down a side door at the Moorish palace on the Pike.

More Trouble For Waggaman

Washington, Aug. 27.—Further legal action against Thomas E. Waggaman, treasurer of the Catholic university, against whom bankruptcy proceedings were instituted to prevent his making the university a preferred creditor, has been taken by a number of citizens of Maryland, who have filed a suit in equity asking for the appointment of a receiver for certain of his property.

Auto Wrecked by Explosion

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 27.—An automobile owned and operated by Benjamin A. Hawkins, and also containing his wife and two daughters, exploded, and Madge, aged 7, was fatally burned. The others escaped uninjured. The breaking of a chain tore a hole in the gasoline tank, allowing the gasoline to come in contact with the spark. The automobile was wrecked.

Famous Structure Supplanted

Washington, Aug. 27.—The famous old long bridge across the Potomac, which was burned 90 years ago this week during the British occupation of Washington and which was a point of strategical importance in the Civil war, has been supplanted by a magnificent new steel structure, built alongside the ancient bridge. The new bridge cost $75,000.

Alleged Forger Will Face the Music

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 27.—Charles E. Forbes, whose extradition on the charge of forgery in New York has been requested by the United States government, has waived all his privileges under the extradition treaty and expressed a willingness to return to the United States.

Chadwick at Johannesburg

Johannesburg, Aug. 27.—Rear Admiral Chadwick and other officers of the United States south Atlantic squadron have arrived here as the guests of Lord Milner. A banquet was given the officers last night at the Atheneum club.

Two Bank Men Drowned

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Aug. 27.—Herbert D. Hill, clerk in the Imperial bank, and James C. Patterson, teller of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, were drowned in the river here. Their boat was capsized by wind.

METHOD IN THE HOME.

It Will Greatly Help to Be Systematic In All Your Work.

In all your work be systematic. Have a time and a place for everything. Adopt the best methods. Teach the children early to help by the regular performance of daily tasks. Require order and neatness, beginning with the "wee toddler."

Cook simple foods—few kinds at a time, but always deliciously prepared and daintily served. Use substantial foods and fruit, avoiding pastries and highly seasoned dishes. Vary the bill of fare. Insist upon the best home-made bread, the more good brown or oatmeal bread the better.

Make clothing simply, using good dark, fadeless material for outer garments. Have all the conveniences about the house you can afford, but never live beyond your means. Have none but durable and useful furnishings. Discard all trappings and draperies that are simply for ornament.

Use plenty of water internally and externally. Good food, pure water, fresh air and sunshine are cheaper than doctors' bills and superior to any patent medicine.

For success study your housekeeping as you would any other business. Make of yourself a ray of sunshine under all circumstances, remembering that a happy home is the only paradise of earth.—Exchange.

NOTION CABINET.

A Convenient Little Arrangement to Have In the House.

Of all the little conveniences about the house that the ingenious or handy woman has contrived I find none more often called into use than my "button cabinet," or possibly "notion cabinet" would be a more appropriate name. I took a board a little over a foot long, eight inches wide and one-half inch thick. To this I nailed five cigar boxes with the lids fastened on and the front side taken out. Two of these boxes are two inches deep, and the other three are one and a half, but the depth is immaterial. Then I took other boxes and made drawers to fit in those I had nailed on the board. I bored a hole through the board above the top boxes by which to hang it on the wall. I bored two holes in the front of each drawer an inch and a half apart, through which I put cords and tied on the inside of the drawers to serve as handles. I partitioned the drawers into different sized spaces to accommodate the different kinds and different sizes of buttons and the numberless little things that every woman has to keep in some place. I took the paper off the boxes and painted the whole thing, and it is not unsightly. The toy dressers or bureaus of today may be utilized for this cabinet, but I made mine when toy stores were at a distance.—Housekeeper.

KITCHEN HELPS.

Emery powder will remove any ordinary stains from ivory knife handles.

Brown paper moistened in vinegar will polish your tins until they shine like silver.

Kitchen towels should be washed out every day after the dinner things are washed and boiled at least once a week.

To remove the smell of onions or fish from a frying pan put a little vinegar in it directly after using and place it over the fire for a little while.

After using fat for deep frying turn it into a bowl of hot water, stir well and set aside to cool. When cold, the clarified fat can be removed in a cake from the top of the water.

To remove stains from a porcelain saucepan nearly fill with water in which a tablespoonful of borax has benn dissolved and let the water boil awhile. If the stains resist this treatment try rubbing the spots with a wet cloth dipped in borax.

To Wash Chamois.

A housewife of experience says that chamois can be washed beautifully if the following instructions are followed: Prepare a lather with warm water and melted soap in the same way as you would for flannels and squeeze the leather well in this. If very much soiled and not clean after the first washing, repeat the process in another soapy water. If a little liquid ammonia is added to the water it will be a great aid in the washing, helping to draw out any grease and dirt. Then for rinsing use soapy water again, exactly the same as that used for washing. It will keep the leather softer than if it were rinsed in clear, warm water. When the leather is quite clean and has been through the last soapy water put it through the wringer or squeeze out the water with the hands. Then hang it up to dry and rub occasionally with the hands. When quite dry the leather may be pressed with a cool iron, after which it should look like new.

The Woman Beautiful.

Let every woman strive for a beauty which all will recognize as being genuine through and through. That which is superficial will fade and pass away, leaving a flood of disappointments and unhappy memories, while the true beauty will prove a "joy forever." She who possesses this gift will be blessed. And yet it is not a gift, for beauty represents the ultimate result of sincere striving for the best in life, for the noblest in character, sweetness of grace and purity of soul. Every woman may possess these divine attributes if she will. The way is open, and mankind will smile approval if she chooses to become the woman beautiful. The "woman who thinks" will shape her life to this course and will call to her aid the supreme source of strength and wisdom.—Henry F. Harris in Madame.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

THE DIVING LIGHT.

Trick of Burning a Candle In a Glass of Water.

If you were to announce some evening that you could stick a lighted candle into a glass of water until it was submerged almost up to the wick and that the candle would not go out, but would burn down to the very end of its wick instead, wouldn't everybody laugh at you?

Get a candle and drive a very small nail into the bottom end. The candle should be about three inches long. Fill a glass with water, light the candle and stick it into the glass. The candle floats and the nail weighs down the end, which results in the candle floating perpendicularly, as shown in the illustration.

THE CANDLE IN THE GLASS.

But what is to prevent it from burning down to the surface of the water and going out?

That is the secret of the trick, and not one person in a hundred would think of the true cause, which is very simple and natural.

The candle loses its weight as it burns. The remaining portion, growing lighter, keeps rising to the top, pulling the nail up with it. The water maintains the same distance from the wick it had in the beginning of the experiment, and the candle burns merrily away until it reaches the end of its wick, when there will still be enough tallow left to support the nail—if it is small enough—and then it is your turn to laugh.—New York Mail.

DEN OF WILD BEASTS.

A Game That Gives Plenty of Fun and Lots of Exercise.

In the game of "the den of wild beasts" each player represents some ferocious wild animal, such as panther, wolf, lion or bear. Each chooses a tree or post or stone for his particular den. As a signal for the game to commence all make a terrible noise, imitating the animals they pretend to be.

The most venturesome, then leaves his den and advances toward the middle of the playground, where he dances around, trying to entice the other animals from their lairs. Suppose the wolf comes out first. Perhaps a lion and a tiger will immediately follow. Then the wolf calls out, "I'm after the lion!" The wolf starts in pursuit, and the lion tries to get home to his den before being caught. If the wolf catches him he takes him back to his own lair, and there the lion has to stay throughout the rest of the game unless the wolf himself is caught.

No two are allowed to chase the same animal at the same time, and the chase belongs to the one who first calls "I'm after so and so!" No animal can be taken while he is bringing a captive home.

It often happens that all the animals are in the field at the same time, each in pursuit of his prey. Then it is most exciting. Whenever the captor of an animal is himself captured the prisoner is free to leave the den and go back to his own lair. The game ends only when all the animals are caught and imprisoned in one den.

Fire Under Water.

Fire under water may be produced by placing some small pieces of phosphorus in a conical shaped tumbler and then covering them with the crystals of chlorate of potash. Next fill the glass with water and then add a few drops of sulphuric acid, the acid to be applied directly to the phosphorus and potash crystals by means of a long tube. If the experiment is properly carried out tongues of bright red flame can be seen flashing up through the water, the intense chemical heat produced by the action of the sulphuric acid on the potash and phosphorus being sufficient to inflame the latter, although entirely covered with water.

When Pussy Boiled.

"Come here, right away, quick," shouted Louise, aged three, to her mother. "Pussy is going to make tea."

"What makes you think so?" asked her mother.

Pointing to the cat, who was purring loudly, Louise said:

"Listen, mother, she's now beginning to boil."

The Fish Are Cured.

"Why," said Bobby to his elder brother, "do herring have so many more illnesses than other fish?"

"Who says they do?" asked the youth addressed.

"Why, this book says that thousands upon thousands of them are cured every year."

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Squantum Yacht club dance this evening.

Supt. Parlin of the Public schools has returned from his vacation trip.

Col. Edward Anderson will occupy the pulpit of the East Weymouth Congregational church, Sunday morning.

James Wright a police officer of Wellesley, Mass., spent last Sunday with his brother, David Wright of Canal street, this city.

Rev. William C. Clements of Springdale, Maine, will occupy the pulpit of Bethany Congregational church tomorrow, and the following Sunday Rev. E. N. Hardy will have returned from his vacation.

A writer from Atlantic says a serious accident to Mr. Woll's anatomy was narrowly averted on Thursday evening, when his large St. Bernard dog rushed out to meet him, coming with such force as to knock his feet from under him. He took a comfortable (?) seat on the lawn to the amusement of the passers by on Walker street.

Alleged Implication In Fraud

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 27.—After an investigation conducted by the department of justice in connection with alleged naturalization frauds the arrest of J. R. Miknatis of this city was made by a secret service man. Miknatis is charged with obtaining naturalization papers through fraudulent methods and sending them to men in Hayti and South America.

Boy Failed to Return

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 27.—Armed with a 32-calibre revolver of the most modern type, Wilmer Bailey, 15 years old, left his home Wednesday morning ostensibly for the purpose of going hunting, and has not been seen since. The boy was not given to wild adventure of any nature and this adds to the anxiety that is felt for his safety.

Alleged Mutilation of Records

Boston, Aug. 27.—Former State Representative James McInerney was held for the United States grand jury on the charge of mutilating government naturalization records. Bail was fixed at $3000. It is alleged that McInerney cut from a naturalization record book in the Federal building the record of his own naturalization.

Robbed His Employers

Boston, Aug. 27.—Melvin C. Robertson, drug clerk, was arrested at the drug store of Kelly & Durkee, in the Back Bay, charged with the larceny of $2.50 from the concern, and it is said that he confessed that he, by making false entries, had secured between $200 and $300.

End of Old Home Week

Concord, N. H., Aug. 27.—New Hampshire's sixth annual Old Home week, by far the most successful thus far in the series, closed officially last night. Several important celebrations are still to be held, however.

COUNT CASSINI ON CHEFU INCIDENT

World Menaced, He Says, by Seizure of the Ryeshitelni.

JAPAN WRECKS HAY'S PEACE PLAN

Destroying China's Neutrality Presents a Question, Says Russian Ambassador, as Momentous as Boxer Crisis—He Adds That Russia Will End the War on Her Own Terms.

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, recently used the following vigorous and significant language in an interview at Bar Harbor with a correspondent of the New York Herald, in discussing the grave aspects of the Chefu incident and its bearing on the whole world, when he said:

"As the situation presents itself today, without any further steps by the nations of Europe and by the United States, the grand scheme of the American secretary of state, Mr. Hay, to insure the neutrality of China has gone to wreck, and the entire Chinese question, fraught with danger to all nations that have an interest in that country, once more lies open to all eventualities."

"Do you regard the Chefu incident as closed by the excuses which Japan has given?"

"No excuses that Japan can give can alter the occurrence, and, instead of being closed, I regard it as only open."

"Do you regard the incident as serious?"

"I regard it as far more serious, in an international sense, than any question which has been before the world since the adjustment of the Boxer troubles."

"And why do you regard it in such a serious light?"

"Because it is in a fair way to terminate suddenly and finally the international agreement for the maintenance of the neutrality of China. That would be a calamity, because of the dangers with which it would threaten not only China, but every nation that is interested in China."

"Will you outline briefly the history of matters in the far east, so far as they relate to this question of Chinese neutrality, which is affected by the Chefu incident?"

"At the outbreak of hostilities between my country and Japan the suggestion was made by the United States that all nations interested in the Chinese question suggest to the belligerents the desirability, so far as practicable, of limiting the zone of hostilities, and that they all subscribe to the principle of the neutralization of China with a view to the maintenance of its territorial integrity. All the other nations signatory to the Pekin peace protocol made this suggestion to Russia and Japan, and my government assented to it and also to the principle of the neutrality of China. Japan assented also. Russia entered into this agreement solemnly, believing it to be in the interest of the whole world.

"Now, what has happened? Before war had been declared a large Japanese squadron appeared off Chemulpo and found two Russian ships in the harbor. Notice was served on them to come out and be destroyed or the Japanese would bombard them in the harbor of Chemulpo. The commanders of foreign ships entered a protest against such a violation of neutrality, and in the end, rather than have the town of Chemulpo bombarded, the Russian senior commander took his ships out, made a spirited fight and sunk his own vessels.

"I will speak of this merely to call attention to the disregard of international law and neutrality which was exhibited by Japan at the outbreak of the war. Japan went into the agreement intending to violate neutrality wherever it suited her purposes. This brings us down to Chefu."

"What is your understanding of what occurred at Chefu?"

"My understanding is derived from the press reports, just as I presume yours is. There is no question as to the brutal and essential facts. The commander of a Russian torpedo boat destroyer went to Chefu after a sortie from Port Arthur. He declared to the Chinese authorities that he would remain in that neutral port absolutely under conditions prescribed by the law of nations.

"He unscrewed the guns and removed them and the other weapons and the ammunition. These he delivered to the Chinese authorities, and the ship was in the situation that she should have occupied in a neutral port and was entitled to the protection of the neutral power, which had gunboats and cruisers in the harbor.

"That night came two Japanese men-of-war. The Japanese commander discovered the Russian ship in exactly the state I have described. He attacked our ship, boarded her and attempted to run up the Japanese colors. The Russians, recognizing this as an unlawful act, defended the ship with their hands. In the hand to hand struggle which ensued the Japanese commander was thrown overboard, but superior numbers prevailed, and the Russian ship was taken out of this neutral port as a prize. The Chinese were in duty bound not to have permitted the Japanese to enter the harbor. They were bound not to have permitted the attack, and they were bound not to have permitted the comsummation of this act of piracy by the removal of the Russian ship."

"What steps have been taken by your government?"

"I am not further advised beyond the fact that we have entered a strong protest to Japan through the French minister who represents Russian interests at Tokyo. I have no information that a protest has been sent by Russia to the other powers, who are almost equally concerned with Russia. I presume a protest has been sent to China."

"What next?"

"That is the important question. What next? What are the other nations going to do? Surely we cannot be bound longer to respect the neutrality of China if China will not respect it herself. We certainly cannot overlook this act any further than we can overlook similar acts in the future.

"It would seem to me to be a time for action by Europe and the United States. I do not mean the sending of fleets, but I do mean that some extraordinary step should be taken. Japan seems determined not only not to recognize the neutrality of China, but not to recognize international law, and yet Europe and the United States are pledged to the neutrality of China and to the observance of international law.

"The importance of this thing, as it appears to me, is that if nothing is done the great act of Mr. Hay in keeping China out of the conflict—an act which we all recognize as making for the peace of the world—becomes absolutely null and void.

"It is the duty of every government to give the most serious and immediate attention to this question. Mr. Hay's act was recognized as a clever and beneficial idea. Was it worth while? Certainly it was. Shall it now fall to the ground because of this wanton act of piracy by a nation pledged to an agreement such as that? If China ceases to be neutral, what then? That is the question which should be discussed seriously."

"It is stated that Japan's excuse is that the commander of the Ryeshitelni was carrying dispatches to Chefu, and it is also urged that a Russian consul in Chinese territory is suspected of being in wireless communication with Port Arthur."

"And the moon is made of green cheese! Nothing can be pleaded in extenuation of this act. There is no question of the facts. The foreign consuls in their reports all agree. Even the British consul has reported the facts, though I see that Great Britain now says that Japan must have time for explanation, whatever that may mean."

"What steps will you take?"

"It is impossible for me to say until I have seen Mr. Hay, the secretary of state. I am sure that not a government, except Japan, that has assented to the neutrality of China can remain indifferent. Japan at least should be made to say what she thinks of making Chinese neutrality a dead letter."

"In your opinion, what follows if it becomes a dead letter in fact?"

"Is it not a dead letter today? That is for the powers to say. Answering your question in that event it surely opens up the whole question of China again. It leaves it where it was before Mr. Hay sent his note. It interests all Europe and all America. It is likely to affect your 'open door.'

"The powers ought to be prepared to give the strongest sort of admonition to China and Japan. I have always had the idea that Japan was seeking to force China into war. A few incidents like this will force war on China perhaps. Look at the massing of Chinese troops on the frontiers. They have been drilled by European officers and are now under Japanese officers.

"The ending of the neutrality of China opens up all eventualities. It is in the interest of the entire world, once and for all, to put an end to this menace. We are at war with Japan. It may be some other power next year. Then this nation that has done these things at Chemulpo and Chefu will continue its same tactics unless a halt is called. And so in time we will fall back on the laws of war which governed the Huns in the old days."

"What have you to say about the progress of the war?"

"We will bring it to an end on our own terms. It may be two years. It may be three years. But we will bring it to an end on our own terms."

"Is it true," Count Cassini was asked, "that representations are being made to the powers that the Russian destroyer seized at Chefu by the Japanese was fully armed?"

"I believe such representations are being made, but that does not alter the facts as they are known. Read the report of your own consul, of the British consul, of all the foreign consuls. The Ryeshitelni was no longer a warship. Her colors had been hauled down. She had been completely disarmed. The colors and the weapons, even to the revolvers, had been handed over to the Chinese authorities. All the provisions of international law had been complied with."

"But is it not a new point in international law that a warship fleeing from an enemy can find asylum in a neutral port and be secure from capture simply by lowering her colors and disarming and giving these weapons into the keeping of a neutral power?"

"It is not at all new; it is a recognized principle. It has occurred in Brazil. It has occurred in the history of the United States. When this is done to a warship, as a belligerent vessel, as a fighting craft, she ceases to exist. I see Japan now, instead of returning our destroyer to Chefu and restoring her to the Chinese, is seeking to bully China and compel her to send from other harbors other Russian ships which have been similarly disarmed and mismantled. Thus the situation becomes additionally grave. I cannot help thinking that out of the Chefu incident will grow very big consequences."

Port Arthur In Bygone Years.

The Chinese name for Port Arthur was Lushunkow. The town had, twenty years ago, only a few thousand inhabitants and was used as a place for the deportation of criminals.

CLOTHES MANAGEMENT.

The Plan One Girl Follows to Insure Economical Dressing.

Perhaps my plan to manage my clothes on next to nothing a year may interest you and help some other girls. To begin with, let me tell you how one dress lasted me for three years at an average cost of $4 a year. I bought a soft dark india silk in the spring for a best street dress, for church and to wear now and then when I paid friendly calls. I made it very simply with tucks and a few stitched bands of taffeta, and then I wore with it separate stock collars of imitation Irish crochet lace and a fancy high girdle belt of taffeta. The next year, when the folds had lost their first luster, I covered the worn edges with very narrow black gimp braid, and I used this remodeled dress for a business suit. Of course I had to shorten the skirt. That was the only alteration I made. For my evening dresses I buy each year two new ones, one of lawn and one of silk muslin, using them in the summer for my best dresses, and I easily make them do for two years. I put all my capital into the material and not into extra trimmings, as these are not necessary on a simple dress, the task of trimming them being accomplished by the effective way in which they are put together and the arrangement of the tucks. I spend about $16 for these dresses. This includes the dressmaker's bill. In a case where a girl can make her own dresses it would bring the cost to about $5 for each dress.—Exchange.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Henry E. Dixie, whose name will always be inseparably connected with "Adonis," no matter what change he may choose to make in his line of entertainment, is to be the headline attraction at Keith's the week of Aug. 29. Mr. Dixie will present for the first time in vaudeville in Boston a charming one act play entitled "Over a Welch Rarebit." Other noted entertainers in the same bill will be Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, in a comedy sketch, "When two Hearts Are Won;" Francis Gerard, a muscularly developed athlete of the Sandow type; Fisher and Carroll, eccentric talking commedians and parody singers; Ed. and Nettie Masse, skilful novelty jugglers, and a trio of Italian singers who have been scoring a tremedous hit in New York during t he past two months. The Fadettes Orchestra will change their musical program, as usaal, rnd all the pictures in the biograph will be renewed. Underlined for the week of Sept. 5 are the former Castle Square Theatre leading actors, John Craig and Lillian Lawrence.

BOSTON THEATRE.

In one week more "Quincy Adams Sawyer" opens the season at the Boston Theatre, on Saturday night, Sept. 2, with the rather remarkable record of having played continuously for a year, with the exception of a brief summer vacation of two or three weeks. "Quincy Adams Sawyer" will be the first attraction to have the advantage of being presented under the improved system of lighting and electric effects provided by the new $6,000 switch board which Manager McCarthy has installed at the Boston Theatre. This switchboard is of the latest pattern and includes the most recent improvements in stage lighting effects, the progress in which department of stage craft has been very rapid recently. From this switchboard are controlled no less than 1100 thirty-two candle power lamps in the borders and footlights. The electrical dimmer attachments are said to be the most elaborate and effective of any similar device in this country.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

For the final attraction of the regular Summer Season at the Castle Square Theatre the management announces the amusing farce comedy "The House that Jack built," its first production in this city at popular prices. George H. Broadhurst is the author of this play and its merits made it popular throughout the country at the time of its original performances a few seasons ago. To add to the interest of this production and to give the Castle Square patrons an opportunity to welcome an old time favorite at this theatre, a special engagement has been made with Mr. Walter E. Perkins to appear as the Willy Slab of the cast. The distribution of souvenir boxes of choice chocolate bonbons at the Monday matinee will be continued till further notice.

TREMONT THEATRE.

Henry W. Savage has added another big success to his list of attractions in "The Sho-Gun," the Korean comic opera which represents the first joint work of George Ade and Gustav Luders. This piece received its first Eastern production at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, last Monday evening, and scored a complete triumph in every respect. The large audience was extremely enthusiastic in its reception of the opera, and after the curtain had fallen on the last act there could be no doubt but Mr. Savage has in "The Sho Gun" a production that easily ranks with the most successful operas he has brought out. George Ade's book is clean-cut and amusing from beginning to end. As was the case in his "Peggy from Paris" and "Sultan of Sulu," he has taken up amusing little incidents of American life for the thread of his story, and while the atmosphere of the opera is Korean, the plot in the main belongs to his country. Its central character is an American promoter, whom Mr. Ade lands in Korea, and has no end of fun in introducing him and his American ways to the Korean people.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

The Majestic theatre, Boston's handsomest playhouse, opened its season in a blaze of glory last Monday night with Edward Morgan in Hall Caine's much discussed play, "The Eternal City," which will continue the attraction for one week more only, commencing Aug. 29. "The Eternal City" has been given in Boston before by practically the same company, but the improvement of the present production over the other is very marked. Edward Morgan has grown, has developed, since he first played John Storm in "The Christian." His repressed manner of acting is better fitted for David Rossi than it ever was for his other noted character. Mr. Morgan's work is out of the ordinary, but none the less so was that of the tall, beautiful woman who has been chosen as the leading woman of this company, Miss Janet Waldorf. The Donna Roma of Miss Waldorf was full of character, true to the intent of the author and a magnificent interpretation. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

Nineteenth Reunion.

FISHERMEN LOST

Pleasure Seekers In Maine Lakes Meet Their Doom

TWO BOATS OVERTURNED

Accidents at About Same Time and Place Resulted In Drowning of Four Men--Two Brothers Drowned In Mayfield Lake

Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 29.—There were two boating accidents at Hayden lake in which three men are known to have been drowned, while a fourth man is missing and is also believed to have lost his life. The dead are Thomas Weymouth, 30 years old; Charles Newell, 30, and Napoleon Prevost, 35 years old. The name of the missing man is unknown.

There were two accidents in almost the same place and probably at about the same time, but only in one case are the details known. Joseph Bolgier, the only survivor, who is half crazed with grief and excitement, told the story of Prevost's death, but knew nothing of the circumstances surrounding the drowning of Weymouth and Newell, and the disappearance of the unknown man, who is said to be a stranger.

Bolgier said that he and Prevost went on a fishing trip to Hayden lake. Arriving at the lake they went out in one boat while Weymouth, Newell and the stranger had gone out in another boat a short time previous.

After Prevost and Bolgier had been fishing for some time Prevost stood up in the boat and started to put on a rubber coat. He lost his balance and fell overboard, capsizing the boat. His arms were bound by the coat, which was only partially on, and he was therefore unable to save himself. Bolgier clung to the overturned boat for a few moments. He tried to find Prevost, but was unable to discover any trace of his companion. Finally he struck out for the shore, which he finally reached. The body of Prevost was found near the upturned boat. His arms were pinioned by the sleeves of his heavy rubber coat.

While trying to locate the body of Prevost the searchers found another boat floating bottom upward near the spot where the boat of Prevost and Bolgier had been anchored. After Prevost's body had been found the search was continued and it was not long before the searchers brought the body of Newell to the surface. As it was known that he had companions in his boat grappling was resumed and a little later Weymouth's body was recovered. Bolgier stated that there were three men in that boat, and that the third man was a stranger. The search was prosecuted until dark last night, but no trace of the stranger could be found.

Following close upon the drowning accidents at Hayden lake came the news that two brothers named Burden, residents of Brighton, had been drowned in Mayfield lake. The two young men were on a fishing trip. A man who was driving by the lake saw a fishing rod protruding out of the water. The man pulled out the rod and wound up the line, bringing to the surface the body of one of the brothers. The fish line was wrapped around the body a number of times. Grappling irons were brought into action and the coat and shirt of the other brother were found. At dark last night the second body had not been recovered.

The Uruguayan Insurrection

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 29.—A great sensation has been created here owing to the surprising by troops of the government Uruguay of a Uruguayan insurrectionary force, numbering 180 men fully armed and equipped, on a steamer on the Uruguayan coast, but in Argentine territory. Many of the rebels swam ashore, but eight, badly wounded, were captured. The fate of the others is not known. The insurrectionary vessel was also captured.

Mob Law Continues

Macon, Ga., Aug. 29.—A few days ago J. A. Bishop, a farmer, was murdered on a train by a negro named Scott, who escaped, but was located last night in a house near Rebecca. The house was burned by the mob and the negro, running out, was shot. It is said he made a confession implicating others who are now being sought for by the mob.

The Stockyards Strike

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The members of the national executive committee of the Butchers' union held a meeting last night to discuss the present condition of the stockyards strike. Those present would not divulge what they had done, but announced that nothing definite had been settled and that another meeting would be held.

Trains Five Days Late

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 29.—The first of the storm-bound passenger trains which started for this city over the Santa Fe lines through Arizona, but which, owing to washouts, were forced to make a wide detour, arrived in Los Angeles five days late. It was a special from Canada.

Senator Hoar.

Sen. Geo. F. Hoar is seventy-eight years old today.

Yesterday was the best day he has had since his illness assumed a critical stage. He awoke bright and cheerful after a refreshing night's sleep and chatted freely with his attendants.

He took nourishment well and the interest he took in what is going on in the outside world is shown by the fact that he called for Sunday papers and spent considerable time reading them.

It was the first time for two weeks that he has done any reading and it is considered a hopeful sign.

Fire at New Downers.

The North Weymouth fire department was called out Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock for a slight fire in a large bunch of seaweed at New Downer Landing. The alarm which was unnecessary was rung in by someone who got excited. Another person added to the confusion by pulling a second alarm for the same fire.

A Fishing Trip.

Three of West Quincy's prominent business men took a fishing trip a few days last week at Buzzard's Bay. They claim to have made the biggest catch of the season, but to all appearances they did not even catch a cold, if they did get their "ducks" wet when they got grounded and had to wade a bit.

We have waited patiently for that barrel of blue fish but Peter, yes, they lay it to Peter, must have forgotten to send it, as no express has as yet received it, so we'll accept their fish story and hope they have better luck next time. R—

Eighty-nine, Saturday.

Mrs. Jerusha N. Hardwick of Washington street, corner of Foster, celebrated her eighty-ninth birthday on Saturday and was remembered by her many friends with flowers and other tokens of love and esteem. Owing to sickness, confining her to the bed, she only saw the immediate family and a very few friends. Her sister, Mrs Elizabeth Beckford, eighty-seven years of age, spent the day with her.

LIQUOR RAIDS.

Police Make Midnight Visit to Houghs Neck Cottages.

Chief of Police Hayden, Inspectors McKay and Bradley, and officers Goodhue, Larkin, Crooker, Olson and Boutin, armed with search warrants made a visit to Houghs Neck about midnight on Sunday. They first called at the Midland house on the corner of Sea and Bell streets. In a small bar room upstairs they seized five quarts of whiskey and 61 empty beer bottles.

The next place visited was the Petrol cottage on Pierce lane, occupied by Creeder and McCarthy. Here they seized between six and eight gallons of ale in a barrel, faucets, glasses, etc.

The third place visited was the Sunbeam cottage on Taber street. No liquor was found here but Mae Taylor, alias Minnie Small, the alleged occupant, was placed under arrest for the illegal sale of liquor to John Boutin, a police officer.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

HIS FIRST MASS.

Quincy Boy Recently Ordained at St. John's Church.

Rev. S. M. Donovan, O. S. F., a son of the late Dr. S. M. Donovan, who was ordained to the priesthood at Rome last month, celebrated his first public mass at St. John's church Sunday morning.

The mass was a solemn high and the church was crowded with many friends of the young priest. The deacon of the mass was Rev. Julian E. Johnstone, and the sub-deacon was Rev. Michael Duffy of St. John's theological seminary, Brighton. Rev. John J. Coan, pastor of the church, was master of ceremonies. Rosewig's mass in F was sung by the choir, under the direction of Miss Anastatia Hughes. Most of the solos were sung by Thomas Roche Donovan and Miss Mercedes Donovan, brother and sister of the young priest. Mr. Donovan sang the "Veni Creator," the "Agnus Del" and "Juravit Dominus—Tu es Sacerdos in Aeternum." At the post-communion, Miss Donovan sang "O Cor Amoris Victima."

The sermon was preached by Rev. Fr Coan, who dwelt at length on the sacred calling of the priesthood and of the young priest who celebrated his first public mass today, and asked the congregation to unite with him in prayer for the success of the young priest that his work might be fruitful.

At the close of the mass hundreds presented themselves at the altar railing to receive the blessing of the new priest.

Rev. Fr. Donovan was born in Quincy, Aug. 27, 1881, and is the son of the late Dr. Samuel M. Donovan, a former well-known and popular physician of this city, and Mrs. Ita Welch Donovan, who for many years was a member of the famous quartette of the Immaculate Conception church choir of Boston.

After graduating from the public schools of this city, Rev. Fr. Donovan attended Adams and Thayer academies, and then entered Alleghany college. From there he went to Washington to study, and four years ago went to Rome. During his sojourn in Rome Rev. Fr. Donovan had several audiences with both Pope Leo and Pope Pius.

Death of Miss White.

Miss Susie E. White, one of the best known young ladies of West Quincy, and a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James N. White, died at her home at 88 Copeland street, Saturday, after an illness of some duration. Funeral services will be held from St. Mary's church on Tuesday.

Council Meeting.

A special meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. There are but three matters mentioned in this call. These are to draw jurors, to receive the Mayor's appointment of election officers, and to designate polling places for the caucuses.

☞ The policy of reducing expenses by cutting down train service, which has been adopted by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad has been criticised by a few people, who argue that the company ought to maintain all of its trains in order to build up the territory which it serves, whether their operation shows a profit or not. They assert that by building up the territory, the road will ultimately secure profits from handling the increased business, which would naturally follow. This argument is all right so far as it goes, but there is a point at which the road should draw the line in spending money to develop such business. The road has fixed charges and operating expenses to meet, and its stockholders can reasonably expect a fair return upon the money they have invested in the property. When the road was earning enough to meet all such obligations, and develop new territory, as was the case until within perhaps the last year and a half or two years, it was all right to spend some of the surplus in maintaining trains which in some cases might not have shown an immediate return in the shape of net profits. Now that business is light, there seems to be no question as to the wisdom of cutting down expenses, as the road has done. It will be difficult to show that the road is pursuing a short sighted business policy in keeping its expenses within its income.—Banker and Tradesman.

Leads Her Class in Saturday Races at Duxbury.

It was a light westerly breeze that greeted the yachts from Quincy that participated in the open race at Duxbury on Saturday. Although there was a large fleet participating Quincy is not directly interested except in the first handicap class which was comprised almost wholly of Quincy and Wollaston club boats.

First honor in this class Saturday fell to the Unsona which sailed her best race thus far this season. She took the lead at the start and crossed the line at the finish by a lead of six minutes. The Marvel which was in Friday's race came in third but was set back to fourth place on time allowance.

The Pocahontas finished second but got eighth place on corrected time.

D. 1904, at three o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage deed, namely:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in that part of Boston in the County of Suffolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which was formerly Dorchester, being lot numbered 46 on a plan made by H. T. Whitman, dated March 24, 1891, recorded with Suffolk Deeds, book 2199, page 625, and being bounded westerly on Magdala street, forty feet; northerly by lot 47 on said plan, ninety feet; easterly by land of owners unknown, forty feet; southerly by lot 45 on said plan, ninety feet. Containing 3600 square feet of land, all according to said plan, be any or all of said measurements or contents, more or less. This conveyance being made subject to the restrictions referred to in the deed of Patrick J. Lyons to Lavinia M. Campbell, dated the 15th of March, 1897, recorded with Suffolk Deeds, book 2440, page 414, so far as the same are now in force and applicable.

Also a certain parcel of land (with the buildings thereon if any) situated in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth aforesaid, being lot numbered 178, on a plan of Norfolk Downs, by Charles D. Elliot, dated April, 1892, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, book of plans number 14, plan 640, and being bounded northeasterly by Tyler street, fifty feet; southeasterly by lot 177 on said plan, one hundred feet; southwesterly by lot 155 on said plan, fifty-five and 33-100 feet; and northwesterly by lots 154 and 179 on said plan, one hundred and 4-100 feet. Containing 5266 and 5-10 square feet of land according to said plan, subject to the restrictions set forth in the deed of Henry H. Savage et al., Trustees, to Lavinia Campbell, dated the 25th of January, 1896, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, book 765, page 246.

Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, tax sales, and assessments, if any there be.

Three hundred dollars will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale; other terms at sale.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

An Indiana man who paid six hundred dollars for an automobile and then spent two thousand dollars for repairs on it has filed a petition in bankruptcy and asks the courts to relieve him of the machine. He will have many sympathizers.

The Springfield Republican thinks that part of the falling off in electric railroad is due to the increase of automobiling, and that thousands of people who did not feel able or disposed to keep a horse have their runabout or touring car, and are using the machine instead of riding on the electrics as formerly. Possibly that is making some difference, but the idea of people who couldn't afford to keep a horse, jaunting about daily in a touring car is calculated to bring a smile to the face of Dr. Welch and other Quincy gentlemen who have had a season's experience with an auto and its constant demand for cash for feed or repairs. A horse and his keep represents the pinch of economy compared with some of the auto bills that have been experienced hereabouts.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ In a statement issued by the packers' representative, Atty. Evans, on Saturday, unconditional surrender is the only thing left for the stockyard strikers. All signs point to the probability that the strike will be called off early this week and that the labor leaders will ask the packers for nothing but recognition for the union.—Sunday Herald.

☞ The Springfield Republican says, it has long been a popular belief that if a Chinaman should cut off his queue he could never return to China without being ostracised. The Chinese minister at Washington has announced that this is not the case, and, moreover, that there is no civil or religious law which calls for queue wearing even in China. It is merely custom to wear one there just as it is for little boys to wear silk hats in England.

☞ According to a Chicago despatch every union man and woman in the country is to be asked to contribute to the support of the packing house strikers, and it has been announced that a similar appeal has been made in behalf of the Fall River cotton mill strikers, the building trade strikers in New York, and the coal and iron mine strikers in Alabama. If the members of the labor organizations are to contribute to the support of all the strikers mentioned, it will not be long before conditions in this country will resemble those in Germany where it is said that every tax payer "carries a German soldier on his back." If the members of labor organizations were to contribute to the support of all the strikers mentioned, each of them would come pretty near carrying an idle workingman on his back.—Banker and Tradesman.

☞ Despite the continuance of the meat strike, there has been noted recently a steady reduction in the price of choice cuts of meats in leading hotels of Boston. Notice of a further reduction was received on Saturday to go into effect today. The notice announces that the price of short loins will be 22 cents a pound and ribs 19 cents. When the strike started in Chicago, several weeks ago, the price for loins jumped from 20 to 26 cents a pound, while ribs went from 18 to 22 cents. The reductions are regarded by the leading hotel proprietors as an indication that the strike is no longer to be regarded as a serious matter and that further reductions will quickly follow until prices are again at normal figures.

TO BE CITIZEN HILL

Noted Political Manager to Retire From Politics

A BIRTHDAY STATEMENT

Feels That He Has Been Sufficiently Honored by His Party and Has Done Enough For It to Entitle Him to Rest

Albany, Aug. 29.—Today is the birthday anniversary of David B. Hill of this city, who is 61 years old, having been born on Aug. 29, 1843. In conversation with some political friends here he announced that no matter what the result of the present campaign might be, either in the state or nation, he should retire from political activity and leadership on Jan. 1 next and would not, in the event of Democratic success, accept any position under the national or state Democratic administrations, or again become a candidate for election to any office whatever.

He stated that he had intended to take such action a year ago today, but was persuaded by some close personal friends to defer doing so until after the presidential election this year, which he consented to do.

Having been engaged in active politics since his youth and having served the people as city attorney, alderman, mayor, member of the legislature, lieutenant governor, governor for seven years and United States senator for six years, he feels that, on the one hand, he has been sufficiently honored by his party and, on the other hand, that he has rendered political service during a period of years sufficient to entitle him to be relieved from further active political effort, in order that he may devote more time to his personal affairs and professional duties than he has in the past.

He will continue, however, his present arduous labors for the Democratic cause during the presidential election and, while expecting always to maintain his interest in the success of Democratic principles and candidates, he will, after Jan. 1 next, do so in his capacity as a private citizen and not as a party manager, leader or officeholder.

"Nothing of Predictions"

Boston, Aug. 29.—Senator Fairbanks of Indiana spent Sunday in Boston on his way to Vermont, where he will make several political speeches. He had a brief consultation with Senator Proctor of Vermont regarding the political situation in the Green Mountain state. Mr. Fairbanks talked for about half an hour with the newspaper reporters, but when the subject of possible Republican success in the country was mentioned or the size of the Republican majority in Vermont he said: "Nothing of predictions or majorities. Let Senator Proctor speak for Vermont if he chooses."

Roosevelt For Reciprocity

Nantasket, Mass., Aug. 29.—Senator Lodge was the principal speaker at the ratification outing held by Republicans of Boston at the Nantasket Point hotel. Interest was taken in what the senator would have to say about Canadian reciprocity. In the course of his speech Lodge declared that the Republican party believes in the reciprocity that will enlarge this country's markets, and that President Roosevelt "is in perfect accord with reciprocity in its broadest sense."

Talked of New England Politics

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Judge Parker had a long talk with Chairman Sheehan of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee on the political situation and the prospects in New England. Neither would talk for publication after the conference, but Sheehan has expressed himself as greatly encouraged by what he learned of the situation in nearly all of the New England states, especially in Massachusetts.

Democrats Gave Big Show

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 29.—The Democratic national campaign in this section of the state was opened at Charles River park in this city and during 12 hours great crowds witnessed athletic sports, ball games and a physout between two hand engine companies and listened to the words of speakers who had been assigned by the Democratic national committee to address the voters of this section.

Denial of Alleged Promise

Randolph, Vt., Aug. 29.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson made an address in this town on national issues, during which he denied the charge, which, he claimed, was made by former Senator Hill, that President Roosevelt promised when taking the oath of office at the death of President McKinley not to run for the presidency at the end of his term.

Alaskan Telegraph Line Finished

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 29.—The final splicing of the Seattle-Sitka government cable was made yesterday in the harbor, 10 miles out of Seattle and the work of months was completed. The cable touches at Sitka, Juneau and Skagway. From Skagway a telegraph line joins the Canadian government line at Tagish, returning to the boundary. From the boundary the government has a line to St. Michaels and the government wireless connects St. Micheals and Nome.

CHOKING DUEL CHECKED

Syrians Came Near Putting End to One Another's Life

Boston, Aug. 29.—A choking match, which was scheduled to go to a finish and came pretty near doing so, was ended in the first round by the interference of the police at Oliver place last night, and called a draw.

Patrolman Hughes found Joseph Anton, who lives at 7, and Ferris Allen, who lives at 8 Oliver place, lying side by side on the ground, apparently trying to tie each other's neckties.

Hughes heard gurgling sounds and approached. He found the two men black in the face and the tongue hanging out of one man's mouth and a black object, which proved to be a stocking, in the mouth of the other. The men were choking each other and were "almost all in." Hughes tore them apart and pulled the stocking from Anton's mouth.

They gasped and gagged for several minutes while the patrol wagon was coming. At the station the two men, who are Syrians, told Lieutenant Jones they were only fooling. But the finger marks in their Adam's apples and their exhausted condition, together with a knife found near the scene, caused them to be locked up, charged with creating an affray.

Oldfield's Machine Kills Two

St. Louis, Aug. 29.—Blinded by the dust thrown by the swiftly moving machine of A. C. Webb, Barney Oldfield lost control of his machine in a false start at the World's Fair automobile speed contest and the car crashed through a fence, instantly killing John Scott, a watchman employed at the park, and inflicting injuries upon Nathan Montgomery, a negro, from which he died a few hours later. Oldfield was injured and his machine completely demolished.

Was In Love With Stepdaughter

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Jealous because of the attentions paid his stepdaughter, Augusta Gutli, 20 years old, Lorenz Lentsch shot her in the back last night as she sat at a piano, while her sweetheart, Edward Moeller, was shot in the right thigh as he stood beside her. Lentsch shot himself through the heart after he believed he had committed a double murder. The girl will probably die. Lentsch is said to have been in love with his stepdaughter.

A Runaway Balloon

Paris, Aug. 29.—Lebaudy's steerable balloon narrowly escaped destruction yesterday. The aeronaut ascended, but was obliged to come down on account of a gale. The balloon was anchored to a tree and, while there was no one on board, it tore loose, rose to a considerable height and drifted towards the sea. The balloon descended 44 miles from whence it started. It caught in the trees and was recovered uninjured.

Tragedy Over a Trifle

New York, Aug. 29.—Herman Smith, 52 years old, shot and wounded Bertha Homberg, 15 years old, at her home in Elmhurst, and then shot and killed himself. The girl will probably recover. Smith had boarded with the Homberg family for many years. For some time past he had been acting somewhat strangely. Last evening he asked the girl to get him a drink of water and she refused. He drew a revolver and the tragedy followed.

Nothing at Dalny For Chinese

Chefoo, Aug. 29.—Seven hundred Chinese who went to Port Dalny in the hope of sharing with the Japanese in the business boom there returned to Chefoo yesterday and report that the Japanese are monopolizing all opportunities at the port. These Chinese say that 20 transports, bearing 22,000 troops to reinforce the besiegers of Port Arthur, have arrived at Port Dalny during the past fortnight.

Subway Motormen's Demands

New York, Aug. 29.—Fifteen hundred members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers unanimously voted to support the contention of the motor engineers employed on the elevated road that the men employed in the subway shall be paid the union wage of $3.50 for a 9-hour day, instead of $3 for a 10-hour day, the rate proposed by the Rapid Transit company.

Frankfurter Tank Exploded

New York, Aug. 29.—Three persons will probably die as the result of the explosion of a frankfurter boiler in the apartment of Israel Rorensweig, in a tenement in Norfolk street. Rosensweig is a frankfurter peddler. He filled the fuel tank of his frankfurter boiler with kerosene and lighted the wick, it is thought, without screwing on the stopper.

Cripple Creek Lawlessness

Cripple Creek, Col., Aug. 29.—A. G. Ledue, one of the members of the Western Federation of Miners who was deported, returned to Anaconda, and while in the custody of a deputy sheriff was taken in charge by a body of armed men. Sheriff Bell has sent a force of deputies in search of the mob and its captive.

His Last Trip In Automobile

Springfield, O., Aug. 29.—Edwin W. Hagar, president of the Xenia Strawboard works, was killed in an automobile accident near this city. The position of the controlling lever indicated that the car must have been running at a high rate of speed when the accident occurred.

Watches For Savages.

The clocks and watches of savage and semicivilized people come mostly from Connecticut and Birmingham, England—Connecticut having a practical monopoly in supplying the watches.

Boots and Battles.

Marshal Saxe has left it on record that there was no article of a soldier's dress more important than boots and that battles were won by legs. The Duke of Wellington, on being asked what was the best requisite for a soldier, replied, "A good pair of shoes." "What next?" "A spare pair of good soles."

A Model Hospital.

The St. Bartholomew's hospital in New York is so constructed that there are no internal corners to catch the dust. There are absolutely no angles or projections in the building above the basement.

Insurance In Russia.

In Russia the native insurance companies, which do the major portion of the country's business, insure the lives of single women and widows, but at a higher rate than those of men, and married women only are accepted in case their husbands are also insured.

Bibliotheca.

During the most of the sixteenth century the English people called the Bible the Bibliotheca, or the library, the word being limited in its application to the Scriptural writings.

"Gorgeous."

"Gorgeous" came to have its present meaning in the sixteenth century. "Gorget" was the name applied to the high Elizabethan ruff, so an elaborate dress was called gorgeous, and elaboration of any sort came to be called gorgeousness.

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

About 1500 persons witnessed the game on Saturday afternoon on the Ward 3 playgrounds at South Quincy. It was a very close and exciting game, for the Merrymounts tried hard to win, for they wanted to take one game from South Quincys, the champions of Quincy, but they were unable, owing to the good pitching of Patterson, striking out twelve men, and all around fielding of A. Dunn, Mullane and J. Dunn. Atkins Gill and Saunders did fine work in the infield for Merrymounts.

Russians Again Retreat Before Advance of Japanese

ARE NEARER LIAOYANG

Tokio Reports That Kuropatkin's Retreat Toward Mukden Cannot Be Accomplished by Rail--Driven From Principle Outpost Defending Position

London, Aug. 29.—According to a dispatch to The Central News from Liao Yang of today's date, an artillery battle has been in progress since 8 o'clock this morning near Liao Yang.

Tokio, Aug. 29.—After three days of fierce fighting, mainly with artillery, the Japanese forces have gained a great victory by driving the Russians from Anshanshan, the principal outpost defending the main position at Liaoyang.

The Russian loss was heavy, the loss in dead and wounded probably aggregating 2500 to 3000, while many guns and quantities of stores were also abandoned.

It is reported that General Kuroki has seized and cut the railroad south of Mukden, thus separating the Russian forces and cutting Liaoyang off from a direct line of retreat.

It is now expected that the decisive battle of the war will be fought at Liaoyang. There is a rumor that Kuropatkin's stronghold is now being attacked.

Liao Yang, Aug. 29.—The Russians retired from Anshanshan after a fight which commenced on Friday morning of Aug. 26 and continued in a desultory manner all day and night. Arrangements for a battle had been completed by night time when the order to retire was given on account of the situation to the east. The retirement was made in an orderly manner.

The plain between Anshanshan and Heicheng was covered with Japanese troops who burned bridges and shelled the railway station after the Russian retirement. The Japanese are advancing with great rapidity.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 29.—The general staff has received the following telegram from Lieutenant General Sakharoff, dated Aug. 27:

"Our advance guards and advance troops on the southern front yesterday retired slowly towards the fortified position at Anshanshan. Rifle fire was general along the whole front. The Japanese artillery cannonaded our positions at different points. Our guns poured a heavy fire into the columns of the Japanese as they advanced and into their works and entrenchments and eventually compelling them to move their vast camp from Famalna to the village of Baissaize.

"Our troops repelled towards the southeast all attacks of the Japanese directed against their front, while our troops on the right flank, taking the offensive towards evening, drove the Japanese back on Tounsinpu. Our losses on the southeast front were about 400.

"Our detachment on the east yesterday had a desperate fight against considerable forces of the enemy. On the right flank our infantry repulsed the attacks begun during the night by the enemy on the advanced positions of Tsegow and Anping. This affair culminated in sharp bayonet fighting and some of our regimental officers received wounds. After desperate fighting on the advanced positions of Tsegow and Anping our troops retired on the main position supported by artillery.

"The Tamboff regiment on the left flank, at Tsegow defended an advanced position, repelling all the enemy's attacks at the point of the bayonet. There were four counter-attacks. The commander of the regiment was killed or wounded.

"A turning movement by the enemy against the left flank of the Tsegow position and the enfilading fire of their batteries on Khaouiou heights, forced the Tamboff regiment to retire and the retreat was effected in good order. Six guns were abandoned, but they were broken and rendered useless. The Japanese attacked like fanatics and their losses must have been very great. Our troops captured a considerable number of rifles, caps and other articles of equipment from the Japanese.

"On Aug. 27 the enemy had not assumed any definite offensive movement at any point along the whole front, and our troops retired gradually to new positions.

Fair Warning From Japan

Washington, Aug. 29.—Japan has addressed a note to the powers informing them that unless Russia forthwith disarms her warships in Shanghai, Japan will be forced to take whatever steps she deems necessary to protect her interests. Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, called at the state department and left the communication of the Tokio government.

The Fighting at Port Arthur

London, Aug. 29.—The Chronicle's correspondent with General Kuroki cables: The fall of Port Arthur is imminent. The Japanese are now within the main defenses and their guns command the town. Desperate fighting occurs night and day and the losses on both sides are enormous. The Russians are making furious counter-attacks, but the Japanese are clinging to the positions they have won at so great a cost.

BODY CUT TO PIECES

Another Murder Victim Found on the Farm of John Marx

Colchester, Conn., Aug. 29.—The dismembered and badly decomposed body of a man was found yesterday afternoon in a sack at the rear of the former home of John Marx, now in jail here awaiting trial for the murder of Joseph Pavoll, a helper on his farm, whom he is accused of killing last April. Yesterday's discovery was made after a continued search and was the result of a statement made by a friend of Marx that there were bodies buried in the woods near Marx's home.

It is believed that the latest body found was that of Paul Parker, who was formerly employed by Marx and who suddenly disappeared several months ago, Marx saying that he had gone to Pennsylvania. Some of the clothing has been saved by the coroner as evidence.

The murder of the man found yesterday and of Pavoll are almost exactly similar, their bodies being cut to pieces and put in sacks and buried in a manner which indicates that the crimes were committed by one man. Marx and his wife will be tried for murder in the first degree in September.

Snatched From In Front of Train

Boston, Aug. 29.—Miss Helen F Ames of Portland, Me., might have had her life ground out beneath an elevated train at the Battery station last night, but for the bravery of P. P. Edson of New York. The woman was thrust off the platform by the surging crowd, down to the tracks. As she stood there, dazed, with a train barely 100 yards away and coming around the curve at lively clip, Edson jumped down and carried her to the outwork of the station superstructure barely a food wide, where he held her until the train moved on. Then he carefully helped her across the deadly third ra.. to the edge of the platform, where willing hands helped them to safety.

Connecticut Farmer Murdered

Lakeville, Conn., Aug. 29.—Myron Wooden, a prosperous farmer, was found lying at the rear of Borden's condensed milk factory in Millerton in a terribly battered condition, and a few hours later he died. His skull was crushed and near him was found a heavy club, one end of which was covered with blood. It is the belief that he was murdered for the purpose of robbery, as when he left his home he had with him over $500 in cash and a draft for a small amount of money. When found the money was gone.

A New Bedford Romance

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 29.—It has just been become known that Miss Maybell E. Eaton, aged 18, was married to William H. Atwood, aged 75, last Wednesday evening. Atwood is a carpenter and works every day. This is Atwood's second marriage, he having by his first wife, deceased, with whom he lived for 40 years, two daughters and a son, the latter being 45 years of age and married.

In Customs Service Since 1837

Arlington, Mass., Aug. 29.—Colonel Alfred Norton, the oldest official in the United States customs service, died at his home here after a month's illness. He was born in Newburyport in 1815, and was in his 90th year when his last illness forced him to retire from active service at the Boston custom house, where he had been stationed since 1837.

Ninety-Seven Arrests In a Bunch

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 29.—A squad of policemen broke into the Hunters' club and arrested Jake Weihl, the alleged proprietor, and 96 men who were found there, on a charge of gambling or being present where gaming implements were found. The prisoners and the gambling paraphernalia were taken to a police station.

Hoar Gains No Strength

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 29.—Senator Hoar had a comfortable day Sunday, taking his nourishment and holding his own, though there is no evidence of increase in strength. For the first time since his serious illness he called for the newspapers and showed interest in matters of public interest.

Captured After a Fight

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 29.—A lighted match in the drug store of Lynch & Co. last night attracted the attention of Inspector Sheehan to the premises and resulted in the arrest of Charles Chestnut, 22, after a desperate battle. Chestnut was booked on the charge of breaking and entering.

To Women's Relief Corps

Concord, N. H., Aug. 29.—Mrs. Fannie E. Minot of this city, national president of the Woman's Relief Corps, has issued her first general order, establishing national headquarters in this city, and appointing Miss Helen M. Ayers of this city national secretary.

Drowned In Four Feet of Water

Naugatuck, Conn., Aug. 29.—Joseph Hendrickson and several friends drove to Quassapaug lake, intending to have a clambake there. He slipped from a cliff at the edge of the lake and, striking his head on a rock, fell and was drowned in four feet of water.

Quarrel Ended In Murder

Newark, N. J., Aug. 29.—Nunzio Morano, 23 years old, was shot and killed here by his brother-in-law, Guiseppe Marmanno, who also shot Mrs. Morano, perhaps fatally. Marmanno, in his efforts to elude a crowd of pursuers, ran into a meadow, where salt, covered by a foot or two of water, is in many places 10 feet deep and more yielding than quicksand, and he is thought to have perished. The quarrel that led to the shooting was over a sum of money loaned by Morano to Marmanno.

One Balloon Heading East

St. Louis, Aug. 29.—Professor Meyers, the aeronaut, who started in a race from the World's Fair grounds Saturday afternoon for Washington, and whose balloon landed near St. Charles, northwest of here, says he landed where he did because he feared he would be unable to catch an upper air current that would take him east. The balloon of George E. Tomlinson, who started in the race with Meyers, was seen Saturday night anchored in a prairie several miles north of St. Charles.

Avon, Ills., Aug. 29.—A balloon passed over Avon yesterday, going in an easterly direction. A card attached to a bun was dropped into a potato patch and on the card was written; "Will finder please write and tell of balloon passing town or city, George E. Tomlinson, World's Fair Grounds, care W. E. Smith."

A Besieged Priest

Allegheny, Pa., Aug. 29.—The priest of St. Nicholas Croatian church is barricaded in his house in the belief that an attempt to kidnap him will be made. The situation is the culmination of several months of trouble in the church. A majority of the congregation accuse the priest of mismanagement of the church's finances and demanded his removal. Bishop Phelan refused to accede to the demand and ordered the church closed.

Philippine Imports Gain

Washington, Aug. 29.—During the nine months ended March last the total commerce of the Philippine islands shows an increased value of more than $1,000,000, according to a statement given out at the bureau of insular affairs. The import trade advanced nearly $2,000,000 in value, and a slight falling off is shown in the exports.

Artful Wins Futurity Stake

New York, Aug. 29.—Artful, a brown filly, bred by the late William C. Whitney and bearing the colors of Herman B. Duryea, won the 117th renewal of the Futurity at Sheepshead Bay. The time for six furlongs of the Futurity course was 1m. 11 4-5s., the fastest on record for the stake, which was $55,000.

Money For Irish Movement

New York, Aug. 29.—John E. Redmond and those who came to America with him were tendered a reception last night by the New York municipal council of the United Irish League of America and $10,000 was either subscribed or paid in cash toward the fund for carrying on the Irish movement.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Forest fires are raging in British Columbia more furiously than ever. It is estimated that millions of dollars' worth of timber is burning.

Yacht Hildegarde, owned by Edward R. Coleman of Philadelphia, is at Rockland, Me., with her bottom badly damaged. It is supposed she struck a sunken wreck. The yacht is valued at $150,000.

Ten business houses, the courthouse of Trousdale county, the principal hotel, five residences and two livery stables were burned at Hartsville, Tenn.

The body of Edwin W. Webber of Durham, Me., was found in the Androscoggin river. The coroner pronounced it a case of suicide.

Frederick Hurd, one of the foremost citizens of Bridgeport, Conn., and vice president and treasurer of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Manufacturing company, is dead, aged 72. He was prominent in politics.

Eight million dollars or more will be expended by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company for improved rapid transit from New York city to the Bronx and that part of Westchester lying along the sound.

The body of James Murphy, 13 years old, was found floating in a pond at Nashua, N. H.

The time-keepers' office at the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. has been moved from the yard up to the main gate on East Howard street. The new office will be occupied today.

Enjoyable Trip.

Capt. Dan McQueen took a party consisting of Messrs. Smith, McDonald, Hollywood, Tappenden and others on an excursion down the bay on Sunday in his steam launch, Alice. It was a perfect day and was enjoyed by all. Mr. Smith was fortunate enough to land a 18-pound cod while Mr. Hollywood caught a flounder.

—It appears from figures recently published that medicine is the most remunerative of all the professions; that is, in 10 years after graduation. The average yearly income of Bowdoin's graduates in this profession, after that lapse of time, is shown to be $4687, and law comes close on its heels with $4577. For all practical purposes they earn the same, while the ministry drops to the low figure of $1559. If the income of the men who make medicines could be shown, the above figures would look diminutive.—Lynn Item.

Peach Crop is Enormous.

Peach dealers in Philadelphia are at a loss to know how they are going to dispose of the peach crop that is still coming in. In July there were 204,399 packages of peaches received, three times as much as last July.

The first 17 days of the present month have brought to Philadelphia 175,000 packages of peaches, as compared with 74,481 packages for the whole of August 1903. If the rate keeps up it will make the August supply four times what it was in August last year. The height of the season is usually in September.

Won Through Default.

The Wollaston Park A. A. won the second game of the series between the Quincy A. A. through default as the Quincy boys failed to appear on the field, which gives the game to the Wollaston Park A. A. with the score of 9 to 0.

There is no doubt in the opinion of many that the Park boys play a superior game so this gives the series to the Wollaston Parks for the 18-year old championship of Quincy as the Parks won the first game by a score of 8 to 7.

Next Saturday Sept. 3 the Wollaston Park A. A. will play the Warrens of Neponset for the championship of Boston and vicinity, the Warrens having won the pennant in the Hub Amateur league. The game will be played at Merrymount Park.

Fire.

A small fire which was extinguished by citizens without calling out the fire department occurred at the store of Mrs. Dailey on Water street, Saturday afternoon. The only damage done was the loss of a large awning which was completely burned.

The fire originated from lighted cigar being thrown upon the awning from the Shamrock club room, which occupies the upper part of the building.

LILY OF THE FIELD....

By A. S. RICHARDSON

Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure

Norah Fogarty knelt in the dim church and prayed—not for absolution, but for a new gown.

It was the Wednesday before Easter. Tim McCarthy's invitation to the annual ball of the Order of the Golden Fleece on Easter Monday night lay tear stained and crumpled on the cushion behind her, and Norah, like her predecessor in woe, Flora McFlimsey, had nothing to wear—that is, nothing worthy of the annual ball of the aforementioned association. To be sure, the other girls who worked at Reisenberg's flower factory envied the "air" with which Norah wore her short skirt of gray homespun, her bargain counter shirt waists and her simple ribbon stocks, but one couldn't pass an "air" off for a party dress, especially when the annual ball of the Golden Fleece was the event of the season in that social circle of which Tim McCarthy, foreman and contractor prospective, was an acknowledged leader.

HONEST TIM COULD HARDLY BELIEVE HIS OWN EYES.

And Norah loved Tim. She had told him so at his very urgent request some months before, and they had agreed to wait patiently and decently until Tim's two young sisters had become self supporting and the lover could afford to set up an establishment of his own at a safe distance from the noisy flat occupied by his widowed mother and her brood.

Norah, too, had her responsibilities. Her father was one of those happily constituted individuals who believed that the world owed him a living, and it happened that from his point of view just now Norah represented the world. And when one's mother sprains her wrist and cannot make buttonholes for three weeks and one's little brother is so inconsiderate as to contract a stubborn attack of measles one may not lay up money for ball gowns.

So Norah prayed in the firm belief that the Mother of Sorrows, who had answered her petition for her own mother's recovery two years back at the hospital, would incline her ear to so personal a request as a new dress.

The answer came in less than ten minutes. Norah scurried around the corner and plunged into the lunch-tide throng which filled Broadway from window to curb. A man jostled her rudely, and with the true womanly instinct she turned to the nearest window to see whether her hat was on straight. The window held nothing but paper, crape paper, tissue paper, stamped paper, paper shades for lamps, paper flowers, paper frames and paper dolls.

Norah forgot her hat, and her artistic eye rejoiced in the wealth of dainty colorings. She had never dreamed that paper came in such beautiful patterns. Why, they looked just like silk crape, and there was a piece of violet brocaded paper for all the world like the brocaded waist Miss Hagan, their forelady, had worn at the Christmas ball given by the Reisenberg employees.

Then Norah gasped. Her hand closed convulsively over her purse. It held a dollar that she could spare. Norah shut her eyes for just an instant, as if the thought made her dizzy. Then with very pink cheeks and her head held high she marched into the store.

"Yes; we have it in pink—the brocade, you mean? Twenty cents a roll, eight yards to the roll. For a dress—um—um! Why, if you sewed it on a foundation of tarlatan or cheesecloth I think two rolls would make it. Yes; we have the same shade in plain tissue. Twenty-five sheets? No; I think I'd use the sage green for stems. It's softer. Sixty-three. Thanks."

And Norah was again speeding up the street, her eyes very bright and a bulky package tucked securely under her arm.

For the ball of the Order of the Golden Fleece was to be a fancy dress affair, and if Mary O'Hearn could go as Bopeep in figured calico and a straw hat why could not Norah Fogarty wear paper that looked much finer than calico? To be sure, Mary O'Hearn was hiring her costume at the exorbitant price of $2.50. Norah knew, for she had gone to the same costumer to see whether anything could be rented for a dollar. And of one thing she was certain, that as the expert carnation maker of the Reisenberg shop she would make such garlands of blossoms to trim her gown as never a Fifth avenue belle imported from Paris.

Precious little did Tim McCarthy see of his sweetheart for the next few days, for Norah had much to do, and she put him off on the plea that he had a great surprise coming for the night of the ball.

And surprised he was. When he called at the Fogarty flat on Easter Monday night honest Tim could hardly believe his own eyes. Never outside of picture books had he seen such a vision in pink as Norah, her eyes shining like twin stars, her soft brown hair waved above her ivory white brow and crowned with a dainty wreath of carnations just bursting into bloom and her plump white shoulders rising from the bodice, cut not too low, but gracefully curved and garlanded with blossoms and straps of the blossoms over her shoulder, like the swell society women whose pictures he saw in the Sunday papers.

"Stand your distance, Tim," said Norah, with a nervous little laugh. "Sure, mother and me have worked the week like twin slaves, and you mustn't muss it now."

"I'm glad I brought a carriage," said Tim, his eyes glowing proudly, "for no fairy like me Norah should be walkin' to Powers' hall. Sure, it wouldn't surprise me at all if Mr. Hagan, president of the association, asked you to lead the grand march with him."

"Don't be teasing me, Tim," said Norah, but it was to her mother that she turned to have the fleecy fascinator and the old fashioned Paisley shawl wrapped about her.

But Tim proved to be a good prophet, for the president of the association had a keen eye for Irish beauty, and it was Norah's pretty face he saw long before he noticed the dress with its garlands of flowers. His choice, alas, was the cause of Norah's downfall, for the petty jealousies of the less fortunate girls took the form of caustic remarks, and soon Norah's appearance on the floor was the signal for jests that floated to her pretty, shell-like ear. And there was laughter, too, as girls passed her in the dance, which made Norah hold her head but the higher, not that she lacked for partners. Faithful Tim had difficulty in getting an occasional dance, and it was but a few minutes that she snatched for supper. Tim was jubilant, his naturally jealous temperament subdued by pride, and when he had tucked her into the carriage for the homeward ride he drew her dance card from his pocket and surveyed it by the fitful glare of the street lamps.

"Sure, you were the belle of the ball, Norah, an' I'm that proud of you I can't tell it. I asked Hagan to be the best man, Norah, an' he accepted on the spot. How's that for a compliment for you? An' your card looks like the pencils had been dancin' a jig on it, with ivery dance divided into parts. There wasn't a girl in the room could touch you, Norah, an' you made me think of thim verses from the Bible about the lilies of the field givin' pointers to Solomon himself."

Norah did not answer. Something very like a sob followed his words, and then Norah's head drooped wearily. She was crying softly.

"Norah, me girl, what's wrong with you?" asked Tim anxiously. "Maybe you've danced too much?"

"No, no," sobbed Norah, "but I'm ashamed to look you in the face, Tim. I've deceived you, you being a man and knowing nothing about clothes. Me dress was made of paper—and the girls have been making fun of me, as you thought was the belle of the ball."

Tim reached for her hot, trembling hands and smiled in the darkness of the cab.

"Sure, I knew it from the start, Norah. You niver decaved me a bit. 'Twas Mary O'Hearn that let me know at once whin you walked off with Hagan. Sure, she was that jealous she couldn't hold in the information. An' listen, me girl. I'd rather you'd wear paper that's paid for than satin that ain't, or hired clothes that there's no tellin' who's wore before you. It tells me plain that you won't be runnin' up bills for me to pay when we're married, an' now, being as the dress won't iver be worn again, there's no harm done."

And, suiting the action to the word, Tim gathered into his arms the drooping figure, brocaded paper, tissue garlands and all, and the crumpled lily wept a few happy tears.

Ahead of His Age.

The probability that vehicles driven by steam would be the future means of transportation on land was very well foreseen twenty years before the eighteenth century closed by Oliver Evans of Philadelphia, the inventor of the high pressure steam engine. As early as 1786 he petitioned the legislature of Pennsylvania for the exclusive right to use his inventions for road wagons to be propelled by steam. The word locomotive had not then come into use. This privilege was denied, but the Maryland legislature granted the right for fourteen years. There appeared at one time good prospects of Evans obtaining the necessary financial support to apply his steam engine to the propulsion of boats and road wagons, but some cautious capitalist of that day determined to have B. H. Latrobe, an accomplished architect and engineer, report upon the schemes that Evans was advocating. Latrobe reported strongly against the steam engine, saying that the inventor was a visionary. This report ruined Evans' career and deprived America of the benefits of the steam engine in transportation for two generations longer.

FROM HUMAN THIGH

Bits of Human Flesh Found In a Pile of Sawdust

CLEW TO THE BURNS CASE

Accidental Discovery by a Child at Play May Aid Police In Solving a Mystery Which Has Long Puzzled Them

Athol, Mass., Aug. 30.—The accidental discovery of a piece of flesh in the sawdust pile at the Southland sawmills and the subsequent finding of another bit of flesh by detectives has furnished a new clue to the supposed murder of Frank J. Burns, the jewelry salesman, who disappeared on the night of Dec. 17 last.

On the night of his disappearance Burns, in the company of Walter E. Smith, drove to the vicinity of the Southland mill with the expectation of disposing of jewelry to the men employed there. So far as known Smith was the last one to see Burns alive. Smith was arrested on June 28, charged with the larceny of jewelry from Burns and at that time property supposed to belong to the jewelry firm represented by Burns was found on the prisoner. At the time Smith said that he left Burns near the sawmill and afterwards by accident discovered a grip formerly carried by Burns and containing jewelry. Smith was later indicted for larceny and is now held in the Worcester jail for trial.

While playing in a sawdust pile Ethel Richards discovered a piece of flesh to which she called the attention of her father. The matter was reported to the police and State Detective Murray came here and instituted a systematic search of the sawdust pile. His investigation resulted in the discovery of a piece of flesh about four inches square near where the little girl had found the first piece. The two pieces of flesh were turned over to Medical Examiner Oliver, who was inclined to believe that they had formed a part of a human thigh. The flesh will be submitted to an expert to determine whether it is human. Detective Murray, with Deputy Sheriff Goddard and Chief of Police Jacques, devoted two hours to an examination of the sawdust pile, but it is understood that they have not concluded their search at this point.

Some time ago the police became convinced that Burns had been murdered and they have spent much time in an effort to locate his remains. Several promising clues have been run down, but the accidental discovery of the flesh was the first tangible clue to the possible disposition of the body.

Empire State Governorship

New York, Aug. 30.—On the eve of the city primaries there is a great deal of uncertainty about the Republican nomination for governor of New York. Three men only are now talked about, Timothy L. Woodruff, Lieutenant Governor Higgins and President Butler of Columbia university. Mr. Woodruff is the most active candidate and he believes he is going to win. Governor Odell does not share that confidence, which probably means that he is not for the Brooklyn man.

Weinseimer Resigns Presidency

New York, Aug. 30.—Philip Weinseimer, president of the Building Trades Alliance, who has twice been indicted for extortion, has resigned his leadership, and W. P. Nason, president of the Reliance Labor Club of Marble Cutters, was elected his successor. Nason is regarded as one of the more conservative element. As the cumulative evidence against Weinseimer was made public, opposition to him in the ranks of the alliance became more pronounced.

Veteran Hawaiian Editor Gone

Honolulu, Aug. 30.—N. N. Whitney, founder of The Pacific Commercial Advertiser, died here from heart disease, aged 80. He came to Hawaii in 1849 and in 1856 started The Advertiser. He was its editor for 30 years and was editor of The Planters Monthly up to a year ago. He was also the editor of Kuokoa, a native newspaper. In 1850 he became the head of Hawaiian postoffice affairs and established the present system.

Policeman Stabbed and Beaten

New York, Aug. 30.—A pickpocket attempted to rob a man who was listening to a band concert in Washington square last night. Policeman Shea gave chase and caught the robber, when a crowd of 15 men, members of an alleged hold-up gang, attacked Shea. He was stabbed in the head, three ribs were fractured and his body was covered with bruises. One man was arrested.

Finance Minister at Fault

Port Au Prince, Hayti, Aug. 30.—By a unanimous vote the chamber of the communes declared that M. Bijou, minister of finance, is responsible for the deterioration of the public finances. It is believed that President Nord will accept the decision of the chamber, although he expressed dissatisfaction with it.

Probably a Total Loss

St. Johns, Aug. 30.—Steamer Viking, Halifax for Hamilton Inlet, Labrador, went ashore near Belle Isle during a fog and is likely to prove a total loss.

Socialists.

The Socialists of Norfolk County, which organized at Stoughton recently, elected the following officers:

J. B. Howell of Walpole, chairman; H. Mosman of Stoughton, secretary and treasurer; George E. Littlefield of Westwood, organizer; these officers with L. S. Turner of Quincy, and J. T. Gallagher of Hyde Park, comprise the executive committee.

Their first meeting will be held on Labor day, at 2 o'clock, at Merrymount park, Quincy.

Reunion.

The 5th reunion of the Chase-Chace family association will be held at Hotel Lenox, Boston September 1st, at 10 A. M. An interesting and entertaining literary and musical program is in preparation and all persons of Chase-Chace name or lineage are cordially invited to be present.

☞Dr. George W. Galvin of Boston asserts that unless the authorities do as he says there will be a revolt in the Charlestown prison this week. It looks as though "the wish is father to the thought." Galvin is an agitator whose friends ought to take him in hand. He will be remembered as the man who insulted the Massachusetts militia in our local theatre a year or so ago. The testimony he produces of outrages at Charlestown prison is flimsy and utterly improbable—Waltham Free Press.

—Sam Jones, evangelist, preaching in Georgia recently, saw a well dressed young man leaving the church. Shaking his finger at the absconder, Jones thundered:—"Young man, would you rather go to hell than to sit here and hear me finish this sermon?" Stopping a moment and scratching his head, the young man replied, "Yes, I think I would," and stepped outside the doors.

—A man of small statue proposed to name his child John. A wit remarked that unless the boy promised to be bigger than his father, he had better call him Demi John.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

Communications were received from the Republican, Democratic and Socialist City Committee requesting polling places for the caucuses of Sept. 27.

POLLING PLACES.

Councilman Hughes offered an order designating the following polling places for the caucuses; Ward One, City Hall; Ward Two, Betts stable; Ward Three, Doble's hall; Ward Four, St. Mary's hall; Ward Five, Hose House; Ward Six, Music hall. The order also instructed the City Clerk to call the caucuses of the three parties to elect delegates to the several conventions and to nominate candidates for Representatives to the General Court, the polls to be open from 12 M. to 9 P.M. Adopted Adjourned at 7.58.

HIS EIGHTY-SECOND.

Capt. Charles N. Hunt Passes Another Mile Stone.

Capt. Hunt, one of Quincy's well known veterans was 82 years old Monday and the event was observed that evening in a manner befitting the occasion, at his home off Hancock street.

From early candle light until late in the evening he was kept busy grasping the hands of his many friends who had called to extend congratulations and to wish him many more years of health and happiness.

Capt. Hunt's life has been an eventful one. He was born in Scituate, Aug. 29, 1822, and was the son of Nathan and Catherine Hunt. His father was lost at sea when he was but two years of age; his ship, the schooner Ocean of Hingham, foundering on the Frying Pan shoals off the North Carolina coast. When he was four years old his mother came to Quincy. His education was received in the public schools of Quincy and then in common with all boys of that time he learned the stone cutters trade. He worked at this trade for many years. Later he learned the stone masons trade and was afterward engaged in building sea walls along the New England coast and in Boston harbor. He was always fond of the water and during his active life he saved eight persons from a watery grave.

He was one of the minute men of '61, and when President Lincoln called for volunteers he enlisted in Co. H 4th Mass. Infantry, which was commanded by the late Col. Abner B. Packard. With his regiment he participated in many battles. From the ranks he rose step by step until he was commissioned a captain.

At the close of the war he returned to Quincy and resumed his trade as a stone mason at which he worked until 1882.

He was elected a constable in 1847 and has held that office by election or appointment ever since, with the exception of the years he was in the army.

He was also a volunteer member of the Quincy Fire department and during the palmy days of the old hand tubs he ran to many fires with the old Niagara to which he was attached for twenty years, ten of which as foreman.

For the past twenty years he has been a deputy fish and game warden and has proved a very efficient officer.

He is a member of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., and is also a Mason. He is still vigorous and his age seems to tell but little upon him, and but for intermittent attacks of rheumatism he would be as spry as ever.

Many of his old friends were present Monday evening and as the party were gathered about the festive board many reminiscences of by-gone days were exchanged.

—Gen. Apathy is once more reported in charge of the various political campaigns, but he will be recalled before long and Gen. Hustle appointed in his stead.—Haverhill Gazette.

—A man who had a case in court said that if he lost in the lower court he would appeal to the Supreme Court and from thence to heaven. "And there," replied an old farmer, "You will be sure to lose, for you will not be present to answer in person, and no attorney is ever admitted to practice."—Lynn Item.

Good Afternoon.

There are two articles in the September Review of Reviews which are of especial interest to educators. President Butler of Columbia University writes on "The Educational Worth of the St. Louis Exposition," having reference, particularly, to the great world congresses of science and art to be held during September; and the remarkable investigation of Southern school conditions conducted by the General Education Board is described by Mr. W. H. Heck.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The Fall River strike has reached the highest rank as a labor demonstration absolutely without sign of disorder or disturbance.—Record.

☞One might obtain the impression after reading the complimentary things in the papers relative to the honored son of this state, Senator Hoar, that the honest man was now so rare as to be somewhat remarkable. Probably there are few of his kind in politics today, but is there not a great deal of hope coming out of the fact that we see and read upon every side such wholesome admiration in the case in point for an honest, honorable man? True it is there are some things money cannot buy. Wealth Senator Hoar has not. If he had, he must leave it after him. The consolation that he is trusted, beloved, admired, believed in by his fellowmen, he may, however, carry with him to the great beyond.—Spencer Leader.

☞In spite of some rather serious but inevitable defeats the St. Louis exposition is unquestionably the most comprehensive and instructive of any that have been held in this country. Its chief drawback is its huge area size; but this was scarcely avoidable when once the sponsors of the fair had planned it on vast scale upon which it had been built. The late President McKinley once spoke of expositions as being the timekeepers of progress, and in the intervening eleven years since the last international fair was held in this country, such has been the fervish activity of industrial life, not merely in America but in every part of the civilized world, so vast have been the strides that have been taken in many of the industrial arts and sciences, that it seems to require an exposition of the magnitude of the present one in St. Louis adequately to record, in concrete form, the world's advancement during these eleven years.—Scientific American.

☞Adulterations of food do not flourish out in North Dakota, and for the good reason that there is a law there which compels the publication of a list of adulterated goods twice a year in two papers in each county of the State. The buyer, therefore, knows just what he is purchasing, and has no excuse for consuming inferior commodities on the ground of ignorance. If he prefers a "doctored" article on account of its cheapness, he pays his money and he takes his choice, but he is aware that he is slowly poisoning himself through practicing a false economy. The government of North Dakota tells him what to avoid, and if he does not heed its published analysis, so much the worse for him. This law is, undoubtedly, a great discourager of the manufacture of impure foods. It must send many cheats out of business, for if their names appear in the list issued, they cannot long stand up against such publicity, even if they are not brought to justice for selling articles that are detrimental to the health of the buyers. The list is a good thing, and one similar to it ought to be pushed along through all the other States in the Union.—Boston Budget.

☞The Standard Oil magnate, Rogers, will build a big hotel in Fairhaven, to cost $100,000. Will he put an extra cent on a gallon of the kerosene sold to the common people to make up the amount? He can if he wants to, and nobody can stop him. The people must have oil, and they are obliged to buy it of Rogers and his associates.—Lynn Item.

☞Commissioner Russell is entirely right in the position which he maintains with regard to discipline in the Fire Department and to the matter of giving one day off in five. The attacks which have recently been made upon him, charging violation of constitutional rights in certain rules of the department, are evidently inspired by a wish to annoy the Commissioner because of his refusal to recognize the day "off:" but Col. Russell declines to be annoyed or to be moved a hair's breadth. He states his position squarely. "A fireman," he says, "is not a galley slave, and when dissatisfied with one day off in eight he can resign. I will tolerate no attempt on the part of members of the department to change the rules. A butler would not presume to alter the rules of the household. Dissatisfied, he would resign. Firemen are accorded the same privilege." There will be no resignations, however. The men employed in the city departments, and, indeed, in public service generally, know that they are well off—in fact, privileged above their fellow citizens who work longer hours, who enjoy far less leisure, and who take chances on making living wages.—Boston Courier.

☞The president of Amherst college is quoted as saying that the social degenerates of today are more apt to be the descendants of Puritans than the children of other lands. Possibly he knows this by a careful examination of the records and the statistics; but if he does not so know it, he would be wiser not to make such assertions. There might also be an inquiry concerning she exact significance of the phrase "social degenerates," and whether the thing differs from the ordinary plain degenerate. Moreover, there is also reason for considering the cause which result in degeneracy. If their effect is more plainly visible in the descendant of the Puritans today, is that because there is something inherently wrong about the Puritan and his progeny or because there has not been time for the development of the some difficulty with the children of the later comes? It is to be supposed that social degeneracy is a harvest of luxury, or laziness, or both; and especially that when these two appear in combination the bad product is certain to follow. In that case, the country may expect it of any race when the rich idler begins to appear. At any rate, if the subject is of any importance at all, it cannot be dismissed with the assertion that the degenerate of Puritan ancestry is more common than the degenerate of any other ancestry. First of all, it is well to know if the assertion is true.—New Bedford Standard.

☞Unquestionably one reason why high-class musical entertainments are not better patronized than they are is that there is no discrimination in prices. Musicians think they are affronted when they are told that a dollar is too much to ask for admission to a concert where only two or three take part. On this subject Emilie Frances Bauer has some very sensible remarks in The Leader and Concert-Goer: "When a Boston Symphony ticket costs $2, what right has an unknown young pianist, who has absolutely nothing to recommend her, except the supposition of a few months' study with a foreign artist of great repute, to ask the same amount? People who are giving concerts shy at the words 'fifty cents,' when at this rate it is probable that they would clear quite a little money. And let us add—although in a whisper—it is all they are worth with the hundreds of concerts going on during the season. To anybody with a sense of proportion it is evident that except possibly in the case of exceedly famous musicians—and not always then—there is small reason in exacting the same admission fee for hearing an artist or two that is asked for hearing such an organization as the Symphony Orchestra. Not only is the orchestra usually far superior as a musical medium, but it is tremendously more expensive with its large number of men, its high-salaried leader, and a well-paid soloist. People can see that there is reason for charging a large sum, when they can see no reason for a like price in the case of smaller concerts, even if the performers are of good repute. So they naturally stay away, or when they are implored by the managers of a subscription concert, pay with reluctance and sometimes with anger. There is no doubt that the average charge for the average concert is too large. Some that levy $1.50 had better ask 50 cents, and those which charge a dollar should be cut down to 25. The price would then be more reasonable, and the net profits would be none the less.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

FAIRBANKS' VIEWS

Expressed In First Formal Speech of the Campaign

KEYNOTE IS PROSPERITY

Compares Administration of McKinley and Roosevelt With That of Cleveland--Declares There Is Danger In a Change

White River Junction, Vt., Aug. 30.—The Republican candidate for vice president, Senator Fairbanks, delivered his first formal speech of the campaign here. Chairman Watson of the state committee called the meeting to order shortly after 2 o'clock. At the conclusion of a brief address by Senator Proctor the candidate for vice president was presented. Senator Fairbanks said in part:

"We have entered upon a campaign of far-reaching moment. We are to determine the policies that shall be in force and the administration that shall be in power for four years to come. The candidates and the platforms are before the people. One of the uppermost questions is, does the administration of President Roosevelt merit a vote of confidence? We may compare Democratic and Republican administrations with profit. Twelve years ago the country was in the enjoyment of an unusual degree of prosperity. There was work to be had on every hand and at good wages. Benjamin Harrison was then president—one of the ablest men who has held the chief executive office. The public business was well transacted. The McKinley tariff law was in full operation. In the face of all this, the Democratic party denounced 'Republican prosperity as a fraud and robbery of the great majority of the people for the benefit of the few.' It was declared to be unconstitutional and the repeal of the McKinley law was demanded. The people voted out of power the Republican administration, and expressed their judgment in favor of a repeal of the McKinley law. Democratic promise was accepted in place of Republican fulfillment.

"The defeat of the Republican party and the consequent change in the economic policy of the government started a sharp reaction in the industrial world. It is impossible to overthrow great economic policies without changing industrial and commercial conditions. It could not be done in 1892 and it cannot be successfully accomplished today.

"The four years succeeding General Harrison's defeat will not be soon forgotten. They were four years of arrested development, of panic and distress without a parallel in American history. In 1896, the American people resolved to return to Republican administration and to Republican policies. We came into power and pledged to overthrow the Democratic tariff law and to enact in lieu of it a genuine protective measure. President McKinley convened congress as speedily as possible after his inauguration to carry out our pledge. Months were spent in an exhaustive consideration of the entire subject, and in due time we put upon the statute books the Dingley law. The Republican administration and this measure gave confidence to the country. Fires were started in the great industrial centres. A profitable market was created for the products of the farms. Prosperity returned and spread her blessings among all sections and all peoples within the ample limits of the republic.

"Three years ago our great leader in the national contests of 1896 and 1900 fell at his post of duty. His successor has since then administered our national affairs with conspicuous ability. He has been an earnest student of the country's needs. He has been conscientious and untiring in the discharge of his great responsibilities. He has been inspired by but one purpose, and that has been to do well the work committed to his hands. Judged by any test we may apply, the administration of President Roosevelt has been eminently successful.

"The last three years have been years of exceptional prosperity. Business has been active in the market places. Industry has flourished and the farmer has prospered in an unusual degree. Prosperity has not been confined to limited areas, but has extended throughout the country. It has not been restricted to a few, but has been enjoyed by the many. Domestic trade has expanded to proportions never before attained and our exports have reached the highest figures in our history. In short, the the past three years have been years of commercial growth, of domestic peace and expanding power.

"As in 1892, the Democratic party now denounces 'protection as a robbery of the many to enrich the few,' and pledges itself to overthrow the Dingley law through a revision and reduction of the tariff. What will be the result of such a policy? We will find a most conclusive answer in the four years of the last Democratic administration. Let the American people take the Democratic platform and the record of the last Democratic administration in one hand, and the Republican platform and the record of the Republican administration during the last three years in the other, and pronounce their potential judgment."

HOAR'S BIRTHDAY

Senator Remembered by Friends Throughout the Country

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 30.—Senator Hoar passed a comfortable day and the bulletin issued last night showed that while there had not been any appreciable gain in strength, the senator had not been unmindful that it was his 78th birthday. Many messages and remembrances were received, not only from the senator's neighbors, but from friends throughout the country. They were all read to the senator and in them he found much comfort. He chatted with the members of his family during the day and in addition Rev. Calvin Stebbins of South Framingham, formerly pastor of Senator Hoar's church, was admitted to the senator's bedside, where he passed a few minutes. Senator Hoar takes considerable nourishment without difficulty, but thus far it has not had the desired result of increasing his strength.

The Marx Farm Mysteries

Colchester, Conn., Aug. 30.—An autopsy on the dismembered body which was found in a sack on the Marx farm determined the identity of the victim, who was Paul Parker, a farmhand, who disappeared in October, 1902. It is expected that the state attorney will order a search of the farm to ascertain if there are traces or the burial of other bodies. Gershon Marx is in jail awaiting trial on the charge of murdering Joseph Pavoll, whose dismembered body was found in a sack on the farm in April last.

Factory Destroyed by Fire

Whitman, Mass., Aug. 30.—Fire in the factory building, formerly occupied for the manufacture of shoes, and lately purchased by Edward F. Keene, destroyed the plant, caused several other smaller fires and caused a total loss of more than $18,000 early this morning. Keene had recently bought the factory and intended to begin the manufacture of shoe findings in the building on Thursday next. It is believed that the fire was incendiary.

Unlucky Ninety and Nine

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 30.—Of 104 men who were captured by the police last Saturday night in a raid on the Hunters' club, an alleged gambling resort, 99, who were accused merely of being present, were fined $10 each and two were defaulted. The cases against the manager of the place, Jacob Weihl, and his two assistants, were continued until Sept. 7. Twenty of the prisoners, who were unable to pay, had their fines paid by Weihl.

Honor Conferred by the Pope

Boston, Aug. 30.—Rev. Dr. Henry A. Barry, a young writer and theologian of this city, has had bestowed upon him by Pope Pius X. the grand medal or the exclusive Academy of St. Thomas Aquinas, Rome, in recognition of notable contributions to religious literature. The distinction which has come to Barry is shared by no other churchman or prelate in the United States at the present time.

Postponement of Tucker Trial

Boston, Aug. 30.—Chief Justice Mason of the superior court has set aside the date for the trial of Charles L. Tucker for the murder of Miss Mabel Page at Weston on March 31 last. Originally it was proposed to begin the trial on Sept. 26, but this date has been cancelled at the request of counsel for the defendant. A new date will be announced later.

Taft Visiting His Mother

Millbury, Mass., Aug. 30.—Secretary of War Taft is visiting his mother, whose home is in this town. He declined to talk politics other than to express confidence that President Roosevelt will lead the Republican party to victory.

Woodin Was Not Slain

Norfolk, Conn., Aug. 30.—Coroner Caulkins has decided that Myron Woodin, the farmer who was supposed to have been murdered, met his death by being run over by a vehicle, a wheel of which fractured his skull.

Mares' Pacing Record Lowered

Providence, Aug. 30.—Dariel lowered the world's pacing record for mares without a pacemaker from 2:03 1-4 to 2:02 3-4 at the Grand Circuit meeting here.

Morgan Got the Cope

Ascoli, Italy, Aug. 30.—M. Rocchiggiani, who was arrested in connection with the theft from the cathedral of Ascoli of a priceless cope, which was afterwards bought by J. Pierpont Morgan, committed suicide by hanging himself to a bar in his cell. Mgr. Santarelli and three priests are suspected of being implicated in the theft.

Serious Forest Fires

Missoula, Mont., Aug. 30.—One of the fiercest forest fires on record is raging southwest of here in the main range of the Bitter Root mountains. The fire has burned over a radius of many miles in Montana and Idaho. Many other large fires in Montana are burning and great quantities of timber are being destroyed.

Wrongfully Collected Subscriptions

Newburg, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Edward Tremaine, aged 28, is in jail here, charged with fraudulently representing himself as an agent of a publishing company and collecting unauthorized subscriptions for magazines in towns along the Hudson and in Connecticut.

Plague Aboard the Coptic

San Francisco, Aug. 30.—Steamer Coptic, from the Orient, was sent to the quarantine station because a Korean passenger died of the plague during the voyage.

CITY BREVITIES.

Henry Maloney, clerk at Hill's drug store, is having a week's vacation.

Next Monday is Labor day; the last legal holiday until Thanksgiving.

The Republicans and Democrats will hold a joint caucus this year; the first under the Luce law.

Mrs. Frank E. Hall of Worcester arrived in town Monday morning for a few days' visit with friends.

Miss Ada M. Nightingale, of Commissioner Knowlton's office, has returned from two weeks' vacation.

Quincy public schools will not open this year until Monday, Sept. 12, instead of the Tuesday following Labor day, as has been the custom.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Keating are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son at their home at 263 Whitwell street.

William J. Tilley has extended an invitation to the members of the Quincy Yacht club to attend a musical entertainment at the club house Wednesday evening.

The furniture for the office of the National Secretary of the Granite Cutters' union, as well as the plant of the official paper of the organization, arrived last week, and headquarters are opened in the Hancock building, where they will be located for two years. The arrival of John Duncan the national secretary, is welcomed here by the laboring men of all trades.

TO KEEP FRIENDS.

Be Interested In Them, but Never Descend to Curiosity.

If you would have friends be interested in them.

There is a difference between interest and curiosity. Never be curious.

Interest asks nothing, but is glad of others' joys and sorry for others' misfortunes. Curiosity seeks to find more than is written upon the surface, seeks it for the purpose of distribution, for innocent slander.

One's friends like one to be interested. They detest one who is curious.

To be interested in those one meets needs but to wish them well.

To see the best of those about us will cause us to wish them well.

To our wellwishers we pour out our joys and sorrows. They are interested. They understand.

The interested friend always understands. The curious acquaintance never sees through motives. The curious one is blinded by his own interpretation of causes and his prejudiced view of results.

Don't, therefore, seek to know what is hidden. If your friend conceals something from you he has a reason for doing it. Prove your interest and your lack of vulgar curiosity by trusting him in spite of the concealment.

Those who are truly interested and never curious are surrounded by friends.—Detroit Tribune.

A Short Name.

Among the many queer French proper names that of D'O is said to be derived from the village of O, in Normandy.

The Gleaners.

The Jewish law ordered that the grain fields should not be gleaned and that the wheat in the corners of the fences or walls should not be gathered, in order that something might be left for the poor. No farmer might forbid poor persons from entering his fields and gleaning after the reapers.

Amadeus of Spain.

Amadeus of Spain abdicated in 1873, disgusted with the tedious ceremonials of the Spanish court. He returned to Italy and was glad to resume his honorary and nominal duties as an officer in the Italian service.

The First European Almanac.

The first almanac printed in Europe or in the world for that matter, was the "Kalendarium Novum," compiled by one Relimontanus and published at Buda, Hungary, in the year 1475. But one perfect copy is known to be in existence, and that is one in the British museum.

Great Battle Probably Proceeding Near Liaoyang

MAY BE DECISIVE ONE

Kuropatkin's Repulse of Japanese Attacks Cost Him Three Thousand Men--Stoessel Says Port Arthur Cannot Hold Out Much Longer

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—The greatest uncertainty prevails regarding the actual situation at Liaoyang. There is intense anxiety for definite news from the front, but even the authorities are frankly ignorant as to whether or not the long expected decisive action will be fought at Liaoyang or further north.

It is possible that a great battle is even now proceeding and there are many indications that such is the case. If this is so the fate of this year's campaign may be settled within 48 hours. At the same time opinion is almost equally divided, many believing that General Kuropatkin will not make a determined stand and that the Japanese will crack the shell only to find that the bird has flown.

It is certain that the armies are now in closest touch. The Japanese are advancing in great force along both of the roads converging on Liaoyang, but the crucial question, whether it is the main Russian army that is concentrated there to receive them, or merely a strong screen, has not been answered up to this date.

Much depends upon the weather. It is possible that the recent rains may have made Kuropatkin's withdrawal impossible, even if he desired to withdraw, or that a further downpour may disarrange the plans of both sides. But the latest indications that the weather and the roads are improving should force a rise of the curtain within 24 hours.

A dispatch from Harbin says that the Russian losses in the fighting of Aug. 25 and 26, east and south of Liaoyang, were 3000 killed or wounded. The great majority of these casualties were sustained at Anping.

It is reported from a reliable source that General Stoessel has telegraphed to the emperor thanking him for the recent message of encouragement to the garrison of Port Arthur, saying that its defenders are ready and willing to lay down their lives, but adding that they had already suffered severely, and intimating that it is hardly possible to hold out for more than a month or six weeks.

Anxious to Recall Smolensk

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—Not content with the arrangement entered into with Great Britain to send a warship from Cape Colony in search of the cruiser Smolensk, the government has asked France and Portugal, in case the ship should put into an African port belonging to either country, to deliver the orders recalling her from operations on the high seas.

Don's Engines Need Repairs

San Sebastian, Spain, Aug. 30.—When the authorities of Vigo gave intimation that the Russian auxiliary cruiser Don, which put into Vigo for water, must depart within 24 hours, the commander of the cruiser declared that he must be allowed to stay five days in order to repair his engines. The matter was referred to Madrid for instructions.

Release of the Arabia

Shanghai, Aug. 30.—The German steamer Arabia has arrived here from Vladivostok. This is the vessel that was captured by the Russian Vladivostok squadron in July. She was tried before a prize court, which condemned 20,000 barrels of flour and 71 railroad car bodies. The remainder of the cargo and the vessel were released.

Russians Lose a General

Liaoyang, Aug. 30.—The Russians lost 300 in killed or wounded during the retreat from Anshanshan, the Japanese making a forced march by night and overtaking the Russians at daylight. General Routkovsky was killed by the explosion of a shell.

Unfit For Fighting

Shanghai, Aug. 30.—The Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi has been disarmed and the cruiser Askold will disarm today.

No Concessions by Packers

Chicago, Aug. 30.—"Absolutely nothing," in Mayor Harrison's words, summarized the result of the meeting of the aldermanic committee named to mediate, if possible, the stockyards strike. The committee does not expect to meet again. The packers refuse to make any concessions.

Sentence Not Yet Yet Pronounced

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—The statement that Sasoneff, the assassin of Minister Von Plehve, had been sentenced to death proves to be incorrect. The question as to whether the assassin will be tried by court martial or by a civil court has not yet been decided.

Close Congressional Campaign

Washington, Aug. 30.—Chairman Babcock of the Republican congressional committee expresses the opinion that the present is the closest congressional campaign he has experienced since 1898.

SLASHER LYNCHED

Taken From Jail and Strung Up by a Mob In Wyoming

Laramie, Wyo., Aug. 30.—Joe Martin, a negro, was lynched by a mob of 300 in front of Judge Carpenter's house last night. Martin was a trusty in the county jail. He attacked a white girl in the jail kitchen and slashed her with a knife. One man was injured when entering the jail to drag out the prisoner.

After assaulting Miss Krause with a razor, Martin was placed in a cell. The first intimation that Sheriff Cook had of the contemplated lynching was when two masked men appeared in the kitchen of the jail house and, with guns leveled at him, told him that there were 200 men waiting outside for the negro and that he had better not attempt to make any trouble for them. While the first two men held the sheriff, a third masked man took the keys of the jail from the sheriff's pocket and the negro was taken from his cell and hurriedly marched through the courthouse into the street. Arriving at a lamp post the negro was quickly strung up to the post. During the entire proceedings the negro did not speak or attempt to resist the mob. Within an hour after the lynching the streets were deserted.

Miss Krause would have been killed by Martin had not Sheriff Cook held him until his rage cooled. On the way out Martin slashed Frank Frazer, a bystander, with a butcher knife, which he had grabbed from a table. Frazer's wound is not serious. Miss Krause is not seriously hurt.

Probable Arrests In Lynching Case

Statesboro, Ga., Aug. 30.—Sebastine McBride, a negro, living near Portal, was taken from his house by five men, carried out in the wood and whipped severely and then shot. He died soon afterwards. Before death came, however, he told the names of three of his assailants, Perry Barnes, Henry Barnes and Wesley Waters, all white men. The sheriff has gone to arrest the men named.

Thousand Men After Negro

Danville, Va., Aug. 30.—Policeman Hall was shot and killed last night by Jack Dillard, a negro outlaw. A mob estimated at 1000 men is now hunting for the negro and if he is captured a lynching may result.

The Waggaman Difficulties

Washington, Aug. 30.—Justice Stafford has issued an order directing Thomas Waggaman, treasurer of the Catholic university, against whom proceedings in bankruptcy have been filed, to show cause by Sept. 1 why he should not be removed as trustee for certain parties to whom he gave notes for certain money invested. The three banks which filed the original proceedings in bankruptcy also petitioned the court to appoint a receiver to take possession of all the assets of Waggaman, and collect and hold the same until further order, the object being the preservation of the estate of Waggaman.

Sensational Struggle Promised

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Joseph H. Strong, public administrator of Cook county, was appointed administrator of the estate of Mrs. J. H. McVicker, widow of the theatrical man, by the probate court here, on application of Horace McVicker, stepson of the deceased, and other heirs at law. The value of the estate is said to exceed $285,000. Dr. Zeigler is in possession of the body of Mrs. McVicker and will bring it from San Francisco to Chicago. The relatives intend to take charge of the body, "even," as one of them said, "if it becomes necessary to call in the police to enable us to do so."

Philippine City Destroyed

Manila, Aug. 30.—The city of Binang, island of Luzon, has been destroyed by fire. One hundred persons perished in the flames and 5000 were rendered homeless. The loss is estimated at $200,000. The government is furnishing shelter and food to the people made destitute by the fire.

According to the census of 1896, Binang had a population of 7358.

Vicious Gang Corralled

Columbus, Ga., Aug. 30.—Five negroes were arrested near Salem, Ala., for attempting to enter the house of Mrs. Maggie Plott. One of the members of the gang arrested, a negro woman, confessed to the authorities that the negroes of the community had organized for the purpose of murdering, robbing and burning.

Insurgents Dominate Paraguay

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 30.—The Paraguayan insurrectionists are actively preparing for a land attack. Serious resistance is not expected. Government troops at Asuncion are freely deserting. Their rations are now reduced to three biscuits daily. The country is almost entirely dominated by the insurgents.

Aerial Contest a Failure

St. Louis, Aug. 30.—George E. Tomlinson, contesting with Carl E. Meyers in a balloon race to Washington, landed near Wyoming, Ills., after being in the air 24 hours. Meyers landed near St. Charles, Mo., after being in the air a little more than two hours.

Parker Declined to Comment

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 30.—The announcement by David B. Hill of his contemplated retirement Jan. 1 occasioned much interest in Esopus, but Judge Parker refused to comment upon it.

Heiress to More Than $50,000,000

Philadelphia, Aug. 30.—The will of William Weightman, head of the firm of Powers & Weightman, manufacturing chemists, who died a few days ago at the age of 91, leaves his entire estate, valued at more than $50,000,000, to his daughter, Mrs. Anne M. Walker, widow of the late Congressman Walker of Williamsport, Pa. Mrs. Walker becomes sole owner of the extensive chemical works which makes her one of the richest women in the world. She will assume active management of the drug business besides looking after the real estate left her by her father, who owned much property in several states.

Injured In Fighting Fire

New York, Aug. 30.—Four firemen were overcome by smoke and two others were injured by falling through a hatchway during a fire in a West street business block last night. All will recover. The building was occupied by an exporter of drygoods. There was considerable excitement in the tenements adjoining the burning building until the residents were assured that there was no possibility of a spread of the flames.

Hidden Treasure Unearthed

Johannesburg, Aug. 30.—Mr. Kemp, a cousin of General Kemp, the Boer commander, has discovered in the northern Transvaal the treasure moved from Pretoria before the entry of General Roberts. The value of the treasure is estimated at $1,250,000, of which the government will receive half.

Made the Merchant Feel Mighty Cheap

A well known merchant of Boston, who prides himself upon his bump of order, went over to New York recently on business. Arriving by the boat, he repaired to his usual hostelry, whence, after a hasty breakfast in the cafe, he departed for the city. That afternoon he found it necessary to come to Philadelphia and was gone overnight. Getting back to New York the next noon he concluded his business and at night went to his hotel and sought the table d'hote for a substantial meal.

Now, it is a boast of this gentleman that in all his business career he has lost but one umbrella and never a hat. He was at much pains to place his hat in an obscure corner of the public rack in the hall. Coming out again he groped for an instant in the selected hiding place and then proudly drew forth the shining tile and was about to put it upon his head when he felt his hand forcibly arrested.

"You've got my hat there," said a red faced and angry looking man who was holding his wrist.

He of the bump of order smiled a suave and superior smile. "Oh, no, you're mistaken, sir; this is my hat," he said patronizingly.

"That's my hat," retorted the other. "It's my hat, and I mean to have it!"

"My dear sir, you have simply made a mistake—that is all," said the merchant, who is diplomatic above all things. "This is my hat. There is absolutely no question about that. Let me explain the matter. Upon coming in here tonight I took particular pains to place my hat up there in that dark corner, next the wall. It was out of the way, hidden from view. There were no other hats near it. I now come out, reach up my hand and take my hat from precisely the same spot, sir. You yourself saw me do it."

"That may all be, sir," sniffed the red faced man. "But it's my hat, just the same."

"Your hat, sir? Will you kindly explain how that can be?" said the merchant icily.

"I will, sir, in about three words," growled the other. "It's mine because you took it out of this hotel yesterday morning, and you've been wearing it ever since."—Philadelphia Press.

Not Wise.

"There is such a thing as being too polite. For instance, there is Flumleigh. He went into a store to inquire about something or other, and there was nobody but a woman there. He began by asking, 'I beg pardon; if you are not engaged'— And, before he could say any more, she interrupted him with, 'This is so sudden!' And, by gracious, she accepted him on the spot, and before he knew what was going on. No, sir, it doesn't pay to be too polite." And the speaker shook his head sagely and not without a suggestion of sadness.—Boston Transcript.

An Expensive Luxury.

Mrs. B.—I thought I would never get away from Dr. Gilroy today. He talks by the hour.

Mr. B.—Is that so? And he charges by the minute.

Not That Kind.

"No, Mr. Hankinson," said Tommy to the young man who was waiting in the parlor for Tommy's sister, "I ain't the kind of a little boy you're always readin' about in the papers what begs candy from the fellers that comes to see their sisters. Still, if you've got any in your pockets I'd be willin' to take it."—Chicago Tribune.

Discouraging.

Old Gotrox—Do you think you can support my daughter properly without going bankrupt?

Stayleight—Certainly.

Old Gotrox—Well, that's more than I can do. Take her and try to be happy.—Brooklyn Life.

As He Looked at It.

She—I wonder who first said, "It is better to be born lucky than rich?"

He—Some old fool whose wife married him for his money, I guess.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Effect.

She—Every one says she has such very small feet.

He—Yes; she's heard it so often that it's given her the big head.—Yonkers Statesman.

Humbled.

He called upon his ladylove,
Asked her his wife to be,
But when the bulldog came in sight
He scooted up a tree.

And he was forced, though he possessed
The culture of the east,
To own he wasn't much above
The level of the beast.

CAUCUS OFFICERS.

City Clerk Keith Designates Who Shall Serve.

The joint caucuses to be held Sept. 27, will not be held by precincts but by wards. As there are two sets of election officers appointed for each ward the question has arisen as to which will serve at the caucuses. The law provides that the officers of the caucuses shall be designated by the City Clerk. In order that both sets of officers shall be used alike City Clerk Keith will designate the election officers appointed for precinct one in each ward to serve at the state caucuses and those appointed for precinct two to serve at the municipal caucuses.

Bostons at the Top.

In the American League the Bostons are at the top once more. By winning from Detroit yesterday by the close score of 1 to 0 and by the loss of New York to Cleveland, the champions regained first place, which they had lost since Aug. 4. Boston now leads New York seven points, Philadelphia 29, Chicago 38 and Cleveland 39 points, making the closest race ever known in the history of the national game.

NARROW ESCAPE.

From Drowning by a Brockton Man at North Weymouth.

Patrolman James House of station 13, Jamaica Plain, saved William O'Connell of Brockton from drowning at Weymouth Back river Monday night. Mr. O'Connell, who is 65 years old, took a swim about 5 o'clock in the Weymouth river near Bridge street. The current at this point runs very swiftly under the bridge which connects Weymouth and Hingham, and Mr. O'Connell, although a good swimmer, was swept off his feet and was carried out into the stream.

His cries for help were heard by patrolman House, who is spending his vacation at his camp on the banks of Weymouth river. He jumped into a boat near by and rowed to the spot where O'Connell had gone down.

House could see O'Connell lying on the bottom, and with a long boat hook he brought the body to the surface and rowed to the shore, where after 45 minutes of hard work O'Connell showed signs of life and was finally resuscitated.

AN ODD PHENOMENON.

Showers of Rain Can Come From a Cloudless Sky.

It appears that rain can fall from a cloudless sky. This is true of a thin drizzle which falls in France, known as "serein." As the atmosphere looks quite clear when it falls, the probability is all in favor of the moisture having been brought by the wind at a great elevation. In the island of Mauritius the phenomenon is by no means uncommon during the prevalence of southeast winds, slight showers falling in cloudless evenings when the stars are shining brightly. There the rain is thought to be due to invisible vapor in the upper reaches of the atmosphere, being condensed at once and falling in drops without passing through the intermediate stage of cloud. Ross said that in the south Atlantic it rained on one occasion for upward of an hour while the sky was altogether free from clouds. Says a Genoese naturalist, "The night was clear, the stars were shining with their accustomed brilliancy, when a shower of rain, consisting of large lukewarm drops, fell during six minutes upon the town." A similar view was once observed at Constantine, in Algeria, about noon, the sky being all the time a splendid blue. Some believe that these showers are the result of particles of ice formed in the higher regions melting and falling, while others attribute them to currents of warm and cold air traveling in opposite directions, with the result that the latter condenses some of the moisture in the former and causes it to fall.

OLD TIME MANNERS.

The Exaggerated Courtesy of the Eighteenth Century.

In Social England the following appears as indicating the exaggerated courtesy of fashionable people early in the eighteenth century: "Chesterfield teaches that it is boorish to congratulate a friend on his approaching marriage with merely 'I wish you joy,' when he should have said, 'Believe me, my dear sir, I have scarce words to express the joy I feel upon your happy alliance with such and such a family.' The 'compliment of condolence' on a bereavement should not be, 'I am sorry for your loss,' but 'I hope, sir, you will do me the justice to be persuaded that I am not insensible of your unhappiness, that I take part in your distress and shall ever be affected when you are so.' His child began his lessons in 'breeding' at nine years old, having till then learned Latin, Greek, French, history and geography. He is warned to beware of using proverbial sayings in his speech, such as 'One man's meat is another's poison,' or 'Every one to his taste, as the good man said when he kissed his cow.' He must attend to the graceful motion of his arms, the manner of putting on his hat and giving his hand. Horace Walpole's entrance into a room is described by an eyewitness as 'in the style of affected delicacy which fashion had made almost natural, chapeau bras between his hands, as if he wished to compress it, or under his arm, and feet on tiptoes, as if afraid of a wet floor.'"

Origin of Texts.

The custom of taking a text as the basis of a sermon originated with Ezra, who, accompanied by several Levites in a public congregation of men and women, ascended a pulpit, opened the book of the law and, after a prayer, "read in the book in the law of God distinctly and gave the sense and caused them to understand the reading."

Previous to the time of Ezra the patriarchs delivered in public assemblies either prophecies or moral instructions, and it was not until the return of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity, during which they had almost lost the language in which the Pentateuch was written, that it became necessary to explain as well as to read the Scriptures to them.

Jennie Pitts was arraigned for assault on Annie Callahan at Quincy. Case continued until Sept. 17.

Auction of Millinery Goods.

We would call the attention of our citizens to the advertised sale tomorrow afternoon of millinery goods, etc., of the late S. H. Hussey; at her late place of business on Hancock street, opposite the Hotel Greenleaf. There are a great many articles and they will be sold for just what the buyers are disposed to give. No doubt many good bargains can be had.

☞ The foolish customs that prevail when newly wedded couples are sent away, might well be modified, if not done away with altogether. Not long ago, a heavy shoe was thrown at a departing pair, and hitting the groom upon the head drove all happy thoughts from his mind and he returned to the house and gave several of the hazers more fun than they bargained for. The custom will die out when the brides say the word. The prevalent idea among them is that if they are not made the object of showers of all sorts of things the affair has been tame, and they have not received the attention they ought to have.—Lynn Item.

It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma, A certain cure for Consumption in first stages. and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 25 cents and 50 cents.

CORTELYOU'S ENERGY.

Chairman of Republican National Committee a Tireless Worker.

George B. Cortelyou, chairman of the Republican national committee, has developed into a man of quick action, says the New York Herald. It takes him about two minutes to consider a proposition. If he does not look with favor on it by that time the chances are that it will not be considered again. When he makes his mind up thus in two minutes it usually takes him about thirty seconds more to get to the telephone.

The national headquarters in the Metropolitan Life building in New York is run like a well organized business establishment. An observing man who went to work there recently remarked that it seemed to him that it must have been running at least a year. Mr. Cortelyou is surrounded by former employees of his in the department of commerce and labor, who voluntarily resigned to go with him. He goes to work about 8 o'clock in the morning. He devotes all his time while at the headquarters, which he does not desert until late in the afternoon, to seeing callers, talking with the Chicago headquarters over the long distance telephone and to receiving reports of matters which ought to be done in various states in which the national committee is interested. His system of reports is complete. It is safe to say that he knows more about the political situation of the United States at this minute than any other man.

When he leaves the headquarters Mr. Cortelyou goes to his rooms in the Manhattan hotel. At that time his work is just half through, and he has accomplished more than the average business man who works under full head of steam from 9 to 5. He attends to all his correspondence at the hotel. He has no chance to look at it at the headquarters. He also sees some callers, but only by appointment. He never goes to bed until his work is finished. Sometimes this is 2 o'clock, sometimes it is 3. But he gets up "fresh as a daisy" and is ready for work before the older campaigners at headquarters have finished their coffee and rolls.

FOREST FIRE ALARM.

Wireless Telegraphy to Be Tried In the Black Hills.

Wireless telegraphy is to be employed to aid in saving the forests of the west, says a Washington special dispatch to the New York Times. Plans are being made in the bureau of forestry to establish wireless stations at intervals throughout the Rocky mountains, where there are large forests and where fires occur in the dry season every year, destroying vast areas of magnificent timber. At these stations expert observers will be kept who will give warning whenever a fire begins, and help will be called to assist in extinguishing it.

The first system to be set in operation will be in the Black hills. Twelve forest rangers are employed by the government there, and it is proposed to divide the territory into twelve sections, with a ranger in charge of each. The ranger is to give an alarm independently of the automatic service it possible. If the system works successfully in the Black hills it will be extended to the other forests in the United States.

PARKER EDITOR OF SONG.

Ex-Judge Bars Word "Rule" From Choral Written by Organist.

Ex-Judge A. B. Parker, presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket, recently set the sign of his approval upon a campaign song written and composed by George Hayden Bromby, F. S. A., the organist of the Church of the Holy Cross at Kingston, of which his son-in-law, the Rev. C. M. Hall, is the rector, says an Esopus dispatch to the New York American.

Mr. Bromby is an Englishman who has been in America two years and does not pretend to know anything about American politics. His song is in C sharp major and is entitled "Safe, Sane and Sound." He bore it in triumph to Rosemount and played and sang to the judge.

The performance went swimmingly, Judge Parker standing at the end of the piano until the composer came to the last four lines in the second stanza, which are as follows:

With confidence in Parker sure
That he will prove O. K.
And make a mighty president
To rule the U. S. A.

"Tush, tush," said Judge Parker; "we do not have mighty presidents ruling the U. S. A."

Bromby was embarrassed until it was suggested that the substitution of the word "guide" or "lead" for "rule" would be satisfactory, and then Judge Parker consented to accept the dedication of the song, and the happy organist, loaded down with white flowers from the Rosemount lawn, returned gayly to Kingston.

The Quiet Japanese.

This is a pen picture by a correspondent of the occupation of a town by Japanese soldiers:

"The Japanese division was in the town, there was no doubt of it, but not even a bugle broke the comparative quiet of the place. I explored the streets to see what had become of these unusual soldiers. I found them in the shadows of verandas, within the shelter of gardens and compounds, resting or cooking their food by little fires that were flickering in numberless different directions. They seemed to have no use for orderlies or staff officers, for everything seemed to be ready, prepared and complete. Or, if any passed to and fro, they seemed as noiseless as the very shadows in which they moved."

BATTLE IS RAGING

Japanese Rush Attack on Russians at Liaoyang

400,000 MEN TAKING PART

Shrapnel Cannonade Cleared Fields For Advance of Troops, Speedily Bringing the Armies In Close Touch--Japs Believe Time Has Come to Decide This Year's Campaign

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—The great battle of Liaoyang, which began early Tuesday morning, raged throughout the day with increasing intensity, but up to this hour (3:35 a. m.) no further official details beyond two brief dispatches have been received by the war office. The city is hungrily awaiting further news of the progress of the fight.

The Japanese forces engaged in this battle can only be estimated here, but they are believed to number about 200,000 men. General Kuropatkin is known to have six army corps, besides 147 squadrons of cavalry, in which great confidence is reposed, bringing up the Russian total to about the same number that the Japanese have. How the armies compare with regard to artillery is not definitely known, though throughout the war the Japanese have shown great preference for this arm and great skill in its use.

Reports from the front credit the Japanese with having about 1200 guns and many mountain batteries and it is known that they recently shipped 24 heavy guns to Kinkow.

General Kuropatkin, in addition to his field batteries, has a number of very heavy guns emplaced at important positions at Liaoyang, where the Russians have been strongly fortifying for some time.

The Japanese claim to have captured two field batteries during the past two days. Russian official accounts admit the loss of only six guns.

It is stated that a Japanese battery was captured south of Anshanshan during the preliminary fighting and that several Japanese guns have been destroyed since then.

Little of the strategic situation has developed so far. Official news from the front says that there was desperate fighting on the southern centre, while from other sources it appears that the Japanese are endeavoring to turn the Russian right from the neighborhood of the junction of the Taitse and Sakhe rivers. The fighting on the western flank appears to have approached within three miles of Liaoyang.

Three Japanese armies are crashing against the Russians at Liaoyang in a battle of paramount importance to the fortunes of the far east. The sixth day of the present movements began early yesterday morning with a heavy fire of shrapnel by which the Japanese cleared the way for an advance of their infantry. At 9 o'clock, reports General Sakharoff, they were close to the Russian lines, attacking with greatest force the south and east fronts of Kuropatkin's army.

The Russian gun positions are reported about four miles from the town on the east, and from here round the whole semicircle of the Russian positions an artillery duel is in progress.

General Sakharoff also reports that a large Japanese force is moving eastward, west of the railroad. This presumably means an attempt to cut off the Russian retreat toward Mukden and to make sure that the present battle shall be a final and decisive action.

The spirit with which they have pressed their advance since last Wednesday shows that the Japanese commanders are determined on making this the great effort of the land campaign. They spent many weeks in preparing for it, and must believe that the time has now come to decide this year's campaign. If they crush Kuropatkin's army, it is probable that no other Russian force on the ground can prevent Japan's reaching up to Harbin, cutting off Vladivostok, and taking for her own needs the valley of the Liao river.

Russia to Borrow $250,000,000

London, Aug. 31.—The correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at St. Petersburg sends the following dispatch: The finance ministry has practically arranged with German bankers for a new loan of 500,000,000 roubles (approximately $250,000,000) at a higher rate of interest than that in the last loan. The date of issue is not stated, but it is not likely that the loan will be floated until after the fall of Port Arthur.

Russians Scouting For Colliers

Madrid, Aug. 31.—The Russian auxiliary cruiser Don has left Vigo without waiting for her bill of health, having presumably been ordered to resume the search for British colliers destined for Japan. Ten other Russian cruisers are engaged in this work on the coasts of Spain, Portugal, France and Africa.

Kuropatkin's Tactics Criticized

Berlin, Aug. 31.—German military critics point out that tactics of mere passive resistance will be disastrous to General Kuropatkin at Liaoyang, as the high angle fire of the Japanese batteries is certain ultimately to shatter the Russian defenses.

ANNUAL REUNION.

Massachusetts State Reform Club at Houghs Neck.

The Massachusetts state temperance reform club held its annual reunion Tuesday at Houghs Neck making its headquarters at Pierce's hotel. Sixty-eight delegates were present, but as most of the delegates brought their families along, the number was swelled to the hundreds.

The party began to arrive in the morning and were all on hand at noon at which hour a fish dinner was served.

After dinner there was a business session of the organization which was opened with a prayer by the chaplain, James G. Adgurson.

President John McDowell congratulated the organization on its progress since the last convention; two new clubs, East Boston and Roxbury, have been instituted. Another club at Lynn had been hopefully revised. Many public meetings had been held during the year and the result was such that he recommended all clubs to hold them.

While the membership had not increased as much as anticipated and desired, the finances were in better shape than for some years. All of the clubs are working in harmony, and the present year should be a record breaker as far as gains in membership and finances are concerned.

The election of officers was postponed until the December meeting and the matter of selecting a place for the convention was left to the board of officers.

It was voted to send a committee of speakers to each of the clubs working under the jurisdiction of the state organization to help them in the fall campaign and to talk over the proposed memorial to Harry Grant.

The December meeting will probably be held at Boston or Lynn.

While the meeting was in progress the rest of the party were enjoying a series of field sports which resulted as follows:

Girls' race—Won by Miss Stella Wood; Miss Mildred Lucas, second.

Women's race—won by Mrs. Thomas F. Anglin; Mrs. Matilda Cinck, second.

Boys' and girls' race—won by Miss Sadie Sutton; Freeman Johnson, second.

Boys' race—won by Freeman Johnson; William Lucas, second.

Fat women's race—won by Mrs. Matilda Wood; Mrs. Mamie Mosher, second.

The Republican Conventions.

[Special to the Daily Ledger.]

Boston, Aug. 30.—Calls are just issued by the Republican State committee for the state, congressional, councillor, county, district attorney, senatorial and representative conventions. The state convention is at Tremont Temple, Boston, Friday, October 7, at 10 A. M. The early hour will be especially noticed. The nominations are to be for governor, lieutenant governor, secretary, treasurer, auditor and attorney general. Each town and each ward of a city is entitled to send one delegate for the first 75 votes cast for the republican candidate for governor last year and one for each succeeding 150 or majority fraction thereof, and each ward and town shall have at least one vote. The state convention will have 1,619 members. Each delegate must be provided with an official credential bearing his name, and admission to the convention will be by these credentials only.

At the same time there is issued the call for the republican caucuses. These will be held either Tuesday, September 27, or Wednesday, September 28. Delegates will be elected at them for all of the conventions named above and the apportionment of delegates will be on the same basis, except that for representative conventions there will be one delegate for every 50 votes cast for the republican candidate for governor in 1903, or for a fraction as large as 25. Special instructions are issued by the committee for the guidance of the voters. The caucuses Tuesday evening, the 27th, are for the cities and towns which have adopted the joint caucus act. In these the political parties will meet at the same time and place and in the same manner as on election day. There are twenty-one cities and two towns which come under this act, as follows: Brockton, Cambridge, Chelsea, Chicopee, Everett, Gloucester, Haverhill, Holyoke, Lawrence, Lowell, Lynn, Medford, New Bedford, Newton, North Adams, Quincy, Somerville, Springfield, Taunton, Waltham, Worcester, Middleboro, Groveland. In all other places the caucuses will be held Wednesday.

In the Norfolk county convention there will be 97 delegates. In the first Norfolk senatorial there will be 46 and in the second there will be 49.

Quincy will be entitled to 16 delegates, as follows: Ward 1, 3; Ward 2, 2; Ward 3, 3; Ward 4, 2; Ward 5, 4; Ward 6, 2. Rule.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Discuss High School Accommodations.

More Money Needed to Carry on the Schools.

Many Resignations of Teachers New Teachers Elected.

Finances and additional accommodations for the High school were discussed at length at Tuesday night's meeting of the School Committee Messrs. Burke, Hallowell, Hunting Porter, Record and Smith were present.

The question of finances was discussed and brought out the fact that it seemed impossible to continue the schools until the end of the year without an additional appropriation; or any evening schools next winter.

The matter was referred to the sub committee on finance.

On the matter of additional accommodations for the High school, the discussion brought out that when school opened in September there would probably be from 60 to 75 more pupils than could be well accommodated. The matter was referred to the chairman and superintendent.

The following resignations of teachers were accepted:

High school,—James D. Howlett, submaster and Miss Martha F. Sawyer.

Adams school,—Miss Sarah A. Packard, master's assistant.

Cranch school,—Miss Minnie E. Welsh, Miss Annie S. Keenan.

Washington school,—Miss Bessie L. Drew.

Wollaston school,—Miss Nettie M. Delano.

Supervisor of drawing,—Miss Lillian M. Dearborn.

Miss Mary W. Holden, master's assistant at the John Hancock, was granted a year's leave of absence.

Miss Annie B. Marden was transferred from the Wollaston to the Adams school.

ELECTIONS.

The following teachers were elected:

High—Percy F. Parson as sub-master and Herman Gammons as assistant.

Cranch—Miss Annie C. Healey.

John Hancock — Miss Elizabeth Hiscock as master's assistant.

Washington—Miss Ethel Vogler.

Wollaston—Miss Fannie G. Blair, Miss Mildred H. Tavender.

Supervisor of drawing—Miss Flora M. Shackley.

YACHT CLUB.

Social Events Arranged by Committee for This Week.

The house committee of the Squantum Yacht club keep things constantly on the move at the club house. For tonight they have arranged for a smoker talk and bizarre party which should prove very interesting. Another grand good time has been arranged for next Saturday afternoon. The yachts of the fleet will be placed at the disposal of the ladies who will be given a sail about the bay. In addition to this there will be a series of interesting water sports. In the evening there will be an illumination of the club house and dancing.

☞While Democrats under the lead of Henry M. Whitney are trying to pull the wool over the eyes of the Republicans by a thinly disguised show of a non-partisan love for Reciprocity, the Boston Pilot does not hesitate roundly to denounce truckling to Canada, which is just what Reciprocity at present means. The Pilot recalls the unfriendliness of Canada from 1861 to 1865, when the North needed at least a friendly word, and at the close of a half column editorial says:

"These things are not recalled to awaken ugly memories, but only to prove that reciprocity does not insure friendship, as the wiseacres pretend that it does. At any rate, it would be well to look and think more than twice before opening our markets to Canada or any other nation which has not been, nor is likely to be, a permanent friend of this country and its institutions. Even then, we should be sure that it is real reciprocity, not a jughandled bargain, with the handle on the wrong side of the jug."—Waltham Free Press.

☞Troops are assembling for the great sham fight on the old battlefields of Manassas and Second Bull Run. The campaign will be a useful one to the volunteer militia for it will be nearer the actual experience of warfare than many of them have ever had. There is an interesting system of computing losses which is supposed to rightly determine the success or failure of the contending forces. For purposes of instruction this is all very well, but it is no more like actual war than a picture is like the real scene of battle. It may be that the computers of the losses in this mimic battle have decided to make the result a drawn one, and if so they have done well, for any other outcome is likely to engender bitterness. Sham fights need to be watched very carefully lest they develop into the real thing. Very few of the great battles of history were fought exactly as they were planned. The directing mind selects his ground and assigns his forces to certain positions, intending to achieve success in a well defined way, but when the fight has opened it not infrequently happens that new situations develop and changes are made because the enemy was not taken into the plan. One of the greatest soldiers, when assured by his subordinate Generals that the day was lost, inquired how many hours there were before dark and on being informed, replied:—"There is yet time for two victories." But the field exercises, the camp instruction, and the marches will be of immense value to the soldiers who participate, and the volunteer army of the United States will be a much stronger organization by reason of its excursion to historic Bull Run.—Lynn Item.

☞The newspapers have recently called the attention of boot and shoe manufacturers to the fact that a market awaited their products in Switzerland. A report from the United States consul general at St. Gall shows that not only is there a chance to work up trade in shoes but in almost every commodity produced in this country, for it is a fact that we sell very little to Switzerland, while we buy about $23,000,000 worth of silk and cotton goods, straw and braid, watches, musical boxes, leather goods, laces and embroideries, handkerchiefs and other things. We go to Switzerland for goods we can get better there than anywhere else perhaps, while of course it must be acknowledged that Switzerland can buy most commodities nearer at hand than across the Atlantic and so, perhaps, usually to better financial advantage. However, Consul General Peters advises our manufacturers that they could materially increase their sales if the matter were given proper consideration and expert men were to canvass the country. He says: "Machinery, iron, railroad supplies, horses and agricultural implements are almost all purchased from German firms, who have their men on the ground watching every opportunity for trade, studying every requirement of the people, and in every way that is possible conforming in credit, fashions, time of delivery, etc., to the requirements of the inhabitants of the country. This we must also do if we intend to enter as competitors against our powerful opponents. If we would but pursue the same methods that our merchants pursue at home I have no fear that we should fail to obtain our proper percentage of Swiss trade."—New Bedford Standard.

Heads Then Battered and Their Bodies Dismembered--Former Employe of Alleged Slayer Tells of Attempt to Kill Him

Colchester, Conn., Aug. 31.—That Gershon B. Marx, now held in Norwich county jail, is the perpetrator of a series of cold-blooded murders probably without precedent in the history of Connecticut, is the belief of the state officials, who have begun a systematic search for bodies on the Marx farm. Four murders and an attempt to poison another man can, it is believed by these officials, be traced to Marx.

The bodies of two of Marx's victims, Joe Pavol and Joe Palm, have already been found, and Marx is awaiting trial, charged with the murder of Pavol, his wife being held as a witness for the state. The two bodies for which the search has begun are those of an 18-year-old boy and a Hebrew peddler.

The boy, who was known as Harry, arrived in New York from Russia about three years ago, and he came here soon after to work for Marx. He worked on the farm for about six months and then suddenly disappeared. Marx was asked to explain the lad's absence, and said he had gone to Hartford to find employment. Beyond that he would not talk about the boy.

The Hebrew peddler went to the Marx home one evening two years ago and he was not seen alive again so far as is known. These two men, it is believed, met their death in the same manner as the two farmhands, and to obtain positive proof of this belief unceasing efforts will be made to unearth the bodies.

A Polander, known as "Joe," yesterday made a statement to Sheriff Jackson in which he accused Marx of attempting to end his life with poisoned whiskey. Joe took the whiskey, but was afraid to drink it and put it away. When the body of Pavol was found Joe mentioned the matter to the constable and gave him the whiskey and the constable turned it over to the jailor of the county jail, who promised to have it analyzed.

Marx made still another attempt on Joe's life when the latter discovered the body of Pavol. After he had exhumed the body Joe went to the house and accused Marx of murdering Pavol and said he intended to notify the authorities. Marx thereupon picked up a scythe and said if Joe attempted to leave the place he would cut his head off. The farmhand made good his escape, however, without injury, despite several vicious lunges made at him by Marx.

The motive for the crimes can only be traced to an insane desire on the part of Marx to escape paying money to persons to whom he was honestly indebted. The two men whose bodies have been found were six months behind in their wages, as was the young boy Harry, of whom no trace has yet been found.

The manner in which these men met their death appears to be quite plain. Marx always slept with his hired man, while his wife and four children slept in an adjoining room. He evidently drugged his victims when they pressed him too hard for their wages and then crushed their heads with an axe or some blunt instrument, after which the bodies were dismembered and buried. Each of the bodies already found bears a ghastly hole in the forehead, showing plainly the cause of death. The question of wages, then, was the cause of these two murders.

In that of the Hebrew peddler the case appears to have been robbery and then murder. The peddler went to the Marx home with a large quantity of articles, including clothing, cheap jewelry, etc. The Hebrew entered the Marx house late in the afternoon two years ago and was never seen again.

A few days after this event, Marx drove to the home of John Marx (no relation of the murderer) and tried to sell him a miscellaneous collection of clothing, some of it new and some of it second-hand. This clothing, it is believed, was the property of the peddler. Mrs. Marx was also seen wearing considerable cheap and flashy jewelry at about this time. This Hebrew is believed to be the last of Marx's victims, for all who have worked for him since that time have been accounted for.

There seems to be no doubt but that the other two bodies will be discovered. Marx had two farms, one of 165 acres and another of 105 acres. On the first farm was found the body of Pavol and on the second the body of Palm.

There are yet many places of a suspicious nature to be thoroughly investigated. In the house which Marx occupied a portion of the cellar was walled up since he took possession of the house. A trap door in the floor was also found and beneath it a quantity of loose earth and rubbish. These discoveries were made late yesterday afternoon, just before the searchers quit work for the day.

Date of Big Army Review

Gainesville, Va., Aug. 31.—General Corbin has fixed Sept. 10 as the date for holding the final review of the 25,000 troops to participate in the annual maneuvers of the army, and Wellington as the place for holding the review.

NEW YORK PRIMARIES

McCarren Wins, but Does Not Beat Tammany

New York, Aug. 31.—Both the Republican and Democratic parties held their primaries in New York city yesterday afternoon, but the interest centered in the Democratic contest in Brooklyn, where State Senator McCarren and Deputy Fire Commissioner Doyle, the latter the representative of C. F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, fought.

It was conceded that McCarren sympathizers would carry the majority of the Brooklyn districts. McCarren did carry 16 out of 21 assembly districts. It is said in political circles that McCarren is disappointed that Doyle carried even five districts and that he expected to sweep Brooklyn and do away entirely with the Tammany influence. Tammany is elated at the result.

In Manhattan and The Bronx there was practically no change of leadership in the various districts.

In the bitter Republican fight in the Twenty-fifth between Herbert A. Parsons and Howard Conkling, Parsons won by about 100 votes. It is said that Governor Odell was deeply interested in the attempt to defeat Parsons, who is a Platt Republican.

William S. Devery was decisively defeated in his fight in the Ninth district. In Devery's district the primaries provoked a fight between negroes and white men, which almost led to a race riot, and to quell which the police reserves were called out.

Taft at a Portland Rally

Portland, Me., Aug. 31.—The most important Republican political meeting in western Maine preceding the state election was that of last night addressed by Secretary of War Taft and W. T. Cobb, Republican candidate for governor. Secretary Taft's address was similar to that delivered at Montpelier, Vt., last Friday. Practically the same issues were discussed, only the Philippine question being treated more extensively.

Minnesota Democrats In Harmony

Minneapolis, Aug. 31.—Harmony characterized the Democratic state convention which was held here. More old-time Democrats attended than for several years. Former State Senator Johnson was unanimously nominated for governor. An animated contest over the matter of the judiciary ticket finally ended in the nomination of two Democrats and two Republicans.

Haywood Will Be Governor

Charleston, Aug. 31.—Democratic primary elections were held throughout South Carolina for state and county offices and members of congress. Success in this primary ensures success in the general election in November, as the Republicans usually make no nominations. D. C. Heyward for governor heads the state officers, who were nominated without opposition.

Beveridge Talks For Hale

Ellsworth, Me., Aug. 31.—Senator Beveridge of Indiana delivered a carefully prepared political speech here last night. He discussed the tariff, finance, trusts, Philippines and militarism, and paid eloquent tributes to the senators from Maine, Hale and Frye, especially the former, who is a candidate for re-election at the next session of the legislature.

Warning Against Apathy

Barre, Vt., Aug. 31.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson was the central figure at a Republican rally here last night. The keynote of his address was emphasis of the country's prosperity under a Republican administration and warning lest apathy result in a falling off of the normal Republican majorities in the coming state and national elections.

If Bryan Were In Missouri

Nevada, Mo., Aug. 31.—William J. Bryan spoke to a large audience at Lake Park, saying in part: "If I were in Missouri I would vote the state ticket from top to bottom. I would vote for your Democratic congressman, for a legislature which elects a senator and I would vote for Parker and Davis."

Encroaching Upon Parker's Rights

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Judge Parker's candidacy for president has caused his place at Rosemount to be visited by picnic parties in constantly increasing numbers. They make themselves at home with the utmost freedom and leave the place littered with picnic leavings. One party recently stripped several of the apple trees in the orchard and committed other depredations. Judge Parker is evidently reluctant to place any restrictions upon access to his grounds, but the entire disregard of the rights of the family shown by some of the picnic parties has caused much annoyance.

Candidate Davis' Son Sick

Elkins, W. Va., Aug. 31.—John T. Davis, only son of the Democratic vice presidential nominee, is a patient in Davis memorial hospital, having been brought from New York dangerously ill with typhoid fever. He was accompanied by his wife and children and Dr. Gibney. Senator Davis is much worried, the death of his wife and daughter in 1902 being due to the same malady.

Dundonald Not a Candidate

London, Aug. 31.—Lord Dundonald, in a letter to The Times, denies the report that he has accepted a nomination in the Conservative interest to contest a seat in the next Canadian elections.

Bloodhounds Chasing Robbers

Enfield, N. C., Aug. 31.—The postoffice here was robbed of about $1000 in stamps and money. The robbers escaped. Bloodhounds are now on the scent.

HIGH TAXES.

Rates Raised in Eight Out of Fourteen Cities.

Four Have Reduced Rates.

Many Changes Also Among the Towns in Metropolitan District.

The Globe gives the accompanying interesting table showing the tax rates in the various cities and towns of the Metropolitan district for last year and this year. An analysis of the tables show that the tax rate has been increased in sixteen places. Fourteen places show a reduction and eight remain the same as last year.

Of the cities eight of the fourteen given show an increase from 10 cents up to $1.10. Salem shows the smallest increase and Woburn the largest, with Cambridge and Newton close seconds at $1 each. Quincy comes next to these two cities with an increase of 70 cents. Everett's rate increased 60 cents and Boston 40 cents.

The largest reduction was in Medford, the decrease there being $1 less than last year.

Among the towns Revere is high line on the increases with $2, and Watertown second with $1.75.

The greatest decrease was made by Arlington, where this year's rate is $2.30 less than last year, while Canton dropped $2.

The towns $18 and over are Arlington, Braintree, Hull, Lexington, Randolph, Revere, Stoneham, Watertown and Weymouth.

The showing made by the cities is much poorer than the towns. The reason given for this is that the taxes for Metropolitan sewers and parks are very heavy and the county figures also continue heavy.

—As the result of a continued and persistent crusade against the billboard evil at Colorado Springs, Colo., it is likely that this obnoxious form of publicity will be entirely abated. At a recent meeting of the chamber of commerce in that city steps were taken which, if they are successful, will lead to the final abolishment of billboards in that city.

—As an illustration of the Japanese advance in the art of advertising can anything be more complete than this? "Our wrapping paper is as strong as the hide on the elephant. Goods forwarded with the speed of a cannon ball. Our silks and satins are as soft as the cheeks of a pretty woman, as beautiful as a rainbow. Our parcels are packed with as much care as a young married woman takes of her husband."—Philadelphia Record."

Estimated to contain 45,000 square feet of land.

Together with all the flats adjoining and appurtenant to the parcel above described.

The two foregoing parcels are two of the three parcels described in Certificate of Title No. 108, issued by the Registry District of Norfolk County, Massachusetts, dated January 13, 1904, and recorded in Norfolk County Registry District Court of Land Registration, Book I, page 108, the second of the parcels described in said certificate having been released from said mortgage or deed of trust. Reference is made to said certificate and to the plans filed therewith for further description of said parcels. The said two parcels above described comprise the premises decribed as parcels numbered 2 to 6 inclusive in said mortgage or deed of trust of December 6, 1902, parcel numbered 1 in said mortgage being the parcel released as above stated.

Parcel No. 3. A certain parcel of land, situated on the easterly side of Commercial street in Braintree in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing on land now or late of John B. Allen on said Commercial street, and running northerly on said street to land now or late of Joshua Wilkins; thence turning and running easterly on land of said Wilkins by a stone wall to a junction of said stone wall with another stone wall; thence turning and running southerly by land formerly of Barnabas T. Loring to land of said Allen by said last mentioned wall; thence turning and running first westerly, then southerly, then westerly, then southerly, then westerly all on land now or late of the said Allen by stone walls to the point of beginning, and containing twenty (20) acres more or less.

Parcel No. 4. Also a certain parcel of land situated on the westerly side of said Commercial street in said Braintree and opposite the last described tract and bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing on land now or late of Robert Dickey on said Commercial street and running southerly on said Commercial street to Adams street; thence turning and running northwesterly on said Adams street to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the Fore River Ship & Engine Co., by deed dated January 7, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running northwesterly and bounded southwesterly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Co., three hundred fifty-three (353) feet; thence turning and running easterly and bounded northerly by said land now or late of Dickey to said Commercial street at the point of beginning. The two last described parcels of land are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by Francis M. Edwards, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said deeds, Book 965, page 134.

Parcel No. 5. Also a certain parcel of land situated in Braintree, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the southerly corner thereof on Elm street, at land conveyed by Birney C. Parsons to George E. Brierton, by deed dated November 3, 1903, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 960, page 507, and running northwesterly along the said premises conveyed by said Parsons as aforesaid, seven hundred forty-two (742) feet, more or less, to land now or late of Mrs. Austin White; thence running northeasterly along said land now or late of said White, one hundred twenty-two (122) feet, more or less, to an angle; thence running southeasterly and bounded northeasterly by said land of White, about one hundred twelve (112) feet to an angle; thence turning and running northeasterly and bounded northwesterly by said land of White, about eighty (80) feet to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running southerly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company, about six hundred and sixty (660) feet, to said Elm street; thence turning and running along said Elm street to the point of beginning.

Parcel No. 6. Also a certain parcel of land situated in said Braintree, bounded northeasterly by said Commercial street; southeasterly by a private way formerly Elm street, which private way leads from said Elm street to said Commercial street; westerly by land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; northwesterly by land now or formerly of said White. The two parcels last above described are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by said Birney C. Parsons, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 955, page 136.

Parcel No. 7. A certain piece or parcel of land situated on the northeasterly side of Howard avenue, in that part of said Quincy known as Quincy Neck bounded northwesterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of George J. Sargent, five hundred and seventy-one (571) feet, northeasterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of heirs of Noah Bosworth, one hundred and forty and four-tenths (140.4) feet, southeasterly by the land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of Malchionda, five hundred and sixty-one (561) feet, and southwesterly by Howard avenue, one hundred and forty-one (141) feet, being premises formerly of Noah Bosworth, deceased.

Parcel No. 8. All the line of railroad of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, extending from and including the yard of said Company in said Quincy to the line of the New York New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in said Braintree, together with the land appurtenant and adjacent thereto belonging to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, and all rights and easements appurtenant thereto or used in connection therewith, and particularly the rights granted to the Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Kerby Stevens and Frederick H. Allen by deeds dated respectively December 31, 1903, and January 15, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 25, 1904, —subject, however, to the rights granted by said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to said Kerby Stevens by deed dated December 31, 1903, recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 26, 1904.

A portion of the premises to be conveyed is subject to a mortgage from Charles W. Pike to Albert H. Davenport dated November 14, 1902, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 934 page 545.

The conveyance will also be made subject to an easement granted by the Fore River Ship and Engine Company to the Old Colony Street Railway Company by deed dated January 30, 1904, to erect, operate and maintain upon certain terms, conditions, reservations and exceptions a pole line for the transmission of electricity and for telephones for the private use of said Railway Company along the route described as follows:—

Beginning at the South Shore Branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in Braintree, Massachusetts, thence extending northwesterly over land conveyed to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Sidney Coolidge by deed dated January 7th, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 965, page 137, to Adams street; thence crossing said Adams street and continuing northwesterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Elm street; thence crossing said Elm street and continuing northerly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Commercial street; thence crossing said Commercial street and continuing northeasterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to land now or formerly of one Patch.

The following parcel, which has been released from the lien of said mortgage or deed of trust, by instrument of release dated June 4, 1904, will be excepted from the conveyance:—

A certain parcel beginning on Commercial street at land now or late of John W. Ratcliffe and running westerly on said land one hundred and eight [108] feet to a stake on the margin of Factory Pond so called; thence turning and running northerly and northwesterly on a curved line along the margin of said pond four hundred and five [405] feet more or less to a stake on the margin of said pond situated twenty-five [25] feet from the centre line of the Fore River Railroad as now laid out; thence turning and running northeasterly eighty-six feet three inches [86 ft. 3 in.] to a stake on Adams street situated ninety-four [94] feet more or less from the center line of said railroad where it crosses the southerly side of Adams street; thence turning and running southeasterly on Adams street to Commercial street and southerly on Commercial street a total distance of four hundred ninety feet four inches [490 ft. 4 in.] to the point of beginning.

The conveyance will include, in addition to the property, rights, privileges and franchises above described, any property, rights, privileges and franchises not herein described which may at the time of sale be covered by said orginal mortgage or deed of trust of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company or any indenture to the Adams Trust Company supplemental thereto. The conveyance to the purchaser will be made without covenants, express or implied. Article XIII of said mortgage or deed of trust provides that said Fore River Ship & Engine Company will, upon request of the purchaser at foreclosure sale, make, execute and deliver to said purchaser a good and sufficient deed or deeds to confirm the title in said purchaser.

The said property will be sold as an entirety to the highest bidder, subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments and other liens, if any. No bid will be received from any person who shall not first deposit with the auctioneer, as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, the sum of Twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. Deposits so received from any unsuccessful bidders will be returned to them when the property shall be struck off, and the deposit so received from any successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price of the property sold. On the acceptance of any bid the purchaser shall forthwith pay to the auctioneer in addition to the amount of the deposit qualifying him to bid as above provided, the sum of Twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. The purchaser shall within ten days from the date of sale pay to the Adams Trust Company as Trustee, on account of the purchase price, an additional sum sufficient to make his total payments equal to (50) per cent. of such purchase price, and the balance of the purchase price shall be paid and the property transferred on or before the expiration of thirty days from date of sale. In case any bidder shall fail to make good his bid upon its acceptance, or shall fail after its acceptance to make the further payments herein before required, then his right to receive and purchase the property shall at the option of the said Trust Company at once cease, and said Trust Company shall have the right to proceed at once to re-sell the property, and all sums deposited or paid by him shall be forfeited and shall be applied to the payment of the expenses and charges in connection with the re-sale and toward making good any deficiency, loss or damage resulting from such failure and re-sale, whether arising from the delay, from the fact that the second sale is made at a less price than the first, or from any other cause, and any balance remaining shall be repaid to the defaulting bidder or purchaser. The purchaser may in making payment of the purchase money, deliver to the Trustee any of the bonds or coupons secured by said mortgage or deed of trust, said bonds or coupons to be computed at a sum equal to that which would be payable out of the net proceeds of said sale (if made for money) to the purchaser as the holder of the bonds and coupons so delivered for his share or proportion of such net proceeds.

Further information may be had on application to the undersigned or its counsel.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

Better apply TODAY for information regarding Prudential policies to

TIME TO END WAR

Roosevelt to Be Asked to Act as Peacemaker

MOVE BY BELGIAN KING

Thinks Our Chief Magistrate In Position to Check Slaughter In the Far East--Duly Accredited Envoy Arrives at New York

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Information was received at the executive offices here last night of the arrival in New York of G. Francotte, a delegate to the peace conference which is to be held at St. Louis. He is said to be the bearer of credentials from the King of Belgium to President Roosevelt, requesting the latter to use his good offices in the restoration of peace between Russia and Japan.

No engagement has been made for Francotte to see the president. The usual diplomatic proceedings would require that the bearer of a mission should call upon the secretary of state first and make through him arrangements for an interview with the president. It is likely that that course of procedure will be followed in this instance.

New York, Aug. 31.—Mr. Francotte was not aware last night that no appointment had been made for him to call upon the president and expected to leave for Oyster Bay today on the understanding that arrangements for the conference had been made by cable. In speaking of his mission, he said:

"King Leopold is of the opinion that President Roosevelt is in a position to accomplish more in behalf of peace between Russia and Japan than is any other magistrate. I have been delegated by my king to see President Roosevelt and, while I am hopeful, I, of course, do not know what the outcome of our conference will be.

"King Leopold is deeply interested in the subject of universal peace and the settlement of all delicate questions between nations by arbitration. Even if President Roosevelt does not think the time opportune for friendly intervention, he may have valuable suggestions to make along the lines of international harmony, such as a peace congress of all the nations every few years. It is the opinion of European diplomats that the time for ending the Japanese-Russian war has arrived."

Kaiser Won't Tender Good Offices

Berlin, Aug. 31.—Complete and positive denial is given here of the report circulated in Paris that Emperor William is contemplating a tender of good offices with a view to ending the Russo-Japanese war. It is authoritatively stated that there is "not a word of truth in the report."

Could Not Save His Sons

Fort Fairfield, Me., Aug. 31.—While fording the Aroostook river near the mouth of Madawaska stream, G. B. Churchill of Caribou and two sons, aged 5 and 6 years, were upset from their wagon and the boys were drowned. As the current is very swift at this point, Churchill was unable to save his sons and barely reached shore himself.

New Move of Strikers

Chicago, Aug. 31.—A strong effort is to be made to spread the scope of the stockyards strike so that it will include every trade which is affiliated with the packing industry. The stock handlers employed at the yards, numbering about 1000, voted to go on strike. President Donnelly will try to extend the strike to the railroads doing business at the stockyards.

Not a Piece of Burns' Flesh

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 31.—State Detective Murray says that the piece of flesh found at Smithland mill in Athol had no connection with the disappearance of Frank J. Burns, the medical examiner having stated that the flesh had no connection with the case. It is expected that a further investigation of the finding of the flesh will be made.

Rockefeller In a Salt Deal

Cleveland, Aug. 31.—A supplemental report of the special master in the sale by common pleas court of the United Salt company properties showed John D. Rockefeller to be the highest bidder and the probable purchaser of the concern. Rockefeller's bid is $90,000. The sale of the property is the result of three years of receivership.

Strikers Lose at Kansas City

Kansas City, Aug. 31.—So far as Kansas City is concerned the packers believe the strike is ended. A packing house manager says that at least one half of the strikers have gone back to work and about one fourth of them have left the city.

Probably Fatally Burned

Dover, N. H., Aug. 31.—Mrs. Mary Boyle, 83 years old, who lived alone, was terribly burned last night, her clothing having taken fire, it is thought, from the kitchen stove. Physicians say she cannot recover.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, Sept. 1.
Sun rises—5:09; sets—6:19.
Moon rises—9:50 p. m.
High water—3 a. m.; 3:30 p. m.
Fair weather is indicated for New England.

GEORGE W CUMMINGS

A Leader In the Journalistic Field Removed by Death

New York, Aug. 31.—George W. Cummings, vice president of the American Press Association, died suddenly, Aug. 28, at Banff, Northwest Territories, while on his way from his home in Los Angeles, Cal., to New York.

Mr. Cummings was born near Terre Haute, Ind., in 1848, and was graduated from Indiana State university in 1872. He was married in 1879 to Miss Josephine de Fontaine of Charleston, S. C., who died in 1903. He engaged in journalism in Terre Haute and afterward in St. Louis.

In 1882, in connection with Major O. J. Smith and R. W. Nelson, Mr. Cummings founded the American Press Association in Chicago. Last spring he removed from New York, where he had lived for 20 years, to Los Angeles. His health had been impaired for some years before his death. He was identified with a number of business undertakings and died possessed of a considerable fortune. He will be buried in Woodlawn cemetery, New York.

Will Try Conclusions With Mafia

Pittsburg, Aug. 31.—Angered at the arrest of himself and two friends, Andrew Lunedino, an Italian, advised the police that he was under the protection of "Mafia" and unless he and two companions, named Plachero and Rugor, were at once released, the officers would die by assassination. Magistrate Kirby, after listening to the recital of the threat of the "Mafia," fined Plachero and Rugor, on the charge of being suspicious persons, $25 and costs or 60 days at the workhouse, while Lunedino, for interfering with an officer, was fined $10 and costs or 30 days at the workhouse.

Senator Clark's Close Call

Missoula, Mont., Aug. 31.—United States Senator Clark was attacked here by an insane man known on the streets as Joe Peg, who thought the senator had been breaking the game laws and was carrying a grouse in his pocket. Clark ran panting into the lobby of the Florence hotel and demanded protection. Several times Peg had made motions to pull a gun and threatened to shoot unless Clark would give up his game bird. Several persons sprang to Clark's assistance and the insane man was overpowered.

New Englander Came In First

St. Louis, Aug. 31.—The Olympic Marathon race, participated in by 31 men classed among the fleetest runners of the world, was won by Thomas J. Hicks of Cambridge, Mass. The distance was 24 miles and 1500 yards. Hicks' time was 3h. 28m. 53s.; A. J. Corey of Chicago, 3h. 34m. 16s.; A. L. Newton of New York, 3h. 47m. 33s. The winner received a cup and an Olympic championship gold medal, the second a silver medal and the third a medal of bronze.

John M Beat the Favorite

Providence, Aug. 31.—Twelve thousand persons saw the best racing of the Grand circuit to date at Narragansett park. The grand attraction was the Park Brew stake for a purse of $5000. There were five entries, but the event was practically a two-horse race between Gallagher, the Canadian horse, and John M, the property of E. E. Smathers of New York. The former was favorite over the field, but the event was won by John M.

Religion and Shotguns Mixed

Tazewell, Va., Aug. 31.—A bloody fight occurred last night between the Whitakers and Altizers at Indian Creek. As a result of the fight Noah Altizer is dead, Lee Whitaker is seriously injured, Bill Whitaker has very small chances of recovery, and John Stanson, a sympathizer of the Altizers, is seriously injured. The trouble occurred at a religious meeting. The Whitakers and Altizers had been enemies for 30 years.

Trial Comes In October

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 31.—The cases of I. Balcom and W. A. Dunn, indicted for manslaughter have been continued to the October term. They were conductor and motorman on the trolley car which collided with another car of the same company on Aug. 1, resulting in the loss of two lives and serious injuries to many persons.

Shipwrecked Seamen Drowned

Aden, Arabia, Aug. 31.—A boat containing the captain and 16 members of the crew who had left the British steamer Baron Innerdale, which was ashore off the southeast coast of Arabia, capsized, and all the occupants were drowned, with the exception of one boy, who was saved by natives.

Alliance Will Not Parade

New York, Aug. 31.—The unions composing the Building Trades Alliance will not parade on Labor day, this action being taken with the object of avoiding the stirring up of hostile public opinion which was caused by the labor parade last year, when Sam Parks rode in the line.

Judge Placed Military In Control

Statesboro, Ga., Aug. 31.—Before the court of inquiry into the action of the military at the burning of the two negroes, Judge Daly testified that when Captain Hitch arrived he placed him in entire control. He considered the military force on hand at all times adequate.

Roman Nunciature For China

Rome, Aug. 31.—Vatican circles are discussing the project of creating a nunciature for China on the ground that the rupture with France has provided a favorable opportunity for such action.

The McVicker Contest

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Horace McVicker, stepson of Mrs. J. H. McVicker, who died in Pasadena, Cal., last week under peculiar circumstances, has received a telegram from Los Angeles informing him that a further investigation of the circumstances of her death was imperative. The telegram was from a niece of Mrs. McVicker and McVicker is said to have instructed her to proceed with the investigation.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 31.—The body of Mrs. McVicker, widow of the former theatrical manager, together with all her effects, are being held by her physician, Dr. Zeigler, who has indicated that he will not surrender the body or the effects on the order of Horace McVicker.

Kiowa Wreck Abandoned

Boston, Aug. 31.—The Clyde steamship Kiowa, which has been lying at the bottom of the harbor outside of Boston light, since she was run by the steamer Admiral Dewey on Dec. 26 of last year, has been abandoned by the wrecking companies, and she will be destroyed. The vain attempts to raise her have cost several thousand dollars.

Bottom Up, With Sails Set

Eastport, Me., Aug. 31.—Schooner Orozimbo passed, between Moosepeck and Petit Manan, a schooner probably of 450 tons, bottom up and sails set. There was about three feet of the hull above water. The derelict is a dangerous obstacle to shipping.

Railway Men's Demands Refused

New York, Aug. 31.—The demand of motormen and firemen of the "L" road for an increase in wages and a decrease in the hours of labor in the new subway was refused by the officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit company.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The fast expresses on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad between New York and Boston will be lighted by electricity in place of gas within a short time. The equipment is being installed on the cars.

The body of an unknown man, that had been cut in two by a train, was found near a crossing at Pawtucket, R. I.

RECORD TRIP.

Of Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer from Newport, R. I., to Rockland, Me.

Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer formerly of Quincy made a record trip Sunday from Newport, R. I., to Rockland, Me., in response to a telegram announcing that her mother, Mrs. Paul Revere, daughter of the late Rev. William P. Lunt of Quincy, was dying at the Point Lookout club on Isle Au Haut in outer Penobscot bay.

Her trip was made by special train and boat to Rockland, Me., from which point she reached her destination in a steam yacht. On this the last stage of the trip the yacht broke down and had to put back to Rockland. A breeze sprung up, however, and the yacht was able to complete her trip under sail.

The news we received yesterday was that Mrs. Revere was more comfortable. She is about 80 years of age.

Yachting.

The fleet of the Wollaston Yacht club cruising on the South Shore circuit is expected home Friday night.

Sunday the six Wollaston boats with four Quincy boats raced from Duxbury to Wellfleet, over a 30 mile course. Two classes started: the Claytonia, Usona, Pocahontas, Grayling and Sentinel in one class, and Memento, Goblin, Brant, Hustler, Marvel and Moondyne in the other. The Claytonia won in the first class and the Marvel in second.

Tuesday morning the Wollaston Yacht club ball nine played the strong Wellfleet team, defeating them 16 to 3. This is the second defeat of the year for the Wellfleet team, and a large crowd witnessed the home team's defeat.

☞Criticism is made on the people of Vermont because so few of them are attending the political rallies which are being held in that state. Bourke Cockran's audiences have rarely exceeded one thousand in number. Secretary Taft managed to attract as many as twelve hundred. Speaker Cannon had even less than a thousand. Other men of lesser fame have fared proportionately. The reasons are evident, and are not to be found in lack of appreciation of the visiting orators. Vermont is busy with her summer visitors, whose demands upon the time and attention of the people are exacting. The campaign presents no absorbing features, so that voters may be pardoned for not bothering to go to hear speeches about it, especially if their personal affairs are pressing. Undoubtedly hundreds who have not heard a speech will find the time to vote, and that is the main thing, after all.—New Bedford Standard.

—A man has to take care of himself in the streets of a city where street cars, automobiles and teams of all descriptions are plenty. Mike Walsh said, 50 years ago, that it required more talent to get out of the way of omnibuses, in New York, than to be a Justice of the Peace in the country.—Lynn Item.

—The richest man in Europe is the emperor of Russia; his reported contribution of 200,000,000 rubles to the war fund is quite possible, as his ancestors left him an enormous wealth, and his annual income is estimated at over $40,000,000. His expenditures are on the same scale. A single court ball has cost a million rubles. For his personal needs the czar is said not to spend over $50 a day. The empress has the finest jewels in the world, but wears them only half a dozen times a year.—New Bedford Standard.

Work is being rushed along on the new store on Washington street, Quincy Point.

Class in Millinery.

The new trade class in Millinery, announced by the Women's Educational and Industrial Union of Boston, to commence September 6, is a step in the right direction; for it provides yet another opportunity for the young women to find self-support through a lucrative trade.

The aim of this trade class is to offer a thorough training in the making of hats. Competent "Makers" are in demand and can earn from five to ten dollars a week, with the further incentive in the possibility of becoming, at some time, "trimmer" with an ever expanding salary.

Beverly's tax rate this year is $16.60 on $1,000 an increase of ten cents over last year.

☞ Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.
